NAZIS SCORE SUCCESSES IN CRIMEA AND UKRAINE

NOT TO REVEAL ANY SINKINGS OF NAZI SUBS

Sec. Knox Indicates New Policy Of Secrecy NO COMMENT ON CURRENT RUM'RS Navy Secretary Points Out That Britain has Long Followed Policy Of Not Revealing Sinkings

Washington, Oct. 29. (AP)—Secretary Knox said today that the Navy probably would apply a policy of secrecy to the sinkings of any German submarine in engagements with American war vessels. Knox flatly declined either to confirm or deny reports, brought to his attention at his press conference, that some German submarines had been sunk. He said that "rumors and reports of the sinking of subs" had been current here and elsewhere for some time, he said that nothing could be said about that and continued with a discussion of British war policy on such things. "The British have been in the war a long time," Knox said, "but you haven't read of very many submarines being sunk by the British have you?" "This does not mean, however, that many submarines have not been sunk," Knox said. "Withholding of news, however, is just a matter of obvious policy," he explained. At one point Knox said in a reply to questions about whether any sinkings had actually been accomplished that "you can draw your own conclusions, but don't draw any rash ones." He said that "when we sink them we will decide whether to make an announcement on the basis of the safety of our men and victory for our forces."

High Court Denies Abernethy Appeal

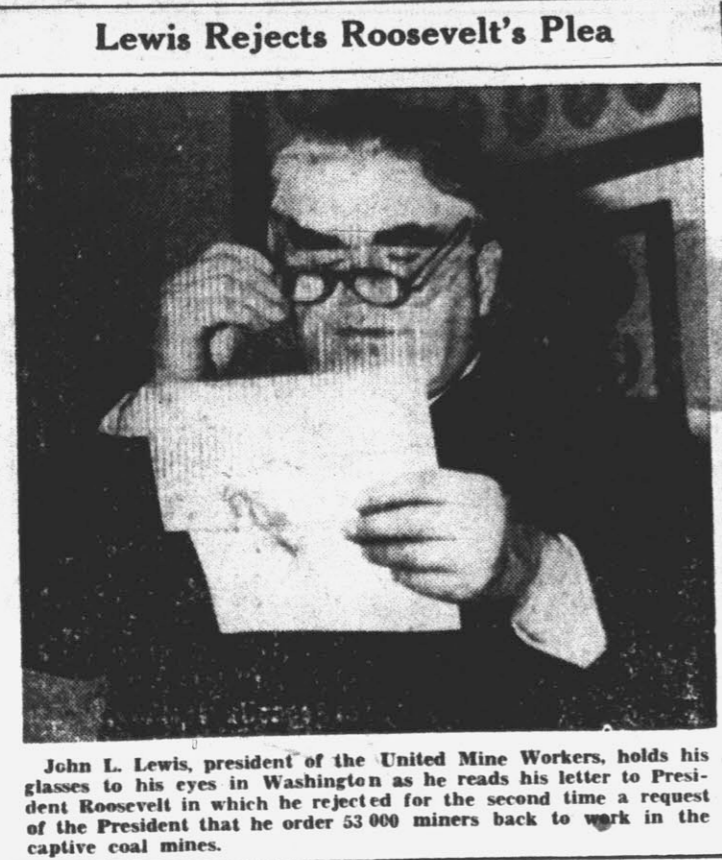

Raleigh, Oct. 29. (AP)—The North Carolina Supreme court today upheld the conviction of Charles L. Abernethy, Jr., of New Bern, on charges of election law violations in connection with a congressional Democratic primary held in May 1940. Abernethy, tried in Wayne Superior court last April, received a 30-day suspended sentence. He was convicted of "conspiring with certain persons unknown to the State to interfere with election officials in Craven and Wayne counties and with the actual interference with the duties of county and precinct election officers." The Supreme court, in an opinion by Associate Justice Michael Schenck, said: "From the record it appears that the defendant has been fairly tried by a jury of his peers, under the instructions of a judge free from prejudicial error, and that the issue of his guilt or innocence has been answered against him. The verdict supports the judgment."

Faison Man Dead In S. C. Collision

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 29. (AP)—Two men were dead and another was in a serious condition as the result of a collision between two large transport trucks between Columbia and Lexington early today. The dead, identified by a funeral home and hospital authorities: Buck Rainey, Cedartown, Ga.; Herman Leach, Faison, N. C. The seriously injured man was identified as Charles Jordan of Mount Olive, N. C. He suffered severe burns. Rainey, driver of one truck, was on his way to Waverly, Mass., with a shipment of yarn from the Cedartown Textile Company. He was accompanied by G. L. Sanders also of Cedartown, who was asleep in the back of the truck, but who escaped with minor bruises and burns. Both trucks caught fire after the crash and the Columbia fire department went to the scene. Rainey was dead when removed from the wreckage. Leach died a few hours later at the Baptist hospital. Fire Chief A. M. Marsh said the truck occupied by Leach and Jordan was parked on the highway. It was loaded with pickles.

Lewis And Taylor Confer On Strike At Coal Mines

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, holds his glasses to his eyes in Washington as he reads his letter to President Roosevelt in which he rejected for the second time a request of the President that he order 53,000 miners back to work in the captive coal mines.

EDITOR GAYDA CALLS ON FDR Asks President To Produce German Documents

Rome, Oct. 29. (AP)—Virginia Gayda, Italian editor, today called on President Roosevelt to produce the German document showing plans to suppress the world's religions. If it does appear within 24 hours, concrete in its reality, intelligible in its dictation, the reputation of Roosevelt the falsifier will arise to the stars," he wrote in Giornale D'Italia. "But the document will not appear because it does not exist," he continued. Gayda then said that the United States had less religious freedom than Germany. "National Socialist Germany respects all faiths and recognizes and protects the necessary freedom for all," he said. "Catholic churches like the Protestant in German territory are still open and carry out their functions undisturbed. "The same cannot be said of the United States, where Protestant propaganda has attempted to strike Catholicism, and where Protestant agents and plots go forth for propaganda of conversion and corruption in various parts of the world."

Gas Stations May Retain New Hours

Raleigh, Oct. 29. (AP)—Gasoline dealers here predicted today that most North Carolina filling stations would continue to close at 7 p. m. daily, despite the removal of the gasoline curfew. W. A. Parker, secretary of the North Carolina Oil Jobbers Association, said at least 80 per cent of the jobbers he had talked to favored the continuation of the early closing. The sentiment for early closings is much stronger in the city than in the country, Parker said.

Union Chief and Steel Industry Representatives Meet In Washington At Suggestion Of President Roosevelt; Chief Executive Considering Action; Congress Angry and Impatient

Washington, Oct. 29. (AP)—John L. Lewis of the CIO and Myron C. Taylor of the steel industry, met in a Mayflower hotel room today, brought together in one more try to end the captive coal mines strike which has stopped the flow of fuel to steel mills busy on the defense effort. Taylor, former board chairman of U. S. Steel, and Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, met at President Roosevelt's suggestion. At the end of three hours Lewis told reporters any announcement was at least another hour and a half distant. At 1 p. m., they ordered lunch sent to the meeting place, Taylor's room in the Mayflower hotel. While Lewis and Taylor were meeting Senator Ellender (D-La.) urged in a Senate speech that labor organizations act to oust Lewis as a leader "before it is too late." Describing Lewis as a "traitor to American ideals and a menace to the peace and prosperity of our nation," Ellender said public opinion had reached the breaking point because of the interruption threatened to defense production by the strike in mines supplying steel mills. "Do not force Congress," Ellender said in a plea addressed to the laboring man, "into a position where it may be compelled to pass legislation that will take away from you some of your most cherished rights." The meeting had a last-minute quality about it, for President Roosevelt was considering action and congress, angry and impatient, seemed ready to take drastic steps of its own to eliminate the consuming industrial walkouts. In congressional eyes the captive mine dispute was rapidly becoming a symbol of the whole problem of work stoppages affecting defense and the pressure for action increased over the overnight threat of a general strike of airplane factory workers in five eastern states. The general strike threat arose from the protracted CIO dispute with Air Associates, Inc., at Bendix, N. J. Richard Frankenstein, national director of the CIO union involved, telegraphed President Roosevelt that he was settled on the union's side but was not ready to settle until the union's dispute was settled. The school board would meet shortly and determine these. It is pretty well agreed that materials for the expansion of the high school building cannot be had at the present time; therefore, there will be a great deal more discussion to find out just what is the best way to make the present high school plant efficient. There will shortly be another meeting of the party of the schools with the School Board and the school architect in order to find the best solution to this matter. The School Board knows that its first duty is to get the children out of the Plesione building. Over 150 children attend school in the upper part of this garage each day. Another immediate necessity is a small assembly hall for the West Greenville School, a small vocational building and additional classroom rooms for the C. M. Epps school on Fifth Street. It was pointed out that all these additions can be made with materials most of which can be secured locally. The WPA is working on these projects now and will contribute at least 50 per cent of the cost of construction.

City School Bond Issue Is Carried 625 To 252

Doubtful Full Program To Be Carried Out At Once

The $250,000 school bond issue was carried yesterday with over 70 per cent of the 377 persons registered voting for the proposal. Of the total registration, 625 voted for the proposal and 179 voted against and were automatically counted as voting against the issue. Those who followed the voting yesterday said there was little doubt throughout the day that the issue would carry by a good margin. Superintendent Rose stated today that the teachers and principals in the Greenville Schools are very happy that the citizens of the town have demonstrated again their willingness to sacrifice in order that the children of Greenville may have more adequate school facilities. Superintendent Rose further stated that the people of Greenville have never turned down a request in behalf of the childhood of the city. Naturally the children in the schools this morning are very happy more joyous than if they had won a great football game. As to what the next steps are, Mr. Rose stated that the School Board would meet shortly and determine these. It is pretty well agreed that materials for the expansion of the high school building cannot be had at the present time; therefore, there will be a great deal more discussion to find out just what is the best way to make the present high school plant efficient. There will shortly be another meeting of the party of the schools with the School Board and the school architect in order to find the best solution to this matter. Local Junior Red Cross Goes Over 100 Per Cent

By EVELYN SCHELLER Publicity Chairman The pupils of the Greenville city schools showed a typical school spirit in the splendid response given to the Junior Red Cross drive. The children seemed to feel the absolute need of the Red Cross," stated Mrs. J. B. James, chairman of the Red Cross. Greenville high school homerooms proved to be 100 per cent behind the Junior Red Cross drive of last week by contributing the necessary amount of money for enrollment. A large number of students participated actively in the drive. A total of $56 was put into the service fund by the Greenville schools. Supervisors of the drive were Miss Ruth Henry of the high school, Miss Frances Wahl of the Training school, Miss Jane Lyerly of the Third street school, and Miss Jane Hadley of the West Greenville school. The West Greenville school displayed a very unusual Bundles for Britain exhibit at the county fair. Hand-made dolls, wood-carved and hand-painted animals, beads, bracelets and bean bags were a few things made by the children. The Third street school and the Training school children brought gifts to put in the boxes. A few of the items were small dolls, baby caps and rattles, wash cloths and towels, book, puzzles and marbles. Students at the high school made dolls out of discarded wool stock-dolls. Art student Spencer Carroll said, "We had a grand time making these dolls. Some really good ones were turned in." A few of the articles brought in by the students were small articles of clothing, toothpaste and toothbrushes, combs, soap, nail files and chewing gum. (Continued on Page Six)

NYE CONDEMNS BILL TO LIFT BAN ON SHIPS

Declares Ships Would Not Be Sufficiently Armed OPENS THIRD DAY SENATE DEBATE Asserts Nasty Looking Claws Of War Overlooked In Efforts To Revise Neutrality Act

Washington, Oct. 29. (AP)—Senator Nye (R-N. D.) asserted today that enactment of neutrality revision legislation would "invite attack by sending merchantships, armed with slingshots against torpedoes, straight into a submarine blockade." Nye, consistent opponent of administration foreign policy, opened the Senate's third day of debate on the momentous legislation to repeal present neutrality law provisions forbidding the arming of ships and preventing them from entering belligerent ports or designated combat zones. Galleries were crowded. "There comes a clever word from the West," Nye declared, "that the betting there is 10 to one that if we approve this repealer, the United States will be in the war before Great Britain is in the war. "The nasty-looking-claws-of-war with all their meanings, were overlooked as the ears were charmed with the gentle purrs that repealing the arms embargo and adopting a lease-lend program of aid to Britain and her allies were no mean acts of war, but were really designed to preserve American neutrality while at the same time helping a gallant people. "The idea had sufficient charm to make it possible for many who are definitely against actual involvement in war to believe that we could really go for a stroll with the leper of war and come back without having caught the leprosy. "Saying that those who backed repeal of the embargo against armaments to belligerents in 1939 had insisted that "they did not even dream of wanting war," the North Dakota senator continued: "Well, the gloves are off now. The claws are out. The point and purpose of it all is clear to anyone who can read or think. The mouse, the American people, has been played with long enough. Now is the time to gobble it. "The pending question is this and bluntly this and no less than this: "Shall America deliberately and consciously go all the way into a shooting war, perhaps upon two oceans, or shall it not?"

Toll Of 14 Ships Claimed By Nazis

Berlin, Oct. 29. (AP)—Fourteen ships totaling 47,000 tons were sunk by German submarines in a six-day pursuit of a heavily loaded convoy traveling from Gibraltar to England, authorized Germans said today. They added that a British destroyer—one of the warships guarding the merchantmen—also was sent to the bottom by a torpedo. Almost the entire convoy was destroyed, these sources declared.

First Lady Greet The Duchess

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt (right) extended a cordial greeting to the Duchess of Windsor (left) when the former Wallis Warfield visited the First Lady at her office in Civilian Defense headquarters at Washington. The meeting was arranged after Mrs. Roosevelt announced she was leaving the city and would be unable to preside at a White House luncheon for the Windsors later in the day.

Committee Disagreed on Charges Against Hillman

Washington, Oct. 29. (AP)—Members of the senate defense investigating committee disagreed today on whether blame should be attached to Sidney Hillman, associate OPM director, for failure of the federal works agency to award a contract to the low bidder on a Wayne county, Michigan, defense housing project. Chairman Truman (D-Mo.) told the senate that if Hillman "can't or won't protect the interests of the United States, I am in favor of replacing him with someone who can and will." Senator read (D-NY) of the committee contended that Hillman had "acted in good faith" in the matter. The dispute developed after Truman had reviewed the committee's inquiry into failure of the FWA to award a contract to the P. J. Currier lumber company of Detroit on Hillman's recommendation. Truman related that Hillman testified he feared labor trouble from "irresponsible elements" of the AFL if the Currier company, employing CIO workmen, received the contract. Senator Hatch (D-NM), another committee member, said it was his impression from the inquiry that the Currier company was not awarded the contract and if "the American Federation of Labor prevails in this matter, the United States government pays tribute out of its treasury." Advocating "billions for defense and not one cent for tribute," Hatch declared there was an issue as to "whether the United States government is going to surrender because somebody threatens it."

Housewives Urged Save Paper Bags

Several grocer members of the Greenville Merchants Association are sending memorandums to their customers urging them to cooperate in the defense program by aiding in economizing in the use of paper bags. Explaining that the tremendous demand is being made on the paper industry under the defense program, the letters state that there probably will be a shortage of paper bags. With this in prospect, the grocers are asking all housewives to save their bags and the grocers will call for them any time they are advised. The memorandums called attention to the fact that during the World War it became necessary to deliver potatoes, oranges, etc., in one bag. To emphasize the need for conserving the bags, it was reminded that it requires 30,000 pounds, or one carload, of blueprint paper for each battleship constructed and that steel plants use paper for interleafing armor plate.

Meet Is Attended By O. P. Matthews

O. P. Matthews, member of the board of directors of the North Carolina Merchants Association, announced today upon his return from a meeting of that body in Raleigh yesterday that the annual association session would be held in Raleigh either in April or May. The last meeting was held in High Point. Director Matthews announced that elaborate plans are being outlined for this year's association meeting and added that efforts would be made to have a better representation in attendance. He also reported that the board went on record asking all cities not to plan Christmas lights this year if the governor and local utilities officials found a power shortage existed.

Little Hope Is Held Out For Rostov

Red Army Engineers Reported To Be Planting Mines And Preparing To Leave City In Smoking Ruins; Germans Also Reported to Have Forced Break-Thru Into Crimean Peninsula

(By The Associated Press) German troops were reported to have scored a break-through today into the Crimean peninsula, site of Russia's Black sea naval base of Sevastopol, while other Nazi columns stormed at the gates of Rostov-on-Don in what appeared to be a climactic phase of the four-months-old battle of the Ukraine. Soviet dispatches said Red army engineers were already planting death trap mines in Rostov and preparing to leave the city of 500,000 a smoking ruin. The main German attacking column was said to be only 10 miles from the center of the Don river, port which guards the northern approach to the Caucasus oil fields. In the Crimean peninsula, the Red army would be open for swift German divisions to strike south toward the nerve center of the oil region at Maikop, 175 miles below Rostov. The Russian newspaper Pravda acknowledged "great danger" at Moscow, the Donets basin, the Crimea and Rostov, but declared that Adolf Hitler's prediction of victory before winter had collapsed. Pravda said the Nazi high command had thrown almost the entire German land army, artillery and tanks, and nine-tenths of the air force into the Russian campaign. Travelers arriving outside the USSR from Kuibyshev, auxiliary Soviet capital, said the first 15 days of November would probably be the most crucial period in Russia's struggle. A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters said that three German divisions—about 60,000 men—succeeded in breaking through the Red army defenses into the Crimea after 10 days of hard fighting. The reported break presumably had occurred at the entrance to the Perekov isthmus, a four-mile wide bottleneck linking the Crimea and the USSR mainland, which has been the scene of bitter fighting. Nazi shock troops, attacking with strong aerial support, cracked the Soviet defenses and captured 15,700 prisoners, 13 tanks and 109 cannon, the German communique said. "Pursuit of the defeated enemy has begun," it added. Aside from the Sevastopol base, the Crimea is strategically important for two other reasons: 1. Its eastern extremity guards the narrow strait into the sea of Azov. 2. Troops crossing the strait would have a short cut route into the Caucasus. Youngsters Sell Crop Little Abbie Frances Darden and George Stancill Hines of near Ayrden today sold their tobacco crop and immediately invested the money in postal savings. The children are given a small plot of tobacco year by year by their grandmother, Mrs. Fannie Bowen, and all receipts from the sale go to the youngsters.

Mrs. Miller, who in addition to being a writer of note was educated for a professor of mathematics. She has a praiseworthy list of novels of her credit. "The White Cliffs" is a best seller, more than 10,000 copies have already been sold. The book is a long poem expressing completely and beautifully the predominate feeling of America toward England. It is the story of an American girl who marries an Englishman, loses him in the World War, and faces the prospect of losing her son in the present war. It balances English virtues against English faults and ends with the words "But in a world where England is finished and dead, I do not wish to live."

Mrs. Rose's thrilling interpretation of the poem left her listeners deeply impressed at the dramatic close. Miss McGee expressed the thanks of the department to Mrs. Rose.

Mrs. H. A. Peterson's and Mrs. Charles Johnson's names were added to the Literature department membership. Guests of the afternoon included Mrs. Jack Boyd, Mrs. Frank Wilson, Mrs. L. R. Meadows, Mrs. Picklen Arthur, Mrs. Henry Sugg, Mrs. D. E. Baughan, Miss Jamie Leryly and Mrs. Felix Scheller.

Man must be fit to achieve, endure, aspire and deny for the common weal. Man cannot continue in frivolity. He must awake to the seriousness of major interest outside of war."

The speaker said we must present a patriotism of self-denial. Deny ourselves against totalitarianism in all forms. We must have a desire to duty.

"Man can defend America. The fight is on. Banish softness, laziness, extravagance and buck-passing. Get tough inside. You have got to think hard and live clean. Support to the utmost whatever serves to increase national strength and unity. The morale of the people must be maintained. The real struggle is for fitness."

"There is no better place than in your own community to strengthen the defense line, through loyalty and social service."—Reported.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

Try this new sandwich trick: Toast white bread on one side, cover the untoasted sides lightly with butter, sliced pineapple and bacon strips. Broil or bake until well browned. Serve hot.

Apples contain over 80 per cent water so add little water when cooking them. A dash of salt improves all apple dishes.

Orange sherbet or ice cream topped with chocolate sauce combines two favorite flavors and is a fitting Hallow'en dessert.

Raisin cider sauce is timely to serve with ham, sliced, boiled or baked. Substitute cider for vinegar called for in the recipe.

PLANS SURVEY OF STATE REA

To Provide Electrification Picture Of Tar Heelia

Reflector Bureau.

By HENRY AVERILL
Raleigh, Oct. 29.—The first statewide rural electrification survey since 1934-35 will be started in the near future, as a project for the "long pull" or post-emergency period, Gwyn Price, State REA director, said today.

Formal announcement of details will be made at a meeting here November 3, of representatives of the federal and state REA's and of all electrical cooperatives of the state. The meeting will be held in the old supreme court room.

Director Price makes it plain that the survey does not mean that all, or even any, of the unlighted farm houses in North Carolina will have an opportunity to get power at any time in the near future.

What it does mean, however, is that electrification authorities will have a clear picture of the state so that they will be able to move on a broad front when the proper time comes. At present it isn't even possible to promise early construction of line which have been surveyed and approved by the state REA and for which applications are now on file with federal REA in Washington. Defense material priorities are seeing to that.

On the other side of the picture, however, Director Price does believe that the survey will be a tremendous step forward. While it is already known, of course, that only about 30 per cent of North Carolina's farms are served with electric power, nobody knows exactly where the unlighted farms are; with a result that no plans can presently be made for extension of lines to them.

The objective of the survey will be to make this information available to the REA heads, so that it may be used just as soon as it is possible to press for more electric power line construction, and without waiting longer for any survey of needs.

The survey will not be quite as detailed as was that of 1934-35, when a house to house canvass was made; but it will be complete enough to give the full picture. Data will be gathered on the proximity of all unlighted farms to existing power facilities; and from these data broad plans for future electrical extension will be drawn.

State and federal REA offices will supervise and direct the survey, with the cooperatives providing most of the actual field help—though two men from the Washington offices of REA will be on the job full-time. Cost of the survey will be less than if a complete organization had to be set up.

Director Price pointed out that the survey will not be wholly for the benefit of federally-backed cooperatives. If the facts disclose that a certain community or area can better be served by privately owned utility companies than by coops, he said, every effort will be made to plan for new line construction by the most appropriate agency, private or public.

The director is frankly optimistic that the survey will prove of great ultimate value.

A sort of "guinea pig" for the statewide survey is already being conducted in Randolph county.

Chapter 14
Colonel Moore Again

"Let's not talk about Belle Acres," Johnny said briefly. "Let's talk about us. I came to see you—I've missed you. I saw my father in Washington and told him that I could understand his infatuation for the southern girl he met abroad. He had better luck—his girl was not engaged to marry another man."

"Nevertheless he lost her," Sue Ellen reminded him. She pulled off her soft felt hat and tossed back her curls.

"She never forgot him—your Aunt Carolina told me that. She confessed that she made a mistake when she didn't follow her heart."

"I'm following mine."

"He smiled slightly and leaned forward with his steady eyes bent upon her rebellious face. "Are you sure?"

"Quite."

"That may make things a bit difficult for me."

"That will make things as you call them, quite impossible for you." The speech sounded rude, she hadn't intended that and she added quickly: "I don't mean to be rude, but I am engaged, you know—"

She floundered helplessly and Johnny continued to gaze at her with a maddening intensity which made her furious.

His cool determination to make her care for him in spite of Riv— in spite of her engagement to Riv— bewildered her always and today for the first time it did something else: it shook her belief in her prospective marriage. It threatened her faith in Riv, and yes, roused the belief that she might be influenced to care for this man if he persisted in his lovmaking.

Fortunately Aunt Car and Aunt Pleas appeared with the tea. She tried to make an excuse and slip away, but a glance from Aunt Car forced her to wait and sit nervously sipping tea and crumbling bisc-

Sue Ellen's tone which made Aunt Carolina raise her eyebrows, then she smiled and suggested: "I can think of other topics more interesting than discussing Yankees who take advantage of our bad luck to pick up old plantations. I wonder if you know why I wanted to make that trip to Belle Acres, Sue Ellen?"

"Sentimental reasons, I suppose," she said indifferently.

The fact that Johnny might be interested in Deedora Waller should mean nothing to her. Oddly, it did. The mention of their names together gave her a queer sense of irritation. She only half listened while Aunt Car talked about the various improvements necessary to put Belle Acres in livable condition. Of money which could be raised by government loans. She felt wretched and despondent.

She was brought back to her surroundings by a direct question from Aunt Car, who spoke twice before she answered.

"Yes, Aunt Car."

"I have some good news," Aunt Car smiled at her, her eyes bright and eager.

Sue Ellen shrugged. "I could use good news."

"Today, I received a letter concerning an investment which hasn't paid in years," went on Aunt Car. "The letter enclosed a check which will be quite enough to pay the interest on the Belle Acres mortgage."

"Aunt Car—how wonderful!" For the moment she forgot Riv and the complication of her love affair.

"I deposited the check and went to see Colonel Moore, but his secretary told me he would not be back in Tyler Springs until tomorrow. He promised to wait until January to redeem that mortgage. I talked to the banker and I think I can manage it—"

Aunt Car was quite breathless as she paused.

"I knew, but we planned to surprise you," said Aunt Pleas from across the table.

"You dears!" Sue Ellen reached out and caught Aunt Car's thin, blue-veined hand.

"You have looked so disturbed and unhappy lately and we could not understand it, unless you were worried about Belle Acres."

"I was."

"Now it will be all yours some day."

"It will be yours," said Sue Ellen firmly. "I have no need of it. Riv is determined that we shall live in Washington. He says that he hates Tyler Springs. Of course," she added hastily, "I've wanted to live here always. I love everything about Belle Acres. But I'm growing up now. What I must do is what Riv wants to do, because he'll be my husband. We plan to marry as soon as possible—maybe at New Year's."

"New Year's?"

She elaborated on the idea, as she saw how pleased they were. She promised to come back and help them with the planning and remodeling of Belle Acres, when the loan was assured. She tried to conceal her own unreasonable depression this evening, by a mock gaiety which deceived the aunts, while all the time her heart was a turmoil of bitterness as she remembered Ginny's words: "You fool! What had Ginny meant?"

Before she left the dinner table she remembered something. "Who tore down part of the Belle Acres stables?" she asked idly.

"Tramps, maybe," offered Aunt Pleas.

"When I pay the interest, I'll speak to Colonel Moore about it," said Aunt Car. "What are you planning to do this evening, Sue Ellen?"

"I'm going to write a letter to Riv and take it down to the train to mail it."

Miss Fix-It

She wrote the letter and decided that a walk to the train would clear her head. As she passed the Fairchild home, she saw Ginny sitting in the front room.

"You fool! What had Ginny meant when she said that? This afternoon she had been determined never to mention her affairs in Ginny's presence. Now the temptation to know, to actually know why Ginny had made that impulsive remark, obsessed Sue Ellen. She turned into the gate, mounted the porch and rang the bell.

Ginny looked uneasy when she opened the door. "Hello," she said nervously.

"I want to talk to you, Ginny."

"Mamma's in the living room. I'll get my coat and walk down-town with you."

By the time Ginny came out, Sue Ellen's resolution had cooled, but Ginny said: "What's wrong? You frightened me when I opened the door and saw you. You looked positively ghastly. Sue, has anything happened?"

She managed a laugh. "I'm a fool—just as you said, Ginny. You upset me terribly this afternoon and I made up my mind that the best thing to do was to ask you directly why you said that. Why am I a fool, Ginny?"

"I shouldn't have said that," confessed Ginny. "It just slipped out. I'm an awful gossip. I resolve not to listen to everything I hear and vow never to repeat a word, and then the temptation's just too much for me. I just can't mind my own

NOT MUCH CHANCE for you to go clocking different brands of motor oil to prove which one flows fastest in Eskimo season. Yet the quieter the lubrication at every cold start, the less "dry rub" on delicate surfaces in your engine. Then why not change now to Conoco Nth oil for Winter and get an OIL-PLATING engine? OIL-PLATING is high up in the cylinders to fight fierce grind, much sooner than any plain oil-flow alone could even start wiggling.

Conoco Nth oil, you see—all in addition to speedy flow—fastens OIL-PLATING to inner engine surfaces, as if by "magnetic attraction." This close-bonded OIL-PLATING is up to its topmost point before you even touch the starter—and that's "faster than fast," to aid you toward anti-friction starting.

Even up in Iceland, of course, any engine's normal firing is hotter than the Land of the Hottentots. Yet you don't want to "burn up the oil." And Conoco Nth proved it could last for more than twice the mileage averaged by the five other big-name oils in the impartial Death Valley Death-Test. When all five others were used up—engines ruined as each strict 5-quart fill gave out—the Conoco Nth oil that competed under identical conditions was still up at 2.7 quarts! Certified!

business. I rush in and try to be Miss Fix-It, and half the time make a muddle of things. That's what Toby tells me," he hates gossip. Think you more of that remark, Sue, I shouldn't made it—and I apologize if I made you unhappy."

Sue Ellen said bluntly: "There's something I should know. I'm convinced that whatever you know and it may be a lie which will wreck my happiness and make my marriage with Riv a failure. The weird noises drifting to my ear as she sang suggested the Latinized cries and chatter of the beasts as they boarded the ark. Another number, "Kangaroo," is about Kangaroos, and Aurora has to hop like one.

She's a striking looking gal with clothes that cling and seem to have been suggested by the corals, yellows and greens of the jungle foliage.

When she came to this country her agents wanted to bill her as Aurora Miranda, but Aurora put a stop to that fast. "In this country Miranda means Carmen—I'm Aurora."

You will admit that the Northern Lights make a strange name for a girl born in Brazil. It happened this way: Aurora was born about 6 o'clock one morning. Her father, slightly jittery at the moment, was pacing the floor. At 6 a.m. the old Doc shoved his head through the door and said something like this: "Hey, it's a fine. She's a girl."

Papa fetched a jubilant sign. He glanced out the window. The sun was just breaking across the yard. "We'll call her Aurora," he decided. "That's what the New Yorkers are calling her, too. They call for more and more. The night I was there they called her for six encores."

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York — You like Carmen Miranda, who sings about the "Souise" American Way?

That's too bad, because this isn't about Carmen—it's about her sister, Aurora, a sloe-eyed gal from Brazil who hopes to make her own way without leaving too heavily off Aurora's current red hot vogue.

Aurora never worked in an American nightclub until she opened as the high priestess of the new revue at the Copacabana a few night ago. But she has had plenty of cabaret experience at home. She is the girl about whom the "Souise" was written, the one named "Aurora." She's 22.

Though her gowns are tropic-inspired, she shies away from the "bahiana" headdress popularized by her sister. This is the headdress inspired by a basket of fruit. The name comes from Bahia, Brazil's fourth largest city. A girl who comes from Bahia is known as a Bahiana. Aurora and Carmen and their sister, the latter now retired to do-

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

SEIZING FATE BY THE THROAT
Some years ago there was a Dr. Vail in India, a missionary, who performed thousands of operations and many of them for cancer. One day he detected in himself unmistakable signs of the disease. He took an airplane to Germany and there was told that his case was hopeless. However, he discovered that certain German doctors had a treatment for mild cases of cancer, and he forthwith perfected himself in the technique, flew back to India and spent the remaining months of his life rescuing literally thousands from the death which he himself was confronting.

It was Beethoven who spoke of seizing fate by the throat. The great composer was deaf, and of course never heard a note of some of his great sonatas. But it is believed by many today that the supreme excellence of his compositions was largely due to the fact that his desire to compose beautiful music was a compensation for his deafness. With real valor he seized fate by the throat.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — Sluething for the birth of an uncopyrighted idea is no easy task. Our "good neighbor policy" may be the orphan of some administration which couldn't develop it — but if that is so, then the man who adopted it and nursed it to the lusty maturity now approaching is none other than Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles.

Coming from a New York family whose wealth would have made it simple for young Benjamin Sumner to spin out a life of cultured ease, he chose the career of diplomacy when he was in college. Then he chose Latin America as his field of operations.

MAYBE WE'LL GET SOMEWHERE NOW

We agree heartily with the measure presented yesterday by Senator Josiah Bailey, whereby persons guilty of stirring up or taking part in unwarranted strikes in defense industries would be guilty of sabotage and punished for that crime. We have contended for a long time that there was little use in training an army of labor racketeers or foreign sympathizers wreck the program and jeopardize our future safety by refusing to stay on their jobs and manufacture the equipment diplomacy that only the rebellion of our neighbor republics against it could wreck it.

Welles has gone on up the ladder, of course. As undersecretary of state, he is the administrative head of the entire department, but it's certain that as long as he is there there will be no skirting in the drive to cement the bonds of Western Hemisphere solidarity.

Short Shots

Raleigh, Oct. 29 — Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Boddie Ward is disclosing considerable ability to "take it" in connection with the present uproar over reports of abuse of power on the part of highway patrolmen, complaints of inefficiency in the safety division, and verbal darts shot by retiring employees.

The commissioner told your reporter he never has and never will object to full and pitiless publicity on all the workings of his department. He admitted that his first remarks regarding the charges by Sanford's Dr. Hunter put him in a bad light because he did not know that the doctor had gone into full details to a reporter and that the case was to be aired in the press.

When he entered the State Department in 1915, he startled the bigwigs by asking for a post in South America. The region was the Siberia of American diplomacy. About the only men sent there were state department Peck's bad boys who needed a spanking or political misfits who had to be taken care of in some way.

Welles' new bosses sent him to Tokyo.

It was two years before he could get out of that land and away from those sons of the Rising Sun for whom he never has had any affection. Then he was sent to Buenos Aires and happily plunged into the task of understanding our neighbors to the south and of establishing a friendly economic and cultural relationship.

By 1921, he was chief of the Latin American division in Washington and, being only 28, was the youngest man ever to hold that post.

Even in that period, after he had broken with President Coolidge in 1925 and apparently abandoned the career he had chosen in college, Welles couldn't stop working for his beloved Latin America.

He set about writing a book — a big book. It is ostensibly a history of Santo Domingo. Actually it is a calm, but positive indictment of Uncle Sam's long, sometimes ugly record of "dollar diplomacy" in the sister republics. It was called "Naboth's Vineyard" — a reference to the biblical story in which King Ahab took over the vineyard of Naboth.

When President Roosevelt came into office in 1933, he called Welles back to the State Department. (As a lad in knee pants, young Sumner, with his family, attended the wedding of Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt.) The still young diplomat did not lose any time getting about his South American business. Out of a paragraph in the President's inaugural address, Welles, with the aid and consent of his new chief, Cordell Hull, expanded "the Good Neighbor policy," which now is so ence enough to sustain such an indictment — there are going to be plenty of drastic changes made. So far no publicity has been given them — but it is a fact that several highway patrolmen have resigned (by request). Of these one, at least, went because he had several accidents in a short period and another because it became apparent that he would never learn to be a real officer, his attitude toward the public being much too over-bearing for real efficiency.

This and That

Nine North Carolina counties have distributed more than a million dollars each in Social Security funds since beginning of the system in 1936. They are Alamance $1,058,650.17; Buncombe $1,799,716.33; Durham $1,800,161.57; Forsyth $2,368,355.86; Gaston $1,706,429.94; Guilford $2,737,064.27; Mecklenburg $2,365,753.14; Rockingham $1,909,767.01; and Wake $1,188,550.17.

Somewhat on the other end of the line are 20 counties which do not share at all in distribution of funds for public health services. These are counties still without full-time health departments. No federal funds at all may be given to these counties for health work. The 20: Alexander, Brunswick, Camden, Carteret, organized August 15, 1941, but not reported as receiving funds, which are listed as of June 30, 1941) Caswell, Franklin, Henderson, Hoke, Iredell, Jones, Lee, Madison, McDowell, Mitchell, Montgomery, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Stanley and Washington.

Retail clerks are organizing an APL local in Salisbury, according to reports from labor circles. Through cooperation with Army authorities he can have "rouzing" beer outlets declared "off limits" for soldiers. In the east he is reported to be using that power as a club over num-

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The stock market's vision for discounting coming events remained clouded today and price trends were not easily discernible.

Steel shares put on a mild forward sprint at the opening, but soon fell back for lack of new support. Motors, aircrafts, rails and other departments, usually favored when the list comes to life, moved sluggishly with prices slightly mixed. A few industrial specialties were moderately improved near the fourth hour, dealings were slow.

New Law Protects Farm Food Prices

Raleigh, Oct. 29.—North Carolina farmers who help produce the increased quantities of hogs, eggs, evaporated milk, dry skim milk, cheese, and chickens sought in the 1942 farm defense program will have the protection of new Federal farm legislation against price collapses for these particular commodities, G. Tom Scott, chairman of the State USDA Defense Board pointed out this week.

The Steagall amendment requires that whenever in the present emergency the Secretary of Agriculture finds it necessary to encourage expanded production of any non-basic agricultural commodity, he must issue a public notice calling for the expansion.

The same law directs him to use available funds for the disposal of agricultural commodities so as to support a farm price of the commodity of not less than 85 per cent of parity. Before the secretary can discontinue a price-supporting program, he must give sufficient public notice of the termination to permit producers to make readjustment in production.

FDR Tells Nation 'Shooting Has Started'

Surrounded by his aides and secret service men, President Franklin D. Roosevelt broadcasts to the nation from the Navy League dinner in Washington. Standing to the right of the President's flag and naval decorations he said that the "shooting has started." Local NYA Center Visited By Lions

The program of the Lions Club at its meeting Monday night consisted of a tour of inspection of the local NYA center. For most of the members this was their first view of this highly interesting project. They were led on their tour by E. M. Burris, supervisor of the local center, who pointed out the many unusual and interesting features of the modern equipped plant.

Beginning with an inspection of the kitchen, of which all the equipment is run entirely by electricity, the tour progressed to the photography, radio, machine and wood-working shops. The tour was rendered the more entertaining because instructors in each of the shops showed a willingness to take up time with their visitors and to explain how useful trades are taught to the ambitious young men who come under their supervision. The instructor in charge of the wood-working shop amazed his hearers by relating that his pupils have already completed and sent off to Camp Davis well over four hundred office desks.

Plans Pilgrimage To Church At Bath

Bath, Oct. 29.—In celebration of the completion of the first unit of the restoration program at Bath, a pilgrimage to St. Thomas Episcopal church, the state's oldest religious edifice, will be made on Monday, November 3. The Rev. W. R. Thomas, pastor, will lead the group, which will include the Rev. A. C. D. Noe, chairman, and Vicar of the parish; W. A. Tankard, representing the Vestry; the Rev. W. R. Noe, of Wilmington, representing the diocese; and Dr. C. C. Crittendon of Raleigh, representing the North Carolina Historical Commission.

The Williams house, adjacent to the church, which was, probably the first Glebe House in the province, is being restored for a rectory. From a French artists point of view, it has fine architectural lines, and one of the etchings made of the house by him, will be included in a famous collection for a book.

The ballast rock wall to be built around the church property from rocks brought from England, the West Indies, Ireland, and other foreign countries, has attracted no little attention, as has the planned colonial garden to be planted near the church.

Rape Cases Heard in Criminal Court

One attempted rape case was disposed of yesterday and the current criminal session of Pitt Superior court spent today on another.

Yesterday Jesse Anderson, Negro, originally charged with attempted rape, tendered a plea of guilty to assault on a female and the State accepted the plea. The defendant was given a 30-day sentence, suspended upon good behavior for one year.

The case of Wilbur Jackson, white man charged with attempting to criminally attack a nine-year-old girl, was being heard by the tribunal today.

Other cases disposed of and not previously reported are: Vance Swift, colored, breaking, entering and larceny, 18 to 24 months; Jasper Payton, breaking, entering and larceny, eight months; Moses Anderson, manslaughter, 12 months.

Britain Says U. S. Revealing Secrets

London, Oct. 29.—(AP)—British officials were reliably reported today to be gravely concerned over the freedom with which military information is circulated in the United States and to be seeking further steps by Washington to keep war matters secret.

The British, it was said, have frequently pointed out to the American embassy stories given out in the United States which the British say provided important top-offs to Germany.

President Roosevelt's announcement October 24 that the OPM after November 1 would keep secret the details of war production was seen here as one fruit of the British complaints.
