Fierce Battles Being Waged For Damascus and Beirut

VICHY FRENCH WAGE ATTACK

Strong Allied Reinforcements Sent To Syria As Defending French Forces Lash Out In Fierce Counter Attack; Allies Claim Advances On Beirut, But Acknowledge Resistance

British troops storming toward ancient Damascus, capital of Syria, claimed a four-mile advance today amid reports that fighting was becoming heavier on all fronts in the 10-day-old invasion of France's Middle East colonies.

British headquarters in Cairo said strong Allied reinforcements had been sent to the south Syrian front, where Vichy French troops were lashing out in fierce counter attacks.

The British communique said Allied forces were making 'steady progress' on the Mediterranean coastal sector in a drive toward Beirut, capital of Lebanon, but admitted that the French were putting up a bitter fight at Merjayoun and Kuneitra, 40 miles northwest of Damascus.

To Vichy came reports a French counter attack had driven the British out of Merjayoun, which was captured by British forces a week ago.

These reports indicated that the French had taken the offensive all along the front, pushing as far south as the Kuneitra sector, which British and Free French troops took the first day of the attack.

In North Africa, the British reported that Imperial troops penetrated across the Egyptian frontier into Libya as far as Fort Capuzzo and then "beat back determined Axis counter attacks" despite Axis reinforcements rushed to the scene from the Tobruk area, 80 miles inside Libya.

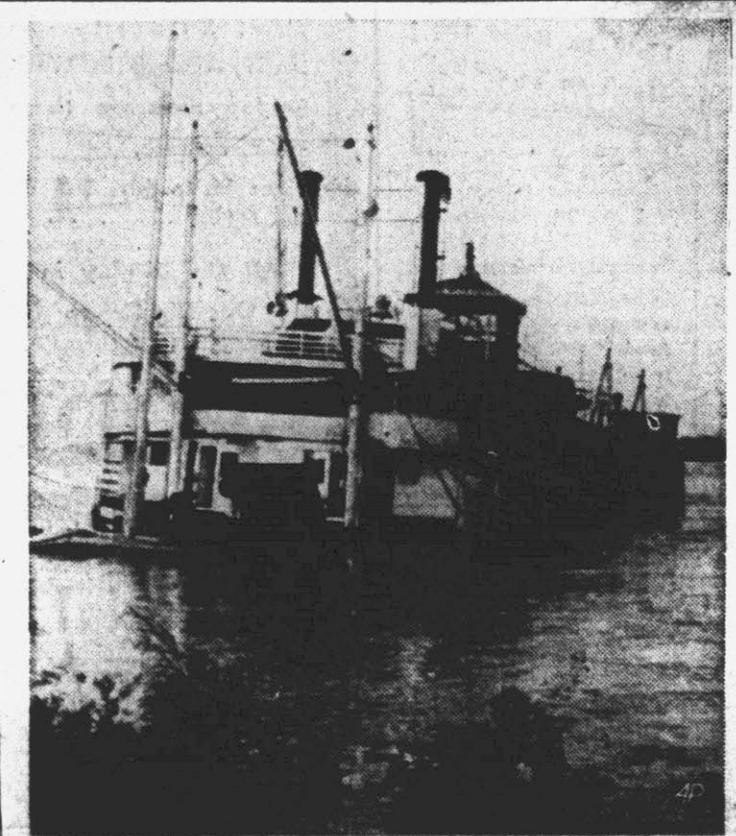

The British war bulletin said severe losses were inflicted on German and Italian troops in what appeared to be the opening of a major battle.

The Germans asserted that 100 British armored units had been destroyed in violent clashes in the desert around the Egyptian frontier post of Salum.

The official German news agency said the situation was developing favorably to Axis forces.

Journey's End For River Packet

The Golden Eagle, last of the old-time packets on the Mississippi river, lies partly submerged in the Mississippi near Chester, Ill., after hitting an underwater obstruction in mid-stream en route to St. Louis. She was secured close to shore after the accident and the 55 passengers and all but one of the 58 crew members were rescued.

Proposes Restrictions On U.S. Oil Shipments

DECLARES OPM REAL CULPRIT

Charged With Holding Up Hydro-Electric Plant

Washington, June 17.—(AP)—Senator Mead (D-NY) asserted today that testimony taken by the Senate Defense Investigating Committee indicated that the Office of Production Management was what he called the "culprit" delaying the construction of a hydro-electric project capable of producing 100,000,000 pounds of aluminum yearly.

Mead made the statement after I. W. Wilson, vice president of the Aluminum Company of America had testified that his company was ready to apply to the RFC for financing the Fontana project in North Carolina as soon as the OPM gave its approval.

Wilson said the project on the Little Tennessee river would provide power for a plant which would produce 100,000,000 pounds of aluminum annually.

The New York senator asked Wilson whether he thought the OPM was withholding its approval because it favored having the army build the project on a plan which would let the Aluminum Company purchase it at the end of five years.

The witness replied that he thought the OPM was studying the Fontana project as one of many to be considered before it decided where to expand aluminum facilities.

Earlier Wilson, flatly denying charges by Secretary of the Interior Ickes, asserted that his company "has done everything within its power and more" to aid the President's defense program.

Feed But Don't Touch Redondo Beach, Calif.—(AP)—Baby seals, flopping ashore in large numbers because of a fish shortage out at sea, may be fed but not fondled, the Humane Society warns. Contact with a human being makes the pup unacceptable to its mother, officials said, and the young is cast off to starve.

MAY BE MOVE INVADE ISLES

Norway Regarded As Possible Springboard For Invading Scotland; Finland Notes Baltic "Ripe" For New Surprises

(By The Associated Press) Adolf Hitler was reported massing "large numbers" of German troops today on the west coast of Norway—possible springboard for invasion of Scotland—and advices reaching London said a steady stream of troop trains and sea-going transports was moving toward coastal bases.

Only a few days ago Soviet Russia announced officially that German soldiers were moving back into northern and northeastern Germany from the Balkans.

The Soviet said "it must be assumed" that the Nazi troop movements were not directed against Russia and the British declared that talk of friction between Germany and Russia might be a feint to mask preparations for Hitler's long-awaited attempt to invade the British Isles.

Coincidentally a Finnish newspaper declared that the military situation in the Baltic was ripe for surprises likely to affect Finland.

"We have no right to shut our eyes to what is happening around us," the newspaper said, and fell silent with rumors of troop movements on both sides of the Russian frontier with Finland.

War tremors stirred again in the Balkans, too, as all Rumania was ordered blacked out beginning tonight for the first time since a general blackout was lifted a month ago.

Washington, June 17.—(AP)—A complete ban on exports of oil from the east coast of the United States without prior government approval of individual shipments was proposed to the petroleum industry today by Secretary Ickes, defense petroleum coordinator.

The action followed close on the heels of the stoppage yesterday of a 240,000-gallon shipment of oil from Philadelphia to Japan because of the threatened oil famine on the eastern seaboard.

Ickes' assistant petroleum coordinator, R. K. Davies, addressed identical telegrams to 32 east coast oil shippers as follows:

"In view of the pending petroleum shortage of the Atlantic coast area it is imperative that drainage of stocks from this region be avoided. I suggest, therefore, that no further sales of petroleum products for off-shore shipment be made without prior consideration by this office."

NO LET UP IN DEFENSE WORK URGED BY HOEY

Former Tar Heel Governor Condemns Strikes

IS SPEAKER AT KIWANIS SESSION Comments That "Happily" Government Has Started to Crack Down On Elements Hindering Defense Program

Atlanta, Ga., June 17.—(AP)—Commenting that "happily the government has begun to crack down" on elements that hinder the national defense programs, former Governor Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina told delegates to the Kiwanis International convention here today that "there should be no let-up."

In his prepared address, Hoey said: "Since last June—just one year—we have lost over 15,000,000 man-hours in essential defense industries by strikes, most of which have been engineered or incited by subversive groups, Communists, Nazis and aliens who belong to labor unions and have used every pretense to declare strikes and thus hinder and delay our whole defense program in this period of crisis when we are racing with time in an effort to save Britain and protect our own nation."

"Happily the government has begun to crack down on these disloyal elements. There should be no let-up. Every strike affecting defense preparations should be prohibited, at the same time fully preserving the rights of labor to have its demands investigated and passed upon in a fair and impartial way, but in the meantime, guaranteeing the continuance of the work."

DRAFT QUOTAS ARE ASSIGNED

New System Adopted For Method Of Handling Calls

Raleigh, June 17.—(AP)—Selective Service headquarters announced today that North Carolina had been assigned a quota of 34,634 under the Selective Service act.

Major Hugh Upton explained that the method of handling draft calls had been changed from the old system of issuing periodic calls with specific time limits to a system that is similar to a "bank account."

Under the new system, Major Upton continued, the army may draw on local boards for draftees until quotas are exhausted, but may

Official Secures Option On Girl Scout Camp Site

At a meeting of the Camp Committee of the Greenville Girl Scout Council, Monday evening at the Scout office in the Municipal building, Dr. S. M. Crisp, chairman of the Camp Committee, announced that the Girl Scout Council had recently acquired an option on a tract of land on the Pamlico river, eight miles below Washington. This land is to be developed into a Girl Scout camp to serve Greenville girls and those of the near vicinity.

No Changes In Charges Occasioned By Rescue Of Missing Survivors

Undersecretary Welles Asserts That Evidence Already Available And Expected Summary Of Testimony Of Those To Reach Capetown Sufficient To Determine U.S. Action

Washington, June 17.—(AP)—Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, said today the government's basic charges against Germany for the sinking of the American merchant ship Robin Moor was unchanged by the arrival of 35 missing survivors at Capetown yesterday.

Welles said that with the evidence already available from 11 survivors landed last week in Brazil and a cabled summary expected on the testimony of those at Capetown, South Africa, the government view soon would be in a position to reach a final decision on the action to be taken.

Asked if the government's position that the submarine violated international law was unchanged by the safe arrival of the 35 survivors, Welles replied that it was identical.

He said the American consul at Capetown had been instructed to take depositions from the survivors there and cable a summary as soon as possible.

The Under secretary added, however, that the evidence already received from the survivors in Brazil was considered sufficient and was already under consideration.

He did not indicate what direct action would be taken, but it was considered certain that a stern protest at least would be lodged with Germany.

Luther Highsmith Claimed By Death

Luther H. Highsmith, 59, died at his home here on Park drive at 12:10 o'clock this afternoon after several weeks of critical illness.

Funeral services will be conducted from his home Wednesday at 3 o'clock by Rev. L. E. Ballard, Free Will Baptist minister of Greenville, assisted by Rev. D. W. Alexander, Free Will Baptist minister of Bethel. Burial will follow in Greenwood cemetery.

Mr. Highsmith was born and reared in Sampson county, son of the late William R. and Carey Highsmith. He lived there until about 26 years ago and then moved to Bethel. He lived there for about three years and then moved to Norfolk, also staying there for three years. He then moved back to Pitt county and for about 12 years he operated a store at House Station.

On account of ill health he discontinued this about a year and a half ago and moved to Greenville and had lived here since.

In 1907 Mr. Highsmith married Sallie Meeks, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Meeks of Bethel. He was a member of the Sweet Gum Free Will Baptist church and the Withlacoochee Tribe No. 35, Improved Order of Red Men.

Surviving are his wife, one son Wyatt Highsmith of this city, and one brother, John Highsmith of Raleigh. Active pallbearers will be Ray Moore, William O. Moore, Leland Mizell, J. R. Dunn, Charlie G. Little and Bill Pollard.

The members of the Withlacoochee Tribe No. 35 order of Red Men will be honorary pallbearers.

Nazis Plan To Counter U. S. Action

Berlin Reports Necessary Measures To Counter Move Freezing German Funds To Be Ordered In Effect Immediately; Rome Asserts American Economic War May Lead To Actual Conflict

(By The Associated Press) Germany announced officially today that she will take "the necessary measures," effective immediately, to counter United States action in freezing German funds in America.

"The government of the United States of America," the German announcement said, "by executive order of the President dated June 14, blocked assets of German subjects in the United States. Accordingly, by order of the German government, necessary measures, effective immediately, will be carried out with reference to the assets of subjects of the United States within the German Reich."

In an atmosphere distinctly tense, an authorized spokesman in Berlin said that Germany for the moment is saying nothing about the closing of all German consulates in the United States.

Asked whether Germany still takes the attitude that she "will not be provoked by anything America does," the spokesman said "that can not be confirmed today."

At Rome, the Italian government, freezing American credits in Italy, blocked all payments from Italy on private debts to Americans under a decree published in the official gazette in reprisal for the freezing of Italian credits in the United States.

Earlier Virginia Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, declared that the United States economic and financial measures against Italians and Germans constituted "an open declaration of economic war against the Axis powers" which might lead to actual war.

Persons in Italy were forbidden to make debt payments or transfer securities to Americans, but Italians residing in the United States and American residing in Italy were exempted from this provision.

The American measures "define themselves," said Gayda, "as a new and important step in the march of American belligerency along the chosen road to war."

NCEA Plans Conduct Summer Conferences

Raleigh, June 17.—A three-day conference on elementary education, the first of three to be held this summer under the joint auspices of the North Carolina Education Association and the State Department of Public Instruction, is scheduled to open Wednesday night at Woman's College in Greensboro.

The second of these conferences is scheduled to be held June 24-26 at East Carolina Teachers' College, Greenville, and the third and final conference will be held July 9-11 at Appalachian State Teachers' College, Boone.

These conferences are a part of the general summer conference program of the North Carolina Education Association.

SET TO START USO CAMPAIGN

Drive To Be Launched For Raising $1,250 In County

The Pitt county unit of the United Service Organization for Defense, Inc., will inaugurate its campaign tomorrow morning with a goal of $1,250 set up for this county. The national budget for the year is $10,765,000.

The drive will be launched following organization meetings, at which workers were given instructions and presented with supplies, held throughout the county at the call of the respective community chairmen.

Dr. W. I. Wooten is county chairman, J. H. Waldrop, treasurer, and W. T. Kyzer, campaign director.

Dr. R. J. Slay called a meeting of the Greenville committee last night and made final arrangements for inaugurating the campaign. Chairmen of the other areas have held similar meetings or had them scheduled for today or tonight.

Chairmen for the various communities follow: Ayden, A. R. Rowe; Bethel, John Staton; Stokes, W. F. Stokes; Falkland, G. H. Pittman; Chicod, Mrs. W. C. Spencer; Farmville, J. W. Joyner; Fountain, Miss Nellie Owens; Pictolus, Coy Forbes; Grifton, W. I. Bissette; Winterville, Ray Oglesby; Greenville, Dr. Slay.

Campaign Director Kyzer has gathered information disclosing that at present there are 866 Pitt county young men in service. With the county having a quota of $1,250, this would be only about $1.50 per man for the year.

The money will be used to provide recreational and social activities, off the reservations, for soldiers, sailors, marines and defense workers of the nation in communities where local facilities are insufficient.

The program is aimed at strengthening the morale of the service men and provide them with means of spending their time off the reservation. The organized efforts of the cooperating agencies will serve to prevent any duplication and make provisions for all men without such facilities.

The USO is composed of the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Jewish Welfare Board, Salvation Army, National Catholic Community Service and the National Travelers' Aid Association.

Mrs. Cannon Honored.
The children of Mrs. Mary Ann Cannon honored her on her 84th birthday, Wednesday night, June 11, with a surprise birthday party at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Launa Haddock.

The living room was artistically decorated with profusion of summer flowers.
After a delightful social hour, delicious refreshments consisting of birthday cake and block ice cream, were served by Misses Marie Hart and Helen Bullock.

The guests included close friends and children of Mrs. Cannon.
The honoree received many useful and attractive gifts.

Exhibit of Watercolors.
An exhibit of watercolors by artists all over the United States is now being shown at the Greenville WPA Art Gallery. This is one of the most attractive exhibits the gallery has been able to secure. It was not scheduled to come to Greenville, but was brought by special request and the public is urged to see it.

Watercolors have a special appeal to people because of their purity and crispness of color. They offer a wide variety of treatment to the artist and are interesting and fascinating to work with. Each individual artist can work out his own technique. If a person is painstaking and meticulous it is very apt to creep into his work and a carefully detailed style is developed. If a person is inclined to be carefree and easy-going he may develop a splashy style of painting that is merely suggestive of an idea. The experienced spectator can almost analyze the character of a person through his style of painting.

The art gallery is located on the second floor of the Sheppard Memorial Library. It is open each day except Sunday (including Wednesday afternoons) from 2 to 6.

Celebrate Silver Anniversary.
Stokes, June 17.—Mr. and Mrs. James Beverly Congleton, Sr., were at home to a number of their friends at an evening reception on Friday, June 6, on the occasion of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The entire first floor of the home was thrown en suite and was beautifully decorated with wedding bells, summer flowers of pink and white, and other greenery.

Greeting the guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Forbes. The receiving line was presented by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Tyson. In the line were Mr. and Mrs. James Beverly Congleton, Sr., their son, James Beverly, Jr., their daughter, Virginia, and members of their wedding party. These were: Mrs. Congleton's father, Mr. W. G. Stokes, and Mrs. Stokes; her brother, W. F. Stokes; W. B. Con-afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the church, which will appear in our local press next week.

In one of our early reports we gave the names of all the members of the faculty by departments, but in the publication of the list the names of the faculty of the Junior departments were omitted. Therefore we are giving that list today:

Miss Maxie Broadwell, superintendent; Messdames R. E. Moore, Kate Whitchard, Frank Bendall, Nathan Brooks, Miss Betsy Hobgood and Mr. W. Z. Morton, Jr. Miss Broadwell and her departments are doing excellent work.

Today Messdames W. W. Lee, Vance Perkins and David Whitchard, Jr., in behalf of the Woman's Missionary Society, served refreshments to the girls and boys. How they enjoyed the cookies and the lemonade! They had one of those refreshing pauses which have become proverbial in certain types of advertisements.

A meeting of the faculty was held at the close of school, at which a number of matters were taken up and disposed of. It was decided to have another picture of the school made on Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. A picnic at the playground at 4 o'clock, and the commencement exercises on Sunday night at eight o'clock.

Mrs. Vernon Parrish is directing the handwork of the girls of the Intermediate department. They are engaged in making bundles for British, and they are thoroughly enjoying their work.

The Vacation Bible School is both different and delightful. Mrs. Clay Harris and the Junior departments will verify this statement on Friday morning at a reception to the parents of the children of her departments.—Reported.

gton of Rocky Mount, Miss Selma Fleming of Enfield.

At the end of the line stood Mrs. W. F. Stokes, who presided at the guest book, where approximately 110 friends registered.

Miss Mary Lawrence Davenport of Paoctous, and Miss Cordella Perkins received in the east living room where music was furnished by Miss Frances Whitchard during the reception hours. Here, too, punch was served by Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Caldwell of Richmond, Va., and Mrs. W. B. Congleton of Rocky Mount, assisted by William Francis Tyson. On the mantel stood a miniature bride and groom.

The guests were received in the hall and invited to the dining room by Miss Edna Melton of Rocky Mount and D. S. Kelly of Washington.

In the dining room Mrs. Jim Mooring and Miss Dorothy Robertson presided. A beautiful lace cloth covered the table, which was centered with a three-tier wedding cake, and white candles in silver holders. The chandelier above the table was decorated with greenery, and suspended from it were several small wedding bells tied with a bow of pink tulle. Ices, cakes, nuts and mints were served by Misses Carolyn Stokes, Helen Joyce Stokes, Margaret Stokes, Jean Perkins, Loretta Mooring and Frances Page. Each guest received as a favor a tiny wedding bell to which was tied a small bouquet of white flowers.

Goodbyes were said to Miss Antoinette Charles of Ahsokie, and B. A. Peterson of Elm City.

Pitt Youth Enlisted In Army Air Corps

Wilson, June 17.—Joseph John Nobles of Route Five, Greenville, was accepted for enlistment in the United States Army Air Corps at the recruiting station in Wilson yesterday and sent to Fort Bragg for final examination in the regular army air corps for mechanics. He will be sent to Bakersfield, Calif. and will have a chance of becoming a pilot later after attending ground school which all enlisted men in the air corps must take. Young Nobles is the 19-year-old son of William L. Nobles of Route Five, Greenville.

Three Ways To Oomp Without A Sweater

(AP Feature Service)

Sweaters are out. The Hays people said they were just a little too emphatic. Reeling from this blow, Hollywood collected itself, cast about for other ways to promote its star-lets' oomp. Out of the writer, three ideas are emerging: 1.—The direct frontal assault, abandoning sweaters for the low necklines. 2.—The flank attack, emphasizing the long curve from waist to knee. 3.—A frank return to "leg" pictures.

THE SACRED DAGGER

YESTERDAY: Although Blaze Sherwood is in theory working against her father and mother in their quest for Shy-a Nago, the hidden city, Anne Willard cannot down her interest in him—nor her fear that the Nagaras, who guard the mysterious Asiatic city, may murder Sherwood because he has seen the city without authority. Anne has gone to warn Blaze of his danger.

Chapter 26
The Drums
"Anne!" exclaimed Sherwood, his voice unguarded. Mackey reached wildly for his cap and bolted to the door. She barred his way. "It's you I came to see," gripping his coat sleeve, enraged at his obvious conclusions. "Both of you, I suppose."

Sherwood brought her a chair, his face a mask again. "What is it, Anne?" She felt that she liked to speak her name and she knew that she liked to hear him say it. "Doddap says that your life is in danger from the Nagaras." "Haven't I been saying so all along?" Mackey demanded. She went on hastily. "He predicted you'd see the hidden city of Shy-a Nago and then he burst into tears. He always does that. He vows he sees a knife thrown at you. The Nagaras can slip into this camp like shadows. You've got to watch out." She told of her recent adventure with the priestly visitors. Sherwood was intensely interested. "I like those people," he said softly. "They may wish to kill me, but I like the things they stand for. He turned to Anne with a look that in its shyness startled her. "I don't believe they'll try to kill me while I remain in your camp." She remembered what Doddap had said and her eyes dropped. "If I have any influence with the Nagaras," she assured him coldly, "you will have no share in the hidden city."

"He rose abruptly. "Anne, I promise to be patient." "She left her chair and looked at him with an anger rising to meet his anger. Then suddenly she smiled. "—and I shall be," he declared. It left her feeling like a spent balloon. She turned to Mackey for a mooring. "I suggest that you stay with him tonight and place two men on guard." "I'll do it, Miss Anne, even if he screams."

"She gave Blaze a swift glance. "I apologize for being rude," she said and fled back to her own tent. She looked at her cot distastefully. There was no more sleep in her than in a moon flower. It was then she began to hear the drums. Muffled throbbing beats that pounded on her nerves and senses. She went to the tent door and looked out.

"Clouds had obscured the sky with surprising suddenness. The air was still and lifeless as if the night also held its breath listening with her to the drum beats. Yet she could not really tell if she heard the sound or only felt it. Doddap, usually sensitive as an animal to any disturbance, now lay curled in his sleeping position as peacefully as a baby. The lantern that always hung in the center of the court gave off its beam more as a pilot light than as an illumination for the yard. The guard at Sherwood's tent coughed and spat. Making his usual beat the sentry on camp duty for the night swung his tiny lantern as he circled the whole encampment.

Then Anne noticed a light in the mess hut. Perhaps someone there could tell her whether she heard anything or not. She crossed the court swiftly and burst into the room. "Do you hear the drums beating?" "With an effort both listened. "What drums?" Diana demanded. "Just drums," answered Anne distractedly. "They're driving me crazy." The others looked at her strangely and came to the door where she stood and listened with her. She heard the beat faint and far away —In the hills—in the sky—welling up out of the earth beneath them

"I don't hear anything," said Diana. "You must have the jitters."

She gave Oliver an angry look. "Goodnight," she said, and disappeared in the direction of her tent. Oliver drew Anne back into the hut. "That drumbeat must be in your ears, Anne." He was still shaking slightly, his face lined and ravaged with passion. Anne followed him reluctantly.

He took one of Anne's hands and gazed into her eyes. "Little Anne, I've been in such a muddle lately I guess I've hardly been aware that you are here—the girl who came to marry me." He drew her to him and put an arm around her.

"Please, Philip," she said, but he would not release her. She fancied something half insane about his violence and struggled in terror turning and twisting and beating him with her fists.

Suddenly the door opened and Sherwood stepped inside, his face white, his hands clenched as he stood holding himself under control. For Philip had released Anne instantly, a dazed look in his eyes. "What's the matter with me?" he groaned, putting a hand to his head. With a muttered word of apology he started for the door. Sherwood let him pass.

"He was quarreling with Diana," said Anne.

"Then where do you come in?" asked Sherwood in a cold voice. "I just came," she stated simply. "I saw a light and came in."

He gazed at her a moment longer before bringing her a glass of water from the pitcher on the table. "You're looking white, drink this. Or shall I get you something stronger?"

"She took the water. "This will do. You're looking a little pale yourself." He sat down on the wide arm of a wicker chair opposite her, gripping the wood as if to chain himself to the spot.

"The impulse to murder is apt to make a man turn pale," he answered through set teeth. "What's the matter with Oliver? Who does he think he is? Mackey ran across him and Diana in the grove a little while ago and they weren't quarreling. Diana, I suppose, is up to her old tricks."

"You ought to know," retorted Anne. "I hear—I understand—" she stumbled.

That Diana jilted me for Martaine?" he said, color slowly coming back into his face. "Well, I'm afraid it's so."

"That isn't the way I heard it. He gave her a sharp look, his ears reddening. "Now you're condemning me," he said. "Diana happens to be an exhibitionist. She's incapable of anything but self-love. That's all right with Martaine. He has certain ambitions of his own. Mine are different." He rose and turned off the gasoline light. "Come out with me, Anne, and listen to the drums."

"Then there are drums," she cried, springing to her feet. "Philip and Diana couldn't hear them. They thought I was crazy."

"You know my opinion—we're all a little touched," he grinned, opening the door for her. They went to the corner of the porch where they could look up into the hills.

"Nagara Drums

"But this is more than fancy," he assured her. "I never heard such drums and I've heard drums in all parts of the world." His voice lowered almost to inaudibility and she found herself pressing close to hear. "Anne shivered. "I can't bear it." She clasped her hands together distractedly. "Make them stop. Can't you make them stop?"

"Listen to them," he commanded. "Give yourself up to them, then it's all right. Stop fighting."

"Instead she began pacing back and forth across the narrow porch. He cornered her in the bend of the railing. His hands slid around her and drew her against the hard reality of his body, crushing the trembling of her nerves with the strength of his arms. Waiting a moment until she relaxed, he swept her up and struck off across the court, striding swiftly.

"Anne came back to herself with an effort. "Blaze, let me down," she demanded. "Let me go." "Too late," he retorted, and then halted at the entrance to his tent. There were voices inside. "Damn," he said softly, lowering her to her feet. The sentry stared at them in his stolid manner. Anne stepped back. Suddenly her white teeth flashed in silent laughter. She felt inexplicably as if she had won some kind of a victory.

"Good night," she whispered and turned and sped across to her own quarters. The door opened and Beth came out.

"Oh, here you are," she cried, at the same time they heard voices behind them. Larry Huff and Mackey had appeared from Sherwood's tent. Beth waved her flashlight and the three came over.

"Blaze says they're Nagara drums," Larry informed the girls. "Whatever can they mean?" demanded Beth.

"Dirty work at the cross roads," hissed her husband.

"Doddap might know," suggested Anne, looking over at his still form. "I wouldn't disturb him," advised Sherwood. "If he knew and were willing to tell he'd be sitting up now and talking."

"What'll he do if a storm breaks?" asked Beth. "Try to crawl into Anne's tent?"

"No, indeed not. He'll draw his robe around him, crouch down on his knees, back to the storm, cheek on his folded arms and sleep the night out like an ostrich with his head in the sand."

Larry looked at him curiously. "What? Is this fellow an old pal of yours?" Mackey laughed. "Old! Say, they are supposed to be pals from a former incarnation. Besides, Doddap saved Blaze from death about a year ago and so naturally according to local ethics, he's under obligation to look after Blaze the rest of his life."

Man About Manhattan

New York—A slim blonde girl with a French accent that floats like a rose petal in the Seine—that's Yvette, who is neither French nor really named Yvette. She is Elsie Harris, 18, of Birmingham, who lived in New Orleans a while, studied in a convent there, came east, and one day—just like that—became a startling and well-discussed personality.

Yvette's voice will float out of a juke box for you, if you put a nickel in the box. It will float out of a radio for you, in honeyed French accents that are soft and feminine, if you tune her on, or it will fall pleasantly and lightly against your ears, like perfumed shadows, if you sit in Monty Proser's Copacabana and peer through the dusky glow of this nightclub in the late evenings.

For a long time, for months that is, there was local confusion as to Yvette. The general public didn't quite know who she was. This mystery tery did not hurt her. To be wondered about is a boon in this curious town. There were pleasant lies told about her—all justifiable all in good fun and good business acumen. Announcers would introduce her simply as "Yvette."

It is taking nothing away from Yvette to suggest that her singular delivery has had much to do with the exciting success that has been cracking fire-cracker fashion about her blonde head these last eleven months. It's different. In all New York, with its thousands upon thousands of girl vocalists, there is not one with the singular half-shy quality of coquetry, wrapped in an alluring French accent, that has made her distinctive and remembered by all who have heard her.

What do women DESPISE most in a man?

Here's the answer that countless women give: Halitosis (Bad Breath)! Women simply won't tolerate it in a man. So if you want to make a hit with your girl friend, look after your breath before your next date with her. Be sure to rinse your mouth with Listerine Antiseptic. It's wonderful for combating bad breath due to food fermentation in the mouth. That, say some authorities, is the major cause of this condition, although bad breath is sometimes due to systemic disorders. Listerine Antiseptic halts the fermentation and overcomes its odors. The breath quickly becomes sweeter, purer, less likely to offend.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DEMOCRACY AND RELIGION

Democracy is the application in the field of government of principles which have their origin in the field of religion. It was men's belief in the sovereignty of God and the supreme value of the individual which led to the overthrow of absolute monarchy and the establishment of democracy.

Since democracy grew out of religion, it follows that democracy cannot continue to exist without religion. The dictators did not arise and crush religion in their countries. It was the decline of religious faith which made it possible for dictators to come into power and gather into their own hands the prerogatives of free peoples.
Hitler has been able to ride roughshod over nations because they have had no spirit to withstand him.
The men who centuries ago stood before kings and defied them and went to the gallows that they might establish free government everywhere, were men who could endure this persecution because they believed in a sovereign God and in themselves as the children of God.

Regardless of what military victories are won, we shall never have democracy established and secure until the religious faith, out of which democracy originally grew, is revitalized and strengthened.

Democracy is the outgrowth of spiritual principles and must have spiritual support to exist.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington. — When the history of this war is written, there will be a chapter—an important one—on the international traveling men of America.

These men are the eyes and ears of President Roosevelt and the state department and the army, navy and marine corps. They are message bearers to and from the heads of governments on both sides of the eastern hemisphere.

Not since the late Col. E. M.
House made his historic trip for President Wilson have the junkets of "personal representatives" of the president or the government attracted such wide attention.

Certainly the first section of this chapter will have to be devoted to Sumner Welles, under-secretary of state, for it was his great flying trip of Europe in the spring of 1940 on which the world pinned futile hopes of avoiding the catastrophe of this last year. Welles, the United States' No. 1 diplomat, interviewed Chamberlain, Lord Halifax and the King in England; Hitler in Berlin; Daladier and Leloran in Paris; and Mussolini in Italy and came back to give the President and Secretary Hull the most complete picture that could then be assembled by one man of the nations poised for battle.

Willkie Most Unusual
Most unusual of all the "unofficial observers" of the war was Wendell L. Willkie. Mr. Willkie went to bomb-torn England to take a look-see for himself but he went with the President's blessing and his letter of introduction to Winston Churchill. He returned to give this country the unique sight of a defeated candidate of the opposition party reporting, in private, his views and observations to the man who had defeated him.

Then went Harry Hopkins, not only perhaps to see and hear and report but to prepare himself, by intimate knowledge, for the Herculean task of administering the $7,000,- 000,000 lend-lease bill. On that trip too, Hopkins laid the foundation for his conclusion that "Hitler can't win."

Col. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan combed the Mediterranean, the Balkans, the Near East and Africa for Secretary of Navy Frank Knox besides doing eye and ear work for the secretary in England.

Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the United States, went to England to study what war rations and repeated bombings had done to the health of the nation and came back with the amazing story that even the worst of the bomb shelters were not as unsanitary as some of our slums and some of the boom towns that mushroomed out of national defense.

Took Long Way Around
Most prominent of a battalion of observers in the zones of action for the army, navy and marine corps is Capt. James Roosevelt of the marines, who took the long way round to get to Cairo and the battle of the eastern Mediterranean.

W. Averill Harriman, although he has the title of minister, belongs in this category too, for he is President Roosevelt's personal representative in expediting aid to Britain.
Even now, he is on a junket to Egypt which gives him A-1 rating among the President's traveling men. Ambassador John G. Winant's recent "return to report and confer" should put him into the chapter, too.

In the opposite direction went Laughlin Currie to confer, for the president, with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in Chungking and to bring back his on-the-scene report of the war in the Orient. These are only the most outstanding of the eye and ear men. There are scores of lesser ones sent out by the state and other departments.

If the President, the state department and the government don't know what's going on in the world today on at least one side of the war picture, it isn't because they haven't sent enough traveling men

General idea is that the prerogative of handing out jobs is something to be sought after, but state department heads who have patronage at their disposal often find its distribution very difficult.

For instance, Commissioner Shuford was flooded with applications and in weeding out he had to consider (1) capacity of the applicant to do the job, (2) geography, (3) local and state politics and (4) Washington. He is one of the very few state department heads who doesn't kowtow completely to the governor's office in the matter of firing and firing in his sphere. Neither Oscar nor Will, not yet A. J. (last names well known to all acquainted with politics, but will be furnished on request if not) dictates to him.

But he did have to find capable workers, he had to give all sections of the state a reasonably fair proportion of the employees, he was not immune to political influences and last, but not least, he was likely to find all his work for nothing because the federal folks didn't like the applicant's hair or something.

It was somewhat surprising, after having heard for so long and from so many sides that Raleigh is the "worst-governed" city in North Carolina to read figures of the American Municipal League showing that the capital city's per capita public debt is far, far below that in many of the cities whose press delights to take pot shots at politics here.

Here are the figures, as shown in the A.M.L. release: Raleigh $76.05, Durham $82.05, Winston-Salem $146,
Greensboro $154.41 and High Point $159.78.

CYPRUS: Stepping Stone In A Stormy Sea

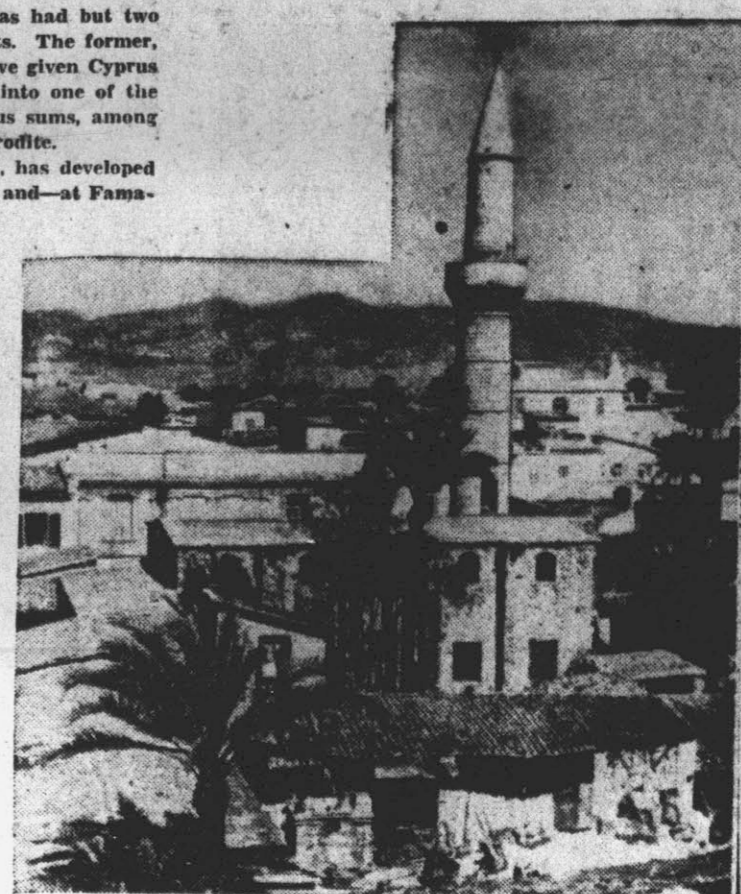

The fabled island of Cyprus, third largest in the Mediterranean, has had but two great waves of visitors in its entire history—soldiers and archeologists. The former, fighting to take and hold it for both ancient and modern empires, have given Cyprus a heritage rich in strife and bloodshed. The archeologists, delving into one of the earth's earliest cultures, have uncovered art treasures worth fabulous sums, among them the famed armless Venus de Milo, Roman counterpart of Aphrodite. Britain annexed the island's 3,500 square miles from Turkey in 1914, has developed an excellent road system, coast-to-coast railroad, at least six airports, and—at Famagusta—a naval base. Syria is 60 miles away.

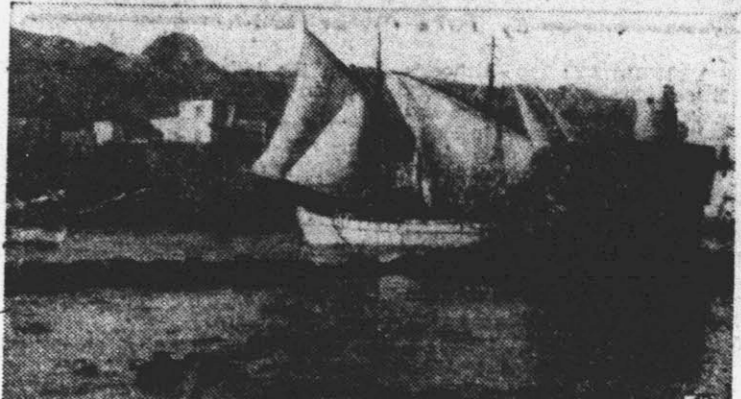

Most of the island's 350,000 population raise livestock or till the soil, although much of the land must be irrigated. Principal products are cereals, cotton, linseed and fruit. (Thos. Cook & Son photo)

Rising above the seaport, Famagusta, is St. Nicholas Cathedral, symbolizing the island's culture of 600 years ago. Richard The Lionhearted was wed in a similar church at Nicosia.

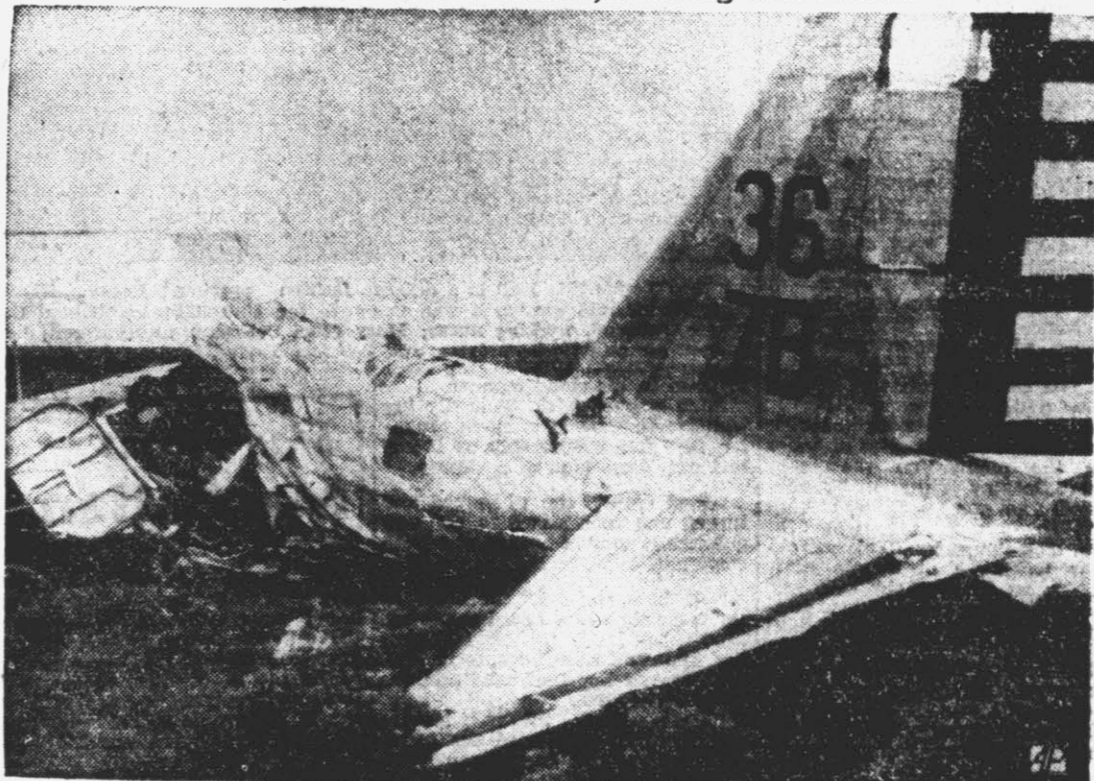

Cyprus' capital and largest city is Nicosia, right in the center of the island and hub of its life and industry since Biblical days. Good roads link it to other important cities.

In the city of Kyrenia, say the old Greek and Roman fables, dwelt the beautiful goddess of love, Aphrodite, who bathed in the sea each morning. The city is an important seaport.

America's Oldest Grapevine at Manteo

One of the most outstanding historic sites in connection with the anniversary celebrations on Roanoke Island and the fifth season of "The Lost Colony," opening at Manteo, N. C., July 3, is Mother Vineyard—the nation's oldest grapevine which was planted by Sir Walter Raleigh's pioneers more than 350 years ago. The celebration will run through Labor Day, Sept. 1.

The question has been answered in the affirmative on the sound theory that the law specifically classed a bicycle with other vehicles for the purpose of rules and regulations governing its operation on the highways.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds
By Robbin Coons

Hollywood.—Dave Forrest, a good mixer, looks down on Hollywood. It's his part of his business.

He does his looking down from a high platform near the top of the recording stage. He sits at a console, listening, and looking down through a glass-paned window on Hollywood at work. The music, or anything else, that goes round and around down there on the stage comes out here—through the loud-speaker. When they're recording anything for a picture, Dave toys expertly with the dials on his console and "mixes" the sound so that it comes out just right, or even a little better than it went in.

The Hollywood that Dave looks down on is a Hollywood at ease—more or less. A Hollywood in its shirt sleeves, minus greasepaint and false eyelashes and fuss. Like the other day when Ann Sheridan recorded a number for "Navy Blues." The song, "In Waikiki," is spotted at a native Hawaiian feast or luau. It's a catchy tune by Arthur Schwartz, with lyrics by Johnny Mercer. (Sample: "You can sit around and just stagnate, and collect a lot of debris, or an old utilities magnate—in Waikiki.") In the picture there'll be grass skirts and leis, hula stuff. Annie will be done up fancy. This afternoon, with no cameras around, she wore blue jeans, a white blouse with big polka dots, and sandals.

There were "mikes" all over the place. There were musicians all over too, 15 deep in a semi-circle about the conductor's platform. In the picture you'll see 40 Hawaiian musicians. Now there were Hawaiians (Sol Hoopi's) plus regular studio orchestras men. There were also six Hits and a Miss, and the Melody Maids, and sound fishermen, swinging their mikes overhead, and conversation, all of which droned lazily through the loud-speaker. (What a spot. Dave's, for eavesdropping!) Annie sat straddling a chair, cigarette in hand, for the first rehearsal. Annie, as you know, is a hearty, informal sort of gal. No glamour cat. She sang lustily, doing a job. It sounded fine to me, via the loud-speaker. "Annie," said Dave, talking back to Hollywood at work, "that note in the second line sounded a little flat." "Honey," said Ann, "that note was flat."

Felix had Mina Farragut, a pretty chorine who is Annie's dancing stand-in, go through Annie's dance for music-timing purposes. Annie sang, straddling a stool. Lyricist Mercer, up with us, went into a huddle with himself on changing an innocent word that didn't sound innocent over the loudspeaker.

Over the loud-speaker came a faintly audible burp. Annie groaned in exaggerated despair, and laughed. "I should never-of-et all that lurch," she cried. Dave Forrest, looking down on Hollywood, must have a lot of fun

Kee Scored On, But Gets 11-6 Win Over Williamston

LOCAL HURLER GETS 7TH WIN

Kracke Used as Backstop and Gets Two Safeties

Kelly Kee's string of scoreless pitching was broken by the Williamston Martins in the first frame of last night's game, but the local hurler got credit for his seventh straight victory as the Greenies scored a 11-6 win.

The Greenies did a little bit of heavy hitting to back up their tosser and Kee himself turned in a home run. Greenville got only 8 hits in scoring their 11 runs—Williamston made five errors—but the eight included homers by Kee and Crowe, a three-bagger by Finckroek and a double by Caraway. Crowe's homer was good for three runs.

Sonny Kracke, regular second baseman last year who is being held as utility man this year since Manager Rube Wilson built up a formidable infield which Kracke was confined to his home with sickness, took a turn behind the plate last night and made a good showing both on the offensive and defensive. He got two hits, the only local man getting more than one safely.

After Williamston had checked Kee's string of scoreless innings in the first, the Greenies went ahead with two in the second, adding one more in the fifth and going on a spree in the sixth to make an even half dozen. The Martins threatened in their half of the sixth, but were able to get only three and Greenville came back with two more in the seventh to end the locals' scoring for the night. Williamston was able to push one across in each of the seventh and eighth, but were never able to overcome the wide margin the Greenies had piled up.

The Greenies will entertain the Martins here tonight with Colored Night being scheduled and all colored fans admitted for 10 cents.

THIRD STREET IS VICTORIOUS

Gains Game On Loop-Leading Training School Team

The High School kept its losing streak going by bowing to the "A" team of Third Street. The win enabled Third Street to gain a game on the league leading Training School outfit. Larry Brown, Dunn and George Garrett led Third Street in hitting. Snag Clark led High School, getting three for four, including a homer.

Score: R H E
 Third Street .. 300 223 0-10 10 1
 High School .. 200 300 0-4 11 6

Batteries: Garrett and Sugg; Andrews, Clark and Saieed.

West Greenville did something this morning that no other team in the boys "A" league have been able to do, that is whip the league leading team from Training School. To do this they had to come from way back to catch the league leaders who at one stage of the game were leading by the score of 8-0. West Greenville started hitting the ball in the fourth and from then until the end of the game they bombed Training School unmercifully. The Training School team did some slugging too but could not keep pace with the winners.

Dunn, Carawan and Hardy led the hitting parade for West Greenville. Among the winners assortment of blows were home runs by Carawan, Bo Wright and Hardy, Ben Harrison and Lupton led for the East Side boys.

Score: R H E
 Training School 116 020 2-12 9 0
 W. Greenville .. 001 626 x-15 15 3

Training School "B" team went down before the W. Greenville team this morning at W. Greenville by the score of 12-6. Besides pitching five hit ball, Morris of W. Greenville also led his team at the plate getting three hits out of four tries. He was followed by Ward who hit two for four and Williams who homered. Billy Mac Batchelor led his team at at bwith two for four.

 Score: R H E
 Training School 200 000 4-6 5 0

Third Street "C" team defeated the Training School team this morning at Third Street diamond by the close score of 12-11. Bubber Clayton, T. Lupton, Alligood and Howard Proctor led the hitting of the losers, each getting three for four. R. Forrest led the winners with two for four.

Batteries: Watson and Clayton; Jones and Jordan.

It's Odd But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
 AP Science Editor

Schenectady, N. Y.—After spending years learning what colors of light will attract bugs into death traps, scientists have begun to meet success.

The idea is to find the best light for human out-of-doors comfort at night. Lawrence C. Porter of the General Electric Company at Cleveland and the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station have made a report.

They say the don't know all the answers, but that red attracts fewer insects than any other color. But because red is not altogether satisfactory to live under, or to use for a porch game of cards, yellow light tentatively is selected as the most satisfactory.

A flame-colored lamp is very satisfactory, so far as bugs are concerned, when some fair seeing is also wanted.

What the scientists now wish to find out is whether there is a difference between insect preferences for colors. They point out that gnats are more troublesome than June bugs, since the gnats bite. Aside from the color differences the most effective way to reduce the number of insects is to lower the wattage of the light. There is no such thing as a lamp that does not attract insects.

CITY PLUMBING CO.

GIVES DATA ON LEAF INSECTS

Statement Issued By County Agent's Office

The office of County Agent R. R. Bennett today released the following statement on the control of tobacco insects:

Bad Worm
Bad worms are doing considerable damage to tobacco in the fields at the present time.

They may be controlled by the use of the corn meal poison bait made up according to the following formula: 1 pound of arsenate of lead mixed with 50 pounds of corn meal.

Applications, which should be made only in the morning when the tobacco buds are open, are made every week until the tobacco is topped. One peck or 12 pounds of the poison bait is sufficient for one application per acre. A small pinch of the bait is dropped in the bud of each plant.

For more detailed information or a copy of the bulletin giving control for the more important tobacco insects, see your county agent.

Horn Worms
The tobacco horn worm may be controlled by dusting with four to five pounds of arsenate of lead per acre.

If fly beetles are present, the horn worms and fly beetles may be killed at the same time by dusting with a mixture of 1 pound of Paris Green to 5 pounds of arsenate of lead, using 3 pounds of the dust per acre on small tobacco and 4 to 6 pounds of the dust per acre on tobacco that is half grown or larger.

The dust should be applied when the plants are dry and such way to get a maximum amount of dust on the bottom side of the tobacco leaf.

The dust has shown to be more effective than the spray.

However, if a farmer prefers the spray and has spray equipment rather than a dust machine, he may use 2 pounds of arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water for worms or for horn worms and fly beetles, 1 1/2 to 2 pounds of the 1 in 6 Paris Green and arsenate of lead mixture to each 50 gallons of water.

Flia Beetle
The tobacco flia beetle may be controlled with a mixture of 1 pound of Paris Green to 5 pounds of arsenate of lead.

For small tobacco use 3 pounds of the above poison dust per acre. For half grown or larger tobacco, use 4 to 6 pounds per acre of the poison dust.

The mixture is most effective when applied as a dust when the tobacco is dry. It is desirable to get as much of the dust on the underside of the tobacco leaves as possible.

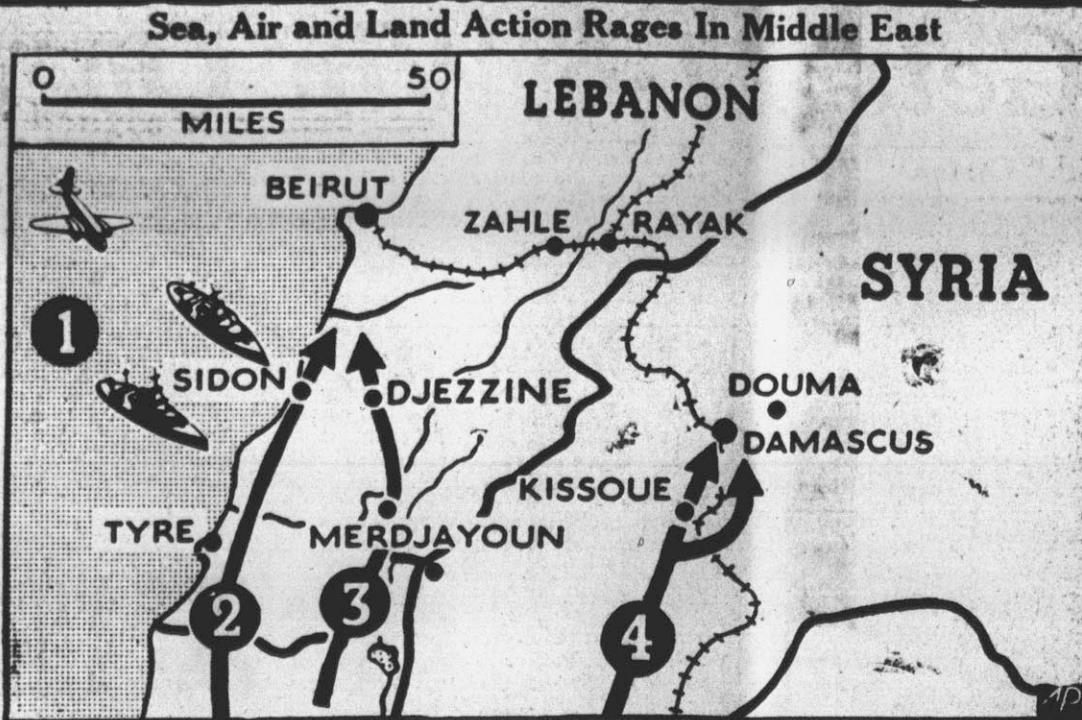

If a spray is preferred use 1 1/2 to 2 pounds of the above mixture of poison to 50 gallons of water.

This mixture will also control horn worms.

Grasshoppers
The grass hopper may be controlled with a mixture of 50 pounds of wheat bran, 2 pounds Paris Green to 6 to 8 finely chopped oranges or lemons, 1 gallon molasses (black strap), enough water to moisten thoroughly. Thoroughly mix the bran and Paris Green while dry. Add sufficient water to the molasses so that the molasses can be easily poured. Add the lemon and juice to the water and molasses. Then pour the molasses-water-lemon mixture on the bran-Paris Green mixture. Mix well and add enough water to thoroughly moisten. Do not make a sloppy mixture.

Broadcast the poison bait early in the morning at the rate of 10 to 15 pounds per acre.

Apply bait in furrow. Do not throw it on the plant. Do not distribute bait close to fruit trees. Keep poultry out of poisoned fields. The bait will be effective for several days but should be repeated at once after a heavy rain.

Geagan sources report that their air bombers have destroyed a light British cruiser and damaged a heavy cruiser off the Lebanese coast (1) in action June 15. The British fleet has been bombarding the coast, aiding the Free French-British land advance which has thrust through Sidon (2) to within 12 miles of Beirut. Another column thrust around to occupy Djezzine (3). A two-pronged attack developed on Damascus (4). Meanwhile the British general headquarters in Cairo raid heavy fighting has developed in the central sector of the British advance into Syria and Lebanon despite British efforts "to avoid unnecessary bloodshed" in the conflict with the Vichy French.

Seven Defendants Tried During A. M.

Four of the seven cases tried at the morning session of County court involved charges of driving drunk. Defendants and disposition follow: Namon Champion, colored, $50 and costs, license revoked 12 months; Ralph Irving Beik, $50 and costs, license revoked 12 months; John Durward Barnhill, six months to be paroled after 60 days if defendant pays R. A. Christian $91.60 and costs, appeal noted and bond set at $200, recommended license be suspended pending appeal; Hamner Hannah, also charged with disorderly conduct, 90 days, suspended upon payment of $50 fine, costs and remain of good behavior for two years.

A nol proes with leave was taken in the case charging Ardell Reeves, colored, with assault with a deadly weapon.

Paul Mills entered a plea of guilty to transporting and possession of illegal liquor and was given an eight months sentence, suspended upon payment of $120, costs to be deducted and the balance to go as a fine. The judgment also provided that the car be confiscated and sold.

Jack Johnson, colored, paid the costs on a charge of driving without a license.

Bill Evans paid the costs in a case charging him with appearing on the highway while being drunk.

Changes Revealed In Principalships

Changes in the principalships of Pitt county schools were announced today at the office of the Pitt County Board of Education.

J. T. Lewis will go from Falkland to Belvoir and E. Faust Johnson will be elevated from the position of teacher and coach at Bethel to principal at Fountain.

Russell Jefferson has been named principal at Arthur, succeeding J. W. Webster, who has accepted the principalship at the Walstonburg school in Greene county.

Mr. Johnson will succeed R. H. Forest at Fountain. Mr. Forrest has accepted a position with the county agent's office. The principalship at Falkland, which post Mr. Lewis is leaving for Belvoir, has not been filled.

Miss Margaret Williams, of Zebulon, has been elected president of the Woman's Student Government Association East Carolina Teachers College for both terms of the summer Student Council.

Zebulon Girl Named ECTC Student Head

These, with the assistance of the house presidents and proctors in the two women's dormitories open during the summer, make up the summer Student Council.

House presidents in Jarvis Hall are Misses Azeline Southerland, of Wilmington, and Mattie May Lyon of Oxford; Proctors are Misses Nellie Tarlington, of Mackeys, and Mary Whitehurst, of Gloucester.

In Wilson, the house presidents are Misses Pearl Edwards, of Chocowinity, and Virginia Spencer, of Swan Quarter. The proctors are Misses Minnie Quinn, of Beulaville and Hilda Lee, of Dunn.

There is no men's student government organization for the summer.

Draft Quotas Are Assigned

not exceed these quotas until new ones are set. When draftees are needed, Selective Service headquarters will notify local boards to have so many men ready on certain dates.

The new 34,643 state quota includes approximately 12,000 men already inducted into the army for a year of military training, making the net state quota about 22,000.

Quotas for local boards under the new system—including men the boards have already drafted and have been inducted into the army—include: Beaufort No. One, 162; Beaufort No. Two, 140; Edgecombe No. One, 238; Edgecombe No. Two, 258; Pitt No. One, 278; Pitt No. Two, 314; Robeson No. One, 363; Robeson No. Two, 253; Robeson No. Three, 116; Vance, 282; Wayne No. One,

OUSTER LINKED PRIMARY TALK

Slot Machine And Griffin Cases Are Discussed

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, June 17.—By a strange coincidence, the clemency plea of Joe Calcutt, convicted of violating the state's slot machine laws, was almost contemporaneous with reports that ouster of Lloyd Griffin as executive secretary of the State School Commission was due to the anonymous attack on Governor (then candidate) J. Melville Broughton as a slot machine lobbyist.

The reports must be labeled very frankly as being none too well documented, but their currency is a probable fact even if their veracity isn't.

The way it is being told, Governor Broughton might not have been so determined to replace Griffin but for the fact that circulation of the slot lobby rumors last year is laid in the gubernatorial mind, to the School Commission head, who is universally known to have been a supporter of Wilkins P. Horton for the governorship.

Those who recall details of the primary will remember that there was circulated all over the state a charge that Broughton had lobbied for the records of such things provided nothing whatsoever to support any such charge; the closest the governor ever having got to such a thing being to appear as attorney for certain merchant vending machines about which there never has been the slightest question of legality.

Explanation of the Broughton fear in connection with the vending machines quickly cleared him of any imputation of being a "slot" lobbyist and the anonymous charge certainly did not hurt him materially in any section of the state.

Which is more than can be said for the prospective results of the Calcutt clemency plea.

In the very nature of things and through absolutely no fault of his own, Governor Broughton seems to be in a very delicate and a highly unenviable position as the result of any decision enabling Calcutt to escape service of any of the 12 months sentence imposed on him by Judge R. Hunt Parker will be severely attacked in the press and by a large part of the public.

There is a very strong inclination to doubt the cleverness of the Calcutt lawyers in attacking the fairness of Judge Parker during the trial. What they have done, in effect, is to force the governor to make a deliberate reflection on Judge Parker if he is to grant the mercy requests; because any such decision would be taken as an endorsement of the position taken by the attorneys that the judge's sentence was vindictive.

There isn't any agency here which quotes officials' odds on miscellaneous question of interest; but it seems to be the consensus in

PLAN SCHOOLS TRAIN DRIVERS

School Bus Operators To Undergo Study Period

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, June 17.—North Carolina school bus drivers are going to get extensive and intensive training in all angles of their duties.

Special schools for training the drivers are to be held in many sections—the first in the near future date to be held in Robeson county Thursday of this week.

Highway safety division officials are busy writing a regular course of lessons to be used in these schools in connection with all angles over which the safety division has jurisdiction.

General plan for the schools calls for instruction in at least seven different subjects:

1. Laws and regulations governing school transportation in North Carolina.
2. Motor vehicle laws and regulations of the state pertaining to the operation of all motor vehicles.
3. Bus operation and control.
4. Personal factors, such as personal appearance, etc.
5. School bus driver's responsibilities, including studies of bus management, discipline, etc.
6. Maintenance of buses, to be taught by the mechanical forces in
