REP. DOUGHTON STATES VIEWS ON NEW TAXES

Declares New General Consumption Levy Likely

MANY MORE MAY PAY INCOME TAX

Possibilities Brought Out By North Carolinian In Advocating Prompt Action On Tax Measure

Washington, July 28.—(AP)—Chairman Doughton (D.-N.C.) of the House Ways and Means Committee, forecast today that Congress would find it necessary later to impose a general consumption tax and force a large number of people to pay income taxes.

"We're not at the end of this tax road yet," Doughton told the Rules Committee while advocating approval of parliamentary procedure which would permit consideration of the $5,522,200,000 tax bill without amendments, except those approved by the Ways and Means group.

After hearing Doughton, the Rules Committee approved a special parliamentary procedure by which the new tax bill will be brought up tomorrow for the three days of general debate. Only amendments proposed by the Ways and Means Committee will be permitted consideration.

Rep. Cooper (D.-Tenn.) assured the Rules group that no phase of the tax problem had received closer study by the Ways and Means Committee than that of broadening the base and reminded the members that at the present time single persons have only $15 and married couples $38 a week that is exempt from taxation.

French Accord Ratified By Jap's Privy Council In Presence of Emperor

Dutch Halt Flow Of Oil To Japanese

Batavia, Netherlands East Indies, July 28.—(AP)—The agreement of last year whereby Japan was to receive 1,000,000 tons of oil annually from the Netherlands East Indies has been suspended by the Dutch and all monetary and commercial dealings with Japan have been placed on a special permit basis.

The extent of the economic measures was outlined early today at a session of the People's Council of this Dutch colony by H. J. Van Mook, director of economic affairs, who has been the chief economic negotiator with the Japanese.

Japan's prospective intake of oil from the largely American and British owned properties here had been stepped up from 494,000 tons a year to the 1,000,000 figure by an agreement announced last November 13.

Tokyo, July 28.—(AP)—The foreign office-controlled Japan Times and Advertiser today described the United States as "hostile" and the leader in a grim economic battle against Japan as the Japanese press generally employed sharper terms in attacking Washington's economic measures.

Informed circles, however, said that the action of the Netherlands East Indies in freezing Japanese assets following the United States lead might produce even more far-reaching consequences than the American program.

SHORT COURSE GETS STARTED

Farm Boys And Girls From Every County Attending

Raleigh, July 28.—Farm boys and girls from every county in North Carolina are converging on N. C. State College today for the formal opening of 4-H Short Course which will continue through Saturday morning of this week. An informal "Get-Acquainted Party" will be held in Riddick Stadium tonight.

Robert Wood, Alamance County farm boy, will preside at the opening exercises, as president of the State 4-H council. Billy Britt, state 4-H historian from Johnston county, will introduce the county delegations, which are expected to total 1,000 or more rural youths.

Colonel John W. Harrison, administrative dean, will welcome the boys and girls to State College, after which L. R. Harrill, State 4-H Club leader, will speak briefly on "Our 4-H Short Course." Miss Frances MacGregor, assistant State club leader, will introduce the Short Course staff.

Mrs. Edmund Aycock of Johnston county, president of the State 4-H Honor Club, will tell of "Short Course Traditions," and Marzell will lead the delegates in songs and games to close the evening's program.

The serious business, and much of the fun of the Short Course, will begin Tuesday. Miss Ruth Current, State Home agent, and John W. Goodman, assistant Extension director, will lead discussions at the morning assembly on "Our Responsibilities in the Present Crisis in the Home and on the Farm."

Dairy demonstration contests, for boys and girls, will begin Tuesday afternoon. North Carolina delegates to National 4-H meetings will report on their trips during the Tuesday evening session in Riddick Stadium.

Rayburn said the measure probably would be accompanied by a presidential message and indicated he thought its passage should be expedited by Congress.

Japan Already Moving Troops, Warplanes and Warships Into Southeastern Asia Under Terms Of Pact; Finance Minister Says Nation Has Sufficient Resources To Offset Economic Pressure

Tokyo, July 28.—(AP)—Japan's privy council, in the presence of Emperor Hirohito, ratified today the Japanese-French accord under which Japan is moving troops, warplanes and warships into southeastern Asia for further occupation of French Indo-China.

Members of the council, according to the authoritative Japanese news agency Domei, further encouraged the government to be prepared to cope with any situation which may arise in the East Asia co-prosperity sphere.

Domei said this exhortation, looking toward the need for still further action in the southwestern Pacific, was voted by the council's investigation committee which recommended to the whole council favorable action on the pact.

Japanese called the agreement one for "joint defense" of the French colony. Japan's bases there are expected to be in the southern part, chiefly Saigon and Camranh bay, bringing Japanese forces hundreds of miles nearer Britain's stronghold of Singapore and the rich Netherlands East Indies.

Japan has sufficient human and material resources, says her new finance minister, Matusune Ogura, to proceed with her plans for a greater East Asia order despite economic pressure by the United States and Great Britain.

Ogura, an industrialist called the "Knudsen of Japan," told the Japanese press last night the American-British action "had been surmised beforehand."

"Furthermore," he predicted, "the reciprocal measures taken by Britain and the United States eventually will prove painful to the two countries so long as Japan's economic resources remain sound and strong."

Stokes Man Dies; Rites Held Today

Ira McGillbert Moore, 66, died in Pitt General Hospital at 9:40 o'clock Sunday morning after several weeks' illness. Funeral services were conducted at the home this afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. Pittman Harris, Free Will Baptist minister of Elizabethtown, and burial followed in the family cemetery nearby.

Mr. Moore was born, reared, and spent his entire life in the Sweet Gum Grove community. He was a member of one of Pitt County's oldest families and one of the leading farmers of the Stokes section. He was a member of the Greenville Masonic Lodges No. 284, A. F. and A. M.

Surviving are three sisters, Miss Etta Moore and Miss Viola Moore, both of the home, and Miss Mary V. Moore of East Carolina Teachers College, Greenville. Five nephews also survive.

Letters Revealed In Tobacco Trial

Lexington, Ky., July 28.—(AP)—Information on a wholesaler's complaint against manufacturers practices was exchanged between the Tobacco Merchants Association and the R. J. Reynolds Company, and the tobacco anti-trust trial jury was told today.

Charles Dushkind of New York city, managing director of TMA said that the complaint was made by a west coast wholesaler against the practice of giving out samples. He said he sent a copy of his reply to S. Clay Williams, board chairman of the Reynolds company one of the three major corporate defendants, and that Williams wrote him expressing agreement with his views.

The letters themselves, as well as further details concerning their contents were barred from evidence by Federal Judge H. Church Ford upon objection of defense counsel.

Japanese To Occupy Strategic Points in Indo-China

Vichy, July 28.—(AP)—It was announced officially tonight that Japan will occupy two points on the coast of French Indo-China and several points in the interior by agreement with the Vichy government.

The inland concessions are in Annam, a coastal region running almost the length of the French Asiatic colony, and in Cochinchina at the southernmost tip of the peninsula across the Gulf of Siam from Malaya.

Japanese troops, it was disclosed, also will have use of Indo-Chinese roads, and possibly railroads, to move southward to their new bases. Japanese forces are already based in northern Indo-China.

Larger deliveries of rice to Japan also were exacted in the agreement.

New Rule To Help Teachers Of City

The faculty of the Greenville City school system will benefit more from the recent ruling of the State Board of Education than the faculty of any other school system in the state.

The State Board of Education at a recent meeting authorized the issuance of what is known as graduate certificates. Basic requirements for the issuance of these graduate certificates is a Master's degree. The Greenville schools have 35 members of its staff who already have Master's degrees. This is the largest number possessed by any school in the state, regardless of size. The Greenville schools therefore have the best trained faculty in the state.

This graduate certificate raises the maximum salary from $128 a month to $150 a month. The $150 a month salary cannot be obtained during this year but will be reached by a large number of the Greenville teachers within three years. The State Board of Education has appropriated $200,000 in the state to make possible the issuance of these graduate certificates.

College Is Repairing Damage by Lightning

Repairs are being made on the roof of Cotten hall, one of the dormitories at East Carolina Teachers college. The building was damaged slightly during the electrical storm that hit Greenville one night about ten days ago.

Some tiling was knocked off the roof by a bolt of lightning and two rafters were broken. The tiling that was torn loose fell on surrounding pieces of tile and caused considerable more damage than actually was inflicted by the lightning. A small hole was torn open at one point on the roof, thus breaking the rafters on the east wing of the dormitory. The damage was estimated at $75.

Four Cases Tried In Monday's City Court

Six defendants faced trial at the regular Monday morning session of Municipal recorder's court and seven cases were continued.

Two of the cases were brought as a result of wrecks. In one Hubert Gray and Robert Norris were found guilty of failing to observe caution signals and each was ordered to pay $10 to be applied on costs. In the other Wiley Brown was convicted and ordered to pay costs, but Jesse Smith, colored, was acquitted.

Shelter-Scorning Residents Killed; RAF Active

London, July 28.—(AP)—German aerial raiders struck at London for the first time in nearly two months today, wrecking homes and causing casualties among shelter-scorning residents in several districts, while the Royal Air Force bombed Dunkerque docks.

For two hours the Luftwaffe units flew above the British capital, loosening explosives and incendiaries from murky skies which followed upon week-end storms that curtailed general air operations.

The British said that last night was the fifth night since early in June '41 which the RAF made no forays into western Germany.

Some fighter planes strafed airfields in northern France during the night and bombers laid mines in German-controlled waters, the Air Ministry said.

The German raid this morning caught many Londoners with a false sense of security and more than a dozen persons were killed.

Four persons who did go to shelters were killed, it was reported.

The attack was considered retaliation for the RAF sortie against Berlin Friday night.

Silk Supply Good For Seven Months

New York, July 28.—(AP)—The National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers estimated today that President Roosevelt's order freezing Japanese assets in this country came at a time when silk supplies were sufficient to meet approximately seven months' normal demand.

The estimate counted stocks in retail, wholesale and manufacturers' store rooms, good for three months; raw silk supplies, another two months; and silk "gray goods," two months more.

Silk substitutes such as nylon can not avert the shortage that would result from an end to silk imports from Japan, the association said. Japan furnished about 93 per cent of this nation's silk imports.

Two Thousand Laborers Strike At St. Louis, Mo., After Two 'Idling' Ice Haulers Are Discharged

(By The Associated Press)

The American Federation of Labor Chemical Workers union notified the Defense Mediation Board in Washington today that it would accept board recommendations for settlement of its long-standing dispute with the Western Cartridge Company, Alton, Ill.

The dispute had carried a threat of strike of 550 smokeless powder workers.

The board had set today for the deadline for acceptance or rejection. No answer had been received from the company when the union acceptance arrived in the mail.

The board's recommendation called for a five per cent wage increase—similar to one granted other company employees July 13—and provided that additional increases demanded by the union be submitted to arbitration, along with the question of paid vacations. Any increases arrived at by arbitration would be retroactive to July 15, the date on which mediation ceased. The present minimum is 52 cents an hour, with average hourly wages considerably higher. The union asked a minimum of 78 cents an hour and boosts in some classifications up to 50 per cent of current scales. The board said these demands were higher than appeared justified.

Although 2,200 laborers at an $89,000,000 small arms ammunition plant under construction at St. Louis took no steps to end their walkout, a spokesman for the contractors said about one-third of the total of 7,500 employees were expected to be on hand today to do what work they could without the laborers.

The strike followed the discharge of two ice haulers Saturday for idling. Only three days before, the St. Louis Building Trades Council had pledged no work stoppages on defense projects.

At Key West, where $2,000,000 in naval projects was held up, the strikers voted yesterday to hold out for their demand for a wage increase despite a naval station announcement that civil service workers would be imported if a compromise wage offer were rejected.

The men asked a boost from 40 to 62-1-2 cents an hour, and turned down an offer of 50 cents.

Air Associates, Inc., at Bendix, N. J., notified the National Defense Mediation Board today that it would accept three of the board's five recommendations for settling a dispute of CIO-United Automobile Workers at the firm's aircraft accessories factory.

Those conditions call for return of all employees to work without discrimination; submission of back pay questions to a regional panel of the National Labor Relations Board, and cooperation by management and employees to maintain shop discipline.

CIO workers at the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, Kearney, N. J., voted to ballot secretly on a recommendation of the Mediation board for a modified union shop.

In Washington, CIO President Philip Murray sent letters to all members of Congress opposing pending legislation which would empower the President to take over defense plants when production was delayed.

ORGANIZATION MEET CALLED

Old North State Fund Drive To Be Mapped Out

Dr. John L. Winstead, Pitt county chairman for the Old North State Fund, an organization of North Carolina citizens interested in helping the British by furnishing them with an ambulance airplane has announced an organization meeting for Tuesday night.

All members of the Advisory Committee for Pitt county and all county chairmen are asked to meet at Respass' place tomorrow night at 7 o'clock to organize for the local drive and to determine a date for the campaign to begin.

Many communities in North Carolina have already begun their drive to raise funds for this "mercy ship" to relieve suffering among victims of the war in Europe, and contributions are rolling into the office of George Ross Pou, State Treasurer for the fund, every hour of the day. Pitt county's quota is $1,250.

The "mercy ship" is to be a twin motored Grumman airplane ambulance, accommodating four stretchers, two sitting cases, pilot, copilot, and medical attendant, and is equipped with the latest devices for the comfort and relief of the wounded. It will be sent to Britain as the gift of the people of the state of North Carolina. Though it is understood that other communities are planning such a contribution, the Old North State Fund is the first actual organization for this purpose, and our state will be the first to deliver a hospital plane.

R. C. Rankin is campaign director for the fund in Pitt county and John Mitchell is treasurer. The following are members of the advisory committee:

- Ayden: J. R. Turnage, J. B. Pierce, A. F. Rowe; Falkland: G. H. Pittman; Farmville: Leroy Rollins, A. C. Monk, Sr., Dr. P. E. Jones, S. A. Garris, L. E. Walston; Paetolus: J. J. Satterthwaite, J. Paul Davenport; Stokes: J. L. Perkins, A. B. Congleton; Winterville: John R. Carroll; F. W. Weatherston, A. W. Anze, J. L. Rollins; Bethel: L. J. Whitehurst, S. C. Ives, W. C. Wynne; Fountain: R. A. Fountain, J. M. Horton; Grimesland-Chilcot: F. A. Elks, J. H. Brooks; Greenville: L. G. Cooper, M. K. Blount, J. S. Picklen, E. G. Flanagan, A. B. Corey, R. L. Humber, Jr., R. M. Garrett, D. J. Germans Reported Facing Another Verdun; Two Divisions Destroyed By Reds, One In Smolensk Area; Luftwaffe Campaigns On Moscow And Leningrad Frustrated; Russians Claim Victories At Sea

Moscow, July 28.—(AP)—The Red army appeared today to be taking the initiative on several sectors of the Russian-German front—a 2,000-mile fighting zone along which Soviet spokesmen earlier declared the Nazi blitzkrieg had broken down to siege tactics.

A communique reported "fighting actions of our troops" throughout the night in the directions of Nevel and Smolensk in the central region, and at Zhitomir, in the Ukraine.

This was a variation from the wording of previous communiques, which mentioned only stubborn battles or fierce fighting, indicating that the Russians now are undertaking more than defense operations.

The Red air fleet as well as the ground troops was reported to be gradually swinging into the offense. These significant references to Russian activities followed a report in last night's communique that Germans were buying tanks for use as stationary pillboxes because of the shortage of fuel.

All evidence on this side indicated that the German drive against the Russian lines was draining the German army strength and that its progress was coming to a halt in the sixth week of the war.

A Moscow communique and government spokesman's report as the war entered its sixth week, claimed: 1. The Nazis were faced with a new Verdun—held to a standstill after days of costly effort to break through the Smolensk sector toward Moscow and the Zhitomir front toward Kiev.

2. Destruction of two German divisions, one of them perhaps in the Smolensk salient where the Red army was credited with putting up a fight "that will be studied many years."

3. A fierce defense of Moscow and Leningrad that frustrated repeated German aerial attempts to burn out the two big cities of western Russia during the past week.

4. Red army forays approaching counter offensives against the Germans in some sectors of the land front, timed with increasing Red air fleet operations which caused the Luftwaffe to fall back upon bases far to the rear.

5. Destruction of two German torpedo boats, two tankers, a submarine, and several patrol boats in a Red air fleet sweep over the Baltic.

After five raids last week, general Moscow showed no great effects of bombing. The Russians said 83 German planes were destroyed in attacks on Moscow and 41 in 12 raids on Leningrad.

During a three and a half hour alarm last night the Russians said eight of 100 raiding planes were downed and only a few broke through over Moscow.

Berlin, July 28.—(AP)—All Russian attempts to prevent annihilation of trapped Red army forces in the Smolensk area have failed and the "battle of Smolensk," a phase of the Nazi thrust toward Moscow, "is drawing to a successful conclusion," the German high command communique declared today.

HOUSEWIVES COOPERATE IN PEACH DRIVE

The public-spirited cooperative drive launched July 24 to increase the consumption of peaches is already proving effective, according to announcement by Miss Verona Lee Joyner, Home Demonstration agent of Pitt county.

She said that housewives throughout the nation have become acquainted with many new uses of this delicious fruit, and many for the first time have discovered that tasty peaches, long relished as a dessert for their flavor, are one of nature's most important health-protecting foods.

"Because of the abundant quantity on hand as a result of the largest and fine crop in 10 years, the peach producing industry and food trades industry are cooperating with the Surplus Marketing Administration in an educational campaign stressing the value of peaches as a health and nutrition aid, as well as a thrifty 'buy' for the table." Miss Joyner added that peaches may be eaten fresh, when peeled, but they may also be used for cooking, stewing, baking, pickling, canning and preserving. Many new recipes for delicious peach dishes have been made available and are being distributed by grocers and fruit dealers during the campaign.

The increased interest evidenced in peaches, as well as the numerous inquiries as to the proper way of preparing various peach dishes, indicate that more and more housewives are becoming aware of the health-protecting value of peaches in the diet. More and more housewives are increasing home canning and laying in adequate food supplies for the time when fresh peaches will not be available.

Library News

When Children Ask

Among the several new books recently added to the Parents' Shelf at the Sheppard Memorial Library there is one of especial interest, "When Children Ask," It is written by Marguerite Bro, the mother of four children and the wife of a president of a girls' school. Besides she has taught in a boys' school, and is continually dealing with high school and college youngsters as a lecturer and forum speaker.

Due to the fact that there are so many more books written about the pre-school child than the adolescent this book fills in a definite need when it deals more with the older children than the young ones.

The fast changing world is causing anxious moments for parents as regards the up-bringing of their children. And when changes come so fast that the parents can't adequately adapt themselves to circumstances how can they lead or even be sympathetic with a younger generation. So the author seeks to answer as best she can the parents' questions about the questions children ask. There are two things, she says, to remember: what your child is really asking for is working equipment; and the value of your answer depends on the working equipment your yourself have acquired. Mrs. Bro tells you how to acquire it. She leads you to scrutinize your own attitudes and abilities—and go to direct your child's. Probably the best chapter in the book is the one on punishment, the title of which is "This Hurts Me Worse." It is a splendid discussion coming to the conclusion that all punishment if possible, should come out of the offense, and that if there is ever a place for discipline through force that time is surely when the child is very, very small, too small for reasoning, and so, unavoidably situated that there are certain things he must not do.

Another chapter which deals with the conduct of young people is worth any parents' time to read. To quote a few sentences: "Familiarity is pretw much a matter of taste. Aristocratic personalities which set high value on their own worth are not likely to permit actions which seem common. One fair standard is: do not do the thing which makes you feel shop-worn afterward. And by all means trust your first negative reaction; the thing which goes against the grain is not for you."

On the back of the book is a splendid bibliography of very special books that parents will do well to study when seeking books for their children to read. Every book mentioned has a definite reason why it is included in the bibliography: it says something about the quality of living. And the chances are that it also has a sense of humor in or between the lines. For the most part they are new books, children's books, divided into groups under special subjects. A few of these books are already in the library, to wit:

"Gentlemen Arent Sissies," by N. H. Jonathan.

"The Story of a Baby," by Marie Hall.

"David," by Elizabeth Jones.

"Millet Tilled the Soil," by Doucher and Wheeler.

"Co-Ediquette," by Elizabeth Eldridge.

"It's More Fun When You Know," by B. Pierce.

"Van Loon's Geography," The story of the world.

"Reading with Children," by Wm. Read.

"Style Your Personality," by Rance Long.

Unable To Escape Through Marriage

Registrants who get married on the eve of induction or after being ordered to report to the doctor for physical examination will do so at their own risk and will find that their marriage will not keep them out of the Army.

This was made clear by General J. Van B. Metts, state director of Selective Service, as he announced a modification of the former policy of leniency toward married men which has been recommended by State headquarters. General Metts stated that a modification in this policy was made necessary by an increasingly large number of registrants who are apparently undertaking to abuse the policy of leniency in an effort to evade military service.

The modified policy, which was passed on to all Selective Service agencies in the state today, is as follows:

"When a registrant acquired married status after issuance of 'Notice to Appear for Physical Examination' it should be assumed that both parties concluded the marriage knowing that the registrant was subject to early call for service and were prepared to take the consequences, and therefore deferment in such cases would not appear to be justified. But when a registrant has indicated on his questionnaire that he is engaged, giving the date set for the wedding, or has given similar information in writing to the local board and the wedding date falls after issuance of 'Notice to Appear for Physical Examination,' his case should be considered in the same way as those who married after registrants, as provided by Amendment No. 77 to Selective Service Regulations. Of course, there may be other conditions which would obviously temper the above announced modification of policy, e.g., proof that the wife was pregnant, or conclusive evidence of absolute dependence wherein the wife would suffer undue hardship if compelled to live on the registrant's income as a soldier, etc."

This modified policy, General Metts pointed out, is in line with a recent amendment to the regulations, which is as follows:

"It is not advisable to defer any such registrant if he acquired such status for the purpose of avoiding training and service, and, therefore, no registrant should be placed in Class III if he acquired such status after the day when he was acquired to be registered unless (1) he or his claimed dependent or dependents present to the local board written statements of the facts peculiarly within their knowledge, showing the history leading up to and the circumstances under which such status was acquired, and (2) such facts show that the status of the registrant was acquired in a manner consistent with the ordinary course of human affairs and was not acquired to provide the registrant with a basis for a claim for Class III deferment."

General Metts was careful to point out that in the application of these principles he anticipates that some mistakes will be made. But he stated he was satisfied that Selective Service agencies in the state would endeavor to do substantial justice in every individual case.

Put Your Best Feet Forward

By BETTY CLARKE (AP Feature Service Writer)

You can't hide your feet in summer, so you'd better take care of their appearance.

A careful pedicure should be a part of the beauty routine of any woman, but it is doubly important to those who appear barefooted on the beach or who wear sheer summer hose and toeless sandals—and that takes in a big majority.

A by-product of foot care as it makes for beauty is plain comfort. A woman naturally is more careful with the shaping of the nails and other details when, for instance, she is preparing to apply a bright nail polish.

If you go to a beauty parlor for a pedicure, the expert probably will cut your nails in slight curves, being careful not to cut too close to the cuticle at the sides. And she will tell you not to cut your nails very often.

Your pedicure kit, for home or vacation, can include a pumice stone (to smooth any cotton), some foot cream or lotion, cotton to go between your toes while the polish is drying, some antiseptic foot powder and, of course, the manicuring paraphernalia.

Smart women at the beaches this year seem to prefer bright nail polish both for fingers and for toes. However, some who have gone in for that more natural look in makeup, use a light fingernail polish and a dark but blending shade for the feet. The trick is to prevent a clash in color. New colors are a ginger-tea sunbrowned red and a clear red that sets off suntan.

Here is once-a-week summertime suggestion from a leading foot specialist.

Soak feet in warm water 10 minutes. Then massage each with a granular soap which, he says, removes perspiration and dead cuticle more easily and also stimulates circulation. Rinse your feet first in warm and then in cool water and dry them thoroughly. Proper drying is important. Now if your feet are likely to be tired when you start this weekly beauty bath, the next step should be to soothe them with a softening cream. Work the cream over the foot, around the toenails with both hands, pulling upward on the foot and leg as you do

Hen Conscripted When Gas Fails London. (AP) — St. Bartholomew's hospital received the gift of a set of eggs. It was suggested when the chickens were hatched they should be sent to the nurses' country home to provide eggs for the winter.

The eggs were put in a gas incubator in the pathological laboratory. Then bombs cut off the supply. The eggs were in danger of going cold.

A resourceful hospital official appeared with a hen in the side-car of his motorcycle and the newcomer proceeded to hatch out the eggs.

HEARTBREAK HONEYMOON

By WATKINS S. WRIGHT

Chapter 28

Henry—At Last

When Luella opened her eyes again, she stretched out on a warm, dry blanket in a place that was brightly lighted. There was a strange stillness about her; the storm sounded far away.

She glanced around and saw others lying upon blankets, and women moving softly here and there. She thought: "Hurricane, emergency hospital, nurses." Then she heard someone calling her name.

Henry Pell was hurrying toward her.

She tried to speak, but no words came. All she could do was wait, and then collapse into Henry's arms.

"Oh, darling—darling!" Henry cried, his voice choked with sobs. "I've been looking for you everywhere!" He held her to him. His lips touched her hair, her cheek, Luella—sweetheart.

Luella lay still for a moment, weary but content. Then she suddenly pushed Henry from her.

"Tommy!" she gasped. "Where's Tommy?"

Henry stared at her. "I don't know," he said stupidly. "You—mean—he's been with you?"

"Yes! He came today. He hurried out to the cottage to get me." Luella began to look wildly around her. "Oh, Henry, we must find him. We must—"

A nurse heard her, and came over to where she and Henry were kneeling upon the blanket.

"Anything wrong?" she asked.

"Tommy, Mr. McIntyre," Luella cried. "The man who was on the cottage roof with me! Where is he?"

"He's gone," the nurse replied quietly.

"Gone? What do you mean?"

"I'm sorry, but Mr. McIntyre couldn't be rescued."

"Oh, no—no!" Luella began to sob heart-breakingly. "Oh, poor dear Tommy." She sank down upon a pillow. "Oh God—"

Henry motioned to the nurse to leave them. He took Luella in his arms once more.

"Don't cry like that, darling," he begged. "Please, don't. I can't bear it. I had no idea you loved him that much."

Luella looked up quickly, her eyes swimming in tears.

"Love him?" she said.

"Yes, I didn't know I—"

"You're wrong, Henry!" Luella said, struggling for calm. "It's you I love. But Tommy was such a dear—such a splendid person. So kind—so sweet—"

She began to sob anew. "Oh, Henry, it's horrible—horrible—being swept away like her hair before the small mirror. Outside a waiter was telling everyone that dinner was being served in the dining car in the rear."

"Hungry?" asked Henry.

"A little," said Luella, "but first let's go back to the observation car and just loaf a bit."

They went out of the drawing room, and back through car after car, holding hands, swaying a little with the motion of the speeding train. Just before they entered the observation car, standing in the cramped vestibule, Luella looked up into Henry's face.

"This time we really are starting out with complete understanding, aren't we?" she asked.

"Yes, darling, we are," he replied. "No more neglect, no more jumping to conclusions."

He bent down and kissed her, and then they pushed open the door. Someone was working with the controls of the radio at the head of the observation section. And as they sat down to watch the occasional lights as they whipped past, a rich familiar voice rose behind them.

"Moonlight on the Swannanoa,

An' mah man a-standin' by; Lovin' me, holdin' me, Almos' make me cry,"

Quietly Henry's hand found Luella's; they listened without a word.

"Oh, Lawdy—send—him—back."

The voice broke. There was a sob in Luella's throat. And the song came to an end.

The Honorable Harold L. Ickes, Petroleum Coordinator for National Defense, has appealed to every citizen to save gasoline...

Now it's up to you!

It's time for plain talk.

Unless the public cuts gasoline consumption by 1/3, rationing is sure.

And it will come soon!

The Petroleum Coordinator says the situation is serious.

And we know that something has to be done!

The Petroleum Coordinator asks that all speed limits be strictly enforced.

Fast driving wastes gasoline. Slow driving will save it.

Every good citizen will cooperate.

This is your chance as a liberty-loving American to do your share for national defense—and help yourself too!

Many tankers which normally supply the East have been called into the service of National Defense.

There is no shortage of oil, America is the largest producer of petroleum in the world—transportation is the only problem.

More tankers and pipelines are being built.

Meanwhile, less gasoline will be available.

Isn't it better to reduce your own needs voluntarily? Isn't that the American way?

Be proud to save gasoline! Ask others to do the same. At right are 10 ways to do it. Read them carefully.

Start right away to use one-third less gasoline.

HERE ARE 10 DO'S AND DON'TS THAT WILL HELP YOU USE ONE-THIRD LESS GASOLINE

DO

1. Have your carburetor adjusted for the most economical mixture of gasoline and air.
2. Have ignition system and spark plugs checked regularly for most economical performance.
3. Keep transmission and differential properly lubricated, lubricate chassis regularly. Use correct grade of lubricating oil in engine and change it regularly for maximum efficiency.
4. Keep the cooling system clean and filled to proper level.
5. Keep tires properly inflated. Keep brakes adjusted to eliminate "drag."

DON'T

1. Don't speed. Driving at high speed greatly increases fuel consumption. Wind resistance increases by geometric proportion to speed. At 60 miles an hour it is four times greater than at 30. Drive at a reasonable, safe speed and save.
2. Don't make "jack-rabbit" starts. Driving in first and second gear multiplies the consumption of gasoline. Watch your starts at traffic lights—avoid sudden bursts of speed.
3. Don't let your car idle at the curb—don't race your motor when starting. This is hard on the motor and wastes gasoline.
4. Don't use your car unless you have to. Plan your driving. Group your errands.
5. Don't forget others. Share the transportation your car provides—double up with friends going the same way.

Strength For The Day BY BAKI J. DOUGLASS

GOD CAN MANAGE AND DOES

A boy in a certain religious household is in the habit of talking about "breaks." Life flows along merrily if you get "the breaks," but if you are unlucky enough not to get them, even there is nothing to do but to take life as it comes and like it.

The father of this boy often says, "Don't speak about 'breaks' in this household. Please substitute for that word 'breaks' the word 'providence.' We in this house—inclining yourself if you could only look down into the bottom of your heart—believe that God is in charge of the world and that He either causes or permits to occur 'everything that happens.' So forget about 'breaks' and begin to think a little about 'providence'."

Magic, fortune-telling, betting, Ouija boards, stock speculations, etc., are all tied up with the idea that life is fine if you get good "breaks" and miserable beyond description if you don't. Religion, on the other hand, is built on the firm conviction that we never "get 'breaks,' either good or bad, but that the world lies in the hollow of God's hand and that whether we are conscious of it or not, He has everything definitely in control.

Life has poise, balance, purpose when we believe this. The people who wait for "good breaks" are restless and anxious almost to the point of despair. Religion puts something solid in a man's life. If God is at the center of His universe, He knows that "come wind, come weather," nothing can overwhelm Him.

Washington—The four steps of espionage, from the inception of a spy ring to its full function as a unit, are: (1) the recruiting of agents; (2) the accumulation of information; (3) the dispatch and delivery of that information and (4) the payment of agents.

There are only three other activities of a "fifth column" under any circumstances—sabotage, propaganda, and the closely related activity of preparation for occupation. With these we need not be concerned here. But let's take the points of espionage and see how they fit into the picture presented by the indictment at New York of the "greatest spy ring" in U. S. history. As far back as 1936, say Hoover, Kennedy and the indictment, the recruiting of agents had started for this ring. The methods of "recruiting" are both subtle and brutal. Don't think for a minute that spies are just moved in from outside. That would be crude, because they could be easily spotted, and ineffective, because newscasters would not have access to information or the freedom to move about as trusted members of the industry in which they are employed, or the community in which they settle.

Friendship A Factor The bases of recruiting agents are friendship or at least acquaintance with an individual who has been mixed up in this sort of thing before. According to Hoover, Frederick Joubert Levesque might have been such a person. Hoover identified him as a "professional spy" who was mixed up in World War espionage. Persons of known sympathy to a certain cause that who have not openly indulged in activities against the nation in which they live) also are ripe for approach, especially if they are psychologically and economically adaptable. This includes the foreign-born misfits who move on the fringe of the underworld but do not have criminal records. Then there is blackmail of one form or another, including that particularly vicious one of threatening a person with harm to relatives left behind in their native land.

The Doors Are Locked But —

The State Department's recent tightening of immigration to exclude all emigrants who have close kin still in the war zones shows just how certain the government is that this last method has been or is being used.

In fact, I am told it is pretty certain that all these methods were used in recruiting the present ring. And it is considered likely that some of the defendants will take their chances before a jury to prove that they were coerced or driven by fear to take part in a plot in which they had no heart.

Close To Defense Jobs As for the information accumulated, the present case abounds in actual and potential illustrations. One of the men indicted was an employe of the firm that manufactures the "Hawkeye" bombight. Another worked for the Sperry Gyroscope Co., which turns out a number of vital defense instruments. A third was a tool and die maker. Another worked for a Bendix, N. J., aviation instrument firm. One had contact with an Akron, Ohio, steel products company, handling big defense contracts. Yet another was a former executive abroad of Ford Motor Co., one of the greatest assembly line manufacturing companies. Others were pier and dock workers, skilled in a knowledge of cargo loadings. There was one who was a shipping clerk, with access to sailing schedules.

So what? You can be certain that there was enough tangible evidence that our defense production secrets (including the great bombight), production schedules, new machine tools and assembly line methods; shipping dates, routes and cargoes, were being filched for a grand jury to return indictments. So you can be sure, too, that enough of the evidence was provable to make nearly one-fourth of those arrested in the ring plead guilty.

Short Shots

Raleigh, July 22—It's all right to go round talking "harmony" to most politicians and to all "ins" who have what they want; but if you value your peace of mind do not call on Bill Davis, rising young Democrat of Winston-Salem, and tell how nice it would be to settle all incipient contests before the Young Democratic Clubs of North Carolina hold their annual convention in the Twin City in September.

What Bill wants is discord and plenty of it. The more candidates for YD offices the more interest in the convention. The more interest in the convention, the more folks will gather for it. The more folks that gather the brighter the stars in Bill's crown as an arranger of festivities. He wouldn't admit it, this corner is sure, but actually there is good reason to believe that Bill is going to see to it that there are at least three active aspirants for the YD presidency still canvassing frantically for votes when the convention is called to order and Tommie Banks, the Governor's secretary, does his best at the job of keynoting. Which will be in rather marked contrast to recent history. Heretofore it has been the custom for candidates to do no end of claiming and fuming for weeks and weeks, only for the whole thing to simmer down to nothing at the last moment. Everybody has been afraid to take a beating, the whole philosophy of North Carolina's politicians of late years being to board the bandwagon and blow a horn for the victor. All of which is probably good for those who know best how to conjure up the vision of victory in advance. It is probable that what North Carolina and its dominant Democratic party need most is a whole series of knock down, drag out fights.

This and That At the U.C.C. get-together dinner Friday night to celebrate Major A. L. Fletcher's assumption of the chairmanship, Governor Broughton described the "politics" of his appointment of the Major and his selection of the rest of the committee. He declared he did not get one endorsement or any other political recommendation for the chairmanship. "I think him up myself," he joked with purposefully erroneous conviction. He said the committee was worked out by him and Major Fletcher without the suggestion or intervention of anyone else. None of which has ever been questioned by any news writer in the state. It has been agreed from start to finish that Major Fletcher was one of those rare "naturals." Dave Hall, representative of industry on the U.C.C. board, told the best joke of the get-together. He told of the nine heirs who squabbled so long and hard over division of their parents' property that one of them finally provoked into exclaiming, "Sometimes I wish paw hadn't even died!" Happiest state official in Raleigh is Chairman T. A. Wilson of the Industrial Commission. He makes no bones about his great joy over return of E. B. Price as secretary of the commission. Price left to his first love August 1, replacing Jimmy Massenburg, with whom the commission chairman never functioned in anything approaching harmony. Incidentally, a "committee" seeking to see that Jimmy is "taken care of" hasn't met with any great success as yet. There are indications that Boddie Ward, new Commissioner of Motor Vehicles is being worked on. It seems that these "committees" are becoming more or less the accepted thing, with every politician who has lost out in one department fully expecting to get to the pay roll; although the groups representing Mrs. J. B. Spilman and Massenburg appear to be having their troubles.

MADE UP TO KILL by Kelley Roos

Chapter One Opening Night I pushed the elevator bell and its feeble ping sound floated up from the basement. A minute later Jinx, the pop-eyed colored boy "fixed at me, as he slid open the door. "Evenin', Miss Rogers. " "Good evening," I said. "Tonight the big night?" "Yes." "Gonna roll 'em in the at. es?" "Sure." "Frank on the old B. R. O. Sign?" "You bet." I began to wish that I hadn't passed all my old copies of Variety on to Jinx. "Where's Miss Blanton?" "She's sick," I said, "and incidentally, how's chances for a ride down?" His eyes popped now like two bright marbles. "You mean she ain't gonna play tonight?" "No," I said, "she ain't." "Good Luck!" In a sort of stunned silence he piloted the elevator down. At the lobby floor he stood back respectfully while I stepped out, then almost knocked me over as he scooted past to get to the outside door. He held it open for me. "Good luck!" he yelled. It was a wonderful night. November had begun to take itself seriously and the air was crisp and cold. There was a smattering of stars competing timidly with the glow of Times Square ten blocks down. A perfect opening night. The theater would be walking with ermine and white ties and orchids and celebrities. Backstage there would be that breathless darkness and the smell of grease paint and the quiet rustlings from the front of the house. And up in my little three-room apartment on East Fifty-fourth Street would be Carol, cheated out of her first opening night by a case of laryngitis.

I was still tumbling helplessly about it as I turned the corner and started toward the glare of the theater district. If only there had been something to do for her, something or someone to swear at and blame for it. But a voice is a pretty intangible something when you just lose it. If Carol had tripped on a broken step or been hit by a taxi you might have started suit against the building or beaten the driver to a pulp, but you can't be very vindictive about a sore throat. I turned the corner off Broadway and the lights on the marquee of the Colony Theater popped out at me. "Clinton Bowers," they spelled, very simply and proudly, "Presents Green Apples With Eve No. 1." My heart began pounding a new familiar opening-night pound and I stopped a second in front of the theater to look at the shiny new pictures that had been slid under their glass covers that afternoon. Monopolizing nearly all the space Eve No. 1 smiled serenely into the street from three giant photographs. She looked quite young with her hair piled toweringly, the youthful contour of her chin outlined against the frill of her high-necked dress. Even in black and white you would know somehow that Eve's hair was dull henna color and that her eyes were greenish gray.

Little Carol You hardly saw the other pictures, completely overshadowed by the almost life-sized ones of Eve; but there were two of Philip Ashley, smirking a little and looking like a handsome, well-to-do retired business man, and a scowling one of old Benjamin Kerry just before but when I heard the name again I thought I'd better find out about him. I'm supposed to know a little of what goes on in this town. It seemed for a moment a new hero had zoomed up and everybody but this department knew all about him. I was hard for me not to resent her being there where Carol should have been wearing Carol's dress, about to play her part. I mumbled some greeting at her as I slipped into a faded old housecoat that had seen me through my seven Broadway shows and wrapped a Turkish towel around my head.

Man About Manhattan by George Tucker

New York.—People ask me "What is this Miguelito Valdes like?" That was a stumper. I didn't know who Miguelito Valdes was. Then someone wrote in from Ohio and wanted to know if he was in "Panama Hattie." No, he isn't in "Panama Hattie," and sings, like a suddenly tamed we call this ocean-shouting. But on the Havana docks they shouted in impromptu songs and improvised verses. He shouted to the tunes of small drums, or to maracas, claves or guitars. Sometimes to the tune of all at once. Then Mike got the urge to become a prizefighter. He read an account of how much coin Joe Louis gets for one of his matches, and he started out to emulate him. To make a long story short, Mike did not attain the title. But he did become a cooking good guitarist, and a singer of Latin tunes. Now you see and hear him with Char! If you are in New York, you find him at the Waldorf. If you are elsewhere, you can find him on the radio with Cugat or in the phonograph record shops. Some of his best known numbers are "Bure Maraca," "Macumbe," "Behalu," and "Nieta Leonor." Mike has only been in the United States a year. His English is not good, but neither is it bad. He is fascinated by New York's styles in tailoring, and his wardrobe grows alarmingly. In fact, he likes it here so well he thinks he'll stay. Carmel Lombardo, brother Guy Lombardo, the orchestra leader, has altered his style of singing. He has honed off the edges of those harsh R's and taken a quiver out of his voice—Bravo!

Greenies Score Three Victories Over Kinston Eagles

LOCALS GO ON HITTING SPREE

Kinston Team Seriously Crippled By Loss Of Men

Rube Wilson's Greenies took all three week-end games from the Kinston Eagles as the locals boosted their batting average against a seriously crippled team by the loss of the Kinston manager and several of the best players.

The second game here yesterday afternoon was only a farce, with the Eagles realizing that they did not have a chance and the Greenies joining in the farce, although not their batting average at the same time.

Hitting freely in all three games, the Greenies won Saturday night in Kinston 17-8, took the first game here yesterday afternoon 11-3 and turned in a 17-2 victory to end the week-end program.

Kinston was so short of men that the batboy had to warm up the extra Kinston pitcher on hand after pitching one full game he had to take a coaching job in the second game.

McCarthy, former Greenville pitcher now with the Eagles, clowned throughout the game to somewhat break the monotony.

After Lefty Adams had pitched the innings, holding the Eagles to safety, Manager Rube Wilson decided to give him a rest and over the mound duties. Rube threw the balls across — not attempting to "cut anything" and after the first two men doubled, the Kinston players either hit easy grounders or popped up.

Practically every player on the team was hitting the offerings of the Kinston youngsters used in the week-end series. Jenkins got a total of nine hits, including two homers and a double, in 14 trips to the plate during the three games to lead the Greenies. The Greenville third baseman hit .644 to boost his season average.

A CAMOUFLAGE EXPERT

WHO HE IS

Frederic H. Rahr is perhaps best known as the man who invented the yellow baseball. His job is that of a "color consultant"; he plans colors and color schemes of shingles, floor coverings, and everything in between, including homes and large buildings. His clients are business firms. He was born in New England, outside of Boston. Graduated from Harvard (the fine arts department) in 1929. Studied color from Hollywood to Europe. He is married and has two children. His interests, besides color, are hunting dogs; hunting quail and pheasant; painting; golf; travel; and the theatre.

"The most perfect imitation of a farmhouse on a hill is a farmhouse on a hill. The Germans used this one in their attacks on the Lowlands and France. Remember how the sides of hills opened and Nazi planes were wheeled out? Apparently the Germans burrowed under the hills and built underground hangars by a process of tunneling. There are several types of camouflage. One, the most commonly known, is the dazle type. An ex-by green paint."

Making TNT In Duke Explosives Lab

P. R. Phillips, Jr., of Durham, one of the two score young scientists completing the first national defense course in the chemistry of explosives conducted at Duke University during recent weeks. He is shown here engaged in one step in the preparation of TNT. He wears heavy goggles with shatter-proof glass for protection. The special course will be given again beginning August 4 and continuing through August 30. Dr. Marcus Hobbs of the Duke chemistry faculty is in charge. The course is conducted in cooperation with the United States Commissioner of Education to provide training for persons planning to work as inspectors for the United States Ordnance Department, operators and inspectors for manufacturers having contracts for explosives, and others employed in the field in which such technical training is required.

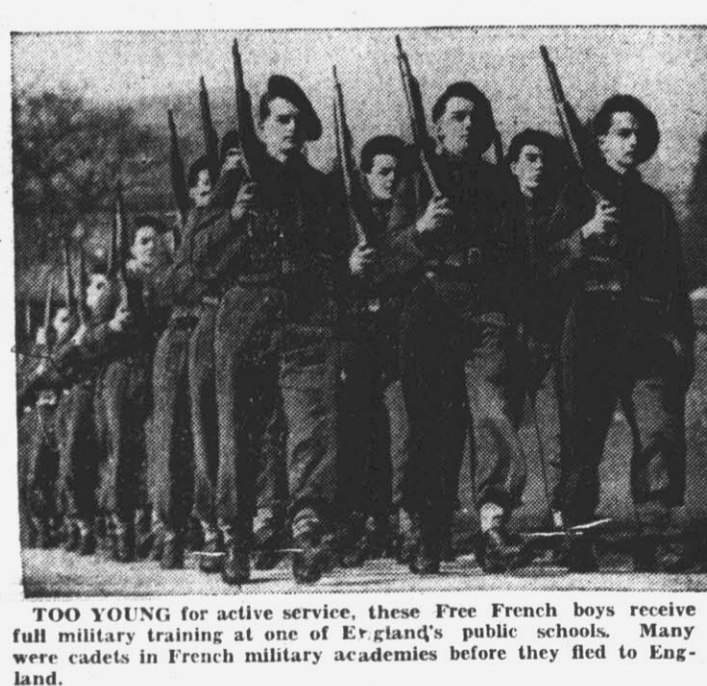

Sizing Up "Free France," One Year Old

SON OF A PROFESSOR of philosophy, Charles De Gaulle at the age of 20 joined a regiment commanded by Philippe Petain.

TOO YOUNG for active service, these Free French boys receive full military training at one of England's public schools. Many were cadets in French military academies before they fled to England.

The Free French movement goes into its second year with what political and military analysts in London believe are improving chances of restoring France to its old prestige. This summing up of the Free French status was sent to the AP Feature Service by cable.

By RUSSELL G. LANDSTROM (AP Feature Service) London—A little over a year ago Gen. Charles de Gaulle proclaimed: "The flame of French resistance must never die and will not die." Hundreds of his countrymen had wept their fill at the collapse of France and responded eagerly to De Gaulle's summons to "all French officers and soldiers in Britain or who are come to Britain with their arms or without their arms."

Soon he had some 25,000 men ready to serve him, plus an auxiliary "Corps Feminin." Now his army numbers 40,000. Free France dug itself in solidly in Equatorial Africa and some smaller African colonies, in colonial outposts in the Pacific, in India and New Caledonia. Only a few weeks ago, it was reported, Free French supporters maneuvered a bloodless coup in Tahiti, seizing the government from Nazi sympathizers.

Libya. Under the leadership of Simone Mathieu, the celebrated lawn tennis player, the Corps Feminin is patterned after British women's auxiliary organizations. It furnishes secretaries, orderlies, drivers and nurses to Free French headquarters here.

Working men replied to De Gaulle's call as well as soldiers. French skilled laborers staff the entire airplane repair plant from the director down to the youngest apprentice. Other workers are helping in demolition of tottering buildings and clearing up bombed parts of the city. Still others have been absorbed into the British factories.

De Gaulle's deputy in London is Admiral Muselier, a slightly-built, lively native of Provence. He possesses something of his chief's energy, if not his oratorical gift, is affable, modest and has a sense of humor.

The head of the Free French in the Middle East is General Catroux, tall, lithe son of a general and an authority on the land over which he has jurisdiction. Born in Algeria, he is a veteran of the World War. De Gaulle himself is 50. He was wounded three times in the World War and was captured five times at Verdun, escaping each time until finally he got back to the French lines. In 1934 he published a book "The Army of the Future" which is said to have given the Germans many ideas on mechanical warfare. Vichy has sentenced him to death. The African natives among De Gaulle's troops look on him as a kind of god. There is a tribal legend about him that runs something like this: "De Gaulle was a corporal. He was dead. He had been dead for five years. In his grave he heard that a German corporal (Hitler) had taken his Paris. He leaped from his grave shouting 'I am a general now, and I'll show you something!'"

Rev. T. M. Grant Is Heard Sunday

By WYATT BROWN "Unless one's religion meets the demands and experiences of ordinary life, it is failing. Religion must be practical," declared Rev. T. M. Grant, pastor, yesterday morning in his sermon at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. This idea was enunciated in the course of a sermon dealing with the meeting of the vicissitudes of life. Mr. Grant brought out that one must have spiritual strength to meet the trials of life. This strength, he brought out, does not occur by accident but comes from a triumph of the spiritual following much thinking. "Any man that has a vision to keep living by his faith. People may let him down but he comes back for he has spiritual strength. When you know God loves you, little things fade out. "Know a few people who are big, who have not surrendered, who are still willing to be taught, who have walked with God," exhorted Mr. Grant in conclusion, citing it as a way to increase one's spiritual strength for facing the trials of life.

Reds Swinging Toward Offensive

(Continued From Page One) On the Finnish side of the Nazi push toward Leningrad, the Soviet Union's second largest city, the bulletin from Adolf Hitler's headquarters said that the Russians were offering tough resistance, but that no advances had been made. Earlier reports had placed the German vanguards within 45 miles of Leningrad. On the southern end of the long Eastern front, the communique said, the armies of Germany and her southeastern allies were "in pursuit of the enemy in spite of bad raids."

To Probe Charges Of Wilson Board

Wilson, July 28.—(AP)—An announcement was made here today that a board of officers would meet at Fort Bragg Wednesday morning to investigate allegations that Irv Dickens, Wilson professional baseball player, was rejected for army service because of pressure brought to bear by local interests who desired to see him continue playing baseball. The allegation was made public last week after Wilson Draft Board No. Two, which had passed Dickens resigned in protest against the alleged pressure. The board said Dickens himself had made no effort to escape army service.

Navy Drafts Popeye, Gives Him Big Task

Washington, July 28.—The United States navy today relied upon Popeye to insure the success of its new, high-powered recruiting drive. In a remarkable tribute to the newspaper comic character's wholesome influence upon American youth, the Navy has made Popeye the spearhead of its campaign to acquaint them with the practical advantages of enlistment: Opportunities for travel, learning trades, good pay, security, advancement. For the first time in its history, a government department is sponsoring publication of a comic strip and in it Popeye is starred. Last October the navy's chief of naval operations, Admiral Harold Stark, personally inducted Popeye into the service and paid tribute to him: "You have always been an inspiration to the navy" and recalled that there was many a Popelie phrase in the navy's language. His picture became the emblem of a crack naval bombing unit. Now the Navy has put Popeye to work in the biggest recruiting assignment in its history, with Indiana, Missouri and Iowa as the center of his initial operations. There the navy is testing a high powered paid advertising campaign in newspapers that is accompanied by special Popeye recruiting strips.

Escaped Prisoner Is Still At Large

Captain Paul Crawford, superintendent of the Pitt county prison camp, reported today that no trace had been found of David Horton, 18-year-old convict sentenced in Cabarrus county, since he made his escape with the aid of an accomplice Saturday. Horton was serving a five-year sentence imposed in Concord in February, 1940, on a charge of robbery. He had been made a trusty and was used as a water boy when he made his escape. A former convict, whose name was not revealed, but who completed a term at the Pitt camp about 18 months ago, is credited with meeting Horton under a pre-arranged plan.

"Wonderful News," Says F. D. R.

An all time high record of $2,104,466.53 net proceeds in the 1941 Celebration of the President's Birthday to raise funds for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is reported to President Roosevelt at the White House. This exceeds the previous high record made in 1940 by $697,214.79, or 49.5 per cent. President Roosevelt receiving the report from Keith Morgan, National Chairman of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday and Basil O'Connor, President of the National Foundation, said he was "thrilled over the results." Those with the President are, left to right: Keith Morgan, chairman; George E. Allen, vice-president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis; James Forrestal, of the National Paralysis Foundation, and (seated) President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

New Support For Einstein's Theory: 100,000 Plus 100,000 Equals 155,153

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE AP Science Editor Chapel Hill, N. C.—If an airplane flying 100,000 miles a second, carries a cannon whose muzzle velocity is 100,000 miles a second, how fast does the shell travel when fired, straight ahead? The answer by ordinary mathematics is 200,000 miles a second, that is, the plane's speed plus the shell's velocity. But it is only 155,153 miles by Einstein mathematics, as demonstrated by Dr. Archibald Henderson, University of North Carolina mathematician. The demonstration comes from a new way of proving Einstein's theory of simple relativity. This theory caused a lot of dispute, for Einstein said it showed a watch in motion keeps different time than one at rest.

He added that you couldn't detect this on earth, because the difference did not appear until motion approached the speed of light, which is 186,000 miles a second. Dr. Henderson, with a student, C. H. Frick, developed a simple geometrical method of showing Einstein's correctness. Dr. Henderson said it is the simplest proof yet found.

agreement. The former convict is said to have parked at a filling station just north of the river while he waited for the camp truck laden with prisoners to pass on the way to a road project at Tucker's filling station on the New Bern highway. The accomplice is said to have driven by where the men were working two or three times and then to have turned down a side road. Horton, it was reported, led the site where the men were working, under the pretense of going to get some water. He is alleged to have met the ex-convict and the two drove off. Horton was not kept under guard as he was an "A" grade prisoner.
