NINE MILLION MEN LOCKED IN BITTER STRUGGLE

FAMOUS FLIER ASKS APOLOGY OF SEC. ICKES

Lindbergh Request Made In Letter to Roosevelt

LINDY EXPLAINS NAZI DECORAT'N

Famous Flier Flatly Declares That He Has No Connection With Any Foreign Government

New York, July 17.—(AP)

Charles A. Lindbergh today advised President Roosevelt that he had no connection with any foreign government, that he received a German decoration while serving the American embassy and declared that he had a right to an apology from Secretary of the Interior Ickes for "certain statements and implications."

Saying that he wrote as an American citizen, Lindbergh, who recently resigned as colonel in the Air Corps Reserve, wrote:

"For many months, and in numerous occasions, your Secretary of the Interior has implied in public meetings that I am connected with the interests of a foreign government, and he has specifically criticized me for accepting a decoration from the German government in 1926."

"Mr. President, is it too much to ask that you inform your Secretary of the Interior that I was decorated by the German government while I was carrying out the request of your ambassador to that government? Is it unfair of me to ask that you inform your Secretary that I received this decoration in the American embassy, in the presence of your ambassador, and that I was there at his request in order to assist in creating a better relationship between the American embassy and German government, which your ambassador desired at that time?"

Ickes in a radio address here on Monday night asserted that Lindbergh's "passionate words are to encourage Hitler and to break down the will of his own fellow citizens to resist Hitler and Nazism." He criticized the flier's attitude toward the Nazi invasion of Soviet Russia and referred to Lindbergh as the "Knight of the German Eagle."

Change Revival Date For Baptist Church

The date of the Fall revival of Memorial Baptist church has been changed from the original schedule because of the fact that the county fair has been set for that week and the revival will be conducted the week of October 13-19, it was disclosed today by Dr. J. D. Simons, the pastor.

Advised of the fact that a conflict existed, Dr. George Heaton who will conduct the services, wrote that the change would be satisfactory to him. Dr. Simons expressed the hope that the new date would not conflict with any other major interest of the community.

17 Axis Ships

London, July 17.—(AP)—Within the last 24 hours British bombers have put out of action 17 Axis ships totalling almost 100,000 tons and have struck smashing new blows at Hamburg and other industrial areas of the German Reich, the Air Ministry announced today.

The ships were smashed in a massed daylight assault on the port of Rotterdam in the German-occupied Netherlands, from which Nazi garrisons in occupied countries are largely supplied, a communique said.

It's Payday For Dollar-A-Year Men

July 16 was payday for the dollar-a-year men employed in the national defense program. E. R. Stettinius, Jr., (seated) priorities director, called his recipients into his office at Washington for distribution of the checks which ranged in amount from a few cents up to a whole dollar.

General Marshall Says Emergency Now Exists

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, testified today that there was an "urgent necessity" from a military standpoint for Congress to declare a national emergency, under which selectees reserves and National Guardsmen could be retained in service beyond the present one-year period.

U. S. PRESSING DEFENSE WORK Second Draft Lottery Is Scheduled For Tonight

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—The army's chief staff advocated before Congress today the "urgent necessity" of declaring a national emergency, while the Selective Service system prepared to draw lots for calling up 750,000 new draftees.

Under the congressional declaration asked by General George C. Marshall, draftees, reserves and National Guardsmen could be held in service for the duration of the emergency, rather than for just one year.

As the time (7 p. m. EST) approached for the draft lottery for newly registered 21-year-olds, there were these other developments on the Washington defense front:

Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of War, said more changes were in store for the army and its high command, to follow up the drastic reshuffling yesterday which gave new chiefs to the Caribbean defense, four army corps and the armored force.

A report came from the Navy that the date of the rate of a ship a day in the 40 days ending July 10. The 22 vessels included the 35,000-ton battleship South Dakota, two destroyers, a submarine and smaller craft including seven high-speed motor torpedo boats.

Rent control laws were forecast by Price Administrator Leon Henderson as a certainty in defense areas where voluntary methods failed to curb increases.

Defense officials passed along word that a new program for substantially increased production of tanks was being drafted.

The War Department announced "a substantial delivery" of a new light bomber which Undersecretary Patterson said would "out-perform any dive bomber in Europe."

Patterson also disclosed the land forces had reached a peace-time peak of 1,477,000 men.

The Federal Power Commission, working to meet defense needs for electric power, called for intensification of curtailment measures on non-defense uses of power in southeastern states.

Officers Capture Another Prisoner

Shelby, July 17.—(AP)—Officers announced today the capture of Norwood Thomas Dunn, second to be retaken of three convicts who broke away from a McDowell prison camp yesterday and later engaged in a gun battle with their pursuers.

Dunn, a 17-year-old youth serving a five to seven year sentence imposed in Edgecombe county for house-breaking and larceny, was apprehended here last night by two deputies, a farmer and a farm youth.

James May, 29, sentenced in Nash county to serve 25 to 30 years for second degree murder, was captured several hours earlier. A search was continuing today for the third, L. A. Smith, 23, serving 10 to 20 years under a conviction of store-breaking, larceny and receiving in Durham county.

U. S. DEFENSE PLANT HALTED BY DISORDERS

Production Stopped At Aircraft Equipment Unit

CROWD AT GATES STONE DAY SHIFT

Difficulties At Bendix, N. J., Plant Was Started In Protest Over Dismissal Of Nine Employees

(By The Associated Press)

Production of aircraft equipment was stopped at Air Associates, Inc., Bendix, N. J., today when a crowd of several hundred men and women stopped and forced the retirement of the day shift as it headed into the gates to work.

At least six persons were injured in the ensuing fighting between police and those who stopped the workers.

Difficulties started at the Bendix plant Saturday when members of the CIO-United Automobile Workers placed a picket line there in protest against dismissal of nine sheet metal workers.

About 400 of the plant's 700 workers are employed on the day shift. The crowd outside, which hurled missiles at the day shift approaching in a motor caravan, was estimated variously at 800 to 2,000.

R. E. Fowler, company public relations counsel, asserted that the attacking throng was composed mostly of CIO workers from the Brewster Aeronautical Company plant at Newark and the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company at Kearney.

At River Rouge, Mich., members of the CIO-Steel Workers Organizing Committee ignored a 30-day cooling off period imposed by the State Labor Mediation Board and went on strike at the Great Lakes Engineering Works, engaged in the building of lake ships for iron ore transport.

WPA Provides For Farm Labor Needs

Local WPA officials today called attention to a statement issued in Raleigh yesterday by C. C. McGinnis, state administrator, in which he declared that the agency wanted farmers to know that workers on its projects were always available when needed for farm work.

The state administrator said that each year when workers are needed to harvest strawberries, potatoes, peaches or any other crop the WPA cooperates fully with each locality in which there are jobs.

Mr. McGinnis' statement follows: "Anyone needing farm labor who is unable to obtain it at the prevailing farm wage, is advised to apply at the nearest State Employment Office. If the needed labor cannot thus be secured, farmers are requested to apply to any local official. He will make available any qualified workers under his jurisdiction. Employers should also feel free to offer a job to any qualified person whom they know is working on WPA. If anyone working on WPA is offered a job, whether through the State Employment Service, a WPA official, or directly by the person who wishes to hire him and refuses to accept the offer, he will be immediately terminated from WPA. This is providing, of course, that the wage offered is the prevailing one for similar work in the community, and that he is able to do the work offered, and that working conditions are reasonable."

"Citizens are requested to cooperate by advising the State Office of the WPA of any instance where a WPA official fails to cooperate in attempting to fill the labor requirements, or where a WPA project worker refuses to accept a bona fide offer of private employment. Prompt investigation will be made and appropriate action taken in each such instance reported."

"It is the purpose of WPA to provide useful public work for needy unemployed citizens who are unable to secure private employment. It is not the intention of the WPA to keep anyone employed on a project who is offered fair and reasonable private employment."

Find Missing Bride

Twenty-four hours after Mrs. Lenore Bowman (above), 18-year-old bride, was carried barefooted by her husband, Lynn V. Bowman, 19, from the home of her parents in an exclusive residential section of Kansas City, the missing new-llyeds were found seated in a station wagon parked on a downtown street in Wichita, Kas. They had been the objects of a wide search started by her father. Their wedding July 1 was followed by an annulment suit two days later.

PUSH DRIVE ON PARKING LAWS

Restricted Zone to Be Extended Effective August 1

Chief of Police George Clark today declared that the campaign against improper parking—especially in restricted zones—was meeting with success.

The chief also outlined the restricted zones.

Up to this morning a total of 62 tickets had been issued to the offenders having gone to the police headquarters to pay their one dollar fine. Chief Clark explained that cars known to be from out-of-town were not given the "pink" ticket for overparking, but were tagged with a welcome slip entitled the owner to park as long as he desired in any zone, but which does not entitle him to park by fire plugs or "no parking" areas.

The one-hour parking limit already is in effect on Evans street, from Third to Fifth streets, and on Fifth street from Five Points to Pleasant's College drug store.

The Board of Aldermen has passed an ordinance, becoming effective August 1, limiting parking to one hour on Fifth street from Five Points to Washington street, and Dickinson avenue between Five Points and Seventh street. No over-parking tags will be issued in these two areas, however, until after August 1.

As in the case of the old restricted zones, hours for the new areas will be from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m., and applies only to week-days.

Two other ordinances have been adopted by the board, effective August 1. All taxicabs will be required to carry a minimum of insurance of $10,000 for one passenger and $20,000 for two or more.

The other ordinance will prohibit shoe-shine stands being set up on the sidewalks on Sundays. Barber shops, shoe repair shops and other places with shoe-shining stands will be permitted to remain open from 7 a. m. until 1 p. m. each Sunday, but only for the purpose of shining shoes.

LARGE NUMBER JAP RESERVES RECEIVE CALL

Summoned As Accompaniment To Cabinet Crisis

NEXT JAP MOVE STILL UNCERTAIN

Nothing New To Indicate Whether Japan Plans To Move Against Russia Or Strike Elsewhere

Shanghai, July 17.—(AP)

An undetermined number of Japanese reservists, in addition to the vast number of men already under arms, are being called up as an accompaniment to the Japanese cabinet shift, according to reports received by foreign sources here.

Summoning of the reservists was first reported early this week, before the Kono cabinet resigned, and today's advice said that even soldiers discharged from the army in China a year and a half ago had been recalled to the colors, along with a number of reservists in Manchukuo.

The reports early in the week were accompanied by disclosure that the Japanese port of Kobe (most likely point of embarkation for any southward military move), had been, in effect, closed to foreigners for a 10-day period starting July 15.

The general belief here was that the new cabinet would put into effect decisions already reached, but whether Japan intends to move north against Russian Siberia, south into French Indo-China, Thailand, and The Netherlands East Indies, or intends any special move remains a matter of speculation.

Camp Dependant On Size Of Army

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—Erection of a new army base north of Durham, N. C., to house between 30,000 and 35,000 men, depends entirely on whether Congress votes an expansion of the U. S. Army, the War Department announced today.

Definite boundaries of the proposed cantonment have not been announced, but War Department sources said the area covered about 60,000 acres in northeastern Durham, western Granville and southeastern Person counties.

Funds for construction of 14 new camps, of which the Durham site is one, are believed to be part of a great Army supply bill now under consideration by a House Appropriations sub-committee.

The proposed camp would accommodate between 18,000 and 22,000 men. No funds are available at this time to buy the land for the 14 cantonments. The selections were made after a study of more than 100 proposed locations.

The 14 tentative sites were selected at this time so that the Quartermaster Corps and other Army agencies could perfect plans in the event the Army is expanded.

CALL MEET ON DAYLIGHT TIME

Board Of Aldermen To Act On Governor's Request

Mayor B. B. Sugg last night received a telegram from Gov. Broughton calling on the city to cooperate in the matter of adopting daylight saving time and he immediately called a meeting of the Board of Aldermen for 8 o'clock tonight to take action.

All interested citizens are invited to attend the meeting, at which time anyone desiring to be heard on the question will be given an opportunity to voice his views.

The County Board of Commissioners also is expected to be called into session to act on the question of daylight saving time.

Gov. Broughton's telegram pointed out that President Roosevelt had called on the governors of south-eastern states "to issue proclamations or to take other steps along cooperative lines to bring about observance of day light saving time, which procedure the President states is urgently needed to meet acute and growing shortage of power so essential in national defense."

The governor declared that it is his earnest desire to cooperate fully with the President and is asking governing boards of cities and counties throughout the state to advise him if their administrations are disposed to follow the suggestion of the President.

Mayor Sugg emphatically declared that he personally was anxious to cooperate in any way possible with the defense program and added that he felt the members of the board and all citizens of the city and county felt likewise.

Although there is no drain on the Greenville Utilities for power for defense plants or projects, the situation is so that the local plant may be called upon to hook on to other systems in a cooperative movement to provide power for such work.

It was explained that all the governing bodies can do is adopt daylight saving time for their respective employees and urge all business and industrial concerns to cooperate.

Russians Acknowledge Tank-Led Nazi Forces Have Broken Through To Vicinity Of Smolensk; German Speed Troops Declared By Berlin To Have Reached Point Only 110 Miles from Moscow

By The Associated Press
Adolf Hitler's high command declared that nine million troops were locked in a "tremendous struggle for a decision" on the eastern front today and that the Russians had thrown their last reserves into the 26-day-old conflict in an attempt to stem the Nazi blitzkrieg.

(By The Associated Press)
A "tremendous struggle for a decision" between nine million German and Russian troops was reported by Adolf Hitler's high command today, and Nazi dispatches claimed what appeared to be a complete 90-mile break through the center of the Stalin line.

A Reuters (British) news agency dispatch, however, from Moscow late today said Smolensk was still in Russian hands this morning. The German claim of its capture was made at that time.

DWB, the official news agency, reported that Hitler's invasion forces, storming through the center of the Stalin line, had captured Smolensk, 230 miles west of Moscow, and a Berlin spokesman indicated that German speed troops had raced ahead to within 110 miles of the Soviet capital.

A Moscow communique acknowledged violent all-night fighting in which German and Russian troops contended for mastery of the road to Leningrad.

The battle raged in the Pskov-Porkhov sector, 150 miles southwest of Leningrad. Details were lacking.

On the all-important central front, guarding Moscow, a critical hour has struck.

The Russians officially conceded that tank-led Nazi legions had broken through to the vicinity of Smolensk, key railway town about half way along the Minsk-to-Moscow motor highway, but they made no mention of the fall of the town.

The Germans asserted that protracted rear guard resistance by Red army troops in the center of operations had been crushed, and that the Nazi advance eastward was continuing swiftly.

On the southern end of the 2,000-mile battlefield, the Germans also reported the capture of Kishinev, capital of Bessarabia.

The Germans declared more than 1,000 Red army prisoners were taken in the Smolensk sector, including a Soviet division's chief of staff.

Without saying how the battle was going, the Soviet communique said very severe fighting also took place on the roads to Leningrad and Kiev, but fixed Pskov and Novograd as the vicinity of the battle. These are the same areas previously mentioned as the center of operations 150 miles from Leningrad and 130 miles from Kiev.

The Soviet command reported one victory, declaring that on the front south of Smolensk, the Germans had been swept back in a headlong retreat and an entire tank battalion destroyed in the process.

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department announced today the food stamp program for distributing surplus agricultural commodities would be extended to Wilson county, N. C.

CITES LAXITY HIGHWAY LAWS

Enforcement Declared By Free Lance To Be A Joke

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, July 17.—The almost perpendicular climb of North Carolina's highway accident and death graph is due to a laxity in law enforcement which would be a "joke," if it were not tragic, says a free lance safety worker who claims to have preached safety to two million school children and to have made at least 500 safety talks before North Carolina civic groups.

This "expert" is W. Y. Hoster of Charlotte, who says he spends his time going around preaching the gospel of safety on the highways.

His opinion is that the educational and engineering "Es" in Tar Heel safety work are being reasonably well looked out for, but he has nothing good to say of the enforcement angle.

He said that it is nothing at all unusual for solicitors to not-prosecute nearly half of all cases involving reckless or drunken driving charges on superior court dockets. Most of these cases are appeals from convictions in lower courts, and he added "if there was evidence enough to convict below, no solicitor has, or at least no solicitor should have the right to dismiss the charges without a hearing. He predicted flatly that the number of deaths and accidents on the highways will continue to increase steadily unless and until there is a marked change in the enforcement methods now in vogue.

The only long-range solution of the safety problem, however, he believes to be a carefully worked out inclusive course in the public schools, beginning in the first grade and continuing through graduation in high schools.

The value of scrap materials now being used in American industrial production is estimated in excess of a billion dollars.

HEARTBREAK HONEYMOON

YESTERDAY: Henry and Luella Pell are closer to separating over the question of Marie Mason and her charms than either of them would like to admit. And now Henry has dashed home to pick up his bag and take a train for Chicago, on business, and Luella has suggested that they have a second honeymoon. But Henry says it can't be done.

Chapter 19 The Break

"I thought it would be fun," Luella went on, "and that we might get to be the Henry and Luella we used to be."

"Always the sentimental little woman, aren't you?" said Henry. "I reckon so," said Luella. "But I was under the impression that sentiment was a part of marriage. She shut the suitcase, and tightened the straps. Then she straightened. She looked Henry directly in the face, and asked:

"In just what way have I failed you?" Henry was startled. "I don't know that you have failed me," he said. "I—suppose we're both to blame for the way things are. I think sometimes, Luella, that we made a mistake—that's all."

"You mean—in marrying?" "In getting married just when we did, yes," said Henry. He got into fresh undershirt and shorts. "Maybe we should have tried being separate for a little while. Found out how we feel about each other after living away from each other for a few months. Propinquity probably had something to do with the way we felt about things—you know, being together so much as kids, and after we grew up."

A pause, a groping for words. "And another thing, Luella—you don't seem to have any interest in what I'm trying to do."

"Then you do think I've failed you!" Luella accused. She didn't wait for Henry's denial, but went on. "I am interested in what you do, I want to encourage you, Henry. Really I do. I keep thinking that Marie has a lot to do with your interest in radio—that if she wasn't in it—you'd not care so much about it yourself. And that is what makes me disagreeable at times. If Marie hadn't used your song and asked you to do others for her, we—we might have gone on as we were. You were eager to make good with the really people when we first got here, Henry."

"What makes you think I'm not still eager to make good?" said Henry. Luella shrugged. "Oh, I don't know," she said helplessly. "But you don't have the same enthusiasm; all your enthusiasm seems to be for radio work. And I don't like the idea of you quitting the really people—it seems unfair, after the real estate men got you up here."

"That's a sentimental viewpoint," Henry said. "And sentiment should be left out of business. A man got to look out for himself. This is not the first time you've brought up the subject, Luella, and I don't like it—I don't like the way you act as though I were being dishonest or something, in considering a change."

"I'm sorry," said Luella. She didn't seem to be getting anywhere at all. Then suddenly she asked another unexpected question: "Do you think Marie understands you better than I do?" "Good Lord!" Henry was growing more and more annoyed and uncomfortable. "But since you've come right out and asked, I think maybe she might. Anyway, so far as my work is concerned."

"Would you marry her if you could?" "Oh, the devil, Luella!" Henry flared. "Do stop asking silly questions. Let's drop the subject. All we do is just go around in circles."

"No, I won't drop it," said Luella stubbornly. "Now that I've gotten the courage to bring it up I'm going on. Henry, would Marie be willing to marry you if I got out of the way?"

Henry's Answer Henry, who had sat down to tie his shoes, now looked up. His eyes were full of misery. Little Luella May Brown, asking a question like that—trying to be modern, trying to find a way out.

"For a moment he was tempted to take her in his arms, hold her close to him. But a vision of Marie swam before him; Marie, beckoning, holding out exciting promises of a gay and thrilling life together—fame—fortune—

"Answer me, Henry," said Luella. "Yes," said Henry. "I think she would. Anyway, she feels that I understand her and her work, and she feels we ought to go far together in the radio world."

"I see," said Luella. And then: "So this is marriage!" "Listen, Luella," said Henry, "don't sound so tragic. We haven't—er—separated or anything like that. Good, gosh, honey, you make me feel like a heel! I—that is—

"Your suitcase is all ready," Luella cut in. "I'll go fix a quick supper. I've got some cold cuts, and can heat some rolls."

She walked out of the room. Henry, still sitting upon the side of the bed, watched her. "Damn!" he said half aloud—not knowing just exactly why he swore.

It was Thursday when Henry took the train for Chicago. On the following Saturday Tommy McIntyre telephoned to Luella. "Let's drive out in the country," he said, "and get ourselves some sea-air. Winter'll soon be here, when everybody's snowed in."

"All right, Tommy!" Luella said. Two days she had been alone, and today there had been no letter from Henry, although she had been so sure he would write her as soon as he was settled. "It sounds grand," she said, trying to put some gaiety into her voice. "A ride out into the country."

"My car's parked down in front of the house," said Tommy. "I'll be up for you in half an hour—traffic jams permitting!" "Luella was ready when he arrived. She was standing out in front of the brookstone building.

"Because you're so eager to see me?" said Tommy. "Or because you didn't want me to come upstairs?" "Neither one," said Luella. "It's a glorious afternoon, and I didn't want to waste any time staying inside."

"Let's drive out to the Bath Club," Tommy suggested. "I used to be a member there. I'd like, now that everything's closed for the season. Damn! all summer is so cock-eyed short up in this neck of the woods, and the winters so long!" Then, later, when he had parked the car outside the Long Island summer colony, and he and Luella were standing on the deserted boardwalk, he said: "Sorry we never got out here for a swim, Luella, but never mind, maybe we'll be able to make it next summer."

Next summer, Luella found herself wondering what next summer would bring. And, wondering, she was terribly depressed. Where would she be then? Where would Henry be? And Marie? And Tommy?

"How about some food?" Tommy said presently. "I noticed a restaurant back a little way. Maybe we can get some seafood. I'm hungry!" He looked down at Luella, loved the way the wind played havoc with her hair, the way it had whipped high color into her cheeks. "How about you?"

"I can eat," Luella said. "You know little me!" That's the idea, Luella—be gay, be flippant, though your heart be in shattered bits. "This salt air does do things to a gal's appetite."

Tommy Tries Again Tommy gave her a quick look. She wasn't fooling him, not by a darn sight. But he said: "Attainable!" and led her back to the car. They got in and drove back to the restaurant and got a table for two near a tall window, so that they could look out to where the far-off sky bent to caress the restless ocean. They had smells, crisp bacon, French fried potatoes, lettuce salad. They said little until they were having their dessert of apple pie and coffee. Then Tommy, watching Luella gaze out across the wild expanse of gray water, spoke of the thing nearest his heart.

"I promised not to mention love," he said, "but I can't help telling you, Luella, that you're lovelier than ever—and that I'm still in love with you."

Luella turned to look at him. He was, she thought, one of the dearest people she had ever known, and for one wild, reckless moment she wished that she could stop loving Henry, and tell Tommy that she would throw everything to the winds, and come to him.

But the feeling quickly passed. She couldn't do a thing like that. She wasn't the type of woman who could so easily forget the promises she had made before the minister who had married her.

"I like having you fond of me, Tommy," she said presently. "But let's not get back on the subject of love. She finished her coffee, and pushed back her chair. "Let's take a brisk walk along the beach before we go back to town. Do you mind?"

"No, I'd like it," said Tommy. They got up and went out. Luella took off her small hat, and tied her bright scarf about her head. It made her look like a little girl, Tommy thought, and he loved the way her hair curled up over the scarf's edges. They walked along the sands until they could see the skyline of Long Beach. And it was then that Tommy caught her to him.

"Darling, darling," he said, his voice husky with emotion. "Oh, Luella—my love."

Luella went limp for a moment. Then she freed herself. She backed away, holding the scarf which had become untied.

"Tommy, Tommy!" she said. "You promised!" "I know," Tommy said. "But I couldn't help myself, Luella. You looked so appealing—so sort of frightened—I—I—" He searched her face. "You're not angry with me, are you?"

"No, Tommy, not angry," Luella said. "Just sort of shocked—hurt." She put on the hat which she had been carrying, and retied the scarf about her neck. "Come on, Tommy, let's go back to the city. It's getting late. It'll soon be dark."

They returned to where Tommy had parked the car. They got in, silent, shaken.

Jinx? — Up to mid-July Bob Feller had beaten every American league club at least once, except the Chicago White Sox.

Hollywood

Hollywood.—Ordinarily this department pursues a laissez-faire policy in the matter of filmland's domestic relations, indulges in no keyhole peeping or unsolicited advice. Yet today I feel that the Society for the Prevention of Something-or-Other should investigate the weird goings-on at the little hilltop house of the Louis Haywards.

This is prompted by no idle gossip, but by full confession of the parties most nearly concerned: Mr. Hayward, specialist in the portrayal of neurotic youth, and Mrs. Hayward, or Ida Lupino, specialist in the portrayal of neurotic women of all ages.

Sample confession from Ida: "I stalk around the house like Lady MacBeth."

Ida from Louis: "It goes on at the dinner table, and after. We've a scene in the picture that suggests the poisoning of food. I'm afraid we're beginning to be just a little suspicious of each other when we say, 'Another cup of tea?'"

Louis and Ida are working together in a movie for the first time. It's "Ladies in Retirement," the chiller-meller about the household retainer who kills her mistress and stokes the body away in the old bake-oven by the hearth in that lonely house on the desolate English moor, year 1888. Ida's the killer, a fine bundle of neuroses, and Louis is the young heel, 99.4 per cent pure no-good, who finds out and tightens the blackmail screws. They carry on their hare-and-hounds game of wits in a set that's enough, by itself, to give a spectator the willies. Sort of "Wuthering Heights" effect, ideal for a chiller.

"We really shouldn't," Ida laughs unneurotically after a heart-thumping sequence in which Louis has been playing cat-and-mouse with her, "but we keep on working at the thing after we get home. We talk of nothing else at dinner, and then we start plotting for the next day's scenes. It's how-about-this-way, and how-about-that. Last night I'm asleep and Louis bursts in with 'Loopy, I've a wonderful idea! Listen!' So I listen, and we're off again."

On the set everybody seems pleasantly gay and amid the goose-pimples. Charles Vidor, the director, is shooting in close quarters today, against the hearth and the bake-oven. Past-Louis, in foreground, to Ida, poking the fire. Louis is cramped, has to take care not to hide Ida as he taps out his pipe on the bake-oven. It's one of his cute tricks to let Ida know he knows what's inside, to watch her startled, haunted reaction. There's a lot of talk about how it's to be done. Timing, gesture, expression. Intelligent actor-talk, by people who savvy. Some kidding, too, about the Hayward-Lupino plea for close-ups. Vidor says, with mock solemnity, "Remind me to make my next picture without actors!"

Says Ida, aside: "Will we get our close-ups? Oh, yes!" She giggles. "Louis and I—we're strictly close-up actors. No medium-shot stuff for us."

Vidor is preparing a Hayward close-up as I leave.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY FROM SKY TO BARNYARD

A great Danish philosopher, in one of his books, tells the story of a wild duck which left his companions in the sky, came down to a barnyard, and began to live his life among the domestic fowl. His new life did not have about it the adventure which his old life had had, but it appeared to have more security. A kindly farmer fed them every day. As time passed, the wild duck could hear his former companions as they went back and forth above him, and while at first he felt an urge to rise out of the barnyard and soar aloft, this urge grew less as time went on until at last he heard the flight of the wild ducks no more.

The story is intended to illustrate the desire men have for soft security. They descend from the sky at the first opportunity to seek for a place where someone will feed them. The wild duck in the sky represents man intent on idealism. The duck in the barnyard represents man who has left the ethereal for the earthly.

Most young people are idealists, but many of them descend from the sky and are satisfied after some years with the barnyard. Sustained flight is too hard. High ideals were all right until they rubbed up against the requirements of business, until they saw that position in life has considerable importance. Then they were willing to give up the flight, to exchange the sky for the barnyard.

CHILE'S PRO-GERMAN PROBLEM GREAT

(Scottish Rite News)
The case of Chile, in regard to Pan-American sentiment, is rather typical of South American countries facing pro-German problems.

The policy of the Popular Front is peace and strict neutrality in the war, while other factions are almost frantically trying to educate the rest on Chile's part in the hemisphere program. Few Chileans realize the present dangers of the fifth column and the fact that Chile will be in the war when the United States becomes involved, according to a special writer of the New York Times. There are pro-Germans and pro-British in all parties, and it is hard to say which are the more numerous. Yet, if the United States enters the war, a member of Chile's Conservative party recently said he expects Chile to enter the fight against Hitler.

Chile has a coastline longer than that of the United States. Its prosperity depends almost wholly on foreign capital obtained by exporting minerals. But many of Chile's people, caught by the smug fever of isolationism, have tried to persuade themselves that Europe's war is no concern of Chile, that, come what may, Chile will be rewarded by a flow of capital.

Oscar Schnake Vegara, the Socialist leader, is one of the few politicians outside of Chile's actual fighting forces to have openly urged closer cooperation with the United States.

The New York Times writer met politicians who said that they would not dare favor one side in the war, churchmen who hesitated to say the war involved moral issues compelling partisanship, Communists who thought Chile menaced more by American "imperialists" than by Hitler. Yet, Chile is a stand-out among South American countries for its democratic government and its uncommonly fair elections. Most observers believe that a majority of Chileans, much as they dislike to be drawn into the war, favor Britain over Germany.

Many Chilean politicians realize that a close economic relationship with the United States is necessary, and the disposition to improve that collaboration has been more in evidence lately. There is, though, a tolerance toward German good-will efforts, the still operating German air lines and German ships that occasionally put in at Chilean ports.

Because German influence is still so actively exerted, because many are doubtful of the outcome of the war, and because many of its people are preoccupied with local political and economic problems, Chile, like many other South American nations, is best described as being "on the fence."

Chile's strong democratic tendencies have been offset by Nazi influence in Germanized sections. The traditional links with Germany—the German-trained army, the German-instituted schools, the high Chilean officials of German descent—are probably much more marked in Chile than in other countries of the western seaboard. "We are grateful to Germany," an eminent Conservative recently said. "Germans were the first European colonists in recent times, and they developed the country... We cannot forget these things; hence there is much sympathy here for Germany—but not for Hitler."

Nazi Germany has been cashing in on this sympathy, and though sympathy may be for Germany rather than Hitler, it all amounts to much the same thing. Sixty thousand or more persons of German descent are now in Chile, including 18,000 who were born in Germany. Another 9,000 have come as refugees from Germany, Austria and other countries, not counting the German "tourists" of recent months.

It might be a hard decision for Chile to reach, that of joining the United States and other American countries in a wholehearted stand against Hitlerism, but it is a decision that may soon have to be made.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stappert

Washington—Answering the mail orders:

F. T. D., Carson City, Nev.—The principal reason that the U.S. had no definite advance information on the German declaration of war on Russia is that the state department and most other people reasoned, on the basis of their information, that Joseph Stalin would not fight. There were a few observers who predicted the Nazi-Communist war and The Associated Press carried a story from Ankara that forecast hostilities, but even those brave souls opined it would be sometime in the future—not the present. It was felt that any open conflict, no matter what its outcome, would mean the end of Stalin's regime in Russia—therefore, he would not permit the situation to come to shooting warfare, even if he had to make great concessions.

I. T., Nashville, Tenn.—Secretary of State Hull though not seriously ill, is not in the best of health. During periods when he is indisposed, the reins of the state department are nearly always handed over completely to Under-secretary Sumner Welles. This is probably why you have seen Welles more often in the news recently than Hull.

A. F. A., Miami Beach, Fla.—The "economic warfare" machinery has not been set up simply because of a behind-the-scenes scrap over what department shall handle it. The leading contestants now are Jesse Jones (as Secretary of Commerce) and Cordell Hull (as Secretary of State). Jones contends that it is primarily a matter of commerce and economics and therefore belongs in his department. Hull contends that any action whatever by the proposed commission would so affect our foreign policy that it would be silly to place it anywhere else than under the watchful eye of the state department.

G. L., Houston, Tex.—Men selected for the army air corps must have been citizens of the United States for at least 10 years.

R. S., West Chester, Pa.—I take it all back. Lt. Col Harold N. Gilbert is the man credited with originating the phrase, "Keep 'em Flying." Colonel Gilbert is in the adjutant general's office and we did know, as I reported, that the phrase came from that general direction. A number of army officials did claim to remember that it was used in the World War, that it originated in England, that it came from the naval aviation training center at Pensacola, Fla. There seems now to be no doubt of it. Colonel Gilbert had the idea and was the first to try to promote it. His superiors took it up and gave it an official boost. There is one fly in the ointment. The phrase does not seem to be sweeping the country. Like a popular song, it may take hold at any time, or it may lie around for years virtually unnoticed and then overnight become as common in conversational stock as "So Long," "What's doing?" "Thumbs up," or "I'll be seeing you."

Mrs. L. S. T., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—According to Rep. Herbert Bonner of North Carolina, who should know, there is about a 14-cent worth of tobacco (farm price) in a 15-cent package of cigarettes. The rest is processing, manufacturing, wrapping, advertising, state and federal taxes, and commissions.

K. B., Columbia, Mo.—Junior and senior medical students may apply for membership in the Medical Administrative Corps Reserve. After completing their studies, they then will be appointed medical officers in the regular medical corps reserve. The dean of your medical school will handle your application for you. Acceptance in the MACR will relieve you of being called immediately for selective service—unless, of course, you flunk out of medical school.

Short Shots

Raleigh, July 17.—What with having a lot of building and loan associations, North Carolina likewise has a large number of lawyers expert in the field of real estate, (searching titles, drawing mortgages, and the like); but it is doubtful if there is one on the State Bar's list of practicing attorneys who knows his way around in the subject any better than, if as well as Mrs. Grace Hinton, a lady whose very apparent pulchritude belies the 14 years' experience she has had in the office of the World War Veterans Loan Fund.

During this almost decade and a half, not a single purchase price or loan note; not a single mortgage has been prepared by anyone except Mrs. Hinton. The fund has made 1511 loans to veterans. Papers had to be prepared for each one of them. Then there have been re-financing operations, and of late there has been the sale of property upon which the fund has foreclosed.

And so, in all, it's safe to say that Mrs. Hinton has drawn no less than two thousand mortgages upon property in all parts of North Carolina. So far there hasn't been a case in which her handiwork has been successfully attacked.

Incidentally, as acting commissioner of the fund (she succeeded Col. Graham K. Hobbs when that gallant officer went into active military training) she had a very large part in planning and executing the reorganization which slashed administrative expenses of the office $9175 from the budget allowance for 1940-41. It is conservatively estimated that his cut in the expenses is the equivalent of a 45 per cent slash.

This and That

Down on the Farm Department:—North Carolina potato producers have already shipped 4,794 commercial carloads of potatoes into 252 cities and towns in 22 states, says A. B. Harless, marketing specialist of the State Department of Agriculture. Snap bean growers in Western North Carolina expect a production of 270,000 bushels, or about 6,000 bushels above a year ago, says Russell P. Handy, a junior statistician of the same department. "It's Peach Time in the Sandhills," proclaims our sometime collaborator Lynn Nisbet, who is doing a bit of drum-beating for the growers of that section.... Dr. Ralph McDonald was in Raleigh Wednesday for a meeting of a North Carolina Education Association group plotting the organization's future course, which is somewhat rocky by reason of the row recently kicked up over Julie Warren.... There will soon be an announcement that a prominent publicity man in Western North Carolina is "at liberty."—When Jimmy Massenburg went out as secretary of the Industrial Commission it was reported confidently that he would be "taken care of," but there is nothing now on the horizon that looks like a job for him.... There are reports that an attorney's post will be set up in the new Motor Vehicle Department, but they lack basis to be called anything except just that.... Former Lieut. Governor Wilkins P. Horton, runner-up in the gubernatorial primary last year, was spied in the Sir Walter lobby Wednesday, apparently enjoying the passing scene and looking halter and healthier than in a long time.... Utility Commissioner Stanley Winborne says the railroads have about stopped asking permission to discontinue service on branch lines. The defense boom has perked up the rails no end, but still not enough to make them wish they had back the local lines they have abandoned, he added.

Wednesday's Games Rained Out; Tarboro Here Tonite

TILT ENDS IN 2-2 DEADLOCK

Teller Slated For Mound In Affair Tonight

All Wednesday games in the Coastal Plain league were rained out, but — weather permitting — Greenville's team will return here for the first game of the week and will engage the Tarboro Orioles.

Manager Rube Wilson announced at mid-afternoon that rains earlier in the day would not cause the game to be postponed and it unless more rain fell the game would be played as scheduled.

The skipper said that Bill Teller was the choice to halt the local's losing streak—the Greenies have lost the last three games played.

Last night's battle in Tarboro ended in the second inning with both teams having scored two runs each. Long was on the mound for the Greenies.

ANOTHER GAME FOR S. A. TEAM

League-Leaders Defeat Third Street Team 20-7

The S. A. girls' league leaders clinched the game in the first inning, with a stampepe of 15 runs, against Third Street girls, willing by a final score of 20 to 7.

After the S. A. team's rally in the first, it was a real ball game, with Third Street holding the S. A. team to only five runs for the remainder of the game.

The entire S. A. team batted around, and scored in the first inning while some scored twice.

The winners batting power was in Audrey and T. Hammond, and Gladys Blizzard, the latter getting 3 for 4 and for the losers, Christine Jordan, B. Flye and Opal stood out. The fielding laurel went to Mae Barton, snatching two live catches for the losers. There was a crowd of spectators to witness the game.

The game was held up for a while on account of rain. This afternoon at 6 o'clock, Third Street Girls meet Greenville F. F. girls' team at Third Street.

W. GREENVILLE WINS 22 TO 5

Pace-Setting Training School Unable to Check Foe

West Greenville of the "A" league had a good practice session at the expense of the league leading Training School team, when rain caused activities to cease in the last inning, the score was 22-5 in favor of the West Siders.

The losers used three pitchers in their effort to stop the slugging, but all were ineffective, on the other hand Williams and Garrett pitching for the winners were very effective until the last inning when Training School scored four of their five runs. Training School kicked in with enough errors to lose the game even had it not been for the slugging of the victors.

George Garrett with five for six led the hitters, he was followed closely by Floyd Williams and John Williams with four for five. Ben Harrison and Lupton with two hits apiece were the only players for Training School to hit safely more than once.

W. Greenville . . . 540 037 2-22 19 3
T. School . . . 000 100 4-22 9 5

Batteries: Williams, Garrett and Garrett, Williams; Harrison, Lupton, James, Rowlett and Corey, Williams.

In the "B" league yesterday, Training School got back in the win column by pinning a 10-3 defeat on the league leading Third Street team.

Neither team did a lot of hitting but Training School did hit at opportune times when the bases were occupied by men that had been put on by loose play of the Third Streeters. Training School didn't get but one more hit than the losers, out had eight men to get to first base on errors, and played a good brand of defensive ball.

Joe Lupton led both teams at bat with two hits.

T. School . . . 180 010 0-10 5 1
Third Street . . . 010 000 2-3 4 8

Batteries: Rowlett and Corey; Leggett, Adams and K. Stocks.

Third Street ran rough shod over Training School yesterday in the "C" league game. Scoring in every inning the winners ran up twenty-one tallies before the game was over.

The hitting of the victors was not very potent but they didn't have to worry about hits. Training School set a league record by committing a total of eighteen errors.

Smith and Gibson with three hits apiece led at bat for the losers, the winners garnered only four hits off the pitching of Lupton.

No Family Row.
Binghamton, N. Y. (AP) — Ray Pinelli won't have to worry about Papa calling a close one against him. Ray, fresh out of Notre Dame, is playing baseball with Binghamton, a New York Yankee farm club. So, when, and if Ray goes to the majors he'll probably do his playing in the American league. Papa Babe Pinelli is a National league umpire.

Faster and Faster.
Philadelphia (AP) — A few years ago it was thought impossible for a human to run 400 meters in 47 seconds. But, in the AAU championships the other day, Grover Klemmer of California U. not only set a world record of 46 seconds but the first six finishers were clocked in better than 47 seconds.

Trade Backfires.
Cincinnati (AP) — Perhaps there are moments when Manager Bill McKechnie is sorry he traded outfielder Vince DiMaggio. For three times this year, Pittsburgh's Vince has hit homers against the Reds with two on base to win ball games.

Crowds Visiting Atlantic Beach.
Atlantic Beach, July 17.—So far busier and gayier than perhaps ever before in its entire history, this coastal resort is making plans for continuation of its daily and nightly programs. Music will be furnished this week-end by Bill Vanden Dries and his Wake Forest Deacons. Manager Newman Willis has announced. The dances for cadets from the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., were highly successful during the past week. Departure of the visitors was regretted as much by them as by their many new local friends. They entertained at a dance in the beach casino, music being provided by Joe Layton's orchestra; and their hospitality was reciprocated with a dance by the beach management, music being furnished by Bert Motley's band.

Attention is now being directed towards the fourth annual Coastal Festival to be held at Morehead City and Atlantic Beach August 7-9, with elaborate programs for the three days. At a dance in the casino here last week Betsy Ann Davis and Sonny McDonald were named junior queen and king for the festival. At a previous casino dance Miss Sarita Oglesby of Morehead City, was named hostess queen. Music for the coronation ball in the casino on the night of August 9 will be by the orchestra of Count Basie, the Sepia Swing King.

YOU CAN HELP!

North Carolina's legalized brewing industry wants no law-violating element within its ranks. It wants no beer outlets that use their licenses to mask anti-social activities.

Hence the consistent effort under the "clean up or close up" campaign to eliminate the comparatively few beer retailers who do not respect the privilege of their licenses.

In cooperation with law enforcement agencies, our Committee has made progress. But our goal is a 100% law-abiding business and we insist that all retail beer outlets be able to withstand the searchlight of public scrutiny.

You can help us attain this objective by patronizing the orderly outlets in your community and reporting any unlawful conditions to officials or to this Committee.

Here's the 35-year-old father (left) with his wife, Stella (beside him) and their 12 children ranging in age from 17 months to 18 years. Said Papa Isenberg: "I really would have liked some army training—I figured it would give me a little bit of a vacation."

Television Gets Its Second Wind

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
AP Feature Service

New York.—Television is back in stride again.

How far it goes depends on many possibilities. National defense requirements on the radio industry will be a factor.

But in coming back it has a new status—commercial instead of experimental. It has been given a full "green light" by revised Federal Communication Commission regulations.

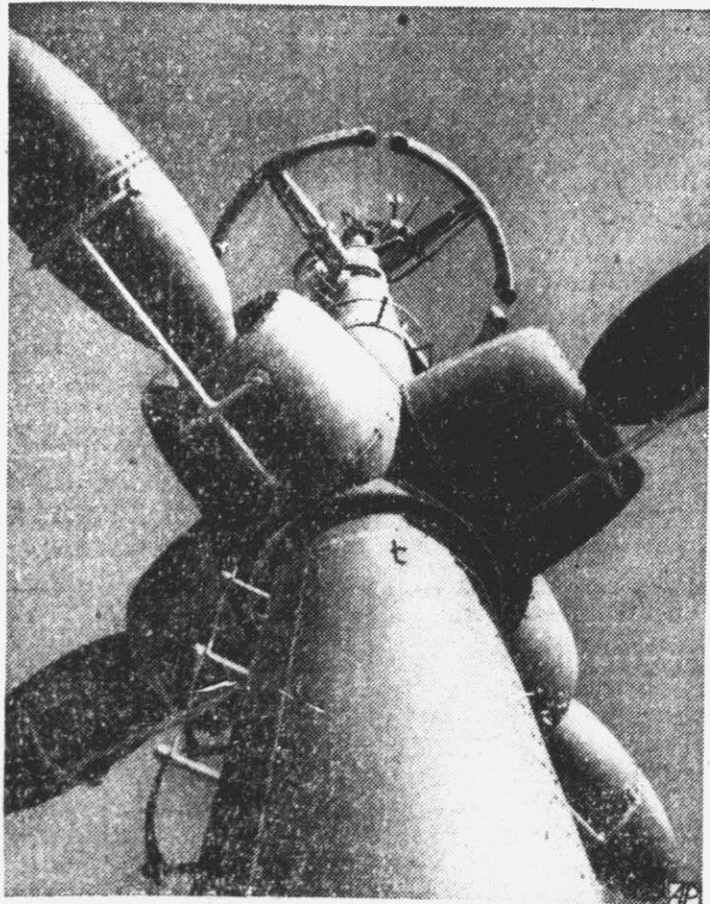

New York, as the present center of activity, with Los Angeles about next in line, has taken the reintroduction without much ballyhoo. Programs were resumed on a regular schedule after nearly a year's lapse taken up in settling differences over operating standards.

The NBC station, now WNBT and on the air as W2XBS since April, 1939, with public programs was first to get a commercial license. The CBS transmitter WCBW, under construction and experimentation for two years, started its schedule under authorization calling for a 30-day period of tests.

The Don Lee station at Los Angeles, W6XAO, which has been telecasting since 1931, experimentally and otherwise, maintains its schedule while changing over the transmitter to the new standards. At Schenectady, N. Y., the General Electric W2XKB is temporarily closed down to increase power, move into new studios and make other alterations.

Image Detail Increased. Otherwise throughout the country there are nearly 20 additional stations in various stages of preparation looking to commercial licenses.

The new standards include an increase of image detail from 441 to 525 lines and the use of frequency modulation on the sound channel. These changes affect the receivers, which, while many will operate fairly well with some adjustment of controls, need to be altered internally to get the full effect of the improved standards.

Here is the antenna used in television. The top unit of four bars in a broken circle handles the sound, while the torpedo-like drums lower down send the visual signal into the air. This is NBC's equipment atop the Empire State Building.

Among these are shifts in the tuning unit. For instance, CBS is on a new channel which most of the sets will not bring in until the alterations, now under way here without cost to set owners, are completed. New York has about 3,000 receivers and Los Angeles more than 500. Despite lack of ballyhoo, there is plenty of hustle in the NBC and CBS studios. Programs run from movies, drama, dancing lessons, through vaudeville acts and in some instances the televising of regular broadcasts like that of Lowell Thomas, NBC has a number of re-

Everything's Changed But The Fur

Fluffy fur jackets fit into the trend toward bulkiness above the waistline. In fluffy black and white American skunk, they sell at $100 to $250.

New curves and angles, new twists and turns, give fur coats for this coming fall entirely new structural lines. Easier fit and greater slenderness are two paradoxical characteristics of both swagger and fitted types. Waist and shoulders are roomier. There's more bulk above the waist, less below—adding up somehow to a look of greater slenderness.

Point by point, here are the style trends you'll note in the new August offerings: Important shoulders. Football biceps are out; smooth, flowing lines are in. The "natural" shoulder isn't natural at all. It still is well-padded and about as broad as it was last year. But it has a smooth line instead of a jut-up at the other edge.

Important sleeves. Bigger, softer sleeves are the order of the day. The semi-dolman sleeve, with an armhole ending midway between waist and armpit, is more popular than the much-touted full dolman reaching clear to the waistline. Conservative coats achieve somewhat the same raglan effect with deep-cut, but not dolman, armholes. Cuffs, sometimes very wide and flared, give newness to sports styles. High style coats sponsor surprise sleeves in dressy black furs—three-tier sleeves, one tier growing out of another, as on a tiered skirt; short, bell-shaped sleeves, ending half way between elbow and wrist; and puffy melon-shaped sleeves made of swirling strips of fur.

Few silhouettes. This season's fitted coat bears little resemblance to last season's princess-liner. The trend is to an easy straight line, away from flared skirts and wasp waists. More fullness above the waist is often achieved with the semi-dolman sleeves. Skirt fullness is generally confined to the front, with back and sides kept smooth and flat. Swagger coats, too, hang straighter, with less back ripple. The most radical silhouette of all, seen only occasionally is tapered. The hemline actually is much narrower than the shoulders.

note pickups, mainly sports, while Don Lee also puts on numerous remotes. The CBS outside pickup apparatus still is in preparation.

Defense Must Be Considered

Return of television comes when the radio industry is stressing every effort toward the upbuilding of defense communications. At the same time it faces curtailment of important details for civilian use.

This situation no doubt is to have an effect on the marketing of receivers as well as transmitters and the supplying of necessary replacement parts. However, one company, RVA, has reported it expects to have a number of sets available while another, DuMont, said it planned to become active again. Meanwhile, both NBC and CBS as they go ahead with public programs, are continuing research into color television, considerably advanced in the laboratory within the last year.

New York, July 17.—(AP)—A lazy downward trend was exhibited by most stock market leaders today although scattered favorites managed to contest the drift with modest advances. Hesitancy was the rule at the start and losses of fractions to a point or so were widely distributed at the close. Transfers were around 500,000 shares.

Adopt A 5-Day Week For All A&P Stores

Jacksonville, Fla., July 17 — John A. Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, today announced the adoption of the five-day work week for retail store employees as the company's national policy.

The five-day, 48-hour week, first in the history of the retail food business, was introduced on an experimental basis in A&P stores in a few eastern states two months ago, Hartford said, and will now be extended throughout the entire A&P organization "as far and as fast" as possible. In Jacksonville, Robert M. Smith, president of the Southern Division, said that the shorter week will be in effect before Labor Day in A&P food stores in hundreds of communities throughout this area. He pointed out that the pay of employees affected by this policy will remain the same as for the six-day week and although employees will work only five days a week, stores will continue to serve customers six days as usual. "The new schedule is the latest step in the company's traditional policy of creating and maintaining for its employees the highest wages, shortest general hours and best of working conditions in the industry," Smith said. "During the past 25 years A&P has repeatedly broken with the traditional dawn-to-dusk working schedule of the food business, and since 1916 we have been able to reduce our store employees' work week by 34.2 per cent, or a total of 25 hours."

WARD TO TOUR WESTERN N. C.

Commissioner To Attend Auto Dealers Meeting

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, July 17.—Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Boddie Ward is planning to combine pleasure and business on a brief trip thru the western section of the state. The pleasure part will come in the form of a tour of the North Carolina Automobile Dealers Association at Asheville, which opens Monday. On business he will visit the principal highway patrol posts and shops in the west. President of the auto dealers is Tom Wolfe of Albemarle, with whom Mr. Ward served on the State Highway and Public Work Commission.

Mr. Ward said he will stop at Greensboro, headquarters of one of the western troops, and at Salisbury, where the patrol's shops are located. He will visit other patrol posts on his return trip, to be made by what he called the "southern route" through Charlotte.

The tour will be a part of the intensive study of the entire motor vehicle setup which Mr. Ward says he will make before making any drastic shakup in personnel or any radical departures from existing practice and procedure. "The fewer changes I make on very short study, the less likely I am to find out later that they were mistakes," he told your reporter.
