NAZIS BREACH MOSCOW DEFENSES

REDUCTION IN FARM BENEFIT FUNDS LIKELY

High Price Of Products May Make Move Possible

MAY BE SLICED BY ONE-FOURTH

Present Agricultural Prices Declared To Be Nearly 45 Percent Higher Than Last Year

Washington, Oct. 8.—(AP)—With farm products bringing the highest prices since 1930 and still advancing, Agriculture Department officials said today that the administration should be in a position to make a sizeable cut in its budget for 1942 crop benefit payments.

Indications were that the cut might exceed $200,000,000, or more than one-fourth of the cost of the present benefit program.

Agricultural prices are nearly 45 percent higher than a year ago. Department economists predict further advances this winter and next spring. Because of the higher prices and prospects for the largest food demand in history, the department forecast that farm income may approach $13,000,000,000 next year.

An income of this size would be the largest since 1920 and $2,000,000,000 above the estimate for this year.

Congress appropriated about $280,000,000 for farm benefit payments for 1941 crops, including $300,000,000 for cooperation with soil conservation programs, $48,000,000 for cooperation with the sugar production and marketing control program, and $212,000,000 for parity payments.

Greatly improved prices for cotton may make it possible, officials said to drop parity payments for this crop. The department has set aside $88,300,000 for such payments on the 1941 crop at a rate of 2.75 cents a pound. Cotton now is bringing more than parity prices.

Tobacco, like cotton, has been bringing parity or more and consequently would be in eligible for parity payments. Wheat and corn, on the other hand, are selling for less than parity. On the basis of present prices, these grain crops would be eligible for parity payments. Rice, the only other crop for which parity payments are authorized, has been selling for parity until recently.

Japanese Press Places Blame On United States For Pacific Situation

Five-year-old Pamela Hollingsworth (above) was found alive the night of Oct. 6 after wandering eight days and nights through a mountain wilderness near Conway, N. H. She was taken to a hospital where her condition was reported "good." The child wandered away from a picnic Sept. 28.

HIGH AVERAGE IS MAINTAINED

Tobacco Prices Continue High, Quality Inferior

With a season's high average of 30.52 cents per pound compared with a figure of 17.57 for the corresponding number of sales days last year, the Greenville tobacco market continues firm and the 541,004 pounds sold yesterday brought $192,589.06 for an official average of 35.60.

So far this season 36,452,326 pounds of tobacco have been sold on the Greenville market, bringing $1,126,162, compared with offerings of the corresponding date last year of 34,233,182 pounds, sold for $6,013,205.95. The 1941 increase in poundage is 2,219,144 and in money paid out $5,129,574.33.

An estimated half million pounds were on the floors of the local warehouses when sales started this morning, with the quality being described as decidedly lower. Many farmers are selling the last of their crop now and much inferior grades of tobacco is being placed on the floors, resulting in common to medium grades dominating the offerings.

Prices, however, continued uniform, maintaining the season's peak. The Greenville market today paid tribute to a local tobacco list when it suspended sales at 10 o'clock for five minutes this morning in respect to A. W. Hodnett, supervisor of the local Export Leaf Tobacco Company factory, who died suddenly yesterday. Funeral services were conducted this morning.

Grade Crossing Toll Shows Sharp Decline

Raleigh, Oct. 8.—The death toll at railroad grade crossings in North Carolina has shown an enormous drop within the past 20 years, according to statistics released today by the North Carolina Highway and Public Works Commission. The relative percentage of fatal road accidents occurring at these crossings has decreased from a former high of from 15 to 20 per cent to a low of 3 per cent in 1940, year for which the latest complete figures are available.

Highway engineers attribute a large share of this decrease to elimination of more than 291 rural grade crossings, and protection of numerous others with bells and flashing lights. Those eliminated either by overpasses or underpasses, as well as those afforded protection, were accounted the "most dangerous," as indicated by the decreasing fatality rate.

Editorial Of One Paper Asserts That Situation Going From Bad To Worse And Next Step Can Not Be Predicted; Declares U.S. Aiming To Include Russia In Move To Encircle Japan

Tokyo, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Tokyo newspapers, striking the same chord of critical comment against the United States, blamed Washington today for what they called the strengthening and spread of encirclement of Japan and said the Pacific situation was deteriorating.

Nichi Nichi, in a page one editorial said:

"Japan earnestly aims at removing the Pacific cancer by Premier Prince Konoze's personal message to Roosevelt (delivered August 28)."

"However, the Pacific situation is going from bad to worse and it can not be said what will happen next."

It asserted that "the United States evidently is aiming to include Russia in the ABCD (American-British-Chinese-Dutch) encirclement by sending oil and planes."

"This has irritated the Japanese, who now must expect any development and prepare for the consequences."

Nichi Nichi said it judged that Japanese-American negotiations were not progressing smoothly and the newspaper Yomiuri said that if the talks collapsed, "Japan is determined to carry out the high principles set forth by the tri-partite alliance" of Rome, Berlin and Tokyo.

This outbreak of critical editorial followed a lengthy period of reserve comment regarding the United States.

Guaranty Awaits Tarboro Petition

The Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, which, at the request of a large number of Tarboro business and professional men and private citizens, filed application with the State Banking Commission to open a branch in Tarboro, will "stand by" while the commission hears a petition filed by Tarboro residents for the opening of a "home" bank.

Some time ago a group of Tarboro citizens requested the local institution to take steps to open a unit there. After investigating, Guaranty officials decided to file application with the Banking Commission and subsequently took that step.

It later developed that a group of Tarboro citizens decided they wanted to establish a bank with home capital. Guaranty officials immediately expressed themselves as not desiring to establish a bank in the way of the wishes of Tarboro citizens.

Although the Banking Commission has scheduled hearings on both the petition by the Guaranty and the group of Tarboro citizens desiring to establish a "home" bank, W. H. Woolard, executive vice-president of the Guaranty, said today that his institution would "stand by" and not press its petition with action is taken on the Tarboro petition. Should this petition be denied, however, the Guaranty would stand ready to establish a bank if the commission should so decree.

The only bank now in Tarboro is a unit of the Security National Bank of Greensboro.

BILL INCLUDES FARM PRODUCE

Lend-Lease Bill To Aid Cotton And Tobacco

Washington, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Of the new lease-lend appropriation the government expects to spend $51,700,000 for tobacco and $47,000,000 for cotton, Secretary Wickard disclosed today.

This would be out of a $1,575,000,000 item for "agricultural, industrial, and other commodities and articles" in the lease-lend bill approved today by the House Appropriations Committee. Altogether, the measure carries $5,983,000,000 for lease-lend activities.

Wickard said that of the original $7,000,000,000 appropriated for that purpose, virtually all of which has been spent or obligated, $47,400,000 was used for tobacco and $50,130,000 for cotton.

The secretary submitted these figures to an appropriations subcommittee recently. His testimony was made public today.

In addition to these two basic crops, principally produced in southern states, Wickard pointed out the South also would furnish naval stores, some rice, soybeans, and citrus products for shipment to Great Britain.

It is of utmost importance that all of these be present for the Friday meeting. The meeting will be open to the public.

A civil action seeking to recover $100 in property damage allegedly resulting from a collision between two trucks last June has been filed in Pitt Superior court by S. G. Worthington against Harvey Carrow, owner of one of the trucks involved, and his daughter, Maybell Wilson, driver of the vehicle.

S. O. Worthington is representing the plaintiff in the action, which charges that the driver of the other truck came out of a lane and struck the Worthington truck, causing $75 worth of damages. The action also asks $25 for being deprived of his vehicle at a time when he needed it.

TO ASK ONLY FOR AUTHORITY TO ARM SHIPS

Single Change in Neutrality Act Agreed Upon

LATER CHANGES MAY BE SOUGHT

Roosevelt, Hopkins And Hull Said To Be Hopeful Of Extending Revisions At A Later Date

Washington, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Legislative leaders reported today they had agreed that neutrality legislation to be introduced in the House tomorrow—following a message from President Roosevelt—would be confined to permitting American merchantships to carry arms.

Those who attended a White House conference said it was agreed that such legislation could be sent through the House before the end of next week.

It was said reliably, however, that the President, Secretary of State Hull and Harry L. Hopkins, the lease-lend chief, still were hopeful that Congress eventually would also amend the existing law to lift the present prohibition against American ships traveling to belligerent ports of designated combat areas.

Hopkins, who had been reported taking the lead in an effort to have the law revised to permit the arming of ships and to allow them to travel anywhere, was said to have expressed disappointment at the decision reached at today's conference.

One of those who attended the meeting told reporters that if the legislation providing for arming ships went through the House by a substantial majority it was possible that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee would consider broadening the measure to eliminate the restrictions on ship movements.

Plan Adopted For One Examination

Washington, Oct. 8.—(AP)—In an apparent effort to meet a major criticism of the draft program Selective Service officials said today that by January 1, draftees will be required to undergo only one physical examination for induction into the army.

At present, draftees are examined by Selective Service physicians attached to their local boards and then must be re-examined by army doctors before being accepted for service. In many cases, men have given up their jobs and sold their belongings only to fail the army's medical examination.

Regards Viereck As Menace To U.S.

New York, Oct. 8.—(AP)—George Sylvester Viereck, 36-year-old journalist, was described by a government prosecutor as "one of the most serious menaces in this country today at his arraignment on charges of withholding information when he registered with the State Department as an agent of a foreign power."

U. S. Commissioner Isaac Platt held Viereck in $20,000 bail pending his removal to Washington to plead to the indictment.

William Power Maloney, special assistant to the attorney general, in requesting that bail be fixed at $25,000, said that the German-born defendant for years had been the chief propagandist of the German government in this country.

Committee Favors Extending U.S.Aid

Washington, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The House appropriations Committee approved a $5,983,000,000 bill with the statement that production of munitions has not yet reached the point where defeat of Axis powers was assured.

The committee reported to Congress that almost all of the huge new fund could be obligated by next March 1 and that delivery of materials could be completed not later than June 30, 1943.

And then, with publication of voluminous hearings on the appropriation, the members presented the first, over-all picture of the lend-lease program which began with a $7,000,000,000 appropriation last spring.

They asserted that production necessarily was slow at first; that there had been no abuses in putting the dollars to work; that the new fund was imperatively necessary.

Central Front Crisis Acknowledged By Reds

German Forces Waging New Offensive On Soviet Capital Claim to Be Pressing Battle Of Annihilation Only 125 Miles From Moscow After Having Trapped Several Russian Armies

By The Associated Press

German armies storming toward Moscow in a great new offensive have breached Soviet defense lines, trapped several Red armies and are now fighting a vast battle of annihilation only 125 miles from the Russian capital itself, Adolf Hitler's high command reported today.

In the South, too, the plight of the Russians appeared to be growing more desperate by the hour.

Nazi military dispatches said the entire south wing of the Soviet army had been broken by a German drive which has already engulfed Oostepko and Mariupol, on the sea of Azov, and is threatening the Don river port of Rostov, gateway to the rich Caucasian oil fields.

German battle flags were reported within 100 miles of Rostov after a 450-mile advance from the Prut river boundary between Rumania and Russia, where the Nazi onslaught started 15 weeks ago.

The crisis in Russia's struggle on the Central front was admitted by Red Star, Soviet army newspaper.

FLURRY OVER TURKISH PACT

Germany Would Get Most of Chromium After 1942

Ankara, Turkey, Oct. 8.—(AP)—A German diplomatic offensive aimed at breaking the British-American hold on Turkey's chromium supply has resulted in virtual agreement on a deal whereby Germany will get at least half of Turkey's export of this war-vital product after 1942, diplomatic sources said today.

In return, Germany has promised to begin immediately delivery of about $15,000,000 worth of military equipment to Turkey, these sources declared.

Reports that an agreement to this effect was about to be signed, perhaps today, produced a flurry of activity yesterday on the parts of both British and United States diplomats.

Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen and J. V. A. MacMurray, the British and American ambassadors, hastened to the Turkish foreign office where they were said to have warned that such a move by Turkey would cause the worst possible reaction in London and Washington.

MacMurray was reported to have reminded the Turkish government that as one of the nations whose defense is necessary to the defense of United States interests, Turkey could rely upon American aid under the lease-lend act.

Vernon Parrish Goes To Western Carolina

Vernon Parrish, who has engaged in the brokerage business here for more than 15 years, has closed his business because of his declining health and left this afternoon for Asheville where he will undergo treatment. Since moving to Greenville in 1925 he has made a host of friends here and in this section of the state.

Never at a loss for an answer to meet any situation, his parting remark this afternoon was "Tell the boys I'll be back soon but that in the meantime I am prepared to keep a sweet taste in my mouth. If you don't believe it, I have here a piece of birthday cake 87 years old that has been handed down in the family since January 1, 1854. We've been saving it for a long time but might decide to eat it on this trip."

Several members of the local Business and Professional Women's Club attended the Sixth District meeting in Asheville last night.

Mrs. Arthur P. Wilson, State Membership committee member from Kinston, was guest speaker at the meeting. Her topic was "Strengthening Democracy For Defense." This subject was very much in keeping with the observance of National Business Women's Week since that is the theme of the federation from 1941-42.

At this meeting Miss Elizabeth Kasey of Greenville was elected publicity director for the Sixth District and is to serve as secretary-treasurer at the district meetings.

The next district meeting is scheduled to be held in Goldsboro early in 1942.

Members from the local organization who attended the Asheville meeting were: Mrs. Viola Baker, Mrs. F. A. Jordan, Miss Elizabeth Kasey, Miss Helen Gaskins, Miss Annie Moore, Miss Novella Evans, Mrs. J. O. Morton, Mrs. Lela Bell Howell, Mrs. Chester Walsh, and Mrs. Ann Johnson.

To Appear Here In Concert.
Lansing Hatfield, the Metropolitan Opera baritone, will not be a stranger in a strange land when he comes into this state for the concert in the Wright Auditorium of the college on Friday night.

He is a North Carolinian, reared in this state, leaving his birthplace in Virginia before he got well started in life. As a member of his college glee club, he knew the college of the state. He was launched on a business career as a popular salesman for a Winston-Salem firm, singing as he drove along from place to place, he came to know his state.

He has returned for singing engagements since he began his musical career. Last year, during the series of radio programs in the Metropolitan auditions of the air, from which he came out the winner, he gave a recital in Rocky Mount. The audience there was very enthusiastic over both his beautiful, powerful voice, and his charming personality.

Fall flowers were used for decorating throughout the house. A delicious two-course luncheon was served by Mrs. Pace and Mrs. Cummings from a beautifully appointed table with a centerpiece of mixed flowers.

Mrs. K. B. Pace, president of the club, presided over the business session, after which she turned the program over to the hostess who also gave an interesting and instructive paper on the All America Front.

Mrs. Crisp's paper showed definitely how the trend of American thought toward the good neighbor policy as presented by our president, has permeated every line of thought in America. Not only the economic, social and other important phases of American life have been influenced; but even that of music has come in for a share. Back of the speaker was an array of flags of the twenty-one American republics, further suggesting the close bond of patriotic feeling existing between these countries.

Round Table Club

On Tuesday afternoon the Round Table Club held its first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. E. B. Ferguson. Our hostess, Mrs. Milton White, was sick and not able to attend. In her absence, Mrs. Wiley Brown welcomed the guests on arrival. Mrs. J. E. Winslow, president of the club, called the meeting to order. Each member responded to the roll call with reminiscences of her summer. Mrs. Winslow welcomed Mrs. James Little and Mrs. W. I. Wooten. Mrs. Little spoke to us in behalf of Bundles for Britain, urging us to buy tickets to hear Mrs. Morrow of England talk on October 22. Mrs. Morrow has charge of the receiving house for all Bundles for Britain. She also urged as many as could to come and work in the workshop.

Mrs. C. T. Munford introduced Mr. Vester Mulholland, principal of the Greenville high school, who gave us a most delightful talk on Mexico City. He discussed the extreme poverty and extreme riches of the people. He showed us some lovely hand-made baskets and other things that he had purchased while on his trip to Mexico last summer.

The attractive and interesting new club books were passed by Mrs. ReBarker. Mrs. T. A. Person distributed the new constitution and by-laws. The current events of the day were given by Mrs. Wiley Brown.

In her gracious manner, Mrs. Munford thanked the club for the gift and flowers given her and Mr. Munford on their fifty-second wedding anniversary.

At the conclusion of the business, an ice course was served.

Sans Souci Club.
The first meeting of the Sans Souci Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Wooten. Mrs. Gaylord and Mrs. Wooten being joint hostesses.

There were twenty-two members present. Mrs. Fred Forbes was elected as a member after being away for some time.

Our new president, Mrs. Scales, presided over the meeting. After a short business session, books then were passed.

Mrs. W. I. Wooten announced Mrs. Murriel of England, who is head of Bundles for Britain, would give a lecture in Greenville October 22 and urged every member of the club to go.

The program was then turned

FOR THE LOVE OF PAM

By VIVIEN GREY

Chapter 27

Strange Girl

Pam awakened early that morning. She knew as she looked out at the lovely blue sky that Jerry was probably diving off the pier already, playing in the plants, rooted in coral, from the bottom of the ocean. It would be nice to go over and watch him.

She dressed quickly as she thought of how pleased he would be when he came in from the water to see her there on the sand. Then she'd ask him to go home with her and have breakfast.

Pam had been sitting in the sun on the concrete wall at Duval Street, watching Jerry out in the water, for some time before she was aware of another figure on the beach. A girl in street clothes. Clothes for Northern wear, Pam reflected that she looked as if she had just come to Key West. The girl seemed to be watching Jerry. But there was nothing strange in that, since people always watched activities in the water.

Pam could see that Jerry had a great bunch of sea fern under one arm. A fine morning's work. She could cure them, and they'd net quite a little. Her thought went on to possibilities in the little business she had started.

Could it grow to where it would justifiably include Jerry? He would come in no other way, she knew. If she could get orders from some of the large stores, she thought, as well as what Jerry was doing by letter with Northern firms, it might be worth a trip to Miami to be worth while. She and Jerry might drive up.

Her thought changed quickly. Jerry was coming out of the water with the morning's take under his arm.

Pam waited expectantly. His car was parked on Duval Street. She knew he would have to come her way.

But as Jerry started toward the beach, Pam saw the girl rise and walk out on the hard sand near the water's edge. Evidently she intended speaking to Jerry.

As Pam watched, the girl halted. Jerry stopped a moment, staring, and then moved slowly toward her. They stood talking for a moment. Pam had an uncomfortable sense of something pending. Even at a distance there was something familiar in their attitude, as if they'd often talked before.

Pam was a trace ashamed of the flush of jealousy that momentarily consumed her. Jerry and the girl had turned their backs toward her now and were looking in the direction of the Casa Marina. They were completely unaware of her.

Pam took that moment to slip back over the wall and hurry along the street toward her home. Jerry must not think she would spy on him. Besides, something about it hurt. Surely Jerry had a right to talk to other women. She didn't want to deny him friendships. But something had seemed to grip her heart and squeeze it to pain as she watched Jerry and the girl on the beach.

Pam hurried home. Jerry was in his car, so he would probably reach there before she did. Foolish of her to run away like that. She should have been sensible and walked right up to them and joined their conversation. It couldn't have been anything private with a strange girl like that. But that was the trouble. Their attitude hadn't been that of strangers!

No Answer

Jerry hadn't arrived when Pam reached home. In fact, the morning was well on its way before she heard Jerry's car in the drive. Pam had, during the time she had waited worked herself into a state of nervousness. She moved slowly to let Jerry in. She wanted to be polite and casually friendly, give no sign that anything out of the ordinary had happened.

Jerry, grinning at the door, saw nothing unusual about her.

"How's my business girl?" he asked as he gave her the armful of sea fern. "Beauties this time. And I waited for them to dry a little before bringing them to you."

Pam looked up at him. His face told her nothing. The same frank eyes and guileless smile. Apparently he wasn't going to speak of the girl, and Pam could not. She regretted more than ever not having joined them on the beach. Everything would have been explained then.

Now it would probably never be explained and, although Pam was sure the girl was just some tourist who'd had more than the usual run of tourist questions with which to ply the first person she met, it was difficult to be completely satisfied with that explanation.

"You'll have lunch with me, of course?" Pam suggested, and was somewhat relieved when Jerry said: "Is that an invitation, sweet? It's accepted with a thousand thanks. If you hadn't asked me, I'd have begged you to let me."

All through luncheon Pam waited for some mention of the girl on the beach, but there was none.

Several times she asked questions designed to bring some mention of his encounter. Did he see anyone he knew at the beach? Had he stayed long after getting the fern?

But Jerry's answers, while not actual untruths, were evasive. And Pam's heart grew heavy with fear. He was as tenderly considerate as ever. Indeed, he seemed even more loath than usual to go and let Pam get back to her work. And Pam, smiling, even though pain pinched at her heart, shooed him along.

"I've got things to do and places to go. After all, I'm a working girl. Probably," she added, looking at him intently and wondering if he would make any revealing reply, "the first one you've ever known?"

For, even at a distance, the girl on the beach had not looked like Jerry's girl. There had been some subtle difference between her and Jerry's sister and the girls of his set.

Jerry's reply told her nothing. "You're the sweetest girl I've ever known," he said, kissing her swiftly on the tip of her ear.

After she had made deliveries in the afternoon, waiting time alone to think, Pam rode out. She came and sat on the steps of a deserted house, a castle, a sort of landmark in the section. She had seen there only a short time when a car turned in the drive and swung around back of the house. Pam, hidden by overgrown shrubbery, had been startled by a glimpse of the driver and her companion.

Lenore Winthrop was at the wheel of the car, and beside her sat Jim Perry, whom Pam knew by sight and reputation only. He wasn't the sort for Lenore to be with.

Talk With May

Pam wondered what she should do. Lenore probably had no idea of what Jim Perry was like, how he was regarded in Key West. Pam completely forgot her difference with Lenore, the other girl's snubbing of her, in her wish to shield Jerry's sister from some unpleasant result of her friendship with Jim.

Jim, handsome, reckless, had always made a play for winter women and it was whispered about town that most of his living came from a sort of magic at Bolito and played it for them with their money.

But the supposition about town was that Jim bought very few Bolito tickets.

Pam got up quietly and started away on her bicycle. No use embarrassing Lenore by letting her know that she had been seen parking in that secluded place, the back drive of a deserted house out of the village proper.

Meantime, Jerry had gone about important activities of his own at another end of the island.

He was sitting at a table in a dusky corner of Raoul's, out Roosevelt Boulevard. It was still afternoon. Raoul's was always dusky in the afternoon. It never lighted to activity until night. That was one reason why Jerry had chosen the place for his talk with May Frisbee. There would be no one there who might carry word of their meeting back to his family or, more important, to Pam. Pam, of all people, just never knew of May.

May had a small glass of amber liquid and another larger one of water in front of her. Jerry was not drinking. May was smiling at him oddly.

"All right," she was saying. "That's your story, and you're sticking to it. The old man's broke, and that means you're broke. So what?"

"It should be obvious, May," Jerry replied.

"There's only one language I understand. Plain words."

"All right then. In plain words, it's too bad you came down here."

May, I can't even give you the money to get back with. Wonder you wouldn't have saved a little when you had it coming your way. You've held good jobs. Why don't you grab yourself one again? Work!" The last came scornfully.

"Might be good for what ails you?" Who are you to talk? I don't see that any of your people took any special preparation for the good old rainy day that always comes! Unless you're lying to me?"

"I'm not lying," Jerry answered quietly.

May looked at him intently for an instant. "I believe you aren't," she said finally. "You hate me so much all of a sudden you'd be glad to pay me to keep out of your sight."

"You have a way of getting at the truth of things, May," Jerry said dryly.

"Well, what are you going to do?" May asked.

"Do? About what?"

"Jerry, I've never known you to ask obvious questions before. About me, of course. Your discarded and broken-hearted sweetheart!"

"Can't you find some else to pick on?" Jerry's exasperation was evident in his voice. "We were never anything but playmates. You never even wanted love from me, and I never wanted it from you. You've been well paid for the time you've spent with me."

SORORITY PIN IN WRONG PLACE UNCOVERS THEFTS

Oklahoma City.—(AP)—A mystery yarn entitled: Mystery of the Jewel Box, was uncovered by Miss Virginia Winters when she peered into the window of a second hand shop and recognized a sorority sister's sorority pin there.

"Surely Sally couldn't have been so hungry she had to pawn it," said Miss Winters.

She hurried to Sally's home and asked her about it. Sally was surprised and scurried to the family jewel box. It was practically empty.

The result: Sally reported to police someone had rifled the box "during the past six or eight weeks" and pawned $300 worth of jewelry in various stores.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

ADVENTURE IN GOOD WILL

A certain organization in New York City sends boys and girls from congested districts up into the north country every year, and farmers and city dwellers give them board and lodging for two weeks. Recently I had occasion to be at a railroad station when a large group of these youngsters were going back to the city. It was a scene of good cheer, touched with the shadow of sadness at parting. Children of different races were there, and their vacation parents held them by the hand and seemed as proud of them as if they had been their own.

I could not help but think what a fine lot of folks Americans are. We criticize our people sometimes, but there probably has never lived on the face of the earth a group of people having more kindly impulses than do these, our contemporaries and fellow citizens.

There was no reward offered, no board bill paid. The whole thing was an adventure in good will.

One little girl was asked what she wanted to take back to the city with her, and she gave an answer that is worth pondering. "I want a bag of dirt," she said, "the dirt that the pretty flowers and trees grow out of." She was expressing an impulse which next to that of parental love is the deepest thing in our nature, namely humanity's desire to make contacts with the soil from which we have come and to which we shall all return.

REJECT PLAN TO FEED EUROPE

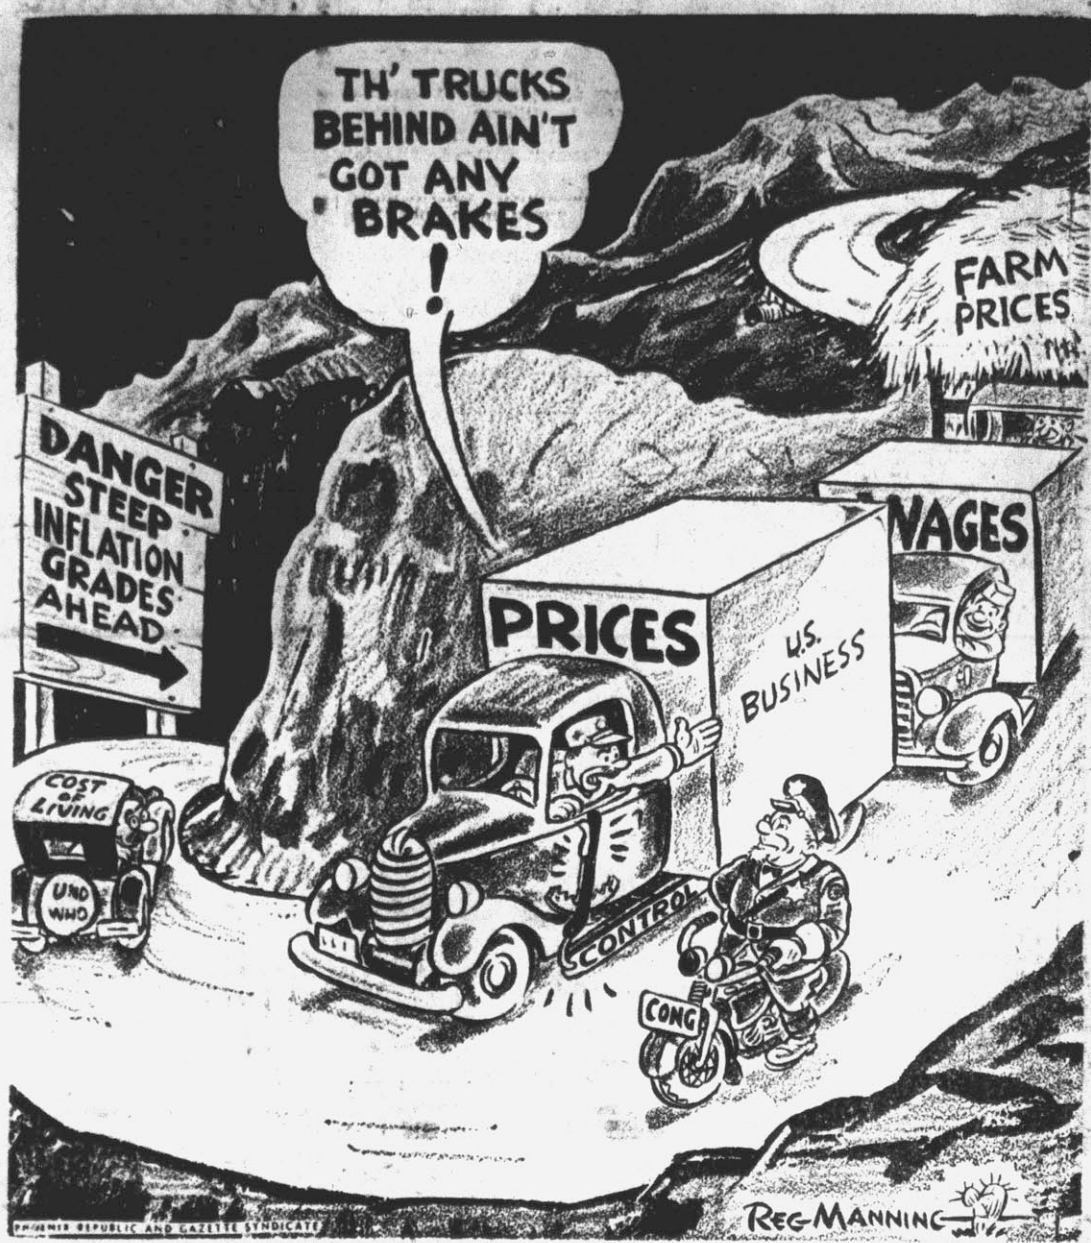

The United States government has again rejected the Hoover plan for feeding the small democracies of Europe under Hitler's domination. The plan has its humanitarian points, but the Allies have decided, and rightfully, that any plan to help the starving French, Greeks, Poles and Belgians must be subordinated to the main war objective—to wipe out the Nazis.

Without examining the problem closely, to help those suffering people would seem a step in that direction. Proponents of the Hoover plan argue that a well-fed enemy of the Nazis on the continent will be more tempted to revolt. Such is not the case. The French and Russian revolutions serve as points of argument. A cruel government's greatest time of danger is at hand when the people under its yoke are starving.

Sympathy is a fine thing, but sympathy and the feeding of Hitler's charges are not going to beat Hitler. The German government assumed the duty of feeding Europe when it conquered most of the continent, and any plan to relieve Hitler of his burden will only prolong the war. It is hard to understand why the appeal is persistently made to the U. S. Government to back this plan when all logic and facts are against it.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden has announce-

ed that the only plan of the Allies to feed the hungry is now in the form of a vast reservoir of food and other supplies to feed the hungry on the continent—after Hitler is beaten. The prospective fulfillment of this plan should offer enough incentive for timely revolt among the hungry of Europe. And they are engaged in that now.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stappert

Washington—Almost any senator or representative who comes to Congress—and is worth his salt—has a cause.

Sometimes the causes are motivated by sectional economy—the copper men from Arizona, the cotton men from the South, the dairy men from Wisconsin, et al. Sometimes the causes spring from no apparent reason at all; sometimes from campaign battles, or local legislative wars.

Into this last category falls the case of W. Lee O'Daniel, the freshman senator from Texas, who has earned the unwieldy nickname of "Pass the Biscuits, Pappy" and has caused more raised eyebrows among old-line politicians than any one since the days of Rush Holt and the late Huey Long.

There seems now to be no doubt about the string on which Senator O'Daniel is harping. It's not a new chord, but one that no federal legislator has been able to make music with yet. In O'Daniel's own words, his is a fight to take "force and violence," or the threat of same, away from "labor union racketeers."

He's Tried Twice

Before the ink was dry on the new senator's authorization to take his seat in the upper chamber, he chucked a coal on the fire by introducing legislation to outlaw strikes in defense industries.

As the senator himself explains it, "I introduced a bill in the United States Senate that would make force and violence in strikes punishable by prison sentence. In fact, I introduced it twice; once as a bill and once as an amendment to another bill. The amendment was acted on and killed by a voice vote of No's which sounded louder to me than the roar of a gang of rowdy professional politicians at the Beaumont (Tex.) convention."

"After the roar subsided, I asked another senator to ask that the vote be reconsidered and the ayes and nays called for."

"He said no, he would not do that, as there were too many senators who didn't want to make a record of their votes on that question. I finally got Senator Eastland of Mississippi, who has been in the Senate only about a month longer than I, to ask for reconsidering and a vote ayes and nays, but we couldn't get enough votes to force an aye-and-nay vote."

There you have a perfect picture of the trials and tribulations of a freshman senator who comes to Washington with a cause, but you haven't the end of the O'Daniel story. His bill, of course, is resting quietly in committee. O'Daniel probably knows by now that it could lie there until the end of time.

An Amendment, Yet

That, no doubt, is why O'Daniel got the floor the other day and threw the Senate (where form is formula, and you can argue any side of any question so long as you stay in line with tradition) another hot potato. He introduced a joint resolution for an amendment to the United States Constitution.

The amendment would read:

"No person shall be denied employment because of membership in or affiliation with or resignation from a labor union; or because of refusal to join or affiliate with a labor union; nor shall any corporation or individual or association of any kind enter into contract, written or oral, to exclude from employment members of a labor union or persons who refuse to join a labor union; nor shall any person against his will be compelled to pay dues to any labor organization as a prerequisite to or condition of employment."

There's more to it than that, but those are the essentials, and certainly enough to show, with what has gone before, that Senator W. Lee O'Daniel has got himself a cause.

Short Shots

Reflector Bureau.

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Oct. 8.—As three counties prepare to vote on the question of keeping or outlawing ABC liquor stores, it does not seem out of order to cite any evidence available on the effectiveness of legal prohibition in any of these 74 counties and by statute.

So here's a story from one of North Carolina's sprightliest and best written papers—the Charlotte News.

It's headed "Liquor Prices Here Rise Sharply as Result of New Federal Tax." Remember that Charlotte is in "dry" Mecklenburg.

"Patrons of local bootleggers of Federal tax-paid liquors felt the pinch of the new Defense Tax last night when they called their favorite numbers and placed their orders."

"Last night all prices in Charlotte were advanced 15 and 20 cents a pint. Those who bought the brands that sold for $1.25 a year ago and which have been selling at $1.50 in recent months were charged $1.65 last night."

"Prices in nearby Fort Mill, S. C., where there are five liquor stores have also advanced about 20 cents a pint, according to thirsty Charlotte residents who have visited that place since Wednesday when the new tax became effective."

"Typical advances in local liquor prices are: Shipping Port, advanced from $1.40 to $1.60 and Seagram's Five Crowns advanced from $1.60 to $1.80."

And so it seems that it is not only possible to buy liquor in a dry county, but even for the newspapers to carry prices down to the various brands. Charlotte and Mecklenburg, however, get no revenue except, perhaps, through the fine route.

This And That

Despite the Attorney General's recent opinion that even an elective course in Bible could very easily run afoul of the constitutional provision for liberty of worship, at least one high school (Drexel in Burke county) has such a course this year in addition to the regular state curriculum. The Highland high school for Negroes in Gastonia has trade classes in bricklaying and concrete work and in plastering and other interior construction work. Hinton James, commissioner of game and inland fisheries, has recently pointed out that soldiers, sailors, marines and members of the armed forces of the United States are not exempt from buying hunting and fishing licenses in

★ AMERICANA ★ Apple Butter

By RAY PEACOCK
AP Feature Service Writer

TOO many cooks may spoil the broth, but too many cooks can't spoil the apple butter. Because every one is liable to add a pinch of cinnamon just for luck, and you can't be stingy with the cinnamon and have good apple butter.

Ever taste apple butter made out of doors, in a big iron kettle of the Mayflower era? Life has cheated you out of one of its good things if you haven't, for that kind of apple butter has a flavor and tang all its own.

If there's a little wood ash in it, so much the better. Good oak and apple ashes never hurt any food, and you have to eat your peck of dirt some way, don't you?

You have to have a big veal roast or it just isn't any good. Apple butter is the same way.

It should be made by the gallon and not by the pint. For one thing, the menfolks are liable to stop by for a sample when it's in the making, and you need something left to put up for the winter.

And the cooking of it ought to be a family ceremony, with Ma bossing her grown up daughters and a daughter-in-law or two. Best spot for the job is right out in the apple orchard, especially if it's next to the wood lot.

Not all of us, of course, have got an apple orchard or a wood lot or even a Mayflower kettle. And some of us have to get our apple butter over the counter, in tin cans or glass jars. Maybe they still put it up in crocks, but I haven't seen any for a long time.

Even then, it tastes pretty good. If it doesn't—well, you always can add cinnamon!

North Carolina. They will, however, be sold licenses on the same basis as resident Tar Heels. "It is manifestly impractical to waive all license requirements for service men. This could not be done under the law."

Raleigh's mayor has backed-tracked in the matter of letting the Memorial auditorium be used free of charge for soldiers' dances, but it took an appeal from Governor J. M. Broughton to turn the trick.

From "Canada's War Record," a governmental information sheet, it is learned that more than 100,000 Canadians are in overseas service; while 220,000 more have volunteered for service anywhere for the duration of the war. That makes 320,000 in active service, with 170,000 more in the reserve army. The U. S. having about ten times Canada's population, those figures are the equivalent of an active service army of 3,200,000 for the United States.

Hollywood

Sights and Sounds

By Bobbie Coats

Hollywood.—Kipling wrote "The Jungle Book" and there's another book to be written about the jungle in Hollywood built for the filming of "The Jungle Book."

It's a lovely, soul-satisfying jungle—especially when the black panthers and the elephants et. als are outside the sound stage, respectively caged on tethers.

You never saw such beautiful wild greenery in such artistically arranged profusion and confusion—ferns from Oregon and long brown "hops" of wild grapevine from Louisiana; orchids from the flower-makers, and exotic potted plants and splendid spider-webs fresh and gummy from the spouts of the movie web-spinners. And no varmints from the insect world, no malarial bugs, no chiggers. Just a jungle de luxe, a la mode, dressed for technicolor.

They tell me Vincent Korda is never quite happy with it, however. Vincent is the Korda brother who art-directs, Zoltan being the producer. They tell me Vincent arranges and arranges, and after a day's shooting he arranges some more, not being content with the stance of a fern frond or the hang of a tropic vine. This used to cause consternation, the next day, when it came to matching new shots with yesterday's, but Vincent would be reasonable about arranging things. Back the way they were, Vincent is an artist, never satisfied with an effect.

It is a jungle like no other. It's too bad you won't see it on the screen as is. What you'll see is a rich, many-domed, many-turreted castle looming far away through the tangled growth, with a herd of elephants grazing in front of it. Actually, the castle is about 15 feet high, suspended over the jungle. When Lee Garmes turns his camera that way, and the elephants (life-size and real) are grazing the other side of the castle, the camera does a neat trick in perspective. They figured that one out, with painstaking tests. Even in the movies, it's no mean job to lift up four or five life-sized elephants and place them in the foreground when they're actually in the background.

In the cellars of that castle (we have to go to another sound stage to reach them) is the long-forbidden, fabulous treasure that Mowgli (Sabu) discovers. And here we run smack into a sorry state of affairs; even a poor movie producer, trying to strew around an impressive pile of gold and rich jewels, runs into the shortage problem.

sonable about it, and never once did they think of using real gold pieces for their treasure pile. But like the plaintive king in the nursery rhyme who did like a bit of butter to his bread, they did hope to get something with a metallic clink. What have we here, strewn richly over the foundation of burlap bags? Gilded poste-board poker chips, in the main. And the all-essential clinking, when Mowgli handles the gold? Well, they found some metal "gold" pieces left over from the 1939 San Francisco Exposition, along with some China Clipper memorial coins of the same year, and those are all the clinking you'll hear.

In a treasure cave, running rich with rubies, pearls, and other precious stones and jeweled ornaments, they needed tillage—but they couldn't have it. And here they hit upon an economy. Instead of metal work, they've used lace. Gilded and glued, it substitutes convincingly, probably will continue to substitute in the future.

You'll be seeing "The Jungle Book" around Christmas, and maybe you'll be saying (if you're the saying kind) that this treasure looks pretty but it's just a pile of paste. You'll be quite right—but it's about $3,000 worth of paste at that.

ROCKY MOUNT OFFERS RACING

Championship Auto Events Scheduled For Sunday

Rocky Mount, Oct. 8.—Major championship automobile racing will be unfolded at the Rocky Mount Fair on Sunday afternoon, October 12, with the staccato roar of high speed motors, the odor of burning castor oil, the thrills, spills, spills that will accompany the first C. S. R. A. sanctioned speed card.

Ralph Hankinson, veteran producer of Three-A sanctioned speed events, is now affiliated with the fastest speedway circuit in the world and brings 15 famous drivers—two of whom finished this year in the Indianapolis 500-mile race—to present the most thrilling sports show of the season to Eastern Carolina.

Ted Horn, third place winner in the 500-mile classic, and Tommy Hinnershitz, placing tenth in the same show, will show their fame and ability against a field that is reputed to be the best assembled this year. Racing for fat purses and prize points has lured these stars to the circuit which includes the Rocky Mount show.

Jole Chitwood, Cherokee Indian winner of the eastern Triple-A crown in 1939; Les Adair, sensational Indianapolis dare-devil suspended for unsanctioned racing in 1940 but now reinstated; Don Smith, speed merchant of Havana, Cuba; Bobby Sall, former eastern dirt track champion; Rex Records of Philadelphia, and Johnny Shackelford, of Dayton, are among the racers who will participate.

JOHN BROWN'S VEST RETURNS FROM THE GRAVE

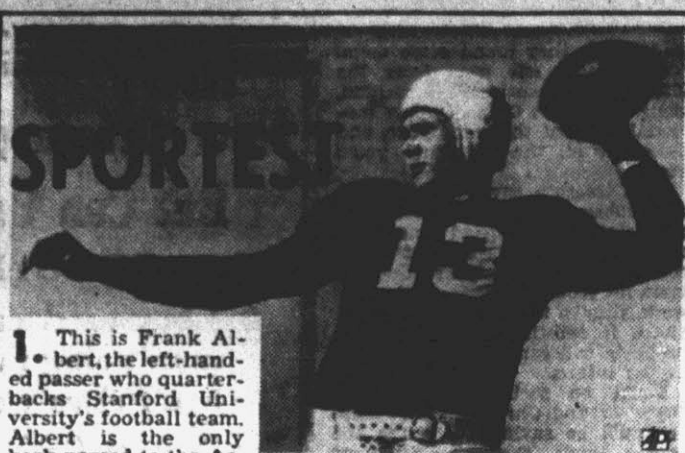

Brunswick, Md. — (AP) — John Brown wore a vest to his hanging at Charles Town, W. Va., in 1859, and thereby created a tax problem for the state of Maryland some 80 years later.

The vest, brown with red polka dots, was saved from the personal effects of the celebrated Harper's Ferry abolitionist by the Charles Town Jail, and popped up here as part of an estate.

And the domain tax collectors of Maryland proclaimed that the garment must be duly appraised and most assuredly, taxed.

Orphans' court officials found a local historian who was willing to undertake the assignment. After some research, he set the valuation at $50—probably 10 times what J. B. paid for it.

CITIES NEED OF IMMUNIZATION

Report Shows 233 Diphtheria Cases In Month

Reflector Bureau.

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Oct. 8.—Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, North Carolina's aggressive health officer, took one look at the September report showing 233 diphtheria cases reported last month, recalled that there are annually some 2,500; then lashed out vigorously at failure to obey the state law making mandatory the immunization of children under five years old.

He pointed to medical evidence that immunization is absolute protection in at least 98 per cent of all cases and added that there is no possible or valid excuse for the prevalence of diphtheria in North Carolina.

He queried "Who is responsible?" and after calling attention to the law enacted by the 1939 General Assembly, laid the primary blame on parents—who are the persons specifically designated as the parties who must see that the immunizing doses are administered.

"At the same time, it is general knowledge that there are parents ignorant of the law and even of the existence of an immunizing agent. They should be educated. Then the health authorities cannot escape a secondary responsibility—it is their duty to follow through, check up and see that the law is obeyed," he said.

The September statistics which brought the Reynolds comment showed 233 cases reported during the month, against 153 for September of 1940 and only 77 in August this year.

That represented an increase of more than 50 per cent over last year's September total and 200 per cent over the preceding month.

More than a quarter of the reported cases came from a comparatively small four-county area. In the western Piedmont, Burke reported 28, Cleveland 15, McDowell 11 and Mitchell 10, for an aggregate of 64 for the four, which lie in one geographic group.

Dr. Reynolds declared that parents, school officials and health officers of these counties should all be charged with responsibility for the diphtheria cases.

"We've reduced the typhoid cases in the state to about 145 to 150 a year; but the large number of diphtheria cases gives real justification for the statement of that great United States health department official, Dr. Parran, that it is a disgrace," he declared.

Indicating that even the larger and more wealthy counties with big health department budgets are not doing their full duty are statistics that in September there were 11 cases in Forsyth (six in the city of Winston-Salem); while Wake reported seven cases; Mecklenburg 3; and Guilford 2 (none in Greensboro or High Point).

Of the four counties which led in September cases, two (McDowell and Mitchell) have no health officers.

The 1939 law provides, in brief: That every parent or guardian of any child between the age of six and twelve months shall have administered to it an immunizing dose of a prophylactic diphtheria agent which meets the standard approved by the United States Public Health Service.

The same provision for mandatory immunization is laid down for all children between 12 months and five years who have not already received an immunizing dose.

Provision is made for parents to have the immunizing dose administered by the physician of their choice; with the added provision that if any parent is unable to pay for it the dose shall be administered free of charge by the county health officer.

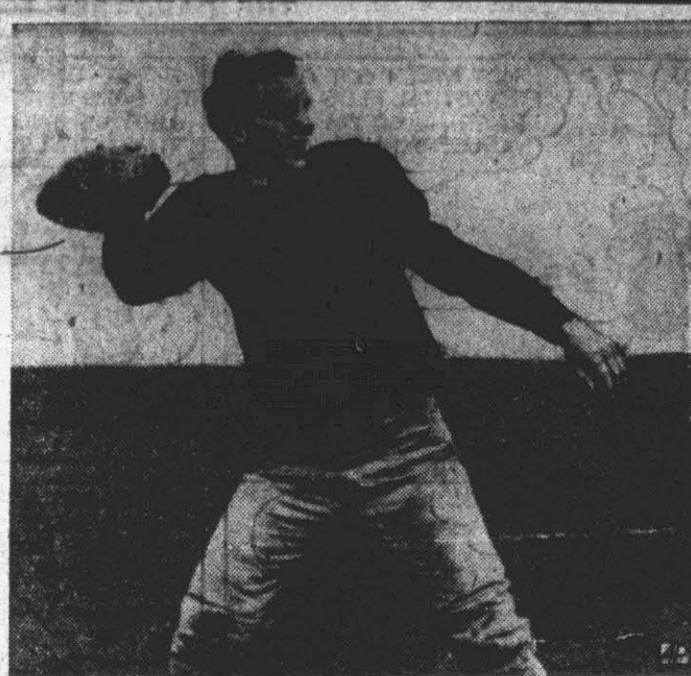

In counties where there are no regularly employed health officers the child may be presented to the county physician who shall give the dose without charge.

A certificate of immunization must be filled out by the physician giving the dose and submitted to the local health officer, or to the county physician in cases where there is no health officer. Such certificates shall be kept on file as permanent records by the local county registrar for births.

Willful violation is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than $50 or by imprisonment for not more than 30 days, in the court's discretion.

Only exceptions made are for children whose parents or guardian are bona fide members of a religious organization whose teachings are contrary to the use of immunizing doses.

Upon admission to any public private or parochial school in North Carolina the certificate of immunization shall be presented to school authorities. No certificate is

Those are the answers you get when you add up all the assets the best estimators of German oil stocks can discover, and subtract the most conservative estimates of military and domestic consumption. The most complete basic estimates of German oil production and assets concededly is contained in the Louis E. Frechling report to the Foreign Policy association.

Liabilities are figures from both German and American military estimates of consumption for motorized armies, including the oil eating panzers. These outfits can lap up close to 40,000 gallons of gas and oil a day. The liabilities also include the staggering item of 100,000,000 barrels of oil required since the start of the war for absolute rock-bottom domestic use in Germany, Italy, and conquered areas of Europe.

As for reserves at the start of the war, Italy was known to have had one year's supply, or about 22,000,000 barrels. German estimates of reserves are quite impossible to ascertain, but American petroleum storage men have estimated Italian reserves from 25,000,000 to 100,000,000 at the start of the war. Thus a mean of 50,000,000 barrels is used here.

Startling among estimates is the German annual production of 30

COLORED NEWS

On Friday night, October 3, the Lang's 4-H club had its regular monthly meeting with Peggy Jones as hostess. It was the most successful meeting that the club has thus far had, all of its members except two being present and several new ones joining.

After the business session was completed the girls and boys separated to discuss projects. Miss Kirby took charge of the girls and Mr. Griggs the boys. With the girls Miss Kirby discussed room improvement. She stressed the importance of improving the bedroom, since it is the most private place a girl has for herself.

When the girls and boys had finished discussing their projects they assembled together again and played indoor games.

At conclusion of the meeting the hostess served ice cream and cakes.

Students In Plea For Improvements

By a unanimous vote of the student cooperative association of Greenville High School, the following resolutions were accepted:

- Realizing more keenly than any other group the deficiencies existing in the high school program as a result of inadequate space, the student body of Greenville High School through the Student Council should like to urge all citizens interested in the progress of the city to register and vote for the $250,000 bond issue in the forthcoming election, October 28.
- Aware of our over-crowded conditions in classrooms, halls, gymnasium and auditorium; aware of inadequate facilities in many departments; and aware of the need of more space to carry on an effective physical education and health program, effective music and dramatic program, and efficient classroom program, the Student Cooperative Association of Greenville High School hereby resolves:
- That all students in high school inform their parents as accurately as possible of the needs of the school.
- That students invite their parents to visit the high school as often as possible in an effort to help them become more familiar with our several needs.
- That every parent who is a qualified voter show his interest in the school by registering and by voting for the $250,000 bond issue on October 28.
- That these resolutions favoring a school expansion program be sent to the daily papers, the school paper, the board of trustees, the city aldermen, and each home-room in the high school.

Other groups which have endorsed the school bond issue include the Board of Aldermen, the City School Board, the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants Association and the Lions Club.

High Court Rules For Health Board

Raleigh, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The State Supreme court held unconstitutional today local laws passed by the 1941 General Assembly which gave the Nash county Board of Commissioners a veto power in the selection of a county health officer.

The opinion in the case was written by Associate Justice A. A. F.

SHARP DECLINE IN FATALITIES

Eight Killed On Eastern N. C. Highway In Month

September showed a sharp decrease in the number of highway accidents in the 30 counties comprising Troop A last month, compared with 18 the previous month. The 98 accidents investigated in September exceeded by eight the 90 in the previous month. Non-fatal injuries sustained on the highways in September totaled 77, one more than the number in August.

A total of 699 arrests were made last month, 83 of them being on charges of driving drunk, while a total of 525 arrests, 60 for driving drunk, were recorded in August.

Of the total number arrested, 697 were convicted and 18 acquitted. Sentences meted out amounted to 34 years, three months and 10 days. Fines totaled $7,778.33 and costs $5,748.84.

The patrol force recovered stolen property valued at $7,875 and collected $2,036.33 in highway revenue, such as from overloaded trucks, improper licenses, etc.

In traveling over 198,533 miles in the month, the patrol force reported the following additional activities: Vehicles inspected, 11,591; equipment tickets issued, 303; light tickets issued, 154; lights corrected, 7,275; warning tickets issued, 78; court cases extended, 1,398; cars recovered, 17; vehicles stored, 18; vehicles weighed, 158, with 86 found to be overloaded; complaints investigated, 699; fires extinguished, two; first aid rendered six; citations, 1,230.

Seawall Chief Justice W. F. Stacey and Associate Justice J. Wallace Winbourne dissented on grounds that proceedings should be dismissed. Associate Justice M. V. Barnhill took no part in the consideration of the case.

Thus, the vote of the seven-man court was four to two in favor of the plaintiffs—the Nash County Board of Health.

Cautions Farmers Of Fire Hazards

Pointing out that the nation's farmers lost ten cents out of every dollar they earned last year through fire or other serious accident, Vernon E. White, county supervisor for the Farm Security Administration, urged Pitt county farmers to pay particular attention to National Fire Prevention Week this year.

"The annual bill for farm accidents is estimated at one billion dollars or roughly one-tenth of the gross farm income last year. These accidents of the farm cost the lives of 4,400 farmers last year."

Emphasizing that fire is one of the farmer's deadliest enemies, it is pointed out that October 5 to 11 is National Fire Prevention Week and Pitt county farmers should take this time to check up on fire hazards on their farms.

Over 350,000 fires occur throughout the country annually, killing more than 5,000 people and causing a billion-dollar damage.

Isolated locations, many farm homes and their distance from city fire fighting apparatus caused the toll of farm property to be particularly high.

He warned farmers to check carefully on lighting and wiring facilities in their homes and barns; to check construction of chimneys and flues; to make sure stoves and stove pipe connections are safe, and that roofing material is fireproof, if possible. He also warned against careless handling and storing of gasoline and kerosene—two common causes of farm fires. Smoking around barns where sparks may ignite unsupervised litter should be avoided. He stressed the importance of keeping several good fire extinguishers handy, as well as buckets and pails placed in convenient spots.

Any farmer who would like information about spotting fire hazards and fire fighting methods, may stop by the Farm Security office in the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company building for the United States Department of Agriculture leaflet No. 44 on fire prevention.

A definite plan will be worked out tonight and will be presented to the churches and school board for final action.

The sub-committee is composed of J. H. Rose, chairman; V. M. Mollholland, secretary; two members of the Ministerial Association, all ministers not members of the association, two members of the school board and two members of the high school faculty.

Women Urged to Sign Up For Nurse's Aide Corps

100,000 Volunteers Wanted—Red Cross trains Nurse's Aides for Civilian Defense work. Shown at right, Jane Womack in new type uniform, serving as a volunteer aide in Georgetown University Hospital Washington.

"WHAT can I do for my country?" is asked by thousands of patriotic women and girls who want to volunteer their time in the present emergency situation facing the nation.

The American Red Cross, through its many volunteer activities, provides the answer. The most urgent need, at the moment, is for qualified girls and women to enroll for training as Volunteer Nurse's Aides, according to Mrs. Dwight Davis, director of the American Red Cross Volunteer Special Services.

In collaboration with the Office of Civilian Defense, the Red Cross is enrolling and instructing 100,000 women and girls as aides to graduate nurses. They are needed to offset the acute shortage of professionally trained nurses.

Women, between the ages of 18 and 50, physically fit and able to serve several hours a week without pay, are urged to enroll through their local Red Cross chapters to take an intensive 80 hours instruction course in cooperation with local hospital and nursing organizations.

The aides help the graduate nurses in hospitals, clinics, home visiting nurse agencies, health departments, school health services and industrial hygiene clinics.

They make beds, take temperatures, give baths, attend to the patient's personal needs, serve meals, set up trays for treatment, weigh and measure children, etc., and undertake a number of vital necessary duties that will release the graduate nurse for the more technical work for which she is so badly needed.

It's A Wonderful Age Big Island, Va.—(AP)—Even the chickens are taking this defense business seriously. Mrs. J. E. Manley killed a chicken, cut open the gizzard, and found seven .22 calibre cartridges.

PROGRAM FELT BY EMPLOYERS

Tar Heels Pay Heavily For Social Security Setup

Reflector Bureau. By HENRY AYERBELL. Raleigh, Oct. 8.—There is a general impression that the United States government provides the greater part of the money paid out to all sorts of beneficiaries of the vast Social Security program; though of course everybody who stops to think knows that whatever federal funds are paid out that way come direct from taxes levied on the citizens of all the states.

It will probably be surprising to many to learn that of some $46,000,000 distributed under the S. S. program in North Carolina the largest separate contribution came not from federal funds but directly out of the pockets of Tar Heel employers.

Here is a breakdown, as figured by Mike Dunagan of the U. S. C.'s informational division, showing what units contributed how much to the benefits paid out in the state.

The total to be distributed was $46,200,000 and it was supplied thus: By North Carolina employers subject to the unemployment compensation act $18,300,000 or 39.6 per cent; by the United States $14,000,000 or 30.3 per cent; by the state of North Carolina $7,600,000 or 16.4 per cent; and by the counties of North Carolina $6,300,000 or 13.6 per cent.

It should be pointed out that this $46,200,000 does not include sums paid out in benefits in North Carolina from the old-age and survivors insurance program. This would run up the percentage paid by Tar Heel employers and would bring Tar Heel employers into the picture as contributors, because funds for the O. A. and S. insurance come from both classes.

There should be added to the money coming from federal sources the amount spent in administrative costs.

Air Mail The Hard Way. Thermopolis, Wyo.—(AP)—Ed Walsh was hunting near Moneta, 15 miles from the nearest road, when he saw an unopened letter in a clump of sagebrush. Picking it up, he was startled to read the name and address of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Caroline Fuller of Bonneville, Wyo. The letter was postmarked in Missouri and was dated May 12, 1939. Walsh believes it must have blown away when it was being unloaded with other mail at Bonneville, more than 60 miles away.
