Middle East Command Reports Important Positions Taken By French In Counter Drive Wrested from Vichy Forces; Allied Ultimatum To Surrender Apparently Ignored By French

Cairo, June 19.—(AP)—The British command announced today that "important positions have been captured just south of Damascus" in the British-Free French siege of the Syrian capital.

The Middle East command's daily war bulletin also announced that allied troops in southern Syria had recaptured Kuneitra, while "strong

Vichy, Unoccupied France, June 19.—(AP)—The French conceded tonight that their counter attacks on the Syrian front have been stalled since yesterday and that the British had driven to within six miles of Damascus.

The British fleet was said to have reappeared off the Lebanese coast between Sidon and Beirut and to have pounded French positions.

The French acknowledged that the British still controlled the road from Sidon to Djessine in that sector and that French counter attacks had played out in vain because of a dearth of manpower to replace tired troops which have been battling without relief since the start of the campaign 12 days ago.

Vichy forces in Merdjayoun have now been surrounded. These two towns, southwest of Damascus near the Palestine border had been seized by a French counter drive which held up the allied advance.

Meanwhile, London sources said today the French command in Damascus apparently had rejected a British demand for surrender and expressed belief that allied forces already had launched a direct attack upon the city.

Reuters, British news agency, earlier had reported that General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, British commander in Palestine and Trans-Jordan, had broadcast from Jerusalem an ultimatum calling upon the French to surrender by 5:30 a. m. (10:30 p. m. EST Wednesday).

At noon today (5 a. m. EST) there was no indication here that the ultimatum had been complied with.

Dispatches from the Middle East previously had indicated that Damascus was threatened from three sides by Britain-DeGaulle forces who pushed across the Syrian frontier 11 days ago.

DRIVE IS OFF TO GOOD START

Much Of USO Funds To Be Spent In North Carolina

Although declaring that it was too early to make any definite report on the Pitt county campaign to raise $1,250 for the United States Organization's budget, J. H. Waldrop, local treasurer, declared that the public in general was responding in an encouraging manner.

Part of the workers took to the field yesterday morning, but were forced to retire at midday when stores closed for the Wednesday afternoon half-holiday. These workers resumed their canvassing this morning and those who did not start yesterday began for the first time this morning.

In commenting on the national campaign to raise $10,000,000, Treasurer Waldrop called attention to the fact that 10 per cent of the trainees in service are located at camps in North Carolina. With this in view, he added, the people throughout the Tar Heel state should respond to the call 100 per cent.

Mr. Waldrop said that canvassers were having little difficulty, adding that most every person visited desired to have a part in the cause—however small.

"Reports are coming in satisfactorily," he declared, but said that no tabulation had been made as the canvassers had not had ample opportunity to see all prospective contributors.

Dr. W. I. Wooten, county chairman, and W. T. Kyzer, campaign director, joined Mr. Waldrop in reporting the campaign progressing satisfactorily and all three urged Pitt county citizens—men, women and children—to do their part to help make the campaign a success.

The money will be used to provide social and recreational facilities for all branches of service men. The program will be under the direction of a committee named from six religious and benevolent organizations, thereby insuring that the money will be spent to the best advantage of the service men and also present duplication of services.

J. Roger Brooks Of Kinston Elevated to Presidency Of Eastern Carolina Warehousemen's Association, Succeeding B. Sugg, At Annual Session Of Group Here Today

J. Roger Brooks of Kinston was elevated to the presidency of the Eastern North Carolina Tobacco Warehousemen's Association at the annual meeting held at the Country club here today, at which a resolution was adopted petitioning the Tobacco Association of the United States to set the opening date for Eastern Carolina markets not later than one week after the opening of the South Carolina and Border markets.

The Tobacco Association meets next week at the Cavalier hotel, Virginia Beach, with the setting of dates for the various markets one of the principal items of business.

Brooks succeeds B. B. Sugg of Greenville as president. He was elevated from the vice-presidency. Allie Fleming of Wilson was named vice-president and will be in line for elevation to the presidency at the 1942 meeting. "Dutch" Weathington, sales supervisor of the Kinston market, was appointed secretary-treasurer.

In line with a policy of the association to hold annual meetings in the home city of the president, next year's meeting will be held in Kinston.

Another resolution adopted at today's meeting was one requesting the Wage-Hour Commission to exempt banks from the overtime provision during the approximately 14 weeks of the tobacco season in order to prevent excessive overtime costs necessitated by the rush business during the tobacco season.

The following were elected to the board of directors to serve during the new year: B. B. Sugg, Herman Laws of Kinston, J. C. Eagles, Jr. of Wilson, I. M. Little of Robersonville, N. L. Perkins of Smithfield, H. I. Johnson of Tarboro, L. R. Bell of Goldsboro, Garland Hodges of Washington, J. C. Carlton of Farmville, Claude Griffin of Williamston and Gordon Vest of Rocky Mount.

The election of officers and other business matters were disposed of at an afternoon session.

The morning session was opened by President Sugg, after which Dr. L. R. Meadows, president of East Carolina Teachers College made a brief address of welcome, which was responded to by Hobbs Anderson of Wilson.

James S. Ficklen, immediate past president of the Tobacco Association of the United States, was the first principal speaker.

Mr. Ficklen discussed the present outlook. Despite the situation brought on by the war, the picture painted by the local man was not nearly so dark as some might have thought the situation to be. The speaker declared that Great Britain had discovered that she faced a supply shortage and that the dwindling stock had to be replenished. He said tobacco now was moving to

QUESTION NOW IS WHAT AREA

Great Britain Ponders Whether Next Nazi Blitzkrieg Will Be Aimed At Russia Or Suez; Stroke Adds Fuel To Talk Of A German-Soviet Crisis; Nazis Already Rumored To Have Attacked Reds

London, June 19.—(AP)—The German-Turkish accord was interpreted by informed quarters today as virtually an infallible portent of a tremendous new Nazi military stroke. But the question remained whether it would be aimed at Soviet Russia or Suez.

These sources asserted that the pact fits well into the now familiar German practice of isolating intended blitzkrieg victims by threats against their neighbors.

"By the conquest of Crete, occupation of the Aegean islands and domination of the frontier of Turkish Thrace, Hitler has been in a position to enforce the original heavy demands he made on the Turks," informed sources said.

"But Turkey would have chosen to fight instead and, despite the country's lack of equipment, that would have been a bitter campaign. Evidently Hitler was impatient to get any kind of an understanding so he could proceed to quick action elsewhere. Evidently believing he would be free at some later date really to make Turkey come to terms."

These sources declared that "perhaps the greatest potential menace" was Turkey's agreement to control her press and radio, both of which have been friendly to Britain and hostile toward the Axis.

The new stroke added fuel to reports of a German-Soviet Russian crisis and even gave rise to entirely unconfirmed rumors that Nazi troops had attacked the Soviet frontier.

She is survived by her husband, J. H. Paramore; six daughters, Mrs. J. L. Banks, Mrs. W. A. Piver, Mrs. J. C. Singleton, Mrs. Heber Dail, Mrs. J. W. Bethel Committee Exceeds Its Quota

John Staton, chairman of the USO committee in Bethel, today advised Campaign Director W. T. Kyzer that Bethel already had its quota of $100 and that all workers not submitted reports.

Mr. Staton added that he felt the goal would be well exceeded. Mr. Kyzer expressed much satisfaction at the first report and declared that it afforded much encouragement as to the outcome of the drive to raise $1,250 in the county.

BURTON TELLS OF HARDSHIPS

Letter Received From Another Zamzam Survivor

Wilson, June 19.—(AP)—Paul A. Burton of Wilson, a survivor of the Zamzam sinking, said that sailors of the German raider Tamesis kept the Zamzam afloat from 6 a. m. until 2 p. m. while they looted the Egyptian vessel's cargo of "what they wanted" and then "sank her by planting bombs" in her.

In a letter from Portugal to his wife, he said that women and children were given cabin accommodations on the prison ship, while men were herded in the hold. "We sure had it tough," the letter said. He said that the prison ship captain promised to transfer the prisoners to a neutral ship, but he made every attempt to keep from meeting any boat. He said that he had "little to eat," tea made of water with oil in it and only three pints of water daily to bathe and wash clothes in.

He said that the captain steamed past the Canary islands after he had said he would put them ashore there. They were put ashore at St. Jean de Lux, France.

Burton, "Tinkie" Johnson and James Smith, also of Wilson, said they were on the last lifeboat to leave the shelled vessel.

Expects Decision On Local Project

Washington, June 19.—(AP)—Senator Reynolds (D-NC) said today he expected action shortly by the War Department on moves to establish primary flight training centers at Goldsboro and Greenville, N. C.

The War Department said a survey had been made at Goldsboro, but so far no report had been submitted.

Announcement of the war department's flight training program is expected to be made as soon as Congress completes action on a bill appropriating $97,000,000 for the undertaking.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration, which will cooperate in the program, said selection of sites could not be announced until the amount of money to be available was definitely ascertained.

Helsinki, June 19.—(AP)—Finnish reserves were called at midnight and the government sharply curtailed civilian train traffic soon afterward to facilitate military preparations.

AFL STRIKERS DECLINE PLEA RESUME WORK

Machinists Refuse To Yield To Union Chief

STRIKE IS NOW SIX WEEKS OLD

Eleven Shipyards Affected By Walkout Hold $500,000,000 In Government Defense Contracts

By The Associated Press

American Federation of Labor machinists, on strike at 11 San Francisco bay shipyards failed to yield today to a suggestion from the president of their international union that they return to work and mediate their differences with the management.

Harvey W. Brown, the machinists' president, addressed several hundred strikers during a four-hour closed meeting which ended after midnight. Before the session, Brown had expressed belief the men would end their walkout after the issues were explained. But when the strikers filed out, local officials of the union were non-committal, declining to say even whether a vote to end the strike had been taken.

The 11 shipyards hold $500,000,000 worth of defense contracts. Both AFL and CIO machinists walked out six weeks ago, demanding $1.15 an hour and double pay for overtime. A master stabilization contract, signed by all shipyards in the area except Bethlehem, provides for $1.12 an hour for skilled mechanics, time and a half for overtime on Saturdays, and double time for Sunday and holiday work. In addition, workers on the second shift would receive a 10 per cent premium and those on the third shift 15 per cent.

The National Defense Mediation Board in Washington recommended yesterday that Bethlehem accept the master contract too.

Consulates Must Close By July 15

Consular And American Railway Express Employees Not Only Told To Leave Germany, But Norway, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Occupied France, Serbia And Occupied Greece

Berlin, June 19.—(AP)

Germany tonight asked the United States to remove all consular and American Express Company employees from Germany, Norway, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Occupied France, Serbia and Occupied Greece not later than July 15.

This was done in a note handed by the German Foreign Ministry to the United States charge d'affaires.

(This was retaliation in kind for a similar action against Germany ordered only last Monday by President Roosevelt.)

(The American order also required the closing of the German Library of Information and the Railway Tourist Bureau and the German Trans-ocean News Agency.)

(German consular officials, said Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, were accused of engaging in activities harmful to the United States.)

All American consulates in the places listed in the note must be closed by July 15, the note said.

"The conduct of consular and travel agency employees for long has been highly objectionable," was the explanation of DNB, the official German news agency.

Vacation Bible School.
Another delightful day at Vacation Bible school has passed. The children are looking forward to tomorrow, which is the last day. The program begins at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning and closes at 11:30 o'clock. At 3:30 o'clock we are having a picture made of the school, and at 4 o'clock the entire school will meet at the playgrounds on Cotanche street for the final picnic. This is evident that the day will be filled with interesting events.

Your reporter visited all the departments this morning, and he found the children happily engaged in some phase of their program. The beginners were giving rapid attention to a story that was being told by Mrs. E. L. Ballinger. The Primaries under the direction of Mrs. J. C. Harris and Miss Edna Davenport, were out on the church lawn enjoying a game. The members of the Junior department were engaged in handwork. The children of the Nursery department were playing games on the playgrounds to the rear of the Educational building.

And your reporter found the girls of the Intermediate department engaged in handwork under the direction of Mrs. Vernon Parrish. The girls, he learned, have made baby jackets, baby blankets and squares for a quilt for their bundles for Britain project. These articles will be delivered to Mrs. James Little, our local chairman for this project.

Mr. W. Z. Morton, Jr., and his boys were engaged in making a swing for the children of the Nursery department. They erected the frame today, and tomorrow they will hang the swings.

One little girl stepped up beside your reporter and said: "I am sorry our school closes tomorrow. Next year I want us to have three weeks of school." This remark is indicative of the attitude of the children toward the school. They really enjoy it.

Today Mesdames Frank Bendall, S. L. Bridges, A. E. Hobgood, and E. H. Wilson in behalf of the Woman's Missionary Society, served the children lemonade, cookies and nutmeg. The children are grateful to the women for this service.

Sans Souci Club Entertained.
The Sans Souci Club closed its club year in a most delightful and informal way on Tuesday when the members were entertained at Mimosa Shores, the attractive summer camp of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Waldrop. The hostesses for the picnic were Mrs. C. S. Forbes, Mrs. W. L. Hall and Mrs. F. M. Wooten. Although the day was rather cloudy at its beginning it kept nobody at home and the large attendance was soon rewarded by having the sun come forth in all his glory to make the day a perfect one.

The club met for a business session in the morning and at this meeting plans for the next club year were discussed. Accomplishments of the current year were reviewed and it was brought out that many worthwhile things have been done. At this last business session the members voted to donate their books and a cash contribution of ten dollars to the Sheppard Memorial Library.

At one o'clock the hostesses served a bountiful picnic dinner consisting of fried chicken, barbecue, cake and all the accompaniments. For the first time during the day conversation was at a low ebb. Everybody was seated on the spacious front porch where the cool breeze and the beautiful view of the river gave an edge to the appetite. This was one day when nobody thought of her diet.

The afternoon was given over to all kinds of games: bridge, Chinese checkers, croquet. The more energetic of the crowd enjoyed a swim in the Pamlico.

The day proved such a success that the club voted to spend another day "without care" at Atlantic Beach. The club is much indebted to the hostesses and Mrs. Waldrop for this delightful day.

increase in tobacco tax. The proposal which Mr. Scott has fought tooth and nail since it was first mentioned as a means of boosting federal tax receipts.

A number of agriculture commissioners have formally and officially protested the gasoline increase, and Mr. Scott is frank to say he personally believes that the boost would work a hardship on North Carolinians of all classes, and particularly upon farmers using tractors.

He pointed out that the state does not collect any tax on gasoline used in farm tractors, but the federal government does. The increase would seriously affect tractor users.

Governor Broughton and Chairman Ben Prince of the State Highway Commission have both indicated their personal opposition to the gasoline tax increase, the latter having presented his views to the Ways and Means committee. The highway commission will, in all probability take official action in opposition at its next session, which will be next week.

The cent increase in gas tax would cost North Carolina users a minimum of $5,000,000 annually. Chairman Prince has estimated that "gasless" Sundays would cost as much. The two combined would slash state highway revenues by $10,000,000 and seriously cripple construction and maintenance work.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—One of those happy things you dream about and often yearn for but seldom see took place in Sardi's after the theater. A playwright was sitting with friends when they were joined by a young man who had a stranger in tow. The stranger was presented to the dramatist, who assumed the glazed bored attitude of an over-paid waiter. He finally put forward a few limp fingers in what was to pass as a handclasp. The stranger at once clasped it and proceeded to crush it in a vicious hearty hand-shake and the playwright gave an involuntary cry and almost went to his knees. The stranger did not apologize. He looked the playwright in the eye and said, "It's a pleasure." This playwright talks a lot about the glories of Communism but lives in expensive hotels and lines on costly and exotic foods.

When the Lotus club honored Katharine Cornell with a dinner recently she became the fifth woman in history to be so favored. Mary Garden, Laurette Taylor, the late Amelia Earhart, and Dorothy Thompson are the only others who have gained this distinction.

This club is an old social organization partial to men distinguished in letters, science and the arts. Mark Twain was a member of the Lotus and called it "The Ace of Clubs." Great nights in the club's history have included dinners for General Grant, Admiral Peary, Faderewski, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Woodrow Wilson, Elihu Root, and Al Smith.

One wonders, now that Madison Square Garden is to be turned into a Mardi Gras festival lasting 100 days, what the fate of the venture will be. Our old friend Monty Proser, ex-hobo, ex-beachcomber, now a thriving Broadway night club operator, will turn the vast expanse of the garden into a labyrinth of cafes, dance halls, and sideshows. He says he is going to spend $100,000 on the enterprise. You will have to take in a lot of admissions to get all that money back. In recent years large expenditures in amusement ventures have not yielded dividends. The World's Fair is eloquent testimony to that. But perhaps Monty Proser knows what he is about. He usually does.

by of the League of Nations and president of the Norwegian Parliament, and Mr. Loveday, chief economist of the League of Nations.

Other speaking engagements scheduled for Mr. Humber include an appearance at the National Peace Conference, representing some 40 outstanding organizations working for a stabilized world order, to be held at New York, and another appearance in New York at the Executive Council of the Society for the Cause and Cure of War, which will be attended by several national leaders.

Mr. Humber was to leave today for Greensboro to address various groups in that city.

THE SACRED DAGGER

YESTERDAY: Anne Willard has been waiting to see how she and the sacred dagger she has

WEEKLY RECIPES

It's the meat that makes the sandwich, of course. But who makes the meat that makes the sandwich? And why does this make such a difference in the relative deliciousness of your sandwich? You would know the answer like a flash if you could walk with me through the shining Wilson & Co. kitchens and see the immaculate cleanliness, the choice cuts of meat, the constant checks and laboratory tests to insure simply marvelous flavor for you in Wilson's Certified meats.

George Rector
Food Consultant for Wilson & Co.

Tips to Sandwich Makers
Slice all the bread, stack and cover with a damp cloth. Spread each slice with Wilson's Sandwich Spread (a creamy mayonnaise) or Wilson's Relish Spread. Both of these are so perfectly seasoned with chopped fresh herbs and spices that you need add no other seasoning to your sandwiches. Suggestion: mix with hard-cooked Clear Brook egg yolks for tangy deviled eggs.

IF YOU PUT UP LUNCHEONS OR PLAN PICNICS

To help you plan sandwiches or cold cut platters, buy an assortment the next time. Here are just a few of Wilson's Certified Ready-To-Serve Meats:

- Roasting Flavour Pure Pork Luncheon Meat
- Bologna
- Frankfurters
- Braunschweiger Liver Sausage
- Cervelat, Salami
- Meat Loaves

A NEW EASY-TO-COOK SMOKED BEEF TONGUE

When Wilson & Co. saw how their Tender Made Ham took the work out of cooking and made ham more tender and easy to prepare, as never before, they decided to do the same thing for their smoked beef tongue. You'll get a wonderful surprise when you cook Wilson's Certified Smoked Beef Tongue. It requires no soaking, cooks faster! To prepare, cover with cold water and simmer (don't boil) for 35 minutes per pound or until tender. This tongue is mild, tender, deliciously flavored. Serve it hot with a spicy sauce and if any is left over, it makes an appetizing platter sliced and served with pickled peaches.

For a no-waste, no-work, good-for-all-meals-and-for-all-emergencies meat, nothing quite compares with MOR, the spiced, cured, all pork shoulder meat made by Wilson & Co.

Try "Mor 'n' eggs" for breakfast at home or in camp. Bake MOR for dinner. Barbecue slices in the frying pan for lunch. Use MOR generously and often in picnic sandwiches and in hot creamed sandwiches for home use.

See you next week. G. R.

been given can be used to free her parents, who are held prisoners by the Asiatic tribe of the Nagaras because the Willards have seen their hidden city, forbidden to outside eyes. And now, suddenly, the Nagaras have burst into the camp and Anne and her friends are breakfasting in preparation for the hard ride to the Nagara country.

Chapter 28 Wild Ride

"It doesn't make sense to me," remarked Larry, shaking his head. "A bunch of more or less intelligent American college people mixed up with mystic daggers and treasure cities and ancient prophecies. Such things just don't happen."

"Then what is it?" Mackey demanded. "A collective nightmare?" Sherwood grinned. "These tribesmen look real enough and sound real enough and smell real enough to me. Be sure to take extra clothing along—a duffle bag to tie behind the saddle."

"and your red flannel underwear," advised Mackey. "We're climbing into altitude."

"Did you get the radio going?" Anne asked him.

"Only for a moment. Blaze had exchanged half a dozen words with Shani Lun when that gorilla and his broadsword burst into the room."

Diana looked at Sherwood. "Then you got a chance to call for help."

"Help! Isn't this the Nagara delegation you've been waiting for?" Philip answered sourly. "We hardly expected a bunch of bandits."

"Sorry, Diana," said Sherwood ignoring him. "I'm afraid my presence is to blame for the rough stuff."

She smiled at him archly. "You seem to inspire banditry, Blaze, wherever you go."

"It's never my intention," he assured her.

She seemed to suspect a double meaning in his words, and sat back and looked around the table.

"Perhaps I ought to tell you people," she said with a smile, "that my husband has left me. The men looked embarrassed except for Dr. Martaine, whose cold, colorless face did not change expression. 'I'm a free woman,' she finished."

"Lines form on the right," muttered Beth. There followed a distressing little silence broken by the appearance of the Nagara chieftain, and the little lama, who drew up behind Anne's chair and spoke.

"He wishes to know which man is yours."

She rose in confusion. "Why, I haven't," she began and stopped. Then she pointed to Philip Oliver.

"This is the man I came to marry."

Philip flushed brightly. Anne could feel disapproval, exuding from Daddap. Her glance stole to Sherwood. He was staring at his plate. The others had also risen. Larry demanded facetiously: "Ask him if he doesn't want to know which one is Beth's man."

"Are you hisping?" his wife giggled nervously.

"I'd pick Daddap as best man," grinned Mackey. "As interpreter he can tell each side whatever he pleases."

Daddap drew himself up angrily. "I tell what comes," he said. "I do not cheat for anyone."

Mackey apologized hastily. Sherwood gave the little fellow an affectionate look.

Anne caught Sherwood's eye. "You see—being in my camp did not protect you from the Nagaras."

"I'm not dead yet," he said, and turned to Diana, who had put a hand on his arm.

Anne ordered the cooks to prepare a lunch for each one. Then the white people were allowed to go to their tents. Dr. Martaine stopped Anne and asked her to intercede that he might go to Chuka instead. She complied but he was refused.

Soldiers led the required number of saddle horses into the courtyard long haired ponies with flowing tails and manes. A dapple grey, one of two light colored animals in the bunch was assigned to Anne. Philip got the other. Activity had revived everyone's spirits. When they were mounted the chieftain appeared, followed by the giant of a man on a mule. Daddap was called forward to deliver a message.

Marching Orders
"You're to ride in a group at a pace set by his men and anybody causing disturbance or delay will be tied to the saddle!" Diana had never before in her life. Deliberately she dismounted from her horse.

"I'm not going."

The others looked at her with startled admiration and dismay. The captain understood the action if not the words. He made a motion. The giant swung to his feet, tossed Diana onto her horse. The man began binding her wrists. Anne sent her pony forward beside them.

"Don't do that," she cried.

The fellow understood but kept on with the task. She lifted her whip and struck him across the shoulders. Natives grabbed Diana's frightened horse and held him quiet. The white men spurred forward expecting trouble. Anne had struck again, but instead of turning on her the man crouched down in acceptance of her blows. She backed away helplessly, and called to Daddap.

"Tell him to give her another chance."

The captain held up one finger and the giant took himself and his rope back to his mule.

Sherwood leaned forward. "I admire your spunk if not your judgment," he grinned. His hands, Anne noticed now for the first time, had been bound to his saddle horn.

She turned to protest again to the captain.

Oliver intercepted the impulse. "Don't," he advised urgently. "You-position isn't secure enough to befriend him."

"But just common decency—" she protested.

"You'll gain nothing for him and endanger the rest of us."

"Is that right?" she asked Mackey, who had overheard them.

"I'm afraid it is," he agreed heavily. They were interrupted by a commotion outside the courtyard. A Chinese rider was brought in and dragged from his horse before the captain.

"He's a dispatch carrier from Chuka," declared Oliver. Daddap explained to the chieftain. The man had brought a letter. The captain took it and handed it to Anne. She saw the message was a telegraph message for Diana and gave it to her.

"From father," said Diana, and put the envelope into a pocket unopened.

The chieftain gave the command and they filed off across the plain along the edge of the hills until they came to a river that flowed from the glaciers of the Bekkan Bula mountains. It was low now, as the sun had barely begun to warm the winter snows, and edged on the near side by low encroaching dunes and on the far side by a strip of cottonwood forest.

Native troopers had spurred forward, bunching the riders and increasing their speed until they were going at a headlong pace that delivered Beth, the poorest rider among the women. With a heavy heart Anne watched Mackey looking back anxiously. Sherwood had been kept behind.

They forded the river time and again rather than use the precarious bridges. The initial exhilaration wore off as the hours passed and the pace continued unabated, a relay race, with the horses changed often. Not until long past noon when the river bed had left the plain and cut up into the hills and canyons where the going became more difficult was there a chance for any exchange of words.

Dog House
Anne had settled down to the dull racking misery.

"Poor Beth," she said, riding up beside the two girls ahead of her. "how goes it?"

Beth managed a feeble grin. "I feel so bad that I feel all right. What a mess I got into when I majored in paleontology and married Larry Huff."

"What a mess we all got into when we joined this expedition," exclaimed Diana.

Anne wanted to say something angry and cutting. Beth caught her eye and winked. "Save your energy and look at Daddap."

The little man rode not far behind nibbling on his cheese in its goatskin wrapping.

"That's a magic cheese," said Beth admiringly. "He's always gnawing on it and it never seems to decrease in size."

Anne smiled. "He must like it better than the lunch Huie fixed for him."

The Nagaras called a halt for rest. Sundown had brought them up to the edge of a wide valley, an elevated steppe abundantly watered by running streams and beginning to green in the spring sunshine. Here lay a Nagara border village of stone houses and felt tents enclosed in courtyards surrounded by high walls of rock and mud.

A fresh clean yurt had been set up for the Americans in the courtyard of the headman's house. A little brook ran beside it. Anne and Philip were allowed to roam at will and Daddap had somehow managed the same perquisite.

"Sacred cows of India!" Beth called them as she lay groaning on the felts and furs that floored their yurt. "Not that I care. I wouldn't move if I could."

Philip took the lama off with him to explore the town.

Anne stepped out and watched the last contingent of travelers ride in. Sherwood, his hands still bound, was led stumbling into a tiny stone hut in one corner of the court. A guard was placed at the door.

"Dog house," said Mackey at her shoulder.

She turned and stared at him biting her lips in distress.

"Pete, is there anything I can do about it?"

"We might go over and see."

She went inside the yurt, and picked up a big bearskin robe to take to him. The young guard bowed to Anne respectfully but refused them admission, his hand on the door bolt. She reached out to draw his hand away. He snatched it off before she could touch him and drew back in fright, verifying what she had begun to suspect.

"These people are afraid for me to touch them. Do they think I'm contaminating?"

"Sacred, likely; it's often the same thing."

She smiled at the young guard. He smiled back shyly.

Strength For The Day

By KARL L. DOUGLASS

THEY FEARED THE BIBLE
Several years ago the missionaries in Japan offered to give New Testaments to all Japanese soldiers. The government declined the offer, saying that the Bible was designed to spoil soldiers. If soldiers read this book, replied government officials, they would not be so serious, there would be no more war; and since we employ these men to fight, we believe that the New Testament might rob our soldiers of zeal and devotion to their job.

Ponder this for a moment. There is a great deal of wisdom here. Men who were not Christian but who in the course of their education had acquired some familiarity with the New Testament declared that if mankind really adopted the teachings of the Bible, there would be no more war. People are complaining today and saying that God has caused this war. We should always meet such a statement with the vigorous rejoinder that it is the devil who has caused this war, working through agents willing to implement this evil purpose. Divine revelation is all against war. The promise of the Bible is that when men find God, they will find peace; and that when nations turn from the philosophy of expediency and try to put into operation the teachings of Jesus, they will live amicably one with another.

AS IT SHOULD BE
Joe Calcutt, "slot machine king" of Fayetteville, today began the serving of a prison sentence as a result of conviction of violations of the Flanagan anti-slot machine law. Despite the fact that there has been great pressure brought on the parole board and the governor for a pardon or parole for Calcutt before his sentence began, it was, in our opinion, right that such pleas were denied. Calcutt had been found guilty in the lower courts, using every technicality. When the Supreme Court upheld the actions of the lower courts it was nothing but right that the sentence should be served. To parole or pardon a person even before one day of a sentence is served is to make a mockery of the courts. It should not be said of North Carolina that a person with money could stay out of jail after being convicted, when the poor man without influential friends has to serve his time.

LET'S GO OVER THE TOP
While some solicitations for the USO funds to be raised here were made yesterday, the contributions so far are far below the $1,250 quota set for this county. The solicitations will continue, and again we urge everyone to give as liberally as they can. These funds will be used for the purpose of helping to care for the religious, social and recreational needs of the men in the ed forces of our government. Those of us who stay at home certainly should be willing to give a little money to help bring some happiness to those men who have left their homes and friends to render service to their country.

The Goose That Laid The Golden Egg

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinson

Washington — It isn't often that Washington gets any laughs out of Wall Street. But there wasn't a big gig in the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Treasury Department, the Commerce Department, or any other agency that has anything to do with the crossroads of American, and formerly world finance who wasn't chuckling or roaring the other day when they received copies of "The Bawl Street Journal."

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's favorite gag led to a column called "Washington Haywire"—a Broadway columnesque observation that Morgenthau's new theme song for Wall Street is, "I'll Be Down to Get You With The Taxes, Honey."

There was also a crack at the dollar-a-year men in the item that "Business leaders are criticizing their associates in this burg (Washington) for spending too much time with New Dealers."

Among the serious strikes causing hemming and hawing in capital circles, the Bawl Street Journal gave its attention to the spider strike. "Spider webs are a defense item," the Journal reporter noted. "The government hired bugmen to raise spiders to spin webs from which threads can be made for crosslines in firing sights. The spiders laid down on the job, issuing the ultimatum: 'We won't spin by a bomb sight!'"

Poking the SEC in the ribs, the Journal's capital correspondent reported: "The SEC will look into N. Y. stock exchange trading of the last week, following reports that trading had topped more than 10 shares in one day. SEC officials went to know if investors actually are buying again? Or is this a move to corner the market?"

There was not only one but three puns on Emil Schram, the new stock exchange president, and all three were the same: that the exchange membership hereafter is to be known as "Schram and eggs." The boys must love that one.

'Curb' Service.
One of the stories most often read over capital beer mugs had nothing to do with Washington. It was one to the effect that the New York curb exchange finally inaugurated real curb service.

Which leaves the only uncontracted item in this bureau's story a reported statement by Governor (then candidate) Broughton that he would rename six members of the School Commission. Actually four of the six were renamed and in the case of the other two circumstances had arisen which made it impossible to carry out any such agreement. John Polger was a candidate for Congress, sure of election. Jule Warren had resigned from the Commission as the result of events entirely disconnected with any gubernatorial campaign.

So the issue is clearly drawn. On the one hand is the statement of an informant your reporter is not at liberty to name that an agreement regarding Griffin was reached. On the other there is the clean-cut assertion of the Governor of North Carolina that no promise, expressed or implied, was given with respect to the School Commission secretary's retention or dismissal.

Short Shots

Raleigh, June 19 — Governor J. Melville Broughton has made no statement either in confirmation or denial of a report, published through this bureau, that friends of Wilkins P. Horton feel that there was a breach of gubernatorial agreement in the matter of Lloyd Griffin and the secretaryship of the School Commission.

Your reporter has learned on completely reliable information, however, that the Governor flatly and unequivocally denies having made any commitment of any sort with respect to retention of ouster of Griffin. He is reported, likewise, to have just as flatly denied having made any personal effort to influence Horton's decision last May on whether or not to call for the second primary to which the then Lieutenant Governor was by law entitled.

LOVE TO GOD AND MAN
The supreme object of the doctrine of the gospel is love. Jesus taught the same truth when He said of love to God and man, "This is the first and great commandment," the main object of the gospel and the chief aim of Christianity. Therefore, if we lack love all else will fail to secure for us a useful life and a happy death. We may have been baptized, confirmed and enjoy the privileges of church membership; but baptism, confirmation and membership in the church alone will not suffice to save us. We may fast and pray, keep clean the outside of the cup and the platter, work much in Sunday school, in church and elsewhere, give liberally, and make a nicely worded prayer, outward morality, work, giving, and profession; can not make us acceptable and pleasing in God's sight, nor procure our salvation. If we would please God, be a blessing to our fellow men, and secure our own salvation, then selfishness must be rooted out of our hearts and love to God and man must be implanted in them; love to man God demands that we love him above everything else, but does not require that we love him more than any other being or thing, but we are not to love Him with all the heart, and with all the mind, and with all the soul, and with all the mind. This means that love for Him is to fill our hearts, our souls, and our minds, but not so that there is no room in them for our fellowmen. Love to man manifests itself, as love for our neighbors and the second is like unto it. Thou shall love thy neighbor as thyself. Here we have the grand rule for behavior towards our fellowmen. We are to love them in the same measure in which we love ourselves. Christ has given us the commentary on this second commandment when he said: Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets.

Love to our neighbor is not merely a passive sentiment, but an active relation. It is doing something for him. He who loves his neighbor in this sense of the word will not knowingly and willfully injure him in person or property. He will be neither a tale bearer nor a tale hearer, but scorn backing and detraction of every kind. He will do nothing to wound his neighbor's feelings. He will bear with his infirmities and pray for him. He will desire in every way to do him good.

This And That.
Not all sun tans are acquired at the beach. Observers from buildings taller than the U.S. postoffice here say that Commander John Yarnell, in charge of Naval Reserve recruiting for this district, is getting a fine one by midway sies-

Christ has also illustrated the second commandment by the parable of the good Samaritan. The good Samaritan loved his neighbor, a Jewish stranger, when he came to his rescue in that lonely place along the roadside between Jerusalem and Jericho. The Levite and the priest passed by on the other side making no effort to aid the poor, bleeding man. The Samaritan had compassion on him, and went to him, dressed his wounds and then brought him to an inn where he paid for his lodging and the care the innkeeper would bestow on him. He did it all, knowing that the Jews despised him and his people. We love our neighbor when we thus seek his good and try to help him on through life. —JOAB T. TYSON.

COLORED NEWS

All 4-H Club members who are planning to attend the 4-H short course at A. and T. College will please come with your 4-H club leaders to the agent's office for a meeting Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Plans will be shaped during this meeting. It is found that more turkeys are in Pitt County this year than usual, and care should be given to their range. July, August and September are the most difficult months to supply grazing crops. Rape is relished by poultry and alfalfa is a good crop for summer pasturage. Be sure good shelters are provided for turkeys. It must be remembered that turkeys are very weakly especially in cold damp weather—that is the first six or eight weeks after hatching. Be sure to provide shelter, shade and fresh water for pigs.

Bill Severin Returns To Active Duty With 17-7 Win

EASY VICTORY OVER KINSTON

Kinston Comes Here For Double-Header Tonight

Bill Severin, who has been out of active duty for some time because of a bad leg, returned to active duty with the Greens last night and took a 17-7 win over the Eagles, who come here for a double-header tonight, the first game to start at 7:45.

Bill was never in any real trouble as the Greens got off in the first with one run and then pushed seven across in the second as the locals went on a batting spree.

Kinston made two in its half of the second, while the Greens added four more in the fourth, two in the sixth, two in the eighth and one in the ninth. Kinston got five in the eighth, but was too far behind for either Manager Rube Wilson or Severin to worry and the locals quelled the rally far short of a threat.

Greenville had 12 men left on bases, while every Kinston man who got on the bags scored, except one. Two Greenville double plays

13TH UNLUCKY TO BILLY CONN

Knocked Out After Piling Up Lead Against Louis

New York, June 19.—Joe Louis still retained the heavyweight boxing crown today, but only after he had fought a losing fight until the unlucky 13th round when he knocked out Billy Conn after two minutes and 58 seconds of the 13th.

The fighters had put on a show which had thrown more than 50,000 fans in the Polo Grounds into a delirium of excitement.

Billy apparently held a formidable margin on points, and it seemed for a bit that the mighty Louis was being battered straight to defeat when the challenger was caught by a smashing right hook to the chin in the 13th.

This blow staggered the game Irishman. Louis was after him immediately, throwing hooks and uppercuts at his swaying opponent's head until it seemed that Referee Eddie Josephs would halt the massacre.

Then a terrific straight right caught Conn flush in the face, and he wilted to the canvas. Here he lay, vainly trying to rise as Josephs tolled the count over him.

However, the Pittsburgh youth had slipped in wet spots in the ring in the first and tenth rounds. But only at the end was Louis able to put him to the floor.

After Conn got warmed up, he sent chills of fear up the spines of the men who had bet a 4-1-2 to 1 odds against his chances of victory. He proved himself a "modern Corbett" even though he did not come out with the title like the more famous Irish "Gentleman Jim" before him.

Conn's showing was so impressive

Larry Brown had a perfect day at bat, hitting two circuit blows in two official turns at bat. He was followed closely by Beland who hit a double and triple in three times, and C. Hunter's two for three. Andrews of the High school also hit for the circuit.

Clark, Edwards, Scott and Taylor led at bat for the winners.

Drastic Increases In Levy Proposed

Washington, June 19.—(AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee decided tentatively today to recommend drastic increases in surtaxes on individual incomes and to tighten up on corporation taxes. Profits taxes so as to raise an estimated $2,480,900,000 in additional revenue.

The new individual income surtax schedule was said to be more than double the tax bill of every taxpayer.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) announced the committee had voted tentatively to adopt an individual income tax program providing for imposition of surtax rates beginning at five per cent on the first $2,000 of taxable income and graduated up to the present maximum of 75 per cent. The latter rate starts on net income above $5,000,000.

WARREN FIGHT N.C. FARM DATA GOOD FOR NCEA IS AVAILABLE

Opinion Expressed In Raleigh By Local Supt. Rose

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, June 19.—The continuing battle in the North Carolina Education Association over ouster of its secretary Jule Warren not only is not hurting the organization, but on the contrary is "fine" for it, in the opinion of June Rose, Greenville superintendent of schools who last year was department commander of the American Legion.

Mr. Rose, though himself a superintendent, sees the root of the whole trouble as the "petty tyranny of small-caliber county superintendents and principals," who have not the proper conception of the true principles and practice of democracy.

He is not an official of the N. C. E. A., and will have no personal role in picking a successor to Mr. Warren, but he promises a vigorous battle to prevent the naming of "any superintendent, no matter who he may be" to the post.

"The whole question which caused the blowup was whether the association's secretary should be the 'hired help' of the entire membership, including the classroom teachers, or whether he should be a 'big shot' subject only to the will of a small group of superintendents," he said.

He contended that the point of the entire matter has been missed by a large part of press and public, in that the writing of a history textbook and the resulting controversy has been assigned as the exclusive cause of Mr. Warren's dismissal. That, he emphasized, is not accurate as the thing has been brewing for years.

"It could have been avoided by full and free discussion of the association's problems at its conventions," he said, "but those in power have adopted the foolish policy of attempting to keep things quiet by putting their foot on the lid. As often happens in the case of a sewer, the man-hole cover blew off at last. Now the air has been cleared and the association is in position to go forward again."

Farm Census Analysis Ready For Distribution

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, June 19.—The State Department of Agriculture has for distribution a "Special Farm Census Analyses Issue" of North Carolina Agricultural Statistics, prepared by the cooperative State-Federal Crop Reporting Service.

Commissioner W. Kerr Scott writing to Frank Parker, agricultural statistician of the department said of this issue:

"My study of the press proof impresses me that this work will be of incalculable benefit for the future farm planning and should put North Carolina years ahead in constructive studies of our farm problems."

Copies of the issue may be obtained by anyone interested by writing the Department of Agriculture, Raleigh, N. C.

The analyses give very detailed figures on various crops in all counties of the state.

"So far as we know, this is the first time that county agricultural statistics have ever been broken down into such county farm size groups for any state," it is stated.

The issue cites ten uses which may be made of the statistics:

1. A guide to methods of improving surveys collecting data.
2. Affairs weights for agricultural data which have been stratified according to size groups.
3. Commercial products for various crops and livestock items.
4. An aid in locating commercial farm areas.
5. Basis information for Vocational Agricultural School project.
6. Practical information for aiding various county activities.
7. A guide to determine low farm income areas.
8. An aid in locating "live-at-home" areas.
9. A guide in marketing farm products from surplus producers.
10. Diagnosis facts for measuring weaknesses and prescribing remedial.

Protection For Wall Maps.

Maps make decorative as well as instructive wall hangings for boys' rooms. Lay the maps on a flat surface, tacking down corners with thumb tacks, and quickly brush over the surface with clear shellac. When dry, hang the maps as desired. The shellac helps prevent the maps from tearing and makes them easy to clean.

"The auction system has justified its existence," he declared, adding that while it may be possible that at some future date some better plan may be offered, "so far the auction system is not only the best ever tried, but the best ever suggested."

The state senator and announced candidate for Congress called attention to the present control plan and declared that some such plan was essential to maintain prices.

He stated that a British victory was hoped for by all connected with the tobacco industry, adding that if Germany won the war American tobacco farmers would face the possibility of being forced to reduce their yield to domestic consumption—which would be only about 50 per cent of the present yield.
