Predict Collapse Of Iran's Resistance In Three Days

RUSSO-BRITISH DRIVES PUSHED

Neutral Diplomatic Sources Express Belief Shah Realizes Position Hopeless; Armistice Agreement Would Probably Permit Shah To Retain Power And Grant Police Powers To Allies

London, Aug. 27.—(AP) Collapse of Iranian resistance within the next three days was predicted by informed neutral diplomatic sources today as Russian forces smashing southward into Iran were reported to have captured the country's second city, Tabriz, and British armies striking northward advanced 40 miles.

Shah Reza Kahn Pahlavi, these sources believe, realizes that Iran's position is hopeless, and British and Soviet representatives in his capital of Teheran have convinced him he ought to come to terms.

So far there has been no indication, these diplomatic sources said, that the Iranian defense has been anything more than of the "token" variety.

An armistice to be followed by a convention was predicted, with the agreement possibly allowing the Shah to retain power and definitely permitting British and Russian forces to police Iran for the duration of the war.

German technicians would be replaced with British or Russian and the allies would have a right of way from the Persian gulf to the Caspian sea and the Russian Caucasus for shipment of British and American war supplies for the Soviet army.

The British reported today that they had driven 40 miles north of the port of Abadan to capture the town of Marid.

The British, in a communique issued at Simla, also declared that their columns advancing eastward from Iraq had occupied the frontier town of Gilan and were advancing beyond Sar-I-Pul toward fortified Paytak pass.

Gilan is about 20 miles inside Iran. Sar-I-Pul is about 25 miles from the Iraq border and about 35 miles north of Gilan.

The British declared the advances in this area were made against light opposition and gunfire.

Iranian troops were said to have been cleared out of the entire area around Abadan, where important oil installations are situated, by Indian forces. At least 350 prisoners, two pieces of artillery and three armored cars were captured in these operations, the British declared.

The communique said that at least six Iranian aircraft had been destroyed in operations to date while the Royal Air Force had suffered no losses.

The reported capture of Tabriz represented an advance of 60 miles by Russian forces, apparently driving southward from the Caucasus on a broad front stretching from the Iraq frontier to the Caspian sea.

London, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Iran's small navy has been virtually wiped out by British war vessels and Iranian Admiral Baysender killed leading a counter-attack, Reuters reported from Simla, India, today.

The news agency said two sloops were sunk and four gunboats captured by the British in an encounter apparently in the Persian gulf. A depot ship, two tugs and a floating dock capable of taking a 6,000-ton ship also were captured, Reuters said, while the British suffered no naval losses.

PROPOSES USE OF TANK CARS

Sen. Maloney Suggests Plan to Ease Oil Shortage

Washington, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Senator Maloney (D-Conn) proposed today that all unused railroad tank cars be set to rolling in an effort to relieve shortages of gasoline, fuel oil and other products.

"I have the feeling that we may press the now unused tank cars—and other tank cars not badly needed otherwise—into immediate service," Maloney said. "I know that the cost of transportation by rail has been considerably greater than by tanker and pipeline."

To offset this added cost, the senator suggested that railroads might "move whole trains of tank cars at one time," and thus reduce costs substantially.

Maloney is chairman of a special committee appointed yesterday to begin a Senate investigation of the shortages. Meanwhile, a plan of action against gasoline profiteering was drafted in government quarters.

Leon Henderson, price administrator, indicated he would proclaim forthwith a ceiling for motor fuel prices, to protect the 10,000,000 Atlantic seaboard motorists against unwarranted price increases.

Secretary Ickes, defense petroleum coordinator, was called as the first witness before the special subcommittee, set up yesterday after Senator Maloney had said he wanted to find out "if there is an actual shortage or if we are being pushed around for psychological reasons."

The trend of discussion in oil circles indicated the gasoline investigation would hinge on four questions:

- 1—Is there a bona fide shortage; 2—Does there exist an organized effort by certain persons or interests to circulate false information to confuse the public; 3—Was there justification for transfer to Britain of one-fifth the tanker fleet hauling oil from gulf ports to the eastern seaboard; 4—How effectively are railway tank cars being used to meet the emergency, and how many surplus or idle tank cars are available.

The Church committee for China Relief spent more than $1,000,000 on relief work in China in the last three years.

Statement Made At Press Conference In Reference To Shipments Of War Materials To Russia Thru The Pacific; Question Of Formal Nippon Representations Left With U.S. Tokyo Office

Washington, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull made plain today that the United States stood on a freedom of the seas policy in connection with shipments of war supplies to Russia through the Pacific.

He was asked at his press conference whether the United States would insist on freedom of the seas in carrying out the shipments despite Japanese objections.

His reply was that until this policy was revoked, it could be assumed that it was in effect.

As to whether Japan had made formal representations to the United States concerning shipments to Vladivostok, Hull said he would leave any statement on this at the moment to the foreign office in Tokyo.

He said that the Japanese ambassador, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, had asked for an appointment with him. There was no immediate information as to Nomura's purpose.

The Japanese news agency, Domei, had reported from Tokyo earlier, however, that the Japanese government had made representations to the United States and Russia against shipments of American aviation gasoline to the Russian port of Vladivostok.

The Soviet government also had let it be known that it had informed Japan that it would regard as "an unfriendly act" any attempt by Japan to interfere with "normal trade relations between the Soviet Union and the United States via Far Eastern Soviet ports."

Nomura's appointment was made while Hull was conferring with the Soviet ambassador, Constantine Oumansky.

Washington, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The United States, by announcing a military mission to Chungking, gave Japan tangible proof today that this country intended no change in its attitude toward the so-called China incident.

The announcement that the mission would depart in two weeks also was apparently calculated to reassure the government of Chiang Kai-Shek that the lease-lend program would continue unchanged in its efforts to supply ill-armed China with the sinews of modern war.

Secretary of State Hull acted promptly to spike reports that the United States was negotiating with Japan in hopes of "a fair and amicable settlement" in the Orient, that some fears were being voiced that an uneasy sort of an appeasement deal might be under discussion. Any Far Eastern settlement, he said, would have to be based on the fundamental principle long asserted by the United States—non-recognition of aggression and respect for international law.

Corporation Levy Is Eased Slightly

Washington, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Senate Finance Committee voted today to ease slightly the projected new taxes on corporations.

On a vote which Sen. Byrd (D.-Va.) cast was approximately two to one, the group decided to eliminate a special 10 per cent tax which the House had applied to the profits of corporations exempt from the excess profits tax.

The committee action reduced the estimate from the revenue bill by $50,000,000 to $3,543,700,000. Opponents of the special 10 per cent levy have contended that it, together with normal corporation taxes, would place too heavy a burden on companies having too little income to fall within the schedule of excess profits tax.

Flames Seen Streaking Up From Besieged City Lead To Believe Soviet Forces Destroying Capital In Preparation For Mass Attempt To Escape By Sea

By The Associated Press

Giant walls of flames streaking up over the besieged port of Tallinn, capital of Estonia, indicated today that the Russians were destroying the city and presumably getting ready for a mass attempt to escape by sea.

German troops were reported to have the ancient Finnish gulf town (normal population over 135,000) cut off on all sides by land.

Dispatches from Helsinki, Finland, 50 miles across the gulf, said the glow on the southern horizon above Tallinn began last night and continued this morning.

Observers on the Finnish shore also heard the thunder of artillery fire, indicating that German siege guns were pounding the city.

Only a few days ago, the Nazis said they had thwarted an attempt to send supplies to the beleaguered city, sinking eight ships in a Soviet convoy.

In Berlin, the German high command reported that Adolf Hitler's invasion armies had annihilated the 22nd Russian army and captured the town of Velikie Luki, far behind the main German-Russian line, killing more than 40,000 Red army troops and taking 30,000 prisoners.

Velikie Luki lies 275 miles west of Moscow and 250 miles south of Leningrad, about midway between Lake Iman and Smolensk. Capture of the town would mean that the Germans had straightened out a deep bend in their lines on the central front, putting them in position for more concerted drives against both Moscow and Leningrad.

Faculty Of High School To Begin Work On Friday

In order to get off to a good start in the high school this year, the faculty of the high school will assemble in Greenville on Friday of this week and will work Friday, Saturday and Monday making plans for the year's work. This pre-school conference will be devoted to a discussion of all the problems pertaining to the administration of the high school program in the city for the coming year.

The pre-school conference of the high school is a new thing which was entered into willingly by all the members of the staff of the high school in order that working agreements could be arrived at for carrying on the work in the high school field this year. At this pre-school conference there will be visiting faculty members from two or three Southern Association colleges who will lend their aid in the discussions of the problems concerned.

Points Out Need Of Gas To Haul Leaf To Market

Congressman Bonner, in a meeting today with representatives of oil companies, pledged his support to a move to have the restrictions eased in Eastern Carolina on account of the need of more gasoline to haul tobacco to the various markets.

Immediately following the meeting, Congressman Bonner wired Ralph Davies, acting petroleum coordinator at Washington, sending a copy to Senator Bailey, chairman of the Commerce Committee, pointing out the situation faced by the tobacco industry.

Those attending the conference were J. G. Clark, W. L. Allen, I. W. Netherland, J. G. Bell, Withers Harvey, M. E. Sutton of Greenville, Roy Carson and J. C. Wynne, Sr., of (Continued on Page Two)

Says Step Would Be Considered Unfriendly Act

Moscow, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The Soviet government has informed Japan it would regard as an unfriendly act any attempt to hinder normal trade relations between the Soviet Union and the United States by way of Far Eastern Soviet ports, it was announced today.

At the same time Japan was assured that goods purchased by the U. S. S. R. in the United States "are destined in the first place for the satisfaction of the growing needs of the U. S. S. R. in the west in connection with the defensive war imposed upon the Soviet Union, as well as for agricultural needs in the Soviet Far East."

These declarations were made Monday to the Japanese ambassador, Yoshitsugu Tateawa, by Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov, and also in Tokyo.

A Russian statement said the Japanese ambassador had declared shipments by the United States to Vladivostok of goods purchased by the Soviet Union, such as oil and gasoline, "is creating an extremely delicate and difficult situation for Japan because these goods have to pass in the proximity of Japanese territory."

All New Students To Report Friday

All children in grades one to seven who did not attend school in Greenville last year and all entering first grade children who did not register last spring should report to the school which they plan to attend this year Friday morning of this week between the hours of nine and twelve.

All eighth grades of the city will attend school this year in the high school building.

All children who were in the two sixth grades at the Training School last year—namely, Miss Matheson's and Miss Hyman's rooms—will please report to the high school auditorium in a group Monday afternoon at two o'clock. At this time assignments will be made for these children to attend during the coming year a seventh grade either in the Training School building or in the high school building.

Various New Bright Belt Auction Centers Report First Day Averages In 26-29 Cents Range

Raleigh, Aug. 27.—(AP) Tobacco prices held firm today at levels at from seven to 10 cents higher than last year on North Carolina's New Bright belt markets.

The market opened yesterday with farmers jubilant at average payments of between 26 and 29 cents.

Prices on the 14 markets ranged from two cents for the poorest grades to 50 cents for the choicest types.

At Wilson, largest market in the world, Sales Supervisor N. G. Blackman, Jr., reported the 26.63 cents a pound average paid for the 1,426,276 pounds sold there yesterday was 10.30 cents more than at last year's opening. The quality of the million and a half pounds offered at Wilson today was from fair to good, Blackman said. A few tags were turned—a gesture indicating dissatisfaction with price—during yesterday's sales, but for the most part growers were pleased with payments.

Kinston warehouses were jammed today. A total of 1,428,660 pounds was sold there yesterday for an average of 26.12 cents a pound. Much poor quality tobacco was among the initial offerings.

Frank M. Park, Jr., sales supervisor at Goldsboro, said 225,038 pounds were sold there yesterday for $64,675.81, an average of 29.74 cents a pound, described as the best average in 10 years. Park said an upward trend was noted today with improved quality in the offerings of around 400,000 pounds.

The Greenville market opened strong today with indications that another 1,500,000 pounds would be sold. A total of 1,455,904 pounds was sold yesterday for an average of 28.61 cents, compared with last year's 1,236,590 pounds and 16.40 cents average.

At Ahoskie, Sales Supervisor George P. Arrington said official figures for the opening day were 193,922 pounds sold for $61,165.29, an average of 31.54 cents a pound.

W. H. Edwards, sales supervisor at Smithfield, said that "good tobacco is up a little bit" from opening day when 495,116 pounds of leaf brought an average of 31.83 cents a pound.

Philip Whitley, Wendell tobacco man, said that today's leaf prices were "on par with yesterday" when 246,362 pounds sold for $27,772, an average of 28.10 cents a pound.

Yesterday's official figures for the Rocky Mount market were released by Ed Johnston, Jr., sales supervisor as follows: 1,121,898 pounds sold for an average of 29.34 cents. This was described as one of the best days in the market's history. Another one million pounds were on hand today and the leaf was said to be selling as well if not better than yesterday. Some farmers were getting 25 to 38 cents averages for their offerings.

Money Paid Double That '40 Opening

Bidding Continues Strong Today After Yesterday's Highest Opening Day Since Record Season Of 1919; Farmers Joyous Over Prices Paid For Offerings; Nearly Half Million Paid Out Yesterday

Nearly a half million dollars was paid to farmers selling their tobacco on the Greenville market yesterday as the average for the opening break was officially stated as 28.61—the highest for the market since the record year of 1919, when the season average exceeded the 50 cents a pound mark.

Official figures for yesterday and the opening date last year follow:

Table with columns: Year, Pounds, Amount, Avg. 1941—1,455,904 $416,596.58 28.61 1940—1,236,590 $202,806.50 16.40

While many expressed the belief that yesterday's opening was the highest since the market was established more than 50 years ago and numerous farmers were heard to say that they sold tobacco higher yesterday than at any previous time, a check of Reflectors also shows that during the first week of sales in 1919 the market averaged a little over 50 cents per pound. The 1919 season average also exceeded the 50-cent mark.

Indications were that warehouse floors would be practically cleared today in readiness for tomorrow's sales.

With nearly a half million dollars being paid out by the Greenville market yesterday, the entire community felt the results and all Greenville prepared for good business from now on.

Yesterday's high average was established with much of the tobacco going in the 30's, while some piles sales down to a few cents, with numerous other good piles going in the high 40's.

A mixed opinion was evidenced on whether the market would bring the present high levels. Some said now is the time to sell, while others maintained equally as strong that better tobacco would sell higher later on in the season.

With the opening of the market yesterday, a new sales system went into effect on the Greenville market whereby each of the 10 warehouses has a sale every day. The buyers work strictly on schedule, moving from one warehouse to another at the appointed time, thereby enabling a farmer to know when his tobacco will be sold. The new system apparently met with general favor among all concerned, the farmer, warehousemen and buyers.

As the market opened today, it was evident that the light opening day prices were being maintained and farmers, whose hope yesterday turned into satisfaction, felt secure that they would be well rewarded for the year's labor.

The official average established yesterday was as high as the most optimistic had predicted. Many optimists predicted an average of 27 and one-half cents for the day's break.

Hollywood

Hollywood.—"Tanks a Million." Screenplay by Paul Gerard Smith. Directed by Fred Guiol. Principals: William Tracy, James Gleason, Noah Beery Jr., Joe Sawyer, Elyse Knox, Douglas Fowley, Knox Manning.

This is perhaps Hollywood's most intelligent assault on the "double feature" to date. First of Hal Roach's "streamlined features," it is but 50 minutes in running time and most of it is rollicking entertainment. This compares with running times of 70, 80 or more minutes for the usual "supporting" feature on a program. Pared still further, "Tanks a Million" could be the perfect answer.

Its plot concerns a youth (Tracy) who, by virtue of his civilian work as a railway information clerk, has an unlimited capacity for remembering things. This asset, when he is drafted, quickly turns him into a candidate for a commission, as quickly makes him the target for envy of his immediate superiors, for rebellion of his fellow-employees, for the final one presented by a crotchety general (Gleason) whom he is forced by circumstances to impersonate on a nation-wide broadcast. Among those present: old-timer Norman Kerry as an army major.

"Life Begins For Andy Hardy." Screenplay by Agnes Christine Johnston. Directed by George B. Seitz. Principals: Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford, Sara Haden, Patricia Dane, Ray McDonald.

Andy sees everything clearly now—no more of this kid stuff for him. That's what he says when he leaves Carvel, during summer vacation, after high school graduation and heads for New York to make his own way and decide whether he wants to go on to college after one month's trial of life in the big city.

That little rich girl, Betsy (Garland), the one who lives in New York and carries a torch for Andy is there to watch over him, but Andy nevertheless gets a full portion of life in the raw. Cooksure as usual, he takes a room in a boys' hotel and at once leaps on the first clue to a job. He meets Pennitt (Dane), the beautiful telephone operator, and is instantly smitten.

City life and Jennitt—a pretty schemer with an occasional generous streak in her petty little soul—soon reduce Andy's bankroll to the starvation point. He won't write home for money, and he won't let Betsy help. It's through Judge Hardy and Betsy's clever intervention that he gets his moral bearings, and through a homeless boy

A copy of the telegram sent to Davies follows:
"Due to the opening of the tobacco markets in Eastern North Carolina, tobacco is hauled from farm to market by all types of motor vehicles, the gasoline situation is serious and acute. Consumption in the Eastern Carolina tobacco belt during June, July and August is very light. Ten per cent reduction based on the months would mean a 40 per cent shortage of absolute necessity during the months of September, October and November. This is shown by the records of distributors of gasoline in the cities of Washington, Greenville, Rocky Mount, New Bern, Goldsboro, and Smithfield and other distributing points in the tobacco belt. Deliveries in the resort areas of North Carolina during September, October and November based on a 10 per cent reduction of consumption during June, July and August would give the resort areas more gasoline than is necessary for September, October and November. The same situation as affects the tobacco areas will arise in the potato areas, strawberry areas, and other seasonal crop areas next spring. There should be a coordinator in the state who understands local conditions so as to supply the demand and decrease deliveries from time to time. Your immediate cooperation and attention is respectfully requested."

MADE UP TO KILL

by Kelley Ross

Chapter 27
 "I know Lee Gray," Evidently Jeff had learned all he wanted to. He got up, chucking Tommy on the shoulder with his fist. "So long, Tom. And thanks a lot."
 Out on the sidewalk again, walking toward Seventh Avenue. I had trouble keeping up with Jeff.
 "Where are we going?" I asked. He didn't answer. "Jeff, remember me? I'm the girl you're going to marry."
 "Yeah, when I solve this more than slight case of murder."
 He stopped, turned and started in the opposite direction. "Halla, I'm leaving you here."
 "Why?"
 "You can't walk fast enough."
 "Walk fast enough where?"

ting canyon of. Fifty-fourth Street.
 There was a knot of men in front of my apartment building, two in uniforms of the city's finest, the others wearing the glum mask that is apparently a requisite for plainclothes men. I caught a glimpse of Peterson in deep conversation with the photographer whose equipment lay on the step at his feet.
 I said, "Hi, fellahs," as I walked past the men and went into the lobby where the boy who relieved Jinx on the day shift, a sad, morose-faced boy, took me up.
 The apartment was in complete darkness and I reached for the switch and snapped on the ceiling lights. Then, quickly, I turned them off again and felt my way around in the blackness, pulling down the blinds. I had no desire to be a target for any guests of the Esquador Hotel.

I locked and bolted the door and wriggled the knob experimentally in spite of the two detectives stationed outside, and then lit the table lamp. Over the yellow shade I saw Carol watching me from the bedroom door. She had been crying and the powder she had smeared over her face in a gallant effort to hide the tearstains was streaked and pathetic. She must have seen all my precautionary measures for there was alarm in her eyes.

"Peeping Toms," I explained glibly, pointing to the drawn shades. I sat on the couch and lit a cigarette, resolving to do my darndest to drive the thought of murder out of her mind for a little while at least. "I don't mean that. I'm not afraid for myself. I'm afraid for you, Halla, when these things first began to happen I was so terrified and sort of numb about it all that I—I was thoughtless and selfish. It never dawned on me how I was dragging you into this mess just by living here at your place. And you were so well about it. I just—well I just took it for granted."
 "Carol, don't be silly."
 "And then, at first, everything was happening at the theater and I didn't think there was any danger here. Then today—that shot, Halla, that bullet could have hit you! You might be dead now and all because I—because of me."
 "So that's why you're going?"
 "I don't want to have happen to you," she said, her words scarcely audible. "what happened to Eve North. I'm all packed. I'll leave in the morning."
 "Well, go in and unpack. You're

"Oh, if she doesn't I—I don't know what I'll do. I won't be able to stand it! He should be back soon."
 "If she says no, will that mean that Steve won't?"
 "Marry me? I wouldn't let him. I couldn't. I've caused Steve enough trouble. I—" She moved restlessly about the room, stopping at last to curl up on the couch beside me.
 "Halla—"
 News For Halla
 "What, Carol?"
 "Halla, I'm leaving here. Tomorrow."
 "Leaving here! Why?"
 "I'm going to a hotel. I have some money now, my check for Green Apples, and if I need more Steve will let me have it. I won't like that, but I guess it's an emergency."
 "I guess it is, but you're not leaving."
 "I've got to, Halla. It'll just be for until Steve and I get married. If we do," she added and I could almost hear her breathe a silent prayer. "Oh, I know it's wrong of me things being the way they are, but I wish we could get married tomorrow."
 "Well, whenever the wedding is you're staying here until it. I won't have you going to a hotel."
 For a moment she didn't answer, then she said softly, "I'm afraid to stay here."

"But you're safer than in a hotel, Steve and Jeff and I—"
 "I don't mean that. I'm not afraid for myself. I'm afraid for you, Halla, when these things first began to happen I was so terrified and sort of numb about it all that I—I was thoughtless and selfish.  "Well, go in and unpack. You're not leaving here until you're Mrs. Stephen Brown. I won't have it in my no danger, Carol! Why, that bullet didn't come within a mile of me. And there won't be any more bullets either."
 I put my arm around her shoulders. "Stop worrying, Butch. We'll see this thing through somehow. Now let's have no more of this small talk. Let's discuss something really momentous, such as, is there anything to eat in the house beside beans?"
 Husband-To-Be
 There was a knock at the door and Steve was in the room. He didn't have to say a word, success glowed in his face. He took Carol in his arms but he was too excited to be affectionate; he had to talk. "We're going to be married! I'm going to be a husband! Look, look at me, I'm going to be a husband!"
 "Oh, Steve!"
 "You should have seen your mother-in-law's face when I told her, darling. She couldn't speak she was speechless! Boy, I thought it was—I thought her silence was foreboding, but I had just struck the old lady dumb. I knocked her for a loop! When I left she was going to bed!"

 Steve dropped into a chair and immediately jumped up. "I told her about you, about this, about everything, Carol. And Mother said"—his voice started to dance—"somebody should marry the poor little thing and take care of her!"
 "But, Steve, that doesn't mean anything!" Carol's voice was tremulous.

"I showed her your picture and you're going home with me this week-end at Mother's command. It's in the bag. Mother never lets anyone in our house that ain't fit to marry."
 "But she didn't say yes, Steve."
 "She knows you're in the theater and she didn't say no! And when she sees you, darling, and when she sees you, stop worrying." He kissed her. I turned my back and started to play he-loves-me-he-loves-me-not on an old cactus plant.
 "Ouch!" I said. Carol and Steve laughed politely. I got it. Cupid didn't have to blow his whistle in my ear. I went into the kitchen and played with the pots and pans. Jeff's greeting to Steve and Carol brought me back into the living room ten or fifteen minutes later at a gallop. He was already at the telephone. "Hello, has Peterson talk to me. It's important, something on the Colony case—Thanks

"I'll hang on."
 Steve and I fired excited questions at Jeff but he was connected with Peterson almost immediately. "Hello, this is Troy. I've been trying to get you every five minutes for the last half hour—Listen, Peterson, could you locate Greeley Morrison and bring him up to Halla's apartment?—I'm not asking you to run errands for me! This is important! I've got something I'll tell you when you get here with Morris—I'm not withholding evidence! When I tell you what I know, you'll want Morris. I'm saving you time, that's all. He isn't at his hotel; I've just come from there. All right, I'll tell you! I know who Lee Gray is! I've found her!"
 "Jeff!" I shouted.
 "Please!" Jeff said. He turned back to the telephone. "You get Morris up here, Mr. Peterson, and I'll tell you." He hung up and took off his hat and coat.
 "Well, Jeff?" I asked impatiently.

"Maybe I shouldn't tell you till Peterson gets here."
 "Maybe you shouldn't, but you're going to!"
 "Okay, relax."
 Steve leaned forward in his chair waiting. I glanced at Carol. She was staring at Jeff, her lips slightly parted, her hands clenched at her sides. None of us spoke. Jeff lit a cigarette with maddening care.
 "Lee Gray is an actress and her name on the stage is Lella Gray. Ever hear of her, any of you? No? Well, she's not very well known. So far as I can find out she's only appeared in one play and then for only a couple of weeks. It was a tryout in England. In Manchester to be exact. The play was Green Apples."
 Steve said sharply, "Green Apples! But then, then Greeley Morrison would have known her. I understood—"

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

FAITH MAKES US CONFIDENT
Moody, the evangelist, once said to a group of friends, "Some morning you will read in the papers that Dwight L. Moody is dead. Don't believe a word of it. At that moment I shall be more alive than I am now. That which is born of the flesh may die; that which is born of the spirit shall live forever."
All men of course cannot say this, but all men of faith can say it. Death is a fearful thing for those who have no faith; for those who do, it is but the opening of the door to larger living. Moody believed—and millions have shared his belief—that what men commonly call death is really the beginning of life.

Just recently I talked with a grand old Christian on his eighty-seventh birthday, and he told me with what delightful anticipation he viewed the future. I thought of Hugh Mackall, youngest and bravest of the Coventry preachers, who suffered martyrdom for his faith in 1686.

His judges gave him four days to live. As he was being led back to his cell, he caught a glimpse of a friend among the crowd and cried, "Good news! I am within four days' journey of enjoying the sight of Christ."

"O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

THE PUBLIC WOULD LIKE TO KNOW

The Senate investigation of the gasoline situation in the eastern states will be welcomed by the motoring public. Americans are willing to make sacrifices if they are necessary to our national defense and aid to democracies but if it so happens that the threatened gasoline shortage is the result of manipulations to raise prices or controversies between the oil companies and the carriers then the public will want and should expect government action to remedy the matter.

THIS TIME IT SHOULD WORK

The joint declaration of policy issued by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt following their dramatic meeting at sea seems to have as its principal objective the assurance to all nations, including Germany, that the Allies do not seek to conquer or dismember any power. They seek only to establish a world order which will permit all nations to live in peace.

A number of the points laid down in the declaration are of extraordinary interest. Point number four, for instance, guarantees that all states, "great and small, victor and vanquished," will be given access on equal terms to the trade and raw materials of the world. That amounts to a reversal of policy for England, which has usually guarded her resources jealously, and has often used high tariffs to give Empire states preferential treatment.

"Roosevelt-Churchill? Fooey!"

ment in English-dominated markets. This country has at times done the same thing.

Point number eight has iron in it. It says, in effect, that until a wider and more general system of world security is attained, it will be necessary to disarm and keep disarmed the aggressor nations. This means, apparently, that the Allies will, in the event of victory, act as the world's policeman, carrying a big stick with which to at once subdue any embryo conqueror when he lifts his head.

Some have compared the eight points of this declaration with President Wilson's famous and ill-fated 14 points. There is, however, one extremely important difference. Mr. Wilson's program was purely his own, and he was not able to persuade the heads of the other allied nations to adopt it. This new declaration has been officially signed by Mr. Churchill as well as Mr. Roosevelt, and so amounts to the official policy of both England and the United States.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stannett

Washington — As the world unconquered by Hitler shrinks, the diplomatic world in Washington expands.

Burrowing into the memories of old-timers, I find that there never was a time—not even during World War I—when there were so many "foreigners" in Washington. Some embassy staffs have increased a thousand-fold. There are purchasing commissions, "good neighbor" commissions, special military and naval delegations and attaches, secretaries and clerks.

One should start with the British embassy, purchasing commission, etc., but I'm not going to go to start with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Only a few months ago, Amtorg, the Russian purchasing agency in this country, was running out of work and about half of its staff was sent home. The embassy staff slipped below levels of any recent years.

Now the embassy staff has 15 accredited diplomats; the Amtorg boys are coming back, and what is happening to the clerical and secretarial staff is mushrooming. The luxurious old Pullman mansion, built from the sleeping car fortune, is now the Russian embassy. A few months ago, it looked like a haunted house. Now it looks like a weekend excursion.

Has Radio Towers.
Not only that but the Russians have taken over another spreading old mansion on Military Road, just off Rock Creek park, and it too is brimming with activity as well as bristling with a couple of radio towers that stretch skyward to bring the latest news and diplomatic code from Moscow.

It is ordinarily a quiet, sleepy neighborhood, but not any more. Stopping at a little house a few hundred yards away, I was informed by the "landlady" that she would like to ask me in, but that all her rooms were occupied and in order had established her own quarters in the basement.

But the increases in the Russian, Norwegian, Greek, Australian, Chinese, French and other delegations are only a drop in the bucket compared to Great Britain.

British employes, both American and English, now number in the thousands, and on K street Northwest is the new British employment agency, busily devoted to nothing but placement of workers in the various missions and commissions. Veteran civil service officials from London have been brought over to supervise.

I have counted 24 different commissions and agencies now representing Great Britain here.
Long ago, the huge British embassy on Massachusetts avenue was filled to overflowing and when the British Purchasing Commission dumped its duffel here, they had to take over floors in the Willard Hotel. That lasted less than a fortnight. Official Washington had hardly caught its breath before the English took over the swank apartment house where the late Andrew Mellon once lived.

Since then, it has been touch and go as the English now are scattered through half a dozen other buildings.

Social Activity Declines.
Oddly enough, all of this vast expansion in the diplomatic corps has been attended by a great decline in diplomatic social activity. In the first place, the folks from abroad are too grimly busy. In the second, it's too difficult to tell whether the friend of today might be the enemy of tomorrow—or vice versa.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Aug. 27 — Governor J. Melville Broughton appears to have divided an appointment double-header with his announcement last week of the retention of Commissioner of Revenue Allen J. Maxwell and his reshuffle in the division of purchase and contract.

Reaction to the Maxwell reappointment seems almost unanimously favorable here in Raleigh as well as in the editorial opinion of many papers scattered all over the state. There appears to doubt at all that the Governor won the first half of the twin bill; although there are the usual carping critics who refuse to accept the place which every political mind saw as made especially for him when the legislature authorized creation of a tax research division. The commission, these folks say, was grimly determined that so far as he could help it there would be no departure from the past said to have been made when Maxwell came out strongly against a second primary. This pact is alleged to have included a provision that Maxwell keep his job.

On the purchase and contract

As British and Russian troops invaded Iran there was no official disclosure of exact points of entry but arrows indicate likely routes of their simultaneous moves which, for the British, would be along the Persian gulf, and, for the Russians, a thrust from the Caucasus. There were radio reports from London and Moscow that a British force had crossed into Iran from Baluchistan.

shake-up there is little doubt that the governor lost in public estimation. The naming of Crayon Efrid to a post in the division was so obviously a payoff (which will cost the public $20,000 in four years) for the Gravelly decision to back Broughton should Horton demand a runoff. Also nobody yet has advanced a logical reason why the second man should draw but $3,900 annually while the third will get $5,000.

This and That . . .

There is a considerable sentiment here that permitting two British sailors to witness last Friday's execution at State prison was stretching hospitality and entertainment just a bit far. Sort of Roman gladiatorial spectacle effect, many feel. Ex-service men, and others for that matter, are decrying the weakness of the War Department in reducing by more than two-thirds the sentence imposed on John Habinyak for wilfully refusing to obey orders. It is contended that his offense was worse, in its effect on discipline and morale, than murder. Take away the power of officers and non-coms to enforce their orders and there's no army left — just a mob. Commissioner of Labor Forrest H. Shuford will be on the program of the International Association of Labor officials at its convention next week, participating in a roundtable discussion of the effect of the national defense program on labor standards. Greensboro follows Durham on the national population list, just as it does in the state. Only difference is that Bull city is No. 3 in Tar Heels, the Guilford capital No. 4, while in the national rankings they are 168 and 169, respectively. Other North Carolina cities rank nationally as follows: Charlotte 91; Winston-Salem 114; Asheville 193; Raleigh 213; High Point 259; Wilmington 302; and Rocky Mount 388. There are 397 cities in the United States with more than 25,000 population, according to the census staistics from which these data were taken. State employees will get another long weekend this week, the holidays extending through Labor Day on Monday. There is a lively surprise in store when successor to "Red" Powell as Highway publicity man is announced. He could be a fellow who did not support Broughton last year — which would, obviously, be exceptional — meaning the appointment, not the support or lack of it.

Did We Have A George?

Parsons, Kas.—(AP)—Police captured a runaway boy in the railroad yards and wired his parents, asking if they wanted him returned immediately.
"It really doesn't make much difference," was the reply. "I still got a whole yard full."

NOTICE OF LAND SALE BY COMMISSIONER

13,398 MILES ON 5-QUART FILL OF OIL

in the Certified DEATH VALLEY DESTRUCTION TEST

Revolutionary New Oil tested against 5 other big brands. 6 new cars Destroyed to prove Economy and Protection.

The oil that reeled off an amazing 13,398 miles on one regular fill, in blazing Death Valley, was proved to be an oil of the Nth degree—an oil of new high character. . . . Hence its name:

CONOCO Nth MOTOR OIL

This dramatic test, supervised impartially and Officially Certified, was simple, yet harsh. 6 identical new cars were taken to Death Valley—where the heat hits record highs. 5 of these cars were each assigned a different widely-known, highly advertised motor oil. The sixth car used new Conoco Nth motor oil.

Each car was broken-in on a brand assigned by lot. Then, one 5-quart fill of this same oil went into the crankcase—kept under lock. The cars were driven 57 miles an hour until oil failure cracked up each engine—utterly wrecked it! All of this under impartial official scrutiny, as was every step in the test, right on through the dramatic finish.

Here is what happened

New Conoco Nth oil went 13,398.8 miles. Not another oil came within 5,683 miles of this. One outstanding oil failed 8,268.6 miles sooner than new Conoco Nth motor oil. So it outdistanced the five competing oils by 74% to 161%.

Why this Astounding result was possible

New Conoco Nth motor oil contains a Conoco-originated synthetic (U. S. Patent 2,218,132) called Thiakene inhibitor. An inhibitor in motor oil acts pretty much as an inhibition acts on you. Inhibitions hold you back; police many actions. And so Conoco's Thiakene inhibitor polices Conoco Nth oil . . . arrests pollution that otherwise comes from normal operation. And that's your aid against a dirty engine with inferior lubrication.

Are you an OIL-PLATING "fan"?

If you are, more power to you! Don't for a minute feel let down, for Conoco Nth also contains the famous synthetic that OIL-PLATES engines. OIL-PLATING comes from the magnet-like attraction that keeps it bonded to inner engine parts, so that it can't all quickly drain down to the crankcase—not while you're using Conoco Nth oil. This same famed OIL-PLATING is still yours to guard against wear.

Because of OIL-PLATING and Thiakene inhibitor, one 5-quart fill of new Conoco Nth oil went an astounding 13,398.8 miles. Of course, you'll never Death-Test your Conoco Nth oil in sinister Death Valley, nor repeat any other proving-ground tortures. You'll still drain and refill at the intervals recommended by qualified authorities. But how you'll expect to stretch the distance before you ever add a quart, judging by this big fact:

5 heavily advertised oils in the Certified Death Valley Test were out-mileaged 74% to 161% by Conoco Nth oil. Economy like that counts up into dollars! Change to Nth oil today at Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continental Oil Co.—Pioneers in Bettering America's oil with Synthetics

Greenies Smack Eagles 16-4; Play Bears Here Tonight

LOCALS BOOST BAT AVERAGES

Pierce Gets Five For Six, Wilson Four For Five

The Kinston Eagles came to town last night and, as has been the case for the past month or so, the Greenies handed them a lacing, this time to the tune of 16-4.

After the Greenies piled up nine runs in the first inning fans turned their interest to seeing how much the locals could boost their batting averages, and some did very well, thank you.

Carl Pierce came through with five safeties in six trips, three of which were three-baggers. Manager Rube Wilson got four for five, one of which was a two-bagger. The local skipper kept up his hitting even after taking over the pitching duties at the start of the fourth inning in order to give his pitchers a rest. Kee had hurled up to that time, allowing only one run.

Tonight the Greenies will meet the third-place New Bern Bears at Guy Smith park and no such out-look is expected. With about a week of regular play remaining, the Greenies are leading the Bears by five games.

The chimney swift cannot walk, but its feet and legs, braced by its spine-like tail feathers, are strong enough to hold the bird to the chimney wall as it roosts at night.

Your Screen Test

By ROBBIN COONS

- After playing the first wife of a distinguished movie citizen—though you wouldn't recognize her from this picture—she's emerging as her own pretty self in "An Obliging Young Lady." She's from the stage, first name's Ruth, and the other is.....?
- What opera star, co-starred with Nelson Eddy in a movie, has a first name that means "Get Up"—though she doesn't pronounce it that way?
- The new movies: (a) In what film does a bottle of heart medicine play an important part? (b) In what movie does a divorcee chase a hero more interested in science—and with no effect whatever on the plot? (c) In what movie does a preacher nearly get a lift—via the noose?
- One of these is a new actor: Ben Piazza, Robert Smith, Billy Grady, Solly Basiano, Ivan Kahn, Milton Lewis. Which is the actor—and all the others are what?
- Supply the other names of actors here mentioned, and you get a sentence with sense more or less: "Cary me the loan of your George bed, and you can take my suite in the east Clark—or would you prefer the Mae?"

Count 20 points for each question answered. A score of 60 is good, 80 excellent and 90 or above colossal.

GAME SET FOR TOMORROW PM

Youngsters to Square Off At Third St. Park

By CHARLES BROWN
The Wilson Juniors and the WPA Greenville Juniors will clash here Thursday afternoon at Third Street ball park for Eastern Carolina Junior championship.

These two teams have won one each. This game will be sponsored by the young folks Recreation Dramatic club of Greenville.

A small donation fee will be asked. The public is asked to attend this game and see two well-balanced strong Junior teams in action.

Wilson Juniors Win 3-1
Yesterday afternoon at Wilson the WPA Juniors were defeated by the score of 3-1. The beginning sparked Greenville's all-star second nine and in the third inning with the score of 3 to 1. The Greenville Juniors No. 1 team went in the game. From there on out the game went scoreless for both teams.

Batting stars for Wilson were Gay, Liles and Markham; for Greenville, Ramsey, C. Morris and Musselwhite. The fielding sensation was Markham.

Fielders Out

With Bennie Crowe out with injuries he suffered while sliding home in Kinston Monday night, and Pete Caraway out with a sore leg, the Greenies last night had to call on two hurriers to hold down outfield positions.

Bill Teller played the entire game after having pitched the Monday night victory. He started in right field, but when Manager Rube Wilson went in to save Kee, Teller went to center and Kee took over right. Sonny Kracke being brought in to second when Finrock replaced the skipper at first. Incidentally, Finrock looked good on first. Teller got several chances and handled them perfectly, while Kee made good on his one chance.

Crowe will be out for several days, although Caraway may be able to return to the line-up tonight, although still not in the best of condition.

N.Y. Stock Market

New York, Aug. 27. — (AP) — A small flow of buying orders today permitted the stock market to extend its late August rally. Prices were higher from the start, but at times the climb became a bit labored and a fair number of issues remained aloof from the rise. Rails, coppers and selected aircrafts, motors, rubbers and specialties were fractionally ahead near the fourth hour. Dealings were light.

Preparing To End Canning Project

The canning center at the corner of Fourteenth and Elm Streets which has been sponsored by the Greenville City Schools and carried on with WPA help during the past few months is about to close. At the present time the center is putting up several hundred quart jars of peaches. These peaches were gathered off the trees at Third Street School. Some tomatoes are still being gathered from the garden and being canned, and by the end of this week there will have been put up in glass and tin cans more than ten thousand quarts of food to be used in feeding the school children of Greenville during the coming winter.

In addition to the canned food the ten-acre garden which is being operated by the schools will furnish turnip salad, turnips, carrots and other green vegetables during the winter. Also an acre of sweet potatoes will shortly be gathered and these will be used in the school lunchroom program also this year. Those citizens of Greenville who would like to see what ten thousand quarts of food looks like are invited to go out to the canning center at the corner of Fourteenth and Elm streets today or tomorrow and see this exhibit before it is moved. This canning center, under the direction of Mrs. Gurbanus of the WPA help along with a group of helpers, both white and colored, has done a most excellent piece of work during the past few months.

Several Cases In Criminal Session

A large number of cases were disposed of in the current criminal session of Pitt Superior court this morning and yesterday afternoon. Cases disposed of follow:

Workers Arrested In Paris District

Paris, German Occupied France, Aug. 27. — (AP) — French police, proceeding systematically house by house, today blocked off a large section of the fourth ward — workers district around city hall — and took into custody a number of persons purported to be Jews and Communists.

All residents in the area, which lies along the river Seine, were required to remain inside their homes and submit identification papers to the police. (This raid followed others in two Paris wards last week — the 11th and 20th — in which more than 10,000 persons were arrested.) The first of German occupied France's new courts "for unmerciful repression of Communist activities" started functioning, meanwhile, in the Palace of Justice. A special panel of judges from the Paris court of appeals was named to direct speedy trials with power to order imprisonment or death.

The Germans also were said to be investigating the possibility that increasing sabotage, particularly against railroads in the occupied zone, might be due to British parachutists.

Backs Up Defense In Tobacco Trial

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 27. — (AP) — Federal Judge H. Church Ford declined today to limit the scope of defense presentation in the tobacco anti-trust prosecution in advance of opening statements to the jury by defense counsel. The restrictive ruling was asked by Special Assistant Attorney General Edward Miller at a conference in chambers, and the request produced a charge by the defense that "the government is trying to hamstring us."

Miller asked that the defense be precluded from contending:
1. That leaf buying practices of the Imperial Tobacco Company with funds advanced by the Federal Commodity Corporation were similar to those followed by the defendants and that the government therefore had approved such practices.

2. That there was justification for alleged price cutting efforts by the defendants in Denver, Colo., because members of a trade association which attempted to set minimum prices there were indicted and fined by the government on price-fixing charges.

Coffee For Two
Memphis. — (AP) — Charles K. Chandler lifts his coffee-cup with his left hand because of an injured right arm, and at home the cup is always placed to the left of his plate.

In a down-town dining room one day, Chandler absent-mindedly sipped coffee from the cup at his left. "It tasted exceptionally sweet and was disappearing unusually fast," he says. "Then a young woman and I reached for the cup at the same time. "We both had sweetened and drunk from the cup at my left-hand cup!"

None Too Good
New York. — (AP) — The bride hurried into the delicatessen store on her way home in order to have dinner ready when hubby arrived. The clerk was very painstaking in helping her select each article, and when she picked up her packages she gave him a friendly "Thank you for all his efforts. He cheerily replied, "Oh, that's all right. Miss—there's our motto," pointing to a sign on the wall: "Our best is none too good."

Fireman Save My China!
Scotland Neck, N. C. — (AP) — When fire destroyed a dwelling here the only thing saved was a set of false teeth. The owner persuaded Fireman James Wilkerson to venture into the building to find the molars.

The United States has been importing 13 pounds of spinach seed for every pound produced by national growers.
