ROXBORO JURY TOLD TO PROBE 'NEAR-LYNCH'

Judge Grady Uses Outspoken Language to Jury

SAYS GOVERNOR WAS HORRIFIED

Grand Jury Ordered To Bring To Justice Misguided Hoodlums And Misguided Nobodies

Roxboro, Oct. 14.—(AP)—In outspoken language, Superior Court Judge Henry A. Grady ordered the Person county grand jury today to bring to justice the "misguided hoodlums and inconsequential nobodies" who attempted unsuccessfully last August to lynch a Negro charged with raping a white girl.

"It is your duty to bring them all to justice," said the white-haired jurist, who added that Gov. Broughton was especially interested in seeing that the ringleaders were punished.

"You and I are white men," said Judge Grady, "as white men we make the laws of this state. The Negro hasn't anything to do with making the laws."

"We as white men hold the Negro up to the same laws that white men observe. Yet I blush to admit there are white people in North Carolina who think the Negro should not have as fair a trial as a white man."

"Gov. Broughton is horrified and outraged to have such a thing as this near-lynching happen in the old state of North Carolina where we profess to be honest, Christian gentlemen."

At the conclusion of the judge's charge, the grand jury filed silently out of the room to begin its investigation. It had in its hand a confidential report of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Judge Grady said that he did not intend to make the report public, but it was learned that it named at least some of the alleged ringleaders.

Yesterday the same grand jury returned a bill of indictment charging the Negro, who was almost the victim of lynching, with rape.

The Negro is Cy Winstead, whose trial will start in January. While he was confined in the Person county jail, an armed mob stormed the building, breaking windows and firing pistols. Tear gas and a vigorous defense by law officers finally routed the crowd after several hours of rioting in the early morning hours.

It was not learned immediately whether the grand jury would begin calling witnesses today.

She is survived by her father and mother; three sisters, Mary Eleanor, Helen Jean and Dorothy Bell; two brothers, Linwood and Frederick R. Secret Session

Washington, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The House Foreign Affairs committee considering neutrality revision went temporarily into secret session today, despite stormy protests that this was "star chamber" procedure.

Before any witnesses were called, Chairman Bloom (D.-N.Y.) vigorously gavelled down attempts of Rep. Vorys (R.-Ohio) to place certain material in the committee record.

Vorys sought permission to record a letter which he and three other Republican members had addressed to Bloom, protesting against the limitation of the hearing to two days, together with telegrams received by the chairman from opposition witnesses.

BIBLE COURSE PLAN ADOPTED

To Be Submitted To School Board And Churches

At a meeting of the sub-committee on teaching the Bible in the Greenville Public Schools, held in the office of the Superintendent of Schools last night, it was decided to ask the School Board and all the churches to approve a plan beginning this Biblical instruction in the high school on January 1, 1942.

This class to be started in 1942 would consist of a group of 30 to 35 boys and girls from the eleventh and twelfth grades of the senior high school. The resolution requested the ministers of the town to provide the teaching personnel for this class which will meet five times a week. It was further decided that by means of the newspaper, the radio, parents' meetings, and high school assemblies to discuss the idea of Biblical instruction with the general public, both as to the real need of this instruction as well as ways in which it might be done. It was brought out that the ideal way to put the program over would be the method employed by the other cities of North Carolina, which is for the churches to raise sufficient funds to employ one or more full-time teachers, these teachers to be members of the school faculty but the salaries to be paid by funds raised by the churches. The committee last night thought it was too late to attempt to provide as large a project as that of a full-time teacher for the present.

Local Civic Club Backs Bond Issue

The Greenville Rotary club last night added its endorsement to the proposed $250,000 school plant improvement program, which will be decided at the polls October 28.

The action was taken by J. M. Taft, member of the Board of Trustees of the city schools, and J. H. Rose, superintendent, had explained the program, which calls for additions and improvements to all schools in the district, both white and colored.

Various other civic and business organizations have endorsed the $250,000 bond issue to be decided at the polls.

Dr. J. L. Winstead was named by the club to represent it on the Board of Directors of the Community Chest.

It was decided to hold next week's club meeting at the local NYA center.

Community Chest Budget Established At $6,440.00

A called meeting of the Greenville Community Chest was held yesterday in Sheppard Memorial Library. The following organizations were represented: Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Thrift Shop, School Lunch Fund, King's Daughters, Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Tobacco Board of Trade, Woman's Club, Junior Women's Club, Business and Professional Women's Club. In addition to these representatives there were several interested citizens in attendance. Wm. A. Ryan presided as chairman pro tem and Miss Lanning acted as secretary.

The chairman stated the purpose of the meeting: To perfect the organization already set up with a Board of Directors; the selection of a chairman and a campaign director, and the adoption of a budget based on askings of the participating organizations. Several nominations for the office of chairman were made but in every instance declined, due to press of other duties which made it impossible for those nominated to serve. On motion made by Mr. Waldrop, an executive committee composed of Dr. Crisp, Mr. Underwood and Mr. Starkey was appointed to draft a chairman and campaign director for the year 1942.

To facilitate the work of the chest and those who will direct its work for 1942, the directors adopted the following budget, based on askings of the representatives of the agencies present, with the exception of the Salvation Army. No representative of that organization being present, the same amount as given last year was set down. The organizations and amounts were as follows:

Boy Scouts, $2,000; Girl Scouts, $2,500; Salvation Army, $300; Thrift Shop, $240; School Lunch Fund, $500; King's Daughters, $200; Emergency Relief, $500; Operating Expense, $200. Total $6,440.

The chairman stated the usual terms on which organizations participate in Community Chests: Acceptance of devotion of board of directors as to amounts deemed reasonable in view of service rendered and resources other than part of organizations to make no other public solicitation other than through Chest drive, and furnishing board of directors with detailed copies of budgets and statement of income.

Aged Senator Adds That He Is Not So Sure War With Japan Would Be A Bad Thing For U. S.; Quotes Navy Men As Saying Nippon Navy Could Be Sunk In A Week And Island Set Ablaze In One Night

Washington, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.) declared today that an American-Japanese conflict in the Pacific might develop "quick as a wink" if Germany should defeat Soviet Russia, and he added that he was "not so sure that war with Japan would be a bad thing for us."

The 80-year-old legislator, only remaining member who cast a Senate vote against entry into the last World war, said that a German victory over Russia might lead Japan to interfere with American shipping in the Pacific.

The United States, he asserted, would not tolerate any such interference, and he disclosed that Navy officials had advised him "they could sink the Japanese fleet within two weeks."

"Although they may be a little optimistic," he said, "I believe we could lick them (The Japanese). It would be a sea and air war, and it would not be a question of sending an army."

"A navy man told me that our bombers could set the whole island ablaze in one night, because Japanese cities are built of wood and are just so much tinder."

Norris made these observations to newsmen at a Senate Appropriations sub-committee started closed hearings on the House-approved $5,985,000,000 additional lend-lease appropriation, part of which may be used to help Russia.

Czech Sport Body To Be Dissolved

Berlin, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Dissolution of Sokol, the great Czech national sport organization, has been ordered by the new Reichsprotektor for the Bohemia-Moravia protectorate, General Heinrich Heydrich, it was announced here today.

The move was announced by the authoritative news service Dietst Aust Deutschland. Whether Sokol already had been disbanded or was about to be, was not disclosed.

Dienst asserted that the sport organization, which has branches in many parts of the world, had been more concerned with opposing Germany than with developing the bodies of its members.

It was decided to hold next week's club meeting at the local NYA center.

Ousted President Now At Cristobal

Cristobal, Canal Zone, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Panama's ousted President, Arnulfo Arias, arrived here from Cuba today aboard the Honduran steamer Cefalu with the avowed intention of returning to his homeland, where a bloodless coup last Thursday overthrew his regime.

When the steamer docked, however, Arias remained in his cabin. His first act was to reject a demand for his formal resignation. Gallio Solis, who had been Arias' contact man in the old regime, brought a document of resignation for the ex-president to sign, but he refused.

Tobacco

Offerings of 993,638 pounds of tobacco, sold for $357,276.76, or an average of 35.85 cents per pound on the Greenville market yesterday brought to 49,159,738 pounds the total sold this year for $12,437,506.85, a general season's average of 30.95.

For the corresponding sales days last year 38,911,598 pounds were sold for $6,954,257.97, or an average of 17.87—13.10 below this year's average to date.

Today's offerings totaled less than a quarter of a million pounds, but prices were holding up to yesterday. Good tobacco is still at its peak, the last sale on the market yesterday having averaged 43.59 cents. Light sales are expected each day during the remainder of the week, with the exception of Friday, when a big sale is anticipated.

ARMY SHAKEUP FELT BY MANY

Announced Aim Is To Revitalize Leadership

Washington, Oct. 14.—(AP)—A long list of field officers, ranging from second lieutenants to major generals have been relieved of their command by the army since the Louisiana war games, and military quarters heard today that the early removal of numerous others was likely.

The officers who have been superseded in combat posts represent the first to feel the effects of stern War Department efforts to revitalize the leadership of the land forces.

In point of numbers involved, the shakeup had been matched in army history only by the wholesale World War removals of AEE officers in France by a process which the army grimly termed "going bloozy" because the reclassification board which judged officers merits sat at Blois.

Anxious lest morale be shaken, the War Department thus far has shifted the top commanders as quietly as possible.

General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, said in disclosing the original intention to remove officers deemed incapable of maintaining strict discipline and handling troops that it was "stirring up a political mess" and also "the bitter and recrimination" of the World War.

Secretary Stimson has discouraged the use of the term "purge" and contended that publicly identifying officers involved would be unfair.

Plans Mapped For Annual Roll Call

Committees from each of 14 districts throughout the county met last night in the Municipal building to begin preparations for the annual Red Cross Roll Call which is to be held this year on November 4.

J. Nat. Harrison, chairman of the local chapter, presided over the meeting.

Special representatives from the national headquarters of the American Red Cross were present to outline the purpose and work of the organization and set forth its needs for the coming year. The first speaker, A. E. Chamberlain, pointed out the increased demands which the organization is being called upon to meet because of the national defense program. These demands include the training of many thousands of nurses' aids and medical technologists.

The second speaker, C. Leo Wilhelm, told about efforts to enroll school children in the Junior Red Cross and also spoke concerning local needs. He reminded his listeners that 50 cents of every dollar membership fee collected goes for work here in Pitt county and that the money collected from larger memberships everything in excess of 50 cents would likewise go toward local needs.

At the conclusion of the speeches, those present responded by passing unanimously a motion that a membership goal of 3,800 for Pitt county be adopted. Enthusiasm at the meeting ran high and a successful Roll-Call on November 4 is anticipated.

FAIL TO SOLVE ROW BETWEEN RIVAL UNIONS

Production Of Army Tanks Is Seriously Threatened

NEW TROUBLE IN CLEVELAND, OHIO

Threatened Strike Would Make 100,000 Workers Idle And Impede Production Of Passenger Cars

(By The Associated Press) The deadlock developed today in negotiations to settle an inter-union dispute which has seriously hampered production of army tanks and other combat vehicles.

At the same time, government officials and automobile makers expressed increasing concern over a Cleveland strike which threatened to make 100,000 workers idle by mid-week, and labor troubles continued to impede operations at two Gulf coast shipyards.

The trouble over tanks involved two factories in different states, and a dispute between rival unions—the United Automobile Workers—CIO—and the United Automobile Workers—AFL.

The DAW-CIO workers at the Spicer Manufacturing Company, Toledo, Ohio, where transmissions are made for 70 per cent of the army tanks, refused to handle parts made by the UAW-AFL members at the Hillsdale, Mich., Steel Products Company, a subsidiary of the Spicer firm.

The Toledo factory also produces transmissions for most of the army's half-tracks and "jeep" combat vehicles.

A settlement conference at Hillsdale broke up early today after 15 hours' talk, with no apparent prospect of early agreement. Federal Mediator J. J. Spillane went back to Washington to report to the U. S. Conciliation Service.

The CIO union proposed that 11 of its members who were dismissed from the Hillsdale factory last August be reinstated.

A spokesman for the AFL group, which won a recent Labor Board election at Hillsdale, declared "we will not surrender any bargaining rights acquired under law."

The threat of unemployment hung over 100,000 automotive workers as a result of the two-weeks-old strike of CIO workers at the Midland Steel Products Company, Cleveland, maker of automobile frames.

Overland Motors, Inc., at Toledo was left without frames needed for army "jeeps" part of a $13,000,000 order, and Hudson and Buick officials said they would be forced to slow down passenger car production of the strike was not settled soon. Studebaker Corporation already has closed its passenger car division, making 6,000 idle.

Helped Solve Miley Death Mystery

Tommy Lunsford (left) and Bud Tomlinson (right) of Lexington, Ky., are credited by Sheriff Ernest Thompson with giving information which helped solve the mystery in the slaying of Marion Miley, the girl, and her mother in their Lexington Country Club apartment September 28. Lunsford and Tomlinson said Tom C. Penney, an ex-convict, asked them to participate in a robbery a week before the slaying but they refused. Penney was arrested in Fort Worth, Tex., and confessed, the sheriff said. He also implicated Robert H. Anderson, Louisville night club operator.

British Aid To Russia Is Screened In Secrecy

Churchill Declines To Permit Debate In House

London, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill raised a screen of secrecy around the question of aid to Russia today, refusing to permit the House of Commons to debate the subject of British help and declining to discuss the course of the battle before Moscow.

In a brief parliamentary exchange Laborite Emanuel Shinwell, advocate of a British diversion in the West, had asked for a debate on aid to Russia. The Prime Minister brusquely brushed aside questioners, however.

"Mr. Shinwell should not suppose," declared Churchill, "that he has a monopoly of anxiety in these matters. I do not see any reason at all for an early debate at the present time on the situation in the East."

"I think it might be detrimental. I am sure it would likely do more harm than good."

Shinwell declared that "there is considerable disquiet in the country about the whole substance and speed of the assistance rendered Russia."

Churchill said that any statement on the German offensive "must obviously be left to the Russian high command who are conducting their great battle."

High School Lunch Room Proves To Be Big Asset

By MISS COOPER BELL A long-heralded and eagerly awaited event, the opening of the WPA lunchroom in Greenville high school. A red letter day in the lives of those of us who heretofore have had to eat a cold lunch, rush many blocks home or compete with the downtown business people to acquire a few needed calories and vitamins.

Despite the long lines extending from the vestibule to the steam table, despite the inexperience of students in making quick decisions as to choice of food and despite the lack of perfect coordination on the part of the personnel, the operation of the cafeteria has, in my opinion, been very good. One of the things that has impressed me is the attractive appearance of the room itself, the lovely flowers, the well-placed pictures and brightly colored crockery create a cheerful atmosphere.

I think the orchids for this week might well go to the pleasant women who serve the plates so heavily and so deftly. As one teacher observed, "Students seem to have accepted the necessity of the wait-in-line. There has been no pushing and shoving. Considering the number of people the noise has been reasonable. I have also noted that students, for the most part, have selected the plate lunch, thus assuring themselves of a wholesome, filling and inexpensive meal.

To promote the use of the lunch room I wish to remind you of its purpose; namely, to improve the health of the boys and girls of the Greenville high school and of the Training School. The lunch room is not provided for the convenience of health, an important phase of national defense. Since this is the purpose I wish to urge greater use of the cafeteria by students who bring all or part of their lunch from home. One hot vegetable or a glass of milk will ably supplement a cold lunch. Though I do not know the answer, I want to recommend that some means be taken to prevent the standing in line. One suggestion is that a rotation schedule for classes, or perhaps for the library alone, be used to permit students who eat in the cafeteria to go to lunch a few minutes before the bell for dismissal.

Long-Range Siege Guns Are Set Up

German Sources Declare Cannon In Position To Shell Outermost Defense Belt Of Soviet Capital; London Advises Say Nazi Troops Had Reached Advance Point, But Declare Invaders Forced To Retire

By The Associated Press Adolf Hitler's invasion armies were credited with slashing new gains of 110 and 60 miles in two vital sectors of the 13-day-old battle for Moscow today, with Nazi vanguards reported battling only 65 miles west of the Soviet capital and long-range German siege guns in a position to shell Moscow's "outermost defense belt."

London advices said advanced German troops had reached Moshaisk, about midway between Moscow and fallen Vyazma, but had been ejected by fiercely counter-attacking Red army forces.

The thrust apparently marked the closest approach to Moscow since the German offensive began October 2.

A Berlin spokesman indicated also that Nazi columns had entered Kaluga, 100 miles south of Moscow, and rolled on, leaving Soviet forces there to be mopped up by German rear guards. If true, this would mean that the Germans already had advanced more than half the distance from Bryansk, the scene of much of the heaviest fighting, to the U. S. R. capital.

The Germans asserted that still another Nazi column moving down on Moscow from the Valdai hills to the northwest was nearing the Moscow-Leningrad railway.

No amplification was forthcoming on the report that German siege guns were now in a position to shell Moscow's outer perimeter of defenses. Normally, field guns have a range under 25 miles, but German "big Berthas" during the World war bombarded Paris from a distance of more than 75 miles.

The Russians, reporting a last slaughter of the invaders, admitted the fall of strategic Vyazma, 125 miles west of Moscow, but declared the German offensive was slackening.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
Tuesday, October 14, 1901

Rumor is still rife concerning the Isthmus Canal treaty, but all is conjecture.

Schools and circuses don't run well together and the schools had to take a forced holiday today.

Talk about folks—big folks, little folks, old folks, young folks, men folks, women folks and all other kinds of folks—they were here today. But that was nothing more than might have been expected when it was announced that John Robinson's circus was coming to town.

A. C. E. Meets.

The Association for Childhood Education held a meeting in the auditorium of Sheppard Memorial Library Saturday afternoon, October 11. The chairman for the year, Miss Christine Johnston, presided and the most important business of the session consisted of appointment of various committees and making plans for the year's work.

After the business meeting, Miss Helen Butler of ECTC, a member of the student branch of A. C. E. gave a report of her wonderful trip to the national convention of the Association for Childhood Education at Oakland, Calif., last June. Mrs. Robeson of the Greenville schools, gave a report of the A. C. E. seminar at ECTC in June.

The group made plans to sponsor a luncheon during the N. C. E. A. district meeting November 7, for teachers who are interested in childhood education. A speaker of note will be secured.

New Exhibit At Art Gallery.

The new exhibit at the Greenville WPA Art Gallery is a group of 15 prints assembled by Ohio artists, each print illustrating a different method in use by artists for reproducing their paintings and drawings.

Included in the group are examples of some methods that have been used by artists for hundreds of years, as well as some that have been developed in more modern days. In the group are such illustrations as wood and line engravings, aquatints, lithographs, linoleum blocks and cuts, dry points, and stencil paintings. With each print there is a description of the process used in the particular method illustrated in the picture. In addition to the interesting information afforded in the exhibit concerning graphic processes, the prints themselves are appealing—a charming portrait in color of Eskimo children, for instance; a tiny black and white print called "Sad Man"—the actual picture not more than 3x4 inches, yet portraying the timeless and measureless burden of loneliness and woe common to all mankind.

This exhibit will be on display in the gallery until October 20. The general public is cordially invited to see it. The gallery director will also be glad to arrange for group visits or classes any teacher may wish to arrange for her students, not only during this exhibit but at any time.

The gallery will be open tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock. Mr. Charles Bisette will speak at 8 o'clock on "Amateur Picture-taking." There is no admission charge.

Many other fine talks were heard, and a movie in technicolor of interesting scenes of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home in Greensboro, was shown by the superintendent of the home, George R. Bennett.

Following a delicious luncheon, a Question Hour proved very beneficial, and fine reports from the chapters in the second district were turned in. Then to close a fine

Bride Of Last Week

MRS. ARTHUR BENJAMIN MAYO

Rocky Mount, Oct. 14.—In a private ceremony solemnized Friday morning, October 10, in the First Methodist Church of Fredericksburg, Virginia, Miss Virginia Moore Meeks of this city, and Mr. Arthur Benjamin Mayo of Rocky Mount and Falkland, were united in marriage.

The Reverend L. L. Phillips officiated at the ring ceremony. The bride, an attractive brunette, wore for her wedding an original model of black velvet fashioned with a basque bodice and collar and cuffs of lace. A bow of Romance blue velvet accented the neckline, and her hat, gloves, and bag were of the same shade. Her hat was trimmed with ostrich tips of Romance blue and made with a soft shirred edge to enhance the face. She wore a shoulder corsage of blue orchids and swansonia.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Mayo left for a wedding trip north and upon their return will make their home at 338 South Pearl street, Rocky Mount.

Mrs. Mayo is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Meeks and a popular member of the younger set. She was graduated from the Rocky Mount high school where she held membership in Delta Theta Delta sorority. She later attended Winthrop College in Rock Hill, South Carolina, the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro, and Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Virginia, where she was a member of the Cognition Club.

Mr. Mayo is the son of Mrs. Lyman Brown and the late Mr. Arthur Herbert Mayo of Falkland. He received his education in the Falkland schools. He worked in Greenville for five years, coming to Rocky Mount from that city. He is now associated in business here.

The program will consist of straight news and crooked gossip. Spencer Carroll, outstanding GHS football star, will be interviewed by Gene and Beverly.

FOR THE LOVE OF PAM

By VIVIEN GREY

Chapter 32
Lenore Happy

Adele had been looking at Bart intently. There had been something almost too gay about him as he talked of money. He wasn't speaking of it with the regret and heaviness of men who had lost it. Lenore, however, had her mind on other things. She said:

"Oh, Father, do you mean you really won't object if I fall in love with someone who hasn't a family tree to hang anything on? Do you mean it really? You've always been so fussy about such things, for Granny's sake if nothing else."

"Of course I mean it. Where did you ever get such silly ideas of your dad? My concern has ever been only for your good. And Granny likes people who do things. That comes next to her religion, bless her heart."

"Darling! Oh, my darling father! Lenore's sultry beauty lighted and warmed into something lovelier than her parents had seen in a long time.

"Bring the boy around, Lenore," she suggested. "I'd like to see him."

Lenore smiled. She said:

"It's Vin Barroll, darlings. Oh, can I bring Vin to dinner tonight?"

Stomach growl

Jerry hurried through dinner. There were things he had to attend to. He had been going through emotional tortures, humiliation, remorse, regret, and had finally beaten them all. He had decided he would make the victory complete that night.

When Pam saw Jerry at her door, her eyes grew cold, though her heart trembled. It was going to be difficult to steel herself against Jerry. With all his faults and weaknesses he was still the man she loved.

Pam didn't wait for Jerry to speak.

"Jerry Winthrop," she said, "you can turn right around and get off the piazza as fast as you got on it! And don't ever come back here! I never want to see you again!"

"Wait, Pam," Jerry said firmly, putting his arm around her in spite of her protest. He drew her into the living room. "Look, Pam," he took her left hand, which she was trying to draw away from him, and slipped an exquisite old ring on her third finger, a large emerald in an interesting gold setting. "Mother gave this to me. It was Granny's engagement ring. Mother gave it to me for you."

"Don't talk to me, Jerry," Pam said furiously. "I don't want to hear anything you might say."

"All right, dear. I've been all wrong up to a few weeks ago when you showed me the light. Since then I've tried to show you that I mean right. I've been right. I can't help it that a girl who finally decides she wants the security of marriage comes down here and—well—Pam knew why he was stammering.

"Comes down here and wants to marry you, I know, Jerry," she added with less anger, "your complete lack of conceit has helped in your undoing. Of course, girls want you. You're handsome and you've had money, and the careless way you make friends makes you seem like easy prey for them."

"I'm easy prey for only one girl now, darling," he said tenderly. "Pam," he asked earnestly, "think over the past few weeks. I won't give you up. I won't, do you hear, my island flower? Do you?"

Pam was thoughtful for a moment. Then she said earnestly:

"I know you've been trying, Jerry. I know it. And you've more than tried. You've accomplished your purpose." Anger had gone from her. No use pretending anger when love filled her heart.

"Pam, darling!" He kissed the

Chapter One
The Soldiers Come

"The soldiers have taken over Tyler Springs," said Sue Ellen Fairhope.

Her aunt looked up from her tapestry, with an expression half puzzled, half terrified, ending in a smile, as she caught the twinkle in Sue Ellen's bright hazel eyes.

"You mean those boys from Camp Shelby?"

Sue Ellen nodded, stripped off her light coat, tossed her hair that on the sofa and sat down, with her slender legs outstretched before her.

"That's what I mean," her smile died away in a troubled frown. "Six months ago Tyler Springs was a quiet little Mississippi village; now it's the rendezvous for draftees appraising every girl as another Scarlett O'Hara. I went into the drug store for a drink and practically fought my way out."

"I'm not surprised. Although," said her Aunt Carolina Fairhope anxiously, "you should not go downtown on the day those men are about."

"About? They're about every day. One stared straight at my engagement ring, knifed his way through to where I sat and had the impudence to ask: 'Are you Miss Fairhope?'"

"How could he know your name?"

Sue Ellen shrugged her shoulders. "Probably the soda jerk told him. Maybe he saw my picture in the Memphis paper announcing that Riv Moore and I are to be married next month. At any rate, I looked straight at him and never answered."

"He was no gentleman."

"On the contrary, he looked quite the gentleman. All shaven and shorn and looking mighty trig in a smart uniform. But he was a northern, long and lanky, with a pair of grey eyes which could look mighty angry."

"Maybe he knew you."

"I don't know any northerners. I don't want to." Sue Ellen's eyes darkened and her delicate brows knotted in a frown. "I despise all northerners. I hate the way they try to promote new projects and buy up plantations and restore them. Soon the South will lose its identity. Having a camp of them practically at our doors absolutely enrages me."

Aunt Carolina tactfully changed the subject. "When is Riv coming back from Washington?"

"Just as soon as the Colonel will let him come. Today, I hope. It's four weeks until the wedding and I want to make out the invitation list and Riv must help me." She sat twisting the diamond ring upon her engagement finger. "Aunt Car, how do you know that you really love a man enough to marry him?"

Her aunt looked up, startled, and a faint flush dyed her delicate cheek. "How—what a ridiculous question to ask, Sue Ellen."

"Is it? I asked you because I believed that you would know. Forgive me for asking and if you don't want to talk about it, I'll understand, but Aunt Pleas told me that years ago you were wild about a man and wanted to marry him and Grandfather Fairhope made you break your engagement. Is that true?"

"Yes—that's true."

"Then tell me how I'll know that Riv is the man I should marry. Aunt Car—when Riv makes love to me, it frightens me. I'm all bewildered and uncertain and upset and Riv doesn't seem to be the boy I grew up with in Tyler Springs. But someone strange and different. I like Riv best when we're not alone."

Her aunt's fine face was bewildered. "You don't like to be alone with Riv?"

"I don't know what I mean."

Sue Ellen moved swiftly and gave her aunt an impulsive hug. "I'm just being silly and moody. All brides-to-be are like that, aren't they?"

"How Did You Know?"

She was laughing, but the tears stood in her hazel eyes and she buried her dark head against the arm of her aunt's chair.

The tapestry slid to the floor and lay there with the tangle of wool a brilliant spot on the faded old carpet. Aunt Car's slender nervous hand stroked Sue Ellen's crisp dark hair. She made no attempt to answer Sue Ellen's outburst.

From the rear of the house came her sister's voice, briskly ordering Aunt Jennie about in the kitchen. From the hall came the soft boom of the clock on the winding stairs. From outside, the halting step of Uncle Freeman, as he moved across the porch toward the steps leading around to the tool shed.

"This is evening. How do you do, Miss Carolina." He threw his soft hat down on a chair and took both Sue Ellen's hands in a tight firm grasp. "I do love Riv—is that what you said?" He took her in his arms, kissed her and drew her down beside him on the sofa.

Aunt Car picked up her work, murmured something about helping her sister and vanished through the doorway.

"Riv—how could you?"

He grinned. "Kiss you with a member of your family present. Why not?"

"We were discussing you."

Her eyes studied him carefully. She had told Aunt Car that this Riv was different from the boy who had tramped about the fields and woods and galloped down the clay roads when they were children together. Dark and handsome, with eyes so black and lashes so long and sooty that at a distance Riv's eyes looked smudged in his deeply tanned face. Hair smooth and black and glossy. A stubborn dented chin. A graceful slender figure. Long, shapely hands and feet.

"Well—" Riv grinned. "So you were discussing me. Good or bad? What was the verdict? He released her and fumbled in his pocket for cigarettes.

"I wondered whether I loved you enough to marry you, Riv."

"You do," he said carelessly. "I'm satisfied, at least. Does your worthy aunt believe the contrary? She doesn't like me. She never did."

"Aunt Car—how ridiculous, Riv."

"Someone told me she had a love affair once with a Yankee. That true?"

"She fell in love with a man she met overseas. A soldier."

Riv arose and paced the room. "Don't suggest soldiers to me. I'm sick of them. I'm damned fed up with this conscription idea. That's all I heard in Washington. I come home and find the town overrun with men in uniform."

"Well—" Sue Ellen traced the pattern of her print dress with one tapering finger. "You don't have to stay in Tyler Springs, Riv—although I have always wished—"

"I know. That the Colonel would buy up the mortgage on that dilapidated plantation of the Fairhopes and restore it for us to live in. That will never be—not for years."

"I had hoped—"

"I know. But times are different. Lately the Colonel hasn't had an easy time financially. It takes a fortune to restore those old places and men from the north are the ones who buy them up. They're the only ones who can."

"I couldn't stand it to have Belle Acres owned by a Yankee."

He looked at her queerly. "I didn't come all the way back from Washington to discuss your aunt's plantation. I'm tired as a dog—been busy every minute pulling wires to get something lined up which would keep me out of this draft. I thought I had it fixed last spring—" He broke off abruptly.

"What do you mean, Riv?"

"Nothing."

He did mean something. He left her and stood at the window. Something was wrong. After that further interest in lovenaking, and that was unlike Riv. He was nervous, worried. His eyes, dark-circled as though he had had no sleep, and Riv never worried, but let the Colonel do that.

She arose and moved to the cherry desk in the corner and came back with the list she had made of those who should be invited to their wedding. "Come and sit down," she begged. "You make me nervous, Riv."

He observed. Sat down beside her, stubbed out his cigarette. "What's that?" He indicated the neat list she had spread out for his inspection.

"That! That's the list of people who'll be present at our wedding. I want you to read it."

Strength For The Day
By KARL L. DOUGLASS

THE PEOPLE MUST GET TOGETHER

When jigsaw puzzles were popular a few years ago, a man worked all one evening trying to put together a map of the world. Upon his return from the office the next evening, he was amazed to find that his young son had put it together in about an hour. Remembering his arduous attempts the evening before and the little success he had had, he inquired of the youngster how he could have achieved this overwhelming task in so short a time. The boy's answer was, "You tried to work it out by putting the map of the world together. On the other side there was a picture of several people. I didn't try to put the world together; I tried to put the people together. Nobody could put the map of the world together if he worked at it a whole week. The way to get the world together is to get the people together."

It was another case of simple but very deep wisdom coming from the mind of a child. Politicians have always believed that they could put the world together and hold it together with treaties, but history has shown that treaties are worse than useless when the passions of avarice and love of power are left unrestrained in men's hearts. The people of the entire world are and always have been well disposed toward each other. Their rulers plant hatred in their hearts, regiment them into armies, and make them believe that their harmless, next-door neighbors are ready to tear them limb from limb.

Military victories will never win this or any other war. We must put the peoples of the world together, or the armies will have fought in vain.

OUR COMMUNITY CHEST

Within a few days citizens of Greenville will be asked to make their annual contributions to the Community Chest fund and it is to be hoped that the goal of approximately $6,500 will be reached quickly after the drive actually gets under way. In the past the total budget of the Community Chest has not been large enough to really take care of activities in this community, and this year's budget has been increased in order that a more widespread service to the community might be rendered. Our city and section have been greatly blessed with more prosperous times than usual and there is no reason why we cannot easily reach the goal set for the drive if everyone will do his or her part in the way of contributions.

IT SHOULD BE REPEALED

We agree with Secretary Hull and others appearing before the House Foreign Affairs Committee hearings on the neutrality bill that present limitations of the measure are a menace to the future safety of the United States. Instead of just asking for amendment of the measure, however, we feel that while the matter is being considered it should be from the angle of a complete drapping of it. Already we have seen the folly of adopting a measure that puts a self-imposed prohibition against exercising our rights under the terms of international law and the sooner we get rid of such a law the better off the country will be.

THE MAJORITY SHOULD DECIDE THE ISSUE

You may be getting tired of our bringing it up, but it is an important matter, so again we ask, "Have you registered for the coming school bond election?" The books will close next Saturday and after that time it will be too late. This question of the issuance of bonds other fellow and fail to schools is one that should be decided by the majority of the citizens of the Greenville school district, but if too many of them leave it to the for improvement of our register and vote, the issue will be decided not by the majority, but by a very small minority.

Washington Daybook
By Jack Stinger

Washington - You've heard of the CCC, NYA, the CPTP, and several other vocational and national defense training projects, but if you haven't heard of the OSY, put it on your list now, because it's on the upswing.

The OSY is the Out-of-School Rural Defense Training Program—a year ago a mere snip of an outfit that had only $10,000.00 to play with (and only $15,000.00 this fiscal year). However, the government is playing catch-as-catch-can with defense bottlenecks and it is beginning to appear that OSY is sitting right where a serious one is developing.

As OSY was originally conceived, out-of-school rural youth was to receive training in farm mechanics and in the skilled mechanical field. It turned out that most farm boys could take a tractor apart and put it back together, wire the house, build short wave radios that would pick up Europe, and make mechanical milkers out of two feet of hose and an old vacuum cleaner.

Shortage of Farm Youth.

Consequently, when the demand came for skilled workers in defense industries, and salaries popped up to make a hired man's pay look like a short crop in peanuts, farm lads found themselves riding a new gravity train and they made the most of it.

There were two other factors—the draft and the discovery by industrial employers that farm youths even if they didn't know their mechanics, were two jumps ahead of city boys because they were "work-trained." You didn't have to teach them how to work, you merely had to teach them what to do.

The result of all this has been a shortage of farm youth on the farms. It has been developing fast and for months now it has been a serious concern of vocational and national defense officials. That's why OSY has outgrown its rompers and is getting two to four times the requests for training schools that it can supply.

South's Needs Are Urgent.

While some OSY training centers, such as that at Dayton, O., have turned out youths who have moved right into defense industries, much more numerous centers which are turning skilled mechanical farmers back to the farms. At Lakota, Texas, for example, the boys made hoes, scythes, plows, window-screens, self-feeders cold chisels, shovels and hay hooks. They shod horses, repaired automobiles, tractors and gas engines and plows—and went back to the old homestead.

Better than 50 per cent of the OSY training centers are located in the rural areas of the South, for it is there that the demand has been greatest. Nearly all of the southern states have 6,000 to 7,000 boys going through this OSY mill. Texas, which is leading them all, has 24,320 enrolled in 314 centers.

An interesting phase of OSY work is the way that industry is cooperating in providing instructors. Electrical companies, wood-working firms, auto repair shops and dozens of concerns in other trades have given skilled workers time off to make these out-of-school youngsters the kind of jack-of-all-mechanical-trades that the farmer of today has to be.

Raleigh, Oct. 14.—Maybe there's something in a name, after all. At least, state Rural Electrification officials say there's a chap over in Orange county named Crabtree who is determined to prevent the electrification of Mount Hermon church unless and until he is paid $500—and paid it by the church and not by anybody else—for a right away across his property.

The situation is one of the most unusual the REA folks have ever encountered. They confess themselves stumped in every effort to provide the church with lights, although it is within less than a mile of four separate and distinct distribution lines and within less than one hundred yards of a high-voltage transmission line of the Duke Power Company.

They say it wouldn't even be necessary to set a pole on Crabtree's land—that the right of way of public highway is close enough to the church to run a wire from a pole on it to the church. That means it would be nothing whatsoever done to the Crabtree land—except that a wire would be run over it high in the air.

The Crabtree property extends all around the church, and there is absolutely no way whatever to get a wire to it except by crossing his land, the REA office said.

According to the story practically every means of cajolery, exhortation and even threats have been used in an effort to soften up the obdurate land-owner, but to no effect whatever.

This And That

Your reporter, sitting on the Fordham side of the field at Chapel Hill Saturday, heard several New Yorkers express amazement at the thunderous ovation which went up from the Carolina stands right after President Frank Graham was introduced before the game. Their amazement changed to amusement when they noted that it was the Carolina squad which had given the prexy such a break—by running out from the dressing room just at the crucial moment. R. O. Self, chief clerk of the Utility Commission, and Broadus Glover, bus expert, are figuratively kicking themselves. They practically ordered all bus company traffic managers to come to Raleigh Thursday for a conference—forgetting that this is Fair week and that they would have had a holiday if they hadn't talked, or rather written, themselves out of it. J. M. Granger, state REA engineer, is an alumnus of the University of North Carolina and of Georgia Tech. As well, Saturday he tuned in on the Carolina-Fordham game in the second half with the Tar Heels one touchdown behind and on the move. Then came that freak fumble and the Rams finally tally. Sadly Mr. Granger switched his dial over to the Notre Dame-Tech battle. At the moment the Rambling Wreck was rambling down the field in good style and the engineer's enthusiasm rose. Then there was a time out and the pause the announcer said: "We are in the fourth quarter and the score is Notre Dame 20, Georgia Tech 0." Mr. Granger is looking for somebody to buy a slightly damaged radio set. Out of the higher ranking state officials is very enthusiastic over the Fair — "The best thing about it is Thursday," he cracked, "I can go out and play golf that morning." Utility commission attaches are jokingly calling today's power conference in Georgia the "Second Battle of Atlanta."

TAR HEELS AT ATLANTA MEET

Winborne and Granger Attend Power Parley

Reflector Bureau.

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Utility Commission Chairman Stanley Winborne and state REA Engineer J. M. Granger are today down in Georgia fighting the "Second Battle of Atlanta," as the power conference in the Cracker capital has been smilingly called in many quarters.

What will turn up, nobody knows. It appears to be one of the many tariff-strangled defense situations in which nobody knows what it's all about; with emphasis on the all, because of course all the participants have their own ideas on certain phases of the matter and all of them know, in general, what the idea is.

The two Tar Heels are determined on two things: (1) They will not start in the way of any sincere proposal they believe is calculated to promote or speed up the national defense program, and (2) They will unyieldingly fight any diversion of power from North Carolina non-defense competitors in other states.

Stating it more in detail, neither Mr. Winborne nor Mr. Granger will say "No" to diverting a part of North Carolina's power to strictly bona fide defense projects, even if it involves hardships on certain Tar Heel non-defense industries.

On the other hand, both are prepared to battle to the end if it appears that textile mills in the Piedmont, for instance, are to run short of power in order that textile mills in Alabama may keep going.

In this position they have already been assured that they have the wholehearted support of Governor J. Melville Broughton.

It is noticeable that none of the privately owned utilities of North Carolina will be represented at the Atlanta conference; but it is obvious that the Duke and Carolina companies, as examples, do not feel that they could accomplish any good either for themselves or for national defense by taking part.

Neither will either Mr. Winborne or Mr. Granger attend a Montgomery, Alabama, conference of state utility officials from southeastern states.

As seen by the Utility commission and by the North Carolina power companies, the situation is this: North Carolina, under a strictly regulated system of private power ownership and operation, has built up its power resources to the point where there isn't the slightest danger of a shortage of power here, no matter how long the drought if the power it produces is not diverted to other states.

On the other hand many states, notably Tennessee, have a surplus, sufficiently far-sighted to do likewise. They have depended too much on publicly produced and distributed power from the T. V. A. projects—all of them hydro-electric—and now that the long dry spell has lowered streams to unparalleled shallowness they have nothing to fall back on, having failed to set up an auxiliary system of steam plants such as we have in North Carolina.

Now, the Federal Power Commission, at least partial ly responsible for the situation in T. V. A. territory, wants to force North Carolina to share its power with other less wise states. North Carolina stands ready to do this, so far as strict and genuine defense projects go, but it is naturally unwilling to let its industries suffer merely to aid similar industries in other states and to cover up the short-sightedness of federal power officials.

Bible Course Plan Adopted

ent year and, therefore, adopt a plan of starting one class during this school year with the idea in mind that by September 1, 1942 the town might be able to have a full-time program. The recommendation made last night will be submitted to all the ministers and congregations of the city for approval or disapproval, and to the school board. If all these organizations approve the idea, then it is supposed that one class will start in the high school with the opening of the spring term in January, 1942.

Present at the meeting last night were the following: From the school board, W. E. Hooker, Joseph M. Taft; from the high school faculty, Mrs. C. A. Bowen, Miss Imogene Riddick; for the ministers of the city, Rev. J. C. Spivey, Rev. Charles P. Gable, Dr. W. A. Ryan, Rev. Hartwell Campbell, and V. M. Mulholland, secretary of the meeting. The meeting was presided over by Superintendent J. H. Rose who was elected chairman at a former meeting.

On motion of J. H. Rose, a rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Ryan for the service rendered as director of the Chest campaigns during the past four years.

BATTLE WAGED 65 MILES FROM MOSCOW

ing before growing Red army resistance in that sector.

Soviet front line dispatches pictured a series of gigantic mechanized battles raging over the fields west of Moscow, with the Germans hurling tanks and motorized infantry from one sector to another in an effort to find soft spots.

By The Associated Press

German and Soviet armies were reported locked in a great new battle today near historic Borsodol, where Napoleon crushed the Russians before his entry into Moscow in 1812, and Nazi long-range siege guns were said to be already shelling the capital's "outermost defense belt."

London advices said German vanguards had pushed as far as Moshalsk, only 60 miles west of Moscow, but had been driven back toward Borsodol, which lies 10 miles to the west.

Recent dispatches said the Nazi war machine was thundering ever closer to Moscow over the bodies of Russian soldiers who fell as they charged in ranks 15 deep.

Roads and fields were described by the Germans as thick with Soviet dead.

Adolf Hitler's high command said 500,000 Red army troops had been taken prisoner so far in the bloody Vyazma and Bryansk sectors, and reported that Russian resistance in the blazing ruins of Vyazma had been definitely "liquidated."

DNB, the official German news agency, said the Russians fired the town and blew up the chief buildings before they retreated.

British Warships Hit By Torpedoes

Rome, Oct. 14.—(AP)—A British battleship and a 10,000-ton cruiser were torpedoed by Italian airmen who surprised them in the eastern Mediterranean yesterday, the high command said today, and the cruiser was declared to have listed heavily.

The violent fire from guns of the two ships and others in a formation of two battleships and several cruisers and destroyers badly damaged one of the raiding planes, a communiqué said, but all "returned to their bases."

In other actions over the Mediterranean and North Africa, the communiqué reported, 11 British planes were destroyed by Germans and Italians.

British air raids upon the Axis-held ports of Derna and Tripoli were officially acknowledged, but a communiqué reported no damage or casualties and said one plane was shot down.

Release Indicated For Draft Dodger

Washington, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Early release of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, widely publicized World War draft dodger, from the United States army disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, was indicated today in a request by Attorney General Biddle for dismissal of 28-year-old indictments pending against him and other persons.

The Justice Department announced that Gerald A. Gleason, United States attorney at Philadelphia, had been instructed to ask dismissal of the old indictments, returned between July, 1918, and June, 1920, under the 1917 Selective Service act.

It was learned simultaneously that the existence of the old charges was brought to the attention of the attorney general by a letter from a high War Department official stating that Bergdoll had asked for a parole and inquiring, as is customary practice, whether any charges still were pending against him. The official explained that if any charges were pending the army would be prohibited from granting him release.

The attorney general was said to have looked into the matter and, finding the old indictments, to have decided that they should be removed since the Justice Department did not intend to prosecute them.

Bergdoll is serving a seven and one-half year sentence imposed by military courts for desertion, escape and draft evasion.
