U.S. TROOPS TAKE OVER AIRCRAFT PLANT

Allies Advance Toward Capitals of Syria And Lebanon

British Line Is Aided By Free French

Warships Declared to Be Supporting Land Forces In British Drive Against The French Mandates; Invading Force Of 20,000 Said To Be Pushing Back French Armies of 45,000 On All Fronts

By The Associated Press British and "Free French" mechanized columns, striking across ancient battlefields where the Crusaders fought the Saracens, were reported today to have advanced within 40 miles of Damascus, capital of French-ruled Syria, and also within 40 miles of Beirut, capital of Lebanon.

General Henri Dentz, commander of Syria's defense forces, declared bloody fighting was in progress. British warships, supporting the land invasion which began at 2 a. m. Sunday, were reported in action along the Syrian coast, shelling the port of Tripoli, terminus of a pipeline from Iraq's great Mosul oil fields, and bombarding other coastal points.

Dispatches from Jerusalem said allied forces, which Vichy estimated at 20,000 strong, were driving across the broiling desert and into the volcanic mountains of the French Levant states from Palestine and Trans-Jordan and were pushing back the French armies of 45,000 men wherever they met.

Three allied columns were reported in action: 1. From Trans-Jordan, one force was said to be marching through the land of the war-like druses in Jebel Ed Druz toward Damascus. A German radio report said this column had advanced 25 miles to Soudeida, capital of Jebel Ed Druz, 58 miles south of Damascus.

2. From Palestine, another column was reported knifing toward Beirut north of the sea of Galilee, attacking the 12th century Crusaders' stronghold of Banias.

3. Still another contingent of British motorized troops was reported advancing up the Euphrates river valley in Iraq toward the big French outpost of Deir-Ez-Zor, in eastern Syria. The French high command said a British naval squadron of a battleship, two cruisers and five destroyers attacked the coast of Lebanon, south of Beirut, and landed small forces armed with sub-machine guns. The landing party was declared to have been captured.

Authoritative London quarters said the allies had entered the town of Merjayoun, on the road to Beirut, and also captured Tyre on the Lebanese coast. Merjayoun is 40 miles south of Beirut, Tyre is 40 miles southwest of Damascus.

Vichy, June 9.—(AP)—The French admitted tonight their forces in Lebanon had withdrawn behind the coastal towns. The French were taking up defensive positions along the river Litani against a secondary British attack directed toward Beirut, Lebanese capital.

New Axis Front

Rome, June 9.—(AP)—The British invasion of Syria opened a new front for the Italians and Germans who aim at wresting Suez and the Iraq oil fields from the British. Informed quarters said today, but there was nothing yet to indicate whether or when the Axis will accept the challenge there.

Fascist organs said the British were trying to put a stumbling block in the way of Axis forces by invading Syria and declared the British will suffer for it. "Syria will become a new battlefield which England invented only to delay her defeat several months," an authoritative spokesman said today.

Royal Air Force Attacks Western German Cities

BERLIN ADMITS CIVILIANS SLAIN Nazis Declared To Have Inflicted New Blows On Eastern Mediterranean Base Of Alexandria

London, June 9.—(AP)—The Royal Air Force "achieved successful results" in bombing attacks last night on Essen and Dortmund, Germany, it was announced today.

The British roared over western Germany through moonlit skies while the German air force made isolated forays into Britain.

(Officials in Berlin said some civilians were killed and others injured as light British forces dropped incendiary and explosive bombs at several places in western and northwestern Germany.)

A lone Nazi raider killed a small number of persons in an attack on a Cornish coastal town. Inland, there was scattered activity with some casualties. The government said one German plane was destroyed during the night.

Berlin, June 9.—(AP)—Several widespread fires were left in military areas of Alexandria, Egyptian base of Britain's fleet in the eastern Mediterranean, by German raiders in another heavy air attack. Saturday night, the high command reported today.

Despite strong anti-aircraft defenses, the communiqué said, several heavy bombs hit port facilities and naval depots.

The communiqué called this raid the second in force on Alexandria within four days, "particularly successful."

Merchants Meet Set For Atlantic Beach

The Board of Directors of the Greenville Merchants Association will hold the regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at the Atlantic Beach cottage of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Whitchard, Jr., and in this connection President Thomas E. Wilson today issued the following statement:

"The Board of Directors of the Merchants Association will have a treat tomorrow afternoon, Wednesday. Director Dave Whitchard and Mrs. Whitchard have invited the Board to hold their June meeting in Atlantic Beach at their cottage. The business session will be held at 4:00 P.M. and we will then take a "dip" and acquire that big appetite for the supper that our host and hostess will serve. "It's not necessary to say, 'Fellows I want a 100 per cent attendance, for I know everyone will be there.'"

Culture On Wheels

Edmonton, Alta.—(AP)—A street car library will begin operating in Edmonton in September. Old No. 14, out of use two years, will be reconditioned, its seats removed and shelves installed for 2,000 books. The tram library will visit outlying districts and "park" while the motorman leaves the car in care of a librarian.

Uncle Sam Takes Over Strike-Bound Plant

Pickets may be seen at the main entrances in this airview of the North American Aviation company plant in Inglewood, Calif., which today was taken over by the government when striking employees refused to return to work. According to a day government official, an army or navy officer will be placed in charge.

German Parachute Troops Captured In French Syria

Berlin and Vichy Had Denied Nazis Were In Country

(By The Associated Press) Capture of 150 German parachute troops in French-ruled Syria was reported today as British and Free French mechanized columns drove into France's Middle East colonies and the big guns of the British fleet threatened to blast Beirut, the capital of Lebanon.

Both the German and French have vigorously insisted there were no Nazi troops in Syria.

Dispatches from Vichy reported that defenders of Beirut had blown up the coastal road leading from Palestine to the Lebanese capital, in a move to slow the two-day-old allied invasion.

Vichy reports said British fleet squadrons were anchored before Beirut and Tripoli, and from this it appeared that the British had demanded the surrender of the two cities.

In Paris, one of France's chief collaborators with Germany, described the situation as "particularly grave."

Reuters, British news agency, in reporting the seizure of Nazi "chutists" quoted the Free French Levant radio station as saying that the Syrian populace was welcoming the allies enthusiastically, and that French troops also were falling in line.

Striking across ancient battlefields where the Crusaders fought the Saracens and near the Sea of Galilee where Christ sought disciples among the humble fisherfolk, the allied columns were reported to have advanced within 40 miles of both Damascus, Syrian capital, and Beirut.

British Advance In African Campaign

Nairobi, Kenya Colony, June 9.—(AP)—Another 1,200 prisoners were claimed by the British today in a continuing advance against Italian remnants in southwestern Ethiopia.

An army communiqué said 200 Europeans and 1,000 Eritreans, as well as 20 army trucks, were taken by British Imperial forces which had crossed the Omo river in two places.

These raised the total of prisoners reported by the British in this drive to 3,200.

Army Has Vacancies For Tar Heel Negroes

Approximately 50 vacancies for colored boys with a sixth grade education exist in the Coast Artillery Quartermaster Corps, Engineer Corps and Detached Enlisted Men's List, according to an announcement today of the Wilson recruiting station.

Recruiting Sergeant Clifford C. Floyd urged any colored youth desiring to enlist in the service to go to the Wilson station at once.

The openings are at Fort Bragg and Camp Davis, N. C., and Fort Jackson, S. C. The enlistments are in the regular army of the United States for three years. This is a fine opportunity for young colored boys between the ages of 18 and 35 years to enlist in the regular army, and now is the time to enlist while the vacancies exist.

3,000 TROOPS OCCUPY PLANT IN CALIFORNIA

Take Over Aviation Factory Under Executive Order

50-TRUCK CONVY MOVES ON PLANT

Six Persons Taken to Hospital Following Fights Between Pickets And Workers Seeking Enter Gates

Los Angeles, June 9.—(AP)—Three thousand U. S. troops, bayonets-drawn, and carrying machineguns, took over the strike-bound North American Aviation plant today under presidential proclamation after two riots in which tear gas bombs were hurled between police and a CIO picket line, 1,000 strong.

Six persons were taken to the Venice hospital after fights between the pickets and workers who tried to enter the plant. Strikers generally yielded as troops of the 15th infantry advanced on the big plane factory in long skirmish lines, but one who stood his ground was bayoneted and taken to hospital.

The soldiers moved in a short time after fighting broke out and tear gas bombs were hurled as some of the 12,000 men tried to enter the plant in response to a government request to resume production of warplanes at the plant.

A convoy of 50 trucks, loaded with army troops, moved down Redondo boulevard in front of the plant.

The troops were greeted with cheers by the lines of workers across the road from the plant's main entrance, who had been prevented from entering the struck plant by disorders.

Army control of the huge plant, which has a backlog of $200,000,000 in plane orders, came five days after the workers struck, demanding a minimum wage of 75 cents an hour and an increase of 10 cents an hour for all workers now paid 75 cents an hour.

Today's action followed an ultimatum by the President that the army would take over the plant unless the men returned to work this morning. The strikers, however, remained firm in their demands, despite the President's statement and the request of their own CIO national leaders for them to resume work.

In taking over the plant, Lieut. Colonel Charles E. Bradshaw, in charge of the western district office of the Army Air Corps, issued a statement, saying:

"My instructions from Washington are to take immediately all steps necessary to protect workmen desiring to enter the plant. Those leaving the plant and in their homes, and to take such other additional measures as may be needed in the interest of national defense.

"Effective immediately, the plant will be opened for work under government control. Employees desiring to return to their jobs will be given all necessary protection to insure free and safe entrance to and exit from the factory.

"The proper civil authorities are giving full cooperation to the extent of their ability in the enforcement of local, state and federal laws and in any additional steps deemed essential and authorized by the national emergency powers of the President."

The soldiers moved into the plant quietly. Disorders ceased when the occupation of the great aircraft manufacturing center took place with the simplicity of a routine military maneuver.

Twenty-five minutes after the first disorder, quiet was restored when words passed "the troops are coming." A military truck moved down the boulevard, loaded with soldiers. It was followed by some 50 more.

The big gates of the plant swung open and the troops moved in. The motor convoy in its approach to the plant was augmented by two marching columns approaching from another direction.

Pickets moved out of way of the troops and placards were raised reading:

"Welcome army. Keep out the scabs."

About 100 Men Involved In Disorders At Plant Gates Which Broke Out A Short Time Before Soldiers Marched Into Strike-Bound North American Aviation Company at Los Angeles

Los Angeles, June 9.—(AP)—U. S. army troops moved into the North American Aviation Company here this morning to take over the strike-bound plant on orders from President Roosevelt.

Fighting broke out at the gates of the plant a short time before President Roosevelt ordered the army to take over the plant.

The disorders, involving about 100 men at the two main gates, occurred at some of the 12,000 strikers tried to enter in response to a government request to resume operations at the plant, having a warplane backlog of $200,000,000.

The strikers are demanding a minimum of 75 cents an hour, an increase of 25 cents over the present wage, and an increase of 10 cents an hour for all workers now paid 75 cents an hour or more.

President Roosevelt last Saturday laid down the ultimatum of opening the plant or operation of the business by the United States army.

Troops were moved into the Southern California area last night, but at the time of disorders this morning had not put in an appearance.

Tear gas bombs were hurled against the pickets shortly after Mayor Fletcher Bowron addressed 800 workers at one of the big gates and told them:

"If you want to go back to work you are going to have the opportunity to do so."

The bombs were tossed from wing of the big plane factory and succeeded in splitting the picket lines for a short time. Some of the bombs were tossed back against the building before they exploded.

After retreating for some distance, however, the pickets came back and reformed their lines. At Mayor Bowron's order, police lines were formed on two roads leading to the main gates of the plant, with about 200 officers succeeding in clearing both thoroughfares for workers to get up to the gates.

There were about 1,600 workers some distance away, ready to start for the plant. At least one thousand men were in the picket lines.

John Van Goor, an inspector of aircraft, was severely beaten about the head as he tried to dash through the picket line. Two other workers tried to crash the line by speeding toward a gate in their automobile, but the machine was overturned and the men retreated.

Warden Battles Fire Set By Carelessness

C. A. Bowling, Pitt county fire warden, today reported that about 60 acres of woodlands were burned over by a blaze, believed to have started as a result of carelessness, off the Stantonburg road about six miles from Greenville Saturday night.

The warden and a corps of assistants battled the blaze all day Sunday. He was not advised of the fire until Sunday morning after it had gained much headway.

Warden Bowling called attention to the dry weather and urged citizens to be especially careful to avoid starting forest fires.

Emphasizes Belief In Sunday Sermon

By WYATT BROWN

"The supreme need of each individual is to get to that place he can say: 'I believe,'" suggested Reverend T. M. Grant, pastor, in his sermon yesterday morning at Jarvis Memorial Methodist church. It was the first Sunday of the unified Church and Sunday School worship service held at 10:15 A.M. each Sunday morning through the summer replacing the 9:45 Sunday School worship service and the 11 o'clock church worship service.

In developing his theme, Mr. Grant used the figure of a ship's anchorage safe from the storm. Today's world upheaval he likened to the storm. A simple faith he likened to the anchorage.

First indicating the world strife we face today he said, "We hold our place better if we have an anchor of faith. The permanent development of a faith depends on the ability to fix something permanent in thinking. There is a supreme need for each individual to get to

Passenger Train Wrecked

The Atlantic Coast Line passenger train between Weldon and Kinston was wrecked about one hundred yards from the depot here Saturday evening. The train had slowed up for the station and was only running about 20 miles an hour, when it reached the switch for the sidetrack which runs by Jordan's tobacco factory, the engine jumped the track and smashed into a freight car which was standing on the sidetrack. None of the passengers were hurt and the mail and express clerks only received a shaking up.

The novelty of seeing a wreck cleared away was new to the people of Greenville and hundreds of them remained about the scene and watched the eager crews at work until the track was cleared so the train could leave for Kinston.

before they took up their places and stood at attention until the sit-down cherd was given. Then followed the various features of the joint worship program, which included a call to worship verse of scripture, songs, prayer, motto of the school and salute to the flag and Bible. At this juncture the Nursery, Beginner and Primary departments retired while the Juniors and Intermediates continued with their worship program. At 10 minutes after 9 o'clock those departments retired to their places of assembly and carried out departmental programs.

The program for each day begins at 8:30 and lasts for three hours, but it is marked by such variety as to hold the attention of the children. The school is open to all children of the community. The children who register tomorrow will have no trouble in finding their place in the school. They will miss one day only.

The motto of the school is "To be honest, To be kind, To be generous, hopeful and helpful, To be happy and courteous, Today."

Bridge Party For Bride-Elect.
Charming in every detail was the bride party given Tuesday evening when Mrs. Raymond Elks and Mrs. Leslie Elks entertained at their home in Grimesland, complimenting Miss Juanita Hoell, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. Charles William Hargett has occasioned a series of delightful social events.

Invitations were for eight o'clock and guests arriving at the appointed hour were received by the hostesses who directed the way into the adjoining living room and dining room where tables were arranged for play.

The living room presented a picture of unusual loveliness for the occasion with mixed bouquets of delphinium, Queen Anne's lace and feverfew which centered the mirrored console table, the occasional and end tables placed about its room.

The bride motif was reflected in the mantel decoration which was flanked by tall white tapers tied with bows of green and white satin in low holders of silver. A miniature bride and groom standing beneath an archway, entwined with English ivy interwoven with feverfew and centered with wedding bells formed the centerpiece of ivy-banked mantel.

A lovely arrangement of spring flowers in soft, pastel shades centered the main dining table spread with a cloth of white and lighted by tapering white candles tied with bows of bridal green and white which burned in candelabra of crystal. A large crystal bowl holding pink, blue and white flowers adorned the buffet, flanked by white tapers and additional floral arrangements were placed upon the service tables, and prior to games the hostesses presented Miss Hoell with a corsage of dainty wedding scenes.

When progressions were concluded Mrs. Lela Belle Hoell, high scorer in bridge, was presented Dorothy Perkins Woodpecker cologne and Mrs. Curtis Ross, low scorer, was awarded china ash trays. The floating prize, a hobnail vase, was won by Mrs. Hick Galloway. Miss Christine Cordeau, high scorer in setback, was presented handkerchiefs, and Mrs. Theodore Dixon, low scorer, was awarded an attractive box of individual soaps.

Each of the hostesses remembered the bride-elect with crystal in her selected pattern, "Rose Point," and Mrs. T. R. Rouse, Jr., a recent bride, was presented a Festoria fruit bowl. Mrs. John Lewis, who is leaving this week for Norfolk, where she will make her future home, was given a going-away gift of linen guest towels.

At the refreshment hour the central lights were dimmed and the multiple candles placed about the rooms were lighted, their soft glow along with the white tapers showered with bows of green and white bridal satin which centered the individual tables, lending an added note of charm to the lovely appointments. The deliciously prepared chicken course was served with green tinted heart-shaped sandwiches, celery curls, pickles and Ritz crackers and iced tea. Each refreshment plate was marked with a dainty corsage.

Library News

Portulaca
"Portulaca" the common weed title of Bernice Kelly Harris' first novel becomes a wild flower, "Portulaca," in her second book. Appropriately the locale of the second novel is moved from the country to the small town. And now we are wondering if Mrs. Harris should move her locale to the city and write a gardenia story. But probably not, for it may be that a great part of her success may be due to her particular locale which she described so uncompromisingly. Many prominent writers of today find it so. Octavius Roy Cohen is always in Birmingham, Clarence Budington Kelland stays in Phoenix, Arizona and John P. Marquand remains in and around Boston. And there others who do likewise. Then too, may be Mrs. Harris should keep her locale because the present literary demand is for stories and novels whose scenes are laid in the country and small towns rather than the city.

People who live small towns will feel at home in "Portulaca" for all the doings of the small community are found there. Sewing clubs, bridge parties, barbecues, marriages, births, neighborhood gossip, even, southern means that make the mouth water—all these are in the book. And there is romance, but a different kind, a sort of a Dante-Beatrice love only reversed, for an authoress is in love with her publisher. The response to love is there, though only on one side, and it makes good reading. One northern critic says "it is a magnificent portrait of a southern town."

By the way Mrs. Harris is said to have been pleasantly surprised at the price the Saturday Evening Post paid for her most recent short story "Bantle Woman." It is a "tobacco road" story with plenty of romance-in-the-raw. The plot is unique, the ending a complete surprise. And it has lots of suspense and atmosphere. What more could one ask of a short story?

Short reviews of other new books in the Sheppard Memorial Library are as follows:
"Random Harvest" by Charles Hilton—Charles Rainier, an upper-class English business man, and a member of Parliament, with a clever wife and large city and country homes, has nevertheless, a shadow over his past. There are three years of his life which are perfectly blank—from the time when he was hit by a shell in the World war, until he waked up on a Liverpool park bench in 1919. The story of Rainier's ceaseless efforts to recapture those blank years is told partly by Rainier himself, partly by his secretary. The book closes in 1939, on the eve of the second war, with Rainier in possession of the complete story of his own life.

"He Looked for a City" by Arthur S. M. Hutchinson—The tale of how an English vicar and his brave wife bear up under the strains caused by the imprisonment and death of their eldest son, a high-minded conscientious objector in the World war, and by their kindhearted harboring of a German woman who had become part of the family in youth long years before, but who was suspected of being an enemy sympathizer. The story is relieved and intensified by incidental happy and sorrowful episodes provided by family school social and church life.

"Not Heaven Itself" by Margaret Pedler—Barrie Foster's father committed suicide when he was found guilty of embezzlement, her mother died of grief, her brother fled to Australia. Barrie pursued her career as a dancer until she fell in love with a famous surgeon. Then her brother, returning to England, discovered the surgeon was the same man as the famous barrister who sentenced his father and caused his death. The story describes Barrie's way out of this dilemma.

"Summer 1914" by Roger Martin du Gard—A continuation of "The Tribulations," a novel published in 1938. It follows the story of Jacques and Antoine, the Thibault sons—Jacques who lived and died a Socialist, and Antoine, a doctor who died from a lung disease contracted in the first World war. The book reveals the roots of the spiritual collapse and the humiliation of the French people today, thereby giving a better understanding of why France was vanquished at a blow.

"Spice on the Wind" by Irmagarde Eberle. Illustrated by Richard Jones—A charming and unique little book, believe it or not, actually smelling of spices. It tells how they are grown, where, and how distributed.

Ambassador Ball Festival Queens.
Torbora, June 9.—The Ambassador Club of Torbora, presenting its third annual June dance at the high school gymnasium tonight, will act as host to the queens chosen to rule the various festivals all over the state and in South Carolina and Virginia.

The dance is unique as an Ambassador Club dance since this will be the first time that the club has sent special guest invitations to anyone. The queens of all the large festivals in the state have been asked to be present with their escorts. Never before in this section of the state has there been as many festival queens gathered under one roof as there will be Monday night.

Among those who have already accepted the invitations of the club is Miss Pauline Bourpe of Asheville, chosen as the 1941 Queen of the Rhododendron, the recognition most sought after by members of the younger set of Asheville. She will rule the festival of the Rhododendron Gardens, June 16-20. Miss Bourne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bourne, and is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bourne of Torbora.

Then from close to home will come Miss Lylal Boice, crowned queen of the Gallopade of Rocky Mount. Miss Boice, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Boice of Rocky Mount, graduated from the University of North Carolina. She will be escorted by Mr. Scott Holman, Jr., of Rocky Mount.

Miss Mildred Stark Hussey, Queen of the Wallace Strawberry Festival, replied to the invitation of the club: "I will be very happy to be in Torbora, and I am so pleased to go to the Ambassador Club's dance. My cousin, Miss Elizabeth Carter, who was my maid of honor, will be with me." Two other members of the court of the Strawberry Festival will be present with Miss Hussey and Miss Carter. Escorting Miss Hussey will be Mr. Bill Boney of Wilmington, and Miss Carter will be with along with the white tapers showered with bows of green and white bridal satin which centered the individual tables, lending an added note of charm to the lovely appointments.

The deliciously prepared chicken course was served with green tinted heart-shaped sandwiches, celery curls, pickles and Ritz crackers and iced tea. Each refreshment plate was marked with a dainty corsage.

Chilled beverages were served throughout the evening by the hostesses.

Guests were: Miss Hoel, Mrs. Lela Belle Hoell, Mrs. John Lewis, Mrs. Hick Galloway, Mrs. T. R. Rouse, Jr., Mrs. G. P. Carr, Mrs. W. A. Hudson, Mrs. Dan White, Mrs. Earl Galloway, Mrs. Bill Galloway, Mrs. F. A. Elks, Mrs. Mayhew Godley, Mrs. Cecil Tucker, Mrs. Theodore Dixon, Mrs. Paul Majette, Mrs. Clinton Elks, Mrs. B. F. Christian Science Service.
"God the Only Cause and Creator" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday.

The golden text was from Rev. 15:3, "Great and marvelous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-lesson were the following from the Bible: "I am the Lord, and there is none else, there is no God beside me. I have made the earth, and created man upon it; I, even my hands, have stretched out the heavens, and all their host have I commanded, I have raised him up in righteousness, and I will direct all his way. (Isa. 45: 5, 12, 13)

The lesson-lesson also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "There can be but one creator, who has created all. Whatever seems to be a new creation, is but the discovery of some distant idea of Truth; else it is a new multiplication or self-dissolution of mortal thought, as when some finite sense peers from its cloister to pattern the infinite. The creations of mortal mind are material. Immortal spiritual man alone represents the truth of creation."

Portulaca
"Portulaca" the common weed title of Bernice Kelly Harris' first novel becomes a wild flower, "Portulaca," in her second book. Appropriately the locale of the second novel is moved from the country to the small town. And now we are wondering if Mrs. Harris should move her locale to the city and write a gardenia story. But probably not, for it may be that a great part of her success may be due to her particular locale which she described so uncompromisingly. Many prominent writers of today find it so. Octavius Roy Cohen is always in Birmingham, Clarence Budington Kelland stays in Phoenix, Arizona and John P. Marquand remains in and around Boston. And there others who do likewise. Then too, may be Mrs. Harris should keep her locale because the present literary demand is for stories and novels whose scenes are laid in the country and small towns rather than the city.

People who live small towns will feel at home in "Portulaca" for all the doings of the small community are found there. Sewing clubs, bridge parties, barbecues, marriages, births, neighborhood gossip, even, southern means that make the mouth water—all these are in the book. And there is romance, but a different kind, a sort of a Dante-Beatrice love only reversed, for an authoress is in love with her publisher. The response to love is there, though only on one side, and it makes good reading. One northern critic says "it is a magnificent portrait of a southern town."

By the way Mrs. Harris is said to have been pleasantly surprised at the price the Saturday Evening Post paid for her most recent short story "Bantle Woman." It is a "tobacco road" story with plenty of romance-in-the-raw. The plot is unique, the ending a complete surprise. And it has lots of suspense and atmosphere. What more could one ask of a short story?

Short reviews of other new books in the Sheppard Memorial Library are as follows:
"Random Harvest" by Charles Hilton—Charles Rainier, an upper-class English business man, and a member of Parliament, with a clever wife and large city and country homes, has nevertheless, a shadow over his past. There are three years of his life which are perfectly blank—from the time when he was hit by a shell in the World war, until he waked up on a Liverpool park bench in 1919. The story of Rainier's ceaseless efforts to recapture those blank years is told partly by Rainier himself, partly by his secretary. The book closes in 1939, on the eve of the second war, with Rainier in possession of the complete story of his own life.

"He Looked for a City" by Arthur S. M. Hutchinson—The tale of how an English vicar and his brave wife bear up under the strains caused by the imprisonment and death of their eldest son, a high-minded conscientious objector in the World war, and by their kindhearted harboring of a German woman who had become part of the family in youth long years before, but who was suspected of being an enemy sympathizer. The story is relieved and intensified by incidental happy and sorrowful episodes provided by family school social and church life.

"Not Heaven Itself" by Margaret Pedler—Barrie Foster's father committed suicide when he was found guilty of embezzlement, her mother died of grief, her brother fled to Australia. Barrie pursued her career as a dancer until she fell in love with a famous surgeon. Then her brother, returning to England, discovered the surgeon was the same man as the famous barrister who sentenced his father and caused his death. The story describes Barrie's way out of this dilemma.

"Summer 1914" by Roger Martin du Gard—A continuation of "The Tribulations," a novel published in 1938. It follows the story of Jacques and Antoine, the Thibault sons—Jacques who lived and died a Socialist, and Antoine, a doctor who died from a lung disease contracted in the first World war. The book reveals the roots of the spiritual collapse and the humiliation of the French people today, thereby giving a better understanding of why France was vanquished at a blow.

"Spice on the Wind" by Irmagarde Eberle. Illustrated by Richard Jones—A charming and unique little book, believe it or not, actually smelling of spices. It tells how they are grown, where, and how distributed.

The dance is unique as an Ambassador Club dance since this will be the first time that the club has sent special guest invitations to anyone. Then from close to home will come Miss Lylal Boice, crowned queen of the Gallopade of Rocky Mount. Miss Boice, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Boice of Rocky Mount, graduated from the University of North Carolina. She will be escorted by Mr. Scott Holman, Jr., of Rocky Mount.

Miss Mildred Stark Hussey, Queen of the Wallace Strawberry Festival, replied to the invitation of the club: "I will be very happy to be in Torbora, and I am so pleased to go to the Ambassador Club's dance. My cousin, Miss Elizabeth Carter, who was my maid of honor, will be with me." Two other members of the court of the Strawberry Festival will be present with Miss Hussey and Miss Carter. Escorting Miss Hussey will be Mr. Bill Boney of Wilmington, and Miss Carter will be with along with the white tapers showered with bows of green and white bridal satin which centered the individual tables, lending an added note of charm to the lovely appointments.

The deliciously prepared chicken course was served with green tinted heart-shaped sandwiches, celery curls, pickles and Ritz crackers and iced tea. Each refreshment plate was marked with a dainty corsage.

Chilled beverages were served throughout the evening by the hostesses.

Minn. (although she has lived some time in Duluth), has been chosen as "Miss National Defense." It's another chapter in the book of "Life in Washington"—because the national capital is the most queen-conscious city in the world. Once a year, every department and many of the larger agencies take moonlight boat trips on the Potomac or assemble at dances and select their "queens."

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, June 9.—Unemployment in North Carolina has been reduced to the point where not more than 70,000 Tar Heel workers are about 5.4 per cent of the total available, are out of work, it is estimated by Silas F. Campbell, senior statistician for the bureau of research and statistics of the Unemployment Compensation Commission. Latest occupational count of registrants with the service was made as of April 25 and showed 54,276 job seekers, of whom 3,785 had work in their primary occupations. There were 50,491 applicants available for work in their primary occupations and of these 4,462 were reported working in their secondary occupations.

A WISE MOVE. There will be pretty general satisfaction at today's news that government troops have taken over the strike-bound North American Aircraft plant in California and will see to its operation. Already far too much time has been lost in our defense program by unwarranted strikes and there has been a growing demand on the part of the public for the government to take drastic action, if necessary, to see that the program moves at top speed.

It Just Started. Just how it all started and why the queen business has boomed so here are twin mysteries that no one seems able to answer. All of the departments have had their employees' recreational groups for years. They do a lot more than elect queens. They have outings and dances. They arrange athletic contests in almost every sport available in this climate. Many of them have their own gymnasiums for men and women. A long time ago, some group at a dance or outing selected its queen. The idea caught on and competitive spirit apparently has done the rest.

Little Bette Larson (5-foot-2) isn't exactly fit to the dance isn't even typical of Miss Larson, because she loves dancing, but she just happened to be worn out with a particularly heavy week and it took a lot of urging from friends in the quartermaster corps, where she is a secretary. I doubt if she's very typical in thinking the judges were either crazy or had made a mistake when they selected her. That kind of modesty isn't exactly a universal trait in pretty young girls. Her not wearing make-up isn't typical either. That's just because without any, her Scandinavian blonde complexion is perfect.

THE SACRED DAGGER. By Rita Moller Nelson. THE SACRED DAGGER. YESTERDAY: What should have been a comparatively simple trip into the Asiatic desert to meet her father and mother has been a series of almost incredible adventures for Annie Willard. But now Peie Mackey has flown her to their camp, and although the man she is most interested in, Blaise Sherwood, has disappeared, she is greeted by Phil—whom she is engaged to marry. Chapter 19. Unexpected Arrival. It was a little difficult, meeting so many people she had known only in her mother's letters, but it was soon over for Annie. She found Beth Huff looking happier than she had expected. Diana looking less beautiful and more human, young Larry Huff rosy of cheek and unvamped in manner, Dr. Louis Martaine colorless and cold of eye. Philip seemed a bit worn, she thought, as if the responsibility of the work during her father's absence was proving too much for him. Pete refused to stay even long enough for a cocktail. "But I'll be back in a day or two," he said with a special look for Annie, "and I'll bring the stuff the Emir gave you."

"I don't think I want it," she replied. "You may—I'll bring it—and a letter," he added. She had noticed him looking at Philip with critical eyes. The stoop of his narrow shoulders, his fussy, nervous manner—making unfavorable comparisons. "This girl hasn't had much to eat," he declared to the others. "You'd better feed her and put her to bed." Annie felt ready for bed. An eight-day fast, and then on top of everything else the let-down of finding her parents absent. Philip and the doctor each gave her an arm and walked her to the big tent that had been her parents' living quarters. Already it was covered with a fly of reeds in preparation for the summer's heat. She noticed a faint squatting beside the door. As they approached he rose and bowed. "Doddad!" she gasped. "How did you get here?" "I walked," he said simply. "Today?" "Today, I look after you now." "Did you come across the Bekkara? Bula Depression from Arish?" She said she didn't want to talk about it, but he answered, "I came the shortest way." "Then you passed by our camp Doddad. We saw you. Why didn't you stop?" "Now I look after you," he said and that was all she could get out of him. Diana remarked curiously, "You seem to know this man." "We met him on the desert," Anne answered and let Beth lead her into the tent. She sat down on a cot. Some one took off her shoes. Another made her comfortable with pillows. The Chinese cook brought her a cup of broth, and while she drank, Beth explained about the lama's arrival. "The strangest thing," she said, "Diana and I were planning a tramp down to the dig. We stepped out on the porch and in the space between two of the tents we saw him striding across the desert." "What did he say?" demanded her husband impatiently. "If I heard what I think I heard, he said, 'American girl comes through the air. She is hungry. You make soup.'"

"The others laughed again, but they were puzzled. Then," Beth finished, "he walked over here and squatted down by the tent door as if he'd come home, and began gnawing on a cheese he carried." The doctor turned to Anne. "You speak of meeting this fellow on the desert." "That was more than a week ago—byond Arisher," she answered. "But we may have seen him pass our camp this morning. Doddad is a good little man. You needn't be afraid of him." She refused a second cup of broth. For a moment the talk died down. She realized they were all curious to know just what her adventures had been. Argument. "How on earth did your pilot get hold of an airplane from Shan Lun?" Diana asked. "Anne avoided everyone's eyes. Gregory Sherwood was with us." "What! Gregory Sherwood?" cried Diana. Larry whistled. Philip Oliver's brow clouded. "That renegade!" "Oh, say," protested Larry. "I wouldn't go that far. He's a thorough scoundrel," Philip persisted. "A scientist with any sense of ethics doesn't interfere with another man's expedition." Diana laughed a bit self-consciously. "He may be a scoundrel as a scientist, but as a man he has his points. I was once engaged to him." Anne looked at her with a start. Beth asked, an edge to her voice, "Why didn't you marry him?" "I changed my mind. He's the most headstrong man I ever knew in my life." "And our enemy," said Anne. "Not mine," denied Diana. "The enemy of this expedition." Diana shrugged of this belonging to opposite parties. "I tell you—" Anne began angrily. Larry interposed hastily, speaking to Anne. "You say there were two planes, and he went on to the Capital?" "That's what Pete told me." "Then from our experience with the Chinese governor he's in jail by now. When your father interviewed him and mentioned he might like to use an airplane for further exploration the man came close to ordering us all out of the country. He implied that the gods themselves would not be allowed to fly a plane in his territory. He's forbidden us to set up or use the radio we brought along."

Greenies Divide Week-End Series With Tarboro Nine

SUNDAY'S WIN BY 13-0 SCORE

Adams Is Bested By Woods In Saturday Night Game

The Greenies divided the week-end series with Tarboro, winning yesterday's game at Guy Smith park 13-0 after having been defeated in Tarboro Saturday night by the score of 6-4.

The locals have lost both games played in the Tarboro park this season, having been routed 21-3 in their previous engagement in that city.

Tarboro made five runs in the fourth inning of Saturday night's contest and the locals were never able to overtake the Orioles.

It was altogether a different story here yesterday afternoon, however as the Greenies went on a hitting spree to post a 13-0 shutout victory behind the pitching of Kee. Harry Jenkins got a 340-foot homer yesterday afternoon after having clouted two four-baggers Saturday night.

Every man in the Greenville lineup got at least one hit yesterday, with Wilson getting three for four and Caraway three for five.

Tarboro never threatened until the ninth inning, when a double play cut short a would-be rally after Lee bases had been filled.

Kinston plays here tonight and the local club has arranged another Ladies Night with members of the sex being admitted for 10 cents. The first double-header of the season is scheduled for Thursday night, when the locals engage New Bern here. The first game will start at 7:45 o'clock.

Ushers 2nd Anniversary

On March 6, 1939 a group of co-workers from six churches united themselves together and called themselves City Ushers of Greenville, N. C. The churches consisted of A.M.E., Zion Selua, Chapel Cornerstone, Mt. Calvary, Phillippi Disciple and Sycamore Hill. We few worked faithful for the upbuilding and the falling race of humanity.

We worked so faithful until we were like a ship that glides out at sea. Ushers building was a place of meeting order that we could record our vows that will say good bye to thoughtlessness and to sin of every sort. After gliding out at sea, we made up in our minds to spiritual refreshment and spiritual conquest. Mr. Alexander Ford was our first president. During his presidential administration our accomplishments were great. The Fourth Sunday in April, 1940, our first anniversary was celebrated. The Rev. E. M. Hill, pastor of Mt. Calvary Free Will Baptist church, delivered our sermon. His choir also rendered music for the occasion. The Rev. E. M. Hill delivered to us a sermon that will be long remembered and will forever dwell with us. Our celebration was held at Phillippi Disciples church. God has kept us in union so closely allied, until we still work earnestly together. God has given us a beautiful union — a union blessed with intelligence, liberty and Christian faith. This union of ours is a goodly heritage. Its providential beginning is splendid history — varied and expansive domain.

Glorious union, beautiful form of standard, and exalted national spirit made every patriotic Christian proud of our union. Our victories and our civilization, with our progressive growth. Christianity citizenship, civic right, earnestness and love of liberty has enabled us to succeed this far.

Our second anniversary was held at Sylvia Chapel Free Will Baptist church, the fourth Sunday in April, 1941. The Rev. C. T. Utley officiated. His choir also rendered music for the occasion. He left with us a message that will live with us forever.

Mr. Archie Wooten is our president now and is doing his best for the upbuilding of our union. Our union colors are blue and white. Our union motto is "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." This has been stamped into every usher's heart. The purpose of our union is to help those who are less fortunate than we are. By the help of the Almighty we have been aiding the sick

D. O. Student

The smiling young man in the picture is Bruce Thigpen who welcomes you heartily and services your car efficiently when you drive into Sutton's Service Center on Dickinson avenue. Bruce has just been graduated with thirteen other Diversified Occupations pupils from Greenville High School. His D. O. studies included, besides service station routine and management, types of tobacco, methods of curing, and uses. This was arranged through the cooperation of Mr. Ralph Garrett and Mr. M. E. Sutton. Last fall Bruce worked with Person-Garrett, the remainder of his job-training was under Mr. Sutton.

Today you will find D. O. graduates and undergraduates in many businesses and trades in Greenville. For instance, Rufus Butner may take your message when you call Postal Telegraph; while Berpice Jenkins or C. B. Rowlette may write the story of the softball or baseball game you watch. Billy Gulley operates the filtration plant that purifies the city drinking water. Fred Stokes, and Paul Brooks work with the Carolina Dairy. Young women as well as young men from D. O. classes can sell you almost any article you buy in Greenville, from a toothbrush at Warren's Drug Store to a negligee at Blount-Harvey's or Penney's.

Diversified Occupations pupils are called "student-learners." They spend part of their school year working under the expert supervision of Greenville tradesmen and business men. In classes they study methods of doing their jobs. When they graduate they usually have employment opportunities waiting for them—often with the employers who trained them. If not, they have training and experience to help them find the proper openings.

This year's graduates included: Emmie Lou White, Edgar Denton, Billy Gulley, Bernice Jenkins, Mary Sue Moore, C. B. Rowlette, George Saad, Stanley Smith, Bruce Thigpen, Burney Warren, Jr., Doris Briley, Frances Dunn, Lila Everington, Thelma House.

Friday were: Miss Mattie Little, Miss Elizabeth Bryan, Mrs. Luther Deal, Miss Alice Newton, Mrs. Forrest Moore, Mrs. Woodrow Wooten, Miss Anna E. Little, Mrs. J. W. Little and Miss Virginia Moore.

State Interest Is Centered In First District Contest

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, June 9.—Interest in congressional races has begun to perk up in at least two districts, with formal announcements and consequent quickening of the pace expected in others before many moons have waned.

In the First J. Con Lanier of Pitt county has tossed a hat into the ring, bringing to three the number of already announced opponents for Congressman Herbert Bonner. The incumbent probably smiles very broadly at each new foe's plunge into the political pool, as there is always greater safety for the "ins" in the number of the "outs" who want "in."

In the Sixth there are reliable reports that City Judge E. Earle Rives of Greensboro has begun an undeclared war on Congressman Carl T. Durham of Orange county; while other formidable groups are known to be looking over the field in an effort to pick somebody with a chance to upset the druggist of Chapel Hill.

With the Lanier announcement the First district field includes Herbert Leary of Chowan, former district solicitor and now a state senator; and Marvin K. Blount of Pitt, formerly mayor of Greenville and a one-time high ranking officer of the North Carolina League of Municipalities.

Bonner is assumed to be a certain candidate for re-nomination, with the backing of the powerful organization which, as secretary, he helped Lindsay Warren to build up all over the First.

Lanier's entry is just another item showing why Pitt county, largest in the district, hasn't had — and probably will not have — the Congressman.

Rives' candidacy from Greensboro is expected to re-emphasize the same sort of situation in Guilford; with every keen political analyst looking for an entry backed by Wade Renfrow and the High Point element of the Democratic party. This will, as usual, divide Guilford into two warring camps and increase the chances of Durham immeasurably.

that place he can say, "I believe." But there must be something behind that belief.
He illustrated the need of knowledge of Christ to believe by citing one's reaction to a great work of art. One finds an appeal in the art. One does not know why. After a study of the artist and his purpose one begins to understand "if the appeal was there."
"If we cannot see behind the Christian religion which makes such a pull on us, we can strengthen our faith," he said.
In supporting that line of thought he made the point that Christ is a historical character and then he said:
"Behind our religion is a man who actually spoke his message to men — and that cannot be denied. There are four gospels. The first one was written thirty years after Jesus was crucified. But after all the faults and errors are admitted, we must come to the conclusion that the facts do stand."
"The Bible has had the most avowed criticism of any book in the history of man. But the story is true; it has stood the test of the years."
"Jesus still lives. I speak with all the earnestness I can muster, that Jesus lives. In the trying days when it seems religion has gone to pieces and there is nothing to hold to, we must remember that Jesus was died for an ideal."
"There are more books about the death of Jesus in preachers' libraries than any other kind of book. That is because the great thinking of the Christian Church has been on that subject."
In driving home his final fact of the idea of Christ's death for an ideal he cited the statement of the doctor who said, "We feel life is so complex, we overlook the simple."
Then Mr. Grant said:
"We complicate the death of Jesus with notions that are not there."
"We believe not by the authority of the church but by the authority of the soul."
In conclusion he referred to his opening figure of the anchored ships waiting out the storm, he exhorted his congregation to adopt, "A simple faith that affords anchorage from which we can set sail when the storm of the present strife is over."

TO MAKE TRIAL AT PERIODICAL

Will Attempt To Revive Home, Garden Publication

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, June 9.—Julie B. Warren, whose history book and dismissal as secretary of the North Carolina Education Association practically set the state on its ears, will try his hand at breathing new life into a moribund home and garden periodical published here.

Mr. Warren personally confirms the statement in an advertising blurb of "Southern Life": "We have now arranged with Julie B. Warren to devote his time and talent to Southern Life and give it the attention the magazine has needed in editorial supervision."

He says he cannot say whether the connection will be permanent, this depending entirely upon the

is still saying it.
This defense program is not made of one kind of job alone, it is filled to its capacity with different kinds, and if we are to win we must join the rank and do our best wherever the best can be done. Let us do this by planting more defense gardens with all the vegetables we like or can think of and then plant four we don't like, can all you like, can all you don't like. See that your neighbor has a garden.

A 4-H picnic was held at Cox School Friday, June 6. Twelve representatives from the Chicod Home Demonstration and 4-H clubs were present to help make it a full day. The reports on the work done coming from these clubs was splendid. Mr. Sharper Forbes 4-H leader from Cox Community told how he made $3.55 from one collard, Mrs. Gertrude told how she raised a peach orchard from her on planting and now she can sell her year supply from this orchard, she also told how she built a chicken house from logs from the forest by plans given her by the county agent, Mrs. Wilson is president of the Home Demonstration club of Chicod club. This club along with the Cox community are planning to purchase pressure cookers for their communities. More cows are being placed in different communities, more calf clubs are being organized. In fact a general pick up is seen on foot, all seem to say give me a chance.

SAYS LAWYERS SMART PEOPLE

Example of Fact Seen In Salmon Vs. Wyatt Case
Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, June 9.—Lawyers are justly given a reputation for so preparing their pleadings that if driven from one line of defense or attack for that matter they can take up another; but there is hardly a more perfect example of the reason for this kind of reputation than the defense of Dr. Wortham Wyatt in the case of Edwin Salmon vs. Wyatt, which the Supreme court has heard argued but has not decided.

Salmon is suing for alleged malpractice, charging that the doctor improperly burned his hands with x-ray treatments. It is admitted that plaintiff and his wife signed a release in consideration of a payment of $200.
The case was non-suited in superior court and plaintiff has appealed.
In their brief for the defendant appellant counsel contends:
"The judgment may be sustained upon any one of four grounds:
1. The plaintiff never had a cause of action to start with.
2. If he did have a cause of action to start with, it is barred by a valid release supported by a valuable consideration.
3. Even if the release is invalid for fraud or mutual mistake the plaintiff by his conduct and lapse of time has ratified the release and is estopped to attack it.
4. Regardless of all else, this suit is improperly constituted because the plaintiff, being only one of two persons who gave a joint release for a single joint consideration, seeks in his reply to set aside the release without the other releasor being a party to the suit."

success which attends his effort to build up the publication to the point where it is a profitable undertaking. He will give it at least a four months try, he added.

Those familiar with the history of the N. C. E. A. freely express the opinion that if it is possible to revive and rebuild Southern Life, Mr. Warren will do it. They point to the notable business success he made of the N. C. E. A. When he took over its management some nineteen years ago total assets were less than $2,000. When his final audit is submitted, which will be very soon, it is expected to show aggregate assets of approximately $70,000.

WHAT IS THERE ABOUT SPRING-AIR THAT MAKES IT FUNDAMENTALLY BETTER THAN OTHER MATTRESSES?
CLOTH POCKET
KNOTTED COILS
SPRING-AIR

NOT THIS—The cloth-pocketed mattress spring has its good points—but when the rubbing of spring against spring wears out the cloth, letting the springs get loose—there's trouble ahead.

NOR THIS—The knotted coils, hooked one spring to another, have no cloth pockets to wear out—but they have the hard knotted rings to creak and obstruct the flexibility.

BUT THIS—Spring-Air takes the best features of both old-type constructions and combines them into one. Scientific design has formed a new type of mattress comfort, and introduced a new concept of mattress longevity.
