AXIS CLAIMS VICTORY ON EGYPTIAN-LIBYAN FRONT

DEVELOPMENTS CONCEALED BY BALTIMORE CENSOR

Russian Exodus From Base Of Hanko Indicated

ARMED MEN IN FINNISH CAPITAL

Telephone Conversations Telling Of Latest Developments Are Interrupted By Censorship

Bern, Switzerland, June 18.—(AP)—The second interrupted telephone conversation within 24 hours prevented more than a hint of developments including apparent Russian exodus from the Soviet's leased base at Hanko—from being communicated outside Finland today.

The streets of Helsinki are crowded with men and women in uniforms—soldiers fully armed as well as lotas—a dispatch began this evening.

It was broken off there. The remainder of the story will have to await the Finnish censor's approval before it can be telephoned.

(Lottas are members of the Finnish women's military auxiliary which runs kitchens and provides nursing services for the Finnish army.)

A broken telephone connection with Helsinki also left obscure details of a reported exodus of Russian troops from the Hanko military base on which the Soviet union has a 30-year lease.

An incomplete dispatch received last night from the Finnish capital said:

Evidence of what apparently is a large-scale evacuation of the Soviet military base at Hanko being observed lately, both along the railway transit route across Finnish territory and over sea lanes off the Finnish coast in the direction of Leningrad.

"Eyewitnesses reported seeing long Soviet trains."

At this point the telephone connection was severed.

Greenville YDC members will play an important part on the program. Miss Davenport will respond to the address of welcome by Sheriff Victor Meekins of Manteo and Hoover Taft will introduce the principal speaker, State President Ralph Gardner.

Paul Liverman of Columbia will serve as toastmaster.

Candidates for Congress will be allotted time to make brief talks to the convention.

Tickets for the banquet may be secured from Miss Davenport or Mr. Underwood at $1.50 per plate.

The First Colony Inn is granting special rates to YDC members who wish to spend the night after attending the banquet convention.

Pitt Draft Quota Fixed At 619 Men

Under the new system adopted by the Selective Service headquarters assigning North Carolina a quota of 36,634, which changes from the old policy of issuing periodic calls, Pitt county has a total quota of 619.

Of the local quota, however, 157 men have been sent to service.

Under the new system the army may call on local boards until their quotas are exhausted. When a local board has exhausted its quota, it will not be called on to provide more men until a new general call is issued.

Protest Made On Expulsion Order

Strong German Note Regarding Order Affecting Nazi Consuls Expected To Draw Flat Denial From U.S., However

Washington, June 18.—(AP)—A strong German protest on the expulsion of Nazi consuls from the United States was delivered to the State Department today and Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, indicated it would be flatly rejected.

The note was taken to Welles by Hans Thomsen, German charge d'affaires.

In announcing its receipt, Welles declined to disclose the contents of the note, except to say that it was a protest against the State Department's order Monday that all German consular officials leave the country by July 10, on the grounds that they had engaged in activities inimical to the welfare of the United States.

Welles added, however, that arrangements were being made for the departure of the consuls.

This was considered tantamount to an announcement that the German note would be rejected outright.

Welles explained that under the usual procedure the United States would ask other belligerents for the safe conduct of the consular officials on their return to Germany.

This indicated the arrangements made by the United States would assure that the consular officials return directly to Germany, rather than go to Latin-American countries, where they might continue the activities which prompted the order that they leave here.

Endorse Bridgers For District Post

S. L. Bridgers, a past commander of the local post of the American Legion, was unanimously endorsed for commander of the Fifth District at the regular meeting last night of Post No. 39.

The local Legionnaires went on record as endorsing the United Service Organization campaign and commended it to Pitt county as a worthy project to keep morale of men in service at a high pitch.

Although the post seldom makes contributions to any cause out of its treasury, the members voted to make a donation of $10 to "start the ball rolling."

He was a member of Sigma Pi Epsilon fraternity at Wake Forest, and at Jefferson he was a member of Phi Chi Fraternity.

Committee Is Named For Chicod Township

Mrs. Curtis Spencer, chairman of the Chicod USO, has announced her co-workers as follows:

Campaign Off

The USO campaign to raise $1,250 in Pitt county got under way at the various communities in the county this morning as various committee chairmen and their co-workers took to the field.

The campaign was given a boost last night when the Pitt County Post No. 39, American Legion endorsed the movement, urged its members and the public in general to support the drive and made a $10 contribution from its treasury.

The attention of Pitt county citizens is called to the fact that already there are 866 young men from this county in military service and that the $1,250 goal for this year would provide only about $1.50 per man. The money will be used to provide social and recreational facilities for men in all branches of the service.

Spokesman Says Americans In Italy To Be Treated Same As Italians In U.S.; Berlin Awaiting Reaction To Protest Over Closing Consulates; U.S. Tightens Control Over Immigration

Rome, June 18.—(AP)—A spokesman said today that Americans in Italy would be treated exactly the same as the United States treats Italians living in America in the matter of credit and property freezing.

The definition of American residents in Italy and the interpretation of the Italian decree yesterday which exempted such residents from certain provisions such as the blocking of bank accounts depends on Washington, the spokesman said.

The Italians thus presumably would require the same length of residence as that required by the United States to establish an alien as a resident.

Berlin, June 18.—(AP)—The dispatch of Germany's protest against President Roosevelt's order closing all German consulates in the United States brought a momentary hush today in discussion of the tense German-American relations.

The Germans are saying nothing further, but apparently are taking the attitude that the next step is up to the United States. American reaction to the German protest is awaited.

Asked whether the episode might be considered closed with Germany's formal presentation of a protest, an authorized spokesman said: "No. The reaction to our note is awaited."

The text of the protest was not disclosed, the only indication of its nature being a general statement vigorously denying that German consulates in the United States had been guilty of any conduct injurious to America.

Washington, June 18.—(AP)—Sharper control over immigration into the United States is to be instituted before July 1, authorized sources declared today, a few hours after the government had barred the departure, "pending further instructions," of any of the 330,000 German nationals now living in this country. Oil Cargo Denied Japanese Ship In Philadelphia

Government action to stop a shipment of 252,000 gallons of oil to Japan left in doubt the next move of the Japanese ship Azuma Maru, docked in Philadelphia. When the vessel arrived June 15, maritime circles reported she would load with oil as on a previous visit this year.

SEEKS TO GET OIL INTO EAST

Ship Tanker Service Rearranged As Initial Step

Washington, June 18 (AP)—In his first positive action to put more oil into the East, threatened by a petroleum famine, Secretary Ickes announced today a rearrangement of ship tanker service to increase the Atlantic coast supply by 210,000,000 gallons annually.

After conferences with officials of the Sun Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company of California, Ickes, who is defense petroleum coordinator, announced he had made recommendations whereby three huge tankers now engaged on routes between California and east coast ports would be switched to runs from gulf ports to the east coast.

The coordinator emphasized, however, that his increase in the east coast supply did not greatly lessen the dangers of a prospective shortage in that populous area, where he has said restrictions of civilian use of automobiles appeared "inevitable."

"Many additional steps must be taken," Ickes said, "if a serious east coast shortage is to be averted."

Time, Nor Tide, Nor A Ticket New York.—(AP)—Motor Patrolman Alfred Nungarano gave a driver a ticket for doing 8 miles an hour. The man sped off, and Nungarano caught him doing 62.

Johnson Says Conditions On Rescue Ship Were 'Hell'

Wilson, June 18.—(AP)—A Wilson survivor of the Egyptian steamer Zamzam, sunk by a German raider in April, said in a letter received here today that life for the 34 days aboard Nazi prison ships was "hell and almost undecipherable."

The letter, delayed by censor, was sent to Ed W. Davis, local newspaperman, by W. A. Johnson, one of the six Wilson men who were aboard the Zamzam.

In his letter Johnson related: The Zamzam veered from its course on learning of the raider's nearness, but on the morning of April 17 it was shelled without warning. The Egyptian crewmen lost their heads and took to the boats ahead of the passengers.

A shell from the raider Tamesis destroyed Johnson's lifeboat. Those aboard were picked up by motor launches from the German ship. They were taken aboard the German ship and herded down in the hold, below the waterline.

That night contact was made with the prison ship Dresden. The next day the Zamzam prisoners were put aboard. Later they were transferred to another ship, the Ogn, upon which they spent 34 days before being landed at St. Zean de Luz, France.

They were given only a quart of water a day for bathing.

The food was "awful, monotonous and unvaried," but the Germans ate like kings.

The sanitation arrangements were "awful." There were none until the captives built them.

Johnson wrote that Ned Laughinghouse, one of the six Wilson men, was injured, but did not reveal where his fellow passenger was being held.

This large play area is expected to be visited by hundreds of children and many adults on opening day. A picnic chimney and many other added attractions will be in readiness by the opening date.

The Parent-Teacher association of the Third Street school will be hostess at the opening.

A recreational committee from Rocky Mount has been invited to be present.

PROPOSE PLAN GET ALUMINUM

Sen. Connally Advocates Govt. Operation of Plants

Washington, June 18.—(AP)—Government construction and operation of aluminum plants was advocated today by Sen. Connally (D-Tex.) as the Senate Defense Investigating Committee attempted to force immediate action to increase facilities for production of the vital aircraft metal.

Connally told reporter he was convinced that the quickest way to obtain a substantial boost in the present inadequate output was for the government to build a plant at some such site as they owned by the Aluminum Company of America at Fontana, on the Little Tennessee river in North Carolina.

The government could operate the plant in cooperation with Alcoa, he said, and have it as a standby facility after the present need passes.

In the meantime, he added, a direct government connection with the production of aluminum might be invaluable in maintaining price control over aluminum now used extensively in the manufacture of airplanes.

Attack Foe In African Salum Area

British Acknowledge Reverses, But Claim Object Of Learning Axis Strength Obtained; Allies Report Town Three Miles From Damascus Attacked, With Beirut Drive Being Pushed

By The Associated Press

Germany and Italy reported "complete and overwhelming victory" today in smashing a British counter offensive after a violent three-day battle in the desert around Salum, Egypt.

"The enemy, overwhelmed, is retreating," the German high command said.

An Italian war bulletin declared the British had thrown "ponderous masses of tanks, supported by the best part of the Middle Eastern air force," into the conflict—only to be crushed by the "overpowering impetus" of Axis counter attacks.

British Middle East headquarters acknowledged that British advance forces—which had knifed as deep as 40 miles into Libya—had withdrawn to forward positions "on the Libyan front."

The withdrawal was executed, the British said, to avoid an encircling movement by German reinforcements rushed from the Tobruk area and because "we had accomplished our object" of making the Germans disclose their strength.

Stefani, the official Italian news agency, said the British used "hundreds of American tanks," mostly of the newest type.

Capture of "several hundred German prisoners," and the destruction of large numbers of Axis tanks and guns was officially reported by the British.

On the Middle East war front, the British reported that allied columns were attacking the town of Meeze three miles west of Damascus, the capital of Syria, and that allied patrols had reached a point only 12 miles from Beirut, the Lebanese capital. Damascus dispatches said artillery fire could be heard in the city.

Elsewhere, the British acknowledged that counter-attacking Vichy French troops had recaptured the Syrian towns of Merdjayoun, six miles from the Palestine frontier and Kuneitra, south of Damascus.

The British declared that the French counter attack had been halted and that the situation was "well in hand."

In the war in the air, the London Air Ministry reported that big squadrons of Royal Air Force bombers, smashing at Western Germany for the seventh night in a row, set many fires and inflicted widespread destruction in the industrial cities of Cologne and Duesseldorf.

Vichy, Unoccupied France, June 18.—(AP)—The French declared tonight that their counter offensive in Syria had driven through the British lines so far they had reached the Palestine frontier.

They said their forces slashing in behind the British in southern Syria had reached the Palestine border south of the Syrian town of Merdjayoun and were threatening the entire British communication system on the central front.

All along the southern Syrian front, said military dispatches, assault by French infantry, supported by aircraft, were making hazardous the rearward lines of the British columns which had been driving for Damascus and Beirut.

North Carolina Crops
The crop bulletin for the week ending Monday, issued by the weather bureau is as follows:

"Farmers received some encouragement by the continuance of warm, dry sunny weather during the early part of the week just passed, during which the cultivation of crops proceeded rapidly, and some evidences of more rapid growth were visible. Rains began on the 13th which were quite beneficial at first, especially on uplands, but the large amounts on the 14th and the generally cloudy, damp weather during the last portion of the week were very unfavorable. Farm work was completely interrupted and cannot be resumed for some time, as the ground has become very wet.

Much wheat is ready to cut; some has been beaten down by rain, and the prospect seems hardly as good as was previously expected. Cotton has not all been chopped, and many fields are being abandoned or plowed up for corn or field peas.

Hollywood

Sights and Sounds

By Robbie Coan

Hollywood.—With some trepidation I've been inquiring as to the nature of Shirley Temple's comeback role—stealing myself for a casual, "Shirley? Oh, she's playing Mickey Rooney's murderous great-aunt—sort of a change of type."

As the picture is "Babes on Broadway," we're probably safe from any change so startling, but things have been going on out here which leave room for doubt about anybody's casting, even Shirley's.

Already pointed out are the Turner-Bergman transitions for "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"; Lana, screen personification of the night club-blooming rose, playing the Great Lady; Ingrid, the outdoor gentleman type, playing the roisterous affectionately generous barmaid.

We've sort of given up our Anna Neagle of the Victoria epics and become resigned to Anna of the nostalgic musicals, but losing that nice gentle Rita Hayworth—as decorous a miss as ever wept for a stalwart hero—is harder to take, or is it?

The coy siren of "Strawberry Blonde" is now the sizzler of "Blood and Sand." Just to confuse us, probably, she'll be dancing ingeniously with Astaire in "You'll Never Get Rich" while her Dona Sol fires up the screen and sets up a demand for more sizzling.

There's no basis for expecting Marlene Dietrich ever to play a nun out to find good, dependable Ian Hunter playing stage-door wolf in "Ziegfeld Girl" is a preparation for anything. George Sanders, long committed to wolfishness in and out of Gestapo guise, doesn't play exactly fair. He's been a decent guy in "Rage in Heaven" and "Foreign Correspondent" but he never stays that way long enough to be predictable. Right now in "Man Hunt" he's up to his old Gestapo tricks.

Even a society girl doesn't know what circles she'll move in once Hollywood picks on her. Gene Tierney started out innocently in "Frank James" as the sheltered daughter of the publisher, but what happens

Mrs. A. R. Norville gave a report from the garden committee. Mrs. G. H. Pittman reported on the market committee.

We were reminded of the county council meeting which will be held on Wednesday, June 18, at the Agricultural building.

The Short Course, which will be held at State College in Raleigh, was also brought up. Any member that feels that she will be able to attend is urged to make reservations as early as possible.

The meeting was turned over to Miss Joyner. She told us about the value of the "cotton stamp" and how it should be used.

EXPECT RETAIN FISCAL POLICY

Committee Appointments Indicate Same System

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, June 18.—Reappointment by Gov. Broughton of State Senator J. H. Clark of Bladen county and A. S. Brower of Durham as members of the Advisory Budget Commission indicates that there is not likely to be any change in North Carolina's general fiscal policy.

Ex-officio members of the commission for the next two years will be Rep. Victor S. Bryant, finance chairman, and John Kerr, Jr., appropriations chairman, and State Senators Willie Lee Lumpkin, appropriations chairman, and Ryan McBryde, finance chairman. Bryant was already currently on the commission by appointment to succeed the late W. E. Fenner who headed the House finance committee in 1939.

The advisory commission will hold its regular meeting some time in July, but with no legislature coming up for the opening of 1942 it will likely have nothing but the most routine matters before it.

The commission, under the law, must meet twice annually—in July and January—but may be called in to special conference whenever the Director of the Budget (Governor) deems it in the public interest.

Of the half dozen members only one is likely to dissent in any way from the fiscal policies of recent years. Senator Lumpkin won his political fame as an advocate of the "liberal" school of thought which has opposed most of the financial policies of the "regulars" have enacted for the state. In 1935 the Franklin lawyer (then in the House)

Ida's young nephew in the same slicker—which is strictly unconventional husband-wife teaming.

After this we can take it in stride that Joan Bennett, once impeccably the ingenue, is pursuing what used to be called the easiest way in "Man Hunt."

So don't say you weren't warned if Bette Davis pops up as the star of "Elsie Dinsmore" some day soon or if Shirley Temple—

Say! Nobody's given any assurance yet that Shirley is not going to play Mickey Rooney's murderous great-aunt!

Many Given Positions In Non-Agricultural Ranks

Raleigh, June 17.—Only three states showed a bigger increase in employment during April in non-agricultural pursuits than did North Carolina, State Commissioner of Labor Forces' H. Shuford pointed out today from comparative statistics prepared by the Federal Department of Labor.

Rhode Island, Maryland and the District of Columbia reported percentages of increase greater than the 15.6 per cent shown for North Carolina.

The federal figures credited North Carolina with 658,000 persons employed in non-agricultural occupations in April, against 647,000 in March. For April, 1940, the employment total was 569,000. The increase amounted to 89,000, or 15.6 per cent.

For the South Atlantic states the increase in employment was 11.9, which was greater than that for any other section, where the rate was 16.2.

Only states showing decrease in non-agricultural employment this April as compared with last were West Virginia and Kentucky. In both cases the C. I. O.'s short-lived but very effective, coal strike was responsible.

THE SACRED DAGGER

By Rita L. Martin

YESTERDAY: Things in the Asiatic camp of the Willards are rapidly approaching a climax. The Willards are captives of the Nagara tribe, which guards Shy-a Nago, the hidden city. Anne is appointed to release them, but cannot get to them as yet. And Blaise Sherwood, whom Anne loves in spite of herself, is in the Willard camp although Anne believes he is working against her parents. Now mysterious drums have aroused the whole party.

Chapter 27
The Nagaras Come
In the silence that followed, Anne felt the drums again. "Let's go make some coffee!" she cried. "No one can sleep."

They strolled towards the mess hut. "I'd like to set up that radio now," suggested Sherwood. "You can never tell what's ahead of you in this country. I wonder if I should mention it to Oliver?"

"Let the poor devil sleep," advised Larry. "He needs it. When I came by his tent he was snoring like a baby. I hadn't the heart to wake him."

Anne was glad to hear that Phillip rested. He'd walked out of the mess hut like a man in a trance. She felt he was close to a breakdown.

The girls, rummaging in the kitchen, found coffee and fat little Chinese nut cakes. In despair they gave up trying to build a fire of thorn roots in the mud stove and resorted to the alcohol primus Dr. Martaine used in his chemical work. The men stopped labor on the radio to share the food.

Sherwood stood apart by the mantle. After a moment of self-conscious hesitation Anne took him a cup of coffee. His voice said, "Thank you," and his teasing eyes kissed her lips.

"Sugar and cream?" she queried. "So are you," he murmured. She made a little face at him and then noticed Beth watching curiously. Mackey dropped his eyes as her gaze swung to him. She moved away hastily and let Sherwood drink his coffee black.

Presently Beth went to the door and came back. "The drums are still at it," she said.

Mackey rose to start work on the radio again. "If I had my way," he declared, "you'd all be in the truck on your way to Chuka."

"What? Don't you believe in surrendering to Destiny?" Anne asked. "What's it ever got Blaise?" he growled.

"You'd be surprised if I told you," answered Sherwood.

Anne gave him a startled glance and flushed at the half-threat in his grey eyes. A knock at the door banished the cross currents tangling the air. Daddap came in carrying Anne's silver studded belt with its precious burden, the Nagara dagger.

"Put it on," he said to her.

"Well—" she began, then took it and fastened it about her slender waist. "Why?" she demanded.

"That's where it belongs." He turned and shuffled out. She looked up and met Sherwood's eyes. He grinned and shrugged. The young Huffs looked at the belt curiously.

"Come on, be a sport, show us the dagger," begged Larry.

Anne put a hand on the sheath. Sherwood was watching her narrowly.

"I don't like to touch it," she said slowly, and explained the peculiar feel of the weapon in her hand. "As if it really were possessed," she explained.

"Perhaps that's because you're a father high strung person," suggested Larry.

"Am I?" she asked in surprise.

"You're feminine—and you're not stolid," said Sherwood joining them. "Will you three help me with these wires?"

Anne complied hastily, suspecting his motive, glad that he had diverted Larry.

"I'd like to get this thing going," he continued, putting the ear phones on his head. "It may pay us to get in touch with Shani Lun."

The instrument, finally set up, still refused to work. The men started to go over it again.

The door opened suddenly and Dr. Martaine came in. His face was bloodless and his pale grey eyes shone with repressed emotion. He looked from one to the other of them and then made directly for Anne. She rose from her chair to meet him.

Man In Torture
"Miss Willard, he said, "since I cannot give my resignation to your father, I notify you that I am through here."

"Why—why, yes," she faltered in bewilderment. "Have you spoken to Phillip about it? He—"

"I have no intention of speaking to Oliver," he answered stiffly. "My position here is unbearable. I want to leave on the truck for Chuka in the morning."

The others in the room could not help overhearing. He made no effort to keep the conversation private, yet he managed to exclude them. Anne stared at him helplessly.

"Dr. Martaine, if there's anything I can say or do—"

"I'm sorry, Miss Willard, there's nothing."

"At least write father a personal letter and I will see that he gets it."

He nodded. "I'll be glad to do that. Your father is a fine man to work with."

"Is—Diana going too?" she stammered.

"I'm going alone." She walked with him to the door.

"Dr. Martaine, I wish you'd reconsider."

"That's quite impossible, Miss Willard. I'll write that letter and I have some packing to do." The door closed behind him.

Anne turned to the others.

"I'm surprised he put up with her as long as he did," said Beth.

Larry merely shrugged his shoulders. Mackey continued whittling on a splinter. Sherwood alone looked troubled.

"That's bad," he said. "I thought Martaine could take it. He knew her temperament when he married her. Diana's a fascinating woman. He won't gain anything by leaving her."

"He may gain peace of mind," remarked Beth.

Sherwood gazed at her. "Not if she's in his blood, and I think she is."

Beth raised a speculative eyebrow. "If she's so fascinating why didn't you marry her yourself?"

"Maybe I wasn't meant to," he grinned and turned to his work again.

"If the Nagaras don't come tomorrow," said Anne suddenly, "I'm going to them. Things can't continue like this any longer. Dr. Martaine leaving, Phillip acting like an idiot—" she glanced at Sherwood—"the Chinese governor interfering with the expedition. Everything is falling to pieces."

No one had anything to say until Sherwood answered without looking at her. "I imagine that drumbeat we hear means they're coming—but I'd like to get this radio working first."

"And I'd like to get a little rest," said Beth curling up in her chair. "I'm a fiend for excitement but it's been overdone around here lately."

Anne lay down on the couch. She felt someone throw a blanket over her. The subdued voices of the men died out. She stood in a vast stone temple as thickly pillared as a virgin forest. Curling incense plumes swirled through the air, like writhing dragons riding the soundwaves of rolling drumbeat. Suddenly a crash woke her.

The Escort
The Nagaras! someone had shouted.

It was dawn and a giant yellow man in striped sheep-lined coat and felt helmet was swinging a broad sword above the radio, blow after blow.

Other helmeted men had crowded into the room carrying medieval scimitars, battle axes, and dirks in their hands though each had a rifle swung across his back. They lined the white men up along the wall and searched them for weapons.

Dr. Martaine was already present. Anne saw Oliver appeared in pajamas and dressing gown, ushered by a pair of tribesmen. Diana came in, demanding imperiously to know what had happened. The cooks were squealing in the kitchen. Anne rose to her feet.

"It is all right," declared Sherwood urgently. "Though the camp has been captured no one is being hurt."

"Yet," muttered Mackey.

Doddap was brought in. Beth started to leave her chair and shrank back at a sharp word from one of the invaders. A slim, black bearded man appeared and ordered the giant to cease his senseless hacking on the radio which had been beaten into the table, and the table into the floor.

This slim bearded man seemed to be the leader, though he also wore the felt helmet with the turned up brim of five petal points. He addressed the white men in his own language. No one understood except Sherwood for a word or two.

Then Doddap answered the captain. They palavered back and forth for a while. The lama turned to Anne.

"They're come to conduct us to the high priest, they say, that you may prove you are the seed sent by the gods to reveal to the world the secrets of Shy-a Nago."

The dagger gleamed at Anne's side, its green eyes luminous in the faint dawn light. She took a step towards the man who backed away respectfully.

"Prove!" she demanded. "What must I prove? That I'm my parents' daughter? I was given the dagger."

"And you accepted it," he reminded her sternly.

Anne looked around distractedly. Both Diana and Beth were crying. The white men ranged along the wall stood absolutely helpless. Morbidity tribesmen crowded into the room. Suddenly Anne realized that many of these fighting men were women, true Amazons, dressed like their men and as fierce of eye.

"What if we should decide not to go on with this?" she asked. "Give back the knife and ask the return of my parents?"

"It is too late. Your parents have seen the treasure city."

"And Blaise has put himself in the same trap," she thought despairingly, noticing that he alone of the white men had been bound—his hands tied behind him.

"Tell the captain," she directed Doddap, "that no harm must come to our innocent associates."

"No harm comes to innocence. The high priest awaits you in the mountains. Be ready to travel soon he commands. Only the servants and soldiers will be left here. The tribesmen have brought sufficient horses for the rest of us."

The chieftain cleared the room of natives, except for a guard at the door. Trembling Chinese cooks brought in the breakfast. The white men, including Sherwood with his hands shackled, were allowed to roam about the room again. Things relaxed a bit; Larry made a feeble joke.

Then how long is a quart of this great New Motor Oil?

STRAIGHT FROM SIZZLING DEATH VALLEY COMES YOUR ANSWER...

The lock-guarded engines of 6 coupes faced the Death Valley desert with oil exactly up to "Full." Not a drop could be added. The destination of all 6 identical everyday engines was... Death!

Here were 6 high quality motor oils getting the same strictly fair opportunity to show how long they'd let an engine live on one exact fill and no more.

Down in Death Valley—hotspot of the U. S. A.—every car sped at 57 miles an hour, till its oil gave out and the engine smashed. The brand of oil that used up quickest was outlasted 8,268 miles by a revolutionary new oil in this impartial, certified test. This new oil exceeded the average mileage of the other 5 oils by all of 7,057 miles! Certified. This longest-lasting oil in the test, which your car can have today—at popular price—is new

CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL
with its Man-made new Economy aid
The record long life that defied Death Valley comes from a new laboratory creation... man-made... called Thialkene inhibitor. Its action in some ways suggests Vaccination—which puts the right protective substance on guard to keep a trouble from even starting on you.

The trouble aiming to start on motor oils lurks in the engine's normal firing. Filth is formed that tends to start the oil "festering." First one drop spoils—then two drops "catch it"—then four—then sixteen—faster, faster, FASTER. Soon oil stamina is sapped; the engine suffers, and cries for quart after quart... but not when the worst of this "festering" attack is nipped in the bud—inhibited—by the life-giving Thialkene inhibitor in new Conoco Nth motor oil.

Now you'll never rashly exceed the proper oil-change period for your car and driving conditions—any more than you ignore traffic rules just to "get away with it." But Certified Proof from the desert that new Conoco Nth could outlast the other oils in the test by as much as 161%, gives you more than mere hopes of long Summer mileage between quarts. AND CONOCO Nth OIL OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE!

Long the keystone of Conoco success, OIL-PLATING comes from another great Conoco synthetic... man-made under the famed Germ Processed oil patent. By magnet-like action, OIL-PLATING is bonded to inner engine parts. Then it can't all drain down—not even overnight—not while you're using Conoco Nth. So OIL-PLATING is on guard against wear in advance!... and helps mileage, as it did in Death Valley. An OIL-PLATED engine is one more economy you get from a change to popular-priced new Conoco Nth oil.

Lefty Long Gets Eighth Win In Defeating Martins 8-2

RAIN IN SIXTH HALTS BATTLE

Greenies Score Six In Second Frame For Victory

The Greenies last night took an 8-2 win over the Williamston Martins in a game cut short in the sixth inning by rain as Lefty Joe Long racked up his seventh victory of the season. The portsider has suffered no defeats to date.

The Greenies will engage Kinston in a double header here tomorrow night, the first game to start at 7:45 and also will play a twin bill with Rocky Mount here Friday night.

Neither team scored in the first and it started off as if the contest would be a real pitchers' duel. In the second, however, Greenville made six. Five of the runs were scored on a triple, double, single and error and the final score of the frame came home when the Martins attempted to get Pinfrock between first and second.

The Martins came back to get two in their half of the third inning when Rhymer, who had doubled, scored as Carraway errored Byrum's single and Byrum scored on Shelton's single. The Greenies also scored in the third, getting one on a walk to Jenkins, a wild pitch and Kracke's double. The final Greenville run was made in the fourth when Crowe, who had doubled, came home on Jenkins' single.

The Greenies were hitting them hard last night. Of the eight hits garnered by the locals, Jenkins Pinfrock, Kracke and Crowe hit doubles and Wilson pasted a three bagger.

Jenkins got two for two and Kracke two for three, while Carraway, Wilson and Crowe got one for two for a 500 average.

On Eve Of Conn-Louis Fight

Billy Conn (left at top) is behind the eight-ball in a friendly game of pool with his manager, Johnny Ray (beside Conn), and several friends at his training camp at Pompton Lakes, N. J. Conn said he wouldn't wind up that way in his fight with Champion Joe Louis in New York city the night of June 18. Meanwhile, Louis (right at bottom) gets a little help from Lou Nova in lacing his glove at his camp at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., as Joe put the finishing touches on his training. Lou has hopes of meeting Louis in a heavyweight title bout next fall.

LEAD REDUCED IN "A" LEAGUE

Training School Suffers Second Loss In Two Days

The Training School's lead in the "A" league was reduced again this morning when West Greenville gave them their second licking in two days. At present there is only a margin of one game separating the first three teams.

This game was a hard fought, spirited one that was not decided until the last pitch in the final frame. Training School was making a gallant effort to overcome the winners' two run margin in the seventh when Tom Rowlett was thrown out at third in a hotly contested play.

Jesse Jordan pitching for Third Street allowed only four hits, no player for Training School got over one. Jordan's three for three and Garrett's two for three led for the victors.

Batteries: Register and Corey; Jordan and Sugg.

Coming from behind to score seven runs in the last inning, Third Street "C" team defeated Training School this morning by the score of 16-10.

Training School led throughout the game until the seventh when the victors came to bat for their final chance. Before the last batter had retired Third Street had not only made up their deficit but were six runs to the good. The game was one of good, solid hitting. For the Training School Lupton got three for four, Proctor, two for five. All-good three for five including a triple and homer, Watson, Robertson, Clark, Stark, and Clayton all got two hits, one of Clayton's being a home run.

Porrest of Third Street led his team with four for four. V. Barton, E. Barton, Wilson and Joseph all got at least two hits.

Batteries: Training School, C. Watson and B. Clayton; Third Street, Wilson and E. Barton.

Third Street won over the Training School "B" team this morning at Third Street stadium by the score of 18-13. Third Street turned the game into a slugfest in the very first inning by scoring 11 runs. Training School fought an uphill battle from then on and threw a scare into the winners by scoring in the last four innings.

Stumpy Garrett led the victors at bat with three for four, closely followed by White, McGlohon and Flye with two for four. Joe Lupton and Harvey Clayton led the losers getting two for four, one of Lupton's hits being a long homerun with one out.

Court Ruling On Unions Likely To Stir Assembly

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, June 18 — Legislation making labor unions amenable to legal process in North Carolina is a very likely result of the Supreme court decision last week holding that under existing law in this state unions can neither sue nor be sued.

It is generally understood that Governor J. Melville Broughton is favorable to such legislation — not because of hostility toward unions or labor, but because he does not feel that unions will ever gain their rightful place in the scheme of society unless they are on a footing where they can take their place in court, as organizations, just as practically every other type of organization in North Carolina.

His feeling is that it is as much to the benefit as to the disadvantage of unions to be subject to the same sort of legal rules as fraternal and even patriotic organizations.

Legislation to effect the desired end might take either of two courses — a statute compelling all labor unions having locals in North Carolina to incorporate and thereby become subject to the regular rules for liability to court action and for service; or (2) an action providing that labor unions functioning in North Carolina shall be able to sue and be sued without being incorporated and merely because of the fact that they are existing and functioning as unions.

The second course would be no drastic departure from precedent, but would be right in line with an existing statute which permits certain voluntary, non-stock, unincorporated organizations engaged in certain types of insurance business to be sued and to sue.

MONGER STILL WITHOUT FOES

Sanford Man Only One Out For YDC Presidency

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, June 18.-It isn't so long now until the Young Democrats of North Carolina will have their annual convention at which officers for the next year will be selected; but so far as your reporter has been able to find out, Ralph Monger, Jr., of Sanford, is still the only active candidate for the presidency.

It was reported nearly a month ago that Clarence Hood of Dunn was about to toss a sombrero into the ring and make things an open two-way battle at least, but so far nothing audible has happened along that line, and there is now no indication when, if ever, Clarence will do the tossing stunt.

Usually by this time there is much ado in Y. D. circles over the impending convention and its likely nominees, particularly about the identity of the next president, but this summer there has been almost no apparent interest. That situation is sure to change before long.
