Torpedo Hit Reported On German Pocket Battleship

HIT CREDITS TO RAIPLANE

Dense Clouds Declared to Have Enveloped One Of Germany's Two Remaining Strong, Swift Raiders Following Attack Off Southern Point Of Norway.

London, June 13.—(AP) The Air Ministry announced today that a German pocket battleship had been hit by a torpedo fired by a British plane off the Norwegian coast early today.

The communiqué said that "dense clouds of smoke rose from the vessel" and that later the battleship, which the Admiralty did not identify, was seen to be stationary off the southern point of Norway.

Still later the battleship and escorting destroyers were "observed to be retiring toward the Skagerrak at a greatly reduced speed," the communiqué said.

Germany has only two pocket battleships — strong, swift ships of 10,000 tons carrying 11-inch guns — since the scuttling of the Admiral Graf Spee off Montevideo, Uruguay, December 17, 1939.

The remaining two are the Admiral Scheer and the Lauetow, formerly the Deutschland.

The battleship when first sighted was heading north and informed quarters said "it is inconceivable that she was going anywhere except on a raiding expedition."

One air-launched torpedo scored a "direct hit amidships," and another was launched into the smoke which quickly enveloped the warship, the Air Ministry news service said.

This meant that more than one plane attacked.

The battleship was accompanied by five destroyers, the service added, but not a single shot was fired at the attacking planes.

The ships were first sighted by coastal bombers which just before had spotted a German seaplane. Informed sources said that the German plane probably was on scout duty for the pocket battleship and her destroyer escort.

Sears Roebuck Co. To Set Up Office

A Sears Roebuck Company Catalog Order office will be opened at 327 Evans street on Thursday of next week with Mrs. Lucille Laughinghouse as manager and Mrs. Frances Gaston as assistant manager.

Both of the local women have undergone extensive training for their new positions. Mrs. Laughinghouse having been three weeks at Philadelphia and Harrisonburg, Va., and Mrs. Gaston having received training at Elizabeth City and Washington, N. C., where similar offices are located.

The managers and the Sears Roebuck company invite the public to visit the order office and get acquainted with the new type of service being offered by the large mail order house.

Persons may place orders at the office and save on postage, COD fees and shipping charges.

Little Bethel Child Is Painfully Injured

William Butler, who lives on the James Smith farm near Bethel, accidentally ran over his three-year-old son, Earl, with a cart loaded with seven bags of Irish potatoes about 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The little boy was taken to the Greenville hospital, where it was determined that he had suffered one or more broken ribs and possible internal injuries. The child has been returned home and today was reported to be resting comfortably.

Killed on Causeway

Beaufort, N. C., June 13.—(AP)—Three men were killed early today when their trailerless truck overturned on the Atlantic Beach causeway and plunged into a canal.

The three were identified as John Douglas Bean, 31, of Winter Garden, Fla.; Eddie Huntly, 23, and Dominic L. Vitaro, 31, of Newark, N. Y.

The men were drivers of large trailer trucks engaged in hauling Carter county produce to northeastern markets.

Welles Declares Facts In Robin Moor Sinking Point To Nazi U-Boat

Mrs. Martha Stephenson Kemp, widow of the late Hal Kemp, orchestra leader from Charlotte, N. C., who was killed in an automobile accident last year, has announced that she will be married June 15 to Victor Mature, stage and screen actor. Mrs. Kemp and Mature are seen dancing in a New York night club.

SCHOOL PLANS BEING PUSHED

Purchase Of Land Authorized By City, School Boards

The Greenville City Schools are proceeding rapidly with their expansion program. The architect is now drawing plans for the five class rooms which are to be added to the Third Street School to provide space for the eighth grades of that area and of the area in the eastern part of town.

Last night the Board of Trustees of the schools and the Board of Aldermen in joint session purchased additional land at the Third Street School. Two lots adjacent to the school on the west side of the school were purchased and also the entire pecan grove facing on Third Street and adjoining the Third Street property. This property has a frontage of three hundred feet on Third Street and goes back more than four hundred fifty feet. The property was purchased not only to have room to expand according to the requirements of the situation in Greenville but in order to provide more adequate playground and park areas for the City of Greenville.

The purchase of this land at Third Street School, plus the recent purchase of an additional block adjacent to the West Greenville School provides excellent park and playground facilities for the children of the city.

In making an addition to Third Street School, extra room will be provided so that music, art, and the sciences can be taught in the upper grades there, as well as in the West Greenville School.

In the fall the schools will open with no seventh grades in the high school building, with one eighth grade in the West Greenville School and three eighth grades in the high school building temporarily. These three eighth grades in the high school building will be organized as a unit and as soon as the additions are completed at Third Street during the fall, they will be moved out there. Children from the Training School area who live a long way from Third Street School will be given the privilege of riding the school bus to the Third Street School. Just as soon as the Training School will add additional classrooms, the eighth grades of the eastern part of town will attend the eighth grade in the Training School building.

Taking the seventh and eighth grades out of the present high school building will leave only 425 children in the high school building, and when the physical education, vocational arts, and music building is built adjacent to the high school (Continued on page eight)

Undersecretary Of State Indirectly Accuses Nazis Of Violation Of International Treaty; Declines Definite Comment On Berlin Statement That Nazis Will Not Be Buffaloed By U. S. And Britain

Washington, June 13.—(AP)—Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, asserted today that the facts in the sinking of the Robin Moor were beyond dispute and indirectly accused Germany of violating an international treaty in submarine warfare.

The evidence of 11 survivors of the sunken American merchant vessel was very clear and there could be no dispute as to the facts, he told his press conference.

As to what action the United States will take, Welles said he would withhold a considered statement until the full depositions of the 11 survivors were received from American officials in Brazil and were investigated here.

An account of their testimony, however, issued by the State Department yesterday, charged that the Robin Moor was sunk in the South Atlantic on May 21 by a German submarine which gave the passengers and crew 30 minutes to abandon the vessel before it was torpedoed and shelled.

Welles was asked for comment on the statement of a German spokesman in Berlin that "we won't be buffaloed by American and English discussions concerning the Robin Moor," and that "whenever any ship with contraband sails for England, we'll shoot at it."

Welles replied that the question of what constitutes contraband is one of the most controversial in all the world and that the American government had never acquiesced in contraband definitions of either side in the present war.

What the United States does stand on very firmly, Welles asserted, is that both Germany and the United States are parties to an international agreement entered into in 1930 under which submarines are bound to take proper precautions to insure the safety of crews and passengers of any merchantships before it is sunk.

In the case of the Robin Moor, Welles declared that the facts speak for themselves.

Survivors were quoted as saying that the submarine left the 46 passengers and crewmen in open lifeboats hundreds of miles from land.

Welles was asked how the Robin Moor incident might affect President Roosevelt's recent assertion of the doctrine of freedom of the seas. The President's statement spoke for itself, he was the reply.

Welles emphasized that every detail of the sinking which the State Department had received had been made available to the public and this practice would be continued.

Night Of Fun Awaits Local Kiwanis Club

A night of fun is in store for members of the Greenville Kiwanis club at the regular meeting at the Woman's club building tonight at 6:30 o'clock.

The program has been announced only as "fun night" with Eli Bloom and W. K. Stewart, Jr., in charge of arrangements.

Washington, June 13.—(AP)—The House Rules Committee granted legislative right-of-way today to a measure for the establishment of stations for naval blimps at Elizabeth City, N. C., Boston and Sunnyvale, Calif.

The bill authorized an appropriation of $6,500,000 for each of the three stations.

NAZI DEMANDS ON USSR CHEER LONDON CHIEFS

Dreams of Russo-German Disagreement Encouraged

BRITAIN HOPEFUL OF FULL DISCORD

Berlin Demands That Russia Loosen Her Hold On Baltic And Black Seas Believed Too Drastic

London, June 13.—(AP) British dreams of a Soviet Russian-German disagreement bordering on active warfare were nourished today by repeated but unconfirmable reports that Berlin demands on Russia were of such magnitude that acceptance would loosen Moscow's military hold on the Baltic and Black seas.

Informed quarters said discussions between Sir Stafford Cripps, British ambassador to Moscow, and government leaders here were "primarily concerned with Russian-German relations."

It must be emphasized that reports of disagreement between Berlin and Moscow and Nazi concentrations on the Soviet border conceivably fit into the pattern of the British diplomatic nerve war which by scaring Russia, it is hoped here might force the U. S. S. R. into more friendly relations with Britain and eventual collaboration in the war.

Reliable sources said that demands made by the Germans had been received in Moscow and were under study.

Sir Stafford reached London by air from the Soviet capital Wednesday for what was described as a trip in line with Britain's policy of having her envoys report periodically and to establish contact with the home government.

Moscow, June 13.—(AP)—Soviet Russia said tonight that German troops, freed from operations in the Balkans, are moving to eastern and northeastern Germany (where they face Russia) but added that "it must be assumed" that the movements have no bearing on Russian-German relations.

Control Of Wheat Voted By Farmers

County Agent R. R. Bennett declared today that as a result of the recent wheat referendum in which growers voted for control, that crop would be controlled very much as tobacco and cotton.

The producer who plans to market his wheat needs to be provided with a marketing card in order to show the intermediate buyer that his wheat is penalty free.

The producer who does not plan to sell any of the wheat on his farm needs to get a certificate to present to the miller at the time he has his wheat processed. This certificate will indicate that the producer's wheat is penalty free.

The intermediate buyer who purchases wheat from the producer must fill out forms to keep records on the wheat he purchases to show that it is penalty free. Failure to do this will cause him to have to pay 49c per bushel penalty when he disposes of the penalty wheat he has purchased.

Combine operators who are harvesting wheat for toll must have a record on the toll wheat to show that it is penalty. In order to do this, he must have certain forms filled out and signed by the producer. If this is not done, the combine operator will not be able to market toll wheat without paying the penalty of 49c per bushel.

The following people should contact the County Agent before the wheat is sold, purchased or milled. Combine operators who harvest for toll; the intermediate buyers who will purchase wheat from the producer; and the wheat producers of the county.

Plant Seizure Measure Revised By Committee

Final Action On Bill To Be Deferred Until Monday

Washington, June 13.—(AP)—The House Military Committee today approved proposals which would permit the President to take over strike-bound defense plants whose managements refused to utilize federal conciliation or mediation services. They also would permit use of troops to prevent unlawful picketing.

Drastic changes proposed by Rep. Harness (R-Ind.) to the plant seizure bill approved by the Senate yesterday were accepted, but final action was deferred until Monday, when further amendments also will be considered.

The amendments approved differed substantially from the bill passed by the Senate yesterday, in that they contain no authority for the President to take over defense plants merely because the workers fail or refuse to abide by recommendations of the Mediation Board.

Washington, June 13.—(AP)—A sharply-divided House Military Committee took up the Senate's proposed plant seizure legislation today but opposing factions expected that agreement on "some kind of bill" would be reached before nightfall.

Some committee members contended the revised proposal of Sen. Connally (D-Texas) went too far. Others claimed that it had been "weakened" by amendments before the Senate finally passed it by a 67 to 7 vote yesterday.

The board was advised that the Utilities Commission was making concessions to the city in the way of a new rate schedule whereby the city will get advantage of the cent and a half per kWh rate for all electricity used by the city. The low rate already is applicable to the street lights.

City Engineer Henry Rivers reported that an additional WPA project for grading at the airport had been filed.

Martin Swartz, superintendent of the Utilities Commission, again appeared before the board in regard to the proposed retirement act for employees of the city and the commission, but action was deferred.

Chief Clark in a letter containing complete information, advised the board that he deemed it inadvisable to follow a suggestion that caution lights be erected at the railroad crossings on Tenth street and Dickinson avenue. It is felt that if the lights are installed the railway would dispense with its flagman service.

Highway Fatality

Lumberton, June 13.—(AP)—William Kennedy Ray, 18, of Wilmington, was killed instantly when a newspaper transportation truck overturned today on a sharp curve on the Lumberton-Bladenboro road, eight and a half miles east of here. His brother, J. M. Ray, 31, escaped serious injury.

Cairo Declares Final Blows Delayed During Discussions Aimed At Preventing More Bloodshed

London, June 13.—(AP) Rebuffed in a peace gesture, British and Free French forces in Lebanon and Syria were authoritatively reported today to be closing in on Beirut and broadening the base for perhaps the final assault on Damascus.

A high source in London declared that forces advancing along the Mediterranean shore of the Biblelands had pushed north to Sidon to a point within 20 miles of Beirut, Lebanese capital, while Free French forces had taken two villages east of Kisoua, facing Damascus 10 miles away.

The Middle East command at Cairo acknowledged that the allies had been "temporarily delayed in certain sectors by resistance of Vichy troops," but "had by yesterday evening made further progress in all sectors of their penetration."

"The Vichy government" was answering with the arms at its command a British overture through Madrid suggesting that to save French blood it should instruct defense forces to offer no further resistance to measures taken by the allies "to prevent the enemy from using Syria as a base of operations against them."

Reuters, British news agency, said it was understood in Cairo that the allies had practically surrounded Damascus and that discussions between the opposing forces with view to avoiding bloodshed had delayed entry into the capital of Syria.

Vichy, June 13.—(AP)—Allied forces in a tank-led drive of several kilometers have reached the outskirts of Sidon, on the Lebanese coast 25 miles south of Beirut, and are now battling French defenders in the environs of Damascus, the French high command acknowledged tonight.

The communiqué asserted that Canadian troops were in the van of one Allied column that gained a foothold in a French advance post in the Medjdajoun-Hasbaya area.

Both at Sidon and in the vicinity of Kisoua, 10 miles south of Damascus, French forces are still vigorously resisting, the war bulletin reported.

When the British were repulsed in an attack on Kisoua, it said, their pressure veered to the east "where combats are in course."

Local Bus Station Project Hits Snag

The proposal for the establishment of a bus station here has encountered difficulty, but Mayor B. Sugg today expressed confidence some plan could be worked and said he and the Board of Aldermen would press for immediate action.

Dr. W. I. Wooten has advised the mayor and the board that he proposes to surrender a franchise granted him to operate the proposed station. He explained that he had received bids for construction and that the proposals ran from $13,359 to $19,304, whereas the proposed arrangements he made with W. G. Humphrey, traffic manager of the Carolina Coach company were predicated on an expenditure not exceeding $7,500.

Mayor Sugg has sent a copy of Dr. Wooten's letter to State Utilities Commissioner Stanley Wilborne and also to Mr. Humphrey asking them what steps they would suggest since the project has reached a standstill.

Dr. Wooten had proposed to erect a station on the corner of Greene and Fifth streets and lease it to the Carolina Coach company, but declared in his letter to the board that bids on the construction were far in excess of the maximum expenditure he contemplated.

Evidence Of Those Saved Pointed Out

Vigorous Protest On Sinking of American Freighter To Be Made With Germany By State Department; To Demand Restitution; Nazis Say Berlin Will Not Be Buffaloed

Washington, June 13.—(AP)—The United States will lodge a vigorous protest with Germany on the sinking of the Robin Moor, it was learned authoritatively today, citing the evidence of survivors that the vessel was torpedoed deliberately by a Nazi U-boat.

The State Department's note, informed quarters predicted, will also demand that restitution be made for the loss of American life and property—35 persons are still missing—and that assurances be given against repetition of the incident.

There was intense interest, meanwhile, in what President Roosevelt might have to say on the subject when he holds his next press conference. When the sinking was first reported, Mr. Roosevelt asked the nation to suspend judgment until the facts were known, but yesterday the White House said there seemed to be "no longer any reason for that."

At the State Department, it was said, the preliminary report on how the Robin Moor went to the bottom provided ample eye-witness testimony for an immediate demand on the German government for a full explanation.

The report was made by Walter J. Lintinich, U. S. consul at Pernambuco, Brazil, who spent almost five hours getting the accounts of the 11 known survivors after they reached the South American port aboard the rescue ship Osorio.

Berlin, June 13.—(AP)—An authorized German source said today, "We won't be buffaloed by American and English discussions concerning the Robin Moor."

"Whenever any ship with contraband sails for England we'll shoot at it, whether it is the Robin Moor the Exmore, or anything else."

(The Robin Moor, 5,000-ton United States freighter, which was sunk in the South Atlantic May 21, was bound for Capetown, Union of South Africa. She formally was the Exmore.)

The question was exclusively military, these sources said, but certain American quarters were giving it a political angle "in order thereby to further a war psychosis."

"And, of course, it was added, 'England tries in every manner to make political capital thereof.'"

The German public still was unaware that the United States steamer Robin Moor had been sunk by a submarine.

Picture At College.
A moving picture, "The Primary Teacher at Work," putting emphasis upon progressive methods with respect to pupil achievements was shown last night to the group of elementary teachers of the E. C. T. C. summer school.

The setting was a modern classroom with the best equipment and exhibits of creative work of the children.

Mrs. E. C. Deal Hostess.
The George B. Singletary chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy was delightfully entertained on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. R. C. Deal. On account of refreshing showers, the intended garden party was held indoors.

Mrs. Hollingsworth, the treasurer, reported all obligations to date had been met. The history of the U. D. C. from organization to date is out and five copies were taken by members of the local chapter. Commemorative notice was given to the talk on Robert E. Lee by W. J. Cameron of the Ford Motor Co., and the Daughters are writing for copies of this talk.

The twelfth district will entertain at a tea at Manteo on July 19. All daughters are invited. That is their official day at Manteo.

Mrs. E. W. Harvey gave the program which was the history of Beauvoir. This lovely home has been restored and opened on June 9, the birthday of Jefferson Davis, as an historical shrine for the nation.

The hostess served cooling drinks with assorted cakes and tidbits, after which the chapter adjourned until September.

Attend House Party At Meredith.
Among the G. A. girls of Bethel who attended the Girls' Auxiliary house party at Meredith College in Raleigh, were Frances Mae Reeves, Frances McLawhorn, Elizabeth Mullins, Mary Frances Barnhill, Lillian Warren and Ruth Brown. Their leader, Mrs. M. M. Johnson, acted as counselor.

Mr. Reeves, parent of one of the girls, took them on Sunday, June 8, and Mr. Johnson, Bethel Baptist minister, and Horace Terterton, brought the girls home on Wednesday.

Miss Overton Honored.
On Thursday afternoon at 3:30, at her home on West Fourth street, Miss Elizabeth Overton, delightfully entertained at bridge honoring Miss Elizabeth Skinner Overton, whose marriage to Mr. Franklin Edward Payne takes place Saturday afternoon.

The house was attractively decorated with summer flowers and the bride-elect's place was marked with a shouderette of pink roses and sweetpeas. After several progressions of bridge, high score prize and second high bridge cards and bath powder, went to Mrs. W. G. Norman and Mrs. James H. Kitchens. The hostess presented Miss Overton with crystal compotes in her chosen pattern.

Miss Elizabeth Smith and Mrs. W. G. Norman assisted Miss Norman in serving a delectable ice course carrying out the green and white color motif.

Hostess To Garden Club.
On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. R. M. Garrett was gracious hostess to the Greenville Garden Club. The beautiful Garrett home was attractively decorated with a profusion of summer flowers. A large attendance of club members was present.

Only a short business session was held. The treasurer's report and the reports of the various standing committees were most gratifying. Mrs. Key Brown, chairman of this year's Garden Pilgrimage, reported there were about 150 visitors to the Greenville gardens, with a gate receipt of $30.60. The club unanimously voted that this sum be donated to the "Bundles for Britain."

Mrs. James T. Little, Jr., and Mrs. Garrett brought to the club interesting reports on the meeting of the State Garden Club held in Asheville in May. At the state meeting Mrs. D. J. Lybrook of Advance, N. C., was elected president, and Mrs. Robert Cecil of Asheville, vice-president.

The Greenville Garden Club sent a number of attractive souvenirs to the Asheville meeting and some of these souvenirs were on display at Mrs. Garrett's Wednesday. Mrs. Garrett reported that the Greenville club both in reports and exhibits made a favorable showing at the state meeting, winning the honors of second place in the Tree school.

After a social hour at Mrs. Garrett's, including delicious refreshments, the club adjourned to hold its next meeting in the fall.

MODES of the MOMENT

All-nylon evening gown. Its look of delicacy never reminds you of chemistry that went into its making. It's sheer, white, accordion-pleated, shaped to classic Grecian lines. Like nylon hosiery, this new fabric washes easily, dries rapidly, stays crisp and fresh.

Miss Blow Entertains.
Miss Madoline Woolard, bride-elect of tomorrow, and Miss Peggy Garth of Hickory were complimented at a beautifully appointed luncheon yesterday when Miss Alice Leigh Blow entertained at her home on Biltmore street.

Colorful garden flowers in varied arrangements were used to decorate the entire house.

The white-covered luncheon tables were centered with crystal bud vases holding white daisies. Luncheon was served in two courses.

Miss Blow presented Miss Woolard an attractive Postoria vase, and to Miss Garth she presented a strand of pearls.

Out-of-town luncheon guests, in addition to Miss Garth, were: Misses Cecelia Ann Castellow of Windsor, Mary Louise Etheridge and Carlotia Carter of Washington, and Jane Copeland of Ashokie.

Miller of Roanoke Rapids; Mr. George Gornto of Wilmington; Miss Thelma Daugherty of Burgaw; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey McNair of Tarboro.

DEDICATED IN MEMORIAM TO HAZEL WINDHAM

I cannot think of her as being dead—
Too close to me are certain things she said:
Her greeting, "How are you, old Girl, today?"
Spoken so cheerily, as was her way;
So much about her lingers with me yet;
The kindness that one could not forget.
That she had been a sufferer long I knew
(Perhaps this made bonds strong between us two)
With all her ills life never seemed to pall,
And from her bed so often she would call:
A happy-hearted woman, rarely grave,
Or grieving, sympathetic, patient, brave....
Now she has left, too often am I sad,
But God, I think, and heaven's stars are glad.
—(c) Daisy Crump Whitehead

AND SHE NOT HERE
The room and much within it is the same,
Quaint furnishings and darkly gleaming floor,
The vase of roses, brilliant-hued as flame,
The glimpse of trees beyond the open door.
So little changed and yet, how different all!
For change is in the very sunlight here,
And change is in the way the shadows fall
And in the footsteps of the marching year.

Why, if no petal dropped, no curtain stirred,
No whisper drifted ever in this place,
Still change would, like a bugle blast, be heard,
Still would be scrawled across the room's calm face,
How could it be the same to me again,
And she not here, not here in sun or rain?
—(c) Aline Michoelis,
Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Windham and Family.

Girl Scout News

Members of the Greenville Girl Scout Council and Leaders Association enjoyed a picnic supper Thursday evening at the farm of Mayor B. B. Sugg.

Mrs. S. B. Underwood, Jr., was in charge of arrangements for the picnic. Specially invited guests were Mrs. D. M. Clark and Mayor Sugg. Council members and leaders who were present were: Mrs. W. I. Wooten, Miss Martha Lee Cowell, Miss Helen Gaskins, Miss Jane Garret, Mrs. H. H. Duncan, Mr. and Mrs.

Ty Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Underwood, Jr., and Miss Florence Lanning, local director.
Many of the guests arrived early at the picnic and were present for the afternoon program and court of awards of the day camp.

THE SACRED DAGGER

YESTERDAY: Anne Willard is waiting for the return of a truck from Chuka with all things, two birth charts. These are connected in a strange way with the release of her parents, who are being held prisoner by the Nagaras, a neighboring Asiatic tribe whose particular charge is the fabled city of Shy-a Nago. It is this city all Anne's party wishes to find.

Chapter 23 "The Dagger Guards You"

The truck returned from Chuka with the birth charts made out in the Chinese manner.

"They are favorable," said Phillip, finding Anne in the pass but alone shortly afterwards. She had lit a fire in the fireplace for cheerfulness. He locked the papers in his desk, a bit embarrassed at being party to such proceedings. Consulting the stars! A little too much like child's play. The others would be amused if they knew. Anne comforted him.

"The Nagaras cannot doubt our sincerity on this point at least. When do you suppose they're coming for us?"

"I don't know. We've been seeing signal fires in the hills lately."

"If they don't come soon, we should start out to meet them. Follow the trail father and mother took. Do something to get in touch with them. It is terrifying to receive no word day after day."

Phillip was pacing back and forth before the fire in his usual nervous way.

"I hate to tell you this, Anne, and I don't know what to make of it but there's a rumor in Chuka that Russian archeologists have made contact with the Nagaras and are advancing themselves as the 'avatars of Destiny' come to fulfill the prophecy."

"What does that mean?" Anne demanded, and she did not have the heart to tell him Pete's report that Blaze had made a trip to Russia.

"I don't know."

The others came in then and were told the rumor.

"Things are going from bad to worse," said Phillip pessimistically and no one contradicted him. A knock sounded on the door.

A communication had been brought by special courier from Chuka. The Tibetan notified Phillip that the government was sending an official inspector to join the expedition.

"An official any?" sneered Larry.

"He'll probably be a Mandarin with a big retinue," sighed the doctor. "I'll have to put a guard over the spring or we'll be drinking bath-water and worse."

Larry laughed shortly. "What they are after is a hand in the treasure."

"But isn't that taken care of in the concession contract father made with the governor?" Anne asked.

Phillip shook his head. "Not specifically. We didn't know anything about Shy-a Nago when we came. Neither did the officials."

"We don't know yet," declared Larry. "I sometimes think it's all a pipe-dream."

"If only father and mother are safe!" The men looked at Anne pityingly. They had even graver doubts than she.

Beth rose, suppressing a yawn. "Let's go to bed. This has been an exciting day." They all wandered out to their tents. Anne knew that girl was anxious to see her alone to learn whether she was willing to tell any more that Blaze had said in his letter. She had been dodging them all afternoon. Now she felt an overpowering urge to get out among the trees and absorb their peace.

Visit In The Dark

When the camp had quieted down, she took a blanket and pillow and slipped out. Doddap sat up when she appeared in her dark coat. There would be no moon.

She turned her electric torch on him. "I'm going to sleep out for a while," she said in a low voice. He gave her his bright look.

"Yes, I know."

"If you know so much, shall I have pleasant dreams," she asked jestingly.

"Don't be afraid, whatever comes."

She laughed. Doddap might spoof her, but she couldn't tease him.

"Wear the dagger." She had turned away and now looked back. He repeated, "Wear the dagger."

"Why, Doddap?"

"The dagger guards you."

In Command

Acting under orders from President Roosevelt, Lieut. Col. Charles E. Branshaw (above), in charge of the western district office of the army air corps, took charge of the North American Aviation corporation's plant at Los Angeles. Troops moved in and cleared strikers and pickets away from the factory.

Acting under orders from President Roosevelt, Lieut. Col. Charles E. Branshaw (above), in charge of the western district office of the army air corps, took charge of the North American Aviation corporation's plant at Los Angeles. Troops moved in and cleared strikers and pickets away from the factory.

"Don't you think I'll be safe?"

"Yes, but wear the dagger." His persistence impressed her in spite of herself and she went back and strapped the belt around her waist.

Quietly, so as not to disturb the guards, she walked up through the cottonwood grove where the trees were thickest. In a few minutes she heard voices — Diana's tinkling laugh and a man's low tones. Anne didn't care, but the thought of infidelity sickened her a little. She was wondering if she could circle round them without revealing herself when they came walking towards her, made visible by Diana's white dress. Anne froze behind a tree. They passed close enough for her to recognize Phillip and to hear Diana say, "I'll send a message to be wireless to father at once."

Anne wondered what plans they could be making that would include Diana's father. After they disappeared, she went on to the place she had been seeking, an open patch of sod up next to the hill, where a benevolent old willow tree with a thick bole and wide arms stood somewhat apart. She lay down flat on one half of her blanket and drew the other half over her.

Anne's eyelids drooped and then she slept.

She did not know what awakened her. A sound. A touch on her hand. Or just the presence of the two who crouched at her side in their dark robes.

She sat up, stifling a scream and pushed the blanket from about her. One of the pair smiled.

Anne recognized the priests who had given her the dagger at Jus Masar.

"You," she whispered when they made signs for quiet.

"Is all well with you?" the man asked.

"Yes," she answered excitedly. "Have you come to take me?"

He shook his head. "Not yet. We wait till the stars are favorable."

"Are you taking good care of my parents?" she demanded.

The woman answered: "Good care."

"They are well?"

"Well."

"Did they send me a letter?"

"It is not allowed."

"Then why are you here?"

The man frowned.

"The story came—that you were dying in the desert—and another would carry the dagger."

Anne reached in the sheath and drew out the knife, glad she had obeyed the lama. They both scrambled back from the nakedness. Anne rose and put the dagger away again. "You see," she said, "everything is all right here. You have no cause to distrust us."

"We see," they answered.

"What became of the companion condemned to die with you?" the man asked.

"He went his way and I went mine."

"Did he respect the dagger?"

"He did," she answered shortly.

Suddenly voices and lights arose from the yard encircled by the huts and tents. Anne heard Beth call: "I tell you her cot has not been slept in." And Diana's voice: "Her coat is gone."

"I've been missed," said Anne.

"We go."

"Not yet," she cried, but they disappeared into the shadows of the little hillside like one cloud into another. Anne stared after them a moment, then picked up her blanket and pillow.

"Here I am," she called as she approached the excited group in the court yard. "I've been trying to sleep out doors."

Blaze Again

A plane flew into camp next morning while all the members of the expedition were at breakfast, with the exception of Diana who always slept late.

"Remain where you are," said Phillip sharply as the others would have risen to flock to the landing field. "I presume it is Gregory Sherwood's plane. He's back. Please don't let anyone leave the camp. Sherwood does not come as a friend to the expedition."

"No one could disagree with him on that, but Beth voiced her disappointment."

"He's still a human being and a white man and it's pretty thrilling to have that kind of company in this hole—no matter what his intentions are."

Phillip ignored her remarks.

"As acting head of this expedition I shall meet him first. Finish your breakfast." He rose and went out on the porch and shut the screen door firmly behind him. The others smiled ruefully at each other. They didn't like his manner but there was no disloyalty.

Diana had evidently heard the plane and dived into clothes. She appeared in the enclosure formed by the tents and huts. Phillip called her to him and sent her inside. Beth grinned at Anne.

When Phillip walked out to the group of chairs under the cottonwood trees in the center of the enclosure to meet the visitors, human nature could stand no more. Those inside the house moved discreetly towards the door and windows where they could see and hear without being seen.

Sherwood's tall form led. He was dressed in spruce, olive green whipcords, and did not look as if he'd spent a week trying to eat and drink. He sat under the table. In fact, he appeared very trim and fit and sure of himself. Anne thought her mind hardening against him despite her racing heart.

Mackey followed, carrying a brief case.

Sherwood and Oliver exchanged a crisp greeting and handgrip. Then the former spoke in his clipped voice.

"Dr. Oliver, I've been commissioned to you by the governor of the Province as his official representative. I am here to observe the work of the expedition and assist where I can. I—"

"You're too late," Phillip interrupted him sharply. "There's a man on the way from Chuka to represent the government."

Sherwood reached for his brief case. "You must have misunderstood. I am the man they meant."

Official Praises CollegeNYA Work

The program of NYA work as carried out at East Carolina Teachers College was highly commended by a representative from headquarters N. C. Larabee, who spent several days on the campus recently inspecting this work.

The variety of work gives the students excellent training and rich, wide experience, he believes that will enable them to get permanent positions later and will help them to get adjusted earlier. All of the tasks are connected with learning situations and in most cases the work performed is closely related with the curriculum the student is pursuing in college.

Commerce majors are in great demand by the instructors in all departments as secretaries, as they are helpful in cutting stencils, running off duplicate copies of material for class use, writing letters, copying manuscripts, and filing papers and documents at the same time that they are getting experience in secretarial work. Some students spend two to three years in the administrative offices, becoming highly proficient in performing office tasks, and are reluctantly given up when graduation time comes.

Several science majors are assistants in the science laboratories where they collect and mount specimens for the museum, attend to the chemical stock room, look after the physical equipment in the physics and biology divisions, and serve as secretaries to instructors. They also develop skill in their major project.

Many primary and grammar grade majors are assigned as assistants to the critic teachers in the Training school and there observe, work with, and learn many of the skills and techniques of the educational procedures they expect to carry out when they do their practice teaching or go out to their own school.

In the library the loan desk is largely staffed by NYA students. In the wood shop of the industrial arts department they repair furniture and do construction work. In the athletics, they repair equipment, line the athletic fields, and help keep the gates. Students are found assisting in the nursery school and, in the town, in the office of the county home demonstration agent.

Four NYA girls found work as readers for students who have a feeble understanding of the English system of others.

Student hostesses are in the reception rooms of the college dormitories meeting the public gracefully and rendering a service courteously.

In the college infirmary several young women assisted in attending patients with non-communicable diseases and performing many of the simpler tasks, such as making a sick bed properly, preparing meals for the sick, and other services necessary to the comfort and well-being of those with minor illnesses.

Three Are Arrested On Whiskey Charges

Local ABC officers last night arrested a Negro woman, Maggie Strickland, of King Row, on a charge of possession of illegal liquor and also arrested two Negro men, Alton Dyer and Robert T. Redding, on a charge of transporting illegal liquor for sale—both charges involving the same five gallons of contraband.

After arresting the woman, officers then went to the homes of the men and took them in custody on charges of having delivered the whiskey.

Strength For The Day
 By EARL L. DOUGLASS

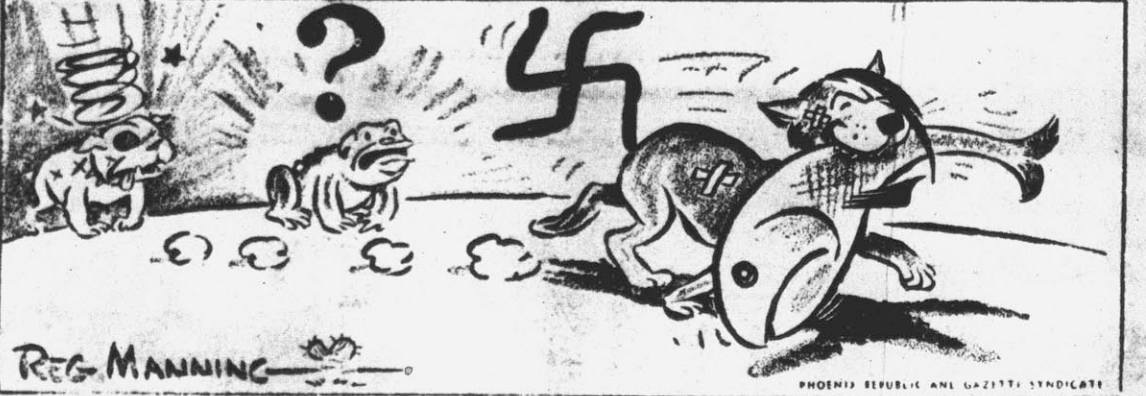

IS LIFE A SCHOOL OR A PLAYGROUND?
 Some people have no use for Christianity because it doesn't immediately solve all their problems. They want religion to be magical in its operation. They think it a grievous injustice if good men are not always happy and bad men always miserable. They shake their fist at high heaven and declare that God's righteousness is an illusion because low, here is so-and-so, who has been a good man all his life, and he suffers. Think of that scandalous hypocrite who lives farther down the street; see what success he has, what honor and satisfaction.
 But God sent Jesus Christ into the world and allowed Him to go to the cross that men might see that such reasoning is wrong. If God spared not His own Son, He will not spare us; but we can be sure that if we have His Son's spirit, we shall share His glory. Sacrifice and self-effacement are the experiences in life which cause the heavens to open and God's blessing to come down upon us.
 Do not look to Christianity immediately to solve all your problems. Christian faith constantly creates new problems at the same time that it solves old problems. Life is a school, and a school with out problems is not a school at all—it is a playground, unsupervised, where children run riot to their ultimate hurt and destruction.

HOUSE CLEANING AND FIRE

Mrs. America is now turning her expert hand to the job of house cleaning, and woe betide all interference! There she stands—a towel guarding her coiffure, with a broom and a scrubbing brush—mistress of all she surveys.
 There is panic amid the cobwebs, the dust particles shudder despairingly. Wise husbands stay downtown for dinner. Smart children absent themselves.
 But the National Board of Fire Underwriters dares to raise a voice. "Mrs. America," it says, "there were 1,500 fires a day in this country in 1940. Most of them were in homes. They cost the lives of thousands of loved ones, the loss of cherished possessions, of hundreds of millions of dollars. Can't we do better than that from now on?"
 And so the National Board, which observed its 75th anniversary this year, tries to show Mrs. America the best way to fight fire is before it starts. House-clean the fire hazards, it advises. Beware of rubbish in the attic and basement. Never clean with gasoline—it's liquid dynamite. Discard non-metal waste baskets and ash containers. Use only approved electrical devices and equipment. Put all oil or paint-soaked rags and clothing in the furnace, lest spontaneous ignition break out.

 "Fire-proof the American home" is a good slogan for house cleaning time. And Mr. America, along with his Mrs., has a dividend-paying job laid out for him there.

Washington Daybook

Washington—Into the annals of Congress the other day was written one of those simple and touching stories of how long and enduring can be a friendship between "war buddies."
 It has to do with the memory and the record of the late Brig. Gen. William L. "Billy" Mitchell, who suffered the humiliation of being court-martialed and relieved of his army command for four years after he shouted long and loud and violently that wars of the future would be fought in the air and that the United States army was negligent in not developing this branch of the service. Head down, like an angry bull, and oblivious to consequences, General Mitchell snorted and pawed out his charges and claims in interviews, articles and lectures. The result was that he was drummed out of the army, for a time at least, for insubordination and breach of discipline. That's history and it's also history now that "Billy" Mitchell's name has bobbed up more often in the last year or so than that of any of the major or minor prophets who predicted the tides of modern warfare, for it appears now that he was right.

 After 43 Years
 It bobbed up again the other day in Congress when Rep. Stephen Bolles of Wisconsin called to the attention of the House a resolution which Assemblyman Edward F. Hilker of Racine had laid before the state legislature. The resolution, after 10 "whereases" that recited the major events by which Mitchell distinguished himself and finally brought himself into disfavor, ended with this:
 "Resolved by the assembly (the senate concurring), that the Wisconsin Legislature respectfully petition the Congress of the United States to take such official action as may be necessary to clear the name of this soldier and patriot (Brig. Gen. William L. Mitchell) to the end that he who stood his ground, though persecuted, may be completely and forever cleared."
 Behind all this is a story that started 43 years ago in Milwaukee, Wis., at Camp Harvey. Two lads presented themselves for enlistment as buck privates in the Spanish American war. They both were accepted and when they reached the camp at Jacksonville, Fla., Pvt. William L. Mitchell and Edward F. Hilker were assigned to the same tent. They slept within an arm's length of each other, ate the same chow and shared toils, troubles and pleasures throughout the war.
 When it was over, "Billy" Mitchell went on to become a hero in the World War, a pioneer in air power, a brigadier general and finally an officer in disgrace. "Ed" Hil-

 It's surprising how much good will can be created if it is recognized that the soldiers are not a class apart, but fellows who get fun out of exactly the same things as civilians.
 There's a right good internal struggle going on over appointment of someone to take the place of John C. Baskerville, who was ousted as secretary of the Governor's Hospitality committee. Charlie Parker, director of the News Bureau, wants Mrs. Ruth Robinson to get the job. While several of the regular gubernatorial dispensers of patronage are said to be boosting Bob Redwine, one-time Cooley campaign aide, for the place.
 Which puts Redwine in a spot. If he gets the job, he'd have to work under Parker, who wants somebody else to have it in the first place.

Hollywood—Joseph Cotten, with more reason than most newcomers to risk a spurge, still hasn't "done over" his dressing room.
 He hasn't bought a ranch, or an estate, or even a rose-trellised cottage, yet likes it out here, but the Cottens are renting a house and they're just beginning to contemplate, with caution, sending for their furniture.
 "I want to see me in a few pictures first," says Joe Cotten, who is a striking actor for many reasons, high on the list being that he never acts like an actor.
 You might as well get used to the name of Joe Cotten. He'll stick around. He was that honest dramatic critic in "Citizen Kane," and his was a memorable role in a memorable movie. Already he's one of the top leading men—there are four—

Raleigh, June 13.—Your reporter is in receipt of a letter from John W. Caffey, director of public relations for the North Carolina Association for Wine Control, which argues in effect that this column should have understood the word "recognize" to mean "approve the use of."
 Caffey had issued a release in which he said: "The Wine Control Association does not recognize wine as an intoxicating beverage." This your reporter termed a "silly sally."
 Now comes Mr. Caffey to say, in pertinent part:
 "Curely you understood the purport of my statement—The intent and purport of my statement was that the Wine Control Association does not approve the use of wine as an intoxicating beverage, but rather frowns upon the use of it in such a manner. I fully recognize the fact that wine, in quantities, is intoxicating."
 To show that Mr. Caffey has no hard feelings in the matter he closes "with all good wishes and fondest personal regards," to which your reporter replies "Same to you, John, just say what you mean next time."
 There is every likelihood there'll be no State Fair this year on account of the emergency. Governor Broughton says the army is strongly covetous to use the fair grounds as a base during this fall's big maneuvers in North and South Carolina, which unfortunately come right at the time set for this year's Fair. It will be almost impossible to change the fair dates and it is altogether impossible to change the maneuvers—so it looks like the fair's off.
 The chairman of Raleigh's American Legion Luncheon club (which boasts it's the only eating organization without any purpose other than for its members to enjoy themselves) picked up a Fort Bagg soldier on the streets Thursday and invited him to the luncheon.
 The veterans asked many questions of the young soldier in order to compare modern camp life with that of 1917-18, and apparently enjoyed themselves immensely. The visitor, a chap who ten weeks ago was in independent business man in New York City, obviously appre-

with Merle Oberon in "Illusions."
 He's a resourceful gent, this Joe. Having just turned 34 on May 15 he's done practically everything in and out of acting. Blue-eyed, square-jawed, with curly light brown hair, he's the current object of the lady fan mag writers' devotion.
 The acting bug bit him hard back in Petersburg, Va., his home town, and from the time he was 16 he began doing things about it. Periodically, between mundane jobs, he began trekking to New York. In Miami, Fla., where he worked occasionally as a reporter, he joined a little theater group, each summer pounding Broadway pavements.
 He hit New York, permanently by walking into David Belasco's sanctum and getting a job. A letter from a Miami dramatic critic did the trick—"the only time I ever heard of a letter of introduction going any good." Belasco made him understudy to Lynne Overman in "Dancing Partners," later to Melvyn Douglas in "Tonight or Never." Then came 56 weeks of stock in Boston—hard but good training.

Radio was a life-saver many times. During a broadcast he met a chap with ideas—one Orson Welles. They clicked. Cotten went into the Welles group that emerged as the Mercury theater, thence into "Citizen Kane." He took leave to join Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story"—which surprised everybody by smash-hitting—and he rejoined the play after making "Citizen Kane" here.

 "I've seen players do over their dressing rooms," he says, "and get the job finished just as the closing notice went up. I played the same theater with Philadelphia Story for 32 weeks, with a hole of a dressing room."
 "I was sitting around the other day with a bunch of movie people and the funny thing was that all of them still talked of New York as their home, of themselves as stage people. One of them was a producer, out here 20 years; with a big house and a family—but the way he talked you'd think he was here temporarily."
 "So, I'm just thinking about sending for the furniture—maybe!"

Ivy Treatment.
 If you want ivy to have shiny leaves, wash it frequently, and of course, very carefully, with warm soapy water. Pat dry with a soft cloth. Olive oil can be applied to the leaves on a soft cloth. The ivy will perk up with this treatment, provided, of course, it gets plenty of air, light and water.

Modern Elks Gulf Service Station To Open Tomorrow

Army Diploma Won By Fred J. Broadwell

Scott Field, Ill., June 13—“Keep the planes in the air” was the message given to Pvt. Fred J. Broadwell, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Broadwell, 200 Washington, Greenville, and the 212 members of the class of radio students just graduated from the U. S. Army Air Corps radio school at Scott Field, according to an announcement by Col. Wolcott P. Hayes, commandant.

second largest ever graduated from this school. To get his diploma, Pvt. Broadwell completed a 22-week course in radio operation which has prepared him for radio duty anywhere in the air corps. Approximately 4000 students are now attending the center of air corps communications here receiving their training in order to take their place as the “ears and voice of the air corps.”

The American rubber industry sold 31,000,000 new tires in 1940. Iran (Persia) is the fourth oil producing country in the world.

STATION HERE ULTRA MODERN

Attractive Offer Is Made For First Day Patrons

One of the most modern service stations to be found anywhere will be formally opened here tomorrow when the Elks Gulf Service station will be opened to the motoring public at the corner of Dickinson Avenue and Center Street. C. E. Elks, well known in Greenville where he has served 12 years in the business, will be manager and will be assisted by an able and efficient corps of co-workers. Mr. Elks is a native of this city.

For the formal opening a lubrication or washing job will be given with each purchase of five gallons or more of gasoline on the opening day. Novelties also will be presented the children visiting the station.

The station, itself ultra-modern is equipped with every need for the motorist. In addition to the regular service, a 30-minute battery charger has been installed.

The station is equipped with fluorescent lighting and for the safety and protection of its patrons sterile seats have been installed in the wash rooms.

around his “demise” should hand him a good laugh. Whether Max Schmeling was a good fighter or a bad fighter had no bearing on the issue. He whipped Louis, and the only reason he fought Louis was for the right to meet Braddock for the title. He must have been dazed, to say the least, when Louis, after recovering from his beating, was given preference and an open shot at Braddock’s title, which he lifted without too much trouble.

But, things like that happen in New York. They happen every day. You’ve got to play ball if you want to get ahead in the big-time fight racket. You’ve got to agree to fight for just one man — and nobody else. You’ve got to take orders. Joe Louis is a better fighter than Schmeling ever was or ever could be. He is truly a great champion. But that doesn’t alter the case that Schmeling earned the right to meet Braddock for the title—and never got it. He was shoved around. He was fished as neatly as Cubertson can relieve you of an undefended queen.

The word now is that Schmeling a parachute trooper in the German army, is convalescing from a fever on a hospital cot somewhere in Greece. I don’t know whether he’ll see the New York papers or not, but if he does the flowery eulogies spun

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker
New York—The wreaths that were hung on Max Schmeling’s name by some sports writers when the erroneous report of his demise in Greece came in were not in key with the things that were said about him when he was fighting in the United States. I can recall more than one essay summing up the German as a miser and a penny-grabber. Max never cared about blowing his money on blondes in Broadway nightclubs.

It is natural, I suppose, to say nice things about the dead. Yet somehow posthumous tributes have a phoney ring when written by men who never hesitated to be blunt and uncomplimentary when the “deceased” was alive.

Most of these eulogies called Schmeling a great guy and a game if not a great fighter. They dwell on his good points, his abiding faith in himself when all others doubted. Yet these virtues were not lifted in his defense when he was given a crude run-around after he knocked out Joe Louis in their first fight—a deal that saw the beaten Louis, not the victorious Schmeling, given the chance at the heavyweight title, then held by the amiable James J. Braddock, the Jersey pier wallower. Maybe I’m wrong. Maybe I’m naive. But it seems to me that inside politics shouldn’t be the only factor in determining a challenger for the heavyweight title in New York. But that’s the way it is in PLEA—In his first press conference Rear Admiral Arthur J. Heburn (above), new chief of navy’s public relations, asked for a voluntary censorship on the movement of vessels belonging to Britain, U.S., and “friendly foreign neutrals.”

Gulflex Lubrication Or Wash Job With The Purchase of 5 Gallons of Gasoline or More Opening Date Only Also Novelties For The Children

★ “ULTRA-MODERN” doesn’t half describe the new service station we’re opening tomorrow at Dickinson Avenue and Center Street. It’s just about the last word in service station design and equipment in Greenville or in any other city. New equipment, new service — all located in our new building and ready to take care of your motoring needs quickly, conveniently, and thoroughly.

Some time soon, make it a point to drive in and make an inspection tour of Greenville’s newest and finest service station. Here are a few of the special services you can look forward to:

- 1. FREE CALL AND DELIVERY SERVICE —gives you extra time for other things. Just phone 2375. We’ll pick up your car, service it as requested, and return it when and where you say. There’s no extra charge for this “plus” Good Gulf Service.
- 2. GULFLEX REGISTERED LUBRICATION —the most advanced, super-efficient lubrication service Gulf ever devised to make cars last longer, steer easier, and ride more smoothly. Six special retentive lubricants are used to protect the numerous vital lubrication points of your car.
- 3. GULF NO-NOX GASOLINE —the new lubricated motor fuel designed to make your engine last longer because it’s specially treated to reduce wear on valves, rings and cylinder walls. And more, Gulf No-Nox is knockproof under all normal driving conditions.
- 4. GULFPRIDE OIL CHANGE. —the world’s finest motor oil refined by Gulf’s famous Alchlor process. Gulfpride contains far less impurities to cause harmful carbon, gum, and varnish. It adds years to engine life... stays “up” between drains.
- 5. CAR WASHING AND POLISHING —no harsh, finish-injuring soaps or chemicals are used when we wash your car. We use only water—gallons of it—to float off the dirt. Then we top it off with a thorough drying... and deliver to you a car that shines like the general’s buttons.
- 6. CHECK THESE GULF COURTESY SERVICES, TOO! —distilled water in your battery whenever you need it... upholstery vacuum with every lubrication or wash job... tires inflated to the EXACT recommended pressure... all lights checked... windshield and windows cleaned... radiator care.

Greenies Take Both Ends Of Header Against New Bern

LONG AND KEE TURN IN WINS

First Game Won 13-5; Second By Score Of 3-0

With Lefty Long turning in his sixth consecutive win of the season and Kee running his shutout streak to 25 innings, the Greenies jumped on New Bern at Guy Smith park last night and handed the bears a double pasting in revenge for the loss suffered at the hands of Jackie Wade Wednesday night.

The Greenies went on a hitting spree in the first game with several players boosting their batting average. Scagg turned in four for four, one a double, to lead the team with a perfect night. Finfrock got three for four, including a double and a triple. Long also joined in the free hitting and got three for four, including a double and a triple. Long, incidentally drove in four runs, more than any other local player. In all the Greenies got three triples, seven doubles and six singles.

The locals made one in the first and then pushed five across in the second to put the game on ice.

Kee took over the hurling duties in the second game and almost had a perfect night, only one hit having been made against him. It was the third straight shutout for the hurler. On June 2 he tamed Williamson to the tune of 2-0 and on June 3 he got a 13-0 win over Tarboro.

In the seven-inning contest, the Greenies got two in the second and added another in the sixth, while Kee was taming the Bears. Finfrock got two for three to lead at bat, while Wilson, Jenkins and Kee each got one for two and Scagg got one for three.

OIL CASE NEAR FINAL STAGES

Texas Court Seeking To Settle Title To Oil Land

Conroe, Texas, June 13.—(AP)—The famous Wilson Strickland oil case, in which several hundred heirs of Strickland and of Col. Allen Vince, Texas revolutionary soldiers, are seeking title to 500 acres of oil land near here worth from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 is expected to go to the jury next week.

The case, which began last August, is a three-way affair, several major oil companies which developed the tract from a pine forest and the state of Texas, which claims title to the land, also are parties.

Judge Ed T. Murphy has dismissed the jury until Monday when he hopes to have his charge ready.

It is expected that another 100 hours will be needed to argue the case before it is given to the jury.

The land originally was given to Wilson Strickland, a soldier of fortune from North Carolina, as a reward for services in the Texas war of independence against Mexico.

Vince heirs lay claim to the land on the contention that Strickland lost the land to Col. Vince on a judgment.

The oil companies developed the land on the strength of various conveyances entered in court records here. The Strickland heirs have countered this testimony with contentions that Strickland could neither read nor write and that the conveyances have no status in court.

Police Work Is A Chore
Topeka, Kas.—(AP)—A pair of Topeka policemen trailed a stolen cow to a pasture and concealed themselves in brush to wait for a thief. Occasionally they had to give up their lurking to feed and water the cow. This went on all day long up to milking time, when they quit. The thief never did show up.

known to be favorable to Lloyd Griffin who has now been replaced by Yelton, upon recommendation of the Governor.

Griffin, like some other state officials who have since departed the scene of official life, was an outright supporter of Horton in the gubernatorial primary campaign; and then Lieutenant Governor is pictured as having been willing to give up his right to another chance at the polls only upon condition that his principal backers be not slaughtered to make a new administration holiday.

So there is every likelihood that the action of the governor in recommending Yelton will increase the abiding bitterness against him which exists particularly among supporters of Horton.

Of course there's nothing the folks who feel themselves aggrieved can do about it, except swear political vengeance whenever opportunity shall present itself; because no applied, or even direct, agreement to do nothing to unseat Griffin in return for aid in calling off Horton has the slightest standing in law.

It is another instance, however, in which even a good appointment has made enemies for the governor. Not even those who are the most resentful of what they feel is a plain case of double-dealing go so far as to brand Yelton as incompetent for the School Commission post. On the contrary there is general agreement that both by natural ability and by training the Democrat from Mitchell (where there aren't any too many Democrats) is well qualified. Certainly his record as head of the division of public assistance of the Department of Charities and Public Welfare has been first class.

Contend That Broughton Broke Faith With Horton

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, June 13.—Governor Broughton's recommendation (translated into election by the commission) that Nathan Yelton be named executive secretary of the School Commission is regarded by some friends of former Lieutenant Governor Wilkins P. Horton as a direct breach of a clearcut agreement entered into by Broughton last year when every effort was being made to induce Horton to forego the second primary which he was by law entitled to call.

At that time, it is flatly asserted by a Horton supporter who claims he acted as an intermediary. Candidate Broughton unqualifiedly said that he would make no recommendation regarding selection by the commission of its executive secretary; and at the same time indicated clearly that he would rename the commission six members.

McDonald Angle

Another angle of the ouster of Griffin is that it shows very clearly that there has been a definite breach between the Governor and Dr. Ralph W. McDonald—a breach which the recent Hoey-Dick Reynolds national committee fight first brought to light.

McDonald is known to have felt that Griffin and the School Commission have done the state great service. Himself an educator, McDonald has never been in the ranks of the professional school people who have for many years been trying to take over Superintendent of Public Instruction Clyde Erwin, the financial control of North Carolina's school system. Widely at variance with big business on most of his tax views, the "liberal" gubernatorial candidate of 1936 has consistently held with them in their feeling that the money for operating schools should be guarded by hard-headed business men rather than by professors.

It is certain that some months ago McDonald was confident the Governor would do nothing to replace Griffin. He then felt that he had received sufficient assurance either from the governor himself or from those very close to the governor, that there would be no shake-up of the School Commission drastic enough to include the firing of Griffin.

All of which tends to indicate that the new anti-administration lineup will be a conglomerate of conservatives, from the so-called "Sandy Graham" group and constitutional rebels against the "machine" who fought under the McDonald banner when he almost parleyed opposition to the sales tax into a room in the Big Blount street mansion which houses North Carolina's No. 1 citizens.

The Dick Reynolds lineup in his committee battle with former Governor Hoey showed the same thing. For the Winston-Salem "angel" of the national Democracy were Grahamites of 1936 such as Libby Ward, John Folger and others, with a sprinkling of such McDonaldites as were listed in the state executive committee roster.

To the membership of the new School Commission there hasn't yet been any notable reaction one way or another; probably for lack of time in which to hear it. Off hand and first impression views have been generally laudatory.

NEWS MEN GET APPOINTMENTS

At Least Half a Dozen Honored By Gov. Broughton

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, June 13.—At least half a dozen prominent newspaper men have received more or less "major" appointments at the hands of Governor J. Melville Broughton since he took office in January.

First to be selected was L. C. Gifford, publisher of the Hickory Record who was named on the state retirement commission to administer the 1941 employees and teachers retirement act.

When the Highway Commission personnel was announced Carroll Wilson, of the Roanoke Rapids newspaper world, had beaten D. C. Barnes of Murfreesboro in the keenest battle which has raged over any post yet handed out by the governor.

On the Board of Conservation and Development two newspaper men were given re-appointments—Josh Horne of the Rocky Mount Evening Telegram and Sanford Martin of the Winston-Salem dailies.

On the most recently named group—the School Commission—are Lee Weathers, publisher of the Shelby Daily Star, and Julian Miller, editor of the Charlotte Observer.

That may not include all members of the Fourth Estate who have been named to public post by the governor, as the list is compiled strictly from memory and without looking up the personnel of all the boards and commissions named this year.

It does not include Charlie Parker, city editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, who was made head of the state News Bureau, as this post is of course a straight out and out news post and selection of anyone other than an experienced news man would have been amazing.

Kay Kyser Can Cook—His Mother Says So!

Brunswick Stew by Kay Kyser—and his mother.

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE (AP Feature Service Writer)
Kay Kyser says any man whose mother is a good cook can be a good cook too.

He is speaking from experience. He not only swears by his mother's cooking—he uses her recipes. He turns out dishes that make you want more.

If he forgets the recipe he wires an urgent plea to Rocky Mount, N. C., and his 79-year-old mother writes down every detail of how to make the dish he is hankering for and sends it PDQ.

He has an idea for a special present from mothers to their boys and girls: Lessons in the way mothers cook. Also he thinks mothers-in-law could do their daughters-in-law a real service if they'd fix up a home-made cook book entitled "My Son's Favorite Recipes to the Actual Count of Specks and Pinches."

Not long ago Kyser wired his mother for her Brunswick stew recipe. He was in Austin, Texas. Soon as he got her answer, he borrowed a hotel kitchen and went to work. The recipe:

- Six-pound hen
 - Half pound round steak
 - Four pound salt
 - 2 No. 2 cans tomatoes
 - 2 No. 2 cans lima beans
 - 1 large onion, 1 potato
 - 1 No. 2 can corn
- Hen, steak and pork should be cooked separately the day before. Bone chicken and cut it and the other meat into small pieces. Add tomatoes, onions, beans and cooked, mashed potato. Simmer 45 minutes, adding corn thirty minutes before serving. Serves from 8 to 12.

Two things Kyser must have when he is king of the kitchen: His mother's recipe and black pepper. Without pepper, he says, meats "just ain't the same." Nor vegetables.

Speaking of vegetables, one of his favorites is squash. He can fry squash to a delicate turn. His method:

Cook two pounds squash with three medium sized onions in salted water until done. Drain, mash, season with salt and pepper to taste. Fry in bacon fat until brown. Kay Kyser has been cooking ever since he left mud-pie days behind. He is a whiz with a banana pie. And his fried chicken is as southern as his "Evenin', folks, how y'll."

In a borrowed kitchen, with his mother's recipes.

the Greenville schools will have a set-up which will serve their needs for years to come. The School Board is not building anything of a temporary nature, but all of a permanent type. Under the present plans of the School Board it is possible to develop the junior high school idea in two areas, one in the Training School building and one at Third Street School. This will give the college a chance to develop a junior high school idea on its own campus and will give the School Board a chance to develop the junior high school idea in the western part of town also. The program which is now being embarked upon is not only permanent but is flexible and allows for the growth of the city at the present rate of growth or even faster. The School Board desires also to see to it that this expansion program is done as economically as possible so that there will be money left for a live school program better than that afforded by the State's program. It is the determination of the Board to see that music, art, physical education and the natural sciences are available to the children of the up-grade of the elementary school as well as in the high school.

The expansion plan also calls for the building of an assembly hall at West Greenville School holding 300 people or more, adding four rooms and building a home economics cottage and purchasing some additional land at Fifth Street Negro School. The plans also call for the modernization of the present high school auditorium and gymnasium—slanting the floor, putting down fixed furniture, and changing the balconies.

Reports On Work Of Health Office

A report on activities of the Pitt County Health Department during the past month was submitted to the Pitt County Medical Society at the regular June meeting by Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, health officer, as follows:

"The chief activity of the department during the month of May was the county wide typhoid clinics. There were 60 clinic centers. There were 744 white persons and 477 colored vaccinated, or a total of 1,221.

"The general contagious disease situation in the county showed improvement for May. For instance, diphtheria dropped from five cases in April to none in May; measles from 85 cases in April to 49 in May and Tuberculosis from 13 in April to nine in May, though, of course, tuberculosis is still our major contagious disease health problem.

"During the month of May there were 251 children immunized against diphtheria.

Under Dr. A. D. Underwood, the dental work in the white schools was completed in April. Some of the figures for the year's work, covering 18 weeks, are: Children examined 1,009, treated 888, and 921 referred to private dentists.

"The monthly orthopedic clinic in Greenville continues to run at full capacity. There were 31 patients in attendance during the month of May.

"The attendance at the venereal disease clinics was 1508.

"The attendance at the maternal and infant clinics showed 208 mothers and 67 babies, or a total of 275.

"The general sanitation program as related to cafes, meat markets, and dairies has been pushed energetically.

"Since the Greenville milk area, through the Carolina Dairy Pasteurization plant, Greenville, furnishes milk to Camp Davis, the Federal government is now very active in its supervision of our dairy output. And while we have been able, so far, to meet these regulations, it probably will become necessary that the Pitt County Board of Health revise our present milk ordinance, if we are to meet the proposed Federal regulations."

Here's An Idea Goldsboro, N. C.—(AP)—When Bennie Davis read that strawberries in London sold for 20 cents apiece he couldn't get to the store fast enough to buy a quart for 15 cents.

"I ate $10.40 worth—in London prices—and they tasted much sweeter," Davis said.
