Jap Offensive Launched In Province Of Honan

Shanghai, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Japanese launched a new offensive in Honan province today, 500 miles north of their Hunan province campaign and apparently aimed, as was the other, at erasing the stigma of an old defeat.

Japanese military dispatches said the invading forces in Honan moved southward across the Yellow and the New Yellow rivers with Chengchow as their objective, asserting 120,000 Chinese troops were trapped in the region around Chengchow.

The city is an important junction on the Lunghai and Peiping-Hankow railroads, which traverse Honan from east to west and north to south.

It was in June, 1938, that the Chinese saved Chengchow by dynamiting the dykes on the Yellow river between that city and the capital, Kaifeng, flooding a strip of country 10 miles wide.

The altered stream has remained for three years as a barrier to the Japanese.

Red Star Communique Fails To Make Clear Whether Successful German Drives In Area Of Ukraine Or Crimean Peninsula; Invaders Suffer Heavy Losses In Sector Around Leningrad

Moscow, Oct. 2.—(AP)—All day efforts by massed German forces to crack the Russian line on the Southern front have been repulsed in a violent battle, the Red army reported today, while in the northwest, around Leningrad, three Nazi assaults have cost the invaders more than 1,200 dead and wounded without gain.

The southern sector includes the Ukraine and the Crimean peninsula, but the exact scene of the newest attacks were not disclosed by Red Star, army newspaper. The onslaught lasted all day yesterday, but now is weakening, and the Germans are falling back to their old positions, leaving 250 dead men behind, the Red Star said.

In the North, the fighting apparently was another series of localized combats at close range on the perimeter of Leningrad's outer defenses.

The Soviet Information Bureau said one Russian infantry unit inflicted more than 400 casualties on the Nazis, while another killed or wounded 200 men, crippled six German tanks and captured 17 machine guns.

The third thrust cost the 56th regiment of the 391st German infantry division more than 900 men, a communique said, plus two tanks, two baby tanks, eight field pieces, a motor train, many machineguns and much ammunition.

The repeated reference to small arms indicated the nature of the conflicts.

In the siege of Odessa, on the Black sea, the Soviet Information Bureau said guerrillas operating behind the German lines made raids during September, destroyed seven large bridges, mined 16 roads and killed several hundred Germans and Russians.

Building Permits Shown For Month

Only five building permits were issued in the city during the month of September, but even this small number was two more than those issued in the previous month.

Estimated cost of the five projects was fixed at $6,000, while new construction work started in August totaled $3,300.

September permits follow: Woman's club, repair porch at building on corner of West Third and Greene streets, $1,000.

Nelson Hopkins, erect one-story, six-room apartment house at Douglas and Tyson streets, $1,500.

STILL AT ODDS OVER SURPLUS OF TANK CARS

Number Set At Over 24,000 by Railroad Estimate

PELLEY REVEALS LATEST FIGURES

Coordinator Ickes and American Railroads Association President Dispute Each Other's Estimates

Washington, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The yes-there-is, no-there-isn't quarrel about the number of tank cars available to carry petroleum products to the East produced a railroad estimate today that more than 24,000 could be put on the job.

The new figure was supplied to a Senate committee investigating reports of oil and gasoline shortage on the Atlantic seaboard by J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, whose previous, and lower, estimate had been disputed by Petroleum Coordinator Ickes as assuredly high.

The oil inquiry committee, headed by Senator Maloney (D-Conn.) was informed by Ickes that there was an excess of 175,000 barrels daily in consumption over shipments to the Atlantic seaboard, a condition the coordinator said was likely to bring about a gasoline and fuel oil shortage this winter.

Pelley testified that a spot check at 8 o'clock last Saturday morning had disclosed 41,993 empty tank cars on hand at petroleum loading points in the United States. Allowing for average loadings of 9,000-odd cars daily for the usual period of two days, he said that left a surplus of 23,985 cars. Stored elsewhere, he said, were 993 empty serviceable tank cars.

Pelley's total of more than 24,000 surplus cars compared with an estimate by Ickes of slightly more than 5,000 cars found available in a recent survey, most of which, Ickes said, now had been put into use.

In addition to the 71 to face trial, 48 persons paid one dollar each for illegal parking.

Fines reached a high mark of $412.55, compared with only $9.65 in the previous month and September costs of $724.55 compared with $178.05 in August. The Department of Justice and the Police Pension Fund each received $79 in September, making a total income of $1,235.10 for the court during the month.

PLANS DEBATE OVER INVASION

Britain To Air Question Of Building Up Army

London, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The question of whether Britain can go much further in building an army capable of continental invasion and still maintain full war production in industry will be aired at a private session of parliament.

Prime Minister Churchill announced today the session would be held soon.

Some well-informed sources already have said that the limit has been reached in pulling men from civilian life so far as the United Kingdom is concerned. There are unconfirmed reports that no further strictly British army divisions will be raised.

Engage Librarian For Post In City

Miss Ruth Prichard, recently elected head librarian of Sheppard Memorial library and the county library system, began her duties here yesterday.

Miss Prichard is a graduate of Peace Institute, received her A. B. degree from Wake Forest College, and her master's degree in library science at the University of North Carolina. For three years she has been librarian at Hartsville Memorial library in Hartsville, S. C. In a recent letter to the chairman of the board of trustees of the library, Miss Marjorie Beal, chairman of the State Library Commission, stated that Pitt county is most fortunate in having Miss Prichard as head of its library system.

This forward step in getting more and better books read throughout the county, was made possible by an act of the last legislature appropriating $100,000 for an enlarged public library service throughout the counties. Each county will receive approximately $900 with the proviso that the money be spent solely for books to be distributed from a central library, with a trained librarian in charge. In order that Pitt county might have its share of these funds the county commissioners and city aldermen voted sufficient funds for a trained librarian.

Violence In Many Other Nazi-Held Territories

Total Of 170 Anti-Nazi Conspirators Reported To Have Been Executed By Hanging Or Before Firing Squads In Hungary, Belgium And Czechoslovakia For Resistance To Nazi Rule

By The Associated Press
A Greek uprising with machineguns, hand grenades and revolvers in Bulgarian-occupied Macedonia was reported today as German firing squads and public hangings were credited with snuffing out the lives of 170 anti-Nazi conspirators in Hungary, Belgium and old Czechoslovakia.

The Swiss telegraphic agency quoted dispatches from Budapest as saying the Gestapo attempted a revolt Monday. Police and military forces, it said, "resolutely" rebuffed.

Forty-two persons were reported executed in the Banat, the Hungarian-occupied part of former Yugoslavia, where German military authorities still exercise administrative control on charges of attempted train-wreckings and killings.

Thirty were shot for an alleged plot to assassinate officials. Other 12, described as Communist prisoners, were hanged in public by order of German military authorities in reprisal for a train-wrecking conspiracy.

German officials were reported to have announced that 28 Communists in Hungarian prisons would be hanged Monday in the event of further violence, and the civil population was held responsible for guarding railways from dusk to dawn from now until October 11.

In the German protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia (former Czechoslovakia) the execution of two retired brigadier generals and several other unidentified officers and soldiers followed the execution of persons who have died before firing squads there in the past few days.

The Prague radio, heard in London, estimated 136 Czechs had been executed and said 228 others had been turned over to the Nazi Gestapo for further investigation. So far only five brought to trial have been acquitted.

Authorized quarters in Berlin said the death sentence had not yet been carried out on Premier General Alois Elias of Bohemia-Moravia, convicted by a German People's court of "preparing for high treason and abetting the enemy."

Paul Colette, 21-year-old Frenchman whose attempt to assassinate Collaborationist Pierre Laval August 26 was followed by widespread sabotage and other acts of violence in German-occupied France, was condemned to death.

Tobacco

The approximately 750,000 pounds of tobacco on the floors of the local warehouses at the start of auctions this morning was described as "noticeably lower in quality." Prices, however, continued firm and stable with fancy tobaccos remaining at the high peak attained yesterday. All warehouse floors were cleared today in preparation for a big Friday's sale. Offerings of 512,246 pounds yesterday brought $184,618.45, for an average of 36.04 cents per pound. Offerings so far this season total 31,618,908 pounds, sold for $9,294,087.50, an average of 29.44 cents per pound, or 12.55 more than the average for the corresponding date a year ago.

WOULD REVOKE COMBAT ZONES

Sen. Pepper Urges President Revoke Proclamation

Washington, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) urged President Roosevelt today to revoke his 1939 proclamation defining certain combat zones which United States merchant vessels were prohibited from entering under the neutrality act.

The Floridaian contended in a Senate speech that repeal or modification of the act was unnecessary because it was within the President's authority to set aside his orders implementing that law.

Suggestions that Congress may be willing to go beyond President Roosevelt's expected recommendations for revision of the neutrality act came today from two senators who often differ widely on domestic policy—Hill (D-Ala.) and Bridges (R-N.E.).

While no legislators professed to know precisely what Mr. Roosevelt would recommend, there have been reports that he might confine himself to a request for authority to arm American merchantships.

Hill, the Democratic whip, told reporters that "if it should be that Mr. Roosevelt recommends only the arming of merchantships I should not be at all surprised if a broadening amendment were offered from the Senate floor to eliminate the prohibition on the movements of our ships. And I think the votes would be there to approve it, both in the Senate and in the House."

Bridges likewise thought that the Senate would broaden the legislation to include the end of shipping restrictions. He expressed doubt, however, that the House would agree to scrapping the ship provisions, even though the Democratic leaders in that chamber have claimed enough votes for complete repeal of the whole law.

The Reverend John Armfield, rector of the church, performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with an arrangement of white lilies. Greenville chapter of the Greensboro College Alumnae, at her home on West Fifth street. Prior to the calling of the meeting to order, Mrs. Brooks, assisted by her small son, Frank, served a delicious sweet course to members and to one guest, Mrs. J. C. Wyatt.

After a brief business session over which the president, Mrs. J. E. Parkerson, presided, Mrs. Wiley Brown presented Mrs. W. C. Harris, who had charge of the program for the afternoon.

Mrs. Harris gave, in a very feeling manner, a most interesting review of "The White Cliffs" by Ali Duer Miller, and read a separate poem which was in keeping with the American spirit of today.

"The White Cliffs," a book of poetry written by one of America's most successful women writers, has become a rare event in the publishing world because it has made the best-seller list. It has been No. 2 on the non-fiction list for many months, ranking second only to "Out of the Night." Written with affection and also with candor, "The White Cliffs" puts into words what many Americans are now thinking and feeling about England. It tells the story of an American girl who goes to England in the spring of 1914 and at a party in London meets the second son of a noble family. They fall in love and Johnnie, the boy, takes Susan, the girl, to meet his widowed mother, Lady Jean, one week after the war starts they are married. Johnnie and Percy, his older brother, go off to war and both are killed. Susan in England bears a son. When this new war comes, Susan faces the decision of sending a son off to fight. It is a delightful story, dramatically told.

Mrs. Harris concluded her program with the reading of Carl Sandburg's recent long poem entitled "Mr. Longfellow and His Boy." The theme of the poem consists of two lines taken from the work of Mr. Longfellow:

"Thou, too, sail on, O Ship of State!
Sail on, O Union, strong and great!"

"Mr. Longfellow and His Boy" tells a story worth telling in this hour of national fate. It was written by Mr. Sandburg for Marianne Lorraine, the French refugee singer and actress, who had asked him to do a piece for her American repertoire. A musical setting was written for it by Gerald B. Marks, and it was first performed with voice and pantomime, with stage setting and lights, by Stewart Chaney, at the Library of Congress in a program memorializing "The Books Officially and Formally Put to Death on the Continent of Europe." At this time, Mr. Sandburg introduced Miss Lorraine as a living book, "a voice of democracy so known to the new authorities that had she not left France when she did she would today be the equivalent of a green leaf of a red-hot furnace shovel." Miss Lorraine's approach to her work is a fine thing; she has ideas and she is able to appeal to the masses through her emotions and her interpretations. What she offers an audience must have become alive in her blood before she dares present

I stepped on a piece of glass that cut through my shoe and lacerated the side of my foot. It is well now and I wish to thank you for the prompt payment in full. Regardless of the fact that I live in a town 90 miles away there was no lost time in handling my claim. This is the third time you have had a claim in this vicinity and all were pleased with your service.

Schools Unlikely To Spend $50,000 On Experimenting

Reflector Bureau
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Oct. 1.—Between $35,000 and $40,000 of the $50,000 tentatively set up for twelfth grade "experiment and demonstration" this school year is much more likely to be used to buy fuel and other commodities on which the price is rising at a rate rapid enough to alarm School Commission officials.

This does not mean that the 12th grade program will be abandoned; but it does mean that a lot of the school people who have been seeking funds for their own particular schools are not going to get them. It does mean, too, that the 12th grade will be set up next school year as a result of observation of the 12th grade systems now in operation in many parts of the state.

A central committee has been set up to study the twelfth grade situation and to make its recommendations before the end of the current school year. This group includes professional educators, school commission members who are familiar with school finances, and laymen selected in the belief that they will be able to make valuable suggestions.

This committee has been called together by Superintendent of Public Instruction Clyde A. Erwin and is meeting today.

There has been some complaint in a number of school circles of late that "nothing is being done about the twelfth grade"; but there is a solid body of opinion that it isn't at all necessary to spend the whole $50,000 appropriation in setting up twelfth grades of one sort and another here, there and the other place over the state.

There are already in operation several twelfth grades and they are sufficiently varied in type to give a pretty good cross section on the subject.

In view of the existence of these going 12th grades, most of the school powers—that is, among them Nathan Yelton, secretary of the School Commission, can see no reason for spending a lot more money for their test units.

If it is possible to save more than half the $50,000 twelfth grade appropriation, it will be a real windfall for the School Commission, which is now facing the prospect of a really "tough" year.

The Tar Heel school budget is set up on a very close margin, with more than 80 per cent of all funds going to instructional service; and with the price of fuel and educational supplies of all kinds soaring to unexpected heights, Mr. Yelton and his associates are already beginning to scratch their heads and wonder where the money is coming from. $35,000 would probably cover the increased costs or go a long way toward doing so, at any rate.

This prospect of possible financial difficulties is also causing the commission to go very slow indeed in allocation of additional teachers. Of course, it has been necessary to give schools in defense areas a number of additional teachers—so many, in fact, that there are now some 75 more teachers on the pay rolls than there were under last year's allocations.

The defense area increases in enrollment have been enough, Mr. Yelton reports, more than to cover the decreased enrollments of many schools where the lower "depression" birth rate has begun to have a tell-tale effect on the number of children of school age. As a result of the defense area increases it is now expected that total enrollment in the state will exceed that of 1940-41; which will mean more teachers and a need for even more money. That, too, is a factor which will cause close edge cutting on the 12th grade, as well as on other proposals.

Priorities Available On Defense Building

Winston-Salem, Oct. 1.—An adequate supply of application blanks for builders who want priorities on defense housing materials are available at the Federal Home Loan Bank of Winston-Salem to the 147 member savings, building and loan associations in the 41 cities and towns which qualify within Defense areas in Alabama, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. O. K. LaRoque, president of the bank, said today. He stated that to expedite the building program, the QPM order makes the savings, building and loan institutions one source of distribution of the priorities forms to builders since they have financed approximately $150,000,000 of home ownership in the southeast during the first eight months of this year.

The bank president stressed the need for complete understanding of the priorities system and its purpose in order to keep the home building program of the rest of 1941 from bogging down. "Actually only a relatively few critical materials for home building, and those mostly in the metal group, are in the priorities program this early," he said. "Anybody who wants lumber or bricks or plaster, for example, for a house gets them by the same process as ever. Since these chief articles in building a home are not yet in an acute shortage situation, a builder in a non-defense area, of a house costing more than $6,000 has just as much and as ready access to them as a defense house builder. Later on the plan seems to be to work out something to insure the non-defense areas of not getting too far behind in deliveries on the critical materials."

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY 6. M EVIL NEVER LETS GO.

In that famous novel, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, Robert Louis Stevenson has given us a dramatic portrait of man's dual nature. It is generally assumed that the teaching of the novel is that deep down in every one of us is a bestial self which may at any moment arise to dominate our actions.

That undoubtedly is one of the teachings to be derived from the novel. But it teaches the even more significant truth that we cannot control evil, once we have given in to it. Jekyll believed that he could play with his evil nature and when he wanted to close the door on it and forget about it, he could do so. But the evil nature that he had first conjured up with drugs would come back upon him spontaneously to drive him to deeds of violence.

If we take an easy attitude toward the evil in our nature, it is not long before this evil is taking a hard attitude toward us. The nervous system quickly responds to the law of habit. Jekyll accustomed himself, over a considerable period of time to being Mr. Hyde and liked the experience no end. But when the time came that he wanted to be through with Hyde, Hyde would not be through with him. The story is the gruesome tale of how the evil in a man's nature with which he dallied, at last took possession of him and destroyed his better self.

THE THIRD FRONT

The growing number of imprisonments and executions in France is grim evidence of the size and scope of the underground anti-Nazi movement in occupied Europe.

The Allies believe this movement will continue to expand, and they frankly place great hopes on it as one of the weapons which may help defeat Hitler. Sabotage in factories slows production. Assassination of Germans makes it necessary for Hitler to use more and more troops for police duty. Britain is doing everything in her power to make this "third front" a major factor in the war.

A GOOD PLAN TO FOLLOW

Canada has done a lot to overcome strikes in its vital industries at this time by a new regulation forbidding any strike in a defense industry unless it has been approved by a majority of the workers in a Government-run election. Such a plan takes the right to strike away from union leaders and radical minorities, the underlying cause of many irresponsible strikes. At the same time the plan preserves for labor as a whole its right to strike if it has a just reason or grievance that cannot otherwise be settled.

In times like these, when our national defense is threatened by one strike after another, many of them brought about or sponsored by racketeering union leaders or minority subversive groups, we believe it is time for our government to take some definite and drastic action. No one desires to take away the rights of any individual laborer any more than the rights of any other citizen, but it is high time small groups were prohibited from threatening the welfare of our whole nation.

PROTECT YOUR FREEDOM

While the newspapers are observing National Newspaper Week this week, a good way for readers to show their appreciation for America's free press and its resulting benefit to the nation, is to renew their subscriptions to their newspaper. The more widespread coverage of the newspapers, the better informed public we will have and the better informed the public the less chance there will be that America will ever fall to the level of those countries where people are permitted to read only dictated propaganda. America's free press is the bulwark against those forces that threaten to destroy civilization. The newspaper is the protector of your freedom.

Washington Daybook

Washington—You would think from reading the front pages that the Federal Bureau of Investigation isn't interested these days in anything but spy and sabotage rings—but it is. Seven years ago, Congress put into the hands of the FBI a potent weapon against big-time confidence men. It was the National Stolen Property Act, which provides punishment up to ten years and fines up to $10,000 for interstate transportation of any sum in excess of $5,000 obtained by theft or the "con game." Since then, the FBI has cracked down on some half dozen big "con" rings, one of which was declared cleaned up just the other day with the arrest in Manassas, N. J., of a suspect in an elaborate "race-horse swindle."

With national defense billions on the loose and factories springing up in many states, and huge contracts often falling into the laps of communities that have been doing only business as usual for years, opportunities for the con man have been multiplied a thousand-fold. The Late Sir Mark Already the FBI has a case in which the victim was a retired munitions manufacturer. His confidence was gained through an imposing person with a British accent, who was introduced as Sir Mark Webster Jenkinson, "financial director" of Vickers Company, Ltd., London. The victim even took the precaution of checking a volume on the British peerage. Sir Mark was there all right, but what the edition didn't show was that the real Sir Mark had been dead nearly a year. The proposition made to the victim was that he was to take an executive post in a big new factory. Conferences were held in several cities and minute details of the new plant were discussed, the con men never slipping once in their glib discussion of munition manufacture technicalities.

From there on, however, the game developed into the hoary old "race-horse swindle." With variations, this is a simple little drama in which one or more of the con men appears to win a big sum of money which cannot be collected until bank credits are established. The victim, either through promises of a big split in the profits or merely because of friendship is persuaded to put up part of the sum which is the last he ever sees of his money—or his new-found friends.

In this instance, the con ring collected $30,000. In another similar case, in which paving contracts in an adjoining state were used as bait, a gang got $200,000.

Oil Swindle More Refined The race-horse swindle doesn't have all the refinements of the oil lease swindle. In this case, the victim is offered a generous sum for the lease of his land, and an option is taken. A confederate shows up a day or so later and offers a far greater sum. The victim then pays over a tidy fee to get out of his option and, of course, the lease never is executed.

There are other con game swindles, but in the upper brackets they all add up to the same thing, promises of great profits for the "temporary use" of lesser sums.

The con man is the aristocrat of criminals. Savvy, ready wit, his outer personality that betrays confidence are the tools of his trade. And because his victim so often is ashamed to confess that he has been duped or fears to reveal that he has lost large sums, the con man sometimes can operate for years before the police are even aware of his activities.

However, in the seven years since the FBI has had its new legal budgeon against the men who work the sucker racket, Director J. Edgar Hoover's boys have built up a sweet fat on the big-timers in the con game. In the case of the munitions manufacturer, it was only 24 hours after he laid his story before the FBI that all the principals in the little show had been identified—and the hunt was on.

Short Shots

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, Oct. 2.—Secretary Ickes, the curfew from seven to seven, some Sunday closings, supposed limitations of gasoline to dealers, tank cars (whether 5,192 or 20,000) and all other factors in the puzzling petroleum situation, North Carolina again set a new all-time high in gasoline tax collections for September.

Revenue Commissioner A. J. Maxwell was able to write down in his little collection book the tidy sum of $2,825,617.80 for the six cents a gallon levy. This was the highest on record, beating last month's two million seven hundred and odd thousand.

Adding the fourth-cent a gallon "inspection tax" collections of $132,600.52, the grand total was $2,958,218.32, much the closest that the state has ever come to a $3,000,000 dollar month. If events take their normal course, there will be a tailing off in October—September having always been, in the past the

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

Grid for crossword puzzle solution with numbers 1-65 and corresponding words filled in.

Biggest gasoline tax collection month of the year. With soldiers manuevering over a large part of the state and folks coming from here, there and yonder to see them, there is no telling what's going to happen this year. October could be the first $3,000,000 period.

The September collections brought the first quarter's gasoline tax returns to $5,219,113.27 as compared with $6,916,799 for the same period of 1940. That's an increase of nearly $1,300,000.

In the face of these figures, Chairman Ben Prince and other Highway Commission members and officials may as well wipe off all the worry wrinkles they've been exhibiting for fear the gasoline tax restrictions would seriously curtail revenue available for highway work.

This And That Your reporter has been told so on many occasions, but it wasn't until receiving Wednesday morning's mail that he had it officially. A communication from the office of North Carolina's Department of Public Instruction was addressed to Mr. Ham Averill. And the reporter is no part of an amateur radio operator, either, so it must be a really nasty crack. Events are again proving the Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell as a master of understatement. Back in General Assembly days he estimated that the foodless sales tax would bring in about the same as in 1940 without the exemptions. This year the sales tax collections are for three months of the fiscal period $3,844,196.43 against $2,950,806.83 for the same quarter last year, an increase of almost 25 per cent. Total collections for the general fund ran almost a dead heat with last September, the decrease being $1,290.82 or the almost infinitesimal dip of four-one hundredths of one per cent. For the first time in your reporter's memory "miscellaneous" items under the general fund collections were zero. On the beverage tax front there was the biggest jump for any item—from $177,589.24 to $333,831.61, a climb of close to 90 per cent. There is supposed to be a ban on much fortified wine, and liquor sales have not increased by any startling figure. That leaves beer to account for the heavy collections. A report of the Brewers and N. C. Beer Distributors Committee showed August consumption the highest on record in North Carolina. Best guess is that the influx of beer-drinking soldiers from the north and midwest is responsible. Tar Heels still like their liquor potent when they go in for potatoes and libations.

Sixteenth century armour makers discovered that fluting metal gave it strength and rigidity without adding weight, a principle used today with corrugated iron and girders.

Bulldozing Devil Dog Pitt, Mont.—(AP)—"I'd like to join your outfit," a cowboy announced at the Marine recruiting office. # HOPES OF REA ARE OUTLINED

Would Electrify Half Of Rural Homes By Year's End

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, Oct. 1.—Gwynn Price, director of the Rural Electrification Authority, is hopeful, though not overly optimistic, that before the end of the next year half of North Carolina's farm dwellings will be electrically-lighted.

He would be confident of that achievement if it were not for the obstacles on expansion of the system arising from a "defense" shortage of material.

As of the 1940 federal census 71,196 farm dwellings were lighted electrically, this representing 25.6 per cent, or slightly more than one-fourth of all farms in the state.

Last year's progress report of the REA showed 143,706 rural customers against 119,262 as of July 1, 1940, an increase of 24,444. Of course all these were not farm dwelling customers, but a very high percentage were.

It is estimated that at least 20,000 farm dwellings were added during the fiscal year 1940-41, none of which were included in the federal census showing 71,196 lighted dwellings.

That would make the number of farm dwellings served with current as of July 1, this year, close to the 100,000 mark.

Under the program of expansion planned for this year and next there seems no doubt that the approximately 40,000 farm dwellings needed to reach the 50 per cent mark would have been easily obtained. Much has been accomplished already this year—a recent report showing that projects costing nearly $5,500,000 are already approved by the state REA and in the hands of the federal authorities awaiting allocation of funds.

That's where the defense material shortage enters the picture. The Federal REA has already reported that its allocation of projects has been held up while awaiting availability of material—the officials feeling there's no sense in approving projects until there seems some chance they will be completed.

Leon Henderson, the price boss who is closely associated with the allotment of essential materials recently announced that there will be available in the months to come material enough to construct approximately 11,000 miles of rural lines each month. The REA had planned a program of stringing some 22,000 miles monthly.

That, very obviously, is just cutting the electrification program in half; and so it appears likely that North Carolina will be able to go through with only about half the projects which have been planned.

Some slight balm seems at hand in reports, unofficial but apparently reliable, that North Carolina has prepared about as many projects as all the other states in REA region No. 1 combined, which would indicate there's a chance that this state will share better in allocations than if had been more modest in its estimates, or than if the other states had set out for greater expansions.

Considering the whole situation and with full realization that the defense program is likely to monopolize much material, Mr. Price is still hopeful that the expansion of North Carolina's rural power system will be great enough to electrify at least half the Tar Heel farm dwellings within the next year or 18 months.

'VALLY OF DEATH' ONCE AGAIN

When one thinks of Russia's Crimea, his mind dwells automatically on Gen. Nicholas I., Florence Nightingale, and Alfred Lord Tennyson. Comes now Adolf Hitler to emblazon his name in the peninsula's history books.

The armed forces of Germany want the Crimea because it menaces the flank of the great Nazi army striking eastward toward the Russian Caucasus. They want it, too, so that Russia may be deprived of its big naval base at Sevastopol, city of 80,000.

and flat steppes sown largely in wheat, take up three-fourths of its area. Inland Simferopol is the capital.

Russian armies, seeking to extend Gen. Nicholas' influence into Turkey, battled British, French and Ottoman forces in the Crimea for three years, 1854 to 1856. Fall of Sevastopol to the Allied army ended the conflict, remembered today because of nurse Nightingale's heroism. Tennyson's immortal "Charge of The Light Brigade."

Odd Chick Baffles Boy Oklahoma City. — (AP) — When Winston Cleek, a farm boy, hatched what he thought was a guinea hen egg he obtained a chick whose breed he couldn't identify. Finally he took the bird to the county fair and experts said it was a cross between a guinea hen and "the Cleek's old Buff Orpington rooster." Which makes the bird extraordinary.

Phantoms Working Hard For Tilt with Goldsboro Team

GAME SET FOR FRIDAY NIGHT

Complete Roster of Greenville Eleven Is Released

By PERCY WELLS

Waiting for their first conference game with Coach R. N. Jeffrey's proteges from Goldsboro, the Phantoms are receiving heavy work-outs so as to be in tip-top shape for Friday's contest here. As far as the team and scores are concerned, Farley's boys have a slight edge over the Earthquakes, but in a game with the locals and their strongest rival, edges mean nothing.

The Earthquakes opened their season with Wilson last week—the received the zero end of a 37-0 score and lost one of their best players, Joe Iversen. Joe suffered a serious leg injury and will be out of the line-up for the remainder of the season.

The seating capacity has been enlarged at the Guy Smith stadium in order to provide extra seats for the expected large crowd.

Runch That Finished Lou Nova Ranks With The Bomber's Best

By DILLON GRAHAM
Sports Editor, AP Feature Service

New York—There was the punch that felled gallant Jim Braddock, the blow that uprooted Paulino Uzcudun, the blast that paralyzed Max Schmeling. These were the great Louis punches and to these must be added the right hand smash that destroyed Lou Nova.

It was one of Joe's masterpieces. It was thrown so speedily that those at the ringside had difficulty following it. It came so quickly that Nova had no defense, so quickly that he couldn't thrust up an arm to partially block it or duck or swerve his head, it was a bull's-eye.

It could be compared with the clout that stopped Paulino. It was just as sudden. There was no action leading up to it. It was just as clean and devastating a blow but not quite as dead-center as the punch six years ago that caught the Spaniard flush on the mouth.

Nova dropped, in the closing minute of that sixth round, as though he had been felled by a pole-axe. That one punch was the only blow that hit him. He dropped so quickly that Louis did not have an opportunity to land another punch or two to send him on his way.

the greatest finisher in boxing history.

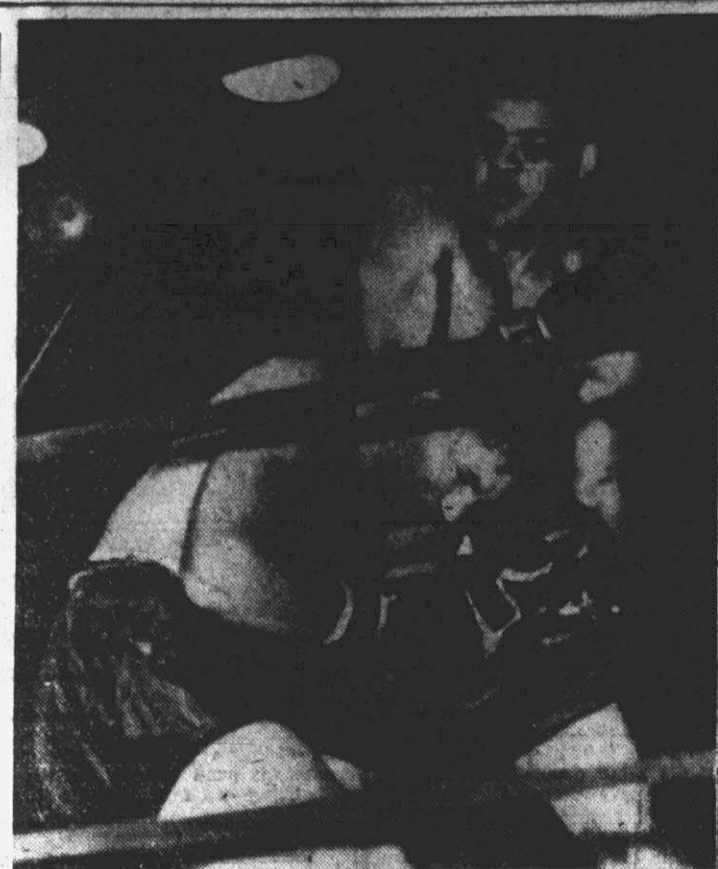

That gameness, in the sixth round and earlier when he withstood a flurry in the fourth and came back with all guns firing, was about all that Nova could be praised for.

He was awkward and muscle-bound and most of his punches were laughably wide. He did land one swell right on Joe's jaw in the fifth.

The triumph ends gossip that Louis has slipped. He has never thrown a harder or more perfectly timed punch than the one Nova caught.

It appears now that Joe just was not sufficiently interested to do a Class A job on the other foes he has met in recent months. That is, except Conn. Conn's speed definitely had Louis troubled.

Louis, pulling down the curtain on his ring activities at least temporarily, observed the old stage axiom of leaving the audience with his best stunt fresh in its mind. Louis' fame has been built around that dynamite punch and his Nova finisher was a perfect example of Louis' best bombing.

Here's Nova crumpling under the one-punch dynamite that sent him, like a fallen ox, to the canvas in the sixth round of his championship fight with Joe Louis. Louis waded in after Nova had come up at the count of nine and so murderously punished the challenger that Referee Art Donovan stepped in and ended the fight just before the finish of the round.

Sale of baby haddock, a practice recently started, is a serious threat to the valuable North Atlantic haddock fishery, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service declares.

FOR THE LOVE OF PAM

By VIVIAN GREY

Chapter 22
 "Oh, no it isn't, Leo!" Pam objected. "You're the one who deserves happiness more than anyone else. But I'm not foolish enough to think I could give it to you. Not with things as they are. You could never live with an imagination of the real thing. No more," she added after a little silence, "than I could live with only the half loaf Jerry has to offer."

"Perhaps it isn't only a half loaf, Pam," Leo said quietly. And Pam looking at him with a little sense of surprise, knew that came out of his fine honesty, his genuine wish for her happiness. "The only thing I'd want to be sure of, Pam, is that you aren't letting your womanly desire to reform a man fool you into thinking it's love."

"Could it be that?"
 "I don't know, my dear. Your heart can tell you that—and only your heart. And since I've gone this far, Pam, it's only fair to say you can go a long way on just kindness. I mean, Pam, if a man has that—of real kindness toward creatures and people less fortunate than himself—is a fundamental part of him—you have just about all you need to work with. I, who want you so much, shouldn't be saying this to you, Pam, practically sending you to the arms of another man."

They were silent for a moment. They were sitting on a bench that had stood for years under the old pepper tree that had listened to the secrets of many a Quelleron. Leo's hands had reached out and taken Pam's. He seemed, then, fully his ten years older than the girl beside him. He seemed, too, to efface himself as her lover, and to be completely her friend.

"I came back from Washington, Pam, planning our life together. You beside me, dear, in all of the strange and interesting places of the world that Uncle Sam sends his men to. It's hard to give that dream up. I'm not giving it up yet. You may change your mind. I'll wait for that. But I know now, Pam, that it's your happiness I really want. And if your happiness lies with some other man—he paused as if his voice had been smothered by some swiftly rising emotion—"well, just remember this, kindness is one of the basic needs, one of the basic qualities of the right sort of person. No one really achieves greatness without mercy as the basic quality. So, Pam, if you are sure your man has genuine kindness, don't be afraid of the rest."

"Leo, I've never known until this moment how really fine you are."
 He smiled at her then. "I'll remember that all my life, Pam. It will be something to live up to."
 "Leo, this doesn't mean you're deserting me?" A little note of alarm flared in Pam's voice as they stood at the gate. She knew it was time he got back to the hospital. "We're friends, just as always?"
 "Deserting you, dear? I'll want to watch over you all your life." He turned then, just as Jerry drew up in his car and slid from under the wheel.

On The Spot
 Lenore, hurrying from the room in which she had been so ruthless in her quarrel with her mother, found Jerry as he got into his car to go and keep his picnic date with Pam.

ing Jerry about the natural life around them and Jerry telling Pam something of the Winthrop history and their life in New York.

The colored cook in one of the cottages got dinner for them, and from the window where their table was placed, they watched the sun sink down into the water.

They drove back through the cool, early evening, going slowly over the long bridges so Pam could look down into the crystal water and see the starfish lying quietly on the sand. It was when they reached the peaceful old house on Division Street that Jerry took Pam's hand and said:

"Pam, what would you say if I told you that I'm poor, that this day marks the end of cars, yachts, luxury, for me?"

There was a silence. Then Pam's voice came through the scented quiet.

"I'd know of course that you were joking, Jerry," she said. "And I'd probably say it wasn't in the best taste, either. After our beautiful day, how can you?"

"Jerry's face was suddenly white under its tan. He looked at Pam for a startled instant. Was this her way of getting rid of him because he was penniless? Was she going to pretend an anger over something he was supposed to have said that wasn't to her liking? Didn't he know her at all?"

"But I'm not joking, Pam," he said. Something about his voice caught her attention.

"Jerry!" she said sharply. "I'm not, Pam. I mean it."

It was Pam's turn to stare, to search his face and to find no vestige of humor in it.

"But things like this don't happen, Jerry," she said. "If you're up to something—"

"Oh, Jerry, if you only took life a little more seriously! If only you didn't have so much money! It's almost been the ruination of you! I doubt if there's anything that sacred to you, beyond joking about, beyond making sport of. If you'd only find one serious interest."

Blaze lifted gentle eyes to look from the face of her loved master to that of the girl who was speaking so sharply. She moved closer to Pam and touched the girl's hand with her moist black nose, as if to see whether this impatient person was really the girl she had spent such a lovely day with.

Pam stroked the animal's head. "But it has happened, Pam," Jerry said earnestly. "It has."

Hollywood.—It was Virginia O'Brien's day on the set of "Panama Hattie."

Virginia O'Brien was singing "Fit as a Fiddle" in that remarkable dead-pan style of hers, and all Ann Sothern had to do was walk away, out of the scene, as Virginia began.

That made it an unusual day on the set of "Panama Hattie." Ann Sothern is the star, and she sings half a dozen numbers, and she's very much in the picture.

All of which is by way of saying that Ann Sothern has "arrived"—the hard way. Her "Maisie" adventures through five pictures opened the way to big-time stardom, which she already has snatched in "Lady Be Good" and will clinch in "Panama Hattie."

"Remember Harriette Lake?" I asked her, irrelevantly.

to Lew Ayres. Pam wrote in protesting that this meant the end of the series, a married Maisie being out of the question. I wondered about this, especially when "Ringside Maisie" had no Ayres around, but Maisie covered up with a bit of dialogue to the effect that her love affair hadn't worked out. The last left her in a clinch with O'Connell Murphy, which obviously won't work out either.

It pays for sickness from the first day and a total of 13 years from the accident. It should appeal to men or women who work for a living and value their time.

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Speculative eyes shifted from stocks to baseball and back again today and the result was moderate and selective market improvement.

Large blocks of oils, most of which were a shade ahead, expanded the day's volume somewhat, although many leaders were sluggish.

BIG PREMIUMS ALL CHILDREN AT STATE FAIR MUST PAY TAX

Total Of $4,442 Offered In Dairy Cattle Department

Raleigh, Oct. 2.—A total of $4,442 is being offered this year as premiums in the Dairy Cattle department of the N. C. State Fair, to be held in Raleigh October 14-18. It was announced today by John A. Arey, Extension dairy specialist of N. C. State College.

This amount includes $1,582 offered for 4-H Calf Club entries, which is offered jointly by the Fair and the State Guernsey and Jersey Breeders Associations. Dr. J. S. Dorton is manager of the fair; G. D. White, Henderson county farm agent, is president of the Guernsey Breeders Association; and Homer Robinson of Granite Falls is president of the Jersey Breeders Association.

Arey said that prospects indicate a large show of quality cattle at the State Fair this year. "We anticipate a capacity entry in all four breeds of dairy cattle—Guernseys, Jerseys, Holsteins and Ayrshires," Arey declared.

The Jerseys will be judged by Ted Besh of the Morrocco Farms of Senator Cameron Morrison at Charlotte, beginning Tuesday morning, October 14. The Guernseys will be judged Wednesday morning by R. G. Connolly, Extension dairyman at V. P. I., Blacksburg, Va., and the Ayrshires will be judged Wednesday afternoon by Cornell Green of the Woodlawn Farm at Greensboro. The Holsteins will be judged Thursday by Mr. Connolly.

Dr. Clyde A. Erwin, Superintendent of Public Instruction, spoke of the tax as an opportunity for the children to contribute their mite to the defense program than as an added burden upon them.

He urged as many as can to attend what he said is "one of North Carolina's really great institutions."

Despite the three-cent charge, the children will have much in return for their few pennies. It is unnatural to suppose that more than a small per cent of them will be attracted by the agricultural and educational displays, the magnet which will draw them are those 20 shows and 22 rides of the World of Mirth Shows, which will have the three cent charge on school children tickets. # FORD

'6" OR '8"

IN THESE UNUSUAL TIMES we invite you to inspect an unusual new car—new in its beauty, its comfort, its choice of two fine 90 horsepower engines, 6 cylinders or 8.

See it and you sense at once that here is new style that will stay good for years. On a lower, wider chassis, we have designed new long, low, wide and modern lines.

Interior treatment is entirely fresh, distinctive, pleasing. The beauty of this Ford will more than hold its own in any company.

Inside, the car is big—wide across the seats, generous in knee-room, leg-room, elbow-room.

On the road this year you find the "new Ford ride" still further advanced in its softness, quietness, steadiness and all-round comfort.

At the wheel, you will find driving easier than ever. Steering, gear-shifting, action of the big and sure hydraulic brakes have all been made smoother and easier.

In quality, the car is sound to the last detail. Defense requirements have all been met without a single reduction in the basic and lasting goodness of the Ford mechanically. Some new materials have replaced old ones, usually at a greater cost to us, but in every case the new is equal to or better than the old.

If your family needs a new car, go see and drive this Ford. For what it is today and for what it will be through the years ahead, we believe that you will find in it more and better transportation for your money than you have ever found before.
