PEACE SOUGHT FOR SOUTHERN COAL INDUSTRY

Terms Reached Between Union and Northerners

STRIKES PERSIST IN OTHER AREAS

No Indications Of Peace In Sight For San Francisco Shipyards Tied Up By Machinists Walkout

By The Associated Press

A new conference was called today between Southern Appalachian soft coal producers and the CIO United Mine Workers in a drive to obtain complete labor peace in the coal industry.

Owners and union officials had before them the two-year agreement signed yesterday by the CIO-UMW and northern producers, a document which represented a formal end to a long, drawn-out wage dispute.

While labor difficulties persisted in San Francisco shipyards, the Puget Sound lumber camps and on some Great Lake ships, a four-day strike of municipal employees at McKeesport, Pa., ended, as did a steel strike at Apolo in the same state.

No action toward ending the strike of AFL and CIO machinists at 11 San Francisco shipyards developed as a result of an AFL mass meeting.

However, Harvey W. Brown, international president of the AFL union, still declared himself hopeful of an early settlement which would permit construction to proceed at full speed on $500,000,000 in defense ship orders.

Brown summoned the San Francisco local executive council to a meeting tonight. He declined to say what action he would ask, but said he had been in touch with Washington.

In a Washington development, the House Naval Committee was reported to be considering complete abandonment of a bill it placed on the calendar a month ago calling for a 30-day cooling off period before defense strikes could begin, and freeing existing open and closed shop agreements in defense plants.

Instead, some members said, the committee probably would recommend a more simple bill which would authorize President Roosevelt to issue an order, upon approval of the National Defense Mediation Board, prohibiting the "assisting" of a strike.

No Outward Signs Of War; But Soviets Gear Machine

Aid For Russians Talked In London

Britain Weighs Possibility Of Actively Helping Soviet Union If That Country Becomes Next Victim On Hitler Invasion Schedule

London, June 20.—(AP) The British weighed today a policy of aid to Soviet Russia in event she, and not Britain, is next on Adolf Hitler's invasion schedule. The question of United States support of such a plan was a consideration.

But, on the chance that Hitler would be able to strike a bloodless bargain with Joseph Stalin, freeing the Germans for an all-out thrust against the British Isles, the RAF was engaged in an unprecedented offensive of obstruction.

Last night was the ninth successive night in which the RAF had pounded either the German bases on the invasion coast or industries and communications in western Germany or both. This time the targets were industrial Cologne and Dueseldorf.

Some British sources, following the lead of the London Standard, a newspaper published by Minister of State Lord Beaverbrook, a key figure in the Churchill government, declared that if the Russians go to war against Britain's enemy "they would be our allies and it is reasonable we would give them whatever aid possible."

There was no speculation, however, as to what form that help might take.

The Standard noted the problem of the United States' attitude when it said Britain should try "to make our friends, the Americans, understand" the reason for a British-Russian alliance against Germany if ever the alliance is deemed necessary.

Most observers felt that Britain would be Hitler's next all-out objective when he could settle with Russia—either by parleys or panzer divisions.

Fighting Rages In Ethiopian Battle

Rome, June 20.—(AP)—The Italian high command reported today fierce fighting had broken out again in Ethiopia.

A strong British attack three days ago in the Gondar zone was repulsed with 400 British casualties, and a surprise attack against the Italian garrison at Debra Tabor the same day was broken up by a counter attack, the communique said.

U.S. U-BOAT IS LONG OVERDUE

Rescue Ship Falcon And Other Subs On Scene

Portsmouth, N. H., June 20.—(AP) The navy reported today that one of its oldest submarines, the O-9, a small undersea boat recently brought back into commission, was four hours overdue.

The rescue ship Falcon, which aided in finally bringing the Squalus to the surface, was reported at the scene.

Admiral John D. Wainwright said the craft was making a dive in 370 feet of water.

The O-9 normally carried between two and four officers and around 30 men.

Five other submarines also were rushed to the scene.

The test dive was off the Isle of Shoals, not far from where the Squalus sank two years ago with the loss of 26 lives.

Deep concern was expressed by navy men here because of the great depth of the water in which the O-9 was operating.

Another Liquor Car Nabbed by Patrolmen

State Highway Patrolman R. W. Young of Ayden, who is establishing quite a record in breaking up rum-runners during his patrol activities on highways in his area, last night nabbed another liquor laden car, but the driver got away.

While patrolling on the St. Johns road the officer met a car he suspected to be hauling liquor. Young started to turn his car around, but the driver of the car ditched it, jumped out and fled.

The patrolman searched the car and found 10 gallons of bootleg liquor. He stored the car pending a check on the owner and driver of the vehicle.

Teachers At College Visit Chicod School

A class of twenty primary teachers from East Carolina Teachers College in directed observation, conducted by Miss Dora Coates, spent Wednesday at the Chicod school studying the plan of a big consolidated school and experimenting with the problem of the arrangement of the seats and other equipment, deciding on what was best for children.

They were especially impressed by the ample space in the new first grade rooms and other things which furnished the best working conditions for young children.

The group went in a bus and took their Wednesday night "bag supper" so they could picnic on the school grounds. Singing as they came into town, they seemed more like a party of picnickers than like a college class.

CONFIDENCE IN DEFENSE CITED

Although Moscow Is Perfectly Calm Red Army And Reserves Under Intensive Military Training; Finland Also Calls Up Reservists

Moscow, June 20.—(AP) There was no outward indication in Moscow today that Soviet Russia expects an invasion, but the government newspaper, Izvestia, declared that "neither through the forests, nor the steppes, mountains nor seas will the enemy ever step across the forbidden boundary."

While the capital was perfectly calm, intensive training of the Red army and its reserves was under way throughout the Soviet union.

The Russians were represented as ready to answer blow for blow any attempt to violate the Soviet frontier.

This stand was reiterated by Izvestia when it said "the enemy" would never trespass on the far-flung borders. Izvestia's declaration came in a description of the special border units "who keep watch all year round, day and night, alert on horses and camels, or drawn by reindeer."

(The words gave full geographical scope to the watchfulness of the Soviet union over her frontiers.)

Helsinki, Finland, June 20.—(AP) The Finnish Defense Ministry today ordered reservists of all classes up to that of 1897—members of which are 43 and 44 years old—to report for service immediately. Military punishment was ordered for those failing to obey.

For the last two days calls for various groups of reservists have been issued as Finland, alarmed by rumors of an impending clash between Germany and Soviet Russia prepared to defend herself.

Finnish leaders have expressed fears that their country could not escape involvement should conflict come between her two mighty neighbors.

Two Draft Boards Receive New Calls

The two Pitt County Selective Boards today received additional calls for white men to report here on July 9 to be sent to Fort Bragg for induction in the U. S. Army.

Board No. One is instructed to send 28 and Board No. Two 31 on that date.

Each board already has instructions to send 10 men on June 27. This makes a total of 79 Pitt county white men to be inducted into service within a period of about two weeks.

The latest calls were for the largest number yet received by the local boards and indicates the speed with which the army is increasing its military personnel.

Each of the two local boards also received calls to send 15 Negro registrants to Camp Jackson on July 10.

Raleigh, June 20.—(AP)—In the largest single draft call yet issued in North Carolina, State Selective Service headquarters informed local draft boards today that 3,429 white youths and 1,000 Negroes would be called to the colors during July.

For the first time, some of the whites will be inducted at Fort Bragg, and all of the Negroes at Fort Jackson.

Phoney Flat, Sedan, Kas.—(AP)—A traveling salesman was listening to a program on his car's radio when the announcer said: "Sh-hhhh-hhh—" so abruptly and so loudly the salesman jumped out and ran around looking at all his tires before it dawned upon him it was just part of the broadcast.

LOSSES IN MAY SHOW DECLINE

Britain Reports Loss Of 98 Vessels In Past Month

London, June 20.—(AP)—Britain's shipping losses for May totalled 98 vessels 461,328 tons, the announced today.

The reported losses were approximately 120,000 tons less than those for April although, the Admiralty said, the May figures "include" losses suffered in the eastern Mediterranean during military operations.

"The Germans claimed to have sunk during the month of May 805,000 tons of merchant shipping," the announcement continued. "The Italians have been content with a claim of 56,000 tons, making a total enemy claim of 862,460 tons."

The Admiralty said that losses of German and Italian vessels and of ships "useful to the enemy" during May were estimated at 299,000 tons and that the total of these losses from the beginning of the war to June 10 was estimated at 3,211,000 tons—1,888,000 tons of German ships, 1,293,000 Italian and 84,000 "useful to the enemy."

"I want to add my word of appreciation of the splendid work of the North Carolina Symphonic Choir. I enclose herewith copy of a letter I have received today from Honorable Homer M. Adkins, Governor of Arkansas, concerning the appearance of this choir in Little Rock."

In sending a copy of the letter to Mayor Sugg, Governor Broughton wrote: "In view of your interest in the North Carolina Symphonic Choir, I enclose herewith copy of a letter I have received today from Honorable Homer M. Adkins, Governor of Arkansas, concerning the appearance of this choir in Little Rock."

The choir also has received many commendations through the press and by officials in other cities and states on the itinerary.

Task Is Completed By Board No. One

Pitt County Selective Service Board No. One today was completing the task of sending out questionnaires and officials warned any registrant who had not received a questionnaire to get in touch with the board at once.

It was explained that if a registrant has not received his questionnaire it is his duty, and not that of the board, to investigate.

Board No. Two today was sending out questionnaires up to 3,025 and will continue working at top speed with the task scheduled to be completed next week. Board No. Two has 4,002 registrants.

Declares U.S. Does Not Propose Yield Use of High Seas

Washington, June 20.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today described the sinking of the Robin Moor as ruthless and the act of "an international outlaw," and declared that the United States did not propose to yield use of the high seas to Germany.

The President made his pronouncement in a special message to Congress.

Mr. Roosevelt stated without qualification that the vessel was sunk by a German submarine.

He said the general purpose of the sinking "would appear to be to drive American commerce from the ocean wherever such commerce was considered a disadvantage to German designs."

Its specific purpose, he said, "would appear to be interruption of our trade with all friendly countries."

"We must," he added, "take it that notice has now been served upon us that no American ship or cargo on any of the seven seas can consider itself immune from acts of piracy. Notice is served upon us, in effect, that the German Reich proposes to intimidate the United States that we would be dissuaded from carrying out our chosen policy of helping Britain to survive."

"In brief, we must take the sinking of the Robin Moor as a warning to the United States not to resist the Nazi movement of world conquest. It is a warning that the United States may use the high seas of the world today only with Nazi consent."

"Were we to yield on this we would inevitably submit to world domination at the hands of the present leaders of the German Reich."

"We are not yielding and we do not propose to yield."

Mr. Roosevelt proposed to Congress no line of action or retaliation.

Apparently he chose the vehicle of a special message so he could couch his protest in the most forceful language at his command.

EDR RESTRICTS OIL SHIPMENTS

Commodity Subjected To Export Control Official

Washington, June 20.—(AP)—By direction of President Roosevelt, all petroleum products were subjected today to export control, and exports from the eastern seaboard may be made only to the British empire, Egypt and the Western Hemisphere.

The White House disclosed that the President had directed the export control administrator to place the restrictions on oil products.

A plan will be prepared, the White House said, for the most effective use of tanker facilities in supplying petroleum to the eastern seaboard and the other American republics.

Further restriction of shipments of petroleum from the Gulf or Pacific ports is not contemplated, the White House said.

The chief executive acted, apparently, because of a threatened shortage of oil and gasoline along the eastern seaboard. The shortage has become imminent because of lack of transportation facilities, resulting from the transfer of tankers to Britain.

Fall Of City Is Expected At Any Time

British Bombers And Fleet Units Aiding in Campaign; French Dispatches Of British Reverses in Drive On Beirut Not Borne Out By Official Allied Reports On Operations

London, June 20.—(AP) Allied troops, hammering at the gates of Damascus, were reported today hopeful of fully occupying that ancient Syrian capital "in a matter of hours."

Reports from Cairo said British, Indian and Free French units were attacking from three sides after the French commander and governor, General Heri Dentz, disregarded a British demand for the capital's capitulation yesterday morning.

Beirut dispatches that French troops had ejected Hindu soldiers from the airport of Mezzeh, about three and one-half miles west, in a bitter struggle early yesterday, were not born out by British sources. The French said they took 160 prisoners.

Two of the British assaults on the capital were along the roads leading from Kiseou and Junetra. French snipers and machine-guns have been laying down a furious fire from the slopes above these roads.

British bombers systematically attacked French concentrations around the capital.

The left flank of General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson's army driving along the coast, meanwhile has been within sight of Beirut, the Lebanon capital, for several days.

British naval sources in Alexandria said the fleet was sporadically "shelling Vichy troop columns and supply bases wherever their destruction" aided the land drive on Beirut.

Vichy admitted yesterday that its troops in this sector were exhausted after a 12-day-old "unequalled" struggle and that the counter-offensive had run its course for lack of fresh manpower.

Vichy, Unoccupied France, June 20.—(AP)—French military sources reported tonight the British were rushing up English regiments to reinforce the Indian and De Gaulle troops in the battle of Damascus.

All attacks, they said, have been repulsed.

The heaviest action was declared to be taking place some six miles southwest of the 4,000-year-old capital of Syria, where the British sought to capture the airbase of Mezzeh. French reports said that of two battalions, (perhaps 6,000 men) attacking the airport, some 400 prisoners were taken.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Brim.
Greensboro, June 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brim had as overnight guests Tuesday at their home on Sunset drive, Irving Park, Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Winborne White and three sons, Jonathan White, Jr., Donald White and Philip Louis White, all of State College, Pa., where Mr. White, internationally known soil chemist, is professor of soil technique at Pennsylvania State College. Philip White is a student at State and his brothers are graduates. Mr. White is an uncle of Mrs. Brim.

They were en route from a visit in Eastern North Carolina, particularly to Mr. White's native Greenville where they attended the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Overton, sister of Mrs. Brim, and Frank Payne of Norfolk, Va., which took place Saturday at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. Mrs. Brim and her daughter, Dolly, attended the wedding.

Tuesday night Mrs. Brim gave an informal supper for her nephews, who made their first trip south. They expressed the desire for introduction to three things on their invasion below the Mason Dixon line — barbecue, fried chicken and southern girls. They had their fill of barbecue "down east" and Mrs. Brim added the fried chicken and four of Greensboro's most attractive belles: Miss Mary Power Frazier, just graduated from Fairmont College, Washington; Miss Jean Stafford, home from Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C., and soon to take off for two months at Blowing Rock as assistant riding counselor at Camp Yonahlossee; Miss Sudee Graham-Clark, just home from Sweetbriar College and finals at Virginia Military Institute; and Miss Margaret Taylor, home after finishing her junior year at Hollins College. He was elected the first research lecturer at Pennsylvania State College, has contributed to numerous chemical and agricultural publications and belongs to many chemical organizations.

Over a million volunteer workers of Bundles For Britain are being mobilized to lend their assistance to the drive launched by the United Service Organization for National Defense. Mrs. Latham, national head of Bundles For Britain, explained that while there is to be no relaxation of aid to Britain, Bundles For Britain wants to cooperate in this worthy and patriotic U. S. O. drive. Mrs. Latham asked all branches "to add what you do for your own troops to what you are doing for those in Britain in the thick of the battle. During the summer I beg of you to throw yourselves with greater ardor into our freedom upon the earth. Won't you too as a patriotic American join in the wide activities of Bundles For Britain?"

SIX COUNTIES ON URBAN SIDE

Only Half Dozen In N.C. As Much As Half "City"

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, June 20.—Only half a dozen counties in North Carolina are as much as half urban in population, according to "Population," an official United States Census Bureau publication just released.

And those living in Wake, home county of the state's capital, will not be surprised to find that theirs isn't one of the six, while Pasquotank (where, according to the old song "bullfrogs jump from bank to bank") is.

On the other end of the line there are no less than 43 counties among the hundred composing North Carolina which have no urban population at all.

The Census Bureau's classification of "urban," incidentally, is based on incorporated towns of 2,500 or more. Persons living in such localities are "urban," all others are "rural."

Durham has the largest percentage of urban population, with three-quarters of its 80,244 inhabitants classified. There follow in order New Hanover 69.7 per cent; Mecklenburg 66.5 per cent; Guilford 63.6 per cent; Forsyth 63.1 per cent and Pasquotank 56.2 per cent.

Additional evidence that the state is still predominantly rural lies in the fact that density of the population was only 72.7 per square mile with the area set at 49,142 square miles. The area varies slightly from that given with previous population censuses as a result of more recent and, presumably, more accurate measurements.

Only half a dozen counties have a density of more than 200 persons per square mile. With one exception these are the same as the counties having more than half urban population. Gaston replaces Pasquotank for the only change in the roster. Forsyth's 298.3 persons per square

No other county has as much as 60 per cent urban population.

When all is said about the different counties it all adds up to a state of 3,571,623 people, of whom only 27.3 per cent in live towns of more than 2,500. This is a slight increase in proportion since the 1930 census when 25.5 per cent of the population was classed as urban.

The counties having no urban population whatever are Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Bertie, Bladen, Brunswick, Camden, Caswell, Chatham, Cherokee, Clay, Currituck, Dare, Davie, Duplin, Franklin, Gates, Graham, Greene, Hertford, Hoke, Hyde, Jackson, Lee, Madison, Macon, Mitchell, Montgomery, Northampton, Onslow, Pamlico, Perquimans, Person, Polk, Stokes, Transylvania, Union, Washington, Warren, Watauga, Yadkin and Yancey.

mile leads, with the next five in this order: Mecklenburg 260.1; Durham 268.4; New Hanover 247.1; Gaston 244.5; and Guilford 238.4.

Folks in Hyde have more room to stretch in than those of any other county, with only 12.4 persons per square mile. Other counties under 20 are Tyrrell 13.9, Dare 15.6, and Brunswick 19.6; while between 20 and 25 are Pender 20.7, Graham 21.3, Transylvania 22.4, Camden 22.8, Jones 23.4, Onslow 23.7, and Currituck 24.6.

THE DANGER

YESTERDAY: At last the Nagaras, guardians of Shy-a Nago, the hidden Asiatic city, have come for Anne Willard, to take her to their capital, where her parents are being held prisoners. But the Nagaras have taken all the personnel of the Willard's archaeological expedition as well, including Blaze Sherwood, the latest and least wanted member. Anne is trying to do something to help Blaze who is being treated harshly—the guard at Sherwood's tent seems afraid of her.

Chapter 29 Midnight Meeting

Anne laughed and took a quick step towards him and he retreated a step with a shamefaced giggle. He knew she was teasing him, yet nevertheless he intended to take no chances.

With a quick move Mackey unbent and pushed open the door. The young fellow was on him with a bound. They rolled on the earth and rose, facing each other. Sherwood had come to the door.

"Cut it out, Pete," he called sharply.

A guard from the big iron studded gate rushed across. Both natives seized Mackey.

Anne warned Sherwood as if he read her intention to interfere.

"We just wanted to talk to you a moment and give you the robe," she explained.

Sherwood spoke to his personal guard. He had discovered that the boy knew something of the situation. The two natives conferred between themselves for a moment, then said something to Sherwood. He spoke to Mackey.

"They say you can take the robe from Anne and give it to me. Then you must return to your tent and stay there." Anne handed Mackey the robe and asked Sherwood:

"Did they let you eat your noon lunch?"

"The guard and I ate it together. I'm not treated too badly."

He was pushed back and the door drawn shut by his guard, while the other led Mackey to the yurt.

Philip and Doddap returned and the gate was barred.

Anne looked out and spied the lama kneeling beside the tent. She went and stood beside him. He rose.

"Are you been able to talk to Blaze?" she asked.

"I fed him supper and washed his face."

"That was good." She smiled at the picture he conjured up. "Do you know what the Nagaras intend to do with him?"

"They take him to the high priest. Then, they say, the sacred dagger will inflict vengeance as it has on every one who sees Shy-a Nago without the right."

"This dagger I carry?" Anne exclaimed, putting her hand on the leather case.

"It has killed all the others."

"I'd like to destroy it," she said slowly.

"It is your protection. You would destroy yourself and the rest of us."

"If only we could help Blaze escape!"

"You wish to talk to him?"

"Could it be done?"

"I'll give the guard a deep sleep. With a club?" she asked humorously.

"With my magic." She stared at him a moment.

"All right, Doddap, if you can do it."

"Rest just inside the door until I call you."

Instead of joining the other girls at the back of the tent Anne did as the lama told her, wrapping herself in a handsome argali skin.

Philip roused and looked at her.

"That's a drafty spot," he said.

"I like it."

He closed his eyes and slept.

Explanation:

Sometime past midnight Anne was awakened by the lama gently pulling her hair. She crept out quietly and they stole across the dark yard. He opened the door carefully and closed it behind her. She stood quiet to get her bearings. In a night in the wall sat a saucer of fat with a rag wick burning in it. Otherwise the hut was bare except for the pile of fells upon which Sherwood lay, covered by the fur robe she had sent him, his duffle bag for a pillow.

His eyes were bright upon her and a smile quirked his mouth.

"You seem to be all right," she said, walking towards him. He moved over, kicking the robe down and she saw that his hands were bound to the belt at his waist.

"Sit beside me," he said. After a moment's hesitation she complied examining the cords on his wrists.

"Do they hurt?"

"Only my free spirit. Will you take them off?"

"I guess we'd better let them be. It might make your guard suspicious if he discovered they're been tampered with. I came to see if we could plan an escape for you."

"Don't be silly," she said, "this may mean death."

"I know it, Anne," he agreed seriously. "I have known all along that the Nagaras are not people to monkey with."

"Then why did you fly over their territory?"

"I had intended just to scout the border searching for those fool Russians. I saw a ruined village. Then I saw a high bare basin and a band of men riding across it. I mistook them for the Russians and landed in their line of travel. When the bullets began coming I left. But I had seen the hidden city. . . . O Anne! A look of awe and delight came into his face. "It is wonderful! It is unbelievable!" Moisture glistened in his eyes and he closed the lids. She watched him with quivering lips.

"And now you will never see it again unless you escape."

"How can I escape? Doddap may work on one guard but you can't expect him to befuddle the whole tribe."

"You've got to escape or they'll kill you." She beat his shoulder with her fist. "Listen to what I say."

He rubbed his rough chin against her temple. "Precious. If that's the road my body goes nobody can do anything about it."

She sat up, hunting for another handkerchief in her coat pocket.

"You can do something about it. You're ingenious. You're clever as a wizard when you want to be."

"There may be a chance tomorrow," he conceded. "I hear we're climbing a strip of mountain that can be taken only afoot."

"Then you'll promise to try to escape?"

"If you'll be kind to me now. Bend over and kiss me, Anne."

She eyed him disparagingly.

"Blaze, we're on opposite sides in this war—you're not my friend and I'm not yours."

"No? But we love each other. Kiss me, precious."

She sighed and bent to him. Presently she said, "I like it better when your face is shaved."

"If this imprisonment keeps on much longer I'll have a long, silken beard. You'll like that."

She laughed, her eyelashes still tangled with tears. "The way you talk."

"Talk is all I can do."

Her arm tightened about him and she pressed her free hand against the swift, hard beating of his heart. His lips touched her throat, and he whispered, "Untie my hands."

The door opened and she sprang to her feet. Blaze laughed.

"Go now," said the lama in his hindlike voice.

"I wish it had been Mackey," grinned Sherwood.

Anne spoke hastily to the lama. "He promises he'll try to escape tomorrow."

Hard Travel

"Go now," repeated Doddap as if those were the only words of English he knew. Anne stared at him perplexedly a moment, gave Blaze a confused, "Good night," and left.

They started out next morning on horseback, accompanied by half a dozen picked native men under the same leader as the day before. A deep narrow gorge led them by the face of the mountain. Sometimes the path wound between boulders beside the brawling torrent, sometimes up precipitous slopes so far above the river that only a gentle murmur could be heard from it. They dismounted and crossed incredibly high wooden bridges that sagged and swayed at every step. The women were almost in hysterics by the time a halt was called for lunch. The trail ahead would be too difficult and dangerous for horses.

"Are we going to ride mountain goats from here on?" asked Beth as she slid to the ground from her panting horse and lay there.

"Now we walk," said Anne, dropping down beside her.

"Not me unless I'm pushed and pullled."

"That's probably the way it shall be," remarked Mackey, joining them.

They had stopped in an open cove high up on the side of the gorge where a traverse cut into the canyon, its mouth filled with tumbled cliffs and boulders large as houses. The natives built a fire, heated water for tea to which they added butter and parched barley in the Tibetan style. Even Diana downed her share. Sherwood who had traveled with them, unbound today, sat near her.

She moved close and began a confidential conversation with him which Anne caught herself watching with all the intensity of a jealous wife. It seemed to contain a good deal of banter from Sherwood at first then surprise and interest that intensified to something like a love combat—aggressive pleading on his part, sudden archness on hers.

"He should be planning his escape now," thought Anne and looked across at Doddap who sat between two big rocks beating his small drum and chanting a prayer. She rose to go over to the little spring that trickled out of the mountain side. Mackey went with her.

"That's the opportunity for Blaze," she declared, as they washed their food bowls at the spring and took a drink of water. "Maybe the lama will—"

"Say," interrupted Mackey, "that little heathen's gone deaf or something on me today. He can't seem to understand a word of English."

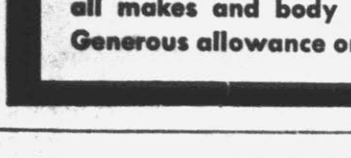

"What?" cried Anne. "Last night he treated me the same way."

It was then the shot came, reverberating sharply through the gorge. A native, bending over the fire, fell face down in the ashes and lay still. Another shot, from up the side glen, they saw, and another native fell.

"Everybody down," shouted Sherwood, "this is war." And he threw himself behind a rock, taking Diana with him.

GOT A DATE?
Don't neglect your Breath

If you've got a date with the girl friend, or a business appointment, play smart and take the proper precaution to see that your breath doesn't offend unnecessarily. After all, nothing is so inexcusable and so offensive as a neglected case of halitosis (bad breath). Before your next date or business appointment, rinse the mouth with Listerine Antiseptic. Almost immediately your breath becomes sweeter, purer, less likely to offend. Most cases of halitosis, say some authorities, are due to the fermentation of tiny food particles in the mouth, although some cases may be due to systemic disorders. Against the former condition, Listerine Antiseptic works wonders because it first halts the fermentation and then overcomes the odors it causes. Don't forget to use it. It's the first aid kit of thousands of popular and successful people.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE MODERN MOOD.
The great psychiatrist, Dr. Jung, has said: "One-third of my patients suffer from no clinically definable disease but from the restlessness and emptiness of their lives. It seems to me, however, that this can well be described as the general neurosis of our time."

In all the history of the race, men and women have never had such a pleasant world-full of things as they have had in this age. The poorest today have what kings could not purchase a century ago. Yet in spite of this plethora of material blessings, men have grown so restless that they are now engaged in the elevating enterprise of cutting each other's throats. It has happened in the family of nations as it has so often happened in individual families, that material advantages have made people miserable rather than happy.

To possess some blessing and not to share it with others and use it to their benefit, results in a terrific mental kick-back. The asylums are full of people who had so many things they did not know what to do with them, and because they didn't know what to do with them, they misused them and went haywire.

We should sit up and take notice when one of the world's greatest psychiatrists says that restlessness and emptiness of life is a general characteristic of our time.

DEFENSE BONDS

When President Roosevelt delivered his address opening the sale of defense savings bonds, he rightly emphasized the national character of the campaign. To perpetuate democracy in the New World, and preserve the American way of life, the United States is engaged in an all-out effort to aid Great Britain and other democracies resisting totalitarian aggression, and build for the Western Hemisphere a total defense. Preparedness will require the expenditure of vast sums of money. Through the savings program, as the President pointed out, every American citizen will have an opportunity "to share in the defense of all the things we cherish against the threat that is made against them"—a threat that "can be found at the threshold of every home in America."

The program has three principal objectives. First, to raise money for rearmament. Second, to prevent inflation and its attendant ills by using the savings of as many citizens as possible to help meet the country's defense bill. And third, to provide American citizens with financial reserves to cushion the shock of a later shift from a war to a peace economy. Backed by the United States Government, the bonds and stamps that go on sale today offer buyers an attractive rate of return on their investment—an investment to guarantee their future security.

Results of the campaign, in a real sense, will measure the determination of the American people to back their Government in the present crisis. Since they have already evidenced their approval of the defense and aid-to-Britain program, there is every reason to believe that the response to the President's appeal will prove that defense has the backing of a united Nation.

teachers who make up an overwhelming majority of the membership, a majority, however, which does not extend to voting power on the committee which will select a Warren successor.

Allison was president of the class room teachers a year or so ago, succeeding Miss Agnes McDonald, sister of the stormy petrel of North Carolina politics, Dr. Ralph W. McDonald. He is extremely popular with the rank and file and his ability is widely recognized in legislative and school circles.

In this year's General Assembly he was quite influential, doing yeoman service for the class room teachers' program. One of the cardinal objectives for which he fought—teacher's tenure—was not completely attained, but at the same time enough was accomplished to give the impression that the camel's nose is in the tent and before long the program will be enacted in full by the lawmakers—maybe not in 1943, even, but within the next five years at any rate.

The Why Of Calcutt

The question has been repeatedly asked how it was possible for such a case as that of Fayetteville's Joe Calcutt to develop in the ordinary law abiding state of North Carolina and how, once it had arisen it was possible for the slot machine king to produce such an overwhelming array of character witnesses.

The answer is quite obvious to anyone who has read the report of Judge Henry Stevens on conditions in Cumberland county or the record of the SBI investigation of the same county. Also it is equally obvious to anyone who has visited Cumberland.

Here it is: Down there they just pay no attention to the state laws when they don't meet with local approval. Slot machines, including one arm bandits, operated openly in such places as Steve's restaurant and a big Esso station on the main street. In roadhouses and taverns mixed drinks were advertised by printed price lists on menus and on walls.

City officials of Fayetteville had this latter condition called to their attention by representatives of the Brewers and North Carolina Beer distributors in connection with issuance of beer licenses, as Colonel Bain's organization is working earnestly to disassociate beer from hard liquor. The officials were courteous, but slightly amused. They did nothing.

In short, Calcutt could and did get the endorsement of Cumberland's prominent people because the endorsers sincerely felt he had done nothing morally wrong.

This And That

Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott worked for three years to get an auditorium for State College, but when announcement of success was made recently, he received no mention whatever—with all credit going to Governor Broughton, the WPA and others, Secretary of State Thad Eure's suave courtesy completely won the hearts of the young ladies here for Girl's State mock legislature, but City Commissioner Roy Williamson made almost as big a hit when he announced a free ride for everybody on the Pullen Park merry-go-round.

'Our Bob' Still Capable Of Smoothing Rough Seas

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, June 13.—From Greensboro comes a story over which it seems easier to chuckle than to get more serious aspects, at that.

It concerns the recent Washington trip of Pierce Rucker, Senator Bob Reynolds' adju Achates in the Piedmont, and the reports of its results; but it starts with stationing of a large part of Guilford's national guardmen on the tropical island of Trinidad.

In chronological order here's the sequence of events:
Shortly after the Tar Heel soldiers arrived at their station some of them began writing letters home setting out in great detail the many, many things of which they had to complain, and it seems that complaining was one of the very best things they did.

Some of the letters written to parents were published in Wade Renfro's weekly in High Point, their general theme being a "Rhapsody in Blue" in which they lamented loudly over the "tropical heat, overwork, sharks, mosquitoes and insects." Their lot, it appeared, was far worse than the traditional unhappy one of the policeman.

All these letters, and their publication, created quite a stir among Guilforders who didn't like their sons being treated in any such fashion, even by Uncle Sam.

Whereupon Mr. Rucker indulged himself, the story goes, in a vigorous bit of figurative breast thumping and loud bellows to the effect that "They can't do that to our boys. I'll go to Washington, and see Bob about it." There's no testimony that these words are exact, but that's the general meaning.

So off to Washington went the large gentleman from Greensboro, with announced intention of securing an "immediate investigation" of conditions in Trinidad, the investigation to be proposed and pushed through by Senator Reynolds, not long beforehand elevated to chairmanship of the Military Affairs committee.

Folks in Guilford almost held their breath, waiting to hear the loud explosion, sure to take place when Rucker reached the Capitol. There were visions of "Our Bob" hopping post haste into an airplane and taking off without delay for Trinidad; probably carrying a broom to sweep things clean.

Nothing happened for quite a while, then at intervals of a day or so there occurred these developments:
1. Rucker's son, Walker Fry Rucker, 17, was appointed by Senator Reynolds to the Military Academy.
2. Press services carried a story that the Military Affairs committee would ask Congress for funds to finance a junketeering trip to inquire into the status of all the island bases acquired recently by the United States. This was strictly on an "if and when Congress recesses"

NEWS and FACTS ... of Statewide Interest

THE WORK GOES ON!

North Carolina's brewing industry has just closed its second year of "clean up or close up" activities—a self-imposed task of cooperating with state and local law enforcement officials to see to it that law-violations in retail beer establishments are not hidden behind legal retail licenses.

For us to say merely, that 171 undesirable law-violating outlets have been "closed up" through our cooperation with officials is to tell only part of the story. In many other ways—by friendly criticism, by warning or by recommending refusal of license renewals—our industry has said emphatically that it wants to protect the legitimate dealer from the consequences of the wrongdoings of the comparatively few.

This Committee pledges, as it enters its third activity year, that it will continue its unswerving efforts to help law enforcement officials maintain the general high level of beer retailing.

YOU, THE PUBLIC, can also continue your part in this cooperative movement by restricting your patronage to the law-abiding outlets.

Never-Say-Die Spirit Wins 10-Inning Game For Locals

GREENIES HOT LATE IN GAME

Overcome Kinston's 11-2 Lead Held In Last of Sixth

Many fans wonder how Greenville can be entrenched in second place in league standings and still remain at or near the bottom in team fielding and hitting, but the solution was clearly provided last night at Guy Smith park when the locals came to bat in their half of the sixth inning trailing by a 11-2 score and exhibited that never-say-die spirit.

Overcoming what appeared to be an unsurmountable lead — many fans left the park before the end of the game — the Greenies emerged with a 10-inning 13-12 victory.

Kinston scored in every inning between the first and eighth, getting four in the fourth, two each in the third, fifth and sixth and one each in the second and seventh.

The Greenies made two in the second, got three in the last half of the sixth to pull up to a 11-5 count, but still few fans held hopes the locals could overtake the Eagles. Each team scored one in the seventh, but Greenville's big inning came in the eighth when five runs were pushed across the plate, bringing Greenville up to within one run of knocking the count. With the score 12-11 against them at the start of the ninth, the Greenies held the Eagles.

McCarthy opened the Greenies half of the ninth, was advanced to second by Pinch-Hitter Kracke's sacrifice bunt, took third on a wild throw and raced home with the tying run on another wild pitch. This ended the scoring for the inning, however, and the game went into an extra inning.

The Greenies again held the Eagles in the first half of the tenth. Crowe walked. Wilson walked. Jenkins flied out but Crowe took third. Wilson holding first. Wilson then purposely got caught between first and second on feinting a steal to give Crowe an opportunity to come home. Crowe started for the plate and was caught between third and home; but scored the winning run when the Kinston third baseman muffed the ball during the chase.

The game lasted only eight minutes short of three hours. The second game of a scheduled double-header was started, but the mid-

Greenville used three hurlers, with credit for the win going to Adams who pitched only one inning, the tenth, after Scagg had been sent in to hit for Pickering in the ninth. Teller started the game and was relieved in the fourth inning.

W. GREENVILLE GETS 5 TO 1 WIN

Shows Complete Reverse Of Form From Yesterday

Showing a complete reversal of form over yesterday's humiliating defeat, W. Greenville defeated the league leading "A" team from Training School by the margin of 5-1.

Playing like "big leaguers" behind the three hit pitching of Floyd Dunn, the West Enders were unbeatable. Training School played good ball but were too weak at the plate to offer much of a threat, their only score came in the first on Snag Clark's long drive to left field in the first that was good for the circuit.

Howard Williams at third and Jr. Wright at shortstop showed up brilliantly on defense for the winners. Snag Clark with a single and homer led the hitting of the losers.

Box score: R H E Training School 010 000 0-1 3 2 W. Greenville 021 200 x-5 6 2 Register, Clark, Lupton and Co.; Dunn and Wingate.

High School went down before the pitching of Jesse Jordan of Third Street by the score of 8-2 this morning in the "A" league. Jordan allowed only three hits and had a comfortable lead from the first inning.

Leggett of Third Street was the only player on either team to connect safely more than once, he had three hits in four chances.

Box score: R H E High School 000 011 0-2 3 5 Third Street 322 002 x-9 10 2 Hunter and Musselwhite; Jordan and Garrett.

Third Street "C" team defeated the Training School this morning 11-7. This marks the third defeat

TAR HEEL UNIT PLAN REUNION

Famous Ambulance Corps Gather At Legion Meet

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL.
Raleigh, June 20.—A famous Tar Heel hospital unit will hold a reunion in Durham simultaneously with the American Legion's state convention, June 22, 23 and 24, Garland E. Bobbitt, president of the 317 Ambulance Company association, said today.

Members of the unit are scattered all over North Carolina, he said, as the unit was made up of volunteers from no particular city.

Bobbitt said that reservations for members attending have been made at the Washington Duke hotel.

Full program of the 317th's activities for the reunion will be announced in Durham Sunday, Bobbitt added.

The Ambulance company, though it served with a National Army (66th) division made up of drafted men from Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia, was actually organized by volunteers before the United States entered the World War in April, 1917. Its purpose was to go overseas and serve with the French, but when this country entered the war before it had actually sailed, the unit was incorporated in the United States army and later attached to the 80th (Blue Ridge) division, with which it served overseas.

It numbers many distinguished Tar Heels, among them Ben Prince chairman of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, who served as a bugler.

A picture of members of the organization, taken after the armistice, was designated by General John J. Pershing, the A. E. F. commander-in-chief, as the "most typical soldier picture taken of Americans in France."

8 HOURS SLEEP... Top of the Heap!

No other mattress at any price, can offer you all of the features which make Kingsdown so completely comfortable.

No other mattress that we know of has the Comfort Eyelet, illustrated below. The Hour Glass coils featured in Kingsdown are self-equalizing, and independently hinged to support every part of the body fully. The pre-formed Super-Edge of the Kingsdown gives full flexibility and long life, where other mattresses break down first. The Sisal insulation adds long years of comfort.

Come in and see the Mebane-Royall Kingsdown, and let us tell you how you can enjoy eight hours of sound sleep for less than a penny a day.
