LEAF FARMERS AHEAD OF 1940

More Money Paid Out Than In Entire 1940 Season

Maintaining the record high prices being paid on the Greenville tobacco market, an average of 36.76 cents per pound was paid here yesterday and today's prices were unofficially declared to be higher, especially for fancy leaf which is benefiting from new buying orders received today.

While all observers concede that the season will be short this year, more than a half million dollars more money has been paid out so far to date than for the entire 1940 season.

An estimated half million pounds of tobacco was on the floors at the start of sales this morning and it was being cleared this afternoon in preparation for tomorrow's sale.

Tuesday's offerings of 691,000 pounds brought to $30,903,760 the total for the season to date, compared with 27,886,980 pounds for the same number of selling days last year.

To date this season the market has averaged 29.33 cents or 12.55 cents per pound more than the corresponding figure of 16.78 for the comparable date a year ago.

DEFENSE LEVY TAKES EFFECT IN U. S. TODAY

Heaviest Taxes In American History Hit John Public

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The heaviest taxes in American history—double those of the World War era—took their first big handful of cash from the public's pocketbook today, and it was only the beginning.

Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The heaviest taxes in American history—double those of the World War era—took their first big handful of cash from the public's pocketbook today, and it was only the beginning.

The new excise levies which became effective at midnight gave consumers their initial—though incomplete—taste of what the recently passed defense revenue tax bill is going to mean in dollars and cents.

Although the Treasury Department is counting on the excise taxes for the pretty penny of $3,000,000 a day, they represent only a small part of the whole revenue program which is expected to raise about $13,000,000,000 a year.

Yet to come is the day of reckoning on the new income and excess profits taxes, already in effect and applying to 1941 returns.

The new order of taxes contrasted with the supposedly burdensome levies of the World War era, which yielded only $6,694,000,000 in their banner year.

In 1918, income tax exemptions were $2,000 for a family head and $1,000 for a single person.

The corporation income tax in 1918 was six per cent, and now is 21 to 31 per cent.

The excess profits tax on corporations has been upped from a range of eight to 60 per cent to a bracket of 35 to 90 per cent.

Liquor that was nicked $2.20 a gallon when the country sang "Over There" now contributes $4. The beer tax has jumped from $3 to $6 a barrel.

NAZI COASTAL CITIES BOMBED

RAF Bombers Leave Fires In Hamburg And Stettin

LONDON, Oct. 1.—(AP)—British bombers for the second night in succession blasted the north German ports of Hamburg and Stettin and left many large fires burning among docks and industrial quarters of both cities.

The Royal Air Force struck also at several strategic points in German-occupied France, and then by daylight today roared out again to Dunkerque and Calais.

While the RAF was thus unusually active, German bombers pounded sharply at five northeastern British towns for hours last night in an attack greater than any this country has had recently.

(Informed Germans said that Newcastle, Ramsgate, Aberdeen and Hull were attacked, along with airports elsewhere.)

New Excise Taxes Become Effective

Excise taxes levied under the recently enacted national defense revenue program went into effect today and the public began to feel the effects immediately.

Anyone going to a movie had to pay the extra levy. It also was applied to bus or train tickets, went into effect immediately upon liquor and local telephones.

While the merchandise taxes will be levied on goods sold in the 10th, 11th and 12th grades and in a full credit course on the same basis as any other course in high school.

JAPAN FORCES TO WITHDRAW

Shanghai, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Japanese military headquarters in Hunan province announced today that Japanese forces were withdrawing tomorrow from Changsha, the provincial capital, because the "purpose of the campaign has been accomplished."

There were indications that the withdrawal already had begun, for Clark Lee, Associated Press reporter who flew over Changsha in a Japanese army plane yesterday, saw Japanese columns moving northward from the city, which the Japanese said they captured last Saturday.

Previously the Japanese had announced their withdrawal from Chucow, strategic railway junction 30 miles south of Changsha, asserting their thrust there had accomplished its purpose.

The Chinese never have admitted the loss of Changsha and latest Chungking advices told of Chinese military claims that reinforcements hurried into the Changsha campaign by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek were cutting Japanese communications with their base at Yochow, 100 miles north of Changsha.

CZECHS SLAIN NOW TOTAL 88

Secret Radio Declared To Have Called For Strike

Berlin, Oct. 1.—(AP)—German retaliation for Czech attempts to throw off Nazi rule has caused 88 lives in three days, 58 of them yesterday, the third anniversary of the Munich agreement which began the partition of Czechoslovakia, it was reported today.

Six persons were reported executed Sunday and 24 were shot by firing squads Monday.

It was announced that the 58 persons executed yesterday included Karl Capek, a retired colonel of the German army.

(A British broadcast quoted a secret Czech radio as having called urgently last night "for a general strike as a protest against the Nazi oppression.")

The executions were part of a program designed to wipe out unruly elements in the Bohemia-Moravia protectorate.

New York, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The German radio said today that four persons had been executed and a fifth sentenced to life in prison for sabotage and espionage in The Netherlands.

The broadcast said the sentences were ordered by special war courts under direction of the German commander-in-chief of the occupied country. One of the four executed had shot a German railway man without reason, it said, while the others originated and headed an espionage organization recently unearthed.

London, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Reuters said today that it had heard the Prague radio announce today that a state of emergency had been proclaimed in three more districts of the German protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia.

Six districts of the protectorate already were under a state of civil emergency decreed Sunday by the new German trouble-shooter, Reinhard Heydrich, within 24 hours after his appointment to suppress revolutionary outbreaks.

German Forces Reported To Be Approaching Big Industrial City Of Kharkov On Southern Front; Soviets Admit Fall Of Poltava Southwest Of Kharkov, But Declare New Lines Forming

By The Associated Press. German siege armies attacking Leningrad have lost 100,000 men on the south and southwest approaches of the old Czarist capital, while Rumanian losses in the siege of Odessa, Black sea port, have reached at total of 160,000 troops, the Russians reported today.

Red Star, Soviet army newspaper, said "enormous German losses in Estonia and in the direction of Novgorod" were not included in the Leningrad estimate.

On the southern front, German military dispatches reported that Nazi troops were approaching the big industrial city of Kharkov, in the heart of the Donets river basin, which lies almost at the eastern border of the Ukraine republic.

DNE, official German news agency, said Nazi files "taking part in ground fighting" around Kharkov blasted a railway network and demolished 33 trains filled with Soviet army supplies.

Kharkov, a city of 554,000 population, is a center of smelting, metallurgical and other industries.

The Russians, admitting the fall of historic Poltava, 80 miles southwest of Kharkov, where Peter the Great routed the Swedish invaders of Charles, XII, in 1709, declared that Soviet troops were forming along the bank of the Voronka river to block the Nazi onslaught toward Kharkov.

Capture of Poltava, a city of 130,000 on the west bank of the Voronka river, was acknowledged in the Red Army's morning bulletin. The Germans said it fell along with Kiev, the Ukraine capital, on Sept. 18.

Soviet officials reported that large-scale fighting raged with unabating fury at the gateway to the Crimea peninsula. Sources reaching London said German assault troops had reached a point about seven miles south of Feokop, a city at the top of the Crimean isthmus, where the Russians have taken a stand behind extensive mine fields.

The Finnish allies of Germany announced that the Russians had suffered a reverse in the north. The Finns officially announced capture of the eastern Karelian city of Petrozavodsk, about 160 miles air-line northeast of Leningrad and on the vital Leningrad-Murmansk railroad.

The What Next Co-ed Fashions Already Are Here

Full skirted, flower-bordered and wrapped-around—that's the first robe choice of the girl who can have two. Gloria Jean, singing star goes lavish in satin. Singing red pippings pick up the floral colors and contrast the white ground.

By HELEN FORRIST HALL (AP Fashion Editor)
It's our last gasp on back-to-schoolers.
Now they're ringing the cash registers with colored cotton panties! Having weighed the item of the winter coat, laid in a supply of colorful campus togs and goofy accessories, you might think they'd relax on the undie topic. But no. They know what they want, they get it, and they're willing to pay.

Beneath their visible clothing, the co-ed want smooth-fitting underwear, and it must be either neutral or keyed to their campus clothes in color and theme. Durability and the laundry problem figure heavily in the fabric selection.

Girdles Come In Checks, Too!
A girdle is generally of one- or two-way stretch elastic. Very pliable, very brief. Nylon is a magic word and the girls definitely like detachable garters. They'll toss in extra coin for the garment they want. Girls with less lithe figures like the added control cotton fabrics give—such as sheeting, pinwheel corduroy and broadcloth.

Picking up their campus plaids and checks are girdles in repeat, usually cotton, for the lucky ones who can buy more than one foundation at a time. Whatever the choice, bras must go with it.

Pajamas follow the smooth, brief lines of the girdles and are made of good rayon or cotton mesh or lisle. The lises, at around 50 cents, come in a choice of colors—navy, red and aqua included—thereby getting along with our exacting girls because they can be matched to their dresses and skirts. Panties that match, simple, form-fitting slips are liked. Blue is high fashion in solid colors.

Pajama Description: Snaazy
But when it comes to nightshirts and pajamas—woopee! They're plaid still—they're checked—they're striped—still, not everything goes. Elastic bands are out. Styles include butcher boy, lumberjack, blazer, with straight-hanging nightshirts a runner-up. And all snaazy. A plain white flannel nightshirt is patterned after grandmother's, with long sleeves and embroidered frill for whimsy.

But a gal gets dramatic when it comes to robes. If she can have more than one, she'll fall for a beflowered or plaid or striped affair, usually quilted. If one must do, she will still choose a sweeping skirt in a wrap-around model, but generally in a solid color. A polo coat type, in polo beige, is a favorite. The cloth, with short, bristly fleece, looks, (as one girl put it) like "my uncle's hair."

Now, if you think the girls have left anything undone, just take a look into their rooms when they get set. You'll find they've done them up in practical cottons, with curtains and spreads that can be mailed home in the old laundry box for freshening.

Yes, the girls have taken over the fashion pages, the department stores and have stepped smack into the designers' sacred precincts. They've handled their budgets well, and they seem to be handling business well.

Only a few years ago teen-agers were out of luck. Since such departments seldom paid, the choice of clothes was small. Today, thanks to the college girls' having taken things into their own pretty hands business is booming.

Some stores report that back-to-school sales are up as much as 100 per cent. It may be fear of advancing prices, but the season has got away to a flying start under the rule of the young.

their approval or disapproval. Of course, it goes without saying that no boy or girl will be compelled to take the course in the Bible, but that it is purely elective on a voluntary basis.

Represented at the meeting last night were the following churches: Pentecostal Holiness, Free Will Baptist, Catholic churches, St. Paul's Episcopal, Immanuel Baptist, Memorial Baptist, Presbyterian, Jarvis Memorial Methodist, Eighth Street Christian, and Lutheran.

The significant thing about the meeting last night was the absolute unanimity of opinion on the part of all present that this is one of the most important moves to come before the citizens of Greenville for a number of years and that nothing should be allowed to interfere with its success. This movement was started last year when the faculty of the high school went on record as favoring the idea of Biblical instruction and asking the School Board to encourage the movement. During the summer months the Greenville School Board passed a resolution approving the idea in general and asking the ministers of the city to begin to think and plan along this line. The ministers of the city accepted the challenge and have held a couple of meetings already in order to further the program.

 Mother Taker A Hand
 Mrs. Barrington, with some vague sense of uneasiness, dispensed with breakfast in bed, dispensed with breakfast entirely, as a matter of fact, as a tribute to the number of cocktails she'd had the night before. Not that Mrs. Barrington ever was guilty of over-indulgence. But cocktails had an unpleasant tendency to add curves to a figure already inclined to plumpness. She walked out to a bench on the lawn where Freda was sitting staring at the sea with unusual seriousness. She studied her daughter for a moment. There was something different about Freda.

"You know, Freda," she finally said with her usual directness, "I'm not too pleased about last night."

"What do you mean, Mother? Last night?" Freda seemed to be coming out of a dream.

"You know very well what I mean, Freda. You're letting that little total girl get away with murder and, incidentally, with Jerry Winthrop."

"So what?" Freda asked quietly. "So do something about it. And don't use that sort of language to me!"

"I didn't mean to offend you, Mother!" Freda turned to her mother with respectful attention. "It was just that I was wondering what a girl could do when a man found he loved someone else?"

"What are you talking about?"

"About Jerry and Pam Quelleron," Freda answered very calmly, as if she had faced the thing for so long that there was no more surprise about it.

"Freda, please sit up! You're trying to say into simple English! I'm in no mood for conundrums this morning."

"Jerry's in love with her, Mother. In love with Pam Quelleron." Freda spoke without any dramatic emphasis. The expression of her mother's face startled her. "Well, don't matter? Leo was everything an intelligent girl could want in the man she married.

He had charm and personality, a worthwhile purpose in life, the right ideals. Yet, when she thought of saying yes, it was Jerry's name that followed. It was Jerry's name that whispered in her heart.

"Pam, you know I love you," Leo was saying. "I think I've been telling you that all my life. And I'll want to tell it to you all the rest of my life in all of the ways I can think of."

"Leo"—Pam's voice was low—"I wish I could say yes. Oh, I wish I could! I want to more than anything else in the world. But I can't say it honestly. And I know you'd want it no other way. If we can't begin our lives with an honest base—"

"She paused."

"It's Winthrop, isn't it?"

"Yes," she admitted reluctantly, "and yet I can hardly be sure even of that. Oh, Leo, what am I to do? Is there something wrong with me that I'm so weak and undecided? Jerry isn't any of the things I admire and respect in a man. He has only one thing to recommend him—his natural kindness and goodness to every living thing. I've seen him buy food for hungry dogs. I've seen him insist that boys who were teasing a helpless mouse put it out of the way quickly and mercifully. He has kindness, but so little else that I've always thought I must demand of a man I might marry. And you, Leo, have everything. Everything. Yes, I can't say yes to you. Not honestly—yet, Leo."

"I see," Leo said quietly. "I see. And it's your happiness that's most important after all."

Exciting? You bet, and fun too. Something doing all the time. Real he-man's stuff. Boxing. Baseball. Football. Swimming. AND MOVIES... previews, too!

ENROLL IN THE NAVAL RESERVE
 ... BE RELEASED AFTER THE EMERGENCY

The Secretary of the Navy has announced:—"All men now enlisting in the Naval Reserve will be retained on active Navy duty throughout the period of the national emergency, but they will be released to inactive duty as soon after the emergency as their services can be spared, regardless of the length of time remaining in their enlistment."

Remember—the regular Navy and Naval Reserve offer you the same travel, training, promotions, pay increases. Physical requirements in the Naval Reserve are more liberal.

"Freda, you're behaving like a fool!" Mrs. Barrington's voice was the one discordant note in a perfect setting. The sea, out beyond the gold of the sand, was a clear turquoise. Lawns, sweeping in all directions around them, were soft green velvet, set with the fragrant jewels of flower gardens. Trees made lovely patterns of light and shade. Mrs. Barrington went on: "If you're telling me that you and Jerry are breaking up, I won't have it. I won't, I say!"

Freda turned to her mother, a question in her eyes.

"You can't embarrass me this way, Freda. I won't let you do this to me."

"I think it would be more embarrassing to try to hold a man against his will."

"You're talking like an idiot! No man ever wants to get married. It's a woman's business to make him think he does. And then, after it's all over, it always turns out all right. They not only put up with it; they like it."

"Mother, forgive me, but that's dark-age talk. Besides, I have the feeling that I'm doing something decent and thoughtful and generous for a change. And you've no idea what a nice feeling it is. I think Pam deserves Jerry. She'll make something of him. I need a man who's made something of himself."

They were silent for a moment. Then Freda continued thoughtfully:

"I haven't got it in my hands, this potter's clay and sculptor sort of stuff, when it comes to human beings. It's a little too big a job for me. I'm not interested in making the effort. But Pam is."

Mrs. Barrington stared at her daughter thoughtfully. There was something too definite, too final to argue further with. She asked finally:

"Has he asked you for the ring?"

"No. As a matter of fact, he's told me to keep that—just as a gift."

"That's nice." It came very sweetly from Mrs. Barrington as she looked out over the water where the benches were bright dots on the scene.

Freda laughed. "Mother, you're too transparent for words! Too, too delightful!"

"What do you mean?"

"Nothing, darling! Nothing at all!"

And then it was like Toni Barrington to say:

"I noticed that good-looking young doctor from the naval station gave you a rush at the party. Is he nice? Do you like him, Freda?"

"I think he's an exceptionally nice man," Freda said seriously, but inwardly she was smiling because she knew exactly what was in her mother's mind. Mrs. Barrington was happiest when she was engineering a romance. Freda knew Doctor Leo Shore would have to watch his step, or his next one would land him right into the middle of an alliance, the mechanism of which had been set in motion by the skillful Mrs. Barrington.

Freda made a mental note that she, too, would have to watch her step for this time it would have to be right. She had looked with some envy on Pam's courtship. It must be nice to sit back and let love come to you without any scheming of your own.

Proposal

Doctor Leo Shore had formed a habit of early morning walking. He was safe in leaving the post, at that time, when crises were generally over and patients were getting their best sleep. On the morning after the party on the Winthrop yacht his walk had a special purpose. He circled around through the park at the end of Division Street. Finally he turned in at the gate in the Quelleron picket fence.

"Leo!" There was a glad note in Pam's voice. "You're just in time for breakfast."

Melita, in the kitchen, heard the young doctor's voice accepting Pam's invitation. Her eyes warmed with a smile. Leo would make a perfect master for the big Quelleron house some day. She put three more eggs in the pan. Leo was big and husky. His appetite would be that way, too. More guava jelly was put in the old glass dish, and extra bread went into the toaster to brown.

It was apparent that there were things on young Shore's mind that morning, something more than the clamor of his chief surgeon there. He looked across at Pam in her crisp print dress. He tried to put his thoughts into words as they stood under the big pepper tree near the gate.

"Pam"—he was looking at her earnestly—"my trip to Washington had to do with a transfer next spring. I'm to go to the post in Panama. I'm to be chief surgeon there. I'd like to arrive there with my bride. Will I, Pam? You can tell me the answer to that." When she didn't answer immediately, he asked: "Pam, will you marry me before I go?"

Pamela Quelleron knew that through all of the rest of her life she would never be called on to make a more important decision; never would she be asked to answer a question that would mean so much in the shaping of her future. Steady, dependable Leo. Brilliant, capable Leo.

Her brain said definitely yes. But her heart was strangely silent. She was reminded of an old Turkish saying of her grandfather—he had probably picked it up in some foreign port or from some member of his crew: "Live with the head, but marry with the heart."

Marry with the heart. Could she do that? Could her head and her heart disagree on so important a

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

CHINESE COMMON SENSE
The Chinese teach their children that to get mad in an argument and strike one's opponent is virtually to disgrace one's family. Because, they reason, when you strike a blow under such circumstances, you admit that your ideas have given out. Since you are no longer able to overwhelm your opponent with logic, you slap his face or punch him on the jaw. When you do that, a good Chinese father tells his son, you have disgraced your family. You have lost face yourself and caused us to lose face. To lose an argument is bad enough, but to confess the fact to the world by striking your opponent, constitutes disgrace. When a Chinese boy gets into trouble, the authorities summon into court the boy's parents, his teacher, and the neighbors who live on either side of his father's home. Chinese philosophy holds that if a boy has done wrong, these people see in some measure involved in his crime. They should have taught him better. They should have seen to it that he was properly disciplined at the right time. They should have given him the benefit of their mature wisdom.

We may well keep our eyes on the Chinese people in the years which lie ahead. They give promise of eventually being one of the world's great nations. If they can keep their old patriarchal customs as they absorb certain benefits of modern civilization, they will emerge into a place of world leadership. They possess the spiritual qualities which make a nation great.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR YOUNG MEN

Attention is called to an advertisement of the Navy Department appearing in this issue addressed to young men between the ages of 17 and 31 who would like to serve their country in its present emergency and at the same time gain for themselves training for the future that would cost a great sum if procured anywhere outside the United States Navy. There are no doubt in this community, many young men who would have to get this training and receive pay while they are getting the training. To all such young men we extend an invitation to visit our office and talk it over, or mail in the coupon for full information on what the Navy has to offer them. There is no obligation on the part of the inquirer to join the Navy unless he so desires, after a full study of the matter.

upon them since they were old enough to read. We do feel, however, that the newspapers have been taken for granted so long that our people depend upon them without the full realization of just how valuable the newspaper is to them, their community and their nation.

Consider for a moment what this country would be like if for a brief period all newspapers were suspended. There would be no news forthcoming from anywhere, with the result that no one would know what was happening in his community, in the nation at large nor in the outside world. Under such circumstances there would be no public safeguards against encroachment upon the rights of individuals, with the result that the nation could be reduced to a virtual state of slavery. We don't think it is necessary to take the space to try to tell you of the virtues of newspapers and to enumerate the multitudinous services they perform. We think it is sufficient to point out to you, those patriots where there is a muzzled press or no press at all, for contrast with the freedom of our land.

It has truly been said that without light the people would perish, and in America the newspapers are the torch that furnishes that light and stand as a bulwark against the loss of our freedom to live our own lives.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinson

Washington—A list of this administration's one-time friends, appointees or otherwise favored persons who have become critical thorns in the administration's side would be longer than your arm. High up on that list is the genial gentleman from Virginia, Sen. Harry Byrd, who, after a year of comparative quiet while stringing along with the President's foreign policies, has busted loose again with one of the strongest denunciations of the defense production lag that has come from any Democratic quarter. Although it never was widely known and now is almost forgotten it was President Roosevelt who opened the door of the United States Senate for the former Virginia governor.

At one time, before the pre-nomination campaign of 1932, Byrd was Roosevelt's selection for chairman of the national Democratic committee. Byrd would have had the post, too, but John J. Raskob didn't resign as expected. After Roosevelt's first election, however, he was in position to bring Byrd to the Senate by appointing Virginia Senator Claude A. Swanson as secretary of the navy. Byrd then was appointed to succeed Swanson, and has held the seat ever since.

Opposing Pump-Priming
Senator Byrd hardly had taken his seat before his differences with the administration became apparent. As governor, he had balanced the Virginia budget and drastically reorganized the state government, much to the consternation and unhappiness of the bureaucrats.

Pump-priming with government funds wasn't his idea of the way to float the country out of the depression. Expansion of government through the establishment of many new bureaus and agencies wasn't his idea of economy. The new senator said so.

Byrd has been saying it ever since, and in such language that he almost always makes himself heard. This prodding of administration policies continued through the reorganization fights, the court bill fight, various relief expenditures, the NRA, the labor relations bill, and continued the fight against Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Almost always, Byrd drove his wedge at the weakest point. It hurt.

Therefore, it must have been some relief to administration leaders when the junior senator from Virginia went all out for the President's foreign policies. It must have lightened the load considerably for the men who carry the load on Capitol Hill to find one of the Senate's chief foes of spending in the administration camp during the scrap for those vast outlays for national defense.

Quiet Long Enough

They should have known that it was too good to last. About a year ago, Senator Byrd threw out a hint when he opened up on the small's pace with which defense production was getting under way. Then, according to his own statement, he kept quiet just to see if the snails would unravel by themselves.

He thinks they haven't. So now the apple king from Virginia (his apple orchards are among the largest in the country) and newspaper publisher (he has papers at Winchester and Harrisonburg) is at it again. His goal is elimination of waste in the defense effort; an approach to the all-out production which he feels the appropriations warrant; and a one-man defense production head.

You'll probably be hearing a lot from Byrd of Virginia in the months to come.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Oct. 1.—Nathan Yelton, secretary of the state School Commission, will not run for Congress from the Tenth district; but Joe Ervin of Charlotte (and a native of Burke county) will.

Mr. Yelton, not having announced that he will run, has not said he will not. He doesn't think that a bit necessary. It is a practical certainty, however, that he has lost all interest he ever had in, indeed, he ever had any in his own candidacy.

The very fact that Yelton is out, carries with it as a logical corollary the fact that Mr. Ervin will run. The School Commission man is pictured by reliable sources as being keenly interested in seeing to it that Mecklenburg does not elect one of its citizens who would fall completely to realize that there are other counties in the district. On the other hand, he is not against Mecklenburg or Charlotte just because they are Mecklenburg and Charlotte. He, therefore, is completely agreeable to such a candidate as Mr. Ervin.

This may sound a bit as though Mr. Yelton has the power to make or break any candidate in the tenth which of course isn't certain by any means—at least it hasn't been proved. He is, however, one of the outstanding figures in the tenth's counties outside Mecklenburg, and his attitude is typical of a large number of very influential citizens in these outland and upland regions. Mr. Yelton is represented as exploring the fact that his name has been dragged into the Congressional race so frequently, because he intends to abide very strictly by the injunction of Governor J. Melville Broughton to keep politics out of the school system.

This and That . . .

Tuesday your reporter wrote a "cost of living" story, in which it was stated that the price of bottled milk had not increased in Raleigh during the last year. On going home from work he found on the front porch a notice that, Effective October 1, the price would rise from 15 to 16 cents per quart for grade "A" pasteurized. All of which shows that there's no telling what will go up when. . . . Commissioner of Motor Vehicles T. Boddie Ward returned from a convention of motor vehicles officials in New Orleans "a better Tar Heel than ever," according to his own statement. . . . State and county health officials are not exactly worried, but they are stirred by the prevalence of diphtheria in many sections. With 53 reported cases, the disease lead all reportable ailments except whooping cough for the week ended September. The city of it, all the health officials agree, is that diphtheria is preventable practically one hundred per cent. If the people could be educated in innoculation. . . . To the bureau comes a publication "facts" from the Department of Conservation and Development, in which the state's resources in power, industry, transportation, labor, investment and opportunities are arrayed in word, diagram and sketch. . . . The state Department of Labor's reports show that the average of 1,195 furniture workers was paid in August at a rate of 43.2 cents per hour, but a release from the same department's wage and hour division says that the majority of furniture workers receive less than 40 cents an hour. The statements are not altogether incompatible, but taken together they seem a bit "confusing" though not "amazing." The school bus safety program is still suspended in midair between the School Commission and the Highway Safety Division, with indications the latter will eventually daddy it.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

Aboard Airliner Buccaneer (Miami Bound)—Twenty-four hours in New Orleans wasn't nearly enough. . . . It wasn't a drop in the bucket, but no canhelp. . . . At that, it wasn't 24 hours. . . . We were four hours late getting into N.O., having been grounded five hours by fog in Richmond. So, there was much ground to cover in a few brief hours. . . . Before I left, I did get around to see Estelle and LeRoy, my favorite dancers at the Blue Room at the Roosevelt. . . . It was like old times, for I have seen them many times in New York, and in my files are letters from them from South America, Italy, Germany, London, France. . . . I saw Rosita Rios, too, and heard her sing, though I did not get to talk with her. . . . Del Casino dropped by our table for a chat. . . . These are people whose names are well known along the dim-lit precincts of Broadway's nightlife.

About four o'clock in the morning I observed the tradition that would observe on a visit to Mecca. . . . I went down to the old French Market, newly-painted and air-conditioned, and had coffee and sour doughnuts. . . . Then I ambled along Decatur street, parallel with the river, and watched the old French Market come alive. . . . Crates of chickens cackling, but sleepily. . . . Negroes sorting huge fleets of watermelons on the curbs. . . . Berries and fruits. . . . Green vegetables and fish.

I sauntered on back to the corner of Jackson Square, where old Andrew sits astride his giant iron horse. Across the square was the Cabildo, home (some say) of the Spanish inquisition, home of the law, of rule and misuse, now a rendezvous of historic archives and treasures that testify to Louisiana's enchanting history. Through the high iron fence I could see the Cathedral of St. Louis. At that moment a great Eastern Airlines sleeper, with her running lights running strong, ploughed overhead, the hum of her motors wafter earthward by the soft gulf breeze.

I got into a cab then and returned to the St. Charles and to breakfast. There was packing to do, souvenirs to mail, and then the trip to the airport, perched beautifully and commandingly on the lips of Lake Pontchartrain.

So here we are now, seven thousand feet above sea level, with New Orleans receding and Miami coming up. I can still see the broad, yellow Mississippi—it's that clear today.

I Miami. I will go sailing in the Gulf Stream and try to outdo Ernest Hemingway, who holds the world's record. Unless I miss a guess, our stewards aren't long for this line. She will surely wind up in the movies. She is Miss Ann Taylor, of Jacksonville, named this year Miss Florida Aviation. It's her first week on the job.

'TRY MY NEW CONOCO Nth OIL THAT WON THE CERTIFIED DEATH-TEST IN DEATH VALLEY'

THEY SAY you can hardly get up a sweat in Death Valley; the heat's so dry. A red-hot desert, only worse—way below sea level. Some hotspot to give you a showdown on your motor oil. And that's just where they went and tested this new Conoco Nth oil I've got here for you right now. My crankiest customers go for it, and I've got lots of new trade by telling the straight-out certified mileage record of Conoco Nth oil, which lasted any amount longer than the 5 other big brands in the Death-Test. That's lasting to the Nth degree.

It was the same fair and square chance for all, because the cars were all the same, and first the Referee even had the new engines taken apart to make sure no oil got any edge. They were all on the same desert, hitting the same speed around a mile-a-minute. And just one single 5-quart fill of some one brand was in every crankcase—locked, so as not another drop got in. And when was the finish? Not till the one fill was so far gone the engine busted up. Imagine 6 new ones junked on purpose, BUT... this new Conoco Nth oil that people like, lasted 5,600-and-some miles longer than any other oil in the Death-Test.

That's certified. Conoco Nth outlasted one of them more than 8,200 miles!—mileage to the Nth degree.

"You want reasons for anything that important, and let me say this: any oil that you'd want for your engine today has been plenty refined to get rid of the bad things in oil. The only trouble is that this same swell refining can't help taking out some of the very best things! Out goes lots of good 'vim-and-vigor', except for Conoco being able to bring it back good and plenty with their Thialkener inhibitor that's in Conoco Nth motor oil—patented.

"And surest thing you know, this great new Nth oil is still made under the famous Conoco Germ Processed oil patent. So it will still give your engine good old OIL-PLATING, which can't all drain down from the working parts even the whole night long, and that's why OIL-PLATING is on guard against wear in advance! This same OIL-PLATING is just one more thing that made Conoco Nth oil last more than twice as long as some of those others in Death Valley.

"Sure, you don't try Death-Tests, or any other proving-ground tortures. So you'll still insist on draining at just the right times, depending on your car and how you use it. You can ask engineers, and so forth, or come and look at my official chart of when to drain. The way Conoco Nth lasted in Death Valley, you can know that every time I check your oil-level you won't be needing another quart or two! Better OIL-PLATE now with Conoco Nth oil!"

CERTIFIED I hereby certify that the Death Valley Test and related work were thoroughly and fairly conducted. Engine Destruction occurred in each case at the mileage stated.

WAKE AND NCS TO HEAD SOUTH

Deacons Play Furman; State Tackles Clemson Team

Wake Forest, Oct. 1.—The Deacons of Wake Forest journey into South Carolina Saturday for the first of their two-game invasion of the Palmetto state in two weeks. This coming Saturday they tangle with Furman's Purple Hurricane in Greenville and one week later it'll be the powerful Gamecocks of South Carolina in Columbia.

Both Furman and Wake Forest haven't fared so well against their major foes in the games already played—the Vols of Tennessee beat the Purple Hurricane 32-7 while Duke won from Wake 43-14—and it'll be a safe bet to figure that the Deacons and Furmanites won't be in any too peaceable state of mind when they clash Saturday night.

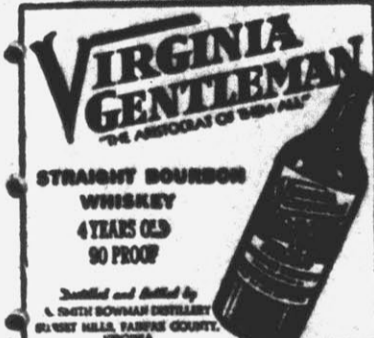

Raleigh, Oct. 1.—Being the "lamb" for the slaughter doesn't worry the North Carolina Wolfpack so very much as they get ready for Saturday afternoon's meeting in Charlotte with the terrific Tigers of Clemson.

Many times in recent years the State eleven has been doped to take a terrible beating from a greatly superior foe. In most of those instances the favored powerhouse has been forced to the limit to get a victory. It seems that Doc Newton's teams play their best ball when they have only a remote chance for victory.

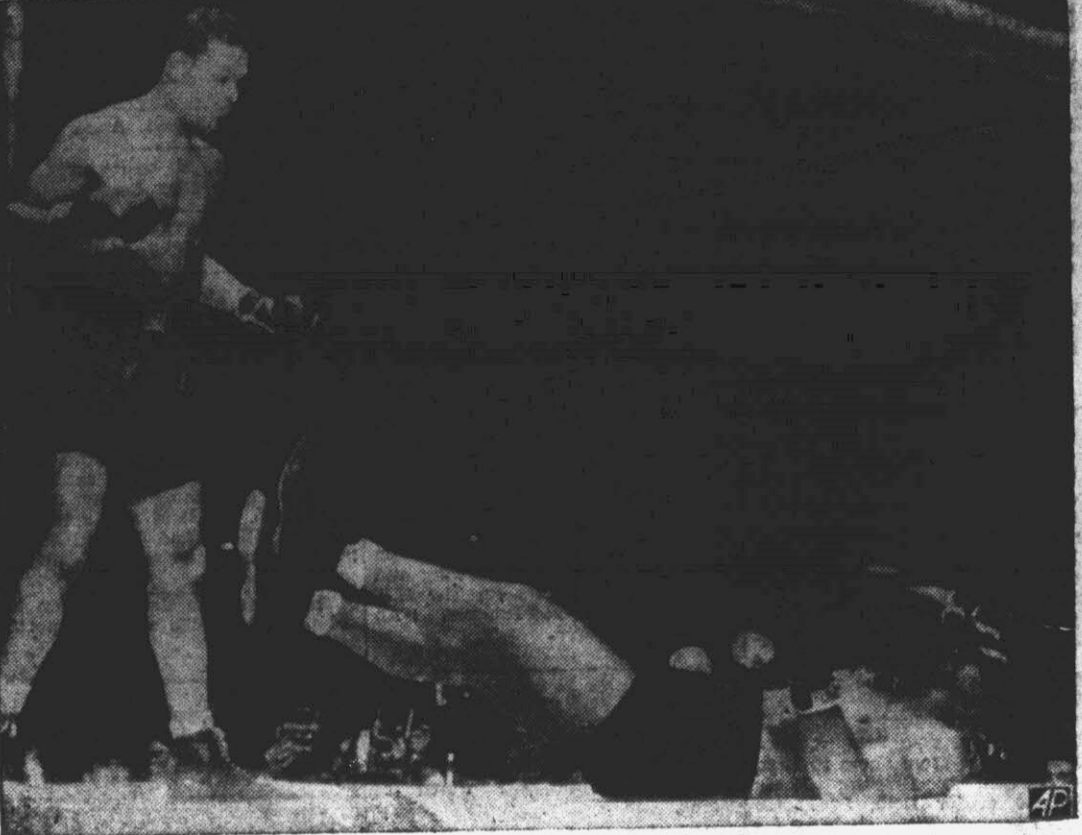

Exhibition Contest Won By Terror Team

Yesterday's WPA City grid loop exhibition game in the junior circuit was won by the West Greenville Terrors 15 to 6 over Third Street. This game was not official because of age limits.

Thursday's game between Training school Raiders and the West Greenville Terrors in the boys A loop will be played at West Greenville.

Nova Goes Down For Beginning Of The End

Lou Nova, gallant challenger from California, goes down on the canvas for a count of nine as Heavy-weight Champion Joe Louis waits for him to get up in the sixth round of their championship bout at the Polo Grounds, New York. And, Nova did get up, but only to take a fearful hammering from the champion who won by a technical knockout seconds later. End came at 2:59 of the sixth when Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the fight.

To Classify Players According To Weight

All boys now in the City WPA football league and those wishing to join will be required to be weighed and examined and they are requested to be at Keel's warehouse tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The Class A league will be composed of boys weighing from 80 to 120 pounds, while the Junior league will be made up of boys weighing between 80 and 110 pounds. In the Junior B league the weight limit will be 70 pounds.

It was decided to classify boys by weight as well as grades as in many instances boys in lower grades are much heavier than some in higher grades. This move was taken to prevent injuries.

Marines Escape Injuries.
Charleston, S. C., Sept. 30.—(AP) A contingent of Marines bound from the Parris Island base to New York escaped uninjured today when their Atlantic Coast Line troop train crashed into the rear of a freight near Oakley, 30 miles north of here, but the engineer of the train was killed and the fireman and baggage master were hurt.

Survey Discloses Boost Of 25 Percent In Groceries

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, Sept. 30.—Groceries in Raleigh have increased more than 25 per cent in price in the last year.

Your reporter makes no claim to being any part of a statistician and certainly has no desire to set himself up in opposition to the experts who recently announced that food prices have advanced about 20 per cent since the war started two years ago; but a realistic, if unscientific, survey of his own convinces that the increase is far more than that.

A day or so ago, this bureau released a story on North Carolina wages, in which it was pointed out that the average Tar Heel made $1.26 last month for every $1.00 he made in August, 1940. In the same story doubt was expressed that the $1.26 will buy more now than the $1.00 would buy then. With a view to finding out something about it, the reporter took a copy of last Friday's Raleigh Times and compared advertised prices of groceries with those advertised by identical stores for identical items on the corresponding Friday of September, 1940.

For 23 identical items it was discovered that the September 26, 1941 prices would be $5.67 compared with $4.45 for exactly the same 23 items at exactly the same stores on Friday, September 27, 1940.

In other words, it would take $1.27-1-2 cents to buy this year the same groceries $1.00 would have bought on the corresponding date last year.

Thus the 26 per cent increase in wages has been slightly more than overbalanced by the increase in grocery prices. At least that's true in Raleigh; and it is a fair inference that the same state of affairs exists in other North Carolina communities.

New Jazz Symphonette.
New York (AP)—Morton Gould is at work on a new composition, "American Symphonette Number Five," which he is writing to demonstrate the coming of age of jazz and its place in school music. The new work will be given a premiere by the Senior Symphony Orchestra of the High School of Music and Art, at its winter concert under the baton of Alexander Fischer.

Gold Diver Works.
Brigue, Switzerland (AP)—Gold has been discovered in the Val d'Anniviers by use of a diving rod. First operations yielded 100 grams of gold per ton of ore and a company has been formed to try to work the deposit as a profit. A large mine was developed at Gondo in the Simplon region at the beginning of the century, but it soon worked out with little profit.

If all buttons made in the U. S. in a year were distributed equally among the population, every person would have 187.

Most Defendants In Traffic Cases

Seven of the eight defendants to face trial at the afternoon session of Pitt County Court yesterday were white men and seven of the cases involved violation of highway regulations.

Willie Carr, the only Negro tried, tendered a plea of guilty to driving without proper license and brakes and was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon payment of costs.

Jarvis Jones was convicted of larceny and given a 60-day sentence, suspended upon payment of court costs and $7 to Willie Oakley.

Other cases tried, all involving highway law violations, were: Roy Morgan, drunk on the highway, pay costs; Floyd Morgan, driving drunk and without license, pay $50 fine, costs and license revoked 12 months; Ernest Tom Tripp, driving drunk and also with improper brakes, 60 days, suspended upon payment of $50 fine, court costs and license revoked 12 months, appeal noted and bond set at $150; Leroy Gladson, driving drunk and also careless and reckless, acquitted; James Archie Bullock, driving careless and reckless, 30 days, suspended upon payment of costs, license revoked 12 months or until property damages are paid to Mrs. John W. Moore; Sylvester Norris, driving careless and reckless, without license, and hit-and-run, judgment suspended upon payment of costs.

Patsy Davenport Given State Post

Miss Patsy Davenport of this city has been selected for the post of Information Clerk at the State Capitol and has assumed her duties. She was appointed to the post by Gov. Broughton to fill a vacancy created by resignation. The position carries a salary of $100 monthly.

Miss Davenport last week was named national committeewoman of the State YDC, but state officials said this had nothing to do with her appointment to her new position. Mrs. Mary Graham Croom Hoag, the first appointee to the post and who is being succeeded by Miss Davenport, also was named to the information post shortly after she was named YDC committeewoman. Officials said it was only a coincidence that both young women held the same YDC office when selected.

Miss Davenport is a graduate of East Carolina Teachers College and for four years has been a receptionist in a local doctor's office.

She will be introduced to her new duties today by Miss Penny Wells of Raleigh, who has been serving at the information desk since Mrs. Hoag resigned.

College Dormitories Already Overflowing

East Carolina Teachers College is starting off the year with dormitories overflowing in spite of the fact that many who wished to enter have been unable to do so because of lack of space.

As it stands, 910 girls are housed this fall where last fall's limit was kept at 854, but this draws into use rooms not originally intended for living quarters. Thirty-five girls are in the teachers' dormitory and 26 temporarily in the college infirmary.

The men's dormitory is also full.

Red Cross To Aid U. S. Service Men

One of a series of Home Service Institutes being sponsored in this state by the Red Cross was conducted in the board room of the Municipal building here yesterday with chapter officials from several Eastern Carolina towns and cities present.

The institutes are being conducted by Miss Gertrude Richman, assigned as special Home Service field representative to North Carolina.

Another meeting is planned for some time in January.

Responsibilities of Red Cross chapters to the armed forces were discussed with those attending being advised that they would be called on to investigate dependency discharge requests, emergency furlough requests, render assistance to families of men in service and investigate instances of AWOL in their respective communities.

Report Submitted By C. of C. Officer

The monthly report on activities of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce was issued today by Executive Secretary Willard T. Kyzer, showing that the organization assisted in several undertakings during the past 30 days.

The report was being mailed to members this afternoon.

Quoting from a government publication that Britain would need great quantities of cheese, evaporated milk and skim milk, pork and eggs, the secretary commented that it appeared that Eastern Carolina farmers have an opportunity for a prosperous 1942 provided they use their idle land released from cotton and tobacco production to practice a diversified agriculture.

More detailed information was sought by the secretary on a WPA project for providing pre-employment training in various plants in the state.

The report called attention to the law requiring employers to keep wage and hour records and reminded members that pamphlets on the question had been ordered and would be available soon.

The secretary called on the members to pay their dues, reminding them that eight months of the fiscal year had elapsed.

The report recited that the organization officers had helped promote the defense bonds and stamps campaign.

The bulletin was concluded with a boost for the Greenville tobacco market, citing interesting facts and records of the market.

Lunches will be served from noon until 2:30 daily and dinners from 6 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

College Is Aided By Increased Bus Lines

Students at the College from Eastern North Carolina need no longer find it so hard as in the past to get into and out of Greenville, since each of the six main roads entering the town now have regular bus service.

For a number of years, of course the Carolina Coach Company has had such service on three of these routes, those to Raleigh, Kinston and Washington; and during the summer this company put on a bus by Pinetops to Rocky Mount and on to Roanoke Rapids.

About the same time this summer Paul T. Ricks began a bus route by way of Bethel and Scotland Neck to Roanoke Rapids, opening up much territory that had not had easy access to Greenville and the College.

Direct service to New Bern was also started this summer, the Seashore Transportation Company having initiated a bus route on the Vanceboro-New Bern road in August.

All of these have headquarters at the local bus station.

Work Resumed At One Detroit Unit

(By The Associated Press)
Production was resumed today at one of the three big Detroit motor car plants closed by strikes of a few hundred men.

The Dodge division of Chrysler Corporation, employing 15,000, resumed production after an agreement between the company and officials of the CIO United Automobile Workers.

Some 20,000 other auto workers continued idle in the Mack avenue plant of the Briggs Body Company and at Chrysler's Plymouth division, because of a labor dispute in Briggs frame department. Briggs supplied Plymouth with car bodies.

FDR May Request Minimum Changes

Washington, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Indications increased today that President Roosevelt may seek to minimize threatened congressional controversy over his foreign policy program by requesting only piecemeal revision of the neutrality act at this time.

Reliable sources said the President probably would ask only authority to limit American merchantships and to send them to Canadian ports from which the law now bans them.

Several congressional leaders have advocated outright repeal of the act or—as suggested by Senator Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, modifications which would permit not only the arming of the ships but their entrance into European belligerent ports.
