NAZI LOSSES IN EAST ESTIMATED AT FOUR MILLION

HULL ASSERTS HITLER TRYING TO RULE SEAS

Cites Attack on Kearny As Indication Of Such Aim

THREAT COVERS NORTH ATLANTIC

Secretary Of State Supposes Hitler Also Would Want To Force Other Nations To Get Off Earth

Washington, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Secretary Hull today characterized the torpedoing of the United States destroyer Kearny as another in a series of incidents illustrating Adolf Hitler's known and confessed effort to seize control of the seas as well as the continents.

Hitler has notified all nations to keep their ships out of an area covering a large portion of the North Atlantic on penalty of having their ships sunk. Hull told his press conference, because he proposes to drive all other nations off the seas by intimidation.

If such intimidation were successful, the secretary continued, he supposed Hitler then would want other nations to get off the earth.

The Secretary of State's outspoken denunciation of the attack on the Kearny followed a Navy announcement that 10 of the destroyer's crew had been injured and that 11 were "missing" and the rest charge that the vessel was by submarine, undoubtedly German.

Asked whether the United States had made or was contemplating a diplomatic protest to Germany, Hull replied with asperity that one does not often send diplomatic notes to international highways.

Parley Scheduled On Aid To Russia

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP)—A conference on help for Russia was scheduled by President Roosevelt today with W. Averill Harriman, head of his mission to Moscow, and Harry L. Hopkins, his supervisor of lease-lend operations.

Originally the chief executive had planned to confer with Harriman after he returned to Washington tomorrow. Hopkins, however, spent Saturday night at Harriman's home at Arden, N. Y., and then returned to Hyde Park, where he was a weekend guest of the president.

There was no denial in White House quarters that the preliminary second-hand report which Harriman submitted to Mr. Roosevelt through Hopkins was of sufficient importance to warrant the arrangements for today's parley.

To Set Closing Date For Greenville Mart

The closing date for the Greenville tobacco market was scheduled to be determined at a meeting of officials called for late afternoon today. The date will be announced tomorrow.

Between 500,000 and 600,000 pounds of tobacco was offered on the local market today, with prices remaining firm. The offerings were preponderantly inferior, however, as many farmers brought the last of their crop to the market.

Nazi Official Shot

Vichy, Oct. 20.—(AP)—German General Holtz, commanding the Nantes region in German occupied France, was shot and killed today.

The announcement said the general was fired on by two assassins and that both escaped. The shooting occurred early today in the Place St. Pierre, Nantes' principal square as Holtz was en route to his headquarters.

Two men fired a series of shots at him and escaped in the resulting confusion. Both French and German authorities immediately began an active search for them.

Holtz was one of the principal officials of the German occupational forces in France.

15,000 Greeks Reported Slain

Announcement Made By Government In Exile

London, Oct. 20.—(AP) The Greek government in exile said today that 15,000 Greeks had died in "a series of brutal massacres" by Bulgars in the Kavala district and province of Drama, Greece.

The government said it had received the information in a cable "from official sources."

The Greeks, although virtually unarmed, killed 330 Bulgars and seven Germans, the cable dated Sunday, said.

The Kavala district and Drama province are in that part of Macedonia occupied by Bulgaria after the Axis invasion of Greece.

A Greek uprising in the Drama region was reported recently to have been crushed.

The cable said revolt broke out in the Kavala district after Greek and Jewish hostages were shot "indiscriminately."

Rebellion which spread all over Drama province was deliberately exploited by agitators, the cable said, adding that, "based on the statements of eye witnesses, 15,000 was a conservative estimate of the number killed."

Russia May Turn To U.S. For Food

Washington, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Russia may have to turn to the United States for food supplies, particularly wheat, as a result of the loss of rich grain producing areas of the Ukraine, Agriculture Department officials said today.

It was suggested that importation of grain from this country into Vladivostok would release a considerable quantity of Siberian grain for shipment westward into that portion of European Russia not occupied by Hitler's forces.

There was no indication that the Russian government has approached the United States for food supplies, but officials said the war had raised serious obstacles for the Soviet government in the task of supplying its army and civilians.

Negro Is Saved From Burning House Here

Fire Chief George Gardner today revealed that Charlie Brown, Negro, narrowly escaped death Friday night when, according to firemen, he set his bed on fire while smoking a cigarette and while in an intoxicated condition.

According to Chief Gardner the man, who lives on Atlantic avenue, evidently set the bed afire in the front room, but managed to get off that bed and reach another in the back room. He apparently pulled some of the burning cover with him to the bed in the back room and set it on fire.

When firemen arrived they were told that a man was inside and they immediately broke in to rescue him. Firemen found the Negro on the bed in the back room, groaning and in a semi-conscious condition. He was given first aid attention and then taken to the hospital, where his burns were said to be painful, but not serious.

The building was saved after damage estimated at $100 had been caused.

Gas Shortage Is Felt By Carnival In City

That there is a shortage of gasoline or at least an inability to get unlimited quantities was evidenced here today when the Kaus Exposition Shows to be on the midway of the Pitt county fair this week, encountered difficulty in securing the required fuel to operate their many riding devices.

Because of quotas limiting their supply, some local agents had to decline orders and Mr. Stubbs in charge of such details, said he had encountered such difficulties throughout the season.

Fair patrons need not worry, however, as arrangements were being made to secure the gasoline needed.

Group Backed By Willkie Declared To Be Ready To Demand Outright Repeal Of Act; Democratic Senators Glass And Pepper Already Have Stated Their Aim At Attempting To Erase Act

Washington, Oct. 20.—(AP)—A group of Republican senators, actively backed by Wendell L. Willkie, were reported ready today to demand outright repeal of the neutrality act.

Such a demand would impart a bi-partisan character to the complete repeal movement, for Democratic Senators Glass of Virginia, Pepper of Florida and others already have announced that they would work to wipe the legislation off the books in the forthcoming test.

Leaders of the Republican repeal group in the Senate were reported reliably to be Sen. Austin (R-VT), the assistant minority leader, Sen. Bridges (R-NH) and Sen. Gurney (R-SD).

Informants said they had discussed the neutrality issue with Willkie and had agreed with him that the party should take aggressive leadership in revision of the present statute.

Willkie, 1940 GOP presidential nominee, has urged repeatedly that the Republican party stand for "internationalism" rather than "isolationism."

It will be several days before the neutrality act revision reaches the Senate floor for full dress debate and the legislative outlook was complicated by a new impounder—the casualty list of missing and injured which the U. S. destroyer Kearny reported last night after surviving a torpedo attack by a submarine, "undoubtedly German," in the North Atlantic near Iceland.

John Ivy Norville, 78, died at his home near Farmville Saturday morning at 6:30. Funeral services were held at the home Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Elder J. B. Roberts of the Farmville Primitive Baptist church. Interment was in the family burial grounds at the home.

Surviving him are two sons and six daughters: R. C. Norville of Walsenburg; W. R. Norville, Philadelphia; Mrs. M. C. Owens, Greensboro; Mrs. H. S. Kahn, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. M. G. Hinson, Farmville; Miss Carrie G. Norville, Philadelphia, Pa.; Misses Mildred and Louise of Farmville and two brothers, T. R. Norville of Farmville and E. T. Norville of near Farmville.

SPOTTERS FAIL CHECK PLANES

Bombers Roar Far Inland In Mimic Warfare

With the Third Interceptor Command on maneuvers, October 20.—(AP)—Several flights of army bombers roared far inland over North Carolina despite the watchfulness of many aircraft warning service posts to drop "destructive" explosives upon military objectives at the opening of the third interceptor command's week long mimic warfare today.

The first reported flight was observed over Laurinburg, N. C., traveling rapidly toward the center of this state. Almost simultaneously another flight was reported over Newberry, S. C., driving apparently toward the Charlotte army air base an important objective because of the presence of the headquarters of Brig. Gen. Walter H. Frank, commander of the interceptor force.

Almost impossible flying weather was reported over the Charleston, S. C., area, but rapidly accumulating reports by spotters indicated that the long-range bombers from off-shore bases were skirting the in-flight weather area to cross the shoreline near Wilmington.

By 8 a. m. many flights were seen by spotters in the Wilmington section, all moving toward the center of North Carolina.

Many motors of interceptor planes roared, warming up in the chief defense bases and the sub-bases as warning orders were received from the interceptor command. Interceptors were hurried into the air from dispersal points and bases on the North Carolina coast and several interior sub-bases immediately after the approximate courses about 40 miles apart, toward objectives in the Lumberton, N. C., region. Thinly scattered on the ground in that part of North Carolina were many thousands of the soldiers of Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum's first army and the sixth corps engaged also in mimic warfare.

Following the Revolutionary war, John Paul Jones, whose naval exploits made him the first great American naval hero, served for a while as a rear admiral in the Russian Navy.

PREMIER TOJO CALLS ON JAPS FOR IRON UNITY

Declares Nation At Crossroads Of Her History

PREMIER WARNS OF SACRIFICES

Tells War Office Officials They Must Be Prepared To Sacrifice To Surmount Crucial Hour

Tokyo, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Declaring Japan now stands at a crossroads in her national history, Premier General Tojo called today for "iron unity among all the fighting arms and the people to cope with the encirclement of Japan by foreign powers."

Tojo's appeal was issued in an order of the day directed to the war office in his dual role of premier and war minister.

He told war office officials in an address that they must be prepared to sacrifice everything in order to surmount the "crucial hour" which he said was facing Japan.

The premier, who returned to Tokyo by plane overnight after a pilgrimage to the temple of the sun goddess at Ise, immediately plunged into the task of revamping the Japanese civil and military administrations to bring them under strict, unified control.

One of his first moves as home minister—a post he assumed along with the premiership and war ministry—was an unexpected and sweeping shakeup of the department's police bureau heads.

The Japan Times and Advertiser, foreign office organ, displayed prominently meanwhile a Domei story predicting that the new government would institute few changes in the nation's policy, but would carry it out more forcibly.

Funeral Held For John Ivy Norville

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—Rep. Thomas (R-N.J.) asserted today that United States ammunition stocks were insufficient to supply the Army for one week if it were engaged in fighting on a scale comparable to present Russo-German operations.

Sabotage, strikes and other work stoppages caused by labor disputes, he told newsmen, have slowed up production to such an extent that ammunition on hand amounts to only about two per cent of a year's defense requirements.

He added that he had confidential information that the War Department had under estimated the time needed for adequate expansion of anti-aircraft defenses and hence "not a city in the United States is protected from enemy air attacks."

Consequently, he said, "American cities along the Atlantic seaboard must necessarily expect token air raids if our relations with Germany continue to grow worse."

DISPUTE IS UP TO PRESIDENT

Government May Take Over Air Associates, Inc.

Unless President Roosevelt can find some way to reconcile differences between a CIO union and Air Associates, Incorporated, a vital supplier of parts for airplane manufacturers, it appears probable today that for the third time the government would have to take over a defense plant.

The Defense Mediation Board, which has been trying since July to resolve the dispute between the United Automobile Workers and the management of the Bendix, N. J., concern, conceded failure yesterday and turned the problem over to the president.

This promoted speculation whether he would find it necessary to pursue the same course as in two other stubborn defense strikes. In the North American Aviation plant in Inglewood, Calif., he directed the Army to take over. Later the factory was returned to the company. In the other, the Navy assumed and still retains control of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company at Kearny, N. J.

The main point presently at issue between Air Associates and the union is a CIO charge that its members were "locked out" after a wage controversy.

The board recommended almost two weeks ago that the company re-employ all strikers immediately without discrimination. Yesterday company officials advised the board they would "immediately commence reinstatement" of strikers and asked 30 days in which to complete doing so.

In reply the board sent a telegram stating that reinstatement was "an operation which plainly can be accomplished within a few days at the most if the union and the company accept the recommendations of the board in good faith and cooperate in an effort to carry them out promptly."

Still Drive In Face Of Casualties

More Than 400 German Trucks Loaded With Men Declared To Have Been Destroyed In Bryansk And Kalinin Sectors On Saturday Alone; State Of Siege For Moscow Proclaimed By Stalin

London, Oct. 20.—(AP) Pravda declared today that German losses on the Eastern front now are approaching 4,000,000 killed and wounded, but "still these accursed locusts come on," according to a Moscow radio broadcast.

The price the Germans are paying for their gains was indicated by the Soviet Information Bureau, which said that in the Bryansk and Kalinin sectors Saturday alone Russian forces destroyed about 445 German trucks loaded with men, fuel and munitions, 25 tanks and 70 cannon.

Meanwhile, Moscow became one vast bristling fortress today under a state of siege proclaimed by Premier Joseph Stalin as the city's millions braced themselves for the impact of advancing German forces only 57 miles away.

The broadcast of Stalin's proclamation by the Moscow radio preceded an official Soviet announcement that gigantic battles were being fought on two approaches to the city, in the Moshaisk and Maloyaroslavets sectors to the west and southwest.

That the German drive was being held up there was indicated by two successive communications, late yesterday and at noon today, both reporting particularly fierce fighting in those sectors.

Mozhaisk is 57 miles air line west of Moscow, on the railroad running to Viazma, the Central front sector where attacks and counter attacks surged from the start of the German Moscow offensive on October 2.

Maloyaroslavets is 65 miles below the city on the rail line to Kaluga, communications center about 25 miles farther to the southwest.

The Moscow radio said the Germans attempted to turn the Russian flanks in the Maloyaroslavets area but were halted by strong resistance.

It was recalled that Maloyaroslavets was the point where Napoleon on October 24, 1812, encountered Russian forces during his retreat from Moscow. Their resistance further weakened his troops and forced them to take the road to Smolensk, which already had been devastated during the advance on Moscow.

877 Register For School Bond Vote

Nearly 900 Greenville citizens are eligible to participate in the $250,000 school bond election to be held Tuesday of next week, that many persons having registered for the special election to decide on the question of the improvement program. When the books closed Saturday night a total of 877 had registered.

J. H. Rose, school superintendent and members of the board expressed much satisfaction at the large number to register, declaring that the election would express the will of the people.

A drive was carried on to get a large registration and this is believed to have influenced many persons to have their names placed on the books.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR Monday, October 20, 1901

Miss Lizzie Higgs (one of the girls who was awarded one of the Junior Buck stoves last week, invited some of her friends around Saturday to see her cook. The fire was started up and the stove was getting good and warm, when one of the visitors asked to see inside of the oven. The oven door was opened and there was discovered inside a box of dolls roasted and smoking. Miss Lizzie had put her dolls away inside the oven and forgot to take them out before starting the fire.

Bridal ices centered with dainty white satin bows made known the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Beatrice Godley of Grimesland, to Mr. Harley Kugler Alligood, Jr. of Washington, at a delightful bridge party, given Friday evening, when Mrs. Mayhew H. Godley, mother of the bride-elect, entertained at the Godley home in Grimesland.

Greeting guests at the invited hour of eight o'clock were the hostess and bride-elect, who wore for the occasion, a pretty dress of Soldier Blue crepe.

The double living rooms where tables for bridge and Chinese checkers were arranged, were beautifully decorated with multiple bouquets of marigolds and dahlias, shading from Autumn yellow to deep bronze.

The mantels were centered with matching bouquets of dahlias and open fires which burned in the fireplaces lent an added note of charm to the lovely formal appointments.

Tally cards passed prior to games were of wedding bell design.

U. D. C. Meets. On Thursday, October 16, U. D. C. met with Mrs. S. T. White at her home on Seventh street. In the absence of the president, the meeting was conducted by Mrs. J. L. Fleming. The devotional was the reading of the U. D. C. ritual. Then followed the regular routine of business. The treasurer reported all obligations paid and a substantial balance on hand.

The program was given by Mr. J. H. Rose. He gave an interesting and instructive talk on the life of George B. Singletary. His talk showed that Singletary was a brave man and the chapter is proud to be named for Col. George B. Singletary.

Mrs. J. L. Fleming gave a splendid report of the U. D. C. convention, which was held in Raleigh recently.

The following guests were present at the meeting: Mrs. Frank Wilson, Miss Sallie Cowell, Miss Eliza Harding, Mrs. M. T. Bradshaw, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. R. H. Wright, a former member, was also present.

The hostess served delicious refreshments. The meeting adjourned to meet in November.—Reported.

Christian Science Service. "Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science Churches and Societies on Sunday, October 19.

The golden text was from I Timothy 2: 5-6. "There is one God, and one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus; who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "And Jesus walked in the temple in Solomon's porch. Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou make us to doubt? If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly. Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believed not; the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me. I and my Father are one." (John 10:23-25, 30).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Scriptures is the exemplification of man's unity with God, whereby man reflects divine Truth, Life, and Love. Jesus of Nazareth taught and demonstrated man's oneness with the Father, and for this we owe him endless homage. It is ignorance and false belief, based on a material sense of things, which hide spiritual beauty and goodness. Understanding this, Paul said: 'Neither death, nor life, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God.'"

Miss Rowlett Hostess. Miss Jane Rowlett was hostess Saturday at one o'clock at a bridge luncheon, planned to honor Mrs. Charles Flanagan, an October bride.

Autumn flowers were used to decorate the living rooms where small tables, centered with vases of yellow pom pom chrysanthemums were arranged for luncheon and bridge. Luncheon was served in two courses.

Miss Rowlett's honor gift to Mrs. Flanagan was a silver pitcher, and to Misses Helen Fleming, Jean Hodges and Jamie Merritt, brides of November, crystal goblets.

The playing prize went to Miss Alice Leigh Blow.

College Vesper Service. Miss Elizabeth Tittsworth, Methodist student worker at the college, was guest speaker at the Y. W. C. A. vesper service on Sunday evening.

Miss Tittsworth used as her subject the 23rd Psalm. After reading the psalm she interpreted its relationship to the psalms before and after it. The 22nd psalm, as she pictured it, is the psalm of the cross, and the 24th psalm, that of a king in his glory. Both are psalms of mountains, Mt. Calvary and Mt. Zion. The 23rd psalm is that of the living, green valley that lies between given to help, comfort, and encourage Christians of all ages.

The 23rd psalm means more to all who read it because of the personal element. It is more comforting for a person to say "The Lord is my shepherd I shall not want," than to say "The Lord is a shepherd."

Miss Tittsworth pointed out the goodness of God as illustrated by the 23rd psalm. He has provided a well of living water of which anyone may partake. In the course of her talk, she stressed the importance of preparation by prayer and meditation before going to a house of worship. "That preparation beforehand is necessary." The last line of the psalm, "And I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever" is an expression of the Christian's confidence in the future.

During her two years' work among the students, Miss Tittsworth has won much respect and admiration for herself as a Christian leader.

Carol Leigh Humphries of Wooddale conducted the devotional and introduced the speaker, Dorothy Massey of Pleasant Hill, furnished music for the service.

Outstanding Articles. A number of outstanding articles are in the current issues of the magazines in the reading room of the Sheppard Memorial Library. Especially is this true of articles on world affairs. The Atlantic carries as its leading article another of a series by a North Carolinian, Gerald Johnson, entitled "Roosevelt Against Hitler." It is a splendid defense of Roosevelt and his policies, dealing particularly with his promises concerning war. Johnson says Roosevelt is a politician or else he would not be holding the office of President, and that his policies are open to criticism and praise. It is praise that this article offers.

And the Atlantic has another article worthy of attention. "Our Southern Front," by Duncan Alkman. If the United States needed a motto for military emergencies, one could compress it in five words: when in danger, look south. The author looks south of the Rio Grande at Latin America and her 135,000,000 people.

In Reader's Digest, Raymond Clapper in his article, "F. D. R.'s Unofficial Cabinet" gives short sketches of the eight men who form this group. Lowell Mellett, Felix Frankfurter, Basil O'Connor, Bernard Baruch, Robert E. Sherwood, W. C. Bullitt, Archibald MacLeish, Samuel I. Rosenman. This article is condensed from one appearing in Look, August 12.

The biography in Life magazine, October 20, is of A. J. Cronin, the author of two best sellers, "Keys of the Kingdom," and "The Citadel." He is also probably the leading literary character of today. The biography includes the story of how the author came to write a story about a priest.

In a challenging article in the American, "Patriotism or Politics," Wendell Willkie lashes out against defense bunglers; makes it clear, once and for all, that he is not a stooge for the administration in its support of its foreign policy. He urges both parties to purge themselves of those who play politics with national safety. He calls upon his own party to "clean house" and assume constructive leadership even if it has to change its name to do it.

The autumn number of Christendom has a splendid article by John A. Mackey, "The Adequacy of the Church," a criticism of how the church is functioning today, pointing toward a more adequate expression of Christianity.

There is hardly a woman now alive who isn't at heart, a decorator. In this enterprise her way was once thorny but it is now transformed into a bed of roses. An article in House Beautiful, "When Good Colors Get Together," tell how.

Mademoiselle has a group of three articles very appealing to the modern young woman. "Career in China," by Terry Brick, tells how the symbol Gunz ho has meant to China's gallant women the end of age-old obedience and bondage. "Career in France," by Margaret Gompertz, is the story of what happens to women when the red horseman rides. They are shut out of the world, cut off from all they have known and thrust into a life bereft of meaning. "Career in Germany," by Gregor Ziemer, explains the conditions under which a lost generation is being born, future soldiers without fathers, without loyalties to anything but the state.

An excerpt from Thomas Wolfe's latest posthumous book "The Hills Beyond," is included in this month's Harper's Bazaar. The title is "The Lion at Morning," it being a steely-clean character sketch of a rich old New Yorker waking up. Also in this same issue is "Music with a Feather Duster" by Elizabeth Mitchell. A recognized pianist, playing with the Philharmonic Orchestra, writes her autobiography. It will prove fascinating to all music lovers.

Two new magazines have been placed on the magazine table this month, Arts and Decoration, a decorator's magazine considered the best of its group, and the New Yorker, a humorous and satirical family magazine.

Is it Love? by MARGARETTA BRUCKER

YESTERDAY: Sue Ellen is pretty depressed, and there are several reasons why. One is Riv Moore, her fiancé, who just has told her that their wedding must be postponed, six months.

The other is Riv's apparent attachment for Deedora Waller, who is not beautiful, but does have money. And another is a young soldier from nearby Camp Shelby named Johnny Harris. Sue Ellen dislikes Johnny very much—although sometimes dislike is pretty close to its opposite.

Chapter Six
Wet To Camp

When they reached home, Riv telephoned and apologized for not calling sooner. Sue Ellen could hear loud laughter and chatter and guessed that he called from the drug store. Her face burned as she thought that possibly Deedora stood listening and smiling her wide understanding smile at Riv as he talked to her.

This fact made her curt in her answers, cold and slow to respond when Riv announced that Deedora had invited them to drive to Memphis with her that afternoon, see a show, have dinner and drive back by moonlight.

"I have a headache," she gave as an excuse. Then on the spur of the moment she invented "Ginny and I have something planned."

Riv swore softly and said: "Well—see you this evening?"

"Call me up about seven," she told him.

She was being unfair. Going with Deedora would have been the best way to stem the rising tide of gossip which had started again when Riv showed an interest in Deedora last night. She was in the wrong and just for a minute debated calling back and telling Riv she was sorry and would be glad to accept the invitation to drive to Memphis.

Just then Ginny called. "Want to drive over and see the camp?" she asked.

For a minute Ellen Sue did not understand. "What camp?" she puzzled.

Camp Shelby, goose Toby's going over to see a man in the commissary about something and we thought you might like to go along. I'd have asked Riv, but he said—"

Sue Ellen interrupted hastily: "I'll be glad to go. Are you sure Toby will like that?"

"Toby likes what I like," said Ginny firmly. "Ready by three?"

She wore the yellow flannel suit, a frilly white blouse, a bright scarf about her curls, and stood on the veranda waiting when Toby drove up. Ginny waved to the rear seat. "You'll have that all to yourself unless we find you a beau at Camp Shelby."

"No, thank you, I don't want a beau." She slipped in and felt a wave of relief as the car sped off down the street. This would be a change. She would not need to talk for Ginny could talk forty miles to the minute and Toby would listen all day, delighted to have the opportunity. Toby adored Ginny, who used him and cast him aside whenever a more possible escort appeared.

Only once did Ginny address her directly and that was to ask: "Anything wrong between you and Riv?"

"Nothing. We've had to postpone our wedding because of this wretched conscription."

"Why do that? Most people hurry up their weddings."

She answered coolly: "If Riv were called it would change everything we have planned."

Toby looked puzzled and Ginny unconvinced, and Sue Ellen's face burned as she realized that their reunion would be the same as that of others who heard of her postponed marriage. She tried to laugh lightly and quoted Riv's words: "After all, June is the month for brides."

Toby said dryly: "Any month's the month for brides now. I'm surprised that Riv didn't marry and get exemption on the grounds of having a dependent."

It was a surprising thing for Toby to say, for he was easy going and never one to be sarcastic.

About Johnny

All the way down the twisting road from Tyler Springs to Camp Shelby, Sue Ellen maintained an animated chatter with Ginny and Toby, determined to keep the subject of conversation as far removed as possible from that of her marriage.

It was a clear, beautiful fall day. They drove past neglected cotton fields and tumbledown negro shacks and stretches of pine woods. Toby spoke about the life in camp, of the number of men arriving every day. He boasted that he intended to enlist in the air corps soon, and Ginny regarded him with a pride which made something twist in Sue Ellen's heart.

Toby had always been regarded with a certain contempt by the old families of Tyler Springs, because everyone could remember when Toby was a barefooted towheaded child running about in front of his father's country store. The father moved to town and established a little business which immediately began to flourish and now rumors were afloat that the elder Tyler could show a bank balance larger than anyone in town. In fact, he gave credit to many like Ginny and her mother, who would have starved

The father was ambitious that Toby should take his place with the best, and Toby was the best, thought Sue Ellen, upright and industrious. However, gossip swept the town when Ginny Fairchild, whose mother and grandmother had been belles in the county and Ginny herself a maid of honor at the Cotton Ball in Memphis—when Ginny accepted an invitation to a club dance with Toby. It was incredible! "What was the country coming to?" everyone said.

"We want to eat, don't we?" was the answer Ginny gave, but Sue Ellen wondered sometimes if that was all. Often she surprised an expression in Ginny's shrewd brown eyes which puzzled her. Ginny liked Toby! Did she more than like him?

She thought of this now as Toby soberly spoke of his duty and Sue Ellen wondered if Toby didn't command more respect than men like Riv, who refused to accept an obligation to their country.

"Doc Warren will," said Toby. "He talked to Major Faber last evening. The Major and Johnny Harris were discussing enlistment. Did you meet Johnny Harris, Sue?"

Sue Ellen nodded.

Ginny giggled. "I wonder if Deedora Waller will get him."

"Deedora?" asked Sue Ellen incredulously.

Ginny bobbed her black head. "Deedora pretends that she likes Riv, but don't let her fool you. You have nothing to worry about there, really. I heard that she met this Harris in Washington late in the summer. He has money, he's from the north, and she's tired of Riv and she'd take up with Johnny Harris in a minute."

"I understand that Harris wants to buy a plantation down here. That he could have been sent to another camp but wanted to have a chance to look over this part of

New Chance

Now they approached the camp and Toby pointed to the barracks spread out before them. "There's where we'll all be soon," he declared with a grin.

He parked the car and insisted that he must guide them about before taking care of his business at the commissary. Finally they arrived at a recreation center and here Toby left them.

Sue Ellen and Ginny entered a great bare room and found a small group scattered near a far door. Just beyond this group stood a piano and from behind it Johnny Harris came forward rapidly to greet them.

"I thought you were driving to Memphis with Deedora Waller," said Ginny as she took his hand.

He spoke to her first, then turned with a smile to greet Sue Ellen. "I was to go, but Deedora telephoned that she had a previous engagement, which she had forgotten. This is really delightful."

"This is the last thing I should have wanted to happen," said Sue Ellen to herself, making a mastery attempt to be casual and chatty, as Ginny began a running fire of questions about the camp and the discipline and routine. "The less you see of this man, the better. Susan Eleanor Fairhope. He puts you in a perfect rage whenever you meet him, he thinks himself a candidate for your friendship, just because his father had a love affair with your aunt."

In the midst of this mental soliloquy, Ginny proposed, "Sing for us, Sue. There's the piano; try it."

"Please do," urged Johnny Harris. Sue Ellen made an excuse and started to move away from them down the hall, but Ginny followed. "What a fool you are," she scolded. "Here's your chance to show Riv and that northern girl that it's nothing to you if they go off together. You can have fun. Johnny Harris is crazy about you."

"Crazy about me! That's ridiculous. I don't know him and you just told me not more than a half hour ago that Deedora wants him. He was at the dance last night and was with her constantly."

"Of course he was. She was the only girl he knew there, but not the only one he went up to. Did you see his face light up like a Christmas candle when you appeared? Nothing could make Deedora wilder than to hear you were with Johnny Harris while she was off with Riv."

"She'll probably never know," said Sue Ellen indifferently, "and Riv will find out and be furious. I could have gone with Riv and Deedora this afternoon. They didn't plan a twosome."

Bath, Me.—(AP)—Judge Gardner G. Deering got three ducks on the first day of the Maine open season, but Recorder Harold J. Rubin, who spelled him on the Municipal Court bench, did better that day. He got seven—taken from a pair of hunters who allegedly shot the birds in a sanctuary.

Only three states now provide regular open seasons for trapping beaver, once common in America.

TWO SUICIDES AT INSTITUT'N

Deaths Center Attention On Mental Hygiene Program

Reflector Bureau.
By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Oct. 18.—Two suicides at the State Hospital for the Insane at Dix Hill here within recent weeks has centered attention on North Carolina's program for mental hygiene and for the care of its mentally afflicted.

It isn't possible to go fully and thoroughly into all the angles and ramifications of the subject in any one brief newspaper article, the subject being one on which volumes could be written, but it takes only a cursory survey to reveal the fact that while the state has made considerable progress in recent years along the lines of care for the mentally afflicted North Carolina still lags in this field and there is manifest room for improvement.

Six years ago the legislature authorized a group of experts made, and the Rockefeller Foundation paid for, a thorough-going "Study of Mental Hygiene in North Carolina" and on December 8, 1936, this study (which covered 377 pages) was submitted to "His Excellency, Hon. J. C. B. Ehringhaus," then governor.

The concluding paragraph of the letter of transmittal, signed by Frederic M. Hanes, chairman, contained this none-too-hopeful plea: "It is too often the fate of official reports to find themselves quietly interred in the oblivion of dusty pigeonholes. Your Commission earnestly hopes that this report which is so filled with stimulating information, not all of which is pleasant reading for North Carolinians, will receive the careful attention it richly deserves."

The study compared North Carolina with other states, found that lagged behind the majority of states of the Union and concluded with 17 specific recommendations for improvement.

Not all of these recommendations have been followed—in fact no steps whatever have been taken to carry out many of them; but in one important respect there has resulted a radical change in North Carolina's treatment of the mentally diseased.

This is in a field of preventive and curative treatment. The division of Mental Hygiene of the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare has been reorganized so as to include expert psychiatric personnel.

Up to about two and a half years ago the division had psychologists and sociologists, but no medical (psychiatric) personnel. Now Dr. James Watson, a trained psychiatrist, heads the division and Dr. Richard Richie, a child psychiatrist, is one of his main aides.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

KEYS TO HAPPY LIVING
The Greek word for inherit is derived from a word which means "a key." The people who inherit are the people who have the keys.
And so when Jesus said, "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth," what He really said was "Blessed are the meek for they have the keys." They have something which opens the door for them. The future belongs to them. Eventually their keys will open every door until they possess the world.

This is a cogent commentary on present world affairs. Dictators are breaking into their neighbors' houses, under the pretense of establishing a new world order. But they have no keys to open anything. They can break into other people's houses but they will have to have the keys to unlock the real treasure chests in which are kept human satisfaction and happiness. They do not have such keys, but the meek have.

And if you think that the best way to go through life is to slash around until everybody cowers in your presence, just remember that in the end society gangs up on people who behave in that fashion and see to it that their careers come to a dismal end. Nature works against them by raising their blood pressure, and predisposing them to apoplexy, or giving them stomach ulcers or heart disease. God is still in His heaven and He had not every other living satisfaction.

TIME TO STOP TALKING

Now that an American destroyer has been deliberately torpedoed by a Nazi submarine with the loss of American lives, there can be little doubt in the minds of anyone that the "shooting war" is actually on, even if the shooting is being done by the other side. It seems to us that it is high time our representatives in Washington realized the seriousness of the situation and repealed
the neutrality act in its entirety in order that our government may be free to take whatever steps seem necessary for the future safety of America and the American policies, without having to resort to subterfuge in order to get around provisions of a law that should never have been on our statute books.
Since Hitler began his march of aggression the American people have never been neutral in their thinking and wishing, and to continue to hold to the neutrality act is nothing but a farce. It's time for Americans to stop talking and settle down to realizing the seriousness of the situation that faces the country at this time.

IT'S YOUR FAIR

The sixth annual Pitt County Fair under the sponsorship of the Farmville and Pitt County Posts of the American Legion gets under way here tonight. When the Legion Posts of the county took over the management and operation of the Fair it was with the idea of building up a real agricultural Fair for this county and section. A visit to this year's Fair will reveal just how much progress has been made during the few years that the Legion has owned the Fair. Each year the exhibits have been more numerous and better, and this year's entries have taxed the facilities of the Fair grounds to take care of them, and some exhibitors have been turned away for lack of a place to show their products.

From the standpoint of agricultural exhibits the Pitt County Fair is fast becoming known as one of the outstanding county Fairs in the state, and as such deserves the support of the people of Pitt county. Whatever financial success the Fair might have is turned back into the Fair to make it a bigger and better one, and good attendance at this year's event will mean an enlarged building program to take care of next year's exhibits and more premiums for the Pitt county exhibitors. Folks, it's your Fair, so attend it this week, look over the exhibits and see just what is being accomplished by the farm folks of Pitt county.

Washington — The capital's official comment:
Two rumors, neither of which government officials will verify publicly, indicate that Russia really is planning a long-time war: (1) That their first request for U.S. cooperation was to be allowed to put Soviet technicians in certain key defense industries to take back home detailed blueprints for developments of war industries there, (2) that before there was any plea for arms,
the Russians asked for tools and machinery to establish defense industries east of the Urals.

None of the major officials and few of the clerks and stenos in government defense agencies these days are getting the come-to-work signal without an all-clear from the FBI.

Biggest material contribution made to China, so far, is said to be what American highway and traffic technicians have accomplished in keeping trucks moving on the Burma road.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics says the overall cost of living in Washington is up 3.4 per cent in the last three months and 7 per cent over a year ago. The Bureau points out, however, that it still is more than 12 per cent under the World War high and 35 per cent below the all-time top in 1920. The 1929 cost of living in Washington was about

They Who Kneel

TO THE NAZI HEIL

LIVE TO FEEL THE NAZI HEEL!

the same as at the end of the World War period.
One of the growing government
headaches is trying to keep down
STATE taxes on national defense industries.
Most thankless job in Washington today: that of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. He not only has to go out and beat the brush for defense dollar-raising plans but he has to collect them. The irony of it is that Mr. Morgenthau used to be considered a conservative when it came to high taxes.

Being as full as it is of folks who are just stopping over for a year or so, Washington frequently is diswater weak in civic enterprise, but the capital heart really swelled the other night in a farewell for the ex-superintendent of police, Major Ernest W. Brown. The Major had been in the police department for 4 years—had been superintendent longer than any one else—but when his retirement date came up, the police department was under the kind of fire that would make the ordinary reform campaign in a voting metropolis look like a lightning bug at high noon. One of the District congressional committees had the heat on and where it appeared to be on mostly was Major Brown's neck. So the major's retirement, scheduled a long time ago by Civil Service, had all the earmarks of a retreat. Maybe that's just what made several hundred Washingtonians turn out to prove it wasn't and give the major one of the warmest farewell shindigs that have been seen around here in years. Among other things, it was recalled that Major Brown was the father, grad-dad and big brother of the sometimes Police Boy's club idea, which some welfare workers say has done more to cut down juvenile delinquency than anything the welfare-conscious 20th century has produced.

The latest torpedo fired in the economy drive that has been growing since congressmen came back from their "vacations" (which means seeing the voters) is that a group of congressional and departmental leaders will shoot at a two-billion dollar slash in non-defense spending.

The real reason that the post-office has short-cut its original plans for mail delivery to army camps is that so many boxes from home contained perishable eats, something had to be done to beat the boys and their parents to the squawk.
Observers here are saying that there have been more deaths in Congress since this world crisis began to come to a head a couple of years ago than in any similar period in history. The Capitol physician is checking for us.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Oct. 20.—Among the many who appear to feel that the Young Democrats went far astray
when they permitted "expediency"
to stop the proposal to censure Senator Robert R. Reynolds for his isolationist stand none has come out in plainer words and said so than Bill Sharpe, bright publisher of Thursday, Winston-Salem's weekly paper.
"To bill the Y. D.'s action was "weaseling."
"To put it moderately, the YDC's
may never live to see any one question as important as this, if indeed they live to the convention of 1945," writes Sharpe in "Page One, Col. 1," his weekly front page special.
"It was weaseling, we believe, to pass it up for that horrid word
"expediency." One clear, stout uncompromising rebuke to Senator Bob might have had a million valuable echoes in North Carolina."
Be that as it may, there is still much more talk of prospective opponents for Bob in 1944 than there is of an antagonist for Senator Josiah W. Bailey next spring.
There are those, of course, who believe former Governor Clyde R.
Hoey will be principal, if not the

This and That
There is general agreement that the State Fair last week was the best put on in the five-year regime of Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott—and that is saying a good deal as there has been no argument about the fact that under his supervision and the direct management of Dr. J. S. Dornton the annual October exposition has attained heights previously un-reached.... One of the most remarkable entertainment features on earth is an annual Fair attraction. That's the Lucky Teter Hell Driving show. It would seem that in time it would begin to bore the spectators, but thousands see the dare-devil every year. The big repeat crowd for the second Teter show this time of the year is...

Standing out in the comment on resignation of R. B. McLaughlin, director of the Motor Vehicle Bureau was general agreement that picking the Fair grounds corner for his arrest on a drunken driving charge was practically official suicide. "Of all the places in North Carolina that was the one where a drunken driver was the most certain to get caught," was the tone of this comment.... A recent release of P. O. Carver, Jr., the new Highway Commission publicity man lists the following courses for prisoners as having samples of their work exhibited at the Fair: gasoline and electrical welding, carpentry, mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, textile weaving, book-keeping, air-conditioning, secretarial courses, printing, radio, gas and diesel engines, automobile mechanics, plumbing and shop practices.

Rolling up three touchdowns in the second half, the Pirates of ECTC downed the Catamounts of WCTC 19-6 before an enthusiastic homecoming crowd at the college Saturday afternoon. It was the third decisive victory in three starts for the Greenville Teachers.

After an almost uneventful first half in which the West Carolina team had a slight edge in play, the Pirates scored quickly after the kickoff opening the second semester. Charlie Craven scored the touchdown by covering the ball in the end zone after Billy Greene blocked an attempted punt by West Carolina's Leagon. Russell Rogerson kicked-off for the locals, and the Catamounts worked the ball to the 37 in three downs. A 15-yard penalty for holding at that point pushed them back to the 22, where Leagon attempted the boot. End Billy Greene raced in to block the boot with his arms, and End Charlie Craven raced Leagon to the end zone for the ball and covered it for a touchdown. Russell Rogerson's placekick for extra-point was blocked.

The West Carolina team knotted the count three minutes later, when a pass from All Shuford to Bill Smith netted them 49 yards and the first score against the Pirates in the 1941 season. The placement try for conversion by Frank Gudger was blocked.

Dan Waddell raced across for the Pirates' second touchdown of the third period after grabbing an aerial from Ick Zuras for 28 yards. The score culminated a 44-yard ECTC

Alabama Pushes Over For 13-Yard Gain

Jimmy Nelson, Alabama's great halfback, puts all he's got in it for a 13-yard gain around end as Don Edmiston (No. 50), of Tennessee, tries vainly to snag him. When the final whistle blew, Tennessee, playing on home grounds in Knoxville, was the loser. It was Alabama's day by a 9 to 2 score.

He, not only was alert on offense but also accounted for countless tackles on defense. Russell Rogerson, Greenville Boy, and Captain Gianakos also starred in line play, as did Greene and Craven.

While the East Carolina backfield was off its usual form, Dan Waddell and Don Marriott played up to their usual selves and were outstanding in that department.

What It Means: Battle For The Arctic 'Wastes'

AP Feature Service Writer Washington.—The capture of a "weather" ship by the U. S. Navy in Greenland waters adds another chapter to an amazing epic of modern sea warfare that began in 1930—ten years before the war began in Europe.

It's the German scheme to base raider fleets of air, sea, and undersea craft on Arctic and Antarctic lands, and British and American efforts to prevent the strategy from bearing fruit.

In that the world's two big navies have been largely successful—but not entirely so. There is much evidence to indicate the Germans have large caches of fuel and food in the polar regions. Some of them were planted probably 10 years ago. And they probably have radio stations there, too.

The Arctic is vast hiding place in both winter and summer. Storms rage and fog is frequent. Fjords can hide the largest ships in the world, unless a chance voyage leads another vessel to the spot.

Naval and weather observers began to suspect German intentions in 1930 when the Weggener scientific expedition left a north German port for Greenland.

Later on, German scientific expeditions visited many areas in both the Arctic and Antarctic. What they were doing is not entirely clear, but it is probable they spotted fuel and food generously in safe spots. They also made plans to tap the rich coal deposits of Spitzbergen, the Arctic island off Norway. They had their eyes on a big Norwegian whaler repair base on Deception Island in the Antarctic, too. And the recent Byrd expedition for the United States government reported German and Japanese "investigative" expeditions were both present in that region.

The German scheme did not go unnoticed by the British and American governments. The United States sent the Byrd expedition to the Antarctic. Admiral Byrd came back talking about the Palmer peninsula as a base for a United States fleet in case the Panama Canal should be blown up.

More recently, the British sent an expeditionary force to occupy Spitzbergen and its coal mines. The admiralty disclosed German plans to use Spitzbergen radio facilities and coal for the Nazi Atlantic submarine and raider fleet.

And now the American Navy captures a "weather" ship off Greenland.

The Germans have been deprived of their main stations in the polar regions, but the continued presence of Allied patrol vessels indicates the British and American navies still are suspicious.

Greenland is the focus of naval action because it is closest to the main British supply line from the United States, and affords innumerable hiding places for German raiders, subs, and planes. Greenland's fjords—especially on the west coast—can be penetrated in winter. Caches of food and fuel can be taken away by Nazi naval craft.

Greenland is the polar area where winter weather for both North America and northern Europe often begins.

Oddly, the Weggener expedition reported in 1930 that Greenland might not be the winter weather factory it had been thought up to that time. But weather observers have been reported there, both in-land on the ground, and in airplanes. Two such planes were seen in March of this year.

More important, there is evidence that the Germans still have secret radio stations in Greenland for relaying orders to their Atlantic raiders. And many Greenland fjords probably have been charted as hiding places for submarines and sea raiders—especially on the west coast. There the gulf stream sends a warming current to keep the ice softened all winter. It is fairly easy to pierce everywhere except at Iqviut.

But they are not going to be easy to find. Greenland has many thousands of miles of coastline. Much of it is merely shown on a map. Depths of harbors, ice conditions, are not generally known. The United States coast guard recently sent expeditions up that way. They reported back that winter cruising around Greenland was not any more hazardous than anywhere else in the North Atlantic, except for the need for a constant lookout for

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

Hollywood—Today, in keeping with the seriousness of the times, we depart from our sometime frivolity to report on a matter which, if you ponder it, must bear on national defense. I refer to the sleeping habits (i. e., pajamas, night-shirts, and nothing at all) of the brawny movie males.

Before accepting your applause for this endeavor, I feel it only fair to introduce my collaborator, Mr. Carlisle Jones. Mr. Jones, a kindly, omniscient little gentleman with a hole in his cheek where his tongue broke through, makes his living finding out interesting things about Warner Brothers stars.

Mr. Jones recently gave all of us a bad turn by spending too many weeks in a hospital, wearing one of those abbreviated pinafores peculiar to such institutions, which doubtless explains his eager cooperation in this project. Together, therefore, we present the following icebergs. They said there were many radio stations, and radio was surprisingly well developed, indicating the Germans probably can use boot-leg radio stations operated by Greenlanders who evade the local police.

important summary: As between pajamas and night-shirts, neither can be said to chalk up a decided victory. Also, perhaps to the distress of both manufacturing camps, our findings show that many actors, perhaps a majority, leave all their night garments in the high-boy drawer from April to October.

James Cagney's vote went to pajamas, comfortable ones always, occasionally fancy ones. But Alan Hale stuck by the old-fashioned nightshirt. Errol Flynn, said his personal valet, clings to the inexpensive white cotton pajamas he wore in his semi-tropic, "down-under" days. Dennis Morgan, substantially enough wears clothes in waking hours, but casts them all aside, and dons no others, when he retires.

Monty Woolley, the man who came to dinner, sleeps in his beard—but in what else, if anything, neither Mr. Jones nor I could ascertain. Jimmy Durante, according to best information, sleeps in an old-fashioned nightgown, but no pictures are available.

Though many actors sleep in pajama tops only, George Brent is not one to sleep as does the herd. He reverses the scheme, and prefers trousers only. Wayne Morris, who is in the navy now, was reputedly an as-you-were sleeper. Though our research failed to show that Wayne ever fell asleep in the shower, it indicated plainly that if he did, he still wore what he had on when he dozed off.

Edward G. Robinson has an elaborate bedtime wardrobe, including fancy pajamas, fine silk and wool matching robes—nice colors, too. Humphrey Bogart, ordinarily a "raw" sleeper, likes checked pajamas when he likes any. Jeffrey Lynn retires properly clothed in austere simple pajamas, and Ronald Reagan goes for stripes.

Nightshirt addicts include Herbert Anderson (the yokel boy of "Navy Blues") and George Tobias. But Craig Stevens and Henry Fonda use the white-suit variety.

Everything In Order Omaha, Neb.—(AP)—It was one, two, three, four at the 150-yard third hole at the Country Club for this foursome.

S. E. McGinley scored an ace. Harry Koch got a birdie. J. E. Davidson had a par three. Frank Bender trailed with a four.

More than 1,000,000 trucks are hauling defense goods on U. S. highways, according to the OPM Priorities Division.

Declines To Stay Return Of Pelley

Washington, Oct. 20 — (AP) — The Supreme court denied today a request by counsel for William Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirt leader, that the tribunal withhold temporarily an order issued last Monday refusing a review of a decision directing his return to Asheville, N. C. The delay was sought until a petition for re-hearing could be filed on behalf of Pelley. Despite today's action, he still has 25 days from last Monday to request re-consideration. Pelley faces possible revocation of probation granted after his 1935 conviction of violating blue sky laws. 'Citizen Kane' Unique Movie.

For more than a year film patrons have waited for Orson Welles to complete his much-discussed first Mercury production "Citizen Kane." The picture, co-authored, produced and directed by Welles, with himself in the title role, will soon be presented by the Pitt Theatre as a regular release, following a record-shattering triumph in the nation's great cities at advanced road show prices.

As the title implies, the film deals with the career of an American citizen, one Charles Foster Kane, a man obsessed by a lust for power over life, money and love. The fate of many people, his own large fortune and the hearts of two beautiful women are the objects of his conquest in the story, which is filled with a wealth of exciting incidents. Through a radically new technique of story telling, the brilliant and often clashing characterizations of Kane himself are seen through the different eyes of those who knew him, loved him, hated him during his years of creating a vast one-man empire.

Welles tackled a difficult job in bringing to the screen a complete portrait of a colorful personage. But by figuratively circling around and among the central character of Kane, each time revealing a new aspect of the man and his ideas and ideals, Welles presents a clear-cut picture of the impulsive, ruthless, charming, capricious individual he has chosen to describe. The result is rated a cinematic triumph, especially in the portrayal of Kane's relations with his two wives, both of whom loved him and both of whom left him because he would not surrender to love except on his own terms.

Mrs. Edw. Murrow Here Wednesday

A friendship of long standing placed Mrs. Edw. R. Murrow, London, representative of Bundles for Britain, at the post of co-ordinator for relief materials sent abroad by one of the important organizations to which English civilians look for aid in continuing their stalwart resistance to the forces of destruction against which they are valiantly battling. The story of this heroic stand will be heard on Wednesday night in Austin auditorium when Mrs. Murrow will offer an address under the auspices of the local Bundles for Britain unit.

Mrs. Murrow went to England to live four years ago when her husband, Edward R. Murrow, famed head of Columbia Broadcasting System's European service, was assigned to London. Chief of CBS news coverage at their headquarters in New York is Paul White. A few months after Bundles for Britain was organized, Mrs. White was appointed as director of branches.

When Bundles for Britain needed a London representative, Mrs. White, knowing of Mrs. Murrow's able work in helping with the evacuation of London children and in her work for the United States Committee for the Care of European Children, asked Mrs. Murrow to accept this post. Since November, 1940, she has so ably handled this important work of co-ordination, as to win high praise from the highest government circles as well as from those whose lives have been helped by this important work of relief and rehabilitation.

Arrested In Marion Miley Killing

Robert H. Anderson, 36, (right) was arrested in Louisville, Ky., and charged with murder in connection with the slaying last September 28 in Lexington, Ky., of Marion Miley, nationally known golfer, and her mother. matter of religion that we are treating very lightly. We find Christ the greatest teacher of all time radical to us in some places; so, we make reservations. That is why so many people know nothing of Christ today. They have reservations.

People want God to serve their purposes while God pleads with men to know how to surrender observed Mr. Grant. Then he asserted that Christ has said that somehow if people have things inside of them, it will come out. In illustration he told of the tradition that St. Francis of Assisi from constant reflection on Christ's suffering on the cross had had scars similar to Christ's appear on his body. In reality, Mr. Grant explained, this man who gave himself to a life of service bore certain physical aspects resulting from his whole to us in some places; so, we make reservations. That is why so many people know nothing of Christ today. They have reservations.

"We are always willing to make compromises with evil. That the great does not come out in our lives is evidence that we do not have it inside.

Sea Sees Specs Safely To Owner Norfolk, Va.—(AP)—A newspaper reporter absent-mindedly kept his glasses on when he went swimming in the surf at Virginia Beach, and a wave knocked them off. The tide was running and he gave the spectacles up for lost. Nearly three hours later, as he and friends searched the beach in a forlorn hope, a wave rolled in and deposited the glasses at his wife's feet—200 yards from where he had lost them.
