REDS DESCRIBED AS WITHDRAWING TO NEW STAND

PERSON NEGRO IS SAVED FROM ANGRY CROWDS

Whisked To Central Prison Upon Arrival Of Help

MOB ESTIMATED AT 500 PERSONS

Attempt Made by 500 White Men to Lynch 22-Year-Old Negro Charged With Raping White Girl

Roxboro, Aug. 16.—(AP) Quiet descended on this little town of 4,599 inhabitants near the North Carolina-Virginia line today after a night in which a mob of 500 men attempted unsuccessfully to get their hands on Cy Winstead, 22-year-old Negro, charged with raping a young white girl.

Until around 4 a. m., the mob members, armed with guns, stones, bottles and sticks, pelted the Person county jail while officers, hemmed up in a room in the jail, drove the men back at intervals with tear gas.

Sheriff M. T. Clayton who, after summoning aid from the Durham and Raleigh police department and the state highway patrol, managed to whip Winstead out of the little town to the state prison in Raleigh, said that as far as he could learn no one had been seriously injured.

Six hours after the crowd began forming and the sheriff sent a new call for help to the state highway patrol, the mob began dispersing, and shortly only a few spectators remained around the jail.

"It was the worst night in Person county history," the sheriff said. "The damage to the jail alone certainly is above $1,000.

"There is a bottling plant across the street from the jail and the mob entered that and hurled case after case of empty bottles into the jail," he continued.

"Throughout we kept pumping tear gas at them and sending calls to Durham and Raleigh for help from the police and the state highway patrol. Finally, when sufficient help arrived, the crowd began dispersing and we rushed Winstead to state prison in Raleigh. He was not harmed."

To add to the confusion, a group of Negro CCC boys, estimated at from 35 to 40, and reportedly armed with sticks and baseball bats, advanced from their camp on the edge of town toward the court house, apparently to aid Winstead. They were within 150 yards of the court house when shots from the crowd dispersed them.

Gilbert Oakley, Roxboro policeman, said that at least five shots were fired at the court house. He was slightly scratched on the forehead by flying glass.

Usual Run Of Cases In Court On Friday

Charges of abandonment and non-support, drunkenness and a wreck case were tried at the regular Friday session of Municipal recorder's court.

Enoch Staten, colored, was convicted of abandonment and non-support and given a 60-day sentence, suspended upon condition that he pay $25 by September 15 and $75 by October 15 into the welfare office to be used for the support of his child.

Ben Frank Gwaltney and Estelle Rollins were convicted in two cases on charges of being drunk and disorderly and were given 30-day sentences in each, the terms to run concurrently. Frances Rumely also was convicted of being drunk and disorderly and given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon good behavior for one year.

Acey Jones and Mrs. Arthur Pittman were acquitted of charges of careless and reckless driving which grew out of a wreck.

Mrs. L. L. Jones was acquitted of a traffic law violation.

Levy Jones, convicted of drunkenness, was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon good behavior for one year.

Berlin Attacked

New York, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Berlin and the German Baltic port of Stettin was heavily damaged by Russian bombers overnight, the Moscow radio, heard here by CBS, reported today.

"Many incendiary and high explosive bombs of heavy calibre were dropped on Berlin and Stettin," the broadcast said.

"All our planes have returned to their bases."

MOVE TO SEND IMMEDIATE AID

Britain And U.S. Are Translating Words Into Action

Washington, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Translating valiant words into action, the United States and Great Britain today undertook decisive steps designed to fulfill the aim of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to hasten the "final destruction of Nazi tyranny."

While any further military, naval or diplomatic discussions or decisions by the President and Prime Minister remained undisclosed—and probably will stay state secrets—immediate action was taken to provide all possible assistance to Soviet Russia's "splendid defense against Nazi attack."

In a message to Joseph Stalin, president of the Soviet of Peoples Commissar of the U. S. S. R., the President and the Prime Minister proposed an Anglo-American-Soviet conference in Moscow to discuss providing the Red army with "the very maximum of supplies that you most urgently need."

Stalin acquiesced quickly to the plan. He told the United States and Brittish ambassadors in Moscow today that he is ready to "take all necessary steps" for the conference.

Wilson, N. C., is said to have the largest curb market in the country.

FDR EXPECTED DOCK THIS P.M.

Further Disclosure On Conference Is Awaited

Rockland, Maine, Aug. 16.—(AP) President Roosevelt cruised toward this down-each fishing port today from his historic rendezvous at sea with Winston Churchill and nations waited tensely for any further disclosures of how they hoped to assure "the better future for the world."

The chief executive was scheduled to put in here some time this afternoon, ending a 13-day mystery voyage which began as a "vacation" jaunt, but produced an unprecedented meeting between the President and Prime Minister and a statement of their present objectives and post-war aims.

Presidential aides assumed that Mr. Roosevelt would hold a press conference here before leaving for Washington by special train. From it, reporters hoped to obtain the first detailed account of the epochal conferences with Churchill and answers to questions puzzling statesmen and the public through the four corners of the earth.

Several Vacancies In Ranks Of CCC

K. T. Futrell, Pitt county welfare officer who is charged with the handling of Civilian Conservation Corps applications for the county, revealed today that a number of vacancies existed in the corps and that any young man between the ages of 17 and 23 and one-half years, not employed and otherwise eligible apply to his office immediately.

The intermediate enrollment—call for youths between the regular calls—will be carried out between August 20 and August 31 and it is imperative that any young man desiring to enroll make application at once in order that his case may be investigated and certified.

Youths enrolled will be sent to the camp at Nashville.

No vacancies exist for Negroes at the present time.

Local Boys To Leave To Attend Boys State

Three Pitt county boys, Richard Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Duncan, James Worsley, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Worsley, of Greenville, and William G. Edwards, son of Dr. and Mrs. S. N. Edwards of Ayden, will leave for Chapel Hill tomorrow to attend the Boys State to be conducted at the University of North Carolina.

The boys will be gone 15 days attending the American Legion Boys State. Pitt County Post No. 39 is bearing the expenses of two of the boys and the local Voiture of Forty and Eight will pay the expenses of the third.

CONFIDENCE IN RUSSIAN ARMY IS INDICATED

U.S.-British Request For Conference Is Significant

DISCUSS MEANS TO AID RUSSIA

Maximum of Supplies Pledged To Russia by Two Democracies In Face Of Soviet Reverses

London, Aug. 16.—(AP) The request by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill for a three-power conference with Russia was taken here today as a sign that the United States and Britain considered Russia far from beaten.

Although the Soviet army was reported retreating before a fierce German offensive in the Ukraine, war commentators emphasized that the message to Premier Joseph Stalin referred to "considered of a long-term policy," apparently indicating expectations that the war would last a long time.

At the same time the fact that the two nations pledged Russia "the very maximum of supplies" brought a new crop of rumors that Britain would land troops in the cold northern wastes of Russia to keep open the important Arctic supply line.

Supplies from Britain and America could enter Russia by two obvious routes, going through the Arctic part of Murmansk and Archangel or across the Pacific to Vladivostok. If Japan entered the war against Russia one of these supply lines would be gone, while a big German-Finnish advance in the north would cut the second.

For this reason, informed sources said, Russia, the United States and Britain would be anxious to consolidate the northern front and make at least one supply line safe.

One other route was possible. Supplies could be taken through the Persian gulf port of Basra, up through Iraq and across Iran (Persia) or Turkey to the Caucasus, provided those countries would consent.

Registrants Have Rights Of Appeal

Raleigh, Aug. 16—Every registrant is entitled to appeal from any classification by his local board and no one has the right to deny him that privilege, General J. Van B. Metts, state director of Selective Service, declared today.

In all cases local boards and government appeal agents must make every effort to insure protection of the registrant's right of appeal regardless of whethre or not they think the appeal is justified, he asserted.

Any registrant who is dissatisfied with a determination of his local board may appeal the decision to the board of appeals and no one has legal power to interfere with his efforts to get a review of his case, the director said.

Citing Selective Service regulations relating to appeals, the director pointed out that a registrant, any person who claims to be a dependent of a registrant, or any person who has filed written evidence of the occupation necessity of the registrant, may appeal from any local board classification.

The regulations also provide, he said, that appeals may be taken by a government appeal agent for his local board area, a state director of Selective service for any local board area in his state, and the director of Selective Service.

Superior Session Opens On Monday

The Fall term of Pitt Superior court will open here Monday morning with a week of civil court, to be followed the week of August 25 by a criminal session.

Judge Q. K. Nimocks of Fayetteville, assigned to this district for the Fall term, will be here for the two weeks of court.

The civil calendar lists 18 divorce cases for Monday.

There are only about four persons in the county jail awaiting trial at the criminal session, in comparison with as many as 40, some years at th beginning of the Fall term.

Commissioners And Sheriffs Endorse Beer Campaign

Reflector Bureau.

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Aug. 16.—With men who know its efforts best, it's the Brewers and North Carolina Beer Distributors committee two to nothing.

The activities and accomplishments of Colonel Edgar H. Bain and fellow cleaner-uppers have just been unanimously endorsed by the Sheriffs of North Carolina, in convention assembled at Elizabeth City, and by the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, similarly gathered together at Wrightsville Beach.

Special significance attaches to these two endorsements because members of the endorsing bodies are thoroughly familiar with the beer committee and all its works. Probably eighty per cent or more of Colonel Bain's dealings are with sheriffs or commissioners.

Said the commissioners, in a resolution adopted unanimously by representatives from dry, moist and wringing wet counties: "Be it resolved by the State Association of County Commissioners of North Carolina, in convention assembled at Wrightsville Beach, August 14, 1941, that it endorses the "Clean up or close up" campaign of the Brewers and North Carolina Beer Distributors committee and extends its best wishes to State Director Ed-

W. S. Moye Urges Farmers Not To Get Excited

W. S. Moye, one of the best known and most prominent tobacconists in Eastern Carolina, today issued a statement in which he urged farmers not to get excited about tobacco prices on early-opening markets "and give away your year's work."

Declaring that it takes a year to make a crop and asking "why try to sell it in a month," the veteran tobacconist said "you have seen tobacco sell higher in many years than it is selling now. Keep your tobacco at home and sell on your home market and with the warehousemen and buyers that you know and you will get more money for yourself."

"I have been in this business for 25 years and I have seen this market average from nine to 53 cents per pound.

"The acreage has been cut in the last two years about 40 per cent by your crop control program. The crop in the bright belt this year is cut about 20 per cent on account of drought and rain. This gives us about half of a normal crop and it will sell high. Supply and demand has always controlled prices.

"The Georgia market opened high. One week later the Border markets opened still higher. In my opinion, your Eastern Carolina market will be still higher when it opens one week from next Tuesday.

"You don't have long to wait, so why spend a lot of money going 150 miles to sell your tobacco when you can sell it at home for more money.

"In the past a small crop has sold higher as the season went on. A large crop gets cheaper. Keep your tobacco at home, sell it on your home market and you will get more money for your crop."

Eighth Week Of Invasion Completed

Authoritative Sources In London, In Reporting On War, Observe Situation Would Appear Quite Cheerful; Both Russian And German Communiques on Fighting Are More Vague Than Usual

(By The Associated Press)

The Red army, fighting a bitter rear guard action in the Ukraine, was described today as making a comparatively orderly withdrawal for a stand on the east bank of the Dnieper river, a major tactical obstacle to the Germans, as the Nazi invasion of Russia rounded out its eighth week.

An authoritative source in London, reporting this development, said the situation "on the whole would appear quite cheerful."

Both London and Washington interpreted the Roosevelt-Churchill proposal for a long-time aid program to the Soviets as indicating confidence that the Red army, however battered, was far from beaten.

Russia's Premier Joseph Stalin quickly accepted the American-British proposal for an early conference in Moscow to work out the program of maximum aid.

Russian dispatches said the exchange of messages implied a complete pooling of resources of the United States, Britain and Russia in a program aimed at smashing the Nazi power.

Both Russian and German communiques on the course of the fighting were in the vaguest of terms.

The Soviet information bureau said there was "fierce fighting" on all fronts during the night."

Adolf Hitler's headquarters in the field matched this declaration with the announcement that operations "continue successfully accordling to plans on the entire Eastern front."

London sources said a heavy German attack on a narrow front west of Kiev had been "decimated" by the Russians, but admitted the entire Ukraine situation was extremely confused.

In the Smolensk central sector, where fighting previously was heaviest, the Germans were pictured as digging in, with little intention of an immediate push.

In the far north, the Germans' Finnish allies told of capturing new points around Lake Ladoga, but Russian advices reported the Finns were being held.

Club Entertained By Young Dancer

Little Miss April Gaskins, talented tap dancer and soloist; Mrs. D. G. Gaskins, pianist, and William Abeyounis, cornetist, of Washington, N. C., provided a delightful program for the Kiwanis Club last evening. Noah Rayner and John Glover directed it. Miss Gaskins has a charming personality and a wonderful stage presence.

Guy V. Smith, tobacconist, told of a trip to the border markets, declaring better grades are higher and other grades lower in price than last season. The warehouseman warned against building hopes too high for unusual prices and reminded that much of the leaf being taken to the border is of the better grades. The market will average, he believes, about 22 or 23 cents.

Chester Walsh reported his trip to the Ahoskie Farmers' Festival for more than 5,000 farmers and others. The Ahoskie Kiwanis Club is decidedly favorable to the candidacy of "Dick" Bundy, Greenville attorney, for the governorship of the Carolinas Kiwanis District, he said.

Jack Alley won the attendance prize, provided by Clyde Hollowell. Vice-president O. P. Matthews, presided. H. A. MacDougle led the singing of Kiwanis Songs. Mrs. Ray Tyson was accompanist.

Of Snakes And Spirits

Greenwood, S. C.—(AP)—Deputy Sheriff R. L. Lyon advised companions some distance away that he had discovered the illicit still they were seeking when, Sheriff Cal White said, he suddenly jumped high in the air and bellowed like a banshee. Hanging to Lyon's trouser leg like a bulldog was a highland moccasin. Lyon had difficulty shaking him off.

The Crop And Farm Situation

Optimistic On Outlook For Agriculture

Babson, Park, Mass., August 16.—The steady gain being made in the production of essential foods will do as much to ultimately win World War II for the Democracies as will the building of mechanized and other implements of defense. At the proper time the agricultural surpluses of the United States and Canada which for months past have been under transfer to strategically located seaboard points will be of prime value in negotiating with the German people (not necessarily with Hitler's gang) the kind of peace the Allies want. The day may come when the man or woman of Berlin will consume as much American and Canadian wheat as will the people of Detroit, London or Montreal.

Grain Holdings

The United States government owns approximately 370,000,000 bushels of wheat, corn and rye. In addition they hold as collateral under seal for loans to producers another 340,000,000 bushels of corn, wheat, barley and rye. All this was either acquired by the government or sealed under federal loans at prices under current market quotations. Allowing for deductions covering storage, carrying and handling charges, the U. S. government and cooperating farmers have a paper profit from their operations since 1938 which is estimated at approximately $50,000,000.

The weekly visible supply of wheat is showing huge increases in the United States and Canada. Both countries will have large harvests from spring sowings. The United States total crop will be the fifth largest on record. Storage facilities are becoming acute as these harvests gain momentum. In one midwest terminal alone 85 per cent of the arriving wheat is for storage rather than for sale. Freight cars are piling up to the detriment of defense shipping. In spite of our big crop and large carry-over the price of wheat continues to rise. I anticipate that there is little likelihood of a price ceiling for wheat or for other farm products, at least in the near future.

Prosperity For Farmers

What It Means:

AVIATION COMES OF AGE

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Washington — Between National Aviation Day, 1940, and the same day this year (August 19) the airplane has reached full stature as the great Jekyll-Hyde of modern civilization.

And man's sky-bird seems destined to fulfill that role for unnumbered years to come.

That's the concensus of air-minded military, commercial and engineering opinion in the midst of our own feverish push for 50,000 airplanes for defense.

Most expert forecasters in the aviation field base their opinions on these contradictory and still developing facts:

1. The airplane has demonstrated its capacity to fly the oceans as well as the continents, regularly and safely. That means the plane even now is beginning to carry commerce to the remote areas of the earth and to eat up the distance separating the great centers of world development. It is thus capable in the future of relieving congestion of population and spreading the benefits and comforts of civilization to untold millions.

2. Military genius, meanwhile, has developed the airplane into a No. 1 weapon of war. It has not distinguished between helpless civilians and military belligerents. Until the military mind can provide better sights for its flying battlewagons, it is under blanket indictment for adhering to no code of chivalry.

3. The airplane, nevertheless, has proved itself a critical weapon of warfare, extending fire power far beyond front lines, so that every nation must build that instrument to its efficient best, get the most airplanes its taxpayers can afford.

4. Yet, the air weapon so far has been able on its own hook to capture no better a strategic area than the island of Crete, a comparatively unimportant pawn of war. True, the feat was almost miraculous. But the fact remains that the bomb absorption capacity of larger, better-defended areas, is too great—for the moment—for air conquest. Tomorrow, the airplane may give a different account of itself.

Art Exhibit At Library.

The new exhibit of oil paintings by American artists, which opened at the local WPA Art Gallery on Thursday, is one of the best and most satisfying shows I have seen in the gallery since its establishment. Only half of the 24 pictures making up the entire exhibit have been hung as yet, by reason of lack of sufficient wall space. But even so, from an hour spent among these dozen or so paintings you come away with a sense of satisfaction that well repays the time and effort spent. This is not to say that you like or enjoy all the paintings exhibited, but there is a beauty and distinction about most of these canvases that you instinctively look for and want in a display of paintings in a gallery—and do not always find.

Several of the artists represented in this show have been, or are, working on Guggenheim fellowships, which tells its own story of the abilities of the painters back of the pictures. These pictures portray America, or small corners of it, as a dozen or more genuine artists have seen and responded to it. Whether you know anything about art or not, you know something more about America when you have spent an hour among these canvases.

It is like touring certain places and scenes with talented artists as interpreters and guides. You stop for a while in famous Washington Square in New York City, for instance, and see it as Saul Berman saw it on a winter afternoon. Or you come into New York over a West Side ramp and catch your breath, as Daniel Koerner did, at the rainbow scarves of mist and smoke and steam that rise in rhythmic swirls around and above the far-familiar skyline. In Boston you stand with artist Allen Crite in the snow down on Shawmut avenue and watch the goings and comings there against a back-drop of old red-brick buildings. Out in the Middle West you see the play of sunlight on piles of sand at a sand refining factory; a flour mill somewhere in Illinois; stone crushers at work. Back in the East you stand outside serene little Roxbury church, and walk across a quiet "Town Square" somewhere in New England. There is a very unlovely Pennsylvania landscape, and an orchard that is lit by a glow of yellow sunlight on one side of the road, and very strangely shadowed on the other. In only one of the canvases do you meet people, except as incidental parts of the general scene portrayed. This one exception is Warren Wheelock's "Family Resting"—a father, mother, and child paused for rest in a broad meadow, a somewhat startling picture to me, for some reason or other.

I hope that this exhibit will be seen by many people in Greenville and the community around—it is, I think, one of the most interesting the gallery has yet presented. The gallery is open to the public free of charge every afternoon during the week except Sundays. This exhibit is definitely one not to miss.

—Lucy Cherry Crisp.

Cash-Lassiter.

Miss Eleida Rae Lassiter of Greenville, and Mr. Charles Claude Cash, Jr., of Winston-Salem, were married on Monday, August 11, in Calvary Baptist Church in Washington, D. C., with the Reverend Edwin H. Tuller, pastor of the church, officiating.

Mrs. Cash is the daughter of Mrs. J. B. Johnston of Greenville. She is a graduate of the Greenville high school and attended East Carolina Teachers College. For the past several months she has been employed in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Cash has many friends here who will be interested to learn of the announcement of her marriage.

Oil Paintings At Gallery.

"When are you going to have some oil paintings?" the children who come to the Art Gallery often ask the director or the gallery attendant. The director of the Greenville WPA Art Gallery is glad to be able to announce that the gallary is now showing a group of large original oil paintings.

These pictures were produced by the WPA artists from various sections of the United States. They depict scenes that might be found in any average community. A bridge and dam, a flour mill, a street scene, a church, an orchard, and a family group are not out of the ordinary subjects—but the artists who have painted them have interpreted them in a manner which shows a marked trend toward individualism. Washington Square in New York City, the Palisades along the Hudson river, and a quaint New England church are scenes that Greenville people would have to travel far to see. These are all painted on canvas by artists who probably did not go a stone's throw from their homes to find these scenes. Painters no longer feel that the "sweetest fruit is on the other side of the fence." They have been forced by necessity since the depression, to work at home, and their horizons have been broadened to take in all of the country in their immediate surroundings. These artists are interested in the American way of life and are setting down on canvas a truthful story of life as it is lived today. This is not a new thing, but is history repeating itself as the art of every age has been a record of life as it was lived at that time.

These paintings will be on exhibit approximately a month. The art gallery is located on the second floor of Sheppard Memorial Library. The hours are 2 to 6 each day except Sundays. The public is invited to see all the exhibits free of charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Roebuck and Mrs. Ethel R. Clark left Thursday for Pamlico Beach and will spend the week-end at the Cherry cottage.

The regular services will be held at the Methodist Church Sunday morning. The public is cordially invited.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
Saturday, August 16, 1901

Only two weeks more of vacation before the schools open.

Hard work and high prices will bring in the tobacco. That accounts for the success of the Greenville warehouses.

After waiting nearly an hour for a quorum the Board of Aldermen held a brief meeting Friday afternoon, granted three restaurant licenses, refused one other and adjourned to 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

MODES of the MOMENT

by Adelaide Kerr

We're sighting ahead to fall when we show this travel-type sightseeing coat for now. The soft cashmere-like beige wolen, designed by Curt Forstman, has a velvety feel. The gentle shoulder line, wide armholes, wide cuff, assure its continuing style-rightness.

Seeing Through My Windshield

By Verona Lee Joyner, H. D. A.

Every family should plant a fall garden: (Information from N. C. Extension Service).

The vegetable garden should be given a definite and prominent place in the farm program, as it serves the double purpose of providing a health insurance policy and a savings account for the farm family. The vegetables which can be grown in a half-acre garden would cost the farm housewife $225 if bought at retail prices. This gives an acre value of $450 compared with an average acre value in North Carolina during the five-year period 1926-1930 of $136 for tobacco, $35 for cotton, and $20 for corn. Putting it another way, it would have taken during this period approximately 1⅓ acres of tobacco, 6½ acres of cotton, or 11¼ acres of corn to have bought the vegetables which it is possible to grow in a half-acre garden.

The size of the garden will depend primarily upon the size of the family. A tenth of an acre will produce an abundance of vegetables for one person. A family of five persons would therefore need half an acre for garden crops. If such crops as cantaloupes, watermelons irish and sweet potatoes are grown in the garden proper, a slightly larger acreage will be necessary. If these are grown outside of the garden, half an acre of land is more than enough to supply a family of five persons.

Family tastes will determine to a large extent just how much of each crop should be planted.

The fall garden is too often neglected on many farms. The pressure of farm work and the added difficulty of getting a stand of plants during hot weather seem to provide an effective combination against the fall garden. The first should be overcome by giving the garden a definite and important place in the farm program. It is well to remember that the vegetables which can be grown on an acre of land would cost the farm housewife from $400 to $500 if bought at retail prices. The second difficulty may be partly overcome by taking advantage of rains as they come and by starting in shaded beds the crops which may be transplanted. A water supply for irrigation is particularly desirable at this time.

Now for the vegetables it is time for you to plant. Collard plants are set out from August to September in Eastern Carolina. One hundred fifty to 200 plants for a family of five are needed. Turnips for roots and greens or greens only are planted in September and Kale and Mustard any time during September and October. Carrots, beets and cabbage may be added to the above vegetables. All of these vegetables are rich in many of the necessary food elements. They can be planted in many places on the farm, can be easily grown and cut in the field as needed. And may be had over a long period of time.

Home Demonstration club members in Pitt county have as one of their outstanding goals during the coming year, "A year-round garden for every farm family in Pitt county." Year-round garden charts were given to the club members at the July meetings. The chart told the members the vegetables to plant each month of the year, the varieties best for Pitt county and the amount to plant for a family of five. We want all farm families in Pitt county to have one of the charts. I will mail anyone a chart at their request.

August Picnics

The Home Demonstration clubs in Pitt county entertain their families in August at a picnic. The families of the club members always look forward each year to this annual affair which offers to the families an outing of fun and real enjoyment. Those Home Demonstration clubs enjoying picnics this week were Bethel with 40 present at Respess' on Wednesday night, and Pactolus at the churchyard in the community with 35 present. On Thursday night, Red Banks club at the home of Mrs. S. B. Tucker with 60 people present and Farmville and Ballards Home Demonstration club held their picnic together at the swimming pool in Farmville with over a hundred enjoying the hospitality of the clubs. On Friday, Littlefield club went to the home of Mrs. L. G. Worthington and St. John club members journeyed to Flanners Beach for the day.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SORROW IS PART OF LIFE

It has often been said that when God wants to train a man for a great destiny, He prepares him for his work by giving him a great sorrow. Moses committed a crime and had to flee Egypt. He spent forty long years in the wilderness repenting his evil, but God was preparing him during these years. The part Paul played in the stoning of Stephen probably rested as a burden on his mind and conscience throughout his life, and the sorrow of it drove him to a deep reliance upon God's grace. Lincoln was prepared for his great work by a multitude of sorrows. Some historians believe that a blasted romance was the thing that transformed the rash and ambitious young Washington into the sedate and selfless character who later became the Father of his Country.

In one of George MacDonald's books, a woman who had met a sudden sorrow cries out, "I wish I had never been made!" Her friend quietly and wisely replied, "My dear, you are not yet made. You are only being made—and this is the Maker's process."

From our point of view it would seem that we are best prepared for the issues of life through the gentle tuition of joy. But the passing years teach us that this is not so. Days of unending sunshine would burn up the flower gardens and the fields. Life is like a great tree which grows strong and stately as it wrestles with the gales.

THE MAN CHRIST JESUS

(By Rev. C. J. Harris)

The man Christ Jesus was and is the most astounding phenomenon known to the human mind. He did the impossible. His character was noble and spotless. He did no sin, neither was there any guile in His mouth. His personality has no parallel. The life He lived is incomparable. He went about doing good. He forgave sins, and raised the dead to life and hope. He is the Son of God, and a Prophet mighty indeed, who died for the salvation of the world. God was in Him. He is the way.

The man Christ Jesus is the mightiest factor and bedrock of the world's best developments of civilization. He is the cornerstone of history. He has never been transcended. Every moral advance of man increases our faith and appreciation of Him. He is the express image of His Father's glory. His personality shall remain the supreme goal of man's achievement. He is the God-man of the centuries.

The man Christ Jesus is the only perfect model for imitation and study. Around this one great Personage our hope of eternal life centers. In Him is life and in that life is the light of men. He has no equal. "To Him give all the prophets witness": And His miraculous works also bear witness that He possessed a power higher than human force. No emperor that ever lived had a sway so grand and glorious as that of the lowly Nazarene. He stands, the central Figure and founder of the Gospel dispensation. The people of His own day beheld His glory. The apostolic church of History lived and moved by its faith in Him. In Jesus is condensed all that is good and exalted in our nature. His is the highest consciousness that has existed in the human heart. The unborn of humanity shall believe and trust in the living Christ via the historic Jesus.

The man Christ Jesus is the Elect of God by which the children of Israel, from Abraham to John the Baptist, are saved by the forward look of faith in this universal Saviour of men. And I believe the saved from Adam to Abraham are redeemed by the love of God manifested in the incarnate Son. All before Him looked forward, we look back, for the historic evidence of the living eternal Christ who is the central Figure of all time. "Look unto me, all ye ends of the earth, and be ye saved, for I am God and besides me, there is none else."

The man Christ Jesus was the glory of the people of Israel who crucified Him, the perfect model on which all souls meditate for consolation and strength to endure. He is able to save to the uttermost; and He is marching at the head of His church. He is the living bread that came down from Heaven. His is the benign religion. He is marching through history: and all see the imprint of His wonderful personality, though some do not know His seal. But after passing through cycles of error, humanity will return to the words of Jesus as the immortal expressions of faith and hope. He founded the right of free conscience and pure worship for all times and climes. The Jews, the Greeks, the Hottentots, and all the refined nations of the earth sing the same sweet name. "All hail the power of Jesus' name."

The man Christ Jesus was the temple of God, because in Him God has most fully revealed Himself. And whatever may be the surprises of the future, Jesus will never be surpassed. His worship will grow young without ceasing, the effects of His gospel will call forth tears without end. The story of His sufferings and love will melt the noblest hearts, and all ages will proclaim that among the sons of men there is none greater than the "man Christ Jesus, who gave Himself a ransom for all."

I Felt It In My Bones

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Answering the mail orders:

G. P., Frederick, Md.—It is true that Gen. Douglas MacArthur was "demoted" when he was named commanding officer of the "United States army forces in the Far East," but his "demotion" was purely a technical one. As former chief of staff, he was a full four-star general. As commander of the Far East forces, he steps down to his former three-star rank of lieutenant general. That's because only the chief of staff or a former one can be a four-star general.

R. G., Milton, Mass.—The army was not making any effort to "Russianize" the boys on maneuvers in the South this summer when they announced that the "war" there was between the "Almat," defended by the Blue army and "Kotmk" (pronounced Kotmik) defended by the Red army. Almat gets its name from the first letters of the states within its borders—Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee. Katmk comes from Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Missouri and Kentucky.

C. M. M., Jacksonville, Ill.—According to my check, there are 302 lawyers in Congress—an even 250 in the House and 52 in the Senate—more than half in both cases.

S. N., Glendale, Calif.—The fight for a unified air force on equal footing with the army and navy certainly is not dead. The National Aeronautic Association's recent announcement in favor of a department of national defense, with divisions of air, army and navy, has given fresh impetus to the fight, with the likelihood that both the Senate and House soon will open hearings on the matter, with a view to legislation, if that seems desirable. Senators Pat McCarran and Robert R. Reynolds are in the canguard for a unified air force on the Senate side and Rep. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia on the House.

F. R., Trinidad, Colo.—The report you heard that the army is going to acquire autogiros is true. Thirteen have been ordered to be tested for possible use as "flying observation posts." The army here will not go into details about design, but it is said that they are new and revolutionary. They will have pusher propellers and the ability to make grasshopper take-offs and vertical landings. Present plans, indefinite of course, call for using them for close to the ground observation work over friendly territory.

W. R. B., Girard, Kas.—It would be impossible to list all occupations in the army and navy. It runs into the hundreds. The army recently issued a list of "men wanted," which contained more than 50 occupations, ranging from saddle and harness makers to X-ray photographers and motion picture sound men. The navy list is just as long and runs from awnnig makers to woodworkers.

T. F., Dallas, Texas—The carbine, a short, 5-pound rifle, will supplant the army .45-calibre service pistol. All soldiers will not be equipped with them, but I believe the idea is to issue them to all combat troops not armed with rifles. The reason back of it is the reason back of almost all changes in weapons—to increase fire power.

D. W. P., Caldwell, Ohio—The next big fight in Congress and probably one of the better scraps of the year will be on the price control bill. Some observers here expect to see party and sectional lines split before the measure reaches voting stage.

A. H. T., Lakeland, Fla.—Third and fourth year medical (and dental, too) students registered for selective service may apply for commissions in the army and naval reserve. Holding such commissions, they would not be called into service until after they had completed their courses and obtained their degrees.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Aug. 16.—The North Carolina League of Municipalities is opening its convention in Durham, which suggests to this corner that some of its readers might like to meet the man most responsible for the league and all its works—Patrick Healy, Jr., first full-time executive secretary of the league and a spark plug in the southern league movement.

Pat has established a national reputation as an expert in municipal administration.

He has reversed Horace Greeley's go-west advice to young men, having come east and south after birth in Los Angeles of Irish, Scotch and English ancestry. His early schooling was in Ogden, Utah, then to Loomis school in Connecticut and Amherst College, where he majored in political science—and where he was middleweight boxing champion. He trained for public administration at Syracuse, which he left to become field consultant for the Virginia League.

He joined the recognized North Carolina League March 1, 1934. Then there were 32 members. In ten months he had made it a hundred nad now there are 201.

Last month Pat was appointed to the Fourth Area Board for Civilian Defense, is a metter of the North Carolina Council for National Defense. Last month, too, he was considered for city manager of Wilmington, proved a bit higher-priced than the city by the sea thought it could afford.

He is an indefatiguable writer and speechmaker, plays bad golf, fair tennis, good bridge and profitable poker, hunts and fishes, shoots skeet and, to prove that this article isn't all "boost," plays a saxophone.

Biggest Boys State.

The Department of North Carolina, American Legion, will hold its biggest Boys State next week at Chapel Hill. This annual Legion activity has been growing by leaps and bounds until it has assumed equal importance with any undertaking of the veterans' organization.

Department Commander Roy McMillan informs your reporter that something more than 150 boys will spend next week at the University, learning what makes a state and local government tick. They will be house in U.N.C., dormitories and for the week will be taught the inside workings of government by experts in all its ramifications.

The youngsters will elect one of their own member "Governor," will organize their own legislature, form their own "political parties," get practical experience in the field of municipal government of all kinds.

The time hasn't come yet, but Commander McMillan is hopeful that before many years have passed there will be representatives to Boys State from every county in North Carolina. Then when the juvenile General Assembly is called to order to select its Speaker according to the proper parliamentary procedure, there will be, in fact, a "Gentleman" from each county, as well as a Senator from every district.

Commissioner of Labor Forrest Shuford has been in charge of selecting Boys State members from Wake county and he has reported that at least 17 boys will attend—ten from the city of Raleigh and seven, perhaps more, from various points in the county.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—James Montgomery Flagg treats the warm weather calmly. His wiry, bristly grey hair is innocent of a hat. He wears rumpled gaberdines with no tie and his collar is on the outside of his coat.

Flagg is six-feet-two and owns the bushiest eyebrows in New York. The wrinkles at the corners of his eyes are laugh wrinkles. He likes Roosevelt and the radio but hates athletics. "The word baseball makes me shudder," he recently said to Vesta Kelling during an interview 'I like neither the game, the dust, the yelling, the pop bottles, the peanut shells, nor the shirt sleeves I must be a snob."

One of these days some motion picture producer is going to have Oliver Gramling's book, "AP—The Story of News," crammed down his throat; then he will receive credit for being an astute showman and grabbing a "natural" while his rivals weren't looking. Hau Noel Coward written it (which he couldn't have, even had he wanted to) it would already be hailed as another Cavalcade. It is exactly what its title says it is—the story of news. If you like newspapers, you ought to read it. Presently Oscar Serlin is going to produce it on Broadway. There's a plum in it for the man who takes it to Hollywood.

The seals in Rockefeller Center should be viewed from all angles. Yesterday I happened to be in the offices of the American Spirits company, high in the RCA building. Peter Siskin said, "Poke your head out the window and look at the seals." I did. From that distance, they seemed to be something thought up by Salvador Dali They were flat as pancakes, utterly without depth. They swam and frolicked like apparitions out of a Walt Disney film.

While there I was introduced to a famous old character of the New York bar—Judge Warren Foster whom Herbert Asbury mentions so favorably in his book "The Gangs of New York." The Judge likes to talk of Mark Twain, whom he knew, and also of Ben Butler, who won questionable fame as "Beast" Butler, military dictator of New Orleans during the Civil War and who was charged with stealing all the silver spoons in that southern metropolis. "That wasn't true," the Judge declared. "Ben Butler was greatly maligned."

The Judge also had an interesting explanation of the word "stateroom" as we know it today. Accommodations aboard ship are universally known as "cabins." In New Orleans there was one captain who had two especially fine cabins on his ship. One of these he named Louisiana and the other Mississippi. It was his custom to give these to distinguished guests. If you were important, you got one of the "State" rooms. That's how the word stateroom came into common use.

'Little Duck Girl' Really Trains 'Em

Memphis, Tenn.—(AP)—Memphians turn their heads and blink their eyes when the city's "Little Duck Girl" marches down the street, followed by her obedient crew.

"Get in line!" Twelve-year-old Virginia May Taylor orders over her shoulder and her three ducklings, Donny, Johnny and Mickie, move into single file, quacking mildly. "Stop!" she commands, and they squat docilely on the sidewalk.

"She can train anything," her mother, Mrs. Jesse G. Taylor said Other pets include a small dog, "Queenie"—who does tricks for her—a baby chick, "Pete," and a bantam hen, "Sweet Pea."

Churchill And Roosevelt — They Met At Sea

Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain (left) and President Roosevelt (right) may have looked somewhat as they appear in these pictures during their conference at sea in which they joined in a momentous eight-point agreement on war and post war aims. The picture of Churchill was made aboard the British Exeter in 1940 and that of President Roosevelt was taken on the U. S. S. Tuscaloosa December 14, 1940, on his return from a Caribbean cruise.

MADE UP TO KILL

by Kelley Roos

Chapter 18
Lee Gray Calls

"It's too bad, Mr. Morris, that your first visit to New York should turn out to be so unpleasant for you," I said. "You must hate our fair city."

"Your fair city hasn't aroused me to any emotion, let alone the strenuous one of hate. And as for your murders, we have them in London too. However, in London we are permitted to ignore them."

Jeff tossed the clippings on the table. "Look, Morris, why do you act so bored by his murder?"

"I am bored. Must I be intrigued by the death and the attempted murder of two American actresses who are famous for nothing but their death and attempted murder?"

Jeff looked disgusted. "It doesn't ring true. You're being detained here by the police for this murder You happen to be a suspect. You should at least be mildly interested. Your boredom is a little too elaborate, like a character in one of your plays."

"A compliment, I assure you."

"You are a suspect, you know. It was possible for you to have poisoned Carol Blanton."

"So I've gathered from Peterson However, it isn't posible for me to have stabbed your leading lady since I wasn't at the theater last night."

"You mean you weren't seen at the theater last night."

"I wasn't seen?" Morris was puzzled, then he smiled. "Oh, yes, of course! I had forgotten that I'm able to turn myself into a pumpkin at will. Was a pumpkin seen at the theater last night, Mr. Troy?"

"Where were you between 9:30 and 10:30, Mr. Morris?"

"After a very bad dinner which was brightened only by the fact that I was alone, I walked. I walked and walked. Probably from eight until midnight."

"Do you know where you were about ten o'clock?"

"Yes. That place—the Battery. Watching the ships leave for England with tears streaming down my cheeks."

"Nobody saw you?"

"With my eyes all red and swollen! I hope not!"

"I mean," Jeff said, with admirable patience, "you don't have any witnesses that you were where you say you were when Eve North was murdered?"

"No, of course not. Of course not. I could stone myself. One should always have a witness while walking. But I left all my witnesses in London. In moth balls. So careless of me."

I could have kissed the telephone for ringing that time. Morris was having too much fun at Jeff's expense. Jeff reached over the table and swung the receiver to his ear "Hello. Yes, yes, put her on. "He turned to Morris. "Some pest. I'll get rid of her for you. Hello—yes—this is Greeley Morris—"

Morris made a quick movement toward the phone "I'm quite capable of—"

"Damn it!" Jeff yelped. "She hung up! Operator! Operator!" He was shouting into the mouthpiece "Operator, trace that call! Trace it right away! Yes, you can. Damn it, stop talking and do it! Listen, Baby. Have you heard about the Colony Murder Case? Have you read about a girl named Lee Gray? Oh, you have! Well, that was Lee Gray on the wire! Now, for God's sake," he pleaded, "will you trace that call?"

He dropped the phone into its craddle and turned to us.

"She'll call me back. Miss Lee Gray calling Mr. Greeley Morris! What about it, Mr. Morris?"

"A very ingenious trick and fairly amusing. However, I have no idea who the lady is nor why she should be calling me. If she was."

"Jeff," I said, "what was her voice like?"

"Like—I don't know. All she said was one word: Greeley."

"She calls me Greeley, does she?"

"Yes, and you don't know her, do you? Like hell you don't."

"I've heard shopgirls call His Majesty George."

In a remarkably short time the phone rang again. Jeff answered it. He listened for a moment, said thanks and hung up.

"Well, Jeff?"

"She called from a pay station a drugstore at four fifty-four Madison Avenue." Jeff was disgusted. "A drugstore pay station! A lot of good that does us. But she called Mr. Morris and that's something."

"Yes, isn't it?" Morris said. "But what?"

"I wish you'd tell us who she is."

"I don't know," he said wearily.

"And I don't believe you," Jeff said. "And as for your walking alibi, I don't believe that either. I doubt if you've walked fifty consecutive steps in your life. If you had, you wouldn't look so bilious. C'mon Haila."

Lee Gray. That girl no one had ever seen, or knew, or even heard of. The police, for all their unlimited facilities, could find no trace of her. And yet she was in New York; she must eat somewhere and sleep somewhere, and somewhere in these seven million people must be those who were her friends.

She had slipped into the Colony Theater two nights ago and left a note for Carol Blanton, and at five minutes before one o'clock today she had entered a drugstore at Madison Avenue and Fifty-fourth and telephoned to Greeley Morris.

How had she managed to elude the nets thrown out for her by the police and why, if, as they believed, she had known of Carol's danger and had even tried to warn her of it, hadn't she come forward of her own accord?

And the Lee Gray enigma was only one of many. Two short days ago we had been, ostensibly at least, a normal group of people working together toward one objective, the success of Green Apples. Then suddenly the once affable Philip Ashley was quarreling with Eve North and snarling at me when I ventured into his dressing room. The once gay, irresponsible Tommy Neilson now scowled and swore and drank too much. Carol had lost her voice and miraculously regained it. Alice McDonald, almost madly ambitious for success, ran away from it and refused to tell why.

If Carol had not been poisoned, if Eve had not been killed might all these mysteries have passed unnoticed before our unsuspecting eyes? Or could they be in some inexplicable way, as Jeff seemed to think, all links in this chain of murder that was tightening around poor Carol?

As I turned the key in the lock a tall hawk-nosed man stepped out of the shadows at the end of the corridor.

"Wait a minute there, Sister!" With long, quick strides he was beside me, peering down into my face. "Oh, it's Miss Rogers, huh? That's okay, Sister, you can go in I'm Crowley." His hand made brief contact with the brim of his hat and he was gone, lost in the shadows again.

Carol shuffled the hand of solitaire she was playing when I came in. Sketchily I told her of our moning's interviews and she listened in silence. Her eyes flew to my face when I spoke of the telephone call at the Gotham.

"Oh, Haila!" she breathed. "If they could trace her through that call, if they could find her—"

"If they could find her we'd probably know all there is to know."

"But will they be able to? A drugstore! Does anyone notice who comes into a drugstore?"

I shrugged. "I don't know. Jeff went up to tell Peterson about it We'll find out when he comes."

We lapsed into silence, Carol dealing out hands of solitaire and playing them methodically. I stretched out on the studio couch and smoked cigarettes.

It was after four when Jeff arrived, looking tired and woe-begone.

"Nothing new," he said in answer to our excited inquiries, "nothing at all. Peterson says he'll do all that's in his power to trace Lee Gray through that phone call, but it's next to hopeless."

"But what about Greeley Morris? I protested. "He knows something about her, I'm sure of it!"

"He says he doesn't. I tagged along with Peterson back to the Gotham. Morris still doesn't know Lee Gray, never saw her, has no idea why she should be calling him. That's his story and he's sticking to it like adhesive tape. What can they do?"

Jinx

There was a rap at the door and I answered it. A thin individual in a pinkish tan camel's hair coat and a pearl-gray fedora stood there. It took me two looks to see that this individual was Jinx, almost unrecognizable in his civvies. At his side was Crowley.

"Miss Rogers, tell this here gentleman," Jinx said, indicating Crowley, "who I am."

"Mr. Crowley, this is Jinx."

"Thanks, Miss Rogers. And would you tell him what I do here?"

"Jinx runs the elevator. Night shift."

"Thanks, Miss Rogers. See, I gotta talk to Mr. Troy about important private business. Will you tell this here gentleman it's okay?"

"Do you want to see him, Mr. Troy?" asked Crowley.

"Sure," Jeff said. "Come on in, Jinx."

Jinx triumphantly stepped in and closed the door in Crowley's face. then said in a whisper, "Talk low, he might be listenin' through the keyhole."

"There isn't a keyhole," Jeff said.

"There ain't?" Jinx was disappointed.

"What's on your mind, Jinx?"

"They been grillin' me, Mr. Troy. They was up to my house this mornin', they got me outa bed and grilled me."

"Who's been grilling you, Jinx?"

"Mr. Peterson. And he had a Mr. Sullavan helpin' him. But I didn't crack, Mr. Troy," he added reassuringly.

Jeff was amused. "What were they grilling you about, Jinx?"

"They was sweatin' me about suspicious characters lurkin' around the premises. I wanted to tip you off, Mr. Troy, 'cause I might crack under their constant grillin'."

"What are you talking about?" I asked. "Have there been any suspicious characters around here?"

"Only Mr. Troy. I wanted to warn him so he can beat the rap if they put the heat on him."

"Jinx, talk English!" I said sharply. "Stop playing gangster."

Greenies Defeat New Bern; Long Gets His 15th Win

MANAGER RUBE CLOUTS HOMER

Long Strikes Out 12 Batters, Allows Seven Hits

The Greenies took a 4-3 victory over the third-place New Bern Bears last night as Lefty Joe hung up his 15th victory of the season and Manager Rube Wilson got his second homer in as many nights.

The two teams play a doubleheader in New Bern today, an afternoon game and another at night. The Greenies entertain Rocky Mount here Sunday at 3 p. m.

The Bears got off to a good start in the first frame when the first man up singled and stole second and came home on Averette's single. While Long hurled scoreless ball for the next five frames, the locals added three. The first Greenville run came in the second when Manager Rube Wilson came through with a homer to put the locals on even footing. It was Rube's second homer in as many nights. Two more were added by Greenville in the third, when Crowe and Jenkins came through with singles. Carl Pierce got a smashing triple immediately after the skipper made his four base blow, but the shortstop was left stranded at Third. The locals added their fourth and winning run in the fourth when Long who had walked, raced home on Caraway's single.

New Bern got two in the seventh, but fell short of tying the score and this ended the scoring for the night.

The Bears, however, threatened seriously in the ninth. The first man up, Walton, singled. Two men flied out to right field, but Davis, the New Bern hurler, came through with a double. Walton held up at third, however, and Long struck out Gales, his 12th strikeout of the night—to end the game.

CHARLIE SCAGG FOURTH IN LOOP BATTING RECORDS

Lend A Hand

Loyal baseball fans today were urged to support the Gregnies by purchasing dollar tickets to the Tuesday night double-header with the Tarboro Orioles.

Although any fan will be admitted for the regular price, the club, with the cooperation of the Bundles for Britain unit here, is offering Victory Campaign tickets at one dollar per.

It was explained that the week of rain set the club back financially and fans are asked to buy the special tickets as a means of showing their support to the club and team, which without the benefit of any special high calibre players, has consistently played better than .500 ball this season and has stayed in second place throughout the season and is practically assured a position in the play-off series.

The Bundles for Britain organization also will share in the benefits from the special dollar Victory Campaign tickets, which will be on sale this week-end and through Tuesday.

Coastal Plain Notes

By BERT MOYE

Jake Wade, former big league southpaw, was removed as manager of the New Bern Bears during the past week, with Doc Smith returned to his former post as manager of the Bears.

Wade has been added to the roster of the Goldsboro Bugs of the Coastal Plain. He is one of two hurlers recently taken on by the Goldbugs. General Manager Horace King also announced the signing of Bill Simon, formerly with Kinston.

To make room for Wade, a class man, the Goldbugs released George Biershenk, second-sacker. Walter Boylin, pitcher, was cut adrift to make room for Simon.

Outfielder Syl Sturges will move into second base, and Dave Fuller pitcher and utility man, will take over Sturges' job in the outfield.

Harry Jenkins, Greenville's third baseman, returned from his home in Gastonia Thursday where he went after receiving his selective service questionnaire. Club officials said it was doubtful that he would be called to active service before September 1st. Sonny Kracke, general utility player for the Greenies, held the hot corner down during the absence of Jenkins.

The Kinston Eagles signed Infielder Charlie Branch, formerly of New Bern, and Lefty Nathan Edmundson, formerly of Williamston, and released Catcher Leslie McGarity, Infielder Owen Whaley and Pitchers Bill Ferguson and Minor Boos.

Manager Doc Smith of the New Bern Bears has two new performers in Guy Clodfelter, catcher, and Woody Mabry, third baseman, who formerly were with the Asheboro Eagles, a strong semi-pro outfit.

The Wilson Tobs longest winning streak of the season—10 straight games — was snapped Saturday night when the Greenville Greenies won 6-4. However, Talley put them back on the victory trail Sunday with his 17th triumph of the year.

Two Coastal Plain clubs have been eliminated from any mathematical chance of finishing in the first division this season. They are the Kinston Eagles and the Tarboro Orioles. All other teams still have a mathematical chance—but that is about all as the Wilson Tobs are coasting along with a big lead.

When the Wilson Tobs and Rocky Mount Leafs met in Rocky Mount on Thursday night it was known as "appreciation" night and $200 to $300 in prizes—including two $25 defense bonds—were distributed among the fans attending the game. The special "event" was sponsored by the Rocky Mount Jaycees.

Officials of the Wilson Coastal Plain league entry have decreed that at all future regular scheduled games (excluding the playoffs) service men—soldiers, sailors and marines—will be admitted free if they are in uniform. There was quite a number of service men in attendance the other night when "soldiers' night" was observed by the Wilson club.

The Goldsboro Bugs topped the league's run-making record for the season last Monday night as they routed the Kinston Eagles 26 to 3 in the nightcap of a double bill. The Bugs collected a total of 20 hits in the game and were also helped in the scoring spree by five miscues on the part of the Eagles.

Manager Poke Whalen of the Tarboro Orioles said that he had an offer from the Greenville baseball club for Bud Cayton, second baseman, and Levi Woods, pitcher at $300 each. The executives of the Tarboro club have sanctioned the sale, but nothing has been heard of the proposed deal since. If Cayton and Woods are sold the $600 will be applied against existing deficiencies in baseball funds, to finish the season. Should the deal go through, Cayton's infield spot will be taken by Hendershot, and Murray would move to third, pitchers filling in the outfield.

The seating capacity at the Municipal Stadium in Wilson will be increased about 1,000 for the "free" game with Greenville on next Friday afternoon. The Tobacco Festival has "bought" the Greenville game as one of its feature attractions and immediately before the game Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York City, will speak at the stadium. The largest crowd ever to jam the enclosure is expected to be on hand to hear "The Little Flower" and witness the game between the circuit's top outfits.

WILSON LEADS IN TWO BASES

Skipper Also Among 10 Top Hitters In League

Charlie Scagg, Greenville leftfielder, added seven points to his batting average during the week ending Monday, August 11, and now rests fourth in league batting with a mark of .344—only one point behind New Bern's Thompson who is in third place.

Having hit safely in 17 straight games, Clifton of Goldsboro is now leading the loop with .383. Wilson's Carnahan is second with .353.

Manager Rube Wilson is the second-ranking Greenie, with a mark of .328, which puts him in 10th place in the league. Jenkins is three places down in the league standings with .323. Marks of other Greenville players above the .250 mark are Caraway with .292, in 28th place; Kracke with .290, in 31st place; Crowe with .280, in 40th place; Pierce with .275, in 49th place; Pickering with .268, in 53rd place.

The Greenville team as a whole is in second place in batting with a mark of .276.

Greenville and Goldsboro are tied in team hitting with each having a mark of .276. Wilson is far out in front with a .295. The Greenies are fourth in team fielding, trailing Wilson, New Bern and Rocky Mount.

Red Treadway of Wilson is now the leader in triples with 13. Manager Rube Wilson of Greenville leads in doubles with 31. Irv Dickens of Wilson tops the runs scored column with 88 and John Fessler of Goldsboro is the best base stealer in Ray Goodmon's league with 32 thefts.

Tommy Kurst of Rocky Mount added two more homers for a total of 24 and batted in 11 runs to lead with 83.

Wilson leads in batting with .295 and in fielding with .962. Goldsboro takes honors in double plays with 96.

"Schoolmaster" Joe Talley of Wilson added two more wins to give him the leading record of 17 wins and only one loss. He has won his last eight straight games and tossed his fifth shutout of the season, a four hitter, at Tarboro on August 6th.

Manager Bill Herring of Wilson ranks second with a 14 and 2 record. Joe Long, Greenville southpaw, is third with 14 and 3. Monk Webb of Wilson has won the most games, 18, and has lost 4. Pete Kunis of Williamston has won 14 and has suffered five defeats.

Julio Acosta of Goldsboro leads in strikeouts with 167 in 214 innings pitched.

W. GREENVILLE SET BACK 20-4

Handed Defeat In 'A' Loop; Win In 'B', 'C' Leagues

Two of the three West Greenville teams were victorious in yesterday's play-off series in the Boys' City league, but the High School boys pounded two hurlers of the West Greenville A league to take a 20-4 victory.

The B West Greenville team won over Third Street 24-14 in a game of free-hitting and frequent errors while the C team was winning over Third Street 17-5.

In the A league the High School and West Greenville will play at West Greenville Monday morning at 9:30, with the B league game set for Third Street at 2:30 and the C loop contest scheduled to be played at Third Street park at 2:30 p. m.

It was a big day for the High School in the A loop as two ace West Greenville hurlers, J. Speight and J. Williams were reached for hits almost at will. Six runs were scored by the winners in the initial frame.

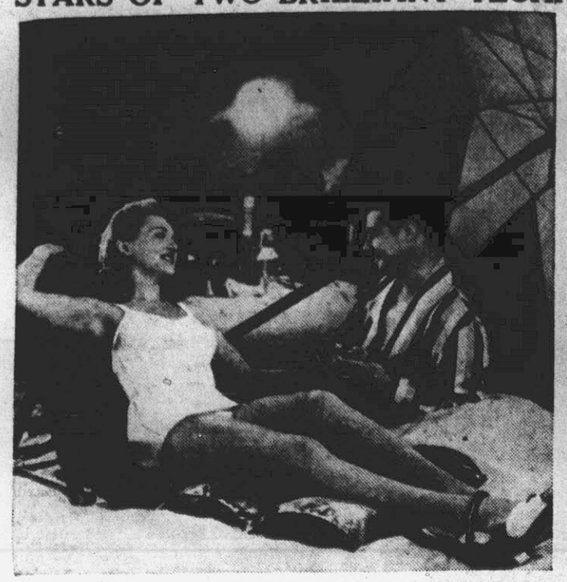
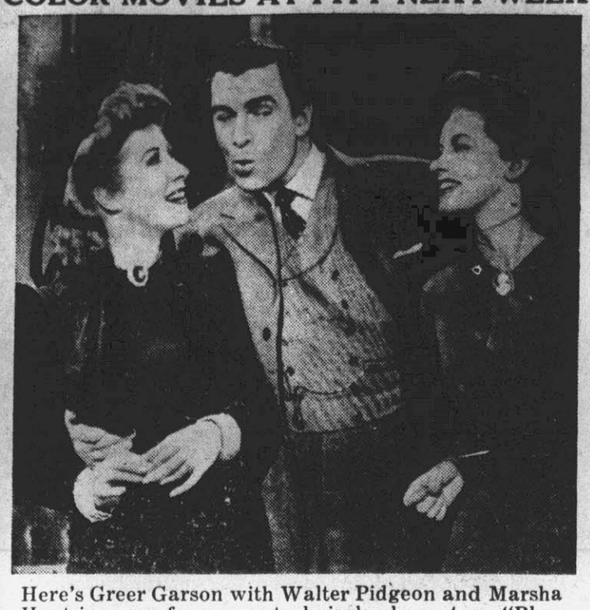
STARS OF TWO BRILLIANT TECHNICOLOR MOVIES AT PITT NEXT WEEK



Betty Grable and Don Ameche furnish the heart interest in "Moon Over Miami," opening three days' run at the Pitt Theatre Sunday afternoon.



Here's Greer Garson with Walter Pidgeon and Marsha Hunt in scene from new technicolor love story "Blossome in the Dust," Friday-Saturday.

Early Reveals Rooseevlt-Churchill Meeting

Stephen Early (seated at left). President Roosevelt's secretary, reads to reporters at the White House in Washington the joint statement by the President and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill of their secret meeting at sea in which they joined in a pledge to achieve "the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny" and agreed on an eight-point declaration of common national aims after the war. On the desk in front of Early are the releases which were given to newsmen. Standing next to him is David Lu, Chinese reporter.

STATES FACTS ABOUT CANADA

George Kittrell Writes About Conditions There

George Kittrell of the Winterville community, who is in Canada aiding in the harvesting the tobacco crop there, declared in a letter received by the Reflector today that Canada was humming with the manufacture of war materials.

"It seems that preparations are being made as fast as possible," he declared, after stating that "things are a little tight here, but all seem to think Hitler will be defeated.

According to Mr. Kittrell airplanes "are almost as numerous in the sky as crows—more so than in North Carolina.

He wrote that labor was a little scarce, but that no tobacco crops were suffering very much from lack of attention. He added that there were quite a few curers and primers there from the states and that the situation had been relieved considerably.

The shortage was brought about by the fact that farmers are entering defense industries, with "lots of tenant houses where tobacco growers once lived" having been vacated by families who have moved to the industrial centers. Many tobacco fields were left to the women and children, he said.

He wrote that he had been reliably informed that the tobacco crop in that immediate section, Waterford, Ont., would not exceed 60 million pounds this season. He added that approximately 5,000 acres of the crop had been seriously damaged by hail.

He also stated that information had come to him that stocks of unmanufactured tobacco on hand at the end of June amounted to 123,808,338 pounds, compared with 117,213,986 pounds on the comparable date last year. The amount of Canadian tobacco on hand this year he stated, was 120,771,361 pounds the balance of 39,036,977 pounds being imported tobacco.

As a footnote to the letter, dated August 13, he added that the temperature was only 48 degrees the night before.

Sloop

Los Angeles.—(AP)—The sloop Snark, built by Jack London during his heyday as a literary man and the subject of one of his books, has been identified on a mudbank in Los Angeles harbor. The Snark has been through many hands since London's day, and is slowly disintegrating.

Arizona's 50,000 Indians are divided into 14 tribes, each with its own social, economic and cultural background.

Hollywood

Styles and Sounds

By Bobbin Coons

Hollywood.—Aside from its comedy aspects, the debut of Katharine Hepburn as a "literary agent" contains angles enough to keep every producer in town supplied with nightmares for a year.

The debut has joined the list of classic Hollywoodiana: Miss Hepburn took a screenplay, authors of which she refused to name, and sold it to Metro for $100,000, plus $10,000 commission, plus $1,000 for her trouble—and then let it be known that "Woman of the Year," to star herself, was the work of two young unknowns, Ring Lardner Jr., and Michael Kanin.

It was the highest price ever paid for an "original," jumping far over the previous high of $20,000 paid by 20th for its "Confirm or Deny," and leaving behind Preston Sturges' $17,500 (plus royalties) for "The Power and the Glory."

Most of Hollywood chuckles over the affair; part of Hollywood—the part which pays—is somewhat aghast. A price like that for an "original"—and by "unknowns," to boot! Only stage hits, best-selling novels, published stories, are supposed to draw the big money, so what is Hollywood coming to?

The nightmares?

Authors of "originals" will be encouraged to hold out for sweeter gravy.

How can a producer, smugly sure that only "names" can write, ever again be sure he isn't passing up a prize script?

How will the stars find time now to play in movies—because surely not only Katherine Hepburn but every other glamour girl and boy will be besieged by literary hopefuls with their scripts?

Will the Hepburn coup inspire other stars to follow suit—to seek out desirable scripts and use these as a club over the producer's head?

In all seriousness, however, Miss Heburn has done the screen a service. Unwittingly or otherwise, a studio has been persuaded to make writing directly for the screen as attractive and profitable as writing for stage or publisher. It has placed the accolade of dignity—in understandable financial terms—on the trade of screen-writing.

For it has been a peculiarity of Hollywood, through the years, that the men and women woh strove to create only for the screen were rarely rewarded as well as those who divided their efforts.

Something good may come of this

Ingenuity department: For Tim Holt's "Riding the Wind" tumbleweeds were needed. But tumbleweeds at this season aren't tumbling. They're green. Solution: Green weeds, aged and withered in an oven, were soon ready for use in the wild storm sequence, to be set afire and rolled down a hill to set a cabin blazing.

The gates, front and back, at Ann Rutherford's house are blue.

Miss Rutherford, deserting her Hardy Family role for "Badlands of Dakota," says the gates take meaning from an old Amish custom. A blue gate tells the world the family has a marriageable daughter.

"We," says Ann, "have two—myself and sister Judy."

Upholding Aesop

Redfield, Kas.—(AP)—A terrapin made his 18th annual visit to the Guy Smith farm near here this summer. He always arrives on schedule. The family has him well marked so that there is no doubt that he is the same fellow.

What It Means

In any event, the portent of the future is bigger and better airplanes, both for war and peace. If the plane develops in the next ten years as it has in the last ten, most air-minded military men envision great armies and navies of the air.

"We already know," says Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, "that the range of aircraft will be 25,000 miles and more 10 years from now ....that battleships eventually may fight in the skies, rather than on the seas.....and an air transport may carry 1,000 men, instead of 50."

That means most air experts foresee the not far distant day when the airplane will have even more efficient motive power than the highly efficient gasoline motor. The deadweight fuel requirements of motors now limit the range.

Already the airplane industry is exploring the fringes of new motive power. Some builders have brought out the principle of jet or rocket propulsion to an astonishing degree. By utilizing exhaust gas, from the motor, they claim they've added 10 to 15 miles an hour to air speed.

Meanwhile, the scientists of all nations are working secretly with cyclotrons and similar experimental giants to develop the power of atoms.

If the scientists should harness atomic power in the near future, the aviation engineer will grab it first. Atomic power should reduce the deadweight of fuel.

After the war, what?

As matters now stand the future is not too bright for the 50,000 to 100,000 pilots we're turning out every year in both civil and military aviation, nor the 100,000 technicians. But there is hope.

John H. Jouett, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce tells us the immediate new peacetime horizon for the airplane may be cargo-carrying.

"Military men are carrying tanks, ambulances, trucks, torpedoes by plane, and hauling gliders....." says Mr. Jouett. "Their work will be invaluable in the development of the cargo plane for peacetime."

Jouett suggests we have great undeveloped areas in the western hemisphere alone, such as the Matto Grosso of Brazil. These, he believes are fruitful areas for peaceful air conquest by all nations.

"It is possible that air freight rates will ultimately be as low as rail rates, and freight by air can go where rails cannot go at all. Chicle and minerals now are coming out of the jungles by air. The return journeys can carry comforts of life, if purchasing power can follow the air trails."

Mr. Jouett holds out no miraculous hope for a small plane for the average man. Such planes await dynamic, revolutionary invention not now in sight, and a Henry Ford in the bargain. They do not now match the automobile in convenience, cost, safety and comfort.

BABSON

ucts. From the middle of March to the middle of July prices rose 22 points. Certainly, still higher prices can be expected for the grains. This is why wheat farmers are at present storing so much grain rather than selling it. Ultimately they feel the government will take it over anyway, so why sell now for less than they can get by borrowing on their current crop at present government loan rates? Hog prices also should continue to average well above a year ago and the price of cattle may likewise be maintained at a relatively high level. Consumer demand for these products as well as for lambs, chickens, and dairy products should mean higher prices all around for the long term.

While no reliable news is available, in all probability not a great deal of wheat in the Russian Ukraine has been lost either through destruction by the Russians in their retreat or by the German advance. For one thing the crop was too green to burn. Hence, the bulk of this will probably be available for Central Europe. It will be far from sufficient, however, and with the continuance of the British blockade food conditions in Europe will be terrible. Our own exports of all farm products to Great Britain, particularly of dairy products are steadily bulking larger. Ultimately the U. S. and Canada will be called upon to feed the greater part of the world, at least until shipping facilities expand to reopen the Australian and South American granaries.

Agriculture Big Business

American and Canadian farmers are working at peak pressure and under no mean difficulties. Demands of industry and the armed services makes farm labor in both countries scarce. This year the farmer is certainly as of much importance to the nation as is the factory manager. This will be true for some years to come regardless of the time of the ending of World War II. The average reader has little conception of the size of U. S. agriculture as a business. U. S. farm products will have a value of at least $10,500,000,000 in 1941 and our farms as of July 1 furnished employment for 11,769,000 individuals.

The wholesale value of our manufactured products for 1941 will be about $70,000,000,000. This, of course includes defense business. We are, however, very apt to reach a time when the value of our agricultural products will be very much higher than they are today. The day may come when industrial products will be manufactured from different and cheaper materials and hence have a smaller value, while the quantity of farm products used in manufacturing will result in a much higher importance as well as value being placed upon agriculture as a business. Many types of plastic are already being made from farm products. With the strides chemistry is making thousands of materials embraced in consumer goods will have their origin on the farm.

Conclusion

Certainly the farmer can look forward to better days over the near term. The prosperity of the industrial areas is being felt in farming centers and mail order sales are reflecting the increased spending of our farm population. For the long pull a closer tie-up between agriculture and industry promises much. It may be that the increased development of our farming areas from an industrial point of view may do much to cushion the post-war slump.
