CHURCHILL HINTS AT U. S.-JAP CONFLICT

11 KNOWN DEAD IN DERAILMENT OF FAST TRAIN

Cylinder Head Blown From Freight Causes Wreck

FIFTY REPORTED TO BE INJURED

Crack Pennsylvania Derailed Near Kenton, Ohio, After Striking Cylinder Head From Freight

Kenton, Ohio, Nov. 10.—(AP)—A passenger train thundering through the night at between 60 and 70 miles an hour was derailed by a cylinder head blown off a freight train and piled up into a mass of twisted steel near Dunkirk. Eleven were listed today as dead and about 50 were injured.

Engineer R. S. Schuler of Fort Wayne, one of 43 persons to survive the wreck of the Pennsylvania Railroad's "Pennsylvania" said "something went wrong" just after he passed the freight train on his Chicago-New York run.

In Chicago, H. E. Newcomet, vice president of the railroad, said the cylinder from the freight train blew off and onto the adjoining track "and before there was time to flag it the Pennsylvania, moving at high speed on the east-bound track, struck the damaged cylinder head, derailing and turning over."

Passengers were tossed helter skelter out of seats and berths and into near freezing temperatures.

Outlines Progress Of USO To Date

Dr. W. I. Wooten, who conducted the successful USO campaign in Pitt county, has received a letter from Thomas E. Dewey, national campaign chairman, outlining the accomplishments to date.

The letter stated that "financially, we are ahead of our original goal but behind the needs of present budgets." With an original goal of $10,760,000, a total of $16,000,000 will have been raised shortly.

It further stated that the operating program was delayed for three months by the failure of government agencies to progress rapidly enough with the building program and adds "this has now been solved by transfer of the job to the army and 107 building contracts have now actually been let. We have been assured by the army that 240 USO buildings will be ready by December 25."

The letter states that meanwhile the USO has not been resting on its oars. Throughout the country, and in the Canal Zone, Hawaii, Alaska, Newfoundland and the West Indies, there have been 293 units in operation, with 161 as actual clubs for men in service. More than 600 workers are now on the job, in rented quarters outside the camps, and on 24-hour duty with troops on maneuvers.

To Act Thursday

Washington, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The House Rules Committee cleared the way today for final House action Thursday on sweeping revision of the neutrality act to permit the government to arm American merchantships and send them into combat zone and belligerent ports, with one Democratic committee member declaring that the nation was "being led to the slaughter house."

Senators Capper and Thomas Feel Differences Can Be Adjusted Amicably, Although Neither Thinks U. S. to Give Ground; Norris Sees Pacific Clash; Arrival of Jap Envoy Awaited

Washington, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Two members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee — Thomas (D-Utah) and Capper (R-Kan.) voiced the opinion today that differences between this country and Japan could be adjusted in the forthcoming conversations between State Department officials and Saburo Kurusu, the special Japanese envoy.

The talks are scheduled to begin next week. Kurusu already has been reported pessimistic about their chances for success. The special envoy is en route here by Pacific clipper, bringing with him Tokyo's formula for removal of the existing forces of friction between the two nations. This formula, the Japanese press has been hinting, may be something in the nature of an ultimatum.

Neither Thomas—who is regarded as a Senate authority on Japanese-American relations—nor Capper had any opinion as to what the government would give diplomatic ground to Kurusu. They agreed in separate interviews, however, that Japan was in no position to undertake war against the United States over differences that could be settled amicably.

On the other hand, Senator Norris (Ind-Neb) declared that it should not matter to this country what Kurusu had to say about Pacific problems.

"Japan has an agreement with Germany and Germany is urging Japan on against us," Norris told reporters. "I have thought for a long time that our first real trouble may come in the Pacific—that we might have to fight first against Japan. We certainly can not let Japan tell us what to do."

High School Paper Wins New Laurels

Winning a first-place classification at the seventeenth annual Southern Interscholastic Press Association convention in Lexington, Va., last week-end, Green Lights has again demonstrated its superiority among school publications of the south. Nearly 500 delegates attended from all parts of the south.

Ten delegates represented the local high school at this three-day session: Cora Redditt, Jack Edwards, Tom Williams, Percy Wells, Dennis Bailey, Frances Glass, Mary Lee Smith, Peggy Rose Smith, Alyce Ruth Bundy, and Adviser V. M. Mulholland.

Co-editor Jack Edwards presided over the student round table at which school publication problems were discussed by high school staff members. At this meeting Percy Wells, one of the local sports editors, was nominated for president of SIPA for 1941-1942. He was defeated in a second primary by Pate Tucker of Amherst, Va.

Green Lights was praised by newspaper authorities for its excellence in editorials, in news writing. (Continued On Page Six)

MAKES APPEAL FOR OLD IRON

Farmers Asked To Sell Scrap As An Aid to Defense

An urgent appeal to farmers of Pitt county to market their scrap iron as a part of a national scrap iron collection campaign was made this week by R. R. Bennett. Iron and steel collected will be used in the national defense program.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard has called on American farmers to cooperate in the national campaign now under way to help provide necessary iron and steel supplies for the defense program. Information received by the Defense Board emphasizes that America needs all the scrap iron and steel it is possible to get, he declared. Steel, he said, not only is needed for production of munitions, but also for making farm machinery.

In a letter to the North Carolina USDA Defense Board, Secretary Wickard said: "The Office of Production Management has been putting on a drive to increase the flow of scrap metal from the cities. They have requested the aid of the Department of Agriculture in increasing the flow of scrap from farms. I am therefore requesting that every defense board put on a drive to get farmers to market their scrap iron and steel. The financial returns cannot be expected to be very large, but the results will be important to farmers and to our whole defense effort."

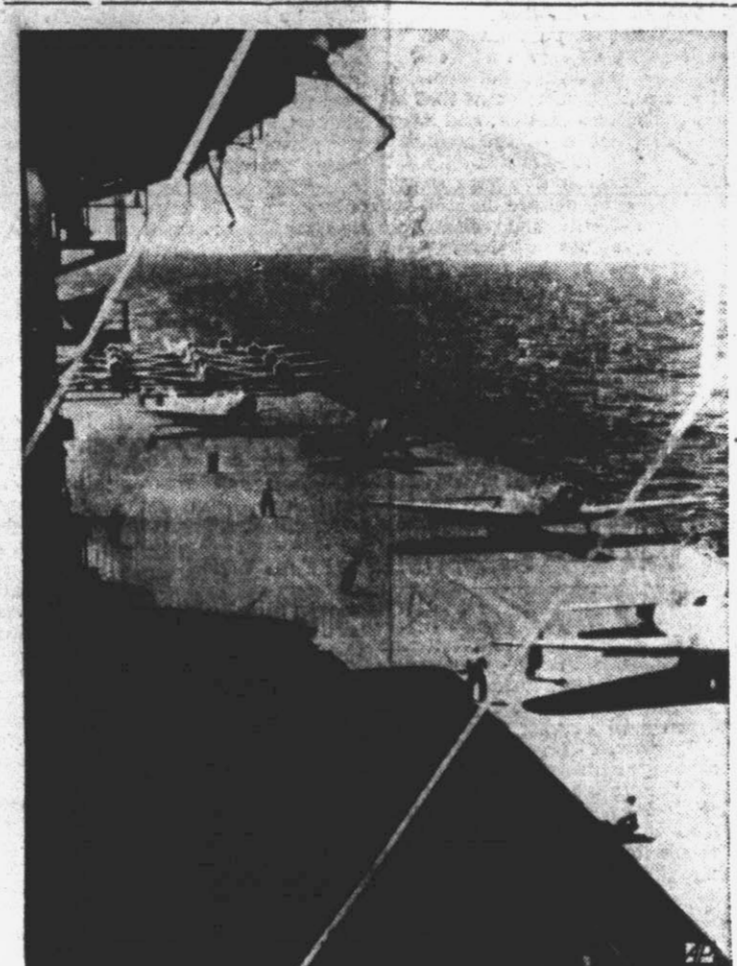

Farmers are being asked to market their scrap iron at current prices, which are those that have been set by OPM. The government does not want farmers to scrap useful machinery. Where machinery is being kept for spare parts, it is suggested that the parts be taken off the machines and stored, and the remainder of the metal sold for scrap.

Red Cross Nursing Work Important Defense Role

By REV. JOHN ARMFIELD Since the present emergency began, over four thousand nurses have been called to the colors through the Red Cross Nursing Service, which maintains a reserve as the official source of the Army and Navy Nurse Corps. To replace those nurses called to active duty, and to build up the reserve for any possible future defense calls upon it, the Red Cross Nursing Service is conducting a drive to enroll every nurse eligible for the first reserve. While the needs of the men in the armed forces have the first call, it is essential to a system of total defense that the health of the civilian population should be properly protected, and that the needs of the army and navy should not interfere with this protection.

The Red Cross Nursing Service enrolls in its second reserve those graduate nurses who for some reason such as age, physical condition, or marital status do not meet army requirements. The nurses in this second reserve, besides maintaining at full strength the register of Red Cross nurses available for disaster and other emergency calls, are also asked to hold themselves in readiness for a call to active duty with the United States Public Health Service. They will aid public health officers, whether national, state, or local, in promoting infant welfare, combating epidemics, and performing similar services which may play an important part in any complete preparedness program for national defense. Britain Dubious Over Peace In The Pacific

PITT OFFICER IS DEALT BLOW Suffers Fractured Skull In Attack By Negro

Burt Dunn, special ABC officer located in Bethel, is in Pitt General hospital with a fractured skull suffered when struck on the back of the head with a piece of concrete weighing five pounds and six ounces Saturday afternoon after having arrested a Negro on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

Dr. J. L. Winstead reported today that the officer had regained consciousness and was showing improvement. Although in a serious condition, he is expected to recover from the blow which crushed his skull.

According to local officers, Dunn was struck on the back of the head by Sam Pitts after the officer had arrested LeRoy Pitts, brother of Sam, and was taking him to the city jail. Roberta Pitts, wife of LeRoy, also is being held on a charge of aiding and abetting. Sam is being held without bond pending the condition of the officer, but bail was being set today for LeRoy and Roberta.

After striking the officer and rendering him unconscious, the Negro ran and made his get-away. Officers from this city were summoned and dogs from the local prison camp were taken to Bethel and the report was made by Lieut. T. T. Lambert, who is in charge of a squadron of 16 patrolmen on the attack took place.

Eggs Are Thrown As Plant Reopens

Raleigh, Nov. 10.—(AP)—State Highway officials reported today that eggs and "perhaps some other missiles" were thrown this morning as the Mount Airy Furniture Company of Mount Airy reopened its strike-closed plant.

Major John Armstrong, commander of the patrol, said he received a report that 175 of the firm's 212 workers returned to their jobs. The report was made by Lieut. T. T. Lambert, who is in charge of a squadron of 16 patrolmen on the scene. Armstrong said that so far as he knew there was no other violence. The highway patrol, he added, has made no arrests, but is simply patrolling the vicinity. So far as was learned here, the National Furniture Company of Mount Airy, also closed by a strike, did not attempt to reopen. The patrolmen were ordered to the scene by Gov. Broughton at the request of Surry county and Mount Airy officials. State officials have attributed the strikes to a jurisdictional dispute between two affiliates of the American Federation of Labor.

ADMIRAL TOLD TO TAKE STEPS AT SAN DIEGO

Ordered To See That Work Resumed On Naval Defense

STRIKE TERMED AS OPEN REVOLT

Some 3,500 Workers On 11 Military Projects Halt Work In Defiance Of No-Strike Agreements

Washington, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Navy instructed Rear Admiral C. A. Blakely at San Diego today to "take necessary steps to carry work forward" on naval defense construction projects tied up by a strike of building trades workers.

Meanwhile, Admiral Blakely issued a statement in which he termed the strike "open revolt against the United States government."

"The Navy will take full constituted authority to suppress this revolt," the admiral said. "Labor leaders have refused to abide by their national organization's agreement with the Navy and in today's continued stoppage of work they are now defying only one contractor—the United States government."

"The Constitution of the United States grants to its citizens the right to free assembly, but that sacred document does not permit individuals to bludgeon the United States government. And I fully intend to see that certain San Diego labor leaders do not bludgeon the United States Navy."

The strike of some 3,500 workers on 11 military projects involving approximately $50,000,000 in contracts, was declared by the Navy to be in defiance of American Federation of Labor no-strike agreements.

Reviewing the negotiations leading up to the walkout, the Navy said that the "department takes the position that there is no alternative but to inform the commandant that the work must go forward with such labor as can be obtained for the purpose."

Admiral Blakely, commandant of the 11th naval district, has been authorized to take title to all materials at point of origin under all contracts and to vehicles belonging to the contractors on the various naval projects, it was said.

"Under such action they become the property of the government and will be protected by government forces if necessary," the Navy said.

Get Out The Flags

Merchants and other business houses are urged to get out their flags early tomorrow morning and display them in observance of Armistice Day, which will be celebrated here with a parade and program on which Hon. Josephus Daniels will make the principal address. Managements of business houses also are requested to permit any of their employees who desire to attend the program to be away from their regular duties for the two or three hours. Some employees will get a full holiday, but no general close down of business will be observed. The campaign among the business men was conducted by a committee composed of Chairman W. H. Woolard, J. H. Blount and B. B. Sugg. In announcing the results, it was pointed out that Pitt continues to be the world's largest tobacco producing county and added that it is encouraging that the business men realize and appreciate the importance of liberal support to the Farm Bureau so that it may maintain a strong organization so as to be effective in its efforts to maintain agricultural legislation that is advantageous to the farmer. The Farm Bureau got its footing in Pitt county, where a state organization was set up several years ago and this county has continually been one of the most active in the state, having the support of the business interests as well as that of the farmers themselves.

Everything Set For Armistice Day Celebration

All indications point to a most successful parade and Armistice day program here tomorrow, which will be centered around an address by Hon. Josephus Daniels, World War Secretary of the Navy.

The day's festivities will get under way with a parade starting from the City-County Armory promptly at 10:15 o'clock and will be concluded at the college in time for the opening of the program with a minute of silence in prayer and tribute to soldiers who died in service scheduled for exactly at 11 o'clock, the hour the armistice was signed November 11, 1918.

Following Mr. Daniels' address and the other phases of the program, a barbecue dinner will be served on the college picnic grounds for ex-service men, members of the Auxiliaries of Farmville and Greenville, members of the local unit of the Home Guard and other invited guests.

The colored Legion post will take part in the parade, but then will go to the Fifth Street Community Center for its own program.

Officials and committee members of the two Legion posts in the county are expecting this to be one of the best programs ever held here in observance of Armistice Day. The public in general is invited to hear Mr. Daniels, Raleigh publisher, who has just resigned the post of ambassador to Mexico. Mr. Daniels was due to arrive back in Raleigh today after having gone to Mexico to say farewell to friends and associates.

Mr. Daniels, with his son, Josephus Daniels, Jr., were to arrive in Greenville this afternoon and be overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Long.

Berlin, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Desperate Russian counter attacks have brought the German advance on the Crimean naval base of Sevastopol "to a temporary standstill," DNB declared tonight.

The news agency said the Russians started their counter thrusts last Saturday after laying down a heavy artillery barrage.

The Germans struck back, DNB said, and are maintaining the steady pressure on Sevastopol in fighting in which Russians "fell by the hundreds."

Premier Asserts That Struggle Soon May Engulf Remaining Fourth of Globe; British Aerial Offensive Continues; Nazis Attack Leningrad From Two Sides; Renewal of Moscow Drive Predicted

By The Associated Press With Russia battling for life against new German threats, Britain in a great aerial offensive to relieve pressure on their ally, and the Orient shattered by threats of wider war, Prime Minister Churchill warned today that the struggle soon may engulf "the remaining fourth of the globe."

This note he struck on the eve of the 23rd anniversary of armistice of a war that was to have ended wars. "This came in an address at the annual ceremony which marks the induction of a new lord mayor for the City of London."

"If the United States should become involved in war with Japan," Churchill said, "the British declaration would follow within the hour."

This hint of a growing initiative by Britain came amid the strained Japanese-United States relations which a special envoy flying to Washington seeks to ease. "Almost as Churchill addressed his cheering London audience, the United States ambassador to Britain, John G. Winant, in a speech at Plymouth declared that the first premise in fighting 'an enemy who is ruthlessly determined on world conquest' is to 'fight him on ground you choose, rather than on ground he chooses'."

London, which Adolf Hitler boasted he could storm and capture whenever he wished to, was being enfolded by two wide-swinging encirclement offensives of the Germans—a bit of grand strategy dictated apparently by the chance that Finland might step out of the war before Hitler is ready.

The Hitler command announced capture of the important traffic junction of Tikhvin, about 100 miles southeast of Leningrad by a force moving across the Leningrad-Moscow communications zone.

The other arm of the offensive, from the northeast over Karelian isthmus, approaches one by the Finns, it was disclosed in advices reaching London.

Fierce fighting on the Crimean front with Russians under aerial and artillery bombardment at the point of Sevastopol and Kerch was indicated in various dispatches.

The Moscow radio, saying German reserves were moving up again before the Soviet capital, forecast a renewal of the Central front drive and added: "Our troops are ready."

The Royal Air Force struck at Germany and German-occupied zones overnight, chiefly at Hamburg, for the third night in a row. A London authority said more than 100 planes took part and two were lost. It was part of a week-end aerial offensive aimed at German positions from occupied Norway to the Mediterranean.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "I will bear the indignation of the Lord because I have sinned against him, until he plead my cause, and execute judgment for me; He will bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteousness." # Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
Monday, Nov. 10, 1901

John Wilbur Jenkins, editor of the Raleigh Times Visitor, has gone to Baltimore to accept a position on the staff of the Sun, in that city.

Frost was enough to look almost like a light snow early this morning.

The short cotton crop and short prices therefor have affected the planter, merchant, commission merchant and banker alike. The result is a spirit of unparalleled forbearance. It will not pay to force assignments. The status is such that he who drives his debtor to the wall will pursue a mistaken and losing policy.

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Whatever indicates the fall of man or the opposite of God or God's absence, is the Adam-dream, which is neither Mind nor man, for it is not begotten of the Father. The rule of inversion infers from error its opposite. Truth, but Truth is the light which dispels error. As mortals begin to understand Spirit, they give up the belief that there is any true existence apart from God."

Mr. Walker said that 7,430 theatres in the United States have reported their donations and that there are 3,219 others yet to turn in their collections. The USO fund drive was organized by Thomas A. Dewey, New York district attorney.

Mrs. Davenport was remembered with a large silver shell.

Mr. Rossell To Give Concert.
Denton Rossell, tenor, will be presented in a vocal concert in Austin Auditorium on the college campus Wednesday evening at 8:15 in the first concert of a series of faculty and student recitals which will be given during the ensuing year. The music department of the college is sponsoring Mr. Rossell who is a teacher in the department.

Before coming to the college, Denton Rossell had sung leading roles with the Opera Intime and the Pacific Northwest Opera Guild. He had also had experience in concert and radio singing.

For his Wednesday night program Mr. Rossell has chosen 17 songs which are new to his repertoire. The program will include songs by Schubert, Chausson, Tosti, and such modern composers as Clara Edwards and James H. Rogers. Indian, Negro and cowboy music will also be included in a group of American folk-songs which are of particular interest.

In building a program such as this, Mr. Rossell says that he tries to include songs that the audience will immediately like; songs that he particularly likes himself, and songs which he feels a college audience should have the opportunity of hearing some of the lesser known masterpieces of song. He feels also that his audience comes to be entertained and plans to sing songs that they love to hear re-sung.

Willa Royall, music student at the college, who comes from Clinton, will accompany Mr. Rossell. She will include Debussy's "Jeune fille de Lune" as one of a group of piano solos which she will contribute to the program.

There will be no admission for the concert. The public is invited to attend.

College Vesper Services.
J. S. McElroy, secretary of the South Atlantic district of the American Bible Society, spoke last night at college vesper on the great need for funds to expand the work of the American organization, now that the British society is no longer able to carry on its activities.

Mr. McElroy took as his text the verse, which appears in the Old Testament and is three times quoted in the New Testament, "man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God," and showed his assurance the great demand for Bibles at a price that can be met by people in need in various parts of the warring world. They need to be sold in many places, he said, at less than it costs to print them; so the funds must be supplemented from outside.

The British Society, he told his listeners, had been responsible for 60 per cent of the Bibles that were being distributed before the war, but is in no position to carry that much of the load now, as its factories have been bombed and much of its paper stock destroyed.

The speaker told of the cry for Bibles in China, in Japan, in the prison camps of Germany, in South America, and many other parts of the world; and asked his audience to help get the Society to furnish them to these people.

"If we hope to have a world of justice and freedom, we must go to the Word of God, he said, to find how to live, to think, and to feel."

Carol Leigh Humphries presided for the Y. W. C. A., and presented Clyde Carter, Presbyterian student worker, to introduce the speaker.

our present world of overwhelming competition, our young people are demanding books that will aid them in developing their personalities to the highest degree. These books were chosen to satisfy this demand and will prove stimulating and helpful to older people as well as to the younger generation who want to improve and advance themselves.

Among the group are these books: "Your Best Foot Forward," by Stratton and Schlemmer—This book tries to answer those questions of social usage which many members of the younger set meet frequently during their daily life. It is addressed to those young people who have a major interest in "dating," who care about improving their table manners, who entertain and visit friends, who meet a great many new people, and would like to do all these things easily. It deals with the everyday problems of young Americans in school and out.

"How to Improve Your Personality" by Earl G. Lockhart—Most of us desire to be well-liked, well-adjusted and influential; in satisfying these desires we find happiness. The winning of these coveted goals is both a reward and a test of personality. Realizing these things the author of this book has in considerable detail explained the only dependable technique for discovering one's weak and strong qualities. Much attention has also been given to the discussion of urges and emotions, and to effective methods for their control. Speculative theories have been almost completely excluded, and the space given to methods of solving personal and social problems.

"Your Personality and God," by Margaret Wilson—A book in which the author, personal advisor to hundreds of thousands, develops the most important theory of her years of teaching, with this sweeping declaration: "Your personality is actually the sum of your conscious or unconscious beliefs about God and the universe." It is not a religious treatise, but a discussion that touches the deep springs of aspirations and suggests a formula for human effectiveness. The book presents a practical technique for the enrichment of individual powers and for getting more comfort, happiness and success out of living.

"Living Under Tension," by Harry Emerson Fosdick. An inspirational book in the highest sense, and which no one can read and remain quite the same as before. The author says that personality is never created simply by thought and work, that powerful personality has deep interior resources of inspiration and intake. "Call it what you will, there is found in every great soul something that goes beyond thinking and working—inner receptivity, sensitivity, and hospitality to a world of truth and power higher than the self."

"Etiquette," by Emily Post—The latest edition of the "Bible Book of Social Usage." A standard authority on correct usage and good taste in every activity of modern social and business life. A supreme authority on manners, this famous book answers all the latest questions arising from present day conditions.

Chapter 24
Wedding Gift

Johnny laughed then and they returned to the plans about Belle Acres. He had simplified his figures so that she could understand them. He said that he would be over Sunday and they would drive out together to look over the plantation. "It's my wedding gift to you," he told her. "We'll have the papers drawn up and everything in order, so that if I have to leave suddenly there'll be no question about your possession." He drew out his wallet and handed her a folded bit of paper. "There's a check to deposit. Take it."

She opened the check and spread it out in front of her. It was for a thousand dollars. She read the name through a mist of tears. "Susan Eleanor Fairhope Harris," written in a strong, vigorous hand. "I shouldn't take it," she murmured.

"Sue Ellen—"

She looked up. This time both his hands caught her two hands and held them. He said: "I'm staking more than a piece of property and a thousand-dollar check on you. In one way I wish I did not have to help you materially. I don't want a hint of gratitude about your possession for me. I want something much more difficult to obtain—and some day I shall ask you for it, and if you cannot give it to me, be honest with me, dear. I'll understand. Now—I'm satisfied that you should adjust yourself and your emotions to this arrangement. A bargain, as you once put it."

"A one-sided bargain," whispered Sue Ellen.

He shook his head. "I'm conservative, but I'm gambling everything on this marriage. I don't want to take my happiness because it's offered out of gratitude. I want to have you forget all that for a month or two. There may be some difficult or embarrassing situations which may arise as a result of our understanding and I shall never take advantage of it for a moment. We are friends—good friends. Agreed?"

She nodded.

She found herself saying quite matter-of-factly: "He'll be over Sunday—that was his plan when he left me."

"The Colonel and Riv are in Tyler Springs," said Aunt Car breathlessly. "They flew to Memphis and I saw the Colonel yesterday and he told me that Belle Acres was out of his hands entirely."

"That's right." Together they walked into the house and the street door closed behind them. From the kitchen beyond they could hear Aunt Jennie talking excitedly and Uncle Freeman's important tones as he answered.

"Belle Acres belongs to us again," announced Sue Ellen, and smiled at the two astonished faces. "At least, it will belong to me as soon as the proper papers can be signed. Johnny gave it to me as a wedding present."

"Belle Acres belongs to you!" Aunt Car sank down on a chair in the hall, while Aunt Pleas bustled off toward the kitchen.

"Did Aunt Pleas know?" asked Sue Ellen. "She didn't seem surprised."

"Pleas is never surprised at anything. You're tired. We'll talk over everything in the morning."

A few minutes later Sue Ellen sat alone by the library fire, while Aunt Car went off to join Aunt Pleas. Together they would talk things over, thought Sue Ellen. They would compare ideas about her surprising marriage. She wondered why the Colonel had come, and wished that Riv had remained in Washington until the news of her marriage had spread through the gossip circles of Tyler Springs. There would be much talk about her.

The Gossips Begin

She thought of Johnny back in camp and wondered if he was thinking about her. She remembered his kiss as he left and she looked deep into the hearth for the fire and saw Johnny's face smiling back at her. The aunts returned with tea and a lunch and she sat and told them about her wedding and the trip back to Memphis.

Aunt Pleas sighed. "I never expected to see the day when a Fairhope would marry a Yankee."

"But, Aunt Pleas, you do like Johnny?"

"He isn't one bit like a northerner," was Aunt Pleas' response. "And if he akes you happy, that's all I could wish for you. You're happy, Sue Ellen?"

"Why do you ask?"

"Because you don't act like a bride," declared Aunt Pleas.

Sue Ellen blushed. "Why?"

"You might have been off to Memphis on a shopping trip instead of a honeymoon." Aunt Pleas eyed her sharply. "Are you sure you've picked the right one, Susan Eleanor?"

"Quite sure." Sue Ellen arose and kissed her aunt. "And I'm tired and tomorrow we'll have time to talk over everything. Right now I'm going to bed. Good night."

The murmur of their soft voices followed her as she mounted the stairs to her room. They had known her so long and so well, they could sense her every feeling, read every passing emotion in her face. It would be difficult to deceive them if this marriage proved a rash mistake.

The following morning Ginny called. "Congratulations," she bubbled over the telephone. "I didn't think you had the nerve to throw Riv Moore over. There's a lot of gossip about it. Plenty of folks say that you gave him the toss and went right out and married that swell Yankee soldier just to show you didn't care. Right?"

"I married Johnny Harris."

"Of course," said Ginny. "The Colonel's friends say he broke up your marriage to Riv."

"I think Riv will tell you that he was already married."

After she hung up the receiver, Sue Ellen was ashamed of her outburst. Time enough for Ginny to find out for herself the details of her break with Riv. Before she had finished her breakfast, a dozen people called to offer congratulations and satisfy their curiosity that the rumor which had swept Tyler Springs about her marriage to a northerner was correct.

"But, Sue Ellen, honey, you've always hated northerners!"

"I didn't know them. Besides, aren't there exceptions?"

"I understand he's mighty well-to-do."

"I don't know anything about that," said Sue Ellen briefly.

"Aunt Car—" She forced her aunt to drop the tapestry on which she protested about the part gossip played in one's private affairs. "It might easily destroy one's faith in anyone," she said slowly. "Make you doubt your own judgment. There's something so destructive and subtle about small-town gossip."

Aunt Car put down the skein of green wool she was carefully considering. "Gossip helped ruin my life," she said, "and gossip will try to ruin yours. But my dear—it can't if you're sure of Johnny."

They arrived in Tyler Springs and found Uncle Freeman at the station. "Miss Sue Ellen—Miss Harris!" He removed his hat and bobbed his grey woolly head repeatedly, his mouth spread in a wide, significant grin. "Miss Ca'olina get youah wish, Miss Sue Ellen. She say to come right along, the bo' of you. She got a hot suppah ready."

"Lieutenant Harris has to be in camp Shelby before six in the morning," explained Sue Ellen, aware of Johnny's dancing eyes and more than proud of the way she maneuvered Uncle Freeman out of hearing by telling him to collect her bags. "Goodbye. Thanks for everything."

"Good night. This is Tuesday—I'll see you Sunday morning."

"Aunt Jennie will have a wonderful dinner for you. Aunt Car will be delighted to see you—"

"And you—?"

"I'll be glad."

He stooped and kissed her gently. "Just a friendly kiss," he said. "Besides, kissing has grown to be quite a commonplace gesture."

She caught his sleeve as he started to turn away. "In that case—"

She drew his face down to meet her own and kissed him on the mouth. "That was for Uncle Freeman," she said hastily. "He was watching us and would have been so disappointed if I had shown no affection for a new husband."

"Are you sure he's quite convinced you love me?" Even in the dim glow of the little station lights, she could catch the gleam in his grey eyes.

"Quite."

He picked up his bags and prepared to leave. "I shall have to convince Aunt Car and Aunt Pleas—" he hinted.

She shook her head. "I shall explain to them that this is just a business arrangement."

She watched him stalk away, his back straight and unbending. He never looked back once. Why had she reminded him that this was a bargain? Why be ashamed of the impulse which made her kiss him goodbye?

She knew. The old Fairhope pride again influencing her to hide behind it, to deny her love.

Odd Homecoming

In the one taxi Tyler Springs boasted, Uncle Freeman sat in front with the driver, his black face puzzled and disturbed. Uncle Freeman thought this an odd homecoming for a bride and groom.

The taxi drew up at Magnolia House, the door flew open. The aunts stood on the veranda. Aunt Pleas, stout and smiling—Aunt Car running down the steps to meet Sue Ellen and take her in her arms.

Aunt Car was tearful—no one spoke. Then Aunt Pleas said briskly: "Your husband, Sue Ellen?"

"Johnny's a soldier," she explained easily. "He had to report at Camp Shelby at once."

What It Means: Hitler And U.S. Ship Sinking

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

Washington.—To Americans, the Reuben James is a tragic hulk lying on the floor of the North Atlantic ocean, but to Adolf Hitler and his strategists, the destroyer is a live pawn of immense strategic value in the world-fung mosaic of war.

That's the considered opinion of observers here.

The principal value of the sinking to Hitler is the possibility—conceded on all sides—that it brings us closer to an actual declaration of war.

A declaration of war on our part should help Hitler now. It should help him more than any strategy he could possibly plan and carry out himself.

A declaration would impose on the President the pressing duty of conserving all defense materials for the use of our own naval and military forces.

This means the President might have to cut down lend-lease aid to the British, the Chinese and the Russians. If he failed to do this he would be running dangerous risks. Suppose, for instance, that we should declare war, and our forces should suffer reverses. The cry would go up that we had sent our weapons to other nations, and left our own men helpless against the enemy. Whether the charge would be accurate is beside the point.

Consider also the fact that most military observers are leaning to the belief that Hitler cannot annihilate the Russian armies this winter. He'll have to carry on until Spring, and then try to deliver the coup de grace he supposedly held

The Pacific—Which May Not Long Be Pacific

Japan, fortifying herself with new bases in strategic Indo-China, has been talking as if she might challenge American and British might in the vast Pacific. In any clash the bases for naval operations would dominate the strategs of all participants. The long string of American naval bases and air stations stretching from Panama to the Philippines all have been assigned roles in a master plan for keeping most of the Pacific secure. Britain's bases, centered on armed-to-the-teeth Singapore, keep an eye on the East Indies corner. But Japanese roots stretch farther and farther from Tokyo. And Nipponese vessels cross and re-cross vital British-American trade lanes. This is why, in a day of armed neutrality and strong diplomatic danguage, the waters of the Pacific are getting hotter.

MODES of the MOMENT

by Helen Forrist Hall

Heads up: You'll find it natural in an uplifted toque of natural stone marten, with feather wings blending in color, and the whole veiled to a masterpiece of flattery. There will be enough of your $100 bill left to start on the matching marten scarf. The latter, thru clever use of only two skins, keeps the total cost of the ensemble to about $200.

poised a few weeks ago when he told the world the Russian armies were whipped. Joseph Goebbels, the German propaganda chief, bears out the strategists. He has officially notified the German people they can expect another tough winter.

If the United States should declare war on Hitler at this time, and lend-lease aid should be shut off, the very shot in the arm the Russians need for next Spring might be denied them. Hitler would then still have a tremendous advantage when action started after the thaw.

But there is another strategic reason why the Reuben James becomes a live pawn in Hitler's hands.

The sinking of the destroyer imposes on the United States Navy chiefs the duty of tightening up our forces protecting our convoys to Iceland. They must keep intact the fleet they now have in the Atlantic. They might even be tempted to withdraw ships from the Pacific.

If we lower the strength of our Pacific fleet, the Japanese might be encouraged to strike a blow at Russia's rear. Vladivostok is their dearest desire. It's a knife pointed at Tokyo. Or, if the Japanese should strike at Singapore, we would have a two-ocean war on our hands—with only a one-ocean navy to fight it.

Doubtless a declaration of war by the United States at this time would have—from the standpoint of our defense effort—some advantages. A people at war are usually a united people. Strikes, discord, debate are usually forgotten. Whatever the course ahead, the majority usually follows that course to the bitter end.

But that's another matter, a domestic matter for the President and the Congress to decide. They will have to weigh both advantages and disadvantages—and decide also what the American public wants to do at this moment.

But regardless of the domestic aspects of the case, an actual declaration of war by the United States now would be more help than hindrance to the Nazi dictator—how ever much hindrance we should generate later on.

GOT A DATE?

Don't neglect your Breath

If you've got a date with the girl friend, or a business appointment, play smart and take the proper precaution to see that your breath doesn't offend unaccountably. After all, nothing is so inexcusable and so offensive as a neglected case of halitosis (bad breath). Before your next date or business appointment, rinse the mouth with Listerine Antiseptic. Almost immediately your breath becomes sweeter, purer, less likely to offend. Most cases of halitosis, say some authorities, are due to the fermentation of tiny food particles in the mouth, although some cases may be due to systemic disorders. Against the former condition, Listerine Antiseptic works wonders because it first halts the fermentation and then overcomes the odors it causes. Don't forget to use it. It's the first aid of thousands of popular and successful people.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

BE FREE WITH LUBRICATION
Garage mechanics tell us that it is always the top compression ring in the cylinder that wears out first. This is because it does not get so much lubrication as the other rings.

Anything will wear out that isn't properly lubricated, and what we very often fail to realize is that this principle operates amid the circumstances of daily life just as it does in the field of mechanics. The Bible has considerable to say about oil—the oil of gladness, the oil of joy, oil with which to anoint the head, oil for anointing the sick, and oil to be poured into open wounds. In the Bible, oil is almost always associated with satisfaction and gladness.

Brought down into modern times, it means that we never make a mistake if we use plenty of oil in our relationships with our fellows. The more we pass out good cheer and encouragement to others, the better will they like us. The freer we are with the oil of gladness, the more heads and hearts we anoint with praise and words of good cheer, the more will people speak well of us and cherish our friendship.

Don't let the people round about you sink down into discouragement when a little word from you would make things different. Remember the top compression ring that wears out first because of a lack of lubrication.

The public is cordially invited to attend the Armistice Day celebration at the college here tomorrow, at which time Honorable Josephus Daniels will deliver the address. The local post of the American Legion feels that it was fortunate in securing Mr. Daniels for this occasion and wants as many of our citizens as possible to avail themselves of this opportunity to hear him.

Despite our declared national emergency and our undeclared naval "shooting war" with Germany, there are at this time more than 120 strikes in progress in this country and others threatened, all of which affect our national defense and aid-to-the-democracies programs. In view of the seriousness of our present situation isn't it about time something definite was done by Congress to put a stop to strikes until the emergency is over?

The world conflict together with the mobilization of our own military forces has greatly increased the job that is being done and must be done by the American Red Cross during the year that is ahead. At this time the annual membership roll call of the Red Cross is being conducted throughout this county and it is to be hoped that the response to the call will be the greatest in the history of our county. There never was a time that your support of the organization was more needed.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinson

Washington — Congress has a Treasury department across a barrel and all because of a little $150,000,000 item which isn't a drop in a ten-gallon keg when you come to considering the overall billions needed to run the government and finance national defense.

When the latest tax bill came out of Congress, one thing in it not recommended by the treasury was the $5 motor vehicle use tax. Even now that it has become law, you can't get any on-the-record discussion of it at the Treasury department.

Certain regulations concerning the tax were laid down in the law: the use of windshield stickers as certificates of payment; the jail sentence and fine provided for tax dodgers; and principally the fact that the tax should become effective February 1, with a prorated payment until the beginning of the tax year July 1.

This little joker means that the Treasury department's collectors of internal revenue will take the field February 1 to collect $2.69 from each of the 32,000,000 private and commercial automobile owners in the country—one of the nearest little problems in tax collection that the treasury ever has been faced with. If a person buys a new car or a second-hand one on which the use-tax has not been paid around the first of March, he will pay 42 cents less; and so on, until purchasers of untaxed cars on June 1 will pay just 42 cents. On July 1 the collectors will have to start all over again with the 32,000,000 and pick up $5 from each.

In this problem, there are several unknowns: No. 1 is how to find out who the automobile owners in the country are. About the only places

Around... Capital Square

Reflector Bureau.
By BOB THOMPSON
Politics—Dr. Ralph McDonald paid a visit to the bureau office Saturday afternoon and spent an hour or so chewing the political fat. Among other things the Doc said was that he just didn't know whether he would run for governor again or not.

But some of the things said by the political professor (or is he a professional politician?) give rise to the prophecy that he quite likely will run if his health is good. Truth is Doc doesn't see among all those mentioned as gubernatorial possibilities any one who has both a good chance and his unequalled support.

Return Engagement—McDonald was awfully complimentary about Governor Hoy who runs under a bridge in five or six years. But, whether it was wishful thinking or not, he does not believe the ex-governor will run again. Some other people around Capital Square share his opinion to this extent. They think the only thing that will bring Hoy out is the candidacy of McDonald, himself.

Congress—McDonald was frank to say that he once intended to run for congress but had changed his mind for two reasons. One was that some of his supporters insisted that he stay in the state picture. Another was that he thought John Folger was not only doing a good job in Washington but also enjoying the job far more than he had expected.

Art—It is not often that a governor feels it necessary to beg the press to bring any news which develops in his office but last week Governor Broughton did just exactly that. The story concerned the governor's designation of November 17-23 as "Art Week."

"Now please don't let me down on that," said the governor. "The ladies who are behind this movement will be on my neck if this doesn't get in the papers."

The sympathetic reporters promised to oblige.

Dusty—Recently, when Governor Broughton was attending a shindig of some sort around Elizabeth City, Jerome Flora and some of the other political big-wigs of the section framed up a plan to interest him in doing something about one of the sore spots of the entire highway section.

Just the other side of Elizabeth City, on the way to Manteo, is a narrow causeway and a section of road which is under water much of the time and dangerous always. It is a bottle neck on a heavily traveled road and there is no doubt that it needs attention. So the members of the delegation decided it would be a good idea to drive the governor over the road without letting him know what they had in mind. Away they went.

That day, however, a freak wind was blowing and to the disgust of the delegation no drop of water was on the highway.

"Rather dusty, isn't it," said the governor keeping a straight face for he had guessed the purpose of the innocent ride.

But the wind which held the water back was not the only thing unusual that day. For some strange reason there was practically no traffic.

"Yes," continued the governor, answering himself. "It is pretty dusty but it doesn't matter much. There's very little traffic on this road."

"Oh, hell!" exclaimed Flora. "Let's go back."

Riddle—One of the riddles of the Broughton administration concerns the governor's failure to find a place for Jimmy Massenberg, former secretary of the Industrial Commission who supported the Pitt County error more actively than did some of the commissioners.

Everyone knows why Jimmy was fired. Industrial Commission Chairman T. A. Wilson opposed his appointment in the first place and was looking for an excuse to remove him. When E. W. Price, Massenberg's predecessor, became available, it gave Wilson the opportunity he long had sought.

But why nothing else was found for Jimmy is a puzzle to those who know the facts.

Business Men Support Farm Bureau

The Bankers, Tobacco Warehousemen and other business interests of Pitt County, have subscribed and paid in Associate Memberships to the North Carolina Farm Bureau in the present campaign $2,209.00. This is evident that the business people realize what the American and State Farm Bureaus are doing for the farmers and those whose business is dependent upon agriculture.

Pitt County Continues to be the World's Largest Tobacco producing county, and it is encouraging that the business men realize and appreciate the importance of liberal support to the Farm Bureau so that it may maintain a strong organization so as to be effective in its efforts to maintain agricultural legislation that is advantageous to the farmer.

It was not possible for the committee to see everybody, so if you are not either a farm member or associate member, please send in your membership at once. The farmers membership is $3.00. Associate memberships have been running from $10.00 to $250.00.

DON'TS FOR SCHOOLMARMS

- 1 DON'T get excited. Think of your pose—and your little girls too!
- 2 DON'T eat them apples. It ain't ladylike to chomp in front of people.
- 3 DON'T daydream. How you going to beat brains into the darlings if you do?
- 4 DON'T paint up in class. Is a no kind of example to set for growing girls.

How not to behave before the class is demonstrated by Olivia De Havilland, who qualified as an authority by playing a schoolmarm in "Hold Back The Dawn."

cowboys spied Harry Carey sitting in a ringside box. "Hi, Harry, who's the filly with you?" they cried, riding up to shake hands. Harry is an old hand at horse wrangling himself. He knows all the boys. But the "filly"—and she enjoyed the introduction immensely—was Betty Field, the actress, back on Broadway after seven months in the west, during which she made

"King's Row" for Warner Bros. This was something of an about-face for Miss Field. On the stage she has always been cast as "good girls." In pictures, she is always a girl "who falls by the wayside." If she can find a play, she will remain in New York and be a "good girl" all winter. If not, she has to return to Hollywood and "fall by the wayside" again. The first Christmas tree is up in New York. It went up October 21. It's for the British War Relief. John Wengraf, who plays the Nazi commandant in "Candle in the Wind," comes by his accent naturally. He was born in Vienna.

BABY-TENDING JOBS ON WANE

Some NCS Students Still Available, However

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Nov. 8.—Some of State College's 700 self-help students will pick up a little money nursing Raleigh babies but no one had arisen to take the place of Peter Pop, the college's famed tycoon of the baby tending business. Pop, a Brooklyn boy who had the training and temperament as well as the name for the job, was tops in the profession. He could change an infant's nether garment without ever sticking a safety pin in his thumb or losing his place in textile textbook he might be studying. He knew just how warm the nightly bottle should be and he could croon them to sleep with the best Negro mammy. His reputation spread far and wide and business got so good Pop had to train a couple of assistants from whose earnings he took a cut. But now Pop is back in Brooklyn, to the distress of many a mother who likes an occasional night off, and the number of calls for college boy nurses have dropped back to the pre-Pop level. The girls from Shaw University, local college for the colored, get the cream of the business.

N. B. Watts, who runs the self-help bureau at the college, reports that with the exception of nursing assignments there is a greater opportunity for students who want to

Man About Manhattan

New York—I was standing at the bar of a new nightclub just as the show went on. Six very pretty girls came out in a production number, and as they drifted into view a press agent came up and said: "Pretty, aren't they? They're different. They aren't show girls. We didn't raid the musicals. We got them in the country. That blonde girl there is Miss Minnesota. The one next to her is Miss Idaho. They are beauty contest winners, all of them. One of them came East with her chaperon, and the chaperon was so pretty we put her in the show too."

Later, the photographers were taking some pictures, and I stopped to talk with the girl with the coal black hair who had been identified as Miss Nebraska. What seemed odd was that she had a lunch pail with her. She was in the dressing room, seated before a large mirror. The table was a tumult of mascara work their way through college than ever before.

This year the National Youth Administration has allotted the college $23,760, which provides part-time jobs for 176 students. Watts said plenty of odd jobs such as furnace and yard tending, are available this year to students. Several seniors have been placed in offices downtown for part-time work. Many other students secure work on their own initiative, with the college itself employing students in several capacities.

"G'wan," she told me. "I'm from Staten Island." And she was. She brings her supper with her, and her father, a cop, calls for her every night. Some press agents just can't understand why their stuff is heaved into the waste basket as fast as it arrives. At the Rodeo the other night the

(Continued from page one) in which the enrolled Red Cross nurses serve and which will do much to safeguard the health of our people is the Red Cross Home Nursing courses. These classes for women, girls and men, made available through the Red Cross chapters and taught by the nurses, will prepare many thousands not only to protect the health of their families but also to meet emergencies that may occur in the homes or in their immediate neighborhoods.

The Red Cross Nursing Service has still a fourth line in its defense program - a special training course for volunteer nurses' aides. These aides will work without pay, and always in the company of registered and regularly employed nurses, but will never replace graduates. It is expected that a corps of volunteers trained in this way will be of great help in hospitals, clinics, and health organizations whose regular staffs may be diminished by the calling up of nurses for military duty.

The maintenance of this splendid Nursing Service will depend entirely upon the response to the annual Red Cross Roll Call to be held throughout the nation from November 11 to 30. A more generous response than ever before is needed to meet the demands of a rapidly increasing Red Cross service.

The district No. 10 meeting of the P. T. A. was held in Plymouth Saturday, November 1, and was attended by teachers and parents from Pitt county. This same group met in Greenville last year as guests of Pitt county teachers. The meeting for the coming year will be held in Robersonville, N. C.

A large number of teachers attended the Northeastern district teachers association meeting held in Wilson, Saturday November 8. Dr. Hendinberg of the N. C. College at Durham was the principle speaker. Welcome addresses were delivered by the city and county superintendents. Aside from the afternoon session where a good program was presented the morning hours were spent in group discussions, demonstrations and inspection of the many things on display by the teachers of the Wilson city and county schools. Altogether the day was a profitable one for the teachers attending. The hosts served a fine lunch during the intermission.

The Association will meet next year as guests of the Pitt county and Greenville city schools in Greenville.

No Serious Injury In Sunday Wrecks

State Highway patrolmen investigated three week-end traffic accidents in this immediate section, but none of the drivers of occupants received critical injuries.

Soldiers located at Camp Davis were involved in one of the accidents. Patrolman Young reported that William Paul Durante and Maurice Gattlieb, Brooklyn, N. Y., men now at Camp Davis, were slightly injured when their car, being driven by Durante, crashed into the rear of one being operated by Charlie Anderson, colored, of Winterville, Route One. The collision happened on the edge of Winterville.

Henry Smith and Julia Myers, colored of Simpson, sustained injuries when the car in which they were riding with James Robert Wade, colored, formerly of La Grange, but now of Buell Va., turned over after making a turn on a dirt road near Simpson.

The third week-end wreck occurred on the Bethel-Tarboro highway about 10 o'clock last night. Cars driven by Max T. Pollard, Greenville, Route One, and Mrs. Lillian Morris, Greenville, Route Four, were involved in a head-on collision. Patrolman Massengill said the woman apparently was on the wrong side of the road and he preferred charges of careless and reckless driving against her. No one was injured.

VIRGINIA DARE SHIP PROPOSED

Name Suggested For First Wilmington Vessel

Congressman Herbert C. Bonner recently held a conference with Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States Marine Corps, urging him to name the first ship launched at Wilmington, North Carolina, the "Virginia Dare" in honor of the first English speaking white child born in America.

Congressman Bonner has also written the following letter to Admiral Land:

"Naturally, all North Carolina is interested in the construction of merchant ships for National Defense at Wilmington. I desire to suggest that the first ship launched at Wilmington be named the 'Virginia Dare,' honoring the name of the first English child born on American soil. I feel sure that such recognition as this would quicken the imagination of not only North Carolinians, but all Americans.

"Virginia Dare was born in the year 1657 at Fort Raleigh, the site of Sir Walter Raleigh's colony. The history and disappearance of this colony has been portrayed for the past five years in Paul Green's musical drama, 'The Lost Colony,' at the Waterside Theater on Roanoke Island, the site of Fort Raleigh, and has attracted thousands and thousands of visitors from every state in the Union, as well as foreign countries."

"President Roosevelt visited Roanoke Island and spoke of the opening performance of the drama in 1937. He said, 'We don't know the fate of Virginia Dare or the Lost Colony. We do know, however, that the story of America is largely a record of that spirit of adventure.'"

"The ship named 'The Virginia Dare' having been built on the North Carolina coast, would return to England, bringing back home the spirit of those early adventurous colonists, as well as the spirit of America."

Dr. L. R. Meadows Honored At Meet

At the annual meeting of the North Carolina College Conference, held at Greensboro last week, President Leon R. Meadows of East Carolina Teachers College was elected vice-president of the organization. He reports a number of interesting matters up for discussion.

One of the most important steps taken by the conference, he thinks, is the decision made to accept 12 high school units from three-year senior high schools instead of the 15 that have heretofore been required from a four-year high school for college entrance. Though any college may require any type of unit that it sees fit to demand of its applicants for admission, this new arrangement will give a chance for greater variety in choice of subjects in high school.
