ARMY REPORTS AVIATION UNIT NEARS NORMAL

North American Restored to 95 Pct. of Production

DISCRIMINATION PROTESTS FILED

Reports That Strike Leaders Being Dismissed Made At A Mass Meeting Held Near Reopened Plant

Los Angeles, June 11.—(AP)—The army claimed today it had restored the recently strike-closed North American Aviation plant to 95 per cent of normal production, while at a nearby park a mass meeting was held to protest reports of union discrimination.

Col. Charles W. Steinmetz said at least 95 per cent of the normal day crew of 7,600 was at work. Yesterday 4,866 worked. At the mass meeting, attended by approximately 600, three members of the United Automobile Workers' local negotiating committee, which called the short-lived strike, reported they were suspended from the night shift on orders of Col. Charles E. Branshaw. Col. Branshaw is in charge of production under orders of President

Detroit, June 11.—(AP)—An agreement to end the Bohn Aluminum and Brass Corporation strike delaying production of parts for military planes and submarine chasers was reached today by representatives of the company and the United Automobile Workers (CIO).

Roosevelt to operate the plant, which has $196,000,000 in warplane orders.

Wyndam Mortimer, UAW international representative, told the mass meeting, held at 6 a. m., so both night and day shift employees could attend.

"This is a battle over whether unions will be destroyed in this country by the army or otherwise. We are not saboteurs. Let us show them we are not trying to sabotage national defense."

In addition to the suspended members of the union negotiating committee, three other union members reported to the mass meeting that they had been dismissed by foremen.

Convict Captured Following Escape

Johnnie Brown, white convict sentenced in Halifax county to from three to five years on a charge of breaking and entering, is back at the Pitt county prison camp in "C" grade and wearing shackles after having lost his "A" grade privileges when he "walked off" Sunday.

The convict was captured in Halifax county yesterday after he had given officers a chase down a railroad track and into a swamp.

Brown had served 22 months of his term and, counting time off for good behavior, would have been released in three or four months. The days off, as well as privileges, however, were lost when he escaped.

Prisoners in "A" grade are not held under guard and Brown was declared to have "walked off" while no one was in sight.

Captain Paul Crawford, superintendent of the camp, said he had had several men to escape or "walk off" since he has been in charge here, but added that all had been recaptured.

Excludes U. S.

London, June 11.—(AP)—Irish sources said today that Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of Eire had refused to permit the United States to use either sea-ports or airports in Ireland as a stepping stone for transportation of war supplies to Britain.

The Irish prime minister, with the memory of bombs dropped in Dublin May 31 still fresh in his mind, was said to feel that use of any part of southern Ireland for such purposes would open the country to German air attacks as a legitimate military target.

It was understood, however, that he is agreeable to establishment of a terminus in Ireland for trans-Atlantic passenger service.

U. S. To Exercise Authority To Operate Defense Plants In Backing Board Rulings

Administration Leaders Will Be Used As Long As Necessary To Support Mediation Board Where Strikers Return And Submit Disputes

Washington, June 11.—(AP)—Administration leaders indicated today that the authority of the government to operate seized defense plants as long as necessary would be used to enforce decisions of the National Mediation Board where strikers return to work and submit labor disputes to the board for negotiations.

Senator Byrnes (D-SC), acting Senate majority leader, told reporters that such a policy appeared likely in the case of the CIO strikers who agreed conditionally to resume work in the North American Aviation Company plant at Inglewood, Calif., now operating under army supervision by the President's orders.

Byrnes said he was informed that in such a case negotiations would be begun by the Mediation Board and some solution sought for the disputed points.

Asked how the board would enforce its decision, once it reached a conclusion, Byrnes replied: "The government can continue to operate the plant. If the men don't want to accept the decision of the Mediation Board, they can quit. More men can always be found to take over their jobs."

Sec. Stimson Addresses West Point Graduates

Declares Totalitarian System Doomed To Failure

West Point, N. Y., June 11.—(AP)—The issue raised by leaders of the Axis powers "not only demonstrates that any compromise between their system and ours is impossible, but that their system is 'doomed to eventual and total failure.'" Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson declared today.

That issue, he told 420 graduates of the United States Military Academy in a prepared address, is "so clear-cut that its nature should be apparent to anyone who faces it fairly."

"To anyone brought up in American standards it is an issue between freedom and slavery, between kindness and cruelty. Such an issue is not subject to compromise."

"The people who are urging today that we can make terms with the Nazi system and that our system can peacefully live in the same world with theirs today have simply not thought this matter through. They are guilty of wishful thinking."

Day Camp Enjoy'd Each Day by Girls

The Day Camp sponsored by the Girl Scout organization and WPA Recreational Project has been successfully attended this week.

The camp property being used is an old farm of Mayor Sugg's on the Palkland highway. A Ricks bus leaves the Girl Scout office each morning at 9 a. m. to take girls out to the camp. All girls who attend camp must bring each day a 10c registration fee and a lunch.

Milk is furnished to all campers at noon. Through the kindness of J. J. White, campers have been allowed the use of his pool during a part of the camp program.

Thursday will be Visitor's Day at the camp and forty Girl Scouts of Washington and their leaders will attend camp all day. All parents and friends in Greenville are invited to come out at 3 p. m. to see camp in action and to be entertained by a play which campers will present and also a Court of Awards.

All girls in Greenville are invited to attend day camp the rest of this week.

The Day Camp program will be concluded Friday, June 13.

Miss Elks Entertains.
Miss Reba Lee Elks of Burlington complimented Miss Juanita Hoell, bride-elect of June, and Mrs. T. R. Rouse, Jr., a recent bride, at a breakfast and bridge party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Elks, in Grimesland.

Invitations were for 9:30 o'clock and guests arriving at the designated hour were greeted by the hostess who directed the way into the gift room, where those invited for breakfast and bridge were asked to write a rhyme or "advice" in the bride's register.

From the gift room guests were invited into the living room where breakfast was served from auxiliary tables. The menu consisted of grapefruit halves on green lace doilies and centered with cherries, Southern ham, scrambled eggs, toast slices, jelly in individual cups, hot cinnamon buns and coffee. The places where Miss Hoell and Mrs. Rouse were seated were marked with miniature three-branched candleabrae of brass in which tiny white candies burned.

Following breakfast, the remainder of the morning was devoted to bridge. Tally cards passed prior to progressions were of bridal motif.

At the conclusion of play, Mrs. T. R. Rouse, Jr., high scorer, was presented a strand of crystal beads, and low scorer, Mrs. Hick Galloway, was awarded an attractive Fostoria bowl. The floating prize, Dorothy Perkins cologne, was won by Mrs. Rouse. The hostess' gift to Miss Hoell was silver in her bridal pattern, "Chased Romantique," and Mrs. Rouse was presented salad plates in pastel shades. A delicious beverage was served by the hostess during the afternoon.

The reception hall was most attractive for the occasion with a large bouquet of feather fern and lacy greenery which centered the mirrored console table and the gift room was decorated with lovely arrangements of sweetpeas in softly blending shades and additional bouquets of mixed garden flowers. The living room presented a picture of unusual beauty with pastel larkspur in two bowls of crystal which graced the occasional and end tables and Queen Anne's lace intermingled with Hollywood.— "In the Navy." Screenplay by Arthur T. Horman and John Grant from story by Horman. Directed by Arthur Lubin. Principals: Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, Dick Powell, Claire Dodd, the Andrews Sisters, Dick Foran, Billy Lenhart, Kenneth Brown, Shemp Howard, the Condos Brothers.

The "Buck Privates" are in the navy now, and their search for laughs on and around the water is as successful as it was in the selective service camps.

Allowing for the slight wear and tear on the comics as novelties, "In the Navy" makes a happy follow-up. What plot there is centers around the efforts of Powell (likeable as a heart-throb crooner who chucks it all to join the navy and escape the women) to keep Reporter Dodd from exposing his hide-out. By story's end Powell and Dodd are safely in each other's arms which takes care of the conventional "love interest," but in an Abbott-Costello movie it's still the laughs that count.

There are plenty. Straightman Abbott persuades his patsy Costello to talk back to the cop who hasn't decided to give him a ticket for jay-walking, and as usual the patsy gets the ticket. The other vaudeville routines are well-spotted. There's the one about the shell-game played with lemons, and then the interesting procedure by which chubby Costello proves that seven times 13 equals 28. There's Costello's business of manipulating himself into a hammock, and then the hilarious sequence in which Lou, pretending to be an admiral, maneuvers his ship into near disaster for itself and other units of the fleet—a sequence which happily reveals itself as a dream.

Throughout the proceedings the indefatigable Andrews sisters tear like determined Amazons—and somewhat frighteningly—into various selections, including a boogie-woogie and a Harlem stamp called "Give Me Some Skin"—hailed as a

The Beginning Of A Cultured Pearl

For generations the native divers of the South Seas have been combing their adjacent waters for pearls. A scant 30 years ago, a native Polynesian of the Celebes islands of the Dutch East Indies adapted and perfected the process of culturing pearls in the shelving oyster. Using the Pinctada orshirocho oyster of the genus Margaritifera was an immense stride forward in the science of culturing pearls. This South Sea oyster has a mature growth of five times the size of specimens previously used for culturing and grows naturally in a region which tends to produce better colors in the mature pearl.

In sheltered lagoons and bayous the pearl farms are set up. Bamboo poles are sealed up to make pontoons. Then they are bound together into a criss-cross lattice-work to form long rectangular rafts. The native diving girls go out in their South Sea canoes every day to gather a crop of year old pearl-bearing oysters. Wearing their white costumes or in nature's garments, the lissome brown bodies dive down into the translucent depths of the ocean and select as many bivalves as they can, while their breath holds out.

When they return to the farm the oysters are impregnated with a seed pearl or mother-of-pearl ball. The expert surgeon who makes an incision in the oyster and inserts the irritant has been trained for years to give him that precision of touch necessary for his delicate task.

The impregnated oysters are then placed in closed wire baskets and suspended on a wire from the bamboo pontoon raft into the sea. Four times a year these oysters are raised and the shells are thoroughly cleansed of fungi and barnacles which would impede the free flow of food to the oyster and consequently stunt its rate of growth and secretion.

From 7 to 15 years later the oysters are raised and taken to the laboratory. Here the skill of the surgeon and expert is of vital importance. The surgeon forces the shells open and carefully removes the pearls. These are turned over to the expert who uses an acid bath to hit by many but in these quarters regarded as a trifle on the macabre side. All the music is by Gene DePaul and Don Raye.

If you liked "Buck Privates" you'll have a good time "In the Navy."

"Time Out For Rhythm." Screenplay by Edmund L. Hartman and Bert Lawrence from story by Bert Grant based on play by Alex Ruben. Directed by Sidney Salkow. Principals: Rudy Vallee, Ann Miller, Rosemary Lane, Allen Jenkins, Joan Merrill, Richard Lane, Stanley Andrews, the Three Seagoes, Brenda and Cobina, Six Hits and a Miss Eddie Durant's Rumba Orchestra, Glen Gray and His Casa Loma Band.

A yarn about a couple of Broadway agents (Vallee and Lane) who fall out over a two-timing gal (Lane) provides the excuse for a number of musical and comedy routines. Good music, excellently played, and some indifferent comedy are draped over the framework.

Ann Miller, shapely and nimble-footed, steals the show; Richard Lane handles a romantic lead of sorts with conviction; Allen Jenkins is very funny, which the Stooges seldom are; Joan Merrill's torch-singing is special but her dramatic song-talking is painful—but who can be dramatic with a song-lyric?

Montreal will observe the 300th anniversary of its founding on May 18, 1942.

remove the membranous secretion on the outside of the pearl. The cleaned pearls are now sorted for color, size, brilliancy and perfection and then drilled.

Finally they are strung into perfectly graduated Imperial pearl necklaces (on silk threads) of shimmering iridescent beauty. The glowing white fire of Imperial pearls symbolizes the purity of the bride and the delicacy of woman's loveliness.

Nature's haphazard, hit or miss method of irritating the pearl oyster produces pearls both few and far between. Moreover since the oyster is not tended and cleansed, most of the world pearls yielded by the oyster are of inferior color, shape and quality. For this reason, moderate sized, matched necklaces of wild pearls have been so expensive as to be far beyond the means of the average woman. The genius of man has improved upon nature in many different fields. Silver foxes were an extreme rarity in nature; today large fox farms annually produce thousands of silver fox pelts, any of which are far superior to those produced in the wilds. In like manner, by impregnating the pearl-bearing oyster, man has increased the natural production of pearls to the extent that lovely, matched Imperial cultured pearl necklaces are within the means of all women who adore beauty.

Watch this paper, Best Jewelry Co., local jewelers, have secured a large portion of the World's Fair collection of cultured pearls which will be displayed in their window soon.

THE SACRED DAGGER

YESTERDAY: After a good many adventures, some almost incredible even to herself, Anne Willard has arrived at the desert camp of her parents, only to find her parents are prisoners of the Nagara tribe, and that a complicated prophecy concerning herself must be fulfilled before they can be released. And although she ought not to be, since he is working against her parents, Anne is more than a little interested in Blaze Sherwood, who has disappeared.

Chapter 21
Pete Comes Back
"Diana's loves are those she cannot have," said Beth.
"Then why did she marry Dr. Martine?"

"Because she was bluffing Blaze. They were engaged. They had a row; she wanted him to give up field work, take a desk job and go into society. She threatened to marry the doctor, went so far as to let him buy the license. Then she phoned Blaze they were on their way to a certain Gretna Green. He promised to be there ahead of them. And then he called her bluff. Instead of breaking it up as she expected he insisted on being best man at the wedding."

"That was rather cruel," said Anne.
"Maybe he thinks love ought to be above competition," suggested Beth. "The next day he left for the Orient."

"He seems to be strong on the unexpected," murmured Anne.
"Last summer she worked her father into asking your father for a place for her husband on this expedition. She hoped to run across Blaze—and she has."

"Frankly," said Anne, "I like her spunk, though I don't know whether or not the things people break their necks to get are worth the hiving."

Beth stared at her in horror. "Do you realize," she hissed, "that Diana has her claws in Philip also?"
Anne laughed at the girl's intensity. She felt years older than Beth. "A little clawing would do Philip good."

"Then you're not in love with him?"
"Not," said Anne moodily. "If I knew the meaning of the word," Beth stared at her in admiration.

"Well, go to bed now," laughed Anne. Beth stooped and kissed her goodnight.
"You're fun," she said. Anne heard her stumble over Doddap outside the door, squeal and giggle and run on to her tent."

Next morning the guard found the lama locked in the prison hut as if he'd been there all night. Anne took him away from the soldier and led him to the kitchen for some food.

"How did you get in and out of the hut?" she asked smilingly.
He lowered his head bashfully and looked up at her from the corners of his eyes. "My magic," he smiled in return and that was all she could get out of him.

"What do you mean," she asked seriously, "by coming into my tent and hiding the dagger?"
"I did it to protect the white men," he answered readily. "They do not have good sense. They would touch the dagger and die."

She looked at him doubtfully. Doddap didn't seem to find many white people with good sense.
"Why do you bother with us?" she asked.

His eyes kindled. "We wise ones know," he said, "that you come of the ancient race."
"You mean in a former life we lived in Shy-a Nago before the rise of the mountains?"

"You and the master."
"It's a lovely, romantic idea," she admitted, and instructed Hule, the cook, to give the little man some breakfast.

Shipload Of Gold
In the afternoon Anne walked across to the dig and back with Philip and followed him into the mess hut afterwards where the expedition's members dined and worked and played a game of cards.

It was an attractive, homely room with its precious glass windows. Anne unthought, despite the crude camp furniture. Tables, desks, chairs, cabinets, a rose bush in a pot—that would be her mother's, and a phonograph, a fireplace, and the radio sending and receiving set the governor had refused to let them set up.

Philip went to his desk to prepare a dispatch he was getting off to Chuka.

"The Amban is talking of supplying us with an advisory commissioner," he said. "It'll be an official with his hand out for a share of the treasure if there's any loot. I'm surprised that the Dao Tai didn't think of it first."

"I hope there's no loot," Anne cried. "I hope we find only treasure that scholars value."

"If the legends're true there's a shipload of gold and silver and precious stones." She surprised a look of greed and desire on his face which changed to a flush of pleasure as Diana came into the room and let him draw up a chair for her. "The principal thing," he added, "is to get our hands on them."

"It's my guess that Mackey, that lot of yours stole the dagger and took it to Gregory Sherwood."

"You're wrong," said Anne shortly. "I offered the dagger to Dr. Sherwood myself. He absolutely refused to touch it."

"That's strange," said Philip after a pause. "I must give Sherwood credit for knowing his business among these natives. What was his reason?"

Dr. Martine, Beth, and Larry had come in and were listening. Anne looked away.
"He said that it belonged to me and my husband alone," Diana's eyes began to sparkle.

"Then he must not consider himself married to you."
"He doesn't."

"I wonder why not?" asked Larry, dropping down on the couch, "if he's as keen as they say he is to get in on this find?"

Anne believed she knew the answer. "I understand that only a man whose horoscope is favorable to mine will be acceptable to the Nagaras as my husband. They seem to have more faith in the stars than in a marriage certificate."

Beth laughed. "Gosh, maybe Philip wouldn't be acceptable either."
"We could send to a Chinese astrologer in Chuka for birth date readings," Philip went on in his fussy way.

"Perhaps we should," she agreed in a troubled voice, "especially if that's more important than a marriage certificate."
Philip brightened. "It might be a way to circumvent Gregory Sherwood if he's up to something. We'll do it." He had her write down her date. "I'm also shipping that watchdog of yours out on the truck this evening."

Larry turned off the phonograph in time for everyone to hear Anne's protest.
"Oh, no, let Doddap stay. He's harmless. I'm under obligation to him. He helped me on the journey to Arishar." She laughed remembering. "He posed as my son when I was disguised."

"As your son," cried Beth, reaching for another tea cake. "Gosh, how did you look?"
Anne laughed again. "Kipling said it: 'A rag and a bone and a hank of hair.' Philip, please let Doddap stay here. I'll be responsible for him."

Beth giggled. "Sure, let him stay. The little fellow's come home to mama. And she's got a pet name for him—Doddap." Even the doctor smiled.

Letter From Blaze
Pete arrived the next morning just before breakfast. He came in a cabin plane this time and brought the "dowry" as he called it. Anne was distressed when the others surrounded him at once and began asking about the danger.

"Why, I thought Miss Anne packed it," he said, looking at her. She stared back helplessly. "Of course," he declared, "if you haven't got the weapon I must have rolled it up in the rugs. They're in one big roll. We'll look through them."

Philip ordered the things carried to the mess hut.
"Send them to my tent instead," said Anne.

"But we can look through them easier—" Philip began impatiently.
"I have the dagger," said Anne. "I found it afterwards and hid it. I don't think we should take any chances with it."

The others looked at her oddly as they all walked back to breakfast. Mackey sat down with them. "I can always eat," he said and glanced at Anne. "How are you getting along?"

"Just fine," she answered brightly hoping she looked it.
Diana propounded the question they were all dying to ask him. "Have you seen Blaze Sherwood? Is he in jail?"
Mackey laughed and looked at

Waterfront Fire Causes $800,000 Damage

Small chugging tugs pull the $1,500,000 liner Seminole away from the fast spreading fire that destroyed two terminals of the Clyde-Mallory steamship line at Jacksonville, Fla. L. D. Parmelee, executive vice president of the steamship line, estimated damage at about $800,000. Authorities said the possibility of sabotage would be investigated.

Anne. "Not Blaze. He may head for prison but he has a way of landing in a palace. Just now he's feasting in the governor's garden and trying to pour as much liquor to the mulberry trees as the Dao Tai empties into his own gullet." He shook his head. "Diplomacy is some job. Give me sky riding."

"Just what is Sherwood up to?" demanded Philip. Mackey heard the hostility in his voice.
"I couldn't say, sir." He drew a letter from his pocket and handed it to Anne.

She felt herself redden as she took the missive and slipped it under her plate.
"Oh, Anne," whimpered Beth childishly, "when we're all so anxious to hear what he says." She turned to Mackey in her intense way. "Were you in on that wedding scheme?"

"I was a witness," he admitted.
"Were there papers signed? Do you think it is legal?"
"I couldn't say," he answered impassively. "There were papers signed, but I guess it takes more than papers to make a marriage."

"Have you seen Anne's son?" Diana asked with her derisive smile. He stared at her.
"She means Doddap," explained Anne hastily. "He's here."

"Oh, yes," he grinned, and gave Anne a covert look. "So I heard." She wondered what Blaze had said to him, if anything. She found that she could not eat. It was torture to sit here. Suddenly she rose, took her letter and crossed to the lounge part of the room beside a window.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker
New York—There is cheering news to report. The colony of ring-tailed raccoons that has haunted the vicinity of Ben Marden's Riviera is back. It wouldn't be the same without those 'coons there. For seven years they have turned up regularly with the opening of each season at the Riviera. They come out of the dense wood and the thickets on the rocky shelf of the Palisades, off Pt. Lee, N. J., where the club is situated. They come in strength, perhaps a dozen of them most of them great fat waddling fellows, others smaller, a trifle more timid. These are the new members of the family but they will learn in time that for only friendly interest plentiful supplies of food are theirs for the asking.

These wild fellows are the particular pets of the Riviera staffs of cooks and waiters. Marden takes his staff, including chauffeur and barber, to Florida every fall with him and brings them back in the summer. One of the first things they do on returning is set out tempting dishes for those coons.

These fat, amiable coons are perhaps the only wild animals in New York who have been reared in a nightclub atmosphere. They are frequently the center of attraction, vying with the actors for applause. The guests have learned that if they sit next to the outer windows, overlooking the river, that they can glance down and witness a display of animal life that is rare indeed in a metropolitan setting.

Could these raccoons but talk they could discuss the better-known names of show business with a sav-

Last British outpost in the eastern Mediterranean is Cyprus, "unwelcome mat" on the threshold of Syria and key corner in the Suez defense triangle. Britain annexed it in 1914 after domination by Greeks, Phoenicians, Persians, Romans and Turks, calls the 370,000 natives Cypriots. The island's 3,572 square miles yield wheat, barley and cotton. At least six R. A. F. airports have been built here; a naval base shelters war craft at Famagusta, within glider distance of Syria.

Certified: 13,398 MILES ON A SINGLE 5-QT. FILL OF THIS NEW OIL

5 OTHER GOOD OILS OUTDISTANCED 74% TO 161% Impartial test in Death Valley Desert. 6 cars Destroyed to give you Economy data beyond any Quibbles.

U. S. Patent No. 2,218,132 tells exactly what is new about the new Conoco motor oil named

CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL

5 quarts of this same new Conoco Nth oil that you can buy today, lasted 13,398 miles in a stock coupe—under lock and under scrutiny every minute.

13,398 miles up and down Death Valley. Sand and sagebrush. Lowest land and highest extremes of heat in our U. S. A.

5 other well known oils got the same chance as new Conoco Nth oil. 6 identical new cars were used. Tune-ups, tire pressures, speeds, and all other factors were the same for all—impartially. Engines were under lock. Qualified authorities eyed everything.

The test was simple and stern... Each car got its 5-quart fill of some one competing oil and was run at a 57-mile speed, without added oil, till the engine smashed up. New Conoco Nth motor oil went 13,398 miles. Certified. Not another oil came within 5,683 miles of that and one was outlasted 8,268 miles by new Conoco Nth oil. Certified.

The reasons are straight and simple... New, patented Conoco Nth motor oil contains Thialkene inhibitor, a new synthetic... man-made by Conoco.

Now an inhibition is something that restrains you—checks you. And Thialkene inhibitor checks the effect of poisons always formed in normal engine operation. Instead of "feathering," weakening, and passing out, this oil is scientifically prepared to keep its health, so that the engine can do the same—a good way to keep up the oil-level.

OIL-PLATING, too! Long the keystone of Conoco success, OIL-PLATING comes from another Conoco synthetic... (U. S. Patent 1,944,941). Magnet-like action bonds OIL-PLATING to engine parts, so it can't all drain down—not even overnight.

While you use Conoco Nth, this OIL-PLATING stays on guard against wear in advance! By OIL-PLATING the engine and inhibiting the worst effect of oil pollution, one fill of new Conoco Nth lasted 13,398 miles. Certified.

You'll not put your car through such a third-degree—any more than you keep starting in high gear just because you could. You'll certainly never want to exceed the recommended distance between crankcase drains. But knowing that new Conoco Nth oil lasted 74% to 161% longer than other oils tested, see how seldom you add a quart. At Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station today change to your correct Summer grade of popular-priced new Conoco Nth oil. Continental Oil Company—Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

FIREPROOF

The late J. P. Morgan used to have an expression which he dimmed into the ears of his associates in times of crisis. "It always stops raining," he said.

Of course at the height of the storm it seems as if it would never stop. Bad as conditions are in the world today, we know that some day they will right themselves and the peoples of the world will go on, probably into centuries of peace and prosperity. In 1805 it seemed as if the world was helpless in Napoleon's grasp. In 1815 he was languished on St. Helena.

Oliver Wendell Holmes said God wouldn't have given everybody access to the matchbox if He hadn't known that the universe is fireproof. Within certain limits, we can do in this world about as we please. This gives a vast number of unsozially minded people opportunity to wreak havoc among their fellows, and progress consists in devising ways and means for restraining such persons, whether they be pickpockets or world rulers. But neither these nor any group of people can ever destroy the world. It is fire-proof, and better still, it is fool-proof. Those who play with matches are frequently burned to death and involve others in tragic circumstances. But the building doesn't burn down. God in His infinite wisdom has made it fire-proof.

CLOSER TAB NEEDED ON ALIENS

The vast majority of aliens now registered in the United States are, of course, loyal to the American form of government. But, due to the international situation, a common fault is to believe that the five million aliens estimated to be enjoying the comforts and protection of this Republic necessarily fall into one groove. It is in the minority groups that organized disloyalty usually is found.

In varying stages of acquiring United States citizenship is a fair proportion of the alien population. But how about those questionable smaller groups—those who are here illegally, but have proved themselves loyal and useful; those who are here legally, but are believed to have un-American sympathies; those undesirable aliens who cannot be deported, and those who have both un-American sympathies and have entered the country illegally? The second class contains many undesirable, and many in the latter two classes named are definitely of criminal and saboteur stock. In either case the "dangerous" class of aliens should come under the close scrutiny of the Department of Justice and must bear rigid judgment of the United States Courts in making application for United States citizenship.

The United States Government should adopt a policy that safeguards both the country and the aliens, however. Aliens must take for

Washington Daybook

Washington, June 11.—The Federal Bureau of Investigation turns over a few stones:
The FBI survey of defense plants has turned up a lot of strange things. For instance, at one plant where they are making instruments that are among the military's deepest darkest secrets, FBI investigators asked to see where the army's secret plans and specifications were kept.

The official accompanying them took the men to a vault and proudly explained that the company had just had the new fire-proof, burglar-proof steel door installed. The agents were impressed but they investigated further to find that the other three walls of the "fire-proof, burglar-proof" vault were of wood panels through which any keyhole saw expert could go in 10 minutes and through which fire could eat in less than that.

According to the FBI fingerprint files there are just about eight times as many criminal men in the United States as there are criminal women. A survey of their vast index of fingerprints completed recently shows 5,305,500 male and 661,400 female criminals on the books.

However, the survey of crime for the United States for 1940 shows that Kipling still is right — the female of the species continues more deadly than the male. Out of each 1,000 men and 1,000 women arrested in the land, 10 men and 13 women are charged with murder.

Speaking of fingerprints, some evidence of what vital industrial plants are doing to protect themselves against sabotage may be gleaned from recent FBI fingerprints record receipts. In three months in the 1941 fiscal year, 730,753 sets of fingerprints were received by the bureau from industrial and commercial firms. During the corresponding quarter in 1940, the FBI got only 248,842 sets from such companies.

In the last few days, the FBI has had two cases which illustrate the value of this finger. One fellow, who had applied for a job and sworn that he never had been arrested, was discovered to have been twice in trouble, first when he made "false affidavits in connection with a Veterans' Bureau claim" in Oklahoma — for which he was sentenced to 18 months in Leavenworth penitentiary — and again when he violated the conditions of his parole. The second case was that of a man who sought a job and admitted that he had been arrested three times. What he neglected to tell, his fingerprints did tell — he was a fugitive, wanted in Santa Monica, Calif., for burglary.

is it?" the agents asked — and were taken out of the main factory to a flimsy shed, whose doors were held fast by simple metal hasps — and there it was.

None of these, however, caused FBI agents such consternation as the aviation plant where some of our choicest new planes are being built. A little before eight one morning, the investigators were amazed to see a small parade of children come up to the gates of the fence that guards the plant reservation, pull keys from their pockets, unlock the gates and march through. The children used another key and went through a door that is always locked on the outside. Leaving the plant on the other side, they used a third key to pass out through gates of the fence opposite from those through which they had entered.

"Oh, those kids," the plant foreman explained. "We furnish them keys so they can take a short cut to and from school."

J. Edgar Hoover's boys haven't quite got over that one.

Raleigh, June 11.—Cullar Moore doesn't know what he is going to do when he retires as ABC chairman on July 31 but whatever it is it won't have anything to do with liquor.
"Liquor has never given me anything but a headache," he laughed adding that for many years he has not indulged in it as a beverage but he has had plenty of trouble in regulating its sale in ABC counties since he took office in 1937.

Moore contemplated intimations that the job as ABC chairman is something of a sinecure with the assertion that his successor, who Governor J. Melville Broughton has announced will be Robert Grady Johnson, is going to be badly fooled if he thinks he is going into a "pie position."

"Probably he will not have as much woe as I had, because I started from scratch at a time when everybody was against the board. The "drys" didn't want any board of any kind and the ABC boards in control counties did not want any form of state supervision," Moore declared.

His service as assistant manager of Clyde Hoy's primary campaign in 1936 is universally regarded as landing the ABC job for Moore, but occupying it for four years has left Moore with no desire to continue in public service.

"If ever a man was completely fed up with government service, I am," he told our reporter. "I've three or four things under consideration, but for a month after I quit I'm just not going to do anything at all."

Premature, At Least
Commissioner of Paroles Edwin Gill feels that any criticism of "Alabama Pitts, Sing Sing parolee fatally wounded in a Catawawa county tavern a few days ago, is certainly premature and probably wholly unjustified.

The most famous athlete and "graduate" of Warden Lawes' "Big House" has been constantly under supervision of Commissioner Gill's department ever since he came to North Carolina as a professional ball player and remained as a textile employee.

The Pitts record, according to Mr. Gill, has been "excellent" according to reports made to Raleigh.
"In a few days I'll probably have full reports from field men of the parole commission," said Mr. Gill "and I will then be able to say something more definite about the case."

I do not think that criticism of Eight hours from Brazil, as the bomber flies, lies this fortified city, chip on the dark continent's great shoulder and control point and capital of French West Africa's 1,500,000 square miles. It commands the sea routes over which ride vital European requirements — meat and grain from the Argentine, coffee and rubber from Brazil, oil from Venezuela.

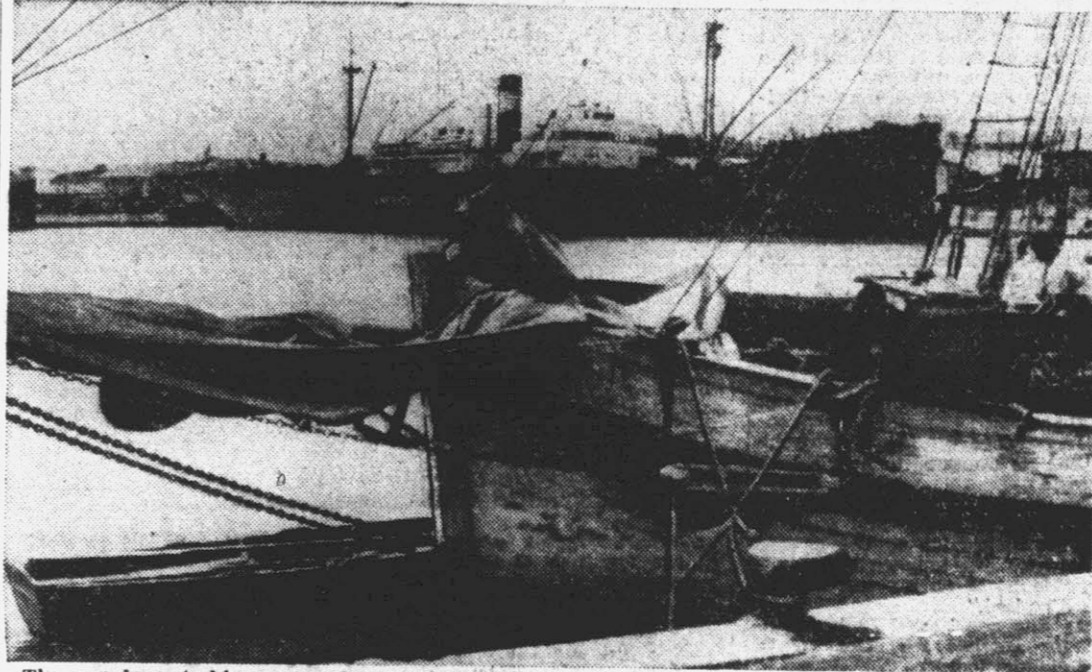

Guarded by three forts and French land batteries, Dakar is a strong sea base from which an occupying force could engage main British convoy routes in the South Atlantic. The "Nazi threat" extends to it, President Roosevelt has declared.

The city, acquired from Britain in 1815, has rail connections with St. Louis, 160 miles up the coast to the north, and is linked with French Morocco by a very poor highway. Population is estimated variously at from 40,000 to 70,000 persons, one in each seven a sun-helmeted white. Ships going westward from it carry peanuts, rubber, cacao and timber; those coming in must bring petroleum, for West Africa has no oil.

DAKAR: African Jumping Off Place For Points South America

Dakar sprawls along the coast at the very hump of Africa, a strange city of mud huts and modern homes, Old World bazars and up-to-date movie houses. Most white people live on high land well back from the shore, natives on the colorful, cosmopolitan waterfront.

The very largest ships can anchor at Dakar, whose artificial harbor is one of the best on the entire west coast of Africa. It is protected by an island and two breakwaters, has modern docks and loading machinery along with a good naval drydock and a torpedo-basin. In German hands, the city would be a constant menace to British convoys plying between Cape Town and South America.

Typical West African native is this Altatu negro girl who spends more time on her culture than ladies on Park Ave.

Pitts or of the parole system is at all justified on the basis of present reports. At least "Alabama" didn't cut anybody else — as some people seem to think too many parolees will do. Newspaper accounts of the affair give no hint that Pitts was drinking or misbehaving in any way. He was a young man, playing night baseball, and the mere fact that he was in a tavern, where there is dancing, at three o'clock in the morning, proves nothing against him.

"Nowadays many of our 'best' people can be found at that time in similar places."

Kinston Eagles Rack Up 2-1 Victory Over Greenville

TOUGH BATTLE THROUGHOUT GAME

McGarity's Triple and Wild Pitch Give Locals One

The Greens dropped a tough one 2-1 to the Kinston Eagles last night as the Wilson Tobes increased their lead by winning from New Bern and the Eagles climbed closer to the second-place locals.

Kinston is only three and one-half games behind the Greens, while the locals are trailing Wilson by three games.

The locals open a two-game series with New Bern in that city tonight and return here for a double-header tomorrow night.

The Greens were held scoreless last night until the eighth inning when McGarity tripled and came home on a wild pitch. With only one man out, the Greens put men on second and third following McGarity's score. Scagg hit a hard one to centerfield, but Metelski's perfect throw home caught the Greenville would-be scorer. The Greens were held in check in the ninth frame.

The one score in the eighth put the Greens in a temporary tie, as the only previous run scored during the game came in the first inning when Kinston got one on a double and a single.

The Eagles came back in their half of the eighth, however, to score the deciding run on singles by Metelski, Carr and McHenry.

Bill Teller received jam-up support from the infield and he was pulled out of several holes by his mates, who made three double plays.

While Teller was yielding 10 hits, walking one and striking out five, Simon, Kinston hurler, was giving up seven hits, walking two and fanning four.

GREENIES BEST WHEN AT HOME

Locals Have Best Record Home Games This Season

By BERT MOYE

The various records of the eight clubs in the Coastal Plain League reveal many interesting facts which heretofore have not been known to the average fan in the eight towns represented in the league. From private records kept of the various clubs so far this season, hereby is presented a picture story of just how the eight clubs have been doing thus far this season. The facts and figures presented in this article include play from the beginning of the season through Monday, June 9th.

The league-leading Wilson Tobaccoists, who have won 24 games and lost nine thus far this season, have dropped four of these games on their home grounds. Of the nine games lost thus far the Greenville Greensies have handed them three losses, Rocky Mount and New Bern two losses each, and Goldsboro and Williamston, one loss each. In their series with Kinston they have won three straight games against no losses, and with the Tarboro Orioles, they have won four straight victories with no losses. Led by Fred Eason, Tob's rightfielder, with six, and Earl Carnahan, leftfielder, with five, the Tob's rank sixth in the home run division with a total of 17 homers for the club so far this season. However, in the pitching division the Tob's have two hurlers who have not suffered a defeat this season. They are Lefty Joe Talley with seven wins and Manager Bill Herring with five victories. Incidentally both hurlers have struck out a total of 63 batter so far this season.

The second place Greenville Greensies, who have won 21 and lost 12 games, have the best record to date for home games won. Of the sixteen home games played by the Greensies, they have lost only two, one being to Wilson on May 9 by a score of 10-5, and the other to Rocky Mount on May 23 by a score of 6-5 in a ten-inning game. In their series with Wilson they have won three and lost three; with Kinston, have won three and lost five; with Goldsboro, have won all five games played; with Rocky Mount, have won three and lost two; with New Bern, have two wins against one loss; with Tarboro, two wins against two losses, and with Williamston, three wins against one loss. The Greensies rank fifth in the total number of homers knocked so far this season with a total of 20. However, Harry Jenkins, with a total of eight homers, is tied for top honors in Coastal Plain League circuit drives with Solly Myers, second sacker of the Rocky Mount Leafs, Charlie Scagg, Greensies' leftfielder, has hit five homers and Bennie Crowe, centerfielder, has a total of four to pace Jenkins. Lefty Joe Long is the leading Greenville hurler at the present time with six wins against no defeats, while Bill Severin, who is on the suspended list at present, has one victory with no defeats. However, Kelly Kee is giving both of these boys a hard fight having won five and lost one and in the last two games he has pitched shutout ball. Long is the leading strikeout artist with 45, while Lefty Adams, with five wins and three defeats so far this season, has struck out a total of 42 batters to take second place honors. Kee has 35 strikeouts to his credit thus far.

The Kinston Eagles, who at present time are having difficulty with injuries in their infield positions, have 17 wins against 15 losses. Of the sixteen home games played by the Eagles, seven have been losses. The Eagles have had their best series so far with the Tarboro and New Bern clubs. With the Tarboro Orioles they won four and lost one and with the Bears they have won four and lost two. However, in the matter of home runs, the Kinston Eagles rank second in the total number round-trippers with 23. Leading the Eagles in circuit drives are Joe DeMasi, rightfielder, with six, and Manager Art McHenry with five. All the hurlers on the Kinston staff have dropped as many as two games. Bud Mooney is the leading strikeout hurler for the Eagles with 40 to his credit for the present season.

The Rocky Mount Leafs, with 14 wins and 17 losses, have lost eight of the seventeen home games played by them this season. The Tarboro Orioles are the only club in which they have an upper bracket in the winning column. They have won two and lost one to the Orioles thus far this season. In their games with Kinston, Williamston and New Bern, they have a 500 percentage with two wins and two losses. In the home run division the Leafs rank fourth place with a total of 21. Solly Myers, second sacker, with eight, and Tommy Kurst, outfielder, with seven, lead the Leafs in this division. Rocky Mount hurlers have a very poor record to date, all having many reverses. Hinton Wilson and Eddie Schultz are the leading strikeout artists for the Leafs with 30 each.

The Tarboro Orioles, with 13 victories and 18 defeats, have lost seven of their home games and tied one, in a total of 15 home games. Their best showing to date has been against their rivals, the Williamston Martins, with whom they have won five and lost one. They have played on even terms with the Greensies, with two losses against two wins, while with the New Bern Bears they have three wins against two losses. Tarboro rank seventh in the home runs knocked this season with 15. Ray Riley, centerfielder, with four, and Bud Cayton, second-sacker with three, are leading Tarboro at the present time. Tommy Coogan, rookie hurler, is the leading Oriole pitcher with four wins against one loss, and is also the leading strikeout artist for the Orioles with 44, followed closely by Levi Woods with 42.

The Williamston Martins, with 13 wins against 19 losses, have lost 8 out of their 17 home games. Their best showing to date has been with the Rocky Mount Leafs and the Kinston Eagles, each of whom they have won two and lost two. The Martins rank third in the number of round-trippers with 22. Manager Frank Rodgers, with seven, and Bert Stotler, with five, are setting the pace in this division for the Martins. Allan "Pea" Green, who was recently released by Wilson, is the leading hurler for the Martins at present with two wins against one loss. Slim Gardner leads in the strikeout department with 25, followed closely by Ted Miller, with 24.

The New Bern Bears, with 13 wins and 19 losses, and tied with the Martins for sixth place, have also lost nine of their eighteen home contests so far this season. Their best showing so far has been against the Rocky Mount Leafs whom they have won two and lost two, and the Goldsboro Bugs with three wins against one loss. The New Bern Bears rank first in total number of home runs knocked with 29. Wor-

Tigets Defeat Lions 11-2; Reds Down Blues 9-7

The Training School Tigets and the West Greenville Lions of the Summer B league inaugurated play Wednesday morning at the Lions diamond. The Tigets came out on top by the score of 11-2, due mainly to the two hit pitching of Bobby Butcher and the hitting of Jimmy Futrell and Captain Harvey Clayton. The Lions hits were garnered by Little and Whitehurst. These two teams play again Thursday morning at the Training School.

Lions 000 110 0-2 2 8

The Reds of Third Street, playing in the A league opened its season by defeating the High School Blues by the score of 9-7.

Jesse Jordan's triple in the first for the Reds was the games deciding blow. Ralph Hunter led the Blues in hitting, getting two for four. The Blues fought grimly to recover from their bad first inning by scoring five runs in the third, but the Reds pushed over two in the sixth and stayed on top to the end.

British Positions Attacked By Nazis

Berlin, June 11.—(AP)—An "effective" German air attack on British fuel deposits and port facilities in the Palestine port of Haifa from "new bases" was reported today by the German high command.
(The communiqué did not specify when this attack was made or where it originated. Presumably, however, it was the same raid as that reported yesterday by the official German news agency DNB as having been carried out Monday night.)
(British reports previously had said the raiders came from a base in Syria and were chased back there.)

Yelton Is Slated For New Position

Raleigh, June 11.—(AP)—Politicians here expressed the opinion today that Nathan H. Yelton, director of public assistance in the State Department of Charities and Public Welfare, would be named secretary of the new School Commission at a meeting tomorrow.
The commission, appointed Monday by Gov. Broughton, will be sworn into office at 11 a. m., in the House of Representatives.
The present secretary of the Commission is Lloyd Griffin of Edenton. Broughton, Griffin and Yelton declined to comment today on the reports of an impending change in the secretaryship.

RAF Hurls Bombs At German Vessel

London, June 11.—(AP)—British planes bombed a German cruiser believed to be the 10,000-ton Prinz Eugen in an attack last night on the naval base at Brest, the Air Ministry reported today.
It was stated that a large weight of bombs was dropped on docks and anchorages, but there was no specific claim to have hit the cruiser.
The Prinz Eugen accompanied the German battleship Bismarck on her venture in the Atlantic which ended in her destruction after she had sunk the British battleship Hood. The Prinz Eugen, however, parted company with the Bismarck soon after the Hood was sunk.

Wine Sale Regulations Disclosed By Chairman

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, June 11.—Sale of 20 per cent "fortified" wines in ABC counties after July first will be restricted to bona fide, established hotels, restaurants, grocery stores and drug stores and will be permitted only during closely-regulated hours, according to "Rules for Issuing Permits and Regulating the Sale of Wines" just made public by Cutler Moore, chairman of the state ABC board.
Mr. Moore said the regulations have been drawn with a view to enforcing, as nearly one per cent as may be, the legislation passed by the 1941 General Assembly.
The regulations, he pointed out, apply only to sale of the wines of more than 14 per cent alcohol in ABC counties. Sale of any such "fortified" wines will be absolutely illegal in so-called "dry" counties but sale of the naturally fermented wines of 14 per cent and under will continue without restriction in all counties.
He stressed the fact that the new rules will abolish, in ABC counties, the wine shops set up wholly for the sale of the beverage.
"Anybody who thinks he can get by as a 'grocery store' by putting about $50 worth of goods on the shelf is going to be badly fooled," he said, pointing to the regulation which requires that grocery stores be "regularly established places of business where the volume of food sales must be an average monthly equal to at least 60 per cent of the gross sales of such business. Affidavits will be required monthly of all grocery stores dealing in wines.
Copies of the new regulations and applications for the permits every dealer must have may be secured from the local ABC boards or from the state board in Raleigh, Moore said.

Legionnaires Pleased At Broughton Appointments

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, June 10.—Whatever may be said about certain grudges left by Governor Broughton's appointments with unsuccessful office seekers and their supporters, three of his namings have been especially pleasing to members of the American Legion, an organization which officially steers clear of politics, but whose influence is widespread and potent.
The three placed Ben Prince at the head of the Highway Commission and will put A. L. Fletcher at the head of the Unemployment Compensation Commission and Department Commander Dave Hall of Belmont as one of the commission which will assist the U. C. boss.
All of these have for a long time been very prominent in Legion circles; and Legionnaires as a whole feel that the governor has done something which not one of his predecessors has ever approximated—that is to recognize that in the Legion there is to be found material to fill any state, or other position of responsibility in North Carolina.
Prior to the Broughton administration there has been a noticeable neglect of the Legion by the chief executives.
As a matter of fact the Prince and Fletcher appointments have met with almost unanimous approval from all sides, as well as from the Legion.
The naming of Fletcher has been applauded with virtual unanimity in the press and in public comment coming to the ears of this reporter.
Through a long period of participation in North Carolina state affairs the "Major" has become known as a fellow who tends to his own job in a most efficient way and lets other people attend to theirs.
The reputation of belonging to no faction or clique has done nothing whatever to hurt Fletcher in public esteem. He has completely escaped the usual charge against North Carolina office holders—over-zealous playing of the great game of politics at the expense of the public; and there is being exhibited much quiet satisfaction that he will take over the Unemployment Compensation Commission which is operating under a merit system as to its personnel.
It is known that Gov. Broughton was forced to make a personal appeal to federal authorities to release him from important duties in connection with administration of the selective service act. In fact final authorization for him to reenter the service of his state was given only after the matter had gone all the way up to President Roosevelt.
Chairman Prince, too, has been received by 'press and public with good grace. While he was not so well known in the eastern section, the western newspapers and vocative mountain citizens united in lauding his elevation to one of the most important posts in North Carolina.
Appointment of Hall was, of course, minor to either of the others.

CALCUTT ASKS FOR CLEMENCY

Hearing Results From "Unusual" Circumstances
Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, June 11.—A public hearing for Joe Calcutt, convicted slot machine czar, on his petition for "pardon or parole" was set by Commissioner of Pardons Edwin Gill because of the unusual circumstances of the case.
Such hearings are reasonable rare but when the Calcutt hearing is begun Friday morning at 11 o'clock it will break no traditions and set no precedent, Commissioner Gill said.
Among the "unusual" circumstances cited by Mr. Gill as reasons for the hearing are:
1. The petition is for either pardon or parole. If it were simply a routine application for parole there would be no reason to handle it differently from other parole pleas, but in this case Calcutt's attorneys are seeking a complete overturn of a judicial decision, rather than a mere exercise of discretionary clemency within the framework of the sentence imposed by the court.
2. The petitioner has not even entered prison, much less served any part of the term to which he was sentenced. Any application at such an early date is out of the ordinary as he will serve only in a more or less advisory, though important capacity.

3. There is undoubtedly wide public interest in the case. Where such interest does exist, Mr. Gill believes that anything done should be so done that the public will realize that there's no effort being countenanced by the parole officials to secure special advantage not accorded any prisoner.
Parole or pardon before sentence is begun is not without precedent. Recently Governor Broughton, on the recommendation of Commissioner Gill paroled a convict on account of grave illness. There are a number of noted cases in which a pardon was granted before service of any part of the sentence by the defendant.
Perhaps the most recent in North Carolina was the pardon which Governor O. Max Gardner extended to John Brewer, Wake Forest bank-

Fine Irish Potatoes Grown Across River
A quantity of "exceedingly number one" Irish potatoes, grown on the old Henry Sheppard farm about two miles north of Tar river were brought to Greenville today and left on display in the front window of the Reflector building.
The potatoes were brought here by L. G. Briley, present owner of the farm, who reported he had a good crop of potatoes this year.
Southport Slated Get Defense Work
Raleigh, June 11.—(AP)—Governor Broughton announced today

TODAY AT THE MOVIES
PHI—PEOPLE VS. DR. KILDARE—Lew Ayres and Laraine Day
State—"Washington Melodrama"—Frank Morgan, Ann Rutherford that a large veneer and plywood company was considering opening a $1,500,000 plant at Southport to manufacture materials for the fuselage of airplanes.
He declined to name the firm, but said he thought there was a "very good chance" that Southport would be selected as the site for the plant, which would employ 400 to 500 persons.
