NEW SOVIET LINE IN SOUTHWEST CHECKS NAZIS

Far East Developments Aggravate U. S.-Jap Relations

SOVIET UNION ALSO INVOLVED

Twenty Nippon Soldiers Reported To Have Waged Attack On Russian Frontier Post; Premier Tojo's Course of Ever Expanding Progression Regarded As Reply To Statement by Sec. Knox

By The Associated Press Far Eastern developments put fresh strain today upon United States-Japanese-Russian relations.

A reported attack by 20 Japanese soldiers on a frontier post of Far Eastern Russia four days ago emphasized the ticklish situation between massing Japanese forces in Manchukuo and Russia's Far Eastern armies.

Premier General Tojo's charting of Japan's course toward "ever expanding progression" appeared to be a reply to U. S. Navy Secretary Knox's warning that a collision in the Pacific was inevitable if Japan persisted in her Far Eastern expansion.

The Japanese press resumed talk of "Anglo-American economic and military pressure" on Thailand and said that nation was being agitated by "groundless rumors that Japanese forces were crossing the border from French Indo-China."

Reports from the foreign office said, "a very delicate situation" existed between Thailand and Indo-China as a result of "England's machinations."

Indo-China, by virtue of grants to Tokyo from Vichy, is under Japanese military domination and the standing question in the Far East has been "if Japan moves will it be against Siberia or southward, via Indo-China, toward Singapore and the Netherlands East Indies, or both?"

Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, British commander in chief in the Orient, returned to Singapore today after a Pacific tour which included defense talks in Australia and the Netherlands East Indies.

Advices to Shanghai said that the Japanese naval garrison stationed on Sharp Peak island, near Foochow, had moved out, but reasons for this were obscure.

Informed neutral authorities at Shanghai said that the Japanese, working through their puppet government at Nanking, were pushing a separatist movement in the South China provinces of Kwangtung, Kwangsi and Yunnan.

Their defection from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek would be a serious setback for the Chinese war effort.

Community Chest Drive Launched At Breakfast

TOLL CLAIMED BY TORNADES

At Least 17 Victims Of Out-Of-Season Twisters

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Out-of-season tornadoes struck hard in rural Arkansas last night, killing 17 or more, injuring many scores and smashing or damaging hundreds of buildings.

A fierce twister of the type that hits frequently in this area in the spring but rarely in the autumn, drove into Hamburg in southeastern Arkansas shortly before midnight, snuffing out at least 12 lives and injuring 200.

Some six hours earlier another tornado roared along the Arkansas river valley near Dardanelle in north central Arkansas, killing five and hurting 15.

Tobacco Mart Begins Final Week Of 1941

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Jurors who sat through 20 weeks of proceedings in the tobacco anti-trust trial resumed deliberations today following a Sunday recess, declared when a Saturday devoted to consideration of the case failed to bring a verdict.

On trial on charges of criminal monopoly and price-fixing are the American, Liggett and Myers and R. J. Reynolds tobacco companies, two American subsidiaries and 20 executives. The accusation was filed by the Department of Justice.

First Of Month

Although it was hardly enough to be recorded, the first rain to fall here in practically a month sprinkled Greenville today. It was the first rain here for October and during the preceding month of September less than an inch—91 of an inch—was recorded. In August 4.09 inches fell here. Today's sprinkle was the first to be recorded here since a .45 fall on September 29.

Strike At Producer-Owner Coal Mines Continues In Face of Second Appeal To UMW Chieftain By Chief Executive; Big Carolina Aluminum Plant At Baden Faced By Possible CIO-Called Strike

Washington, Oct. 27.—John L. Lewis, boss of CIO's United Mine Workers, stood pat today on a strike order for 53,000 miners in steel producer-owned coal mines, despite a second appeal from President Roosevelt to call it off in the interest of national defense.

The strike began Saturday midnight after Lewis had rejected a suggestion by the President that it be deferred while the UMW leader and Myron C. Taylor, former chairman of the board of U. S. Steel Corporation, tried to work out a solution.

Lewis said then that he understood Taylor was unwilling to participate in such a conference because he felt that if he did so any decision reached might be considered binding on the entire industry. However, he said he was ready to meet with Taylor.

President Roosevelt, in his letter to Lewis last night, said that Taylor would meet Lewis Wednesday. The chief executive renewed his request that the UMW chieftain reconsider his strike decision and get the men back to the pits pending a final settlement.

Lewis' press representative said that Lewis had no comment to make on the President's letter— "none whatsoever."

At issue is the UMW demand for a union shop in the "captive" mines because the owners use most of the output.

UMW officials estimated that the steel companies had only a week's coal supply on hand. Company officials said they had two to four weeks' supply, but there was general agreement that a protracted strike would halt steel production.

In the meanwhile, another strike on the defense front broke out at the Robins Drydock and Repair Company in Brooklyn, where CIO's Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America said 5,800 of its 6,900 members were on strike, forcing the plant to close.

The company has defense contracts and also has been repairing damaged British merchantships. The union said the strike vote followed the collapse of negotiations for a new contract.

Elsewhere, industrial disputes present this picture at the start of the week:

Badin, N. C.—Local executive board of CIO's Aluminum Workers of America meets tonight to consider calling a strike at the big Carolina Aluminum plant there to enforce elimination of the 20 cents an hour hiring rate differential which union leaders said exists between southern and northern plants.

Maryville, Ten.—Workers at the big Aluminum Company of America plant, which employs 7,500, also voted to strike for elimination of the north-south differential in wages. Union leaders declared how.

SEN. CONNALLY SAYS U.S. MUST UPHOLD RIGHT

Declares Privilege To Sail Seas Being Challenged

ASKS CHANGE IN NEUTRALITY ACT

Democratic Leaders Advise President Bill Amending Law Probably Will Be Passed In 2 Week

Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Saying that American merchant vessels "are being sunk by the brutal and murderous doctrine of unrestricted submarine warfare," Senator Connally (D.-Tex.) told the Senate today that "as a proud nation, the United States must claim its right to the seas."

Before crowded galleries, the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee opened debate on legislation granting American merchant vessels the right to carry arms and to sail to any port in the world. Ship arming now is forbidden by the 1939 neutrality law, which also prevents American merchantmen from entering belligerent ports or combat areas.

Democratic leaders who discussed the neutrality measure with President Roosevelt this morning reported they had told the chief executive that the bill probably would be passed in less than two weeks. Before the debate opened, the Senate received a statement by Secretary Hull that "we won't be in any war until Hitler decrees that we shall."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee made public the testimony today that Admiral Harold P. Stark and others gave in closed session last week when the committee considered the bill which it approved Saturday 13-10.

Tobacco Trial Jury Resumes Deliberat'ns

Offerings on the Greenville tobacco market approximated 150,000 pounds today as the market began its final week of the 1941 season and the day's sale was expected to bring to 43 and a quarter million pounds the total for the season.

The quality of today's offerings was described as law, with much heavy tobacco on the green side, being sold. Farmers, however, continued to appear pleased with the prices being paid.

Offerings throughout this final week are expected to be very light, totaling only about 200,000 pounds. Sales will be concluded on Friday.

Second Crop Of Peas

F. J. Anderson, who lives on one of J. E. Winslow's farms located about a mile from the cotton mill on the Tucker-Hooker road, has picked the second crop of peas and the vines are still blooming. The peas were planted in May, one crop was harvested and then a second crop was produced.

More than 400,000,000 pairs are estimated as the average yearly production of shoes for civilian use in the United States.

Sniper Finds New Use For Cotton

Huge piles of cotton on the porch of a farm house at Heath Springs, S. C., provided Private James Lee Seigla, with a barricade for some sniping practice during army maneuvers in that vicinity. The householder in the rocking chair appears unconcerned. Private Seigla, who hails from South Boston, N. Y., is with Company B, 176th Infantry, 29th division.

Fifteen Are Still Missing In Blast At Coal Mine

Sixteen Reported Rescued and 29 Others Safe

Madisonville, Ky., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Sixteen miners were rescued and 29 others were reported safe today following an explosion in the mine of the Sterling Coal Company at Daniel Boone, a small mining community 11 miles southwest of Madisonville.

Fifteen men were reported missing. The mine was badly wrecked by the blast, the cause of which officials said, was not immediately determined.

The rescued men were brought to the surface in barrels to which ropes had been attached. The mine cage was put out of order by the explosion. A full shift crew of 60 men were in the workings at the time of the blast.

Mrs. Cora H. Young Claimed By Death

Mrs. Cora Hendricks Young, 67, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles O'H. Laughinghouse at 403 W. Fifth street at 10:45 o'clock Sunday night. She had been in declining health for two years and critically ill for a week.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock by Rev. T. McM. Grant, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church. Interment will be in the City cemetery in Winston-Salem at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and the services there will be in charge of Rev. Walter Allen, Moravian minister of Kernersville.

Mrs. Young was born and reared in Kernersville, in Forsyth county. She married W. I. Young of Winston-Salem in 1894. Since that time she has spent most of her life in New York City. She came to Greenville about four years ago and has been making her home since then with her daughter. She was a member of the Centenary Methodist church of Winston-Salem.

Surviving are her husband, W. I. Young of Washington, D. C., one daughter, Mrs. Charles O'H. Laughinghouse of this city, one son, I. H. Young of Roanoke, Va., and one sister, Mrs. Minnie Crossett of Atlanta, Ga.

Active pallbearers will be Frank Bendall, Dail Laughinghouse, Graham Flanagan, W. H. Bradsher, Joseph S. Moyer and H. R. Goodall. Detskye Selo, Russia, was the first town from the European continent to be lighted by electricity.

Nazi Forces Extend Gain In The South

Reds Claim To Have Withstood Nazi Attempts To Blast Opening In Southwest Line Defending Moscow After Defenders Admittedly Pushed Back To New Stand; New Demands For Invasion By Britain

London, Oct. 27.—(AP) Russia's lines southwest of Moscow, admittedly shoved back by fierce German onslaughts, was said in war dispatches today to have withstood Nazi attempts to blast an opening through toward the Soviet capital.

In the South, however, the Germans apparently were pushing steadily ahead toward Rostov, Russia's important oil pipeline terminus and rail river junction at the gateway to the Caucasus.

With the situation in the South conceded to be desperate for the Russians, the British again yesterday renewed heated demands on their government to strike in the West to divert some of the Nazi pressure from the Russians. There were indications that British forces might fight side by side with the Russians to protect Soviet oil resources.

Evidence of the growing weight of German blows on the Southern front was indicated by Russia's acknowledgement that Stalin, important Donets basin industrial center, had fallen, although the Germans' cost was said to have been 50,000 men killed and wounded during several days of violent combat.

Both Stalina and Kharkov, in the heat of the Donets area, already had been claimed by the Germans, but the Russians said heavy fighting still raged in the vicinity of Kharkov and have not conceded that city's loss.

Russian front line dispatches to Kuibyshev, the Soviet's "branch of capital" on the Volga, said big Red army guns firing into charging German tank columns at point blank range had stopped a new Nazi penetration southwest of the capital.

The Russians were said thus to have stood on a new defense line a short distance behind their former positions in the Maloyaroslavets sector, 65 miles southwest of Moscow, and the early morning Moscow communique said the Germans had suffered heavy losses.

The Moscow radio broadcast said a battalion of German infantry was destroyed to the last man in heavy battles before a town identified only by the initial "S."

IN MEMORIAM
(In memory of my brother, Woodrow Clark.)

It was just three weeks ago When God silently called you away. You were so bright it was hard to believe That you were soon to take your leave.

Your sweet voice was stilled, Gone was your beautiful smile, O, dear brother, we miss you so. Since you were called to go. Often our eyes overflow With tears, although We know you have forever passed away.

But God decided it was best So He called you to the land of rest. It was so sad when you passed away. You have left us with a broken heart. Sleep on, wear brother, and take your rest.

We loved you, but God loved you best. Some sweet day we will meet you on that golden shore. Where there will be no weeping and parting no more. Sweet memories will always linger. Time cannot change them, tis true. Years that come cannot sever Our loving remembrance of you.

Harry Jarvis of Oxford, was chosen president in the recent elections of the Freshman class at East Carolina Teachers College. Others selected on the first ballot were Virginia Cooke of Greenville, secretary and Helen Page Johnson, Fairmont, Toccoan representative.

In the run-off for four of the offices Frances Lewis of Knightdale was elected treasurer; Sarah Stanton of Wilmington, Women's Student Government representative; Catherine Hester of Hurdle Mill, Teco Echo representative; and Willie Mae Daniels of Oxford, vice-president.

Saturday night these officers represented the class in the figure at the Masquerade ball in the Wright building which was given by the Junior class in honor of the Freshman class.

College Vesper Service.

At vesper service at the college Sunday night, Rev. Clyde Carter, in charge of student work at the Presbyterian Church, spoke, having chosen as his theme the chief need a college student has for religion.

He introduced his talk by a reference to the hymn that had just been sung "Faith of Our Fathers," and spoke of the tendency of students to drift away from this faith when they get into college.

He gave as the chief value of religion its power to enable one to live well and nobly in any capacity, even the humblest, in which he takes toward his work and not in the work itself. It is not what one does, so much as the way he does it, that counts.

The world is a stage, he quoted, and went on to say "when the curtain goes down, God will not ask

What The Debs Wore

By HELEN FORRIST HALL, AP Fashion Editor

An important fall social event in New York was the Diamond Ball and Debutante Cotillion for the benefit of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children, which was held on October 24. Debutantes danced in gowns of white and silver, with a marked preference for silk nets and diaphanous fabrics in wide skirted picture gowns. Ostrich, paillettes and ermine tails added light but lavish touches, and the girls were brilliantly arrayed in borrowed (from jewelry stores) gems. Diamonds, to be sure, in alliance with aquamarines, star sapphires and other stones.

MARY ELIZABETH LEWIS wore a picturesque gown of shirred net to the ball. Note the enormously full skirt, the simple décolletage, which allows for brooch, earrings, bracelet and ring of diamonds.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR Monday, October 27, 1901

Suppose all the teachers in the public schools could cook good corn bread and all kinds of meats, and could teach their pupils to do it, and it was a requirement of the law to do it, what an incalculable blessing it all would be. How to effect all this great good we are not able to say. We know there would be difficulties in the way. The beginning would not be perfection, but much might be taught in the start. The pupils would learn lessons that would add to the comfort, peace, health and happiness of most homes as they told over and over the how or bread making and such like. Most of us like and do not often get good corn bread. That is a great need of the day.—Lumber Bridge News.

Bridal Couple Honored.

On Friday evening Mrs. William H. Taft and Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds H. Taft entertained at a dance at the Country Club in honor of Miss Helen Fleming and Mr. Hoover Taft whose marriage will be solemnized on Thursday, November 6, in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Taft, Mr. and Mrs. May, Miss Fleming and Mr. Taft, were Miss Jamie Merritt, Jack Horton, Miss Jean Hodges and Dr. E. B. Aycock.

The club house was beautifully decorated with long leaf pine and other decorations that lent an air of Hallowe'en.

Just prior to intermission the orchestra played "I Love You Truly" and Miss Fleming and Mr. Taft were requested to dance this dance alone. They were joined near the close by Miss Merritt and Mr. Horton, Miss Hodges and Dr. Aycock.

At intermission delicious refreshments were served, including iced tomato juice, dainty sandwiches and hors-d'oeuvres.

The music for this delightful affair was furnished by Billy Knauff and his orchestra.
The guest list numbered about two hundred and fifty.

Represents Delta Chapter.

Miss Mamie E. Jenkins of the English department of the college, was the representative of the Delta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma at the birthday luncheon of the state division held in Salisbury the past week-end, when this division celebrated the seventh anniversary of its organization.

Miss Jenkins is the vice-president of the local chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma and one of the charter members.

At the meeting on Saturday was distributed a recent number of the Delta Kappa Gamma Bulletin featuring an article by Miss Jenkins on Mrs. Bettie Valden Wright, the mother of Dr. Robert Herring Wright, as a pioneer in education. It had also a picture of the life-like figure of Mrs. Wright made by Miss Alma Sparger for the collection of figures of Pioneer Women in Education which the national convention has made.

"The Delta chapter is proud of the doll, the excellent article, and the woman represented," said members of the local chapter.

Miss Jenkins also visited relatives in Charlotte on Sunday.

Exhibit of N. Y. A. Girls.

The 40 girls at the NYA Sewing project and project supervisor, Mrs. Mabel Randolph, had a most attractive exhibit at the Pitt County Fair. The following articles were exhibited: Layettes, clothes pin bags, stocking bags, handkerchief bags, embroidered towels, pot holders, hand made rugs, men's ties, blankets made of scraps with attractive designs embroidered by the girls.

The canned goods were carrots, apples and preserves.

This exhibit is a good example of the high type work that is carried on at the home practice center.

The supervisor is trying to teach each girl a trade and instill in each the desire to do good work, work well with others, be conscientious, work to the best of her ability, and be prompt and reliable.

Library News

Parents' Manual
Last month an unusual thing happened in the magazine world, a publication devoted almost exclusively to fashions, Harper's Bazaar, printed an excerpt from a new book written especially for parents. Why this unusual occurrence? Because the book, "Parents' Manual" by Anna A. M. Wolf, tells of a new fashion, a new philosophy of rearing children. The author has retained the best points of the old method, added the best of the modern way and combined them to make a very common sense formula.

In her book there are a few rules for the foundation of discipline laid in early months, but no hard and fast rules for they are dangerous and do not consider individual differences. And it is individual differences that count when dealing with children. To be more specific, premature babies, babies who have been sick and babies who appear unusually sensitive and highly strung should not, during early months, be subjected to as much denial as others. Childhood is a time of complex emotional changes, often filled with confusion and anxiety, and it takes flexible rules and a wise parent to guide a child to successful living.

The author who is both a parent and a professor of psychology, says there are two fundamental principles that should govern all parent-child relations. The first is the recognition of the child's need for a mother who is tolerant and "understands." The second is the recognition of his need for parents who are also "good"—and by good the child means that they support all his forward-moving, growth-making impulses, those which lead toward a satisfying and disciplined maturity rather than backward into infancy and dependence." Mrs. Wolf stresses children's need for fathers as well as mothers, that they are needed from the earliest years. She believes that fathers are necessary for the best development of children, not just as providers, but also because they are essential contributors to the child's sound emotional growth.

"Success with Children," writes the author, "does not depend on 'efficient' methods or on 'good training' although these things have their value, but on the capacity of the parent to understand and to respond to the child's needs. It is the parent's duty to provide a home in which the child can grow up with a sense of security and love, and with a feeling of being valued and respected."

ity for a warm and living relationship with human beings. In other words, when it comes to getting cooperation from a child, the method is of minor importance, the relationship between parent and child is everything."

Besides the above reviewed book, the Sheppard Memorial Library has put another new book on the Parents' shelf, entitled "You Can Be Happily Married" by George Opplehof, Jr. The book is an attempt to present a practical, non-technical guide book so that both young people and their parents may help chart the course of successful marriage. It is the outgrowth of the author's experience as pastor, marriage counselor and director of numerous marriage clinics.

The Athenium Book Club of Greenville recently gave their club books of the past club year to the library. The books given were:

Is it Love? by MARGARETTA BRUCKER

Chapter 12
Smothered Over?

"Hello," said Riv. There was no apology in his voice. Nothing to indicate anxiety. "Hello."

Sue Ellen said: "Hello."

"What's wrong?"

"Why?"

"Your voice sounds odd. Maybe it's something on the wire." She had a moment while Riv berated the operator for making a poor connection. When he spoke again, she had her voice under control. "About that note," said Riv. "Just forget it, will you? I was a damned fool. I got excited and can't remember what I told you."

"You said you had something to tell me and not to think too badly of you."

"I thought it was something like that. You probably know Deedora drove up here with me. Of course you understood."

"I didn't understand, Riv. People in Tyler Springs talk—"

"Next summer you'll be out of Tyler Springs," declared Riv. "Love me, honey?"

There was more, but before she hung up, Sue Ellen guessed that Riv was worried. She wondered if Riv might have heard the major's absurd story. He told her he would be unable to return to Tyler Springs for about a week.

Upon her return to the room and in answer to Ginny's inquisitive glance, she said carelessly, "Riv, calling from Washington. You have no idea the flights of fancy the Tyler Springs gossips can take," as she stood behind Ginny's chair and addressed the major.

"Oh, yes?" The major pondered over his hand and bid three spades. Ginny passed. She made no comment, but there was a little smile of secret satisfaction on her face which infuriated Sue Ellen. Ginny believed that story. She would believe the worst of Riv. Ginny was jealous because she planned to make the best marriage of any girl in Tyler Springs. She would have a home in Washington—that was what Riv promised—and a home at Belle Acres. She would show Johnny Harris—what would she show Johnny?

The questions staggered her. She would show Johnny once and for all that he could not shake her determination to marry Riv.

Confession—Almost

Late in the week, Riv wired to Sue Ellen from Memphis that he would be in Tyler Springs on Friday evening.

She determined to make no mention of the major's ridiculous story. She would make no reference to Riv of his trip to Washington with Deedora Waller, although she had a feeling that it was to explain this trip that Riv wanted to see her. She would wait for his explanation and be kind and understanding.

Marriage was based upon understanding.

Friday evening she sat in the library and waited for Riv, with her mind in a chaotic state from too much thinking. She had a wild desire to run away when she heard Riv's step, but when he stood in the doorway, there was nothing but pity for him in her heart.

His face was tired and worn, his dark eyes circled and sunken.

"Riv—you look dreadful," she exclaimed impulsively.

"I feel like hell. He slumped down on the sofa and made no move to take her in his arms.

She crossed the room and sat down beside him, feeling strangely ill at ease. She felt that there was something which should be told—something said, and yet so bewildered and disturbed that she was unable to put a single thought into words.

Riv lighted a cigarette, smoked nervously a minute, turned to her and said irritably: "Well—what do you know?"

"What do you mean, Riv?"

"This town is probably seething with gossip about me. What have you heard?"

"I've heard that Deedora Waller drove to Washington with you," she said.

"Oh, that— He caught her two arms and held them in a tight, firm grip. "Is that all—you've heard nothing else about me? Nothing?"

"Riv, you're being ridiculous. What could I hear?"

He released her and stared moodily at the carpet. For the first time in her life she studied his face and saw it as a stranger might see it. Handsome—sulky—his eyes too sullen, his mouth too petulant, there was no force in Riv's face. It lacked character, it was weak. Tonight her marriage to Riv seemed a cheap flimsy thing, built upon evasions and distrust.

"Riv," she said earnestly, "we're engaged. If your father had not insisted that you change our plans, we would have been married in a month."

"Don't blame the Colonel for this mess," Riv refused to meet her glance.

"Riv—you must tell me what is wrong. Is it something about the registration?"

"Good Lord, no—although," he confessed, "that was partly responsible for the trouble I'm in."

She hesitated, uncertain whether to mention the story Major Faber had told, then asked: "Were you in White Sulphur Springs last summer, Riv? Please tell me the truth. I'll try to understand and forgive you."

"Who told you I was in White Sulphur last summer?" He was on his feet, upset—nervous.

"Major Faber said he met a man there who resembled you."

"That all?"

"The man was there with a woman."

"Then you know all there is to know," said Riv wearily. "I want to tell you just one thing, Sue Ellen. I love you, I'm a heel to have done this to you and a bigger heel to ask you to forgive me and go on with our engagement. For that is just what I am asking you to do."

He caught her and, against her will, drew her close. His hands held her face between his palms. He kissed her and the anxiety and apprehension which had colored the last few hours made her break down and cry bitterly with her dark head buried against his rough coat.

Oddly, her grief was not all disappointment that Riv's love had proven such a shallow thing. Hurt pride figured largely—humiliation that Riv could do so shabby a thing as to keep up a pretense with her and be carrying on a love affair with another girl.

"How could you, Riv?"

"Let's not talk about it. Everything will be all right now," Riv assured her hastily. "After all— he released her and studied her face thoughtfully, "you're to blame, Sue."

"I—to blame?"

He nodded. "You've held me off. You dislike having me make love to you unless you're in the right mood. You can't blame me—"

Evasion

She dried her eyes. "It isn't just a question of who is to blame, Riv, it's a question of whether I can trust you."

"Certainly you can trust me. Here, honey." He pulled a handkerchief from his pocket and tenderly wiped her eyes. "Have we known each other ever since we were kids and Uncle Freeman took us hunting. Remember the time the gun went off when I was climbing a fence and you thought me dead, and cried your eyes out and I dried your tears, just like I'm doing now? When you thought I was dead, it almost broke your heart. You and I belong together, honey. One mistake can't separate us—can it?"

He could be persuasive, charming. She was not convinced, but she wanted so desperately to be convinced. Surely, Riv had learned his lesson and would never hurt her again.

"How can I know?" she asked.

"Want me to swear I'll be true to you?" He laughed then. "Want me to promise never to see that girl again. I wish to God I never had."

"Why did you?"

He bent toward her suddenly and looked deep into her eyes. "Exactly what do you know about this, Sue Ellen?"

"Just what Major Faber said. He saw a man who resembled you at White Sulphur and the man was supposedly on his honeymoon. At least," her face faltered, "the major put it that way. I think he knew—"

But Riv was not listening. His forehead was wrinkled in a frown. His mouth a tight line. "I've confessed that I was there so well let it go at that," he said finally. "But after all, Sue, you let me think you knew more than you actually did and I walked right into a confession."

"Let's think about the future, Riv, and forget that. You made a mistake—whatever happened is over. Can't we be married soon? That would make everyone forget and put an end to all gossip."

"There'll always be gossip," he arose and paced about the room. "One way to stop it is for you to have nothing to do with this Yankee soldier, Johnny Harris. We'll start over—no admirers for you. What do you say, Sue Ellen?"

"I promise."

"I wish you hadn't flirted so with Deedora Waller," she then announced flatly. "I think she's abominable."

"Sophisticated is a better word."

"The word doesn't make a thing right."

Riv laughed, but the laugh lacked sincerity. He arose and consulted his watch. "I made this trip just to ask your forgiveness," said Riv. "I have that now, haven't I, Sue?"

He kissed her then—a gentle kiss, quite unlike Riv. "I don't deserve you, honey," he said gruffly, "but no other man shall have you."

"What do you mean?"

"Deedora thinks that northern soldier wants to stake a claim." He grinned. "Not a chance is there?"

"Certainly not," Riv—?

"Yes, darling."

"Can't we be married soon?"

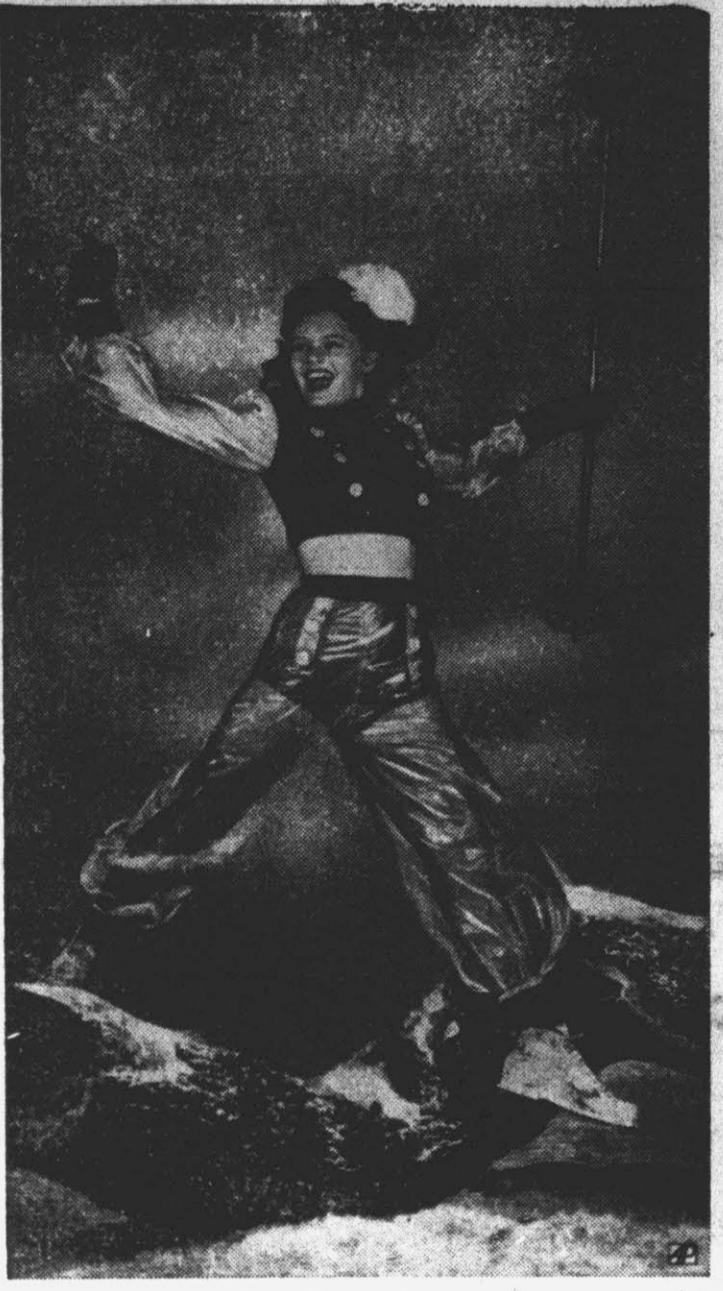

"Do you think I want to wait for you?"

She felt a little sick at the doubt which followed. "Why should you discuss our plans with Deedora Waller?"

"Going to doubt me again?" asked Riv, smoothing her hair.

That night, after he was gone, she tried to believe that this was the end of all uncertainty.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WORDS FOR A DAY OF DISTRESS

In the midst of a discourse (Matt. 24) called forth by the turmoil of the age in which He lived, Jesus uttered these words, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away."

We need to ponder this assurance as the world shakes about us today.

In the providence of God all that really matters will survive the conflict in which we now find ourselves because an all-powerful God rules the universe. It is not possible to say which side will win in this struggle, or what the next decade or century will bring forth, but it is possible for us to affirm that spiritual powers will not be overwhelmed by military victories, nor will their value decrease because one side or the other happens to win. The words of Jesus, the principles of that incomparable teacher, the salvation He offered to a dying world—these things will remain, though devils should scale the battlements of the world and bind the inhabitants thereof with chains of grief.

In the midst of present day chaos, it is an inspiring thing to see that celestial figure, Jesus Christ, standing in the midst of the modern holocaust and saying calmly but confidently, "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." (All Rights Reserved—Babson Newspaper Syndicate)

HAVE YOU SUBSCRIBED?

The Community Chest drive got under way here this morning and first reports from the canvassers are gratifying, but remember that everyone must do his or her part in the way of contributions if the goal of $6,500 is to be reached. The goal set for Greenville's needs for next year are far below that of most of the cities our size and our people should willingly subscribe this fund without much solicitation. Let's all do our part in this matter and get the drive over with quickly.

BOND ELECTION

Nearly nine hundred citizens of Greenville School District will have the opportunity and responsibility of deciding tomorrow whether or not we will issue $250,000 in school bonds for an expansion program of our city schools. If you are one of those registered for this election it is necessary for you to go to the polls and vote unless you wish your vote counted against the issue. The election is decided on the basis of the whole registration rather than upon the number of votes actually cast, and therefore if you are for the issuance of the bonds you should let nothing keep you from casting your vote. If, on the other hand, you are opposed to the bond issue, you may remain away from the polls and be counted against it just as effectively as if you DON'T ASK LABOR! TELL IT!

In refusing to comply with President Roosevelt's plea that the coal miners remain on their jobs pending further discussions toward settlement of their controversy with the operators, John L. Lewis has literally thumbed his nose at the President and the country at large and apparently is determined to place his own wishes ahead of the good of the nation. In view of these circumstances it seems that it is high time the government quit asking labor what it will do and begin telling it what to do. The world situation is serious at this time and our future safety might depend upon our all-out effort at this time to prepare ourselves for any eventuality and to give aid to the other nations that are fighting the aggressors.

When the country decided that it was necessary to train an army it didn't ask the young men whether or not they would serve. The young men were ordered to go into training and they went. The people likewise have not been asked whether or not they are willing to pay higher taxes brought about by our preparedness efforts, but they are paying them and will continue to pay them because the government has found it necessary and so ordered it. At this particular time speed of production is the most vital need if the forces of Hitlerism are to be defeated and our government should no longer let industrial production lag just because a labor racketeer or a small minority group sees fit to tie up our whole program for their own personal gains or in a foreign-inspired effort to wreck our entire program.

Some time ago President Roosevelt declared a state of national emergency in this country and now as head of our nation the people are looking to him to use his authority to see to it that nothing further hinders the carrying out of the preparedness program that the emergency demands. If the President and Congress will quit thinking about the votes that labor casts and think first of the good of the nation, we believe the administration will quit asking labor and begin to tell it what should and must be done.

Washington — Answering the mail orders:

Mrs. A. N. Bridgport, Conn. — The designer of the "Flying Fortress" was C. L. Egtved, one of the United States' greatest plane designers. He finished the first blueprints in 1934. It's an interesting sidelight that the British purchasing agencies first turned down the "Flying Fortress" — called the gigantic ship a "flying target" and intimated that they felt they were being dealt a little American high-pressure salesmanship. The ship was developed for the Army, although it was an admiral who first planted the idea with Egtved.

C. F. D., Minden, Nebr. — It is impossible to say to what extent the southern Pacific waters in the Far East are planted with mines. It certainly is a safe guess that such ports as Singapore and those of the Dutch East Indies and Australia are mined. Australia recently announced that the Great Barrier reef, coral graveyard of ships off the north-east coast, had been mined. However, in any of the British or Allied areas, there is no great danger to American ships. The skippers of these would be informed of the open channels or pilots provided to take them through.

N. H., Columbia, Mo. — The Panama Canal is NOT open to all shipping now and even those ships that are given passage have to turn over complete controls to officers of the United States armed forces. Mine inspections of all ships and cargo are made while the boats still are far from the entrances to the canal.

R. M. B., Brownsville, Texas — The defense glider training program still is being held up in Congressional committee. Without arguing the merits of this proposal, it might be pointed out that this measure is suffering the fate of a number of others in the national defense set-up — delay while various government agencies scrap over which should handle it. The Civil Aeronautics Authority, the WPA and the National Youth Administration all have been suggested for handling the program. This, of course, is a civilian program and not to be confused with the Army and Navy glider training work. The latter, I believe, has just inaugurated a new experimental program to test "plastic" glider boats, carrying as many as 12 passengers. These would be manned by naval aviators.

T. P., Atlanta, Ga. — There is nothing the federal government can do about "charity rackets" — even when they involve national defense or aid to countries at war — unless the United States mails are used in connection with solicitation of funds. In the latter case, the matter should be referred to the U. S. post office inspectors. If the mails are not used, any suspicious should be discussed with the local Better Business Bureau, Chamber of Commerce, Red Cross, social agencies, or police.

M. L. D., Monrovia, Calif. — The Civilian Pilot Training Program (and other stimuli to private flying) has more than doubled the number of pilots, other than those in the armed forces, in the last year. There are 91,442 registered pilots in the United States, of which 75,411 are private. There are 23,496 private or commercial planes — about 50 per cent more than last year. The fatality rate in the CPTP, according to the Civil Aeronautics Authority, has been reduced to one person per 16,000,000 flying miles.

One hundred and sixty-six years ago a committee of three men, John Adams, Silas Dean and John Langdon purchased the merchant ship Black Prince of Philadelphia. Renamed the Alfred, this vessel had the distinction of being the first ship in the United States Navy. These men were appointed by Congress, through the efforts of George Washington, as a Naval Committee responsible for the purchase of two vessels. An original appropriation of $100,000 was increased several days later, making possible the purchase of four ships in all—the latter three named the Columbus, Cabot and Andrew Doria.

The date October 27, on which Congress in 1775 acted to establish our Navy, is celebrated annually as Navy Day. The purposes of Navy Day are to pay a reserved tribute to the splendid service the men in the Navy have rendered in making and keeping up a nation and to better inform the American people of what our Navy is and does for them. When originally chosen, October 27 marked not only one of the most important dates in U. S. Naval history, but also the birth date of Theodore Roosevelt whose life was devoted to furthering a sound naval policy for the United States.

In its early days, the history of our Navy was a turbulent one. During the revolutionary period 73 vessels of all descriptions were used, but through sale, capture and destruction only one was left in 1785 and during that year Congress abolished the Navy, leaving the burden of the protection of our country in the hands of an army of only 80 men. In 1794 our Navy was revived by a Congressional Act authorizing the construction of several frigates to deal with the Algerine pirates and the first U. S. Navy Department was established four years later. One of these new frigates purchased as a result of this act of 1794 was the Constitution — with the Constellation, United States, President, Congress and Chesapeake making up a Navy which, through successful encounters with French cruisers and privateers, established an enviable reputation for itself. In 1801 a series of engagements with the Barbary states and the ensuing treaties rendered commerce in the Mediterranean safe from attack and ended the payment of tribute by Americans.

The outstanding performance of our Navy and privateers during the War of 1812 insured freedom of the seas for our commerce and further increased our national prestige abroad.

The effective work of the Navy during the World War is still fresh in the minds of most of us. The astonishing fact that no American soldier escorted by the U. S. Navy lost his life in transit across the Atlantic amazed even those in the highest positions of authority. All American foreign relations, all American participation in the life of the community of nations must find its expression through traffic on the seas. Ships, both commercial and naval, are the means of giving effective outlet to America's right to participate in international trade and politics.

... Hourly wage rates of hotel workers, always the lowest paid labor on which the Department of Labor has any statistics, actually decreased four-tenths of one per cent during September, according to the monthly report from the department. The help did, however, have slightly higher weekly earnings by reason of an increase in working hours. The figures show that 1,175 workers in 19 hotels were paid 20.4 cents an hour for an average work week of 49.9 hours, or an average weekly wage of $9.59. That, incidentally, is the only weekly wage reported at less than $10. Highest average weekly salary was reported for insurance and brokers help, $37.60; but the group on which report was based consisted of only 278 workers. ... Colonel Edgar Bain of the Brewers and North Carolina Beer Distributors Committee is visiting army camps and beer outlets in all defense areas with a view to making sure that conditions in the beer-selling places of these areas are meeting the tests set by his office. In all outlets found to be complying copies of a seven-point "code" are being posted. "The Beer Industry Goes on Record," says the poster. "We abide by our license requirements: to serve persons who have over-indulged. Not to sell to minors under legal age. Not to permit any kind of disorderly conduct. Not to permit any kind of immoral conduct. Not to permit any form of gambling. Not to permit profane or vulgar language. Not to allow questionable persons on premises."

As a matter of fact, the chances are that Dick hasn't any very clear idea in his own mind what he will do in the political arena; and the chances also are that what he eventually does will be just what he now thinks it will. In other words, his actions are more than likely to be influenced by events still in the making.

It does not behoove any writer with an earnest desire to be factually accurate to say that Dick will run against Bob Reynolds in 1944, or that he will oppose Gregg Cherry for the governorship in that same year, or that he will make any specific race for any specific post at any specific time.

In fact, there is actually more likelihood that Dick Reynolds will not run for any office than there is that he will. If, however, he does run for anything it looks as though he will definitely be the favorite of the "outs" or "liberals" or whatever you want to call them. He seems slated to oppose the Gardner-Hoey faction which has ruled the roost for so many years.

This and That
The State Employment Service office at the State Fair received an order for a young girl to pose as a statue at a Hootchie Kootchie show. It wasn't filled. But a young man, by training a lawyer and by experience an astrologer (No, it wasn't Zodiak, who isn't a young man) was referred to one of the concessions as a "stick" which means as a "come on" boy who usually buys the first article being are now on sale at retail stores.

BALINESE BABY—War may change such commonplace scenes as this in strategic Dutch East Indies. Here, a rooster cage is slipped over a baby to give her a first taste of "home."

THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT THE SEA—No "ancient mariner" is this, aboard Wes Kern's yawl Zarach as the winter yachting season nears for Santa Monica, Calif. She's Lois Davis.

A Mass-Production Night Club Operator

WHO HE IS

THOMAS P. ENDICOTT, 56, founder of Atlantic City's famous beauty contests, operates an "assembly line" night club. On busy nights he serves champagne, highballs and wine to as many as 5,000 customers, but he refuses to taste alcohol himself and once stated in an advertisement that "I hope my son never does." Endicott directed the beauty contests the first three years, decreed that even the prettiest legs had to be "decently covered." After a dispute with city officials over the contests, he went to Hollywood and rented out horses and riders for wild west pictures. He returned to Atlantic City nine years ago. He works furiously four months a year, plays golf the other eight months.

"There are only two ways to make money in this business—sell a lot of drinks or charge high prices. Since I can't stand moderation (that's why he doesn't drink), I couldn't run a night club that wasn't the biggest I had ever seen. So I have to cut prices to pack a lot of people in a big club. Nothing in my place is sold for more than two bits a throw."

"I sell the best American champagne for two bits. If the price of champagne goes up too much, guess I'll have to toss in a piece of ice. Some people come here and try to swim in it, but I run them out. I can afford to do it, because crowds are waiting at the front door to take their seats."

"Now, when you draw such big crowds with low prices you naturally get family groups. Families won't stand for smutty floor shows. Every employe in this place can sing or dance, and we keep a floor show going continuously for five hours, with no performer appearing twice. I trust a professional master of ceremonies. Never yet have I seen a professional m.c. who could refrain from at least subtle allusions to sex. What I do between acts is tell the people about my family, the men I've played golf with during 43 years of steady golfing, and the things I've seen. The customers eat it up, and come back for more."

"Everything is mass production here—even the sandwiches. I keep only one brand of champagne, beer, scotch or rye on hand. It's all the best stuff that can be bought in large quantities. If my employes had to spend any time reaching around for special bottles I would need twice as many of them."

"If a champagne cork can't be pulled out in less than a second we toss the bottle to one side and say to hell with it until the night watchman comes in at 2 o'clock."

DINNER FOR 10—One squaw and eight little papooses will get their share of this 367-pound bear bagged by "Big Jake" Banning, a Chippewa Indian guide who lives near Fort William in Ontario, Canada. Huntsmen seeking bear and moose in the Fort William area tell of Big Jake's strength, say he carried this bear five miles through the brush.

CONTRARY—A preference for water strange to his breed is shown by Snowball, tomcat pet of Joe Schifano, Jersey City tavernkeeper. Snowball likes a warm shower after he's been well lathered with soap. He eats hard-boiled eggs.

Finnish sources describe this picture as showing the wreckage of a Russian supply column after it was surprised by the Finns on a forest road in the Karelia sector.

TALENT—Not only can Lela Mae Flynn of Shawnee, Okla., draw your tears, singing about Killarney, but she's equally good at Wagner. She has hopes for an operatic career.

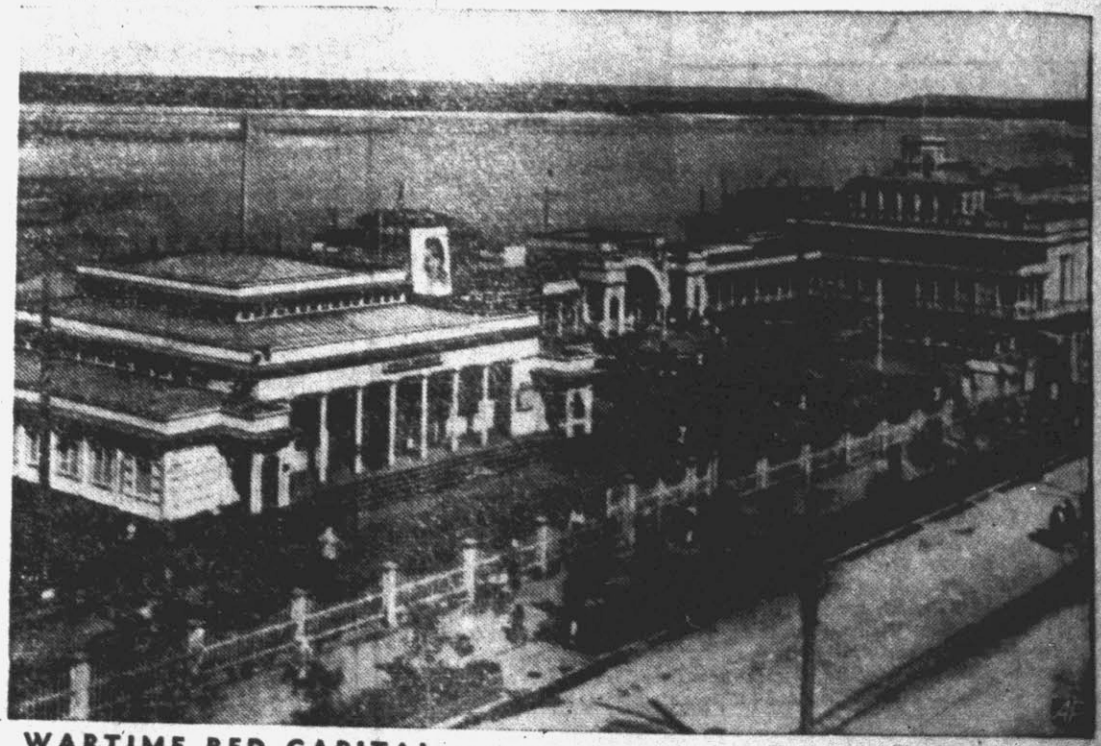

KNITS FOR DEFENSE—One million sweaters by Christmas for men in Uncle Sam's service is the goal of the Citizens Committee for the Army and Navy, and you can bet Mrs. Richard Soliman (above) will have several ready, especially with the help of Terry and Jack. Her husband is Capt. Richard Soliman who's stationed at Fort Hamilton in Brooklyn, N. Y.

LIGHTWEIGHTS FOR THE LIGHT-HEARTED—For all their bulk, these big-eared bears shown in New York at a preview of Christmas toys are lightweight, so as not to tire young arms. Of course, if you've tried to explore all other exhibits, you'd yawn, too, as does Lucille Romano. This year's emphasis is on toys that aren't reminders of a war-torn world.

SAILOR SHAKEDOWN—Since Uncle Sam's lads in Hawaii are getting free hula instruction at the Honolulu Army and Navy Y.M.C.A., some of the sailors have exhibited great talent for the hula, as for example: the gob at right.

WARTIME RED CAPITAL—This is the river station at Kuibyshev which apparently is Russia's wartime capital—a growing city of 390,000 on the east bank of the Volga 550 miles east and slightly south of Moscow. The U.S. embassy, with Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt in charge, has been set up there. The city is an important manufacturing center.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT COMMUNITY CHEST

(Continued from page one) The contributor to the Greenville Community Chest is assured that raising, collecting and administering the money for relief and welfare agencies amounts to far less than the old system.

Taxes have increased. Can I afford to increase my pledge or even contribute as much? Contributions to Community Chests are deductible from your net taxable income. Individuals may contribute up to 15 per cent and corporations up to five per cent of their net taxable income. The higher the tax rate the larger the amount of money which can be contributed over last year without appreciable increase to the contributor.

Living costs are going up. Yes, but in a national emergency everyone must make sacrifices. The increase in costs apply, also, to Chest agencies. No longer will the same amount of money as last year purchase the same commodities and services. Many salaries in private business are increasing. These increased salaries should help meet increased community needs. Those without salary raises should not want to shirk their community duty during times like these.

I am being asked so often to contribute to foreign relief. Is it not more important? Foreign relief is important, but so is home defense. We must not allow these stirring appeals to make us overlook the everyday needs at home. We owe our first duty to those around us; for upon the strength of American homes depends America's strength.

Is the Community Chest method the best way of dealing with community problems? Yes. The Greenville Community Chest is representative of all creeds and races, and it is democratically organized—social agencies and gives are all represented in its management.

Does the Chest method assure economical administration? Yes. Contributors can feel sure that Chest agencies are economically administered on a budget plan and that their accounts are audited. Millions of dollars are given annually to dishonest charities which operate independently in the country. Every agency in the Greenville Chest furnishes a monthly service report, a monthly financial report, and has a yearly audit.

Dennis Dupree, Negro county agent, will work with his division in the Negro county agent's office.

Mayor Proclaims Community Chest

The following proclamation calling on the citizens of Greenville to support the Community Chest campaign which opened today has been issued by Mayor B. B. Sugg:

"The Community Chest is an American institution and our Greenville Community Chest is definitely a Greenville activity. Each year more than one hundred citizens give generously of their time and means to the annual campaign for the support of the seven services here which share in our Greenville Chest. Each year several thousand citizens are contributors to it.

"This year our country faces a tremendous crisis in its history. Our very way of life is jeopardized and on trial. This year we must do even more than in the past to prove that we are willing to strengthen and perpetuate those things which are American. There is no better way than through a voluntary support of our Community Chest.

"It is my pleasure to officially declare the week of October 27 through November 1 Community Chest Campaign Week."

Colored Man Killed When Auto Overturns

Pitt county had one fatal accident during the week-end. John Corey, 60, of Bethel Route 20, having been killed when the car his son was driving turned over several times on a dirt road about 6:30 o'clock last night near Bethel. Patrolman W. W. Massengill, investigating officer, reported that a tire on the car blew out just after it had passed another car.

Several other members of the Corey family who were in the car suffered injuries, but the driver, Jesse Lee Corey, and Henry David Corey, escaped unscathed. Those injured were Novella Corey, bruises and lacerations of the head; John Herbert Corey, fractured skull; Walter Dixon, right shoulder broken; Lizzie Dixon, minor cuts and bruises.

Criminal Session Of Court Opened

The October criminal session of Pitt Superior court got under way here this morning with Judge Q. K. Nimocks, Jr., of Fayetteville presiding and after disposing of preliminaries the tribunal got down to the business of hearing cases.

Cases disposed of this morning were: Leander Garris, colored, assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, three months on the roads; J. L. Davenport, worthless check, 30 days, suspended upon payment of the amount of the check to E. W. Harvey, Jr., and payment of costs in County court, from which the case came on appeal; James Payton, colored, carrying concealed weapon, $50 fine and costs, or 30-day sentence at the county home.

Three cases were nolle prossed with leave as follows: Frank Whiteaker, disorderly conduct and assault on a female; James P. Brewer, driving careless and reckless; Pennie Taft, assault with a deadly weapon.

Second Reprieve
Vichy, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A second reprieve granted by the Germans today temporarily spared the lives of 50 hostages who had faced execution at midnight by firing squads in Nantes in reprisal for the assassination of a German officer.

ment the right to collect deficiency taxes of $9,675,000, including interest, from the estate of Zachary Smith Reynolds, who died in Winston-Salem, N. C., in 1932.

Reynolds, 20-year-old tobacco heir died a short time after his marriage to Libby Holman, the torch singer.

The government, which appealed from the Fourth Federal Circuit Court, contended huge trust funds left to Reynolds by his parents were a part of the taxable estate, but the Circuit Court ruled otherwise.

These funds were the subject of long litigation after Reynolds' death. He had been married to Anne Cannon of Concord, N. C., who divorced him at Reno, Nev. They had a child. He then married Libby Holman, who gave birth to a child after Reynolds' death.

A compromise finally was reached under which North Carolina got $2,000,000 in taxes, the first child 37 and one-half per cent of the remainder, the second child 25 per cent and a brother and sister of Reynolds 37 and one-half per cent. They were also given $750,000 to pay over to Libby Holman Reynolds.

LEWIS STANDS PAT DESPITE NEW APPEAL BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The United Mine Workers claimed today that practically all of the 53,000 coal miners in captive mines of the nation remained idle in answer to a strike order from President John L. Lewis, despite a second appeal by President Roosevelt that the miners stick to their jobs.

K. G. Adams, press official of the UMW, said Lewis would reply this afternoon to Mr. Roosevelt's second request that the mines continue in operation in the interest of national defense.

Adams said all captive mines were shut down, and that a "stack" of telegrams from local unions endorsed Lewis' rejection of the President's appeal.
