FINDS NATION IS NOT FACING OIL SHORTAGE

Committee Recommends Removal of Restrictions

DECLARES ICKES CREATED ALARM

Group Finds Shortage Of Surplus Only, Not Of Products Or Facilities To Transport Them

Washington, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A special Senate investigating committee reported today there was no actual shortage of gasoline or other petroleum products in the East and recommended immediate removal of existing restrictions.

Accusing Secretary of Interior Ickes, defense petroleum coordinator, and his aides of "over-enthusiasm" in creating "unnecessary alarm" among the public, the special committee said that the "shortage, as we see it, is a shortage of surplus—and not a shortage of products or a lack of facilities to transport them."

Chairman Maloney (D-Conn.) in presenting the findings to the Senate, cautioned that it was preliminary. He added that the fact-finding group would resume public hearings whenever it found these necessary.

The group began hearings August 26 after Ickes and Harold K. Davies, deputy coordinator, had issued a series of public warnings about gasoline and oil shortages along the populous Atlantic coast. Filling stations and other retail outlets were ordered to close from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. and supplies to retail outlets were cut to 10 per cent below July deliveries.

"With proper conservation, motorists should find it possible to acquire the gasoline and oil products which they need," Maloney told the Senate. "We believe that present restrictions should be lifted, and that the public, with a clearer understanding of conditions, would cooperate in carrying out an effective program of conservation."

Smallest Crop

Raleigh, Sept. 11.—(AP)—On the heels of a report that prices on the newly opened Middle Belt were averaging about 30 cents a pound, the State Agriculture Department announced yesterday that the state's flue-cured tobacco crop would be the smallest in five years, chiefly because of extreme weather.

At Durham, largest market of the Middle Belt, sales yesterday totaled 796,938 pounds for $238,695.32, an average of 29.98. Around 700,000 pounds were offered today, reported $53,346. Henderson sold for $101,467.52, an average of 28.72.

A total of 351,065 pounds brought $98,633.57, or an average of 28.09 at Oxford. About 300,000 pounds were to be sold today.

MEET HELD BY PITT TEACHERS

Entertaining And Instructional Program Presented

The first county-wide teachers meeting of the current session was held at Winterville last night, with teachers of the school as hosts. The meeting was both entertaining and instructive.

The meeting opened with Lewis Sidney Bullock leading the teachers in singing "God Bless America." Following the invocation by Rev. J. E. Hoyle, Miss Reba Proctor, president of the Pitt county unit of the North Carolina Educational Association, welcomed the new and old teachers. Solos were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Bullock.

W. H. Woolard, chairman of the County Board of Education and Mrs. J. Paul Davenport, president of the Pitt county Parent-Teacher Associations, made brief talks. County objectives for the year were outlined for the respective departments by the following teachers: Primary department, Miss Beatrice Cherry; grammar grade department, Miss Bertha Johnson; high school department, G. N. Noble and J. H. Moore; agriculture department, S. F. Peterson; Home Economics, Miss Mildred Becton.

Miss Proctor outlined the general objectives as a whole and Fred W. Greene, executive secretary of the North Carolina Education Association, outlined the plans for the organization.

Following these discussions the teachers met in various group meetings. The meeting was concluded with refreshments being served by the Winterville teachers.

Vichy Opens Fire On British Plane

Vichy, Sept. 11.—(AP)—French anti-aircraft guns opened fire today on a British plane which flew over Vichy during the early hours this morning.

Inhabitants who were up at 2 a. m., could hear the roar of the airplane motors and the sound of anti-aircraft fire. It was forbidden at first, however, to speak of the presence of RAF fliers over this seat of government, although there had been a two-hour air alarm before.

Vichy's anti-aircraft guns, which were not known to have fired on British planes before, recently have been practicing.

Status Of General Strike Called For Today Uncertain As Heads Of Both Labor And Employer Organizations Replaced With Followers Of Vidkun Quisling's Nazi-Sponsored Government

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 11.—(AP)—With all of the Oslo area encircled by German troops and two Norwegian labor leaders already dead by a firing squad, Vidkun Quisling's Nazi-sponsored regime today took over complete control of both workers' and employers' organizations in German-occupied Norway.

The status of a general strike called for today was uncertain.

The head of the Norwegian Federation of Labor was ousted and arrested and replaced by Odd Fossum, leader of Quisling's labor organization. This put the nation's Federation of Labor into Quisling's so-called corporative state structure.

The entire board of the employers' organization then was removed and placed under police surveillance. A new employers' leader, one Lippestad, a Quislingist, was appointed.

The German forces were prepared to meet all strike eventualities under a state of civil siege, proclaimed for the capital and its environs yesterday. Quisling spies betrayed the plan to authorities bringing on the state of siege.

In last night's darkness, a firing squad executed Viggo Hannstuen, secretary of the Norwegian Labor Federation, and Rolf Vickstrom, a trades union president, shortly after they had been condemned by summary courts set up by Joseph Terboven, the German commissioner for Norway.

Four other workers received prison terms of from 10 years to life. There were no details of the charges.

The situation was very critical and it was expected that the state of siege would be extended to new areas.

To Start Work On Railroad Dispute

(By The Associated Press) A fact-finding board appointed by President Roosevelt prepared today to dig into the issues of a threatened nation-wide strike of 1,250,000 railroad men.

Dean Wayne Lyman Morse of the University of Oregon law school heads the board, personnel of which was announced yesterday.

The National Railway Mediation Board will meet at Chicago Monday to determine when and where the fact-finding board will begin its session. Under the railroad mediation law, the board must report to the President within 30 days. No strike can be put into effect until 30 days after the report is made.

The 900,000 members of 14 non-operating railroad unions originally had set their walkout for today, and 350,000 members of five operating brotherhoods had decided to strike next Monday. Appointment of the fact-finding board, however, rendered these dates ineffective.

Saslow's Moving Into New, Larger Quarters

Saslow's local credit jewelers today moved from its old quarters on the east side of Evans street to the west side—408 Evans street.

In announcing the moving, officials declared the change to the new and larger store was made possible by the cooperation of their patrons of Greenville and surrounding territory.

The store will be open in its new quarters tomorrow and the public is invited to visit and inspect the new location.

IN CONFERENCE ON EXEMPTION

Joint Committee Hoped to Reach Agreement Today

Washington, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The number one question before a joint Senate-House conference committee today was whether to require income tax returns next year from almost 5,000,000 persons now exempt from filing.

Hopeful of an agreement by nightfall on a compromise version of the huge new defense tax bill, the conferees tackled the job of resolving the differences between Senate and House versions of the legislation on the subject of personal exemptions.

The House left the exemptions unchanged—$2,000 for married couples and $800 for single persons. The Senate version, however, cut the married exemptions to $1,500 and the single to $750—a change which the Treasury said would require an estimated 4,911,000 additional persons to file returns by next March 15.

There was some sentiment among House members of the conference group to make the married exemptions $1,875—a reduction in the same ratio as that provided for single individuals.

Senate conferees, however, said they were reluctant to accept such a suggestion.

Icelandic Vessel Sunk In Late June

Washington, Sept. 11.—(AP)—V. Thor, chairman of the Icelandic Government Trade Commission, said today that the 1,815-ton Icelandic vessel Heikla was sunk in late June by a submarine while en route from Iceland to Canada.

Thor said the vessel was torpedoed and that 14 members of the crew were lost and six survivors were picked up a British warship.

He thought the sinking took place June 29. United States armed forces did not occupy Iceland until July 7.

Thor said the Berlin radio announcement picked up by NBC's listening post in New York today was the first positive information that the vessel was sunk by a German submarine. The vessel was Icelandic owned and flying the Icelandic flag. Thor said.

Future U.S.-Axis Relations May Be Cleared Up Tonight With Address By President

White House Conference By Both Republicans And Democrats Taken As Indication Pronouncements To Be Of Momentous Proportions; World-Wide Broadcast Scheduled To Start at 10 P.P.M., DST

Washington, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The future course of relations between the United States and the Rome-Berlin Axis hung in the balance today as the nations waited with grave expectancy for President Roosevelt's world broadcast tonight.

With reports and speculation flying as to the contents of the address, the President called democratic and republican congressional leaders to the White House for a conference this morning and it was generally taken for granted that the speech would figure in the discussions.

The fact that Republicans as well as Democrats were asked to the meetings was universally interpreted as another sign that Mr. Roosevelt's pronouncements tonight would deal with momentous matters of national policy.

The conference with legislative chiefs was the second the President called after returning to the capital last night from his mother's funeral in Hyde Park, N. Y. Immediately after his arrival at the White House, he was closeted for an hour and 23 minutes with Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of Navy Knox and Harry L. Hopkins, lease-lend supervisor, but the conferees were pledged to strict secrecy.

As far as the White House was concerned, apparently, the exact contents of the speech would remain confidential until Mr. Roosevelt starts speaking at 9 p. m. EST (10 p. m. Daylight Saving Time). All networks will carry the address, and all available short wave units will relay it.

For today's White House meeting the foremost topic, in the opinion of congressional informants, was the question that is expected to occupy a major portion of the President's radio address—the war waged by Axis forces at sea and its effect on American shipping.

Average Thus Far Reported At 25.36

Yesterday's offerings on the Greenville tobacco market brought to 15,109,550 pounds, sold for $3,929,677.06, or an official average of 25.36 cents per pound, for the season to date.

The average to date compares with 15.62 cents per pound for the corresponding date last year; the 1941 figures showing an increase of 9.74 cents per pound.

With approximately a million pounds—probably more—on the floors today, all warehouses were being cleared in preparation for a big Friday sale tomorrow.

The quality of today's offerings was described as about in line with those earlier in the week. Although right much good tobacco was on the floors, much common tips and other low grades were keeping down the general quality of the offerings.

May Secure Local Teacher Of Bible

The Greenville Ministerial Alliance will hold a special meeting at the First Presbyterian Church study, Pitt and West Fifth streets, next Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The purpose of this meeting will be to discuss the matter of securing a teacher to teach the Bible in the high school of Greenville.

The Alliance has been requested by one church school and by the high school to consider this matter. This is nothing new in the state as many states and cities are now offering the Bible as a selective and volunteer study course taught by competent teachers who are recognized by the State Board of Education.

Persons concerned about this matter are requested to write Dr. Robert S. Boyd, president of the Alliance, or speak to any minister in the city who will attend this meeting and express their views.

Says Movie Censorship Curbs Peace Advocates

Charge Made By America First Committee Member

Washington, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee heard charges today that a privately-controlled censorship was being operated within the motion picture industry to "club" those who want to present the side of peace in America.

John F. Flynn, newspaper and magazine writer, made this accusation at hearings on a resolution by Senators Nye (R-N.D.) and Clark (D-Mo.) to investigate the alleged dissemination of war propaganda.

Flynn testified after Nye and Clark had engaged in heated controversy through public statements, with Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential nominee and movie industry counsel.

Nye accused Willkie of attempting to halt the investigation in an endeavor to "cover up the viciousness of the motion picture theaters." Willkie replied that Nye's charges were "laughable."

Flynn, a member of the America First Committee opposing American involvement in the war, declared that a monopolistic form of censorship had grown up within the movie industry through the establishment of a production code administration by the Will Hays organization.

Claim Lines Holding On All Fronts

Ten Villages Reported to Have Been Regained From Nazis In Drive Forward of From 10 to 12 Miles; Defenders Of Leningrad, Kiev And Odessa Declared To Be Holding Firm Against Foes

Moscow, Sept. 11.—(AP) New Red army advances as deep as 12 miles were reported in military dispatches today from the central front, where three Soviet wedges have been thrust into the German lines to relieve Nazi pressure on the flanks.

By last night one report said, Russian forces under Commander Eremenko had regained 10 villages and had driven forward roughly 10 to 12 miles, overcoming stubborn German resistance with the help of the Russian air force.

Soviet bombers, the army newspaper, Red Star, said, "do not allow Fascist troops a moment's respite, dropping tons of metal on their heads continuously, destroying tank columns and exterminating the enemy's manpower."

Prisoners, a communique reported, said epidemics of influenza and dysentery had struck among the invaders, "weary and exhausted by the unending fighting."

Officially, the situation was summed up in an early morning communique in the familiar generalization: "Our troops continue to fight stubbornly against the enemy along the entire front."

A midday communique reiterated almost word for word, the previous information.

Dispatches to Moscow reported continued pursuit westward of German troops defeated in the 26-day battle of Yermyn. The Soviet crossing of a river identified only as "B" in the same battle-torn region and routing of the 29th German infantry division in the Gornel area, 170 miles south of Smolensk.

Red army defenders of Leningrad, Kiev and Odessa are standing firm, dispatches said. The Soviet Information Bureau said 31 German planes were downed Tuesday in the Leningrad area, although 10 bombers got through at high altitudes and "several fires broke out in dwelling houses."

Kiev dispatches said all schools in that Ukrainian capital were open, theaters were crowded, 90 per cent of the provincial wheat crop was stored and sowing of winter grain had begun.

There was other evidence of the tenacity of Soviet purpose. Red army military schools maintained their courses despite war conditions, to turn out thousands of shaven-headed young officers to reinforce the front. Soviet planes scattered 20,000,000 propaganda leaflets at the rear of the German lines.

O'Neal Being Held In Fatal Accident

Fountain O'Neal, driver of a livestock truck owned by the Greenville Stockyards, Inc., which was involved in an accident in which Mrs. Virginia Dare Christopher was killed just north of the Tar river bridge about two weeks ago, was ordered held under bond of $2,000 at a coroner's inquest held in the court house last night.

Mrs. Christopher was riding in a car being driven by Tommie Jones. Jones was exonerated of any blame. The two cars collided head-on, almost instantly killing Mrs. Christopher and slightly injuring Tommie O'Neal. O'Neal was not injured in the collision.

Girl Scout Activities in Greenville

The Greenville Girl Scout Council held its first meeting of the school year Wednesday night. The council met in the Girl Scout office, with Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, commissioner, presiding.

Miss Helen Gillard, member of the Girl Scout national staff and camp adviser for this region, was a visitor at the meeting and talked to the council about the excellent possibilities which the newly acquired Girl Scout camp has for development.

Miss Gillard has been in Greenville for the past two days working with the camp committee, in planning the building of the camp. With several members of the committee she visited the camp site on Wednesday for further investigation before plans are drawn.

It has been the suggestion of the Regional Camp Bureau that the camp site be lived upon by Greenville Girl Scouts as much as possible this fall in order that Scouts may become familiar with the camp and, too, have a part in its planning. Several troop trips to the camp are scheduled for this fall by leaders and it is hoped that a public visiting day may soon be announced.

All Scouts of former Troop 2-A are asked to meet at the Girl Scout office this evening at 7:30. Complete reorganization of this troop will take place at this meeting.

Brownies of Pack No. 5, who attend the Training school, will meet Saturday morning at the Rotary club at 10 o'clock. Leaders of this Brownie Pack are Mrs. Marvin Sugg and Mrs. J. T. Cheatham.

"The man said he had heard many times that a cold would not stay on the same premises with a goat. When I arrived at his house a week later three of the goats were gamboling on the top of an automobile and a couple were wrecking a rose arbor—but the children's colds were gone." Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHAT MAKES A HERO?

The word courage comes from the Latin word which means heart. A courageous man is the man whose heart has not failed in the hour of danger—the man who has kept his heart secure when all the world was shaking about him. "Strange is the vigor in a brave man's soul," writes Thackeray. "The strength of his spirit, and his irresistible power are advantages which make him
master of fortune."

What incalculable bravery must be required today on European battle fields. Men fighting thousands of feet above the earth, or braving
the fury of armored monsters as they roll over the plains, certainly have within them as fine a quality of courage as men have possessed
in any age.

And yet the greatest courage is not the courage of the battle field.
One can be courageous for a moment, throwing himself violently upon an assaulting foe, and yet not be able to bear some personal sorrow or endure the painful attrition of life's daily annoyances. The bravest people are not the people who die bravely, but the people who live bravely. If an angel were to descend from heaven and separate the brave from the timid, we might find many mothers among his multitudinous choice and few soldiers he might hunt for his heroes up and down the city streets and through the office buildings and give scant attention to the battle fields.

Now that Greenville has won in the semi-finals of the baseball series and has entered into the championship series with Wilson, let's all take advantage of these few more days to see some real baseball and give all encouragement possible to the home team.

Again tobacco growers
who are now receiving good prices, are reminded that a good place to put some of their surplus cash is into Defense Bonds and Stamps. By so doing you will help the government in its defense program and at the same time be making a safe investment for yourself.

According to the statisticians the cost of living has increased but very little since the beginning of the war, but it is going to take more than such statements to make Mrs. American Housewife believe it when she does her shopping from day to day or week to week and finds constantly increasing prices.

If motorists in the eastern states would hold their driving speeds down to 45 miles per hour the savings in gasoline would be enough to offset the threatened shortage and our highways would be much safer for travel. A campaign for this more sensible speed limit on the highways would accomplish the worthwhile two-fold objective.

Two Way Stretch

Naturally it is not known in advance just what President Roosevelt will say in his address tonight, but it is a foregone conclusion that as usual he will not hold back his punches, and the world will know where we stand. The developments of the past few days have become more serious and have brought the war closer to America, but if it is a matter of war or bowing to the dictators, we are sure that the American people would rather follow the former course.
The world eagerly awaits
Mr. Roosevelt's talk tonight and real Americans hope that he will leave no room for conjecture as to what our intentions are regarding our future actions.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—The ill wind which made national defense necessary has blown more good into the lightless lives of some of the nation's blind than into any other quarter.
The movement which made this possible started years ago, when national defense was hardly a drop in the bucket. Then it was only an idea in the mind of man who is himself blind—Robert B. Irwin, executive director of the American Foundation of the Blind.

Irwin asked himself why, with Uncle Sam spending millions annually for supplies, some of this shouldn't go for parh... or products made by blind persons. Five years of hurling this question at Congress by Irwin and M. C. Migel, president of the foundation, finally resulted in passage of the Wagner-O'Day act, providing for the government purchase of blind-made products.
Until two years ago not a cent of government money had gone for things made by those unfortunates doomed to spend their days in darkness. But with the way open, Clifton E. Mack, director of procurement, launched on a program of

that the blind in any shop must do 75 per cent of the total work on all products and another requires all shops to keep "eye record cards" to be certain that all workers come under the Social Security Board definition of blindness.

Mack has become one of the most enthusiastic supporters of the program, not only because of the primary results, but the secondary as well.

"Providing the mere mechanism
of 'gainful occupation' is not sufficient," he says. "It is upon the bare framework of a sightless existence that we have given to the blind a full-fledged consciousness of living—a vital sense of partici-

In the first three months, orders distributed through the National Industries For The Blind to 22
workshops amounted to only $8,000.
The workshops had to re-gear their production to government needs.
Once that was done, it began to appear that blind workers would benefit by government orders amounting to about $800,000 a year.
Then came national defense and no story is more amazing than what happened in the workshops of the blind.
Now 53 "factories" manned by thousands of blind workers in 28 states are turning out products for Uncle Sam to the tune of about $3-000,000 a year. On Mack's desk lies an order from the army for 2,000-000 pillow slips. When Uncle Sam pays the bill it will put about $650-000 in the tills of the blind workshops.
The workshops' lists of products are expanding daily and now include oil-treated mops, dry mops, brooms and mattresses.
Precaution after precaution has had to be taken under the law to prevent persons from exploiting blind labor. One provision now is

As for the quality of the work, Mack refers to a visit he made to one of the workshops in Charlottesville, Va. There, he says, 40 blind men were working tirelessly on mattresses for the Army and Navy.
"These men," says Mack, "had been trained so expertly that not one mattress had to be rejected out of that order."
That is something of a record,
for Uncle Sam's specifications are strict and the eyes of the Army and Navy inspectors sharp for the most minute flaws.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York.—In a small, second hand book store in Third Avenue I picked up a volume of Shakespeare for a dime. It was the Yale Shakespeare series and its title was Othello, the Moor of Venice. On the fly leaf, in neat, precise hand, was the signature: Harold Hutchinson, 1927, Middle Mass-Room 28.
When I saw this I thought back to a chap I knew at the University of Virginia. His name was John Mc-Quade. McQuade was a transfer from Dartmouth. We came to know each other because we were members of the same fraternity and lived at the same house. One day, during the summer—this must have been in 1924—he introduced me to another Dartmouth man, a friend of his whose name was Harold Hutchinson. "Hal," he called him. We three went on a party together, then separated. Years later—that is to say, five or six years after we were out of school—someone asked me if I remembered Hal Hutchinson. I said, "yes." They said, "He's dead.
He was killed in an accident. In a plane. He crashed in a plane."
I tucked that information into a corner of my mind and did not use

it again until I saw Hal's name on the fly leaf of this book. It said,
"Harold Hutchinson, 1927, Middle Mass-Room 28." After giving it some thought, I am sure that '27 was his class, that room 28 in Middle Mass was where he lived at Dartmouth. If any member of his family sees this and would like to have this volume, I will be glad to forward it to them. It would be easy to check the signature and the marginal notes throughout the book which are numerous and probably in Hal's own hand.

The other night about 1:30 I went down into Greenwich Village and was watching the show in El Chico when a grey, short-haired cat of ambiguous ancestry appeared suddenly out of nowhere, trotted across the floor and disappeared
behind the piano on the bandstand,
where the orchestra was busily playing a flamenco dance. The pianist never batted an eye, nor did any of the players or the actors.
"Did you see what I saw?" I asked Ben Collada, my host.
"That was Smoky," replied Ben.
"She's got five kittens behind that piano."
Later after the show, the pianist conveniently got up so that I could squeeze behind the piano and have a look. The five little fellows were busily taking a midnight feed. They were about a week old. They were born right there on the bandstand.
Ben provided Miss Smoky with a nice big roomy box upstairs in the office, but she would have none of it. As fast as the kittens were taking upstairs she would seize them by the nape of the neck and hustle
them back downstairs.
"That settled it," declared Ben.
"She wants them back of that piano and there they're going to stay."
"What are you going to do with them," I asked him. "Keep 'em," he replied. "There are only five of the little kittens; besides, I like cats."

Smoky already has her own feeding routine worked out nicely. She just strolls into the chef and mews.
He feeds her on chicken, ham and cream.

Still in a vacation mood? Hold it! Why not keep those restful summer habits of easy cooking
all winter? You can, and serve tasty nourishing meals, too, if you stock your pantry with Canned Meats, ready to heat

only quality canned meats can take the place of home-cooked ones. So ask for Wilson's Cer-

Corned Beef Hash, for example, is more richly meated,
made of choicer ingredients than the ordinary kind. Always keep it on hand.

PRACTICE WAR IN LOUISIANA

Theater of practice war for 500,000 of the men Uncle Sam has been melding into an army will be the 16,000 square miles of Louisiana and Texas you see here - dotted with swamps and cut up by rivers and bayous. ... yet assigned to position are new armored forces and an assault air arm, but observers believe they will be placed at the last minute with the Second Army, shown at the top.

By JOHN GROVER
AP Feature Service Writer
Official secrecy hides details of the U.S. Army maneuvers which will engage 500,000 men in Louisiana in mid-September. It's deliberate secrecy, to make the war games realistic. Army brass hats are playing hush-hush to test the new troops under near-to-war conditions. However, from knowledge of terrain, from the composition of the two armies, and from significant details of training, it's possible to risk a broad guess on the probable course the maneuvers will take.

The mock war will be fought over a vast area in north central Louisiana and east Texas. Most of it's scrub pineland, liberally dotted with swamps. Rivers and bayous cut up the whole area. When it rains - and August and September are rainy months there - the dry ground turns to viscous goo that even stops tanks. (It did in the 1940 maneuvers.)

What does that mean? Heavy transport and mechanized weapons will be tied pretty close to the better roads.

That dependence on the road system spotlights the bridges. And bridges are the vulnerable points in a road network, and this maneuver area is chock full of bridges. It's going to be a headache for opposing army commanders to protect their river crossings. Highway junctions are going to be primary targets, too.

The composition of the two armies also gives a few clues to the potential trend of the maneuvers. Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, commander of the Second Army, has six divisions as his basic force. One is a cavalry division, two are the new "swiftees" (reorganized triangular divisions), and three are the old square divisions.

Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger has ten divisions, one cavalry, one a stream-liner, and the rest square divisions.

In addition, the general staff has designated the new armored forces and air forces "headquarters troops". These are to be assigned to one or the other army at the very last minute. It's part of the general secrecy. However, there are good reasons to believe that the armored forces will be assigned to Gen. Lear's second army, together with the assault aviation.

Several months ago GHQ ordered Gen. Krueger to form and train some special, experimental anti-tank forces. These provisional units will be larger than the anti-tank battalions normally carried. They will not be defensive units, but have been designed expressly to hunt out and attack opposing tank forces.

It's unlikely GHQ would put these special forces and the new armored divisions on the same side. It does not add up. If the anti-tankers and the armored forces are to get the maximum benefit of the training, they've got to be on opposing sides. So it's indicated that Gen. Lear gets the armored forces, as Gen. Krueger already has the special anti-tank outfits. The size of the basic forces - ten divisions to six - also lends credence to this belief, because assigning the tank forces to Gen. Krueger would still further increase his numerical superiority.

There has been no "tipoff" on the assignment of the aviation units to either side. It's a cinch both sides will have adequate reconnaissance planes. A modern army can't "see" without them. But whether Gen. Lear will get the bulk of the aviation for plane-and-tank team assaults, or Gen. Krueger will get it, so GHQ can see what planes and tanks do against each other is anybody's guess.

What does this add up to? Gen. Lear will have the swifter forces, a preponderance of mechanized weapons, but he'll be more tied to the roads if wet weather sets in in the bayou country as expected.

Gen. Krueger will have a numerically superior force, and an advantage in that his foot soldiers can slog through roadless country for raids or for mass action where tanks can't go.

Both sides have adequate rail and highway transport in their back areas, for bringing up supplies.

There's the picture. Mapping it out, the parallel between the Russo-German conflict in the swamp country of the northern front is inescapable.

Will Gen. Krueger defend against his faster foe by letting mechanized stuff throng on the roads and pinching it off before the support infantry gets up - as the Russians did in many instances.

Will Gen. Lear attempt encircling action to surround and chew up segments of the opposing army, as the mechanized Germans did? That's the whole picture of the coming maneuvers. It pits a fast, hard-hitting, mechanized force against a slower, heavier force - on terrain that puts mechanized equipment at a disadvantage in wet weather.

What develops in the battle of the bayous and bridges will tell the country what sort of a new army we've got after a year of emergency training.

Greenville And Wilson To Open Finals Here Tonight

TELLER HURLS 5 TO 3 VICTORY

Kee And Talley Slated for Mound Duty Tonight

Bill Teller's masterful hurling and Harry Jenkins' timely first-inning, three-run triple in New Bern last night gave the Greenvilles their fourth win of the series over the Bears, the locals winning the sixth game 5-3.

It was Teller's second victory of the series, the right-hander having won in New Bern last Saturday night. The other two Greenville victories were hurled by Lefty Joe Long.

The finals will start tonight, the first game to be played at Guy Smith park. Manager Rube Wilson said he would star Kee on the mound for the locals, while Crow comes from Wilson that Joe Talley would get the call.

In hurling last night's victory, Teller was nicked for 12 hits, but they were so well scattered he was seldom in trouble and when men were on bases he appeared to be all the more effective.

Greenville got only nine hits, but the Greenvilles made the most of them.

The locals were never behind and after getting four in the first inning seemed determined to hold the lead. With the exception of miscues on two hard plays by Pierce, Teller received almost perfect backing and double plays helped him on two occasions.

In the first Kracke walked, Pierce went out to left center, Skipper Rube doubled and Scagg walked, filling the bases. Harry Jenkins then came through with a timely triple, to bring in all three men. Jenkins later scored on Crow's single.

Greenville added one more in the third. With three men on base and Overton at bat, Manager Doc Smith pulled Taylor and put in Clower. Before the new hurler could get settled he walked Overton to force in one run.

New Bern got single runs in the

The name-Reiffenach stands for the dazzling peak in circus riding—absolutely bareback supremacy the world over.

From one part of the globe to the other, the Reiffenach Troupe of bareback riding stars are known as the last word in sensational equestrian feats, and that is why this

A new background is provided this year by the blue and gold colored canvas of the restyled big top, which insures the same lighting both afternoon and night. The performances are scheduled for 2 and 8 p. m. with the gates opening one hour earlier in each instance.

It's Odd But It's Science

New Haven, Conn.—Yale's chimpanzees, which rate closest to human beings among the animals, give some evidence that man rather than nature invented right-handedness.

Glen Finch of the Yale Primate Laboratories in 24,000 individual chimp tests found that the animals were almost equally divided between left-handed and right-handed.

He used 30 animals, each of which was given 800 trials. They reached one hand or the other out of a hole in a cage to get food. Sometimes it was merely a matter of just sticking out a fist and grabbing.

But in other tests, the outstretched fist had to do some expert opening of a closed metal box to get the food.

Either way made no difference to the chimps. Most of them were either left-handed or right-handed and stayed that way. Nine of the animals used the right hand more than 90 per cent of the time. Nine others used the left more than 90 per cent.

Five of them were decidedly ambidexterous. Ten of the animals showed ability to switch to the other hand when they wanted to. The rest did not try switching. All except two of the chimpanzees were adults.

FOR THE LOVE OF PAM

By VIVIEN GREY

YESTERDAY: Partly because of a bet with Antonio, the orchestra leader, but mostly because he wanted to see Pam Quelleron again, Jerry Winthrop has asked her to a dance at Casa Marina. Jerry's mother has been very nice to Pamela, his sister has been rude, and now Freda Barington, whom Jerry has known a long time, is talking with him about his new friend.

Chapter Four Freda's Ring

"You might tell me who she is," Freda said finally.

Jerry turned to search the girl's face. There had been something in her voice that caught his attention. Freda Barington was the girl his name had always been linked with. He had squirmed her to dances and made gay whirls of night clubs with her. And somehow she always showed up at the places his family spent their winters.

Freda and her mother, the indulgent and very rich Toni Barington, invariably arrived a few days after the Winthropes had settled in winter quarters. It had been a taken-for-granted thing, and Freda was a nice girl, Jerry admitted. She had been a grand playmate.

Jerry glanced at her now and was acutely aware of the large square diamond on the third finger of her left hand. His diamond. He remembered the day he got it for her.

He had driven Freda and her mother back to their apartment in New York after a week-end with his mother in Westchester. Mrs. Barington wanted to pick up a bracelet she was having repaired at a fashionable jeweler's. Freda was intrigued by the diamond display and the clerk, recognizing her as the daughter of one of the firm's best customers, got out the ring that interested Freda most.

Freda slipped it on her finger and turned delightedly to Jerry.

"Look, darlings! I just ache with envy of the girl who'll get this!" Mrs. Barington had breezed alone just then. Her blithe, careless glance had come from Freda to Jerry.

"Well, why not now, Jerry?" she had asked lightly.

Freda's eyes had questioned his for a full minute.

"Why not?" from Jerry.

So Freda kept the ring and the price of it was put on Jerry's father's account.

Freda took off the ring and there on Fifth Avenue insisted Jerry make a ceremony of putting it on her finger.

"Now kiss me!" she commanded imperiously.

Jerry kissed her.

"You two darlings! Idiots!" Mrs. Barington said, laughing gently.

And people passing turned to look and smile at the handsome young couple so obviously in love.

Next day when he got home he had told his mother about giving Freda the ring.

"Oh, darling, I'm so glad!" she had stood on tiptoe then and kissed her tall, handsome son.

His mother and Toni Barington had been girlhood friends. Only Toni had been rich even then, as the only daughter of the owners of a prosperous glass factory at Shirley, Indiana. His mother liked Freda.

"Who is she, Freda?"

"Who is she, Jerry?" Freda's voice penetrated his thoughts.

"Her name is Pamela," Jerry hesitated, as if realizing for the first time that he knew little more about her than just her name.

"And she's the sweetest, loveliest thing in the world!" Freda finished for him, laughing. "Well, I suppose there are times when that's all a man needs know about a girl."

Dinner For Two

Her voice was light, but her eyes were on him with more than a casual glance.

"You haven't said a word to me Jerry," she continued. "You haven't even noticed the dress that I put on purposely for you. Mother made me buy it because she said you'd like it. Can't you put yourself out a little and say something nice to a girl once in a while?"

Jerry looked at her then. Freda was beautiful in a sleek, smooth way. She was always dramatic as to dress.

"You're magnificent tonight, Freda," he said obediently.

"There! That's much better!" she smiled. "And now aren't you going to ask me to dance?"

"Of course, Freda."

They danced. Then Jerry was beset by Pam, claiming her from the little group of young men milling about her.

He insisted upon dinner at the hotel. "You owe me that," he urged when Pam suggested home. "For all the time I've let you spend with these other fellows."

Pam said then she must telephone Melita. She always let Melita know when she wouldn't be home for dinner so Melita would not wait and snore her own evening.

Jerry smiled whimsically. "All right," he said. "You've got some quaint tricks, but I like them." And he did, he reflected, as he slipped the coin in the box for her and waited while she talked.

She was so refreshingly different. So sincere and considerate with everyone. That was part of it, he thought. That was the thing that was reaching out and taking hold of his heart. Her beauty alone couldn't have done it. He had seen hundreds of beautiful girls. It was that sweet graciousness, that unselfishness running like a bright thread through all the pattern of her living, that drew him to Pam. It was a golden chain linking him to her life. And he was glad.

There were no more unhappy incidents that evening. Jerry's mother stopped a moment at their table but declined Jerry's invitation to dine with them.

"I know young people like to be alone," she said. "I won't spoil this for you." And then went on to another table.

"She's sweet." Pam said a trace wistfully, recalling her own mother.

"Adele's swell," Jerry was looking thoughtfully at his mother, reflecting that if she knew what he did about Pam she would not feel their time alone together was to be so short that she might spoil something just by having dinner with them. It had been a rather generous

The Russo-German War Front

This map illustrates the claims of Russians and Germans as fighting on the eastern front continued with growing fury. Moscow said the defenders of Lenin grad (1) were standing firm but Berlin claimed the city was under fire of heavy German artillery and said the fall of the city was only a matter of time. Germans acknowledged sharp Russian counter-attacks on the central front (2). Russians claimed German attempts to cross the Dnieper river (3) were repulsed with heavy losses and that defenders of Odessa (4) were holding their own against Axis assaults.

gesture on the part of his mother, yet it gave him a clue to her belief regarding himself and Pam.

It was evident she thought it was to be an affair of short duration.

The Kiss

The fragrant dark of Florida night was vaguely silvered by moonlight when Pam and Jerry finally walked down the curving drive of the hotel toward Jerry's car.

Pam was glad Jerry drove slowly through the deserted streets, white under the pale moon. She was glad he didn't talk much. She had never ceased to love her home town, Key West. She loved the quaint charm of it. Friendly little houses, their shabbiness turned to beauty by the shadows, nestled close as if to give some long-gone seafarer's wife neighborly companionship even while she scrubbed the wide floorboards of her kitchen or cooked the rich quava to richer preserves.

Won't Somebody Scrub My Back?

To be there with the things she sad known and loved—and Jerry beside her—was happiness enough.

And Jerry, too, was thinking. He was thinking of Pam and Freda. Freda with her sleek, smooth beauty. But that wasn't the kind of beauty he wanted. There had been dozens of girls dancing there at the hotel who had Freda's sort of beauty. It was available at exclusive stores in little jars, in pretty bottles, in dresses and gadgets that bore names representative of class and distinction. It was purely and wholly of the exterior. And it left him cold.

While Pam—he dared look for an instant at her lovely young face beside him, dream-swept, exalted, her soft brown eyes and gently tanned skin, a startlingly lovely note against the gold of her hair. Her beauty was real. Something deep from within. Like a lamp burning steadily. Like a candle lighted in a cottage window. Her beauty was real and natural. It had nothing to do with things handed over the counters of shops.

They reached Pam's home, with its lawns and garden much larger than most of its neighbors and its chimney that rose from a spacious fireplace.

It had been a happy evening, in spite of Lenore's cruel remarks. As a family, the Quellerons had always made a point of trying to forget unpleasant things. Pam still kept to that philosophy. It had been one of the happiest evenings she had known since she had been alone. The thought frightened her cause Jerry was, after all, a winter man. She must dismiss him quickly.

With a swift, audacious gesture, she took one of the violets from her dress, kissed the tip of her finger, touched the kiss to the violet and gave it to Jerry.

"There! That's good-night and thank you for a lovely young face beside me, dream-swept, exalted, her soft brown eyes and gently tanned skin, a startlingly lovely note against the gold of her hair. Her beauty was real. Something deep from within. Like a lamp burning steadily. Like a candle lighted in a cottage window. Her beauty was real and natural. It had nothing to do with things handed over the counters of shops.

against his heart.

"That cute," he said as he kissed her.

Pam drew back, hurt and confused.

"Don't look at me like that, Pam," he said. "I mean so much that I can't say now. Things that should not make you unhappy, dear."

But still Pam drew back. "Don't," she said softly, in a hurt little voice. "Please don't say anything more."

"Why, Pam? Is there someone else?"

"No," she answered thoughtfully. "After all, you're a winter man."

"Pam!" He claimed her hands with a sort of humble reverence. "I see what you mean. But this is different. Please try to believe me. You're going to have to some day."

N.Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Specialized rallying tendencies seeped into the stock market today as weak commodities of yesterday recouped some losses. While gains of fractions to a point where in the majority near the fourth hour, most leaders were at a standstill. Dealings broadened at times. Wall Street inclined to move carefully, brokers said, pending the President's broadcast tonight.

Proper Livestock Feeding Important

Prevailing prices of cattle, hogs and sheep should encourage producers to give more care to livestock according to a statement issued today at the offices of County Agent R. R. Bennett. "Almost every day we visit farms where hogs and other animals are showing feed, vitamin and mineral deficiencies which can be easily controlled by proper feeds and minerals," the statement set forth. The memorandum added that a mineral mixture of 10 pounds of calcitic lime (ground limestone) five pounds of steamed bone meal and two pounds of salt should be before hogs at all times. In purchasing bone meal farmers were advised to be sure to get steamed instead of raw bone meal. Raw bone meal, it was explained is very dangerous to use as it carries various disease germs. For cattle, farmers were advised to use 40 pounds of steamed bone meal, 40 pounds of calcitic lime and 40 pounds of salt as a mixture. It was further stated that a mixture of the following small grains sown now will add an abundance of grazing to the feed program: two bushels of oats (Fulgur, Cokers, 32-1 and Lee), one bushel of barley (beardless-Tenn. No. 6), one-half bushel of wheat (redheart or purple straw), or one-half bushel of rye (abruzzo) per acre.

Kiwanians Return From Convention

The local delegation representing the Greenville Kiwanis club at the district convention held at Myrtle Beach this week have returned to the city and report a most successful meeting. Those attending from here were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bundy, D. C. Moore, Jr., Fred M. Stokes and his daughter, Dorothy, who represented this city in the bathing beauty contest.

J. Maryon Saunders of Chapel Hill, alumni secretary of the University of North Carolina since 1928, was elected district governor, a position for which W. J. Bundy had been talked. Aaron Goldberg of the Wilmington club was named lieutenant governor of the Seventh Division, succeeding T. Frank Jones of Goldsboro. The seventh division won the award for having received the best publicity during the past year.

Governor Saunders was lieutenant governor of the Fifth Division during the past year. Approximately 500 Kiwanians attended the meeting.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 18 million of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging headache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 18 million of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
