HUTSON URGES REDUCTION IN TOBACCO CROP

Recommends 10 Per Cent Cut In Next Year's Acreage

CHIEF SPEAKER AT FARM RALLY

Says Labor And Material Needed For Defense Purposes And That Storage Facilities Limited

J. B. Hutson, president of the Commodity Credit Corporation and recognized as the nation's foremost tobacco authority, recommended a ten per cent reduction in 1942 flue-cured tobacco acreage in an address to more than 1,000 Eastern Carolina farmers attending a session of the N. C. Farm Bureau at East Carolina Teachers College here this afternoon.

Hutson, former head of the AAA tobacco marketing section, offered "two reasons" for his tobacco recommendation:

"1. The labor and materials used in production of tobacco are not more urgently needed in the national defense effort."

"2. There is no place to store another large crop of tobacco; farm storage space in this country now is at a premium."

Meeting in the Robert H. Wright Memorial auditorium on the campus of E. C. T. C. in this Coastal Plain city in the heart of the North Carolina flue-cured tobacco area, the hundreds of farmers from a dozen counties adjoining and surrounding Pitt gathered to hear Hutson outline prospects for the flue-cured tobacco future and to map plans for increased farmer organization as a means of improving farm income through national legislation.

The meeting here today was the fourth in a series of gatherings sponsored by the Farm Bureau in the state this week. Earlier meetings were conducted in Asheville, Greensboro and Gastonia.

Hutson declared:

"When the war is over there will no doubt be an increase in the demand, at least for a time, for cotton, tobacco and possibly wheat, but we already have large reserve supplies of these commodities. Supplies of flue-cured tobacco in this country are approximately 500,000,000 pounds above normal, supplies of cotton 600,000,000 bales above normal and supplies of wheat more than 400,000,000 bushels above normal."

"The materials and labor that would be required to build additional storage warehouses for these commodities—which already have filled available space—are urgently needed to produce goods that are needed now."

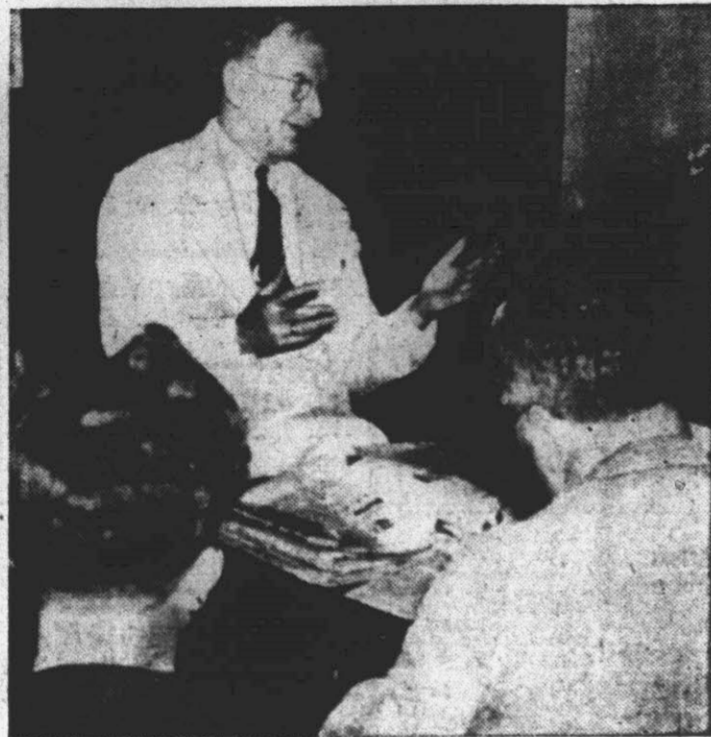

"A reduction of 10 per cent in the wheat acreage for next year already has been announced and, in my judgment, the best long-time interest of cotton and tobacco growers, of all the people of this country and the democracies generally, requires that a similar reduction be made in the acreage of tobacco and cotton next year."

Reminding growers that flue-cured markets in this area would soon be open for the 1941 auction season, Hutson said further:

"In general the flue-cured tobacco marketing program this year will be similar to that of last year. The Imperial Tobacco Company and the Independent dealers will make purchases on the warehouse floors (Continued On Page Six)

Wheeler Admits Mailing Cards

Shortly after Secretary of War Stimson accused Senator Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, of sending anti-war cards to officers and enlisted men in the army, Wheeler (gesturing) told newsmen at his office in Washington that he had sent out about 1,000,000 cards to a cross section of citizens all over the country in an effort to hold the President to his pledge to keep this country out of war. The cards urged recipients to write President Roosevelt against the United States entering the European war.

Agreed On Resolution To Declare Emergency

LETTERS USED IN LEAF TRIAL

Correspondence Of Defendants Permitted by Judge

Lexington, Ky., July 25.—(AP)—Federal Judge H. Church Ford today permitted introduction in the tobacco anti-trust trial of correspondence between the Tobacco Merchants Association and defendant leaf firms relative to tobacco tax legislation.

He ruled that the letters were material only as tending to show the defendants used the association, now located in New York City, to bring about agreed action.

The subject matter, he held, was not particularly relevant, and he did not permit the letters to be read to the jury.

The letters were introduced on the third day of questioning Charles Dushkind, managing director of the association, which the government contends the defendants used in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Defense attorneys maintained the association is "innocuous" and that the letters were for an "innocent purpose."

Free Drinks To Guardsmen

The local unit of the State Guard again was the recipient of cold soft drinks at the regular drill period last night, several cases of R. C. Cola and orange drinks having been contributed. Officers and men alike expressed their appreciation for the kindness shown by the company in presenting the drinks.

State Bank & Trust Co. Observes 10th Birthday

The State Bank and Trust Company today observed its tenth anniversary, the organization having undertaken the liquidation of the National Bank of Greenville in the midst of the depression at a time when debtors were unable to pay their debts to the National Bank. Financial statements issued as of July 25, 1931, and one of July 24, 1941, show how well the State Bank survived the depression and also reveal how well the institution is prepared to face the future.

The figures show that 10 years ago resources totalled $23,286.86, whereas the current figures show resources of $1,180,432.95. During 1934 the directors of the

Senate Military Committee Ready To Adopt Bill

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—Members of the Senate Military Committee were reported today to have agreed informally on the general terms of a resolution by which Congress would declare a limited emergency under which selectees, National Guardsmen and reserves could be retained in active service beyond the present one-year limit.

Senator Lee (D-Okla.) told reporters when he came out of a closed session that a "count of noses" within the committee had disclosed no opposition to a proposal under which Congress would be asked to find that the national interests were imperiled.

Lee predicted that a revised version of the bill to be considered by the committee this afternoon would not disturb present prohibitions in the laws against sending of selectees, guardsmen and reserves outside the Western Hemisphere.

The question of placing some time limitation on the operation of the emergency powers had not yet been discussed, he said, expressing the belief, however, that the authority would be permitted to continue until Congress or the President found that the emergency had ended.

Meanwhile, Major General Milton A. Reckord, commander of the 29th division, testified today that 90 per cent of the men and all the officers in his division were in favor of extended military service "if the need exists."

"Frankly, I think the need exists," he told the House Military Committee.

Entire Unit Located On Road to Moscow Declared To Have Been Annihilated Near Smolensk; Soviet Air Defenders Reported To Have Beaten Off Nazi Assaults; Bitter Fighting Claimed On All Fronts

Moscow, July 25.—(AP)—Soviet troops defending the road to Moscow were reported today to have wiped out an entire German infantry division near Smolensk, and the Russian capital's air defenses were credited officially with beating off a fourth successive night assault by the Luftwaffe.

Bitter battles, the morning war bulletin declared, continued all night, not only at Smolensk but also in the sector west of Kiev, the area on the Finnish front north of Lake Ladoga, and the Porkhov section south of Leningrad.

On all sectors the Russians were said to be battling "stubbornly." Annihilation of the Nazi division was claimed in a communique which indicated the Germans were throwing great masses of troops to action in an effort to smash resistance in the Smolensk area, some 230 miles west of Moscow.

There was no hint in the bulletin that the German offensive had gained any ground, either in the Smolensk sector or elsewhere.

Heavy fighting was reported in the vicinity of Porkhov, 150 miles south of Leningrad, and Zhitomir, 75 miles west of Kiev on the Ukraine front — sectors which have been mentioned so consistently in Russian communiques as to give the impression that the Germans are stalled there.

The German air force struck twice at Moscow during the night but an official announcement said only one raider penetrated the capital's defenses and that it was shot down. Another plane was reported destroyed outside Moscow.

The Russians again reported their own air force was giving a good account of itself, strafing German ground forces and bombing air dromes behind the Nazi lines.

Navy Is Preparing To Take Over Job

Key West, Fla., July 25.—(AP)—The United States navy today prepared to take over work on almost $2,000,000 of defense projects after the spokesman for more than 800 striking laborers refused a compromise 10 cents wage increase proposal.

One hundred laborers returned to work today on two low-cost housing projects when their full wage demands were met by the private contractor.

Lieut. Albert J. Fav, public works officer of the naval station, said today his superiors in Washington would not exceed the offer of 50 cents an hour.

If the proffered raise is not accepted, he said, the navy will take the jobs over from private contractors, bring in civil service workers from various places in the country and continue the struck projects.

Canvass Tonight

Local Aluminum Roundup Campaign officials today urged all citizens not to forget the house-to-house canvass to be conducted tonight between 6 and 8 o'clock.

Alton Barrett, chairman of the canvass, declared that everything was in readiness for the drive and that solicitors would visit every home in the city during the two-hour period. Housewives with any odd aluminum pieces about their house are urged to have them ready when a solicitor calls. If homes have not been visited before, Barrett said, the family has some aluminumware to contribute, it is urged that the front porch light be left on to speed up the drive.

The aluminum will be deposited temporarily at central points in each zone set up in the city and later will be picked up by trucks and hauled to the Aluminum Depot established at the court house square.

WOULD UPHOLD COTTON PRICE

Seek Prohibit Government From Releasing Surplus

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—In a move to support recent increases in cotton prices, the Senate Agriculture Committee today attached a rider, that would freeze all government cotton loan stocks, to House-approved legislation dealing with wheat marketing.

Chairman Smith (D-SC) said the Senate committee action was an effort "to keep the government-owned cotton from breaking the market" through release of some 6,000,000 bales.

At the same time, Senators Smith and Thomas (D-Okla.) decided to delay their efforts to prohibit price fixing on farm products through a second rider to the wheat bill.

"The committee will deal with this price-fixing rider," Smith said. "This ought to warn the bureaucrats."

The Senate previously had passed Smith's bill to freeze cotton loan stocks, without objection, but the House has not acted on it. The committee action today merely attached this Senate bill to one that passed the House without objection.

Members of Congress from the cotton-growing South have protested reports that government officials might release some loan stocks at a time when cotton prices were at the highest levels in more than 10 years.

The freezing rider would prohibit release of any loan cotton during the present European war. It would require the government to pay cotton farmers for any equity in cotton now under loan, based on the difference between local charges and market prices.

The freeing rider would prohibit release of any loan cotton during the present European war. It would require the government to pay cotton farmers for any equity in cotton now under loan, based on the difference between local charges and market prices.

President To Disclose Retaliatory Measures Against Nippon Action

Chief Executive To Retaliate With Specific Action Against Japan Tomorrow; Freezing Of Nippon Credits And Assets Regarded As Inevitable, With More Drastic Action Seen As Probable

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt disclosed today that the United States would retaliate with specific action tomorrow against Japan's occupation of naval and air bases in French Indo-China.

He told a press conference there would be something out of Washington tomorrow, but would not say exactly what.

But to members of the presidential party spending the week-end here the most likely move appeared to be the freezing of Japanese credits and assets in the United States.

Many persons, indeed, considered that step inevitable. But whether the United States was ready to take additional measures appeared to be awaiting future determination, depending on how the international situation developed in the Pacific.

To a question whether "events in the Far East have sharply accentuated the dangers in the international situation," Mr. Roosevelt suggested that the answer be put this way:

Events in the Far East are bringing a greater awareness of the part of the public to the dangers of the world situation.

Speaking the past tense in Washington yesterday, the chief executive had enunciated a policy under which this government had been letting Japan obtain oil from the United States with the objective of restraining her from invading the Dutch East Indies for petroleum.

SEN. WHEELER SETS UP HOWL

Declares Campaign On To Smear Him And Lindbergh

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) contended today that President Roosevelt and Secretary Stimson were seeking to conduct "a smear campaign" against him and Charles A. Lindbergh because of their opposition to administration foreign policies.

Stimson told his press conference that Wheeler had mailed postcards to army officers and men urging them to oppose entry into the European war. The war secretary added that "this comes very near the line of subversive activities against the United States, if not treason."

Wheeler said subsequently that he had sent out about one million postcards quoting speeches of Mr. Roosevelt and others regarding the European war. The senator added that none of the cards, which asked recipients to send the President protests against involvement in the war, were sent to army camps. But they were mailed to a "cross section of the population," he added, some may have been forwarded to army men from their former addresses.

Wheeler said the America First Committee financed printing the cards.

Indications Of Conquest On All Sides

Japan's Mobilization Of Men Declared To Be Largest Since The Start Of The Chinese Campaign; Ships Turn From American Shores With Radios Silenced; Indo-China Move Seen As Only Beginning

By The Associated Press
Japan's dream of conquest in the Pacific moved toward grim reality today with the reported mobilization of one million men, while at sea her ships blanked out in silence and turned away from American shores.

In London, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Parliament that "certain defense measures in Malaya have already been enforced to counter 'the potential threat' of the Japanese occupation of French Indo-China."

British dispatches from Singapore said France's colony in the Orient ignored a recent offer of protection by Great Britain, the United States, China and the Dutch East Indies "against further encroachments from the outside."

In Rome, the authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, declared the Indo-China thrust was "the first episode" in Japan's "march to the South," and was undertaken in full agreement with the other Axis powers.

Dispatches from Saigon, French Indo-China, said concessions gained by Japan included the right to station warships in strategic Camranh bay, on the southeast Indo-Chinese coast, only 800 miles from Singapore.

Moreover, these reports said, the Japanese may station warships at the river port of Saigon, and obtain several air bases in southern Indo-China.

Foreign intelligence reports reaching Shanghai said the Japanese mobilization — the greatest since July, 1937, when the war with China began—had been in progress since July 17 and was still continuing.

Troop destinations were kept secret, but advance contingents were expected to occupy newly won air and naval bases in southern French Indo-China on Sunday, and as one Hanoi newspaper put it:

"Indo-China is on the way to Singapore and the Netherlands East Indies."

In Berlin, authorized sources declared Japan has informed Germany she is determined to oppose by every means any British attempt on French Indo-China or any threat to Japan's "new order" in the Far East.

San Francisco reports said Japan, taking no chance of having her finest liners and cargo ships seized by the United States, blanket strict orders of radio silence on her vast merchant fleet, halted suddenly on the high seas.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
Friday, July 25, 1901

This is a bad time on team. The folks just seem wilted. Make the best of the weather you can.

No market is going to be able to offer better advantages for selling tobacco this season than Greenville. The farmers should make a note of this.

Everybody ought to be happy when realizing that North Carolina is waking up and that throughout her length and breadth the song of education is being heard.

Hollywood

By Robb Coon

Hollywood. — Movieland, my movieland:
The girl in the script was a nice girl. Too nice.
"She lacks character," said the mogul, who wanted to fix things up. "I tell you what—we'll make her a woman of easy virtue."
And so they did. But whether they'll plant the usual sewing machine in her room (as a visible means of support for the Hays office) I haven't learned yet.

Sam Wood, the director, had a nice set built for his new movie, "King's Rhapsody." It was a lovely set, small town stuff down by the railroad yards. But Sam Wood couldn't get his movie started—casting troubles that began months ago when he first suspected he wasn't going to nab Tyrone Power. So what happens? Roubt Walsh, the director moves in and with a few brisk changes sets the town back a few decades, and there he is now, with a crowd scene and Mayor Gene Lockhart welcoming General George (Errol Flynn) Custer home as a hero for "They Died With Their Boots On."

It was a beautiful book, and people who read it all seemed to think of one man for the hero's role in the movie, just the way they cast Gable as Rhett Butler. And the scenarist wrote the script with that one man in mind—the man who didn't get the part.

"Too obvious casting," said the producer firmly.
Wanda McKay, who was pretty little Dorothy Quakenbush, airline stewardess, until pictures hit her had a contract at Paramount until recently. The most notable opportunity she had, unless I missed an epic or two, was the day she served as guinea-girl for a new kissproof make-up.

So they "dropped" Wanda McKay, and now they've hired her back for Bill Boyd's new Hop-along Cassidy, "Twilight on the Trail." The way to get work in Hollywood is to get fired.

Musical interlude:
They are both movie stars today and she can sing if she wants to—which she does rather often.
There was an orchestra on the set, and the girl, between scenes went over and whispered to the band leader. He struck up a torch tune popular some years back. The girl, standing over her romantic lead, began to warble the words.

He shuddered. "Don't sing that," he pleaded.
"Why? Don't you like it?" she asked innocently.
"A long time ago," he said, "I was carrying a torch something awful. Couldn't eat, couldn't sleep. I'd go to a little cafe and cry into my beer. There was a kid there, singing, and I'd work her overtime singing that tune. She musta thought I was nuts—the dough I'd give her just to sing that song."

"I know," said the girl. "I know. Remember me?"
"No!" he said. "It couldn't be?"
"Yes," she said. "It could."

Guess What! Hats For Fall Look Like—Hats

Coque feathers, shiny green and black, swoop upwards in swirling lines, making something sensational out of this snug black felt. Ronnie Simon designed it. You'll be meeting clouds of feathers on fall millinery, now that the Audobon Society has made peace with the feather industry.

Upward, forward, sideways, north by north—by north—is the way the fashion winds blow big brims for fall. You see the possibilities in this big black beret designed by Madame Pauline. Wear it and people will mention the lovely prof it you didn't know you had.

By AMY PORTER

A hat is a hat this fall, for a change.

I mean if you just ran into one somewhere you'd think right away, "It's a hat," and not, as you may have done in the past, "It's a saucupan." "It's a bird." "It's a scottie," or "It's a—I give up, you tell me."

Not that there's anything stuffy about the millinery designs launched at the early fall showings, but somehow most of the offerings conform, more or less, to the shape of the head. The usual assortment of monkey fur, mink sequins, fringe and feathers shoots off at a tangent, but the base is always there, snug and solid on your head.

Defiance of the pompadour is part of the reason for the fit-the-head trend.

Sally Victor has worked out a snug silhouette with a little disk that settles down over the brow, and where the disk settles a pompadour can't be. However, part of a pompadour can show at either side, along with a fine sweep of hair back over the ears.

Madame Pauline suggests a draped jersey fez with a point in front. You can wear this straight across the brow, with no hair showing at all, or it can be perched, as of old, back of bangs or pompadour.

Value Of Peaches Will Be Stressed

Tasty appetizing peaches—so good to eat and so good for you, will be the central attraction on most tables during the period of July 24 through July 30.

During this period the Georgia-Carolina Peach Marketing Board, and other organizations of the peach producing industry, and the food trades industry of the south are cooperating with the U. S. Department of Agriculture in a public-spirited campaign to increase consumption of fresh peaches by everyone.

Miss Verona Lee Joyner, home demonstration agent of Pitt county, pointed out that while food is rationed in war-torn Europe, we in America are faced with a different but serious problem.

"We are not eating enough of the basic health-protecting foods of which there is an abundance in this country," she said. "More than 40 per cent of our people are actually suffering from mal-nutrition in this land of plenty. And today, more than ever before, America needs strong, red-blooded men, women and children."

"We have always relished peaches and this delicious fruit now takes a new rank as a healthful food."

"Recent vitamin research has revealed that peaches are rich in vitamins A, B, C, and G(b2) necessary for good health."

In urging all homemakers to eat more peaches at this time, Miss Joyner pointed out that the National Defense Conservation and Nutrition program calls for more home canning and preserving.

Home-canned peaches provide a splendid supply of basic health-protecting foods, and a very thrifty home food supply, too.

Prepare To Send Out More Questionnaires

Officials of the two Pitt County Selective Service Boards disclosed today order numbers were being assigned to registrants in the July registration and that questionnaires would start going out to the men who have just become 21 years of age within a few days.

Both boards have completed sending questionnaires to the young men who registered last October.

A key is used whereby new registrants are interspersed with the October registrants and many of the men who have recently observed their 21st birthday will be called to service before some of those who registered last fall.

Committee Works On New Blacklist

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's Economic Warfare Committee is collecting a list of German and Italian firms in Europe and Asia as the nucleus of a new blacklist to supplement the recent compilation of 1,833 Latin-American firms to which it is prohibited to export American goods.

Investigations to this end have been undertaken, it was learned, in Japan, China, Thailand, Sweden, Switzerland, Unoccupied France, Spain, Portugal and Finland.

Survivor Of Zamzam Rotary Club Speaker

Paul Burton, Wilson tobaccoist who was on the Egyptian vessel Zamzam when it was shelled and subsequently sunk by a German raider, will address the Greenville Rotary club at its regular meeting Monday night.

Mr. Burton, a tobacco auctioneer, formerly resided in Greenville and is well known here.

He and other Wilson tobaccoists who were aboard the ill-fated ship have been in great demand as civic club speakers since they arrived home from the fateful trip.

Students Of College Leave On Study Tour

Paul Ricks left this morning on another study tour going through the Eastern states, New England and Canada. There is only one bus making the trip.

The students taking this tour will study the geographical and historical points of interest along the way, as well as visit many sites. College credit is being given for this tour, which will last three weeks.
James Carr, who received his M. A. degree for teachers at Peabody recently, is the instructor in Geography. Mr. Ricks will instruct in History and English. Miss Deanie Boone Haskett was the classroom teacher for the three days of study preliminary to the tour.

A Bit Drafty, Perhaps

Salisbury, N. C.—(AP)—With the streamliner doing 80 miles an hour the engineer suddenly saw a hand moving back and forth on his front window, like a windshield wiper. He stopped the train. On top of the engine lay a youth who said: "I guess I just wanted to get off!"

"Things Men Wear"

HEART-BREAK HONEYMOON

Chapter 26
Surprise For Marie

Up in New York Marie Mason was dressing. She had slept late, and she had awakened feeling horribly low. Henry, Tommy, she had quarreled with the one, and neglected the other. She had been an awful little fool. Everything had gone utterly wrong. She felt completely disgusted with the world and everything in it.

But she kept on thinking about Tommy, and the way she had treated him since the arrival of Henry and Luella Pell. Dear, dear Tommy. He had been good to her, so unselfish and so much in love with her. And she had treated him abominably.

She had let her feeling for Henry make her forget everything else—even Tommy's kindness, the way he had helped her get established. And that, she told herself with emphasis, was where she had been even more of a fool.

Why, Tommy McIntyre was going places in the world of radio! Of course he was. He stood high with his superiors, and he was going to have a lot to say about who worked on those recordings his firm was making. "We'll be to the radio world," Tommy had once said, "what Edison was to the phonograph world. You know, Marie—making records to be sold or rented to broadcasting stations throughout the world, even Canada—maybe Europe, if they ever stop fighting over there."

He had then explained that they might even make recordings of an entire evening's entertainment of vaudeville—songs, tap-dancing, jokes, sketches, monologues. All that, and she had been so busy adoring Henry Pell and helping him get the Negro songs ready she had completely and utterly overlooked all the opportunities Tommy might make possible. Her songs recorded. Percentages, royalties.

"Marie Mason," she thought, "it's time you got busy and stopped centering all your energies on one man."

She picked up the telephone with a quick, determined move. She asked for the number of Tommy McIntyre's office. She would be nice to him, and maybe he would invite her to lunch. They could go to some quiet place, and slowly, carefully, she would begin her campaign to win him back.

"Hello," she said, when a voice spoke at the other end of the line. "May I speak to Mr. Thomas McIntyre?"

"I'm sorry," said the voice. "But Mr. McIntyre isn't in."

"Can you tell me when he will be in?"

"He left for Florida an hour ago."

"Florida?"

"Yes."

"But I—that is—Marie caught herself. "This is Miss Mason speaking. I was especially anxious to get in touch with Mr. McIntyre. I wonder if you can tell me where I can reach him?"

"No, Miss Mason," said the voice. "Just a moment, I'll connect you with Mr. Greenwood."

"Thank you," said Marie.

No Luck

Mr. Greenwood was on the wire almost at once. Marie explained who she was.

"Oh, Miss Mason!" said Mr. Greenwood. "Of course! Mary's the thing I've heard you sing. What can I do for you?"

"I wanted to talk to Mr. McIntyre," said Marie. "But I was told he had just left for Florida. I thought perhaps you—"

"Tommy?" said Mr. Greenwood. "Yes, he took a sudden vacation. He needed a vacation, and off he went. I persuaded him to mix business with pleasure. He's—"

"Have you his address?"

"No, unfortunately, I haven't. You see, he's driving down here on his leisurely—stopping off in Charlotte, North Carolina, Spartanburg, South Carolina, and Atlanta, Georgia—to look into the radio situation. He's to get in touch with me on his way."

"I see," said Marie. "Thank you."

"Shall I get in touch with you when I hear from Tommy?"

"If it's not too much trouble," said Marie.

"No trouble at all," said Mr. Greenwood. "Must be nice to this Southern girl with the moving voice—her records ought to sell like hot cakes. Always glad to be of service to the Singer of Songs from Down South." He chuckled.

"By the way, that new program you're on is a honey, Miss Mason."

"Thank you," said Marie. "You're kind."

A moment later she hung up her receiver. Tommy going to Florida without saying goodbye. It was cruel of him. The least he could have done was telephone her before leaving.

She frowned, and began to move restlessly about the room. She felt sunk, absolutely. She began more and more to regret her treatment of Tommy, also the quarrel with Henry. She had been utterly brainless in her handling of both men. Someone ought to take her in hand, and give her a good talking.

Henry—Tommy—Henry. Well, Henry was still in town, wasn't he? Of course. Then why not get in touch with him, say she was sorry about the quarrel?

Again she picked up her receiver. And when Henry Pell answered very promptly, she felt better.

"Henry, this is Marie," she said. "Yes?" said Henry—in a tone of voice that wasn't at all friendly.

"Take me to lunch, Henry, will you?" Marie went on. "I'm terribly sorry about last night. I want to tell you in person."

"Very well," Henry said. "I've got some things I'd like to talk over with you. Where shall we meet?"

"In the British Restaurant, down by the sunken plaza," she said. "You can buy me a mutton chop. There are so few places where one can get them."

"Okay. One o'clock all right?"

"Splendid," said Marie. "I'll be there on the dot—wearing a gardenia so you'll know me." She laughed lightly. "Don't meet the wrong girl, Henry, dear."

"Nopes!" said Henry, still not very friendly like, Marie thought. "I must get back to some work now. See you later."

Marie was on the dot, and she was wearing a gardenia; not for identification purposes, but because a gardenia went well with the silver-fox trimming of her new and expensive ensemble.

"Here, by the window," said Henry. "We can watch the sunshine play on the silent fountain."

"Thank you, Henry," said Marie. They sat down. "Now, let me say in person and in all humility that I'm terribly sorry I was such an awful female last evening. I must have sounded like something out of the gutter."

"Let's forget it," said Henry. "And go on from there?" Marie asked, eyeing him.

Henry, too.

"Yep, on from there," said Henry. "Only, I'm going away for a while."

"You are?" First Tommy—now Henry.

"Yep. Business." Henry gave their orders, then he went on. "My firm is sending me south. They are interested in timber down in the Carolinas, now that the paper-making industry is waking up in our country; you know, paper from wood-pulp."

"Yes, I know about it," said Marie. "I read an article about it in a magazine."

"A well informed lady!" Henry said, smiling for the first time.

Marie didn't smile, however. A sudden thought came to her. Henry taking a trip south. Luella already there, darned funny, she thought, this decision to head in that direction. Did it mean that he was going down to get Luella?

"I suppose," she said, trying to speak casually, "that you'll stop off in our hometown, and say hello to Luella."

"Luella's not there," said Henry. "Where is she?"

"Florida, by now. She was on her way when I heard from her this morning."

"Florida?"

"Yes. A special delivery this morning. It was posted in a town somewhere in South Carolina."

"You mean she's—she's—"

"I mean she's on her way to Florida to get on of those ninety day divorces we've been hearing about."

"But, Henry, did you know she—"

Henry went right on. "And, believe it or not, Tommy McIntyre has turned over his cottage to her," he said. "He told her to live in it while she was establishing her residence, and to—say, what's the matter?"

"You say Tommy let her have his cottage?" Marie asked, in an odd sort of voice.

"Yes. Good old family friend, you know. Always willing to help out the family feud. Always—"

"Yes, I know," said Marie. "But did you know Tommy was on the way to Florida?"

"No."

"Well, he is. He left this morning."

"Well, I'll be—"

Marie shrugged. "It sounds like a drawing room comedy or something," she said. "First, Luella walks out on you, and—"

"No," Henry contradicted. "First, you fly to Chicago and Luella finds out. She—"

"She jumps at silly conclusions," said Marie. Then she went on with what she had started out to say. "First, Luella walks out on you—then, Tommy gives her his cottage—then, she goes to Florida, and now Tommy's on his way to the same place. What, may I ask, does it all add up to?"

"An infernal triangle," said Henry.

"But where do I come in?"

"You make it an infernal complication."

"Oh, I do, do I? Well, what are you going to do about it?"

"I don't know," said Henry, confused and annoyed. "The way things have been happening to me here of late, I—I feel dazed."

Army Plans Spend Big Sum In State

Atlanta, Ga., July 24 — The Quartermaster Corps will spend $2,250,000 in North Carolina in the current fiscal year for the subsistence of the Army, it was announced today by Lt. Col. William F. Ritter, chief of the Supply Division of the Quartermaster's office.

This money will be spent by the Quartermasters of the various camps, forts and bases for the purchase of food supplies and other necessary items.

The total amount of subsistence funds allotted to the Fourth Corps Area for the first quarter of the present fiscal year is $17,928,216. Of this amount $17,190,050 has already been allotted to the various stations in the eight Southeastern states comprising the Fourth Corps Area.

In North Carolina the largest single allotment goes to gigantic Ft. Bragg, $1,600,000. Camp Davis is to receive $600,000 and the Charlotte Air Base, $50,000.

Georgia's allotment of the subsistence funds is the largest of any state in the Fourth Corps Area with a total of $4,230,000. Louisiana is next with an allotment of $3,855,000. Florida's total is $1,565,050. South Carolina's, $1,875,000. Mississippi's share is $1,635,000 and Alabama's is, $1,025,000. Tennessee trails the list with an allotment of $785,000.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

DON'T TAKE A CHANCE.

Accidents frequently occur on the open roads. A beautiful drive thru the park near my home is the scene of frequent accidents, and they occur on that section of the drive which is most open. It is here that those who are in a hurry attempt to cut in and out of traffic and so come to grief.

Some years ago there was a crossroads in western New York State which gained the reputation of being a death trap, yet it was the clearest intersection in all that part of the country. One had a view of at least a mile along all four roads, but at that intersection scores of cars piled up in disaster.

Conversely, few accidents occur
on the narrow mountain roads which skirt the precipice. People take no chances there and so are safe. Any place in the world is a dangerous place if it entices us into the dangerous policy of taking chances. Sometimes we have to take all in a great adventure. When we take a chance we may stake all on a silly little reward not worth the having. We want to get ahead of someone on the highway; we want to invest a hundred dollars and make a thousand; we want to get away with some inequality.
To stake all is heroic, provided we stake it on something worthy of our best. To take a chance is to play with fire, to cross swords with folly.

WE DON'T BLAME THEM

We think the Wilson
County Draft Board members were absolutely right in handing in their resignations if it was a fact that influence was used at Fort Bragg to have a baseball player declared unfit for military service after he had been passed by the local board. The matter is one that should have a full investigation without any softpedaling, and if the charges of the draft board are substantiated, action should be taken against those who brought the pressure, as well as those who actually committed the act of turning down the draftee. In a national emergency is no time for the showing of favoritism. The method of selecting draftees by lottery is certainly as fair for one regis-trant as another and persons who exert influence to avert military service for themselves or others should be classified as attempting to frustrate efforts of our nation to adequately prepare itself to meet any eventuality. We congratulate the members of the board for having the courage to take the action they did.

They're Not Behind The Plow

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington - Vice - President
Henry A. Wallace has been "Mr.
Big" of the United States Senate
for six months now and it is becoming increasingly apparent that it has been some years since a Vice-President has played a bigger hand in behind-the-scenes congressional affairs.

Some observers say that not even John Nance Garner, when he was riding the administration hobby horse in the early days of the New Deal, was more active in keeping the legislative wheels rolling along smoothly.

The gentle, soft-spoken former Secretary of Agriculture was credited previously with being a scholarly sort of farm economist, with no penchant for politics, and only a slight interest in raising himself
by his own political bootstraps.
When he was placed on the Democratic ticket as stablemate for President Roosevelt in his third term race, all sorts of excuses were advanced by the administration boys and heaps of criticism were showered down by his opponents.

Adly enough, no one has the foresight to try to prove that "Hank Wallace" might become a decided congressional asset to the President and the Democratic party. But in that very role, he is beginning to prove his worth.

According to cloakroom chatter,
the president of the Senate has taken a hand in several legislative bouts, the last of which was an effort to iron out conflicting views over price control legislation.

He Gets Around.

Wallace has made it his business to know the members of the upper house. There's hardly a day that you can't peek through the door of one of the north wing lunch-
rooms and find an amazing assemblage of gentlemen of the Senate.
Pro and anti-New Deal senators, Democrats and Republicans - all alike find hospitality at the Vice President's table. And when he does an athletic all-out in the Senate gym or on the tennis courts, he's the same good sport with political opponents that he is when with those who invariably bat out administrative home runs.

When there's nothing doing in the Senate, Wallace often relinquishes his gavel, descends to the floor, and chats with senators present until the chamber has finished its idling along on minor legislation.

Unlike his predecessor, John
Nance Garner, Wallace is considered a spokesman for the White House, but there has yet to be the first occasion when he informs the senators how the President would like to see them vote.

When Wallace took office, there was much reported about his becoming a "good-will ambassador" to the nations of Latin America. If this hasn't developed yet, don't think the boys are wrong. Close friends of Wallace report now that he is aching to get away for a tour of the countries south of the Rio Grande. Vital legislative matters may make that impossible, but even now he has his maps out studying a quick vacation to Mexico.

Missed The Beef Vote

As presiding officer of the Senate,
Wallace has made his mistakes.
Several times, in spite of the fact that he applied himself arduously to a study of Senate rules, he has been caught up by senators on close parliamentary points. Probably his greatest "faux pas" was failure to be present when the Senate voted on the administration-favored government buying of Argentine beef.
The vote was a tie. The Vice-President could have thrown his one vote (usable only in case of a tie,

and then only in the affirmative) into the administration hopper. But Wallace wasn't there. The matter was ironed out later to the administration's satisfaction, but if it had not been, the Vice-President would certainly have lowered his political grades.

He probably yet may develop into the administration's "good-will" traveling ambassador, but what is a good deal more important, at the moment, is that he has impressed
the Senate - impressed it not only because the latching string is always out for him at the White House,
but because he's a pretty good guy
to have around the Senate - no matter whether he has you 40-15 on the tennis court, or with your nog-gin under the gavel on the floor.

A gentleman of our acquaintance has solved the problem of mixed time that will follow effective date of the gubernatorial proclamation putting state offices on daylight savings time. He will wear two watches, he says, one showing EST (Eastern Standard Time) and the other BST (Broughton State Time).

This corner has been looking for it for a long time, and at last it's happened. Story out of Albemarle tells of a wreck involving an automobile and an airplane. The plane, trying to take off, couldn't gain enough altitude to go over a car parked beside the flying field.
Happily nobody was hurt and only the plane's landing gear seriously damaged. . . . All indications are that the State of North Carolina will get out of the veterans loan fund liquidation (a long range program to wind up about 1951) with no more than a half million dollars loss on the two bond issues which totalled $2,500,000. Which is a much prettier picture than was presented up to this year. . . . The North Carolina State Employment Service has been asked to assist in locating technicians in certain fields

The plant, (knocked down and crated as the railroad language puts
it) has arrived and the next step
is to put it together and start it running. There's where the rub comes in.

To all outward appearances it looks like the mine from which it came must have been abandoned for many, many years, according to stories your reporter hears. Parts are quite generally rust-eaten and some were broken in transit.

From all indications, the plant will be quite a white elephant and there was no economy in its purchase second hand. Reports are that a brand new plant would have cost no more, if cost of transportation and other expenses incidental to installation of the old machinery

be considered.

The plant is supposed to be of something like 3,000 KW capacity, and it was thought that after its installation it would generate so much power that the Tide Water Power company would be buying current from the Jones-Onslow REA cooperative, of which the plant is a component part.

Now it seems much more likely that the Tide Water will be selling to the coop until other generating units are installed.

Short Shots

Raleigh, July 25 - Naval folks connected with installation of the generating plant to provide power for the Marine Base in Onslow and for Camp Davis are beginning to feel they didn't get any the best of it in the purchase of an oil power plant from an abandoned silver mine in Nevada, or some other western state.

The plant, (knocked down and
crated as the railroad language puts
it) has arrived and the next step
is to put it together and start it
running. There's where the rub

FARM SERVICE CHANGES MADE

Soil Development Department Is Reorganized

Raleigh, July 24 - A reorganization of the soil development and classification work at N. C. State College was announced today by Dr. J. U. Baver, head of the college Agronomy department. The major change is the assignment of W. D. Lee as associate in agronomy, to assist with extension research and teaching programs.

Lee has been extension soil conservationist in charge of the organization of soils districts in cooperation with the U. S. Soil Conservation Service. E. H. Meacham who has been assisting in this work has assumed charge of the entire coordinated Extension-SCS program.

Under the new organization, Lee will be "extension specialist in soils," devoting his attention mainly to demonstrations of the soil differences in relation to soil fertility practices and land use. He also will teach a course in the College of Agriculture on "Soils of North Carolina."

Lee's duties with the Experiment Station will be two-fold. He will have charge of the State Soil Survey, with the cooperation of Prof.
C. B. Williams. The actual survey will be made by four assistants in agronomy - C. W. Croom, W. A. Davis, William Gettys, and E. F. Goldston. Lee's other research work will be to help Dr. J. F. Lutz conduct experiments in soil development
morphology, and classification.

In announcing the reorganized soils program, Dr. Baver said: "It is believed that this organization will permit a rather active program in the research, field survey, teaching and extension phases of soil classification."

who are willing to work in Brazil.
The request is being handled thru regular channels. . . . The matter of classifying skilled workers who are engaged in archeological excavations near Mount Cilead is giving the Employment Service considerable trouble. They are certainly more than mere "diggers," but as yet
there is nothing in the Dictionary of Occupational Titles which will fit them; and the service prided itself on having defined and listed just about all the job-types under the sun.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q How long will Defense Bonds and Stamps be on sale?
A Indefinitely. Secretary Morgenthau has emphasized that the Defense Savings Program is to be a continuing effort. Its success will be measured by the number of persons taking part, as well as by the amount of money raised, which is now in excess of $700,000,000.

Q Is the purchase of Defense Savings Bonds or Stamps compulsory?
A Absolutely not. Purchase of Bonds and Stamps represents voluntary action on your part. When you buy them you take your stand in the ranks of the National Defense Program. You automatically become a shareholder in your Government.

Note - To purchase Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office or bank, or write for information to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York - Only 13 plays left on Broadway, and 10 of these are musicals or comedies. The oldest is "Hellzapoppin'" in its fourth year, and the next oldest is "Life With Father."

One of these 13 is "It Happens On Ice" and in it is the interesting person of Hedi Stenuf, billed by her press agent as "The Nordic Beauty." She is all of that. She is both Nordic and beautiful. Miss Stenuf is one of the remarkable women skaters in this or any country.

Of the three plays that touch a serious theme, "Watch On the Rhine" is the only drama that concerns itself with the Nazis. Paul Lukas continues to be the surprise hit. Surprise, that is, to a few film agents who permitted him to get away from films. He can write his own figure now. In his dressing room it is a commonplace to count half a dozen pals from the coast. They come in on every train, and Paul's dressing room has become their favorite hangout.

Greenies Blanked By Bears In Both Ends Of Twin Bill

KRACKE HURLS SECOND GAME

Locals Lose First 7-0, Then Drop Second By 1-0 Score

The Greenies dropped a doubleheader to the New Bern Bears last night, losing the first 7-0 and dropping the second contest 1-0. The second game was called at the sixth frame as the midnight curfew law went into effect.

Kracke hurled the night cap and turned in a two-hit brand of hurling, but his mates were unable to come through on the offensive side and the relief player went down in defeat.

The Greenies were held to five hits in the first game by Clower, while the Bruins were reaching Kees for 13 safeties.

LUPTON HURLS WINNING GAME

Training School Turns Back West Greenville 8-2

Training School strengthened its lead in the A league this morning by turning back the second place West Greenville team by the score of 8-2. Lefty Lupton pitched masterful ball for the East Siders, he blanked the hard hitting aggression from West Greenville after the first inning in which they scored two runs. Fine fielding by his team mates helped him considerably, two double plays checked West Greenville twice when they seemed to be starting a rally. Garrett, opposing Lupton on the mound was off form. He was batted hard and often.

Harrison, Scott, Clark and Saleel led the hitting for Training School. Jordan and Garrett led for the losers.

Score by innings:
 West Greenville 200 600 0-2 9 3
 Training School 400 201 x-8 10 3

Batteries: Garrett-Williams and Williams; Lupton and Saleel.

Every league of any consequence these days has to have an "all-star" game. Two teams have been picked out of the Boys Summer League in the A division to compete next week in a game that will bring together the cream of local schoolboy talent.

Snag Clark will lead one team into action with John Williams leading the opposing stars. These young players have shown real promise in their league competition this summer and this game should be very interesting.

The members of the two all star teams are listed below.

Snag Clark, captain, Larry Brown, Henry Andrews, George Garrett, J. Saleel, Theodore Lupton, Ben Harrison, Junior Wright, Charles Moyer, Leroy Cherry, Ralph Hunter, Larry James.

John Williams, captain, John Speight, Hubert Musselwhite, Floyd Williams, Gene Johnson, Jesse Jordan, Earl Wingate, Mitchell White, Floyd Dunn, Jack Teel, Joe Carawan, Big Boy Wilson.

Carver Library News

We were very pleased to have Miss Ella Mae Gaylord and Miss Irene Hester, from the Williamston WPA office visit the library this week.

Jessie Mae Barghen, one of our junior readers, who has just finished reading Kidnapped by Robert L. Stevenson suggests that all junior readers read this book before the summer is over. Jessie Mae said that she enjoyed most of all the adventures of David Balfour and Alan Breck on the brig "Covenant." We hope that you will take her advice and enjoy this sea adventure as much as she did.

Did you know that one of the new pictures to be released this season is "The Yearling" and that Spencer Tracy is to play one of the leading roles in it? Your Carver Library has "The Yearling" in the Adult Reading Room. You will enjoy this story of Florida backwoods life.

Clubs and organizations are invited to use the back lawn of the library for meetings and entertainment.

Visit Carver Library daily from 1 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 8 p.m. The library is closed on Sundays.

N.Y. Stock Market

New York, July 25.—(AP)—Heightened war tension in the Far East put a slight chill on the stock market today, but brought heavy speculative demand for import commodities.

While an assortment of specialties managed to cling to modest advances after a forenoon bulge, many issues closed with declines of fractions to a point or so and a few suffered wider setbacks.

The day's volume was approximately 800,000 shares.

HUTSON URGES REDUCTION IN TOBACCO CROP

(Continued From Page One) using the funds of and acting as agents for the Community Credit Corporation. On the average, prices at which the export grades will be purchased by these agencies will be about three cents a pound above last year.

D. Flake Shaw, secretary of the N. C. Farm Bureau with headquarters in Greensboro, presided at the farmer session and joined with Walter L. Randolph, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau, in urging expansion of farm organization as a means "to winning the scrap with labor and industry for our just share of the national income."

"In this American civil war of economics," Randolph told the farmers, "the farmer won't have a show unless he becomes better organized and therein is better able to present our problems to those who make our laws."

"The day of individual farming is past," the Alabama leader continued, "the American farm income in 1940 was two and a half billion dollars more than it would have been without a national farm program and there wouldn't have been a farm program if there hadn't been the Farm Bureau to push for its passage by Congress."

Randolph slapped repeatedly at tariffs on American imports which farmers must buy, at divergent freight rates and "special privilege laws" as a "shackles" which farmers may throw off through organization.

The farmers, representing the largest single flue-cured tobacco area in the world, gathered following the speaking session and adopted resolutions to foster further farmer organization in a dozen eastern counties, to affiliate with the Farm Bureau.

Among those recognized at the session were Representative Herbert C. Bonner of Washington, R. G. Arnold, southern representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, conducted organization "caucuses" among the farmers before the gathering adjourned to the spacious grounds of the college for a bountiful barbecue supper.

Warehouse Mice Live Dangerously
Cleveland, Okla.—(AP)—Engineer Gully of the WPA has ordered his men to use extreme caution in setting those snapping types of mouse traps in the WPA warehouse. He discovered the mice had eaten more than 100 pounds of dynamite. A trap snapping a mouse might explode its stomach contents and blow up the entire supply of blasting materials.

A great "canyon" ranging in depth from 500 to about 8,400 feet has been accurately charted on the floor of the Atlantic a short distance southeast of New York. It is 50 miles wide and 160 miles long.

Let The Lawyers Worry
Anderson, S. C.—(AP)—A farmer asked Judge G. B. Greene to excuse him from jury duty because "shortness of breath won't allow me to do a day's work on the farm, so I don't suppose I'll be any use here." Judge Greene assured him all he had to do was sit around.

10 YEARS OF SERVICE 10 YEARS OF SAFETY 10 YEARS OF PROGRESS

State Bank & Trust Co. Is 10 Years Old Today

Ten years ago this section, as well as the nation, was groping in the dark. We were in the midst of a deep depression. The figures below tell how well we survived that depression and how well we are prepared to face the future.

In the midst of a severe depression we undertook the liquidation of the National Bank of Greenville. When debtors were unable to pay their debts to the National Bank, we unconditionally guaranteed to its depositors 75% of the money which the National Bank owed them. We not only lived up to our guarantee but paid these depositors an additional 4.01%, making a total of 79.01% received by the depositors of the National Bank.	July 25, 1931 RESOURCES		July 24, 1941 RESOURCES		INCREASES

During its 10 years of operation State Bank has made and renewed more than 18,000 loans—an annual average in excess of 1,800. Practically all of these loans have been made to people of this community. All of this business has been transacted well within the provisions of the law and at interest rates at or lower than prescribed by law. Adopting a policy of fairness to others and a "living wage" for ourselves, we have prospered. We succeed as our community succeeds, and have never felt that we should prosper at its expense.

During 1934 the directors of the State Bank purchased $25,000.00 Preferred Stock which stock was retired out of earnings within approximately 18 months. Within the past ten years, it has paid stockholders cash dividends amounting to 48% on its capital stock and during the same period has added in excess of 113% to surplus and undivided profits. Many people have contributed to and made possible this 10 years of successful operation. To each and every one of them we are deeply grateful and sincerely appreciative of their contribution to our success.
