NAZI DECLARES SOVIET UNION FINISHED

Says It's Time U. S. Stop Playing Into Hitler's Hands

FDR Seeks Power Arm U.S. Vessels

Chief Executive, In Asking Congress To Revise Neutrality Act, Leaves Door Open For Further Revisions; Asserts That It Is Time For United States To Unshackle Its Own Hands

Washington, Oct. 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, asserting it was time for the United States to "stop playing into Hitler's hands, and to unshackle our own," urged Congress today to revise the neutrality act speedily to permit the arming of American merchant vessels.

In a special message he also left the door open for further revision later to wipe out another major prohibition, that of preventing American cargo ships to travel to belligerent ports.

Saying that Adolf Hitler "has offered a challenge which we as Americans cannot and will not tolerate," the President said:

"We will not let Hitler prescribe the waters of the world in which our ships may travel. The American flag is not going to be driven from the seas, either by his submarines, his airplanes, or his fleets. We cannot permit the affirmative defense of our rights to be annulled and diluted by sections of the neutrality act, which have no realism in the light of unscrupulous ambitions of mad men."

"We Americans have determined our course."

"We intend to maintain the security and the integrity and the honor of our country."

"We intend to maintain the policy of protecting the freedom of the seas against domination by any foreign power which has become crazed with a desire to control the world. We shall do so with all our strength and all our heart and all our mind."

Administration leaders moved rapidly to implement the President's message, introducing bills in both houses to repeal the neutrality act provision against the bombing of American merchant vessels.

Resolutions offered in the Senate by Chairman Connally (D-Texas) and in the House by Chairman Bloom (D-N.Y.) of the Foreign Affairs Committee, during the period of national emergency to arm or permit the arming of American merchantmen.

Declaring it was obvious that world conditions had changed violently since the first neutrality act was passed in 1935, the President said:

"The revisions which I suggest do not call for a declaration of war any more than the lend-lease act calls for a declaration of war. This is a matter of essential defense of American rights."

Mr. Roosevelt said it was an "imperative need now to equip American merchant vessels with arms."

Even before the message appeared, demands arose in the Senate that modification of the law go beyond a rescinding of the bans against arming merchantmen.

According to the National Bureau of Economic Research, although population increased only two and a half times, there was an eight-fold increase in output of commodities between 1879 and 1939.

NOTICE Rural Subscribers

For the convenience of our rural subscribers who would like to pay their subscriptions during their visit to town Saturday afternoon, our business office will again remain open Saturday of this week, instead of closing at the usual two o'clock hour.

While tobacco is selling high and money is more plentiful than usual a good time to renew your subscription for another year. Check the label on your paper and if your date is prior to 10-10-41, it's time to pay up again.

STRIKE HALTS STEEL OUTPUT AT N.Y. PLANT

Buffalo Forge Busy On $13,470,000 Defense Order

UNION DEMANDS WAGE INCREASES

Construction On Texas Ordnance Depot At Standstill; Tennessee Steel Mills Made Idle

(By The Associated Press)
The Buffalo, (N. Y.) forge, busy with $13,470,000 in defense orders, was struck today by CIO steel workers in a dispute over higher wages, bargaining conferences and reinstatement of three discharged union men.

The Steel Workers Organizing Committee, claiming a majority of the plant's 1,500 employees, called the walkout 24 hours after an authorization vote of 387 to 27. Union sources said their wage demands were a 10 cents increase in the present basic scale of 44 to 50 cents an hour.

Construction of the government's $5,000,000 San Jacinto (Texas) ordnance depot was at a standstill today because of an American Federation of Labor strike, but some progress was achieved toward settlement of a similar strike at an $11,000,000 ordnance plant near Texarkana, in the same state.

A complete halt in steel making operations occurred at the vast Fairfield steel mills of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company near Birmingham. AFL electricians and machinists struck here last night, closing manufacturing units. A spokesman said the strike was called because the CIO Steel Workers Organizing Committee had established a card inspection line outside the plant and had refused to permit anyone but CIO members to enter. He added that the AFL union had petitioned the National Labor Relations Board for a collective bargaining agency election and had agreed to remain at work if no additional CIO card inspections were allowed.

Average Thus Far Near 1934 Figure

With approximately 650,000 pounds of tobacco on the warehouse floors at the start of sales this morning, including much low grade tobacco, prices continued in line with those of recent sales days which have boosted the season's average to 30.58. Indications are that by the end of the week the general average will have reached the 31 cents per pound figure.

In fact, the general average is steadily climbing toward the 1934 figure of 31.21, the highest since the peak year of 1919.

Offerings to date total 36,981,542 pounds, sold for $11,310,432.10 for the 30.58 cents average, compared with offerings of 35,452,212 pounds sold for $6,274,193.53, an average of 17.70 for the corresponding number of sales days last year.

This year's average figure includes re-sale tobacco, where as the 1934 average of 31.21 included only producer's sales. This would make the 1934 average practically equal to the 1934 figure since re-sale tobacco always keeps the general average of the market below the average being paid for first-hand tobacco.

Little Beacham Boy Is Claimed By Death

Bobbie Gray Beacham, 13-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Beacham of Fountain, died in a general hospital Wednesday afternoon at 4:25 o'clock following several days illness.

Funeral services were conducted from S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home, 625 Dickinson Avenue, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Burial followed in Ham's cemetery near Stokes.

Surviving besides his parents, are two brothers, Marvin and Jesse Beacham; one sister, Dorothy, all of the home, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Randolph of near Stokes.

Wrecked Train Smashes Railroad Station
Here's the wreckage of a railway station at Lansing, Mich., after a fast freight train left the rails and crashed into the end of the building. One boy was killed and 12 other persons were injured. The 50-car train, laden with fruit and other perishables, spilled much of its load over a three-block area.

Britain Views Nazi Drive With Increasing Concern

MUST PASS ON NEW BUILDING

Sees No Hope Of Re-opening Western Front

London, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Germany's mighty new drive toward the heart of Russia—impervious to the armies that guard Moscow—was viewed today with mounting concern by the British, who saw no real hope of easing the pressure on their Soviet allies by re opening a Western land front.

With supply as the chief means of aid, British and United States missions to Moscow returned to England loaded with data on Russia's needs and pledged to deliver the goods.

Newspaper military commentators took the view that the next few weeks would decide the fate of Russia's main armies, now locked in one of the mightiest battles of history.

Authoritative sources declared the twin drives Adolf Hitler launched northwest and southwest of Moscow in a race with winter had created pockets in which vast Russian forces might be trapped.

The ruling carried the implication that the priorities division, headed by Donald M. Nelson, by using its priority power to deny materials to projects it considers unessential, could block public works projects approved by Congress.

In such a case, it would permit exercise of a virtual veto power to halt action on one project approved by Congress, while permitting another project contained in the same legislation to go ahead.

The SPAE announcement said the new policy means that two tests will be applied hereafter to every building project:

1. Does this construction involve the use of appreciable quantities of such critical materials as steel, copper, brass, aluminum and bronze? per, brass, aluminum and bronze? necessary for national defense, or clearly essential to the health and safety of the civilian population?

Unable To Get Knox For Nov. 11 Address

Local American Legion officials were advised today by Congressman Bonner that it would be impossible for Secretary of the Navy Knox to accept the invitation to deliver the Armistice Day address here November 11.

At the request of the Pitt County Post, Congressman Bonner invited Secretary Knox to appear on the local program.

Rep. Bonner not only wrote the secretary, but made a personal call on him in behalf of the Pitt invitation.

Secretary Knox wrote Rep. Bonner in part: "I do appreciate the invitation from the Pitt County Post... and I wish that I could accept. Unfortunately I have already tentatively committed myself to speak on that day."

A Legion committee will undertake efforts to secure another prominent speaker for the celebration.

OFFENSIVE BY CHINESE ARMY IS UNDER WAY

Greatest Drive In More Than Four Years Waged

FIGHTING RAGES IN HANKOW AREA

Japs Acknowledge Chinese Operations, But Declare Area Lost Already Been Recaptured

Shanghai, Oct. 9.—(AP) The greatest offensive of the Chinese army in four and a quarter years of warfare is apparently under way, Japanese army sources said today.

They reported that 80,000 Chungking troops attacked Japanese forces October 3 on all fronts of Central China and said fighting was still in progress north, west and south of Japanese-held Hankow, Yangtze river port.

Japanese said the principal Chinese objective was Ichang, which Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek ordered recaptured, and it was acknowledged that a Chinese division had occupied some frontal positions there briefly. The Japanese declared they later recaptured those positions, with Chinese losses of 300 dead and 100 prisoners.

(Chinese said Tuesday their troops were battling with Japanese in the streets of Ichang, a Yangtze treaty port, and westernmost zone of Japanese penetration. A Chinese communiqué late last night declared five strategic points around Ichang had been captured and that the Japanese position in that city was precarious.)

Japanese sources admitted that Chinese lines about Ichang were only a few hundred yards from the defenses, but said the attackers had been unable to face Japanese artillery.

Reports of a Chinese counter-attack at Chengchow were not confirmed, but the Japanese admitted Chinese forces were assembling only five miles south of that city.

Preparatory to the resumption of field work, the second corps, commanded by Major General Lloyd R. Fredenham, was reduced to two divisions instead of three, losing the 44th temporarily in order that the latter might furnish opposition for the sixth corps, commanded by major General Karl Truesdell.

Public relations headquarters here was without details of the exercise planned for the sixth corps, but it was believed that the 44th, made up of guardsmen from New York and New Jersey, would act as a Red army in opposing the return of the Blue 26th division, New England guard unit, to its base near Norman from the defensive position it took up west of Norwood, N. C., as a concluding phase of the first field operations.

In the first corps area between Chester and Winoosboro, the Red eighth division was in a defensive position along the white oak ridge against the much superior Blue force, made up of the 30th National Guard from the Carolinas, Georgia and Tennessee, and the ninth division.

Col. John Kennedy Fort Bragg Head

Fort Bragg, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Col. John T. Kennedy, a native of Orangeburg, S. C., was named today commander of Fort Bragg, the Public Relations Office announced.

Col. Kennedy, who has been commander of the GHQ field artillery brigade at the post, succeeds Col. E. P. Parker, Jr., commander of the field artillery replacement center, who was acting as temporary head of the post until a successor to Col. C. B. Elliott was appointed. Col. Elliott was transferred to Mississippi state.

Col. Kennedy is now on maneuver duty in the Carolinas.

Pronouncement Made of Fuehrer's Press Chief

Her Bob Now

Washington, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Senator Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina, 57, and 19-year-old at "Friendship," palatial were reported by his office to have been married today in a private ceremony.

The rites were performed at noon at "Friendship," palatial estate of Mrs. Evelyn McLean, mother of the bride and owner of the famous Hope diamond. The vows were spoken before Judge Robert E. Mattingly, of the Washington Municipal court, an old friend of Mrs. McLean.

It was the senator's fifth and the bride's first marriage. No member of the Reynolds family attended, his office said. He has two daughters and a son by previous marriages.

Mrs. McLean was the only member of the bride's family who was present. After luncheon at "Friendship," the senator and his bride left for a Florida and Cuba honeymoon.

End of the World.
Prof. Ludwig Maxienburger, from somewhere or other, says the earth has slid out of its orbit, and for that reason our summers will get hotter and our winters colder until the deuce will be to pay. Don't get scared, brethren, but keep on paying your preacher and printer just like you were going to stay here a long time—Exchange.

Fire in Chicago Tuesday destroyed two blocks of buildings and caused a loss of more than half a million dollars.
Mr. R. L. Smith has moved from the Edwards house on Ninth street to the Dupree house on Evans street in South Greenville.

Ayden Woman's Club Meets.
At the regular meeting of the Ayden Woman's Club on Tuesday, October 7, President Leon R. Meadows of East Carolina Teachers College spoke on democracy. The Education department of the organization, composed of Mrs. J. L. Jenkins, Mrs. M. T. Frizzell, Mrs. Leah Plaugher, Mrs. L. A. Tilley, Mrs. R. C. Smith and Mrs. G. W. Prescott, served as hostesses.

Card of Thanks.
We wish to express our sincere appreciation for the many kindnesses shown us during our recent bereavement.

Inter Se Club.
The first meeting of the year of the Inter Se Club was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. L. M. Buchanan. Fall flowers decorated the house.

Mrs. M. K. Blount, president, called the meeting to order and presented Mrs. Jack Edwards, whose paper on the prominent North Carolinian, Paul Green, was ably given. Paul Green's works show his deep understanding of the southern Negro, a fact obtained from having lived 23 years of his life on a farm. He has proved that sectional drama can achieve national recognition. He represents the south of the new day in his writings, which are filled with truthfulness, simplicity and characteristic dialect. Mrs. Edwards reviewed many of his best known works, including several interesting writings from "The Lost Colony," which appeared the first year it played on Roanoke Island.

At the end of the program, Mrs. Blount presided at a short business session, then the members enjoyed a social hour. Mrs. Buchanan, assisted by Miss Lela Higgs, Mrs. H. Stancil and Mrs. Wyatt Brown, served a delicious salad course.

Pactolus Community Fair.
On Friday night, October 10, the Pactolus Community Fair will be held in the Pactolus school building. The fair is sponsored by the P. T. A., the school, and the Pactolus Home Demonstration Club, and is becoming an annual event. The main purpose of the fair is, first, to encourage the growing and the making of better farm and home products; and, second, to make money for the improvement of the school.

Blue ribbons will be given as first prize for the best farm or home product in its class on exhibit. Those winning first prize will be given a free ticket to the amateur program, which will be held in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock.

The Home Demonstration Club will have a booth illustrating "Daily Food Essentials." This booth will be Peanuts, popcorn, hot dogs, lemonade, candy and ice cream will be sold.

Clio Book Club.
The Clio Book Club held its first meeting of the year Tuesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Dink James. New books, and attractive programs for the year were distributed.

At a short business session Miss Jane Hadley, president, called the attention of the club to the sale of defense bonds; the different types of bonds, interest rate, and value at maturity were discussed.

Mrs. John Adams gave a program on "Women Who Have Helped Mold America." The women chosen by Mrs. Adams for this talk are colorful, individual, and an indication of the size and variety of woman's contribution. From Pocahontas, the heroine of America's first romantic legend, to Annie Oakley, the gun-toting girl from Ohio, and Lillian Russell, whose picture adorned the walls of every bar in the country, there has been no lack of color. She discussed Dolly Madison's sixteen-year tenure as official White House hostess, at a time when the capital seemed someone to set the right tone and to reconcile democratic procedure with the formalities of diplomatic protocol; Elizabeth Blackwell, America's first practicing woman physician, who had to go to Geneva for her medical degree; Carrie Nation, the hatchet-swinging prohibitionist; Lucy Stone, the eloquent suffragist; and Jane Addams, who saw the need in American cities for some place where working men and their families could come for aid, education and social gatherings, and founded Hull House in Chicago, which became the model for settlement houses all over the country.

The hostess served a delicious salad, followed by a sweet course.

Third Street School P. T. A.
The second P. T. A. meeting of the Third street school was held in the school auditorium on Wednesday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. The decorations were lovely fall flowers donated by Mrs. Jack Tripp, Mrs. George Ippock and Mrs. Paul Flye.

A devotional was led by Mrs. Closs Hearn, then greetings from the president, Mrs. Raleigh Lee. Mrs. Lee then read an invitation from Mrs. Foy asking all to attend the district meeting in Lenoir county. Miss Eva Keeter explained the bond election to be held during October. She spoke of the need for various rooms and buildings in order that the children of Greenville could enjoy more wholesome growth, the gymnasium, music and manual art rooms needed at the high school, the drastic need for an auditorium at West Greenville, and the need for new classrooms at Third street property in order to house children, now too crowded especially in the junior high school grades. Miss Keeter asked that those interested in these improvements for their children register any day between now and October 18. Mrs. Phelps has the books each day at the City Hall. However, it was brought out, unless you expect to vote do not register for it will be a vote against the issue if registration is not followed by voting. Mrs. Lee urged the necessity for all to register and to vote.

Mrs. Graham Flanagan reported that the Finance committee had decided to have another Harvest Festival within a few weeks, date to be decided later. This yearly occasion where parents and children get together for fun and frolic has proven a great success and everyone was in favor of another "Festival" this year.

It was decided to donate music racks for the new school orchestra. Mrs. J. T. Cheatham was appointed chairman of a committee to see about school patrols to help smaller children across Third street. Mrs. Guy Smith, chairman of the program committee, then introduced Dr. R. J. Slay of East Carolina Teachers College, who made a most interesting and helpful talk on "What Are the Guiding Principles in Selecting a Balanced Diet?" He spoke of the necessity of energy building foods; and for a balance between breathing and eating. He explained the functions of proteins and minerals and which foods supplied these. Then he discussed the need for vitamins. The information will be of great value to each person present in the careful planning of health and strength in children and grown-ups also.

The meeting then turned into a social hour. Fruit punch and cookies served by Mrs. Roy Martin and Miss Scott were enjoyed. Individual conferences were held, rooms were visited and pleasant chats held.

The P. T. A. then adjourned to meet again at the regular monthly date in November.

End Of The Century Club.
Members of the End of the Century Club were guests of their president, Mrs. Edward Batchelor, at her home on Fifth street for the first meeting of the new year. Mrs. Batchelor graciously welcomed the guests and expressed regret that several, who are visiting out of town were unable to be present.

Mrs. J. L. Hassell brought a message from the women's meeting, urging the purchase of Defense Bonds.

Mrs. E. W. Harvey explained to the group the plans of the School Board for the use of the money to be obtained by the bond issue to be voted on October 28. She urged all members to register and vote.

Mrs. J. T. Little announced a "Victory Rally" to be staged for "Bundles for Britain" Wednesday night, October 22. Two speakers have been obtained for the occasion—Mrs. Murrow, head of the distribution of supplies in England and who is at present in this country, and a commander of some British ship now in a United States port.

Mrs. Charles White, chairman of the program committee, announced that the club would study "North Carolina" for the year and distributed an interesting little booklet "The Tar Heel State."

As the highlight of the afternoon she presented Miss Sallie Joyner Davis of East Carolina Teachers College, who discussed "The Ancestors of the Native North Carolinian."

The native North Carolinian of today is a composite of four racial groups. The English stamped their social, political, industrial and intellectual customs on the colony and state. The Scotch Highlanders contributed a spirit of abiding loyalty to a cause or leader. The Scotch-Irish are chiefly responsible for the intense love for religious liberty and an urge for educational development. And to the Germans, who settled in the Piedmont and pushed further west, the state is indebted for a great deal of its industrial development and tendency toward conservatism.

Most of these settlers, as in all of the other colonies, were from the sturdy, law-abiding, deeply moral middle class.

Mrs. Davis, who "speaks with authority," where North Carolina is concerned, delighted her listeners and made those of us who are native North Carolinians feel doubly proud of the fact.

Mrs. R. J. Slay and Mrs. R. M. Garrett presented a most interesting group of books for the year.

The hostess, assisted by her daughter, Miss Olive Lytle Batchelor, served delicious refreshments.

Service League Meets.
The Service League met at Shepard Memorial Library on Monday at 10 a. m. This was the first meeting of the fall season.

Mrs. Walter Harrington presided. She welcomed the members of the League and asked their cooperation in the League's activities. Plans for the fall work were made.

A bridge tournament and food sale is to be held on Wednesday, October 15, at 3 o'clock at the Country Club for the benefit of the Charles O'Hagan Laughinghouse hospital bed.

The board of directors of the League will have a coffee hour at the home of Mrs. W. S. Bost on October 29 for the members of the League and the advisory council, in honor of the newly elected members.

The League voted to give two books to the library in appreciation of the courtesy the library extends the League in allowing them the use of the auditorium for its meetings. Miss Besse Brown was asked to purchase the books. The two books presented to the library were "The Soong Sisters" and "Tar-heella."

Mrs. W. S. Bost was appointed to represent the Service League on the Community Chest.

Mr. J. H. Rose talked before the League in the interest of the forthcoming bond election and urged all members to register and vote. He displayed the blueprints of the school additions to be made to the present school buildings.

Red Cross Activities

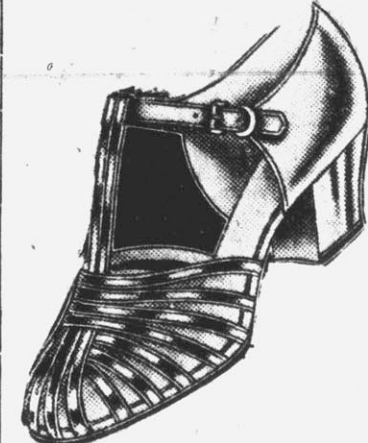

By EVELYN SCHELLER
In opening the Junior Red Cross Drive, Mrs. J. H. Rose, dramatics teacher, presented a play "The Boy Who Thought He Knew" over the local radio station Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock. Many of the high school students who had crowded around their radios to hear it, claimed that it was a great success. The cast of characters are as follows: Tom Rowlett, Leonard Ernest, Knott Proctor, Jr., Charles Pace, Peggy Reid, Sarah Frances Williams and Mary Ann Duncan. Red Cross poems were read by Muriel Shotwell, Ruby Grant, Kathryn VanNortwick and Eleanor James.

Professor Eppes of the Greenville colored schools, called on the Junior Red Cross chairman yesterday, telling her that his schools were ready to turn in their enrollment cards. He is to be congratulated for his splendid cooperation in this drive. The Red Cross committee stated, "We are very pleased with Professor Eppes' help."

Miss Jane Lyerly, Junior Red Cross chairman for the Third street school, remarked, "All the children here have responded well to the Red Cross drive. We hope to pack many boxes for Christmas." Several items which will probably be put in these boxes are toothpaste and toothbrushes, hair-ribbons, and small dolls.

The children of the West Greenville school are planning to make small gifts for the unfortunate children of England. They will construct these gifts themselves. Miss Jane Hadley, chairman of the drive at West Greenville, feels that the children are more interested in the Red Cross if they make things themselves. The enrollment cards will be turned in on Friday to the Red Cross chairman.

In the high school building Red Cross posters are seen everywhere. All the bulletin boards have at least one poster on it. The drive will be started in earnest at the high school either at the end of this week or the beginning of next.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WORDS ARE LIKE SEED
When Adoniram Judson, the great missionary, was traveling once by boat through Burma, the boat stopped for a few minutes at a village.
Judson noticed a woman standing there. He offered her his hand and spoke to her kindly in her native tongue.

This woman never again saw Judson, but his kindness made a great impression upon her and she kept saying to the people of her village, "I have seen one of the sons of God; I will never worship our gods again." From that time forth she offered prayers to the unknown God of this white stranger. After some years a missionary came to her village and when she had heard the gospel preached, straightaway she was soundly converted.

Sometimes words are like arrows.
They sink into the heart, and the more we try to pull them out, the more do they cut and lacerate us.
These are the bitter and foolish words we hurl at those who anger us. But there are other words like seed. They may fall on hearts as hard as a cement pavement and be blown away with the next breeze or washed away in the next shower.
But if they fall on soft and fertile soil, they spring up, as our Lord said unto life eternal.

We are not responsible for the soil, but we are responsible for the quality of the seed. Most hearts are eager for love and understanding and if we will scatter the seed broadcast, we can be sure that even though we do not know it, God is bringing about a splendid harvest.

NO EARLY END OF WAR

(Industrial News Review)

It has long been believed in many circles that two factors would eventually defeat Hitler: First, the scope of American material aid to Britain and her allies; second, a slowing down of production inside Germany due to lack of certain basic supplies which are vital to the existence of the civilian population as well as to Hitler's gigantic military effort. Now is a good time to examine just what effect those factors are having on the war.

You can find many and various reports on American shipments to England, ranging from the wildly optimistic to the darkly pessimistic.
A first hand report recently appeared in Raymond Clapper's syndicated column. Mr.
Clapper is a forthright and able journalist, and lately spent considerable time in England finding out for himself how matters stand. His report is far from being encouraging. When it comes to lend-lease deliveries, he wrote, "The figures, in terms of appropriations, allocations and transfers, are large. In terms of deliveries, they shrink like a pair of wool socks in the laundry."
Food, for instance, is one of England's principal needs.
Yet, he stated, only about 200,000 tons of lend-lease food—equal to two and a half days' English consumption—had arrived when he was there a little more than

'U. S. Stands On The Brink Of War'—Knox

a month ago.

We are far behind schedule on shipping arms, he continued, notably the tanks and bombing planes which represent one of Britain's most important military lacks. To use his own words,
"So far as the British are concerned, ours still is a pop-gun arsenal."

Not long back, Senator Byrd made similar statements, and declared that the defense effort has been a failure. He backed up that criticism with a mass of statistics. While the accuracy of some of these figures has been denied, the President himself admitted that the Senator's gloomy verbal picture of American plane production was "substantially correct."

The fault for the lag in arms shipments can be laid at many doors. Some segments of labor have certainly been as non-cooperative as possible. Some industries also deserve that indictment.
There has been too much delay and buck-passing and divided responsibility in Washington. It is becoming apparent that all groups in this country are going to have to undergo much change for the better if the arms drive is to even partially justify the high hopes held for it.

Going on to the second factor, Newsweek recently made a survey of the extent to which the war has strained Nazi economic power. The German people are still living on rations which would seem completely inadequate to heavy-eating Americans. This fall, for the first time, even potatoes are rationed. The meat allowance is minuscule. This year's European harvest was 25 per cent below normal.
Even so, Germany has big enough food reserves to last a long time.

Germany's vital coal supplies have been buttressed by seizure of the Polish, Belgian and French mines. Coal is Hitler's most important asset, as it is the source of ersatz oil and rubber and is the backbone of his munitions industries. He apparently will not lack an adequate amount although, according to Newsweek, German production has lately declined due to long hours, inexperienced miners and the general wariness war produces in strictly rationed populations.

The occupation of France has given Germany enough steel with which to carry on.
Also, she has taken over enough oil lands to fulfill her military requirements, although there is practically none left over for civilian use.

Big German shortage is in the textile field. She has almost no cotton, and little wool. Hitler has so far made up for part of this lack by systematically looting the occupied countries of all the textiles his agents could find.

Summing up, Germany is the possessor of sufficient basic supplies to last for two or three years at least. German technicians have performed wonders in inventing and perfecting workable substitutes for scarce materials. Her most serious shortage is metals—she has little or no copper, tin, lead, nickel and chrome. But she has plenty of aluminum, now that the great bauxite deposits of France and the Balkans are hers to command.
All in all, the hope that Hitler will collapse in the foreseeable future because of a material shortage, seems too tenuous to be worth holding.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

'Back of the reduction in car manufacture are things that will affect every community. In two articles, Jack Stinnett, Washington columnist for The Reflector, explores possibilities.

Washington—Nearly everybody knows by now that during the five months ending in December there will be 500,000 fewer new cars produced than in the same period a year ago, but there is a lot of guessing by government priorities and production officials, and automobile association heads, as to what the results of this drastic curtailment will be.

For once, there is no precedent to go by. Never in the history of this industry has production been drastically curtailed—except by depression.

Two things seem fairly positive.
The repair business is in for a boom which will gladden the hearts of garage men, if they can meet demands. And the second-hand automobile dealers are likely to get the screaming-queens trying to fill orders.

It would seem another ill wind that doesn't blow good, but there are factors which should cause hesitation before a man tosses his surplus cash into an auto repair shop or a used-car lot.

tions Board has recognized that the automobile is an important utility of home, office and factory. Hence it has put repair and replacement parts on the priorities list. But these are not No. 1 priorities. If it should come to a showdown between getting carburetors for tanks or planes, on one hand, and automobiles on the other, autos would have to sputter along until defense demands had been met.

This means that there could, and even likely will, develop a shortage of replacement parts, at least in some sections.

Where, government officials have asked themselves, will the new car shortage probably cause the greatest strain? The answer invariably has been among the farmers and lower-paid industrial workers. As a group, they are driving the oldest cars. If such an owner can not get repairs, or a second-hand car, or can't pay the higher prices and heavier taxes on a new car (even if he could find one), what is he going to do?

A shortage of mechanics undoubt- ed will plague the boom in repair business. Federal agencies already are trying to forestall this, but the shortage is here now. The national defense demand for every man who can twist a screw driver, and the higher wages being paid to get them, have brought complaints from auto repair shops.

Demand For Used Cars
As for the second-hand car busi- ness, the results are highly prob- lematical. There is no doubt that the demand for second hand cars will zoom, partly because of more and better-paid workers, and partly because of replacement needs.

The only question—one the au- tomobile statisticians here won't even try to answer—is how soon the backlog of used cars will burn out.

There is a saying in the industry that for every two new cars sold, there is one second hand car on the market. It would seem simple arithmetic than to say that if you cut the new car sales in half, you would cut the available used cars by the same proportion.

But if the demand for used cars remains static or increases, and the supply is cut in half, that backlog burns like fury. Increasing turn- over in second-handers puts more and more on the junk heap. No- body wants to trade a car for a poorer one, and with available new cars nearly cut in half, the spread between good used ones and junk- piles held together with baling wire probably will widen rapidly.

(Tomorrow: If you are buying a used car—look out.)

Short Shots

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Oct. 8.—Here's a note on North Carolina's labor laws which is not so creditable to the state, statutes which are proclaimed in many quarters as being something in the nature of models for other states (particularly in the South) to follow.

A few days ago an ice plant em- ployee called at the department to make a complaint about the hours he works and the wages he gets.

His statement to the department alleged that he works twelve hours a day, seven days a week for the non-too-prime sum of ten dollars. That's 84 hours of work for the week, which makes his hourly rate of pay less than 12 cents or less than half the 25-cent minimum proposed but not exacted, for a North Carolina wage and hour law.

A labor department attache heard the complainant out, took one very brief look at North Carolina's stat- ute and found just what he expected to find—ice plants are exempt- ed from the North Carolina hours law and there is no wage statute of any kind.

The result was that the matter ended right then and there. The department did not even attempt to establish the truth or falsity of the story; because it made no differ- ence. False or true, nothing could be done about it under the North Carolina law.

Commissioner Forrest Shuford told your reporter his department sometimes investigates such complaints purely as a matter of fact-finding for presentation to future legislatures; but added that his per- sonnel is not large enough to do much of this sort of research work.

This And That
In Wilmington the American Legion post is pondering whether to attempt a novel undertaking—namely, to hold a Fair without any "tent shows" or concessions, in short, with practically no midway. It seems the county commissioners balked at permitting the Coastal Plains Fair this year, contending that in past years there have been indecent shows and gambling con- ceptions. By a 3 to 2 vote the county board refused to grant permis- sion for use of Legion Field for the Fair. Upon motion of one of the three majority members, however, it was then voted (again 3 to 2) that the Legion should be encour- aged to hold an agricultural fair with "all kinds of amusements" ex- cept concessions and tent shows. Now the Legionnaires are wonder- ing whether such a midway-less event can be put over successfully. If they do try it, the results will be watched with great interest. Drought in North Carolina hasn't been so widely publicized in the press of late; but in several sections the situation is really serious. This corner told the other day of Chatham and Randolph county folks buying water by the barrel and hauling it miles. Now comes word that Wilmington's water sup- ply is again becoming very salty; while from Alamance and other counties it is learned that some schools have had to be closed be- cause the wells dried up. The state Rural Electrification Authority will meet here next week on Wednes- day, October 15th. Director Gwynn Price says there is little but rou- tine business to come up and smil- ingly passed up a reportorial crack that the board meeting during the State Fair week must be "purely coincidental." He pointed out that the Fair is a "great state institu- tion" and to make it possible for REA board members to see it at the same time they're here for a meet- ing is only "cooperation."

Durham, N. C.—(AP)—Don Pick- up of Fall River, Mass., received 35 boxes of cookies after he told a ra- dio audience that, as a newly ar- rived Duke University freshman, he expected to "get homesick for my mother's cookies." Although the cookies came from points all the way from New Hampshire to Geor- gia, Don isn't convinced yet that any of them are "just like Mom's."

Chapter 28
Wise Girl
May's smile was hard, it had the grotesque effect of seeming to crack her face.
"All I can get is when I'm paid," Jerry said. "All I can get. You wouldn't want me to talk?" she asked. "I can make an awful noise, you know. The woman scorned! You've heard about them?"
"I can't get money where there isn't any," he turned to her coldly. "Why do women like you always want money?"
"Your yacht's still down there in the basin. Oh, yes, you've taken a cottage instead of staying on at the hotel, but that doesn't mean so much. You've still got your cats. You wouldn't be kidding me? You haven't," she was speaking slowly and with a distinctly unpleasant intonation, "got another girl?"
"That's something you have no right to think about, let alone ask

"Yes, Schemes. But all of this isn't getting us anywhere. What do you expect me to do? I'm no miracle man. I can't pick money out of the air. I've wasted my life. I know that now. I have no way of getting money for you. I don't see why I should. You've wasted your life playing. You know what you were doing. I won't lean on the excuse that I didn't. And now that I'm broke and worthless to any woman, I'm asking you to do just one decent thing and release me, forget me. Find someone else. You are still attractive. That should be easy for you."

May smiled. "You're very clever," she said quietly. "But flattery does not work with me. I'm too wise for that, boy."

"You're not very wise if you continue to hang around me, because there's going to be nothing in it—no gay life or expensive parties. Unless," he looked up at her sharply. "You'll get pleasure out of hurting me."

The girl grinned diabolically, and Jerry knew that he was being shown another face of her temperament. She would enjoy making him unhappy. Jerry was a little startled at that. Meaningless hatred and vengefulness had always started him.

Proposal
Jerry shrugged helplessly. He rose.
"All right, if that's the way you feel about it. But if the thing backfires and burns you, don't squal. You're bent on spoiling things. He paused a second. "Well, where do you want me to drop you?"
"At the hotel," May said slowly. "After I've had another drink. I need it after the talk you've been handing me."

"You don't need another drink. May. He turned to May suddenly. Then as if on a new thought: "Just why have you come down here?" he asked. "Just what do you want?"
May looked at him for a full moment, her eyes meeting Jerry's steadily.
"Can't you guess?" she asked finally. "I want you to marry me."
"Marry you?"
"Yes, marry me. I'm tired of playing around, Jerry. I want a home. Things I can tie to, call my own for the rest of my life. You're the one man I've never quarreled with, until now. The last two words came after a little silence. "That's why I came down. I didn't think the money part could be as bad as you tried to make me think. I still can't believe it is. If it is," she paused thoughtfully. "Well, I don't know."

Jerry, who had been looking at her as if really seeing her for the first time in his life, said again, and still in that shocked tone: "Marry you?"
"Yes, and why not? Why not, Jerry?" Her voice softened a little. "We like the same things. We have gay times together. I understand you better than that Freda person ever could."

Jerry turned to her earnestly. "Look, May," he said. "I've learned things down here. One of them is that I want to marry with love. You'll learn that, too, some day. I'm saying this for your good. You come from a nice family. The pictures you showed me of your mother and beautiful one. Live up to her memory. Oh, I know," as May would have interrupted him, "you've not done anything actually bad. I know all that. But you've been well—to use the pleasantest word—lazy."

"You've still got time to change. Why don't you do it? You've got talent. You've got looks. Get yourself busy doing for yourself. Some man will come along then who'll really care enough for you to make you happy. How about it, old girl?"
But May's eyes were moody as they looked at him.
"So what?" she asked finally, a trace sullenly. "You're not talking me out of anything."
Helping Lenore
Jerry didn't bother to reply, but walked quietly around to his side of the car, got in and drove away. No use talking further to May. He had never dreamed she would want to marry him. They had never even talked of love or marriage. The idea was a disquieting shock to him.

But Jerry Winthrop had done his reckoning without actually knowing the ins and outs of the character of a girl like May Frisbee, who had lived for years on her wit, the bounty of her friends and her complete lack of any sense of fair play.
Jerry was due to see Pam that night. He dreaded it a little. How could he tell her about May? Yet it was foolish to think he could keep it from her now. May would see to that.

Meanwhile Pam had her own problems to settle. Should she tell Jerry about Jim Perry and Lenore and ask him to warn Lenore? Or should she go to Lenore? Lenore had snubbed her so unmercifully that it would be very hard to talk to Lenore after all that had happened.
Besides, Pam had not, for some strange reason, been able to forget the girl on the beach. It was silly, she knew, for Jerry had a right to talk to whom he pleased, and naturally would talk to a great many girls.
But Pam couldn't get over the feeling that the meeting on the beach was something more than mere chance.
That feeling was heightened by Jerry's behavior that evening. There was constraint about him. Pam felt, in spite of his effort to hide it, his gayety was forced.

He left reluctantly. It seemed good-night had never been so hard to say. He turned at his car and blew a kiss back to her. Pam watched until the tail-light was no longer visible, then turned slowly back to the house.
As she undressed, her thoughts returned to Lenore and Jim Perry. The first thing Pam did in the morning was telephone Freda and ask her to lunch.
Freda arrived in violet slacks and a raspberry shirt. She was casually gay. Pam waited until they were at table to bring up the subject of Lenore.

"And I thought," she concluded, "that you'd know how to manage. You know, tell Lenore Jim Perry isn't the sort she should be playing around with."
"Who is this Jim Perry?" Freda asked lightly.
"That's just it," Pam said. "No one knows. He just came here one winter and stayed on because he seemed to find it profitable. No one knows exactly, because he's very clever, but it's suspected that he gets winter girls to let him play Bolito with pretty, big sums, and that it's only occasionally, very occasionally, he lets them win. They say that actually he keeps the money himself most of the time."
"I wonder how nearly right you are," Freda said, thoughtfully. "I've noticed lately some of Lenore's jewels have been gone. She has not worn them at parties."

To Be Continued

IT'S LUCKY THAT FOSSIL WASN'T A BRONTOSAURUS
Rapid City, S. D.—(AP)—Roy Roberts, quarry engineer for the state cement plant, presented Glen Jensen, Princeton university paleontologist, with a fossil fish and invited him to look at another on a piece of Minnekahta limestone he had built into the foundation of his home. "That," said Jensen, "is the other half of the fossil you gave me, and I'd like to have it." Roberts chiseled out the chunk of limestone and substituted one of less value to science.

Oh, Well
Hutchinson, Kans.—(AP)—You can't say the Del Goyen family of near Cairo gets excited easily. The other day, while in Hutchinson, word came to them that their home had burned. The family decided nothing could be gained by going home and so they all stayed for the night show.

Pirates Play Friday Afternoon; Phantoms Tilt at Night

PLYMOUTH FOE FOR HIGH TEAM

Game To Get Under Way at Guy Smith Park At 8 p.m.

By PERCY WELLS
Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock is the time, City Smith stadium is the place and the teams who meet in an expected tough encounter are the Green Phantoms and the Plymouth Panthers. The Greens are ready to get back in the win column after losing a heartbreaking 6-0, last Friday night.
Coach Bo Parley has been running his boys through crushing plays during practice sessions this week and has the team in good shape.
Plymouth boasts a heavy and fighting eleven which is coached by Lewis Trungo who formerly played guard as a Wake Forest Demon Deacon. Plymouth has a lot of reserve power and recently stunned this section by defeating Washington's Pam Pack 13-6. They have yet to lose a game in their 1941 football campaign.

WPA City Team Has Tilt With High Team

Yesterday afternoon the West Greenville Terrors were to meet the Ayden boys at West Greenville. As a result of lack of transportation, the game has been postponed indefinitely. But the West Greenville Terrors meet Bo Parley's third string players at the Third Street school field today at 4:30 p. m. The Terrors are the champions of the league, not having lost a single game.

TEAM DIVIDED IN CITY LOOP

Reds Score Trouncing Grid Victory Over Blues

By CHARLES BROWN
Yesterday afternoon the Training School divided its junior team into two sections—the Reds and the Blues. In the first quarter the game was somewhat slow, the Reds going ahead with a score of 13-0.
In the first of the third quarter Bobby Smith (Red) carried the ball near his goal, but Earl (Spookie) Morgan got possession of the ball, made a 20-yard pass, which was intercepted by a Red, Billy Bob Journey, fighting lad for the Reds, possessed the ball and pushed through the line to make a goal for the

Hero Gordon And Family Head For Home

Joe Gordon, the New York Yankees' batting and fielding hero of the World Series, his wife and their child, Judy, wave farewell to well-wishers at the city hall in New York just before heading for home in Oregon to spend the winter vacation. New York sports writers voted Joe the most valuable player in the World Series.

Reds, making the score 19-0.
Then the Blues made a daring play with Joe Allgood recovering the ball for the Blues. Fumbling a pass, the Blues lost the ball on the 50 yard line. Jimmie Gibson, ace for the Training School, passed to Journey, the outcome, being a 15-yard gain.
Bobby Smith tried to pass to Gibson but it was intercepted by Spookie Morgan, playing brilliantly for the Blues, and made a much needed five-yard gain. He passed to James Daniels who fumbled, missing a sure mark for a touchdown. As a result of the next play Journey got the ball, ran for the goal but was tackled on the eight-yard line. Repeating the play, Jimmie Gibson ran through the line making a touchdown.
In the first half, touchdowns were made by Howard Proctor and Jimmy Gibson; the extra goals failing. Tom Brown (Blue) was slightly injured with a bone bruise.

ECTC TO FACE NORFOLK TEAM

Pirates to Be Without Services Of Wing-back Young

By BERNICE JENKINS
Minus the services of Bob Young, speedy, hard-hitting wingback, the ECTC Pirates will go into Friday's battle with the Portsmouth Naval Apprentices as only slight favorites.
Young, who paced the Teachers on offense as well as defense in their season opener with Tusculum here two weeks ago, is recovering from a head injury received in that contest at the University of Virginia Medical College Hospital at Richmond. His condition is now reported as improving.
In Wilson Schuerholz, little Yankee back who starred in the Frank Merriwell role for the Pirates last year and who will play his first game of the current season tomorrow, the Pirates have a more than adequate consolation package. Probable starting backfield consists of Schuerholz at tailback or spin-back, Marshal Teague at tailback or wingback, Don Marriott at fullback or wingback and Dan Waddell at blocking back. Bob Miller, Adrian Brown and Floyd Woody are outstanding reserves.
The Pirate line has also suffered some reverses since the Tusculum game. The two big starting tackles might not be ready to start tomorrow's tilt. Bull Rogerson has missed several days of practice because of a bad ankle and Big Jack Young has been out of action in order to be with his brother at the hospital. The starting line will probably consist of Charlie Craven and Billy Greene at ends, Jerome Butler and Young or Roberson or Rogerson at tackles, Bill Lucas and Captain Jimmie Glanagos at guards and Stuart Tripp at center. Reserves sure to see plenty of action include guards Paul Scott and Wiley Brown, tackle James Little, ends Walter Mallard, Fred Cooper and Bill Grant.

Although the Teachers rolled over the Apprentices last season, the victory came at a time when the Navy boys were beset by injuries, and this year the same national defense problem which has hurt the chances of the Pirates has raised to stock of the Apprentices by bringing in a wealth of new material.
That 31-0 walloping hung on the Tusculum team shows that the Pirates are ready to go this year, however, and it is probable that the Apprentices will not be too much of a hurdle.

birth date that made her younger than any of the others.
THAT'S WHAT THEY TOLD THE JUDGE, ANYWAY
Oklahoma City.—(AP)—Two enterprising boys, waving sticks just like professional car parkers, directed 140 motorists into an "island" in front of Redskin stadium where a football game was in progress. They collected ten cents parking fee for each car. Emerging from the game, each driver found a traffic ticket pasted to his windshield. It was a "no parking zone."

WILSON'S Weekly RECIPES

This winter I plan to bring you week after week in this column the recipes, menus, and food suggestions which will enable you to give your family nutritious and appetizing meals for less money. And since meat is the backbone of the meal, I can help you most by telling you how to advantageously buy, cook, and serve meat.

George Rector
Food Consultant
Wilson & Co.

THE ROAD TO THRIFT

Everybody, your family among them, enjoys meat for its flavor. Buy meat of rich flavor so that when you combine it with potatoes, rice, macaroni, or vegetables, it retains its fine meat flavor and imparts it generously. Also buy a large enough piece of meat to last for several meals; it costs less per pound and shrinks less.

FROM ONE MEAT MANY MEALS

An ideal thrift purchase is a whole Wilson's Certified Smoked Ham, the original Tender, Extra-Mild ham in the bright orange wrapper.

Its flavor is so rich that it goes further. It bakes more quickly than the old style ham, so it shrinks less. For variety, use the center slices for broiling or pan frying, the butt-end for baking, the shank-end for cooking with vegetables.

Left-over dishes folks go for

- Just so much "velvet" for your meat budget are these delicious "left-overs." Each takes just 1 1/2 cups of cooked ham.
- Ham and macaroni
 - Ham and vegetable salad
 - Ham omelet
 - Creamed ham on toast
 - Ham-potato scallop

HEARTY AUTUMN DINNER

- Cream of onion soup
- Wilson's Certified Tasty Meat baked with candied sweet potatoes
- Canned corn and peas
- Fruit salad
- Spiced cupcakes
- Sweet Cider

BAKED TASTY MEAT

Wilson's Certified Tasty Meat is sugar-cured pork shoulder... (no bone—no waste). To bake it, remove cellophane and allow meat to reach room temperature. Place in open pan and bake in slow oven (325° F.) 40 minutes per pound. Cover with honey or brown sugar and brown for 15 minutes in a 400° F. oven.

RECTOR RECOMMENDS

Tar Heel Conciliator Is Given Full Credit

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Oct. 9.—Commissioner of Labor Forrest H. Shuford was not in the least surprised, but at the same time he was very proud to read paragraph two of a story in yesterday's press regarding settlement of a vexing strike of mica workers in Asheville.

The paragraph, brief and to the point read:

"Frank Crane of the state department of labor was credited with being responsible for the settlement of the controversy."

Mr. Crane is the department's only officially designated conciliator. He took up his duties no longer ago than August 1, but already he has proved to the satisfaction of his superiors the value of a state conciliation service—a unit authorized by the 1941 General Assembly, but which could not be set up for lack of funds until Governor J. M. Broughton made available some $6,000 or slightly more from the emergency and contingent fund.

The Asheville mica workers strike is, perhaps, the only one for which practically one hundred per cent credit has been extended Mr. Crane, but he has in the slightly more than two months of his official tenure, participated in negotiations of half a dozen strikes—most of which have been settled.

The Asheville walkout was a particularly tough nut for the conciliator because feelings appear to have been roused to fever pitch with resultant frequent clashes involving pickets, non-strikers, the constabulary and even the reporters of Asheville's newspapers.

The union (an AFL affiliate) had lost a collective bargaining election by a close vote; two workers had been discharged, allegedly for their union activities, and there were present all the inflammatory circumstances which so to make up a first class and riotous strike.

Settlement of the strike was important, too, because most of the company's work at the present is vitally concerned with national defense.

So that's the kind of strike that Crane is credited with ending.

Hollywood

By Lillian Coats

Hollywood—Claudette Colbert, who never talks about money, talked about money today. Money and taxes, and what fools most actors are—including Claudette Colbert. Claudette was very gay. Many actors get grim when you mention taxes. I mentioned taxes and Claudette just laughed and laughed, as if the pleasure were all hers. She was laughing anyway at the time because she was looking back on the smart girl Claudette intended to be and the not-so-smart girl she said Claudette had become.

All she said about taxes, of which she expects to pay about $210,000 worth next year, was to the effect that she was happy and proud to be able to pay them, especially in times like these.

What I wanted to know was how the star who a couple of years ago drew about $400,000 in movie salaries to be billed as the biggest woman earner in the land was going to meet the new year's increased federal tax bite.

Claudette laughed again. "That year," she said, "I saved $15,000 for myself—to apply on my next year's tax bill. I'm never ahead of my next installment's taxes. It's ridiculous, isn't it?"

"Ridiculous, I mean," and she got down to cases. "That I spend about $50,000 a year for living and upkeep. It's absurd, but that's what it costs. This year I'm making two pictures so I'll earn $300,000. Ten per cent for my agent leaves $270,000, and if my taxes run about $210,000 as I expect, I'll have $60,000 left. With $50,000 for my expenses, I may save $10,000."

"And I remember how I always said it would never be like this with me," she reminisced. "When I first came out here I had saw extras who had been big stars I vowed I'd be different."

"So I build a house. It started out small—they always do—and then it got bigger as the plans developed. With a house like this I couldn't do without a little ground around it. I got ground. And now it's a lovely house, surrounded by ground and upkeep. Would you believe it, I need five servants to keep it running smoothly while I work? I do, and that's ridiculous too. Then there's mother's house, and the upkeep on that."

Ever helpful, I asked if she'd thought of selling her dream house. Even trying, I couldn't have been funnier. "Just try to!" Claudette chortled with explosive merriment. (Now I know how Bob Hope feels when he rolls 'em in the aisles!)

TAKE A BEATING—Old automobiles destined for scrap and possible defense uses are lifted by power shovel in Columbus, Ohio, and hurled to the ground. There they are hammered and punched into a shapeless mass, and later sold.

Chicod High School News

By MILDRED ADAMS

P. T. A. Meets. The P. T. A. held its second monthly meeting in the high school auditorium Wednesday, October 8, at 7:30 p. m. The subject for discussion was the matter of securing a lunch room. A large number were present.

Honor Students. There were thirty students in the high school who made the honor roll. The reports show the efficiency of the students is unusually high.

Agriculture Officers Elected. The Agriculture department, headed by Mr. Ned Hawks as instructor and advisor, has elected officers for the year. They are as follows: President, James Page; vice-president, Matthew McGowan; secretary, William W. Williams; treasurer, Thomas Coghlin; reporter, Donald Taylor; and watch-dog, Leslie Williams.

Seniors Receive Invitation. The senior class received an invitation to be guests of State College on Senior Day at that institution, but were unable to accept on account of conflicting occurrences.

Scout Officers Elected. The Boy Scouts selected James Harrell and Bruce Edwards as senior or patrol leaders of Troop #7. Robert Halstead was elected secretary, and Earl Venters and Ronald Halstead were elected junior patrol leaders. Mr. Newman Lewis as scoutmaster.

Honor Council. The Honor Council met yesterday at home room period. The meeting was called to order by the president, James Page, and the roll was called by the secretary, Willis Dean Purser. The purpose of the meeting was to read the constitution to all new members who recently joined.

N.Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Russian war news cast a deep shadow over financial markets again today and price trends were uniformly lower.

Stocks gave up fractions to a point or more which confused market followers who had concluded yesterday's cooperative steadiness marked the end of the selling movement which bore down on the list Tuesday.

Files $5,000 Suit For Injured Ankle

A civil action was filed in Pitt Superior court yesterday by J. B. Edwards against E. G. Flanagan, Sr., J. E. Winslow Company, Inc., J. E. Winslow, individually, the City of Greenville and Hugh Winslow seeking to recover $5,000 allegedly suffered when he sprained his ankle after tripping over a piece of iron pipe on Clark street the evening of February 3.

The complaint alleges that the pipe was protruding two or more inches above the sidewalk at a point where the lands of Mr. Flanagan and the J. E. Winslow Company, Inc., join on the east side of Clark street.

The action, filed by Arthur B. Corey, local attorney for the plaintiff, alleges that Edwards sprained his right ankle to such an extent that he was confined to his bed for more than two weeks and thereafter was required to use crutches to walk for about three months. It also alleges that the plaintiff continues to experience much pain and inconvenience in getting around.

NCEA Conference Set For New Bern

Dr. B. B. Brandt, president of the E. C. T. C. unit of N. C. E. A., has received word that the North Carolina Education Association has launched its annual series of fall leadership conferences, and will hold the one for East Carolina Teachers College, Greenville, and Pitt county at New Bern on Wednesday, October 15. During the last year, these conferences were so successful in getting the local unit program underway that the same method is again being used.

Three conferences are held in each of the six districts in the state, preceding the large district conventions. All teachers, principals, and superintendents are invited to be present. Local unit presidents and committee members have been especially urged.

Mr. Fred W. Greene, executive secretary of the N. C. E. A. and Miss Mary Langston, field secretary for the association, will attend each of the meetings and conduct

FAIR EXHIBIT FARMERS TOLD ALL-INCLUSIVE TO CUT STALKS

Gastonia To Show State Confronted By Cotton from Patch Large Weevil Population

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Oct. 9.—To those acquainted with the course of cotton from the patch to the finished manufactured product, the big exhibit planned by Gastonia for the state fair here next week should be of outstanding interest.

The exhibit is being planned and prepared by the Gastonia chamber of commerce, with Mrs. Malda Adams, assistant secretary, in charge, assisted by John T. Beam, the city light and water head of the Gastonia capital.

The exhibit will show on its left, in a 20 by 12 foot panel, a cotton patch with actual cotton and a life-sized picker with basket of cotton. The center will have steps (eleven of them) leading to a platform. On each step will be shown one of the processes in the manufacture of cotton products, each step labeled, from raw cotton to yarn.

At the head of the steps will be a large picture of last year's Gastonia Cotton Festival king and queen.

On the right finished products will be shown—ginghams, all kinds of dress goods, sheeting, the fabric, rayons, silks, rugs and bedspreads, shoe laces, hosiery, oil filter refills, sewing thread, crocheting and knitting yarn, soldier uniform cloth, mosquito netting, etc.

Gastonia is the "Cottoned Cotton" Yarn Manufacturing Center of America, where more than 90 per cent of all the fine combed yarn in America is made. It has more textile plants (104) than any other county in the United States.

Dr. E. S. Jones Heard By Students, Teachers

Approximately 30 students and faculty members of East Carolina Teachers College went to Kinston, Tuesday evening, to hear Dr. E. Stanley Jones, missionary and evangelist.

To an audience which filled the high school auditorium Dr. Jones gave his speech on America's part in the present crisis which was printed in the Congressional Record in April. Briefly, he said that there could be no real victory, regardless of which side won in the present crisis, until both factions went beyond the physical struggle to build together an organization which has as its aim the protection of the rights of all races, colors, and creeds.

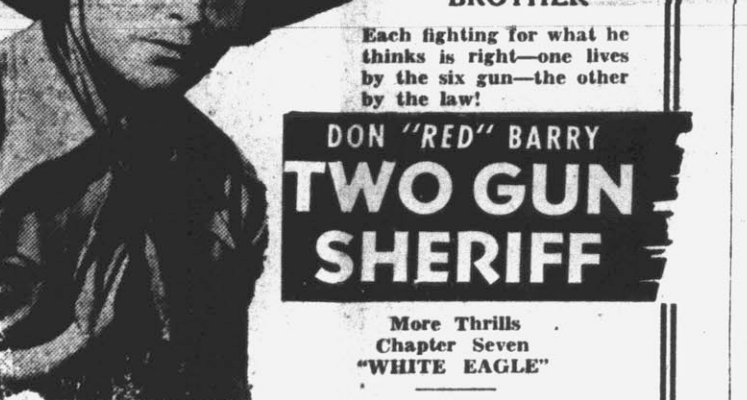

To Present Proposal On Christmas Parade

A proposal for staging a gigantic Christmas parade will be outlined to interested merchants and other business men by Mr. Calvin of the John D. Rogers Producing Company at a meeting tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the board room of the Municipal building.

Mr. A. Strodt, chairman of the Trade Promotion Committee of the Greenville Merchants Association, is inviting all interested members to be present and hear Mr. Calvin's proposition.

Heretofore Mrs. Cora S. Powell executive secretary of the association.

the conferences. They will be assisted by chairmen of district and state committees. The handbook for the local units will be presented at these meetings and will be gone over in some detail by the staff and committee members.

the Extension Service; J. C. Lynn Haywood county farm agent, will succeed Sloan as district agent; and J. P. Leagans has been promoted to Extension Specialist in Agricultural Planning.

Leagans will have charge of the details of the State Agricultural, or Land Use Planning Program which J. F. Criswell organized and directed until he recently resigned to accept a B. A. E. post in his native state of Texas. Sloan will help with this, and other program development work of the Extension Service.

John W. Goodman, assistant Extension director, announced that Wayne A. Corpening, assistant farm agent in Haywood for several years, will take over Lynn's job as Haywood agent.

Sloan is a native of Macon county. He was graduated from N. C. State College in 1923 with a B. S. degree in agriculture. After serving for a short time as a fruit and vegetable inspector in Eastern Carolina, Sloan entered Extension work in Macon county. He was assistant Extension horticulturist, working in Western Carolina, for four months in the winter and spring of 1936. He became Western district agent in May, 1936.
