FDR ASSERTS AMERICA FACES NEW OBLIGATION

UNIT OF ARMY STANDS READY IN MINE AREA

Intelligence Center Is Established Near Pittsburgh

MOVE EXPLAINED AS PRECAUTIONARY

Speculation Immediately Aroused, However, That Government To Take Over If Strike Called

Washington, Nov. 11. — (AP)—Apparently in preparation for an emergency in the "captive coal mine situation," the Army has established an intelligence center in Pittsburgh to survey the coal fields and keep in touch with miners and operators.

Although the move was explained in Pittsburgh today as purely precautionary, it immediately aroused speculation that the government might be getting ready to take over the captive mines should John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, call a strike.

Lewis withheld comment on his next move following the Defense Mediation Board's action of last night in rejecting the UMW demands for a union shop in the steel company-owned captive mines, which supply coal for steel mill furnaces.

A contingent of several officers and enlisted men was stationed at a Pittsburgh hotel, within an hour's driving distance of the rich southwestern Pennsylvania coal fields where the bulk of the captive mines are located.

Earlier, an associate of Lewis said he understood the Army had been surveying a coal mine in the Pittsburgh area.

Philip Murray, president of the CIO and vice-president of the United Mine Workers, called a press conference for late afternoon.

Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the UMW, conferred with President Roosevelt during the day but told reporters that his discussion was personal.

As members of the Defense Mediation Board, Murray and Kennedy cast the only two votes in favor of the mine workers' demand for a closed shop in the captive mines.

State Methodists Take Note Of War

Durham, Nov. 11. — (AP) — The North Carolina Methodist Conference paused at 11 o'clock today to observe the armistice of the World War, but the shadow of a world again at war lay across its deliberations.

Following the 11 o'clock pause, T. G. Vickers, a U. S. Army chaplain, led the delegates in prayer.

They had just heard former Congressman W. B. Umstead of Durham tell them that "there is a conflict going on in the world which, I think, involves the church."

Dr. H. E. Spence of Duke University, in a memorial service address, said that we need a gospel that shall survive beyond the crush of matter and the wreck of worlds. Can it be possible that God "may be tearing down our foundations of earthly security that we may at last be driven back to Him and heaven?"

At its first general session, the conference adopted the report of a special committee "which recommended minimum salaries for ministers, $1,200 a year for unmarried ones, $1,350 for married ministers without children and $1,500 for married ministers with children.

The woodcock, named "doodle birds" by early settlers, are believed to migrate northward in the fall.

Red Cross Workers

Headquarters for the annual Red Cross Roll Call, to be conducted in Greenville tomorrow, have been established in the offices of the mayor in the Municipal building and all volunteer workers are urged to be present at 9 a. m. sharp.

It is the aim of officials to conduct a campaign throughout the city in an effort to enroll as many members as possible.

Workers will begin canvassing early in the morning and will attempt to "cover" the city during the day. The public is urged to cooperate by enrolling when called upon.

Red Dispatches Report German Forces Trapped In Central Front Area

Report Nazi Soldiers Taken Prisoner In 40-Day-Old Battle On Moscow Front

Champion Husker

By The Associated Press Official Soviet dispatches reported today that large German forces had been trapped near Volokolamsk, 65 miles northwest of Moscow, and that Nazi prisoners captured in the 40-day-old battle on the Central front now appeared exhausted.

In the Crimea, a bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters said German and Rumanian troops were continuing to advance against the great Black Sea naval base of Sevastopol and the port of Kerch, gateway to the Caucasus.

Details of the new gains were not given. Previous reports had placed the Germans about 20 miles from Sevastopol and slightly farther away from Kerch, with the Russians fiercely defending both points.

Beside the big German contingent reported trapped near Volokolamsk—victims of the same encirclement tactics exploited against Red army troops — the Russians said a major Soviet counter attack had been launched in the Serpukhov sector, 65 miles south of Moscow, against German panzer units attempting to break the Central defense line.

Reuters, the British news agency, declared German forces trying to cross the river Oka there had been annihilated.

Violent all-night fighting was also reported in the Tula sector, 100 miles south of the USSR capital, where Soviet troops holding their ground against repeated Nazi tank assaults in the southern suburbs of the town.

British and American circles in Shanghai, however, said that the Churchill speech was well timed amid the growing crisis and would cause many Japanese to reconsider the situation seriously.

German troops driving east of Leningrad were reported threatening to cut off the Arctic as a route of Soviet supplies from the United States and Great Britain today while on the Central front, official Russian dispatches said large Nazi forces had been trapped near Volokolamsk, 65 miles northwest of Moscow.

As pictured by a Berlin military spokesman, German forces advancing in Karelia were imperiling supply lines from both the ice-free Arctic port of Murmansk and the White sea port of Archangel.

Nazi strategists said the German armies were steadily progressing toward their objectives.

Presumably, however, they were hundreds of miles away from Archangel itself, with a long, hard trek over the frigid northland still ahead before they would be in a position to isolate that port.

Official Soviet advices said German troops captured recently in the 40-day-old battle before Moscow showed signs of utter exhaustion.

The Soviet radio reported also that Moscow's Red army defenders had thrown back a renewed attempt by the Germans to batter their way through Russian lines in the Maloyaroslavets sector, 65 miles south-west of the USSR capital.

The radio said in the last three days, Red troops and Soviet warplanes had destroyed 406 German tanks around Maloyaroslavets.

The Germans were reported moving heavy reinforcements to the Volokolamsk sector, apparently in an attempt to rescue Nazi troops encircled there.

Itinerant Station In City Is Moved

The Rocky Mount office of the Social Security Board will change its place of holding its weekly itinerant station in Greenville from the third floor of the Municipal building to the North Carolina State Employment Service office in Dickinson avenue, November 14. The hour during which the station will be held will be the same as before, from 12 noon to 1 p. m.

Marshall H. Barney, manager of the Rocky Mount field office, stated that several people contacted him every Friday with reference to Social Security account numbers, wage records, and claims for old-age and survivors insurance. The weekly station is held for this purpose, to make it easier for people in Greenville and the surrounding territory to get in touch personally with a representative of the Social Security Board.

PACIFIC CRISIS IS EMPHASIZED IN WASHINGTON

Charges Brought By Foes Of Administration

CHURCHILL TALK IS CRITICIZED

Opponents Of Roosevelt Policy Assert British Premier Trying To Prod U. S. Into War With Japan

(By The Associated Press) The delicate situation in the Pacific was emphasized today by comment in Washington as Saburo Kurosu, special Japanese envoy, flew on to continue negotiations with the United States.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) a persistent opponent of administration foreign policy, asserted he had information that President Roosevelt had rejected rapprochement proposals because the Japanese refused to promise not to attack Vladivostok Soviet Far Eastern port on the sea of Japan.

Other administration opponents accused Winston Churchill of seeking to prod the United States into war with Japan, a charge which administration supporters dismissed as ill-founded.

The warning of Prime Minister Churchill yesterday that Britain would declare war on Japan within an hour if the Japanese took up arms against the United States drew attention in Tokyo.

Koh Ishii, Japanese Cabinet Information Board spokesman, discounted the statement. He declared Churchill was "only following the example of (U. S. Navy Secretary) Knox, who said the British would enter within 24 hours, except that he improved it a bit."

In Shanghai, Lieut. Colonel Akiyama, spokesman for the Japanese armies in China, declared Churchill's statement could only be interpreted as a challenge to Japan and said that if the latest Washington-Tokyo negotiations failed, Japan was prepared for the worst.

British and American circles in Shanghai, however, said that the Churchill speech was well timed amid the growing crisis and would cause many Japanese to reconsider the situation seriously.

Huggins Retained For Baptist Post

Ashville, Nov. 11. — (AP) — M. A. Huggins was reelected general secretary-treasurer of the Baptist State Convention for the 10th consecutive year today as the convention's 111th session got under way here.

Also reelected were C. B. Deane of Rockingham, recording secretary, and L. L. Moran of Raleigh, statistical secretary.

Dr. William Harrison Williams, Charlotte minister, presided at the convention to order in the First church this morning with the solemn declaration that "the duties of any body of convening Christians in a time like this are inescapable and momentous. We attempt to reach the core of present-day problems and gain spiritual power to carry on Christian work."

Dr. Forrest C. Fessor, pastor of the Tabernacle church of Raleigh, preached the convention sermon at noon. He declared that "dictators and rulers of today's world are overlooking the inevitable presence of God. All opposition made by military forces in Christ's time to the church was impotent in comparison to the power of Christ. It can be so today."

W. H. Moore of Wadesboro was appointed chairman of the 1942 Committee on Committees, head group of the convention. Others appointed were: C. C. Greene of Pineville, B. A. Bowers of Gastonia, O. R. World War Navy Secretary Says Nation To Preserve Its Freedom

Armistice Day Guest Here

Josephus Daniels Declares It Is Not The Fault Of The Men Who Went To France In Last World War That Nation Faces Present Emergency; Recalls Many Late Pitt County Men

Josephus Daniels, Raleigh publisher and World War Secretary of the Navy, in an Armistice Day celebration address today, after paying tribute to many native Pitt county citizens, reviewed the first World war and declared that "it was not the fault of the more than two million men who went to France and the two million more in training at home that it is necessary in this emergency to build in haste, at heavy cost, what you advocated and which should have been provided in the years since the Armistice."

Mr. Daniels' address was the climax of what is generally regarded as one of the most successful Armistice Day celebrations ever held here. The Greenville and Farmville posts united efforts for the observance.

The day's program got under way with a parade which started at the Army, proceeded down Evans street to Five Points and thence on Fifth street to the college, where the program was held in the Wright Memorial auditorium. The parade was headed by the honored guest riding in an open car, and he acknowledged the cheers that greeted him along the route. When asked this morning if he thought the weather too cold for him to ride in the parade in an open car, Mr. Daniels replied that he was here to take part in the celebration and that he wanted to "see it through."

Participating in the parade, in the order named, were the official car bearing Mr. Daniels, following immediately behind the United States and Legion flags, the college band, ex-service men, Boy Scouts, two girls representing the Red Cross, Girl Scouts, the Greenville High School band, the local unit of the State Guard, colored Legionnaires, a colored band, colored Scouts, both boys and girls, and colored students.

Immediately upon arrival at the college, the formal program got under way with a minute's silence in weather too prayer for soldiers who died in service.

The program was presided over by John Hill Paylor of the Farmville Post No. 151. Divine guidance was invoked by Dr. Robert S. Boyd, after which the preamble to the Legion constitution was recited. Both the Greenville High School and College choruses rendered musical selections.

The speaker was presented by D. J. Whitchard, Jr., commander of Pitt County Post No. 39.

Following the address by Mr. Daniels, Gold Star Mothers were recognized and the reports of membership chairmen for the two posts were made. The day's program was concluded with a barbecue dinner at the Army, having been transferred from the college picnic grounds on account of the cold weather.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Daniels spoke to Pitt county folks of Pitt county folks. He reviewed how the world had changed, especially in transportation. He recalled that when the Polish of South Carolina, first minister to Mexico, made the trip to his official post it took him two months, whereas the trip now is made in 14 hours. Mr. Daniels only recently resigned the post as Ambassador to Mexico because of ill health of his wife and has just returned from Mexico City yesterday after having gone there to say goodbye to friends and associates.

The speaker recalled that when he first came to Greenville back in 1882—he and his mother were accompanying the body of his grandmother to Washington—he left Wilson at 9 a. m. one morning and got to Washington the next morning at 6 o'clock, traveling all night. He remembered, however, that he did take time out for supper in Greenville as guests of the late parents of Col. E. G. Flanagan.

Another incident of many years ago involving Greenville citizens was related by the speaker. He said that when he was a "struggling young newspaper man in Wilson he first plunged into politics as a candidate for the office of state printer. He recalled that he was supported by Senator Willis and Rep. Williams of Pitt and also by "Uncle Mark" Cherry of Bethel and the late M. O. Blount of Bethel, father of M. K. and J. H. Blount of (Continued on Page Six)

HON. JOSEPHUS DANIELS

Men of First U.S. Army Hear Address By Drum

Told That Superior Force Alone Can Save Nation

Camden, S. C., Nov. 11 (AP) — Soldiers of the first army, successor to the great fighting machine in the Meuse-Argonne when the Armistice was signed 23 years ago, were told by their commander today that "force and superior force only will save us in this crisis."

Thousands of veterans of the World war were among the 200,000 men gathered in chilled woods camps to hear the broadcast address of Lieut. General Hugh A. Drum. As chief of staff of the first army in France in 1918, he issued the order that ended hostilities.

"For 20 years peace-loving nations tried to maintain order and preserve liberty," he said in his address. "Today we are on three continents and there is no peace in a world of conflict. Nearly all of us agree that the days ahead hold little immediate promise of improvement."

General Drum spoke briefly to a small group of officers in Camden, but his remarks were addressed to all his army bivouacked over the Carolinas for a two-weeks campaign of simulated war testing the efficiency of the 1941 training program.

Civic Club Hears Boy Scout Leader

Jim Gaskins, Boy Scout executive for Eastern Carolina, spoke before the Greenville Rotary club last night on "The Value and Activities of Scouts in America."

"There are 7,000 boys in North Carolina who become 12 years of age each year," Mr. Gaskins said. Seven hundred boys in Pitt county become scout age annually and most of them wish to be scouts, he pointed out.

The value of supervision, training and guidance, which scouting gives young people, helps them to be better men and women of tomorrow as was illustrated by the scout official. He gave examples illustrating that the small financial investment in scout activities is many times repaid in the lives of boy and girl scouts. The history of scouting for the past 31 years indicates continued progress and success in this great and worthwhile program, he concluded.

John Fleming, chairman of the Boys' Work Committee, had charge of the program. He introduced Edward Vick, Junior Rotarian from the Greenville High School.

Visiting Rotarians were G. P. Harris, Bethel; J. Paul Jones, Farmville; Ben Mayo, Tarboro; Larry Davis and Anson Sawyer, Ayden; Al Hodges, Wilson.

Wyatt Brown was appointed to represent the club on the Red Cross program.

A cordial welcome was given Rotarian Jim Hawes who has returned from the U. S. Army.

Says Nation To Preserve Its Freedom

Chief Executive, In Armistice Day Address, Declares American People Will Fight Eternally To Hold Their Liberty; Says Nation Has Duty To Men Who Died In Last World War

Washington, Nov. 11. — (AP)—President Roosevelt said in an Armistice Day address today that we have a duty to ourselves and to those who died to gain our freedom "to make the world a place where freedom can live and grow into the ages."

The American people believe liberty is worth fighting for, he added, "and if they are obliged to fight they will fight eternally to hold it."

The chief executive spoke from the circular marble amphitheatre in Arlington National cemetery at services conducted by the American Legion. A few moments before he had stood solemnly at attention while an aide placed a wreath against the tomb of the unknown soldier of the last World war.

This year's observance of Armistice Day, Mr. Roosevelt declared, has a particular significance because in the past we were not always able to measure our indebtedness to those who gave their lives in the first World war.

If the armies of 1917 and 1918 had lost, not a man or woman in America would have wondered why the war was fought, the President said.

"We would have known why liberty is worth defending," the President explained, "as those alone whose liberty is lost can know it. We would have known why tyranny is worth defeating, as only those whom pirates rule can know."

Those who gave up their lives in 1917 and 1918 literally did so to make the world safe for democracy, to make it habitable, the President said, "for decent and self-respecting men."

"They died to prevent then," he asserted, "the very thing that now, a quarter century later, has happened from one end of Europe to the other. Now that it has happened we know in full they reason why they died."

"We know also what obligation and duty their sacrifice imposes upon us. They did not die to make the world safe for decency and self-respect for five years or 10 or maybe 20. They died to make it safe."

"And if, by some fault of ours, who live beyond the war, its safety has again been threatened, then the obligation and the duty are ours."

Lions' Talk Made By Martin Swartz

Members of the cast of the play "Why I Am A Bachelor" were special guests at the regular weekly meeting of the Greenville Lions club last night, at which time an interesting and instructive program was presented.

Martin Swartz, superintendent of the Greenville Utilities Commission, was the principal speaker on the program. The utilities head spoke on the subject of safety, a topic which he has thoroughly studied and one on which he is regarded as one of the best informed individuals in this section of the state. In addition to addressing the club members and guests, Mr. Swartz showed a moving picture on safety.

Miss Emily Johnson, student at East Carolina Teachers College, assumed her duties as club pianist at last night's meeting.

Return From Wedding Trip. Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Lennon returned Saturday night from their wedding trip to Western North Carolina and other points, and were the week-end guests of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Harris.

Mrs. Lennon, the former Miss Geraldine Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Chester Harris of this city, was married to Mr. Joseph Staniel Lennon, son of the Rev. and Mrs. R. S. Lennon of Delco, N. C., on Saturday, November 1, at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

The young couple, who were unattended, entered the church together and stood before the altar where the bride was baptized as a baby. Here, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the vows were spoken in an impressive private ceremony. Dr. Thomas M. Grant, pastor of the church, officiated, using the beautiful ring ritual of the Methodist Church.

The bride, who is a blonde, wore a becoming two-piece wedding costume of antique brown crepe, made with high neck and bracelet length sleeves, and featuring ice blue sequin trimming. With this she wore a hat of ice blue felt, which was an exquisite velvet creation by Miriam Lewis. Her kid gloves were in a matching shade of blue. At her shoulder she wore a corsage of Sweetheart roses and delphinium, tied with gold ribbons.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to unannounced points. For traveling, the bride wore a fitted coat of beige wool with brown squirrel collar, which rippled softly about the throat. Her youth-

Mrs. Lennon is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Harris. She was born in Elizabeth City, but has lived in Greenville since her babyhood. She was educated here in the city schools, having been an honor student throughout her school career, and is a graduate of East Carolina Teachers College. Up to the time of her marriage she held the position as teacher of English and French in the Chicod High School.

Mr. Lennon is the eldest son of Rev. and Mrs. R. S. Lennon of Delco N. C. He received his preliminary education in the schools of Columbus county and at Phifer Junior College. A graduate of Wake Forest College, Mr. Lennon taught, also for two successive years in the Chicod High School, but resigned this position several months ago to become connected with the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, in doing important defense work. This connection, however, was automatically severed three hours before the wedding ceremony took place, when Mr. Lennon unexpectedly received his orders to report at Whitehouse on Monday, November 10 to begin at once his training at Fort Bragg for army service. Thus, the young couple, who had planned to reside in Whitehouse, are separated.

Mrs. Lennon, at the present time is making her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Harris, on West Third street.

MODES of the MOMENT

SKI SPECIAL: When you catch the ski train you may wear your favorite shirt with tweeds. You can don ski trousers in a rush and the same shirt will be smart against the snow, especially if it's a spun rayon and wool gabardine like the one shown here. White is high style against the snow, and is equally appropriate with the city suit.

Spiced cider, cranberry or tomato juice or fruitade make a grand "hot toddy" to serve after the game. Have the beverage already and heat up needed. Serve it in the old-fashioned mugs, if you have any, but tall glasses will do. Pass some freshly heated cheese crackers or salted wafers. And pretzels go well with the beverage.

"Ghost: Did You Hope to Succeed Where I Failed?"

Is it Love? by MARGARETTA BRUCKER

Chapter 25 Dismissed Riv called a short time later and said that he must see her. "I'll be right over," he announced. Sue Ellen could tell nothing from his voice, but when he came she saw that Riv would not be easily convinced that she had changed in her affection for him. At first she was amused and then angry, as he strode into the room and came toward her with no other idea than to take her into his arms. "What's all this damned nonsense mean?" he demanded angrily. "Why should you rush off and marry that soldier just because we had a misunderstanding? It's the most ridiculous thing I ever heard of. I won't stand it. As soon as I can get a separation from Deedora..." Sue stopped him. "This is no nonsense," she told him firmly. "I'm married. I was perfectly willing to be married, and was not kidnaped, you seem to imply. I know what I am doing..." He interrupted hotly: "You're a child in experience, Susie. The man took advantage of you when you were angry with me and furious with my father..." Sue Ellen said: "I can't understand either your present eagerness or your father's. A week ago you were all excuses and your father was doing everything in his power to break up our coming marriage by evasions and postponements. You never once told me the truth. If you had come to me last summer and said that you were married, instead of humiliating me by delaying and lying..." "Susie..." He came and sat beside her on the couch and took her hand. She withdrew the hand. She guessed that he believed his touch would make her weaken--fill her with regret or what he considered a rash and spiteful gesture. "I don't love you, Riv," she said candidly. "I might have thought I loved you, even though you were married to Deedora, and desperately enough to be willing to wait and wait until all this foolish marriage with Deedora was dissolved, but I don't love you and I never did. I have an affection for you based on our childish associations together, and something else. The desire to find a Prince Charming who would measure up to the romantic figure I pictured as my future husband. He had to be tall and dark and handsome, and a southerner, of course..." "It's Pride!" "You told me you loved me," said Riv bitterly. "Now you throw me over just because I couldn't greet you with open arms when you came to Washington unannounced. If you had never come, things would have been different..." "How?" "He stared sulkily at the opposite wall for a moment. "It's your pride that's hurt," said Sue Ellen. "You never loved me enough to want to marry me, Riv, and I've decided something else. That whatever you say to the contrary, you do care for Deedora Waller..." He jumped to his feet. "Care for her--I hate her!" Sue Ellen shook her head. "She's your wife. You're just as much married to her as I am married to Johnny Harris..." "And a couple of fools we both are..." "Why?" "Because that Harris is gone on Deedora and only married you when he found out he couldn't have her. Why do you think he was determined to rush into marriage? He could love you, Sue? He didn't know you. He caught her hand and held it tight. "Why discuss all this, Riv? The time to have said this was weeks ago. Can't you see?" She turned and her eyes were deep and earnest. "You couldn't have loved me and treated me so shabbily. That isn't part of love..." "What do you know about love?" "I'm beginning to learn what isn't love," she said simply. "We could talk all morning and not alter the fact that you are married and I am married and nothing can change that..." Riv grinned. "What an old-fashioned simper you are, Sue. The law can change all that in the twinkling of an eye and make us both single..." "And what of the announcement Aunt Car put in the Memphis paper before I left, saying that I planned to be married in Washington?" "You planned to marry me--you can't deny that..." "In the notice, nothing was said about marrying you," said Sue Ellen coolly. "I'll say I went to Washington to meet Johnny Harris and marry him. That will be my story and I'll stick to it..." "You won't find it easy to humiliate a Moore, by telling that you threw me over..." Riv's face was red, his black eyes flashing. "I have my pride..." "And I have mine. Probably we had better not meet again, Riv..." Riv swept up his hat and turned to leave the room. At the door he paused to fling over his shoulder. "We shall meet again, and often. For I intend to stay right here in Tyler Springs until you come to your senses, Sue Ellen Fairhope..." "My name is Harris," Sue Ellen faced him, with eyes as bright as his own. "My name is Susan Eleanor Fairhope Harris, and I like the name and intend to keep it..." Call From Ginny Sue Ellen came back on Tuesday evening. On Thursday the weather changed. The evening of her arrival had been a clear cold night, with a star-studded sky and a round brilliant moon. On Thursday morning a steady driving rain pounded against the windows and when Sue Ellen opened her eyes sleepily, a curtain of rain seemed to shut her in and shut out the petty gossip of Tyler Springs. For there had been gossip, plenty of it. She had not left Magnolia House to go down into the village since her return, but the telephone rang constantly. Some had heard of Riv's return without her, others already knew that she had married a Yankee, a number had caught a rumor that there was something more than sudden infatuation for a good-looking soldier back of her marriage. Moreover, where was her husband? This morning she thought of all this. Sometimes the questions had been amusing, often almost impudent. Her friends and acquaintances were interested not only in her present but in her future. The future. This morning she closed her eyes and could visualize the past, right up until the moment Johnny kissed her goodbye on the station platform--but the future? When you were young, it held so much. It was tantalizing, mysterious. Measured by meetings, she had married a man she scarcely knew, and yet this tall, grey-eyed young man knew her better than Riv who had known her all her life. That thought led to Deedora who had changed her life so radically, for it was Deedora who had upset all her plans. It was Deedora to whom she owed her happiness. For she knew happiness as she had never known it while she was engaged to Riv. Always there had been an element of uncertainty in her relation with Riv. Well--why think of Riv--Deedora? Two more days and Johnny would be in Tyler Springs. He had called every day and every day she waited breathlessly for his first "Hello..." She tumbled out of bed as the telephone rang now, but it was only Ginny. Aunt Car told her. "She's coming over right away..." Sue Ellen dressed, slipping into the trousseau planned for her December wedding, soft shimmering green silk. She tied a ribbon about her curls and slid into edge-soled slippers. She frowned at her reflection in the mirror. She looked like a little girl. She would buy glamorous clothes when she went on a honeymoon with Johnny. When would that be, she wondered? Ginny came into the house just as she descended the stairs. A Ginny, bright-eyed, bubbling over with news which she withheld until they were alone in the library. "Guess what I have to tell you?" Sue Ellen's thoughts jumped to the news Johnny had told her about Deedora, but how could Ginny know that? Ginny fairly glowed with excitement. "The news is about me. You are not news any longer, Sue Ellen. Everyone has discussed you until the topic is threadbare, but just wait until you hear this..." "You've trapped the major?" Sue Ellen smiled. "That stuffed shirt? Nothing of the kind. Guess again..." "You haven't taken up with Riv?" "Sue Ellen--what an insane idea. It's Toby. He's enlisted and we're going to get married tomorrow..." She finished with a little squeal of excitement and bounced up and down on the sofa beside Sue Ellen. "Married--to Toby Tyler. What does your mother say?" "She doesn't know it. That's why I'm telling you. I want you to go over tomorrow afternoon and break the news to her. Wait until she's had her nap. If she acts like she's going to faint, the aromatic spirits of ammonia in the medicine cabinet, left side..." "Ginny--don't you care what she thinks?" "She'll get over it. She always does. She'll have all the fruit and dainties she can eat when I'm married to Toby. Just think, I'll never have to use oleomargarine again instead of butter. We can have fried chicken three times a week..." Ginny's dark eyes became soulful. "Ginny--you're not marrying Toby for that?" To Be Continued

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

GOOD ARTICLES SELL THEMSELVES

Recently a man passed away who had built up a large fortune on the principle that if he could manufacture a good-enough article, he could depend upon the users of that article to sell it for him. He sent salesmen out into certain districts and tried to get them to sell the device he manufactured in the homes of people influential in different social circles. Then after these people had used the device for a short time, the salesmen would start around among the friends of the purchasers and would invariably find that the way had been prepared for them. Some salesmen declared that practically all they had to do was to deliver the articles to people eager to purchase them, after they had been sold to key families.

The principle is a good one, provided one has a good article to sell. Make your article so good that purchasers will consider it a privilege to tell their friends about it and so become your agents. Put your confidence in the intrinsic value of what you have. It may not be much, but it has any utility at all, it will find little or no promotion. Incidentally the Christian Church grew by just such a process. People who believed they had the best thing in the world told others about it, and a handful of disciples became a mighty church. ### ARMISTICE DAY

Twenty-three years ago today the Armistice ending the first World war was signed, and in view of the present world conflict there are those who will declare that the sacrifices of those who gave their lives to make the world a better place in which to live were made in vain. It is true that that conflict did not bring an end to wars and did not accomplish its full purpose but it did point the way for final settlement of the present world conflict that will bring about the results hoped for in the first World war. Every American life that has ever been offered on the battlefield has had its part in the shaping of American and world history and while the goal of world freedom has not yet been accomplished, the sacrifices were none the less sacred and justifiable for in the end right will prevail and then will come the realization of the full reward for the sacrifices of generations past. And so today, as we celebrate another Armistice Day we pay tribute to our fallen comrades and renew our pledge to carry on until those ideals for which they gave their very all have been accomplished and the world in fact is a better place in which to live.

LABOR HAS ITS RESPONSIBILITY

The basic creed of American labor—an equitable share in the wealth produced and the right to be heard in the councils of industry—has become well established in this country. During the past decade great strides were made in extending these principles in American industry—by emphasizing the human element, collective bargaining, by the employe's own choice of his representatives. Fair labor standards, employment fairly a portion employment among all members, and the outlawing of force, intimidation or misrepresentation. He also suggests that all labor unions be required to file with the National Labor Relations Board, at least annually, the following data: place of business, names and addresses of officers with their terms of office and pay.... the union's initiation fees, scale of dues, fines, assessments and annual financial statements; copies of union constitutions and by-laws, with other information necessary to insure an honest and decent relationship between its own membership, the press, the employer, the general public and the Government.

Growing out of these achievements of organized labor, marked by great power and influence in American political life, are also labor's increased responsibility to industry, to society, and to its individual members. To industry and society, it has the responsibility at all times, and more particularly during a national emergency to guard against unwarranted strikes. To an individual worker, organized labor has the responsibility of protecting him against racketeering and other abuses arising from irresponsible leadership.

There is no question that labor union initiation fees, dues, fines, assessments and other sources of income reach an enormous total each year. It is estimated that from two-thirds to three-fourths of it is never audited. Naturally it is an enticing field for racketeers. The set-up of many labor unions is such that officials are neither responsible to the Government nor the membership for an unbiased accounting from an outside source of most of the union funds.

One solution to the problem is contained in an article by Robert S. Binkerd in the October, 1941, issue of the Atlantic Monthly. After going over a long list of alleged abuses by irresponsible labor leaders, he suggests that a number of legal remedies be set up by Congress and the various state legislatures. He urges government control of annual union elections and by-laws: the protection of members in elections by secret ballots and laws making it a felony to stuff a ballot box at a strike vote or union election; that all union statements be verified under oath, with punishment for willful misrepresentation, and that they be subject to an outside, independent audit; provisions making union officials fairly a portion employment among all members, and the outlawing of force, intimidation or misrepresentation.

responsible for its activity and as accountable for irresponsible management as corporations and political parties.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington.—It hasn't been made public yet but the Department of Justice has been asked to investigate an epidemic of the most amazing little reports to come out of ocean flying. There have been about ten cases recently in which radio operators of the flying clippers report they have been denied bearings or any information as to their whereabouts by American ships at sea—and all of these completely outside the war zones. Here is the general pattern which all of the complaints have taken: "Flying out of an overcast in the Pacific (or elsewhere), we sighted the S. S. Blank, flying the American flag and immediately contacted the ship by radio, asking for bearings, weather reports and any other information the ship might have which would aid us in making our destination. "The ship's radio operator, instead of supplying the information, asked what union we belonged to. We replied that we did not belong to any union. "The ship's operator then replied: 'Sorry we can't help you.' Any further efforts to raise the ship's radio were unavailing." One or two such reports by trans-ocean fliers probably would have received no attention at the Department of Justice but the number has caused some concern and it is known now that the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been asked to check on the reports. what action would be taken if these reports are found to be true has not been determined.

However, one government official who has heard of the reports expressed the opinion they might have direct bearing on a little known bill which already has passed the House of Representatives and now is being studied for report to the Senate by the Senate commerce committee.

The bill, sponsored in the House by Rep. Schuyler Otis Bland, of Virginia, chairman of the House merchant marine and fisheries committee, provides that the Federal Communications Commission shall suspend the license of any ship's radio operator when the commission, after investigation, has found there is "reasonable probability that such operator is a subversive individual."

The term "subversive individual," as defined by the bill, is very broad and while directed primarily at operators who are members of, or sympathetic with, organizations which advocate the overthrow or undermining of our form of government, it also specifically points the finger at any persons who participate in any "combination or conspiracy to resist the lawful authority of the United States." In making its report on the bill to the House, Bland's committee said: "It must not be considered that a large number of radio operators are subversive individuals or disloyal. The reverse is the case but disloyal radio operators strategically placed may do great damage and it is against a menace of this character that the proposed bill is designed to guard. Testimony deposed before your committee shows that at most there would be no more than 200 out of something like 2,000. In fact it appeared from some testimony before your committee that the numbers might not be more than 150, and as to some of them they may be identified for the purposes of the law with fairly reasonable dispatch.

Although no one would comment publicly on the reports being investigated until results of that investigation are aired, it was said, of the record, by several in government circles that the ships' radio operators have had difficulties undoubtedly could be found among these 150 or 200 identified in testimony before Bland's committee as troublemakers, and "subversive or disloyal."

Around... Capital Square

Uncollected
For more than 12 years there has appeared on the records of the State Highway Commission on unpaid account of around $3,900 owed the state for building private roads around the swank resort of Roaring Gap. At best those whose job is and has been to protect the highway funds have found the matter "embarrassing."

The paving was ordered by Alex Hanes of the Winston-Salem clan while he was acting chairman, following the resignation of Frank Page. He had the commission make the charge against one Robert Smo had something to do with the private road. It was understood by the department that Smith was to collect the money from the far-from-poor people who benefited by the road and reimburse the state. But whatever the arrangement, the fact remains that the bill has never been paid.

Several years ago the authorities became quite emphatic in their remarks, told Hanes that he was being held personally responsible. After that it was their understanding that he would collect from those favored by his order and wipe out the peculiar account. Still nothing happened.

In the meantime, part, if not all of the road has become a part of the state system. But the records still show the debt under the heading of "accounts receivable"—but so far uncollectable.

'The Old Man'
There are a lot of grins around the office of the News and Observer this week. Probably the widest one adorns the countenance of Jim Hayes, veteran linotype operator who has just re-assumed a position of special importance in the composing room. It's all because "the old man," as every on the N. and O. calls Joseph Daniels, is back in town and Jim is about the only printer left who can read the voluminous copy the former Ambassador to Mexico turns out with a two-inch stub pencil.

Retiring? Huh!
The understanding hereabouts is that Son Jonathan will continue as editor of the Daniels paper and Sons Joseph and Frank will run the business end. But no one who knows "the old man" believes that he is going to retire to his fireside. The consensus is that the ex-Ambassador will start off writing an occasional piece, probably praising some of his favorite people and things such as the President and black-eyed peas. Then one day something will get under his hide and the stub pencil will start smoking again.

Death Cases
When you see a light burning in the executive mansion study late some Sunday night, there is a good chance that Gov. Broughton is studying a capital case preparatory to deciding whether some man will live or die.

Different Governors have had different practices about death cases. Broughton usually has Parole Commissioner Edwin Gill come up to the mansion Sunday night when there is little likelihood that they will be disturbed. Incidentally Broughton's approach to this most burdensome of gubernatorial duties is more like that of Hoey than of Ehringhaus. After the former had completed his study of the case and made his decision, he could put the problem away in some pigeon hole of his mind. Gov. Ehringhaus sometimes worried over them day after day, night after night.

Holland
One case, however, seemed to have stuck in the Governor's mind. It was the case of Sheprose Holland, convicted murderer whose life the Governor recently saved. Several days later the Governor decided he wanted to talk to Governor Spessard Holland of Florida. He put in the long distance call for Sheprose.

Female Touch
All wrapped up in paper and hidden away in the basement of the Unemployment Compensation building is a piece of furniture which once caused considerable comment. It is the couch, or day-bed that used to be in the office occupied by Mrs. J. B. Spilman, erstwhile U. C. commissioner. The office is now occupied by Dr. W. R. Curtis, the No. 2 man in the re-organized department. But he hasn't got entirely rid of the female touch. The specially made blue draperies with which the state decorated Mrs. Spilman's windows are still there even though they have collected a mummyish coat of dust.

Remember 1935 Is Slogan At Carolina All This Week

DEVILS UPSET UNC THAT YEAR

Tar Heels Were All Set To Get Rose Bowl Bid

Chapel Hill, Nov. 11.—If the Carolina football players need a slogan to get them steamed up for the Duke game this week, a good one ought to be "Remember 1935." Those simple words should carry a world of meaning for Carolina players, students, alumni, and other supporters.

Upsets in the Carolina-Duke series have occurred rather often in recent years. '35 was true, but that 1935 upset was so decisive and stunning that it must remain in a class by itself.

That was the year Carolina came up to the Duke game unbent and needed only that game to clinch a Rose Bowl bid. In fairness, it should be stated that the University Administration then, as now, was not in a receptive mood so far as bowl invitations go, but there was every evidence that the invitation would have come anyway.

The Tar Heels that year were favored to take Duke by two or three touchdowns at least. The Blue Devils had lost to Auburn and Georgia Tech by touchdown margins.

Carolina, on the other hand, had routed Tennessee 38-13, blanked Georgia Tech 19-0, smothered V. M. I. 56-0, and had come up to the Duke game with seven consecutive victories and 209 points as compared to 19 for its opponents.

How on earth could anybody beat such a team as that? That's what almost everybody was saying. Even Coach Wallace Wade and his staff were praising the Tar Heels to the skies and referring to them as the greatest team they had seen in many, many years.

But the Tar Heels partisans that year overlooked one very important factor. After they lost to Georgia Tech, which was early in October, the Dukes set their minds and hearts on just one game, even though that game was more than a month away. They began preparing early and they never let up. It was a cold, bleak, drizzly day on November 14 when a record crowd (up to then) of 47,000 crowded into the Duke stadium to witness what fully 98 per cent of the fans expected to be a decisive Tar Heel victory.

Duke surprisingly got the jump, and Ace Parker punted to the 8 as the quarter ended. "Give 'em time," chanted Tar Heel fans, still unworried. And sure enough, Don Jackson broke loose on the next play for a 51-yard run.

Carolina drove to the Duke 9, but passes failed, and Babe Daniels' attempted field goal was low. A few minutes later, Jule Ward got away for 47 yards, and miracle of miracles, Duke held a 6-0 lead at the half.

Carolina fans were surprised but still not alarmed. "I'll bet Carl Snavely tells 'em plenty," they said. "Wait 'till nex' half and they open up!"

They did, but the passes backfired. Little Jack Hennemier intercepted one on the 7, and Jack Alexander drove it across. Jackson and Hump Snyder pushed to the 22 and again to the 15. Time was getting short, and the Tar Heels took to the air. But Alexander and Ward ran a couple back from 95 and 32 yards, and the game ended 25-0.

The fans couldn't move from their seats for several minutes—so stunned were they, but the underdog got a slogan for many years to come!

Easy Victory Won By Score Of 38-14

By CHARLES BROWN
The Training School Flashes swamped the West Greenville Lions by score of 38 to 14 to open the passball league of the WPA-City program.

Victory came as the result of the passing combination of speedy Howard Proctor and Jimmy Cox, throwing baffling passes and completing them with bullet-like speed, assisted by Paul Conway, Ben Robinson, Jimmy Brady, and Bennie Eubanks. West Greenville Lions, short of reserves and replacements, were paced by speedy Beegie Whitehurst, Leslie Scurry, and Jimmy Hurst.

Results: Ball missed by Flashes 6, by Lions 10; points lost by penalties Flashes 3, by Lions 2; final score, Flashes 38, Lions 14. Umpire and referee, Brown.

Wednesday, Third Street Blue Devils meet Training School Wolfpack at Training School.

Thursday, passball game at West Greenville between Training School Flashes and West Greenville Lions at 4 p. m.

Skating Contests
There are hundreds of children that endanger their lives, skating in the streets and on sidewalks.

Charles Brown, recreation leader, sponsored by the WPA-City Recreation Department, has plans on the way for a series of skating contests with different stunts taking the spotlight.

Ribbon awards will be made to the winners in this city wide contest.

This program has been requested by a number of people.

Announcements of the meeting place and time will be known in a day or two.

All children with skates are warned not to skate in the street or on private property.

Meet Michigan's Mr. Kuzma

Here's the Kuzma grin. Tom is the Gary, Ind., boy who looks like a capable successor to the great Tom Harmon.

Much of Kuzma's long-term value depends on durability. Trainers keep careful check.

Kuzma is a terrific power runner, not so shifty as Harmon, nor quite so speedy.

Tom waits table at the fraternity to help pay his way.

Peggy Cannon, a Kappa from Ann Arbor, and Tom practice chopsticks.

Kuzma is no whiz on the books, but to get eligible he averaged a 'B' last summer.

By WILLIAM WEATHERSBY

Ann Arbor, Mich. — Tom Kuzma made up his mind to come to the University of Michigan when a boy across town from him in Gary, Ind., made a football name for himself with the Wolverines.

Nobody — except maybe relatives and home town cronies — ever expected Kuzma to touch the amazing gridiron record of that other Gary lad, Tom Harmon.

But Gary's Tom No. II fooled them. The Harmon-less Michigan football team might have been choice pickings for several 1941 opponents if Coach Fritz Crisler had not come up with this sophomore to fill Harmon's old tailback position. By mid-season, this 19-year-old griddler had surpassed Harmon's sophomore record in scoring, had neared his first-year passing mark and had become one of the Western Conference's greatest kickers.

Midway through Michigan's eight-game schedule, Kuzma had scored five touchdowns, passed for two more and made his bid as the great Wolverine kicker since Harry Kipke got his diploma in 1924. Crisler has described Kuzma's kicking, such as his 53-yard boot out of bounds four yards short of the goal against Northwestern, as "miraculous."

Harmon as a sophomore crashed over the goal line three times. He didn't start punting until his junior year. He heaved three touchdown passes.

Kuzma, a 200-pounder, has a five-pound advantage over Harmon. Each of the Gary boys stands six feet, one inch.

The Michigan coach, always reluctant to praise a sophomore, says that "Kuzma is a good boy to have around."

Crisler will tell you Kuzma can match Harmon in power driving and punting, but that he'll never equal Harmon's speed and shifty broken field running.

"Kuzma doesn't pass as well as Harmon did as a sophomore," says Crisler. But Kuzma is improving. He got off to a bad start in this department of the game but redeemed himself in the critical Northwestern battle by tossing 10 and 20 yards for both of Michigan's touchdowns.

Kuzma had to go to summer school after his freshman year to bring his grades up to Western conference eligibility standards, but he buckled down and got a "B" average for the summer term which coaches moaned that his chances were less than one to five.

Phi Gamma Delta welcomed the outstanding griddler as a freshman found him "a great social mixer." He waits on tables at the fraternity house to help meet school expenses.

In a geology class last spring, Tom met Peggy Cannon, an attractive local brunette. Since then they've been studying the stars together as often as they get a chance. She's a sophomore, Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Tom really dances well.

Aside from studying and squiring Miss Cannon about the campus, Kuzma says, "football is my whole life right now." He plans to study business administration and wants to be a salesman.

"A name in football might help me sell when I get out of school, ### don't you think?" Kuzma asks with a chuckle.

The boy from Gary has had some trouble gaining his position as a sophomore football sensation. The trouble started when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael M. Kuzma, forbade him to play football. He talked them out of that. Now they are ardent fans.

"I was the clumsiest ox on our team at Emerson High school at Gary," Tom admits. "The coach said once I never had a chance to make the team."

Tom's determination helped alter that. He went to the practice field early, spent his summers kicking and throwing a football. When Harmon returned to Gary in the summers for lifeguard duty in the city parks, Kuzma, who had a job cutting the park grass, began exchanging punts with him. Next summer, Kuzma is going to be a lifeguard.

Michigan's newest gridiron star didn't begin to shine brighter than the other sophomore candidates until an intra-squad game after spring training last year. He has held the leading role ever since.

He's a versatile athlete. In high school he excelled in basketball, the hurdles and pole vault and earned a letter in swimming. He is enthusiastic about baseball, but Emerson High didn't have a team. Kuzma plans to go out for basketball.

"If I can just make the grade in football, though," the season's sensation says, "that's all I really care about in athletics."

Witness Held In Browning Slaying

Bel Air, Maryland, Nov. 11. (AP)—Defense counsel and state officials questioned today a man whom they described as a material witness in the case of three young Virginians held in the fatal shooting of Grainger G. Browning.

The man was brought here by police from Mercer, Pa., by airplane late yesterday, too late to appear before the Hartford county grand jury, which was investigating the shooting.

The grand jury ended its session yesterday without announcing any action.

The body of Browning, 40-year-old carpenter, was found in the woods near Conowingo last month. Herbert E. Cox, Jr., 16, Ida May Price, 15, and Leona Ellen Cunningham, 14, were brought here from Portland, Me., accused by police of the slaying.

Browning, police said, had given the three youngsters a ride from a trailer camp near Alexandria, Va. Police said the man held as a material witness had moved from the trailer camp shortly after Browning's body was found and that he was believed to have introduced the trio to Browning.

FARMERS TOLD REPAIR TOOLS

County Agent Passes On Advice From Sec. Wickard

Repair your farm machinery now, advises R. R. Bennett and calls the farmers' attention to the following letter from Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard.

"The year of 1942 will be a critical one for farmers. Prepare for it by repairing your farm machinery now. The Food for Freedom Program calls for a record farm production. At the same time defense needs will limit available farm labor. Farmers who are unable to get enough labor will have to rely more and more upon machinery, but the defense program will mean much less new farm machinery in 1942. New farm machinery requires steel and other metals, and metals are a prime need in the defense program. You can help your country and yourself by repairing your old machinery now rather than attempting to get new machinery next year.

"Repair your farm machinery and equipment now. The Government is taking steps to provide as much steel and other metals as may be needed for all necessary repairs for farm machinery in 1942. To be sure of a supply of necessary repair parts, manufacturers need to know how much will be required. The only way to be sure of repair parts is to order them immediately. Failure to make repairs now may mean a crop loss later. I suggest you do these things at once:

"Check over your old machinery. Order necessary parts from your dealer. If parts cannot be obtained, notify your County, U.S.D.A. Defense Board.

"As replacement needs arise throughout the year use substitutes for steel and iron wherever possible. "In many areas, county agents and vocational agricultural teachers are arranging for instruction in farm machinery repair. You may wish to take advantage of such instruction or to have others in your family do so. Make your old farm machinery and equipment do another year by repairing it now."

WORLD WAR NAVY SECRETARY ARMISTICE DAY GUEST HERE

He paid tribute to the late W. H. Ragsdale, who for years was county superintendent of schools here, as "one of the state's leading superintendents who had a vision of the future. He also had praise for the late State Senator Jim Fleming, "the grandest Roman of Eastern Carolina, the late Governor Thomas J. Jarvis. He also remembered with words of praise Col. J. J. Laughlinhouse.

These and others, he said, were responsible for the "grand college you have here." Speaking of East Carolina Teachers' College, he remarked that he was glad that Mrs. Roosevelt was going to have the opportunity of seeing it next week.

Local Legion officials have repeatedly expressed themselves as being fortunate in securing Mr. Daniels for the program and were even elated that he accepted the invitation.

Mr. Daniels said that when Commander Whichard called him to extend the invitation, "I remarked to my wife that Dave's father and I started out as young newspaper men together" in Greenville and Wilson, respectively. He related that he told her that "these old associations are stronger than anything else and I am glad to accept the invitation."

"Turning to the more serious phase of his address, Mr. Daniels told the Legionnaires and guests:

You and your more than 2,000,000 comrades embarked for France singing: "We won't come back till it's over over there." And when your valor, added to that of your brothers and allies, forced the signing of the Armistice, you returned - the Navy took you over and brought you back - saying "Never again!" You took up arms at the call of your country to achieve three results worthy of all sacrifice:

1. To make the world safe for democracy.
2. To make possible a compact that would insure lasting peace, thus proving the truth of the slogan of "A war against war."
3. To preserve inviolate the freedom of the seas.

The highest service entrusted to me in my life was to be given, as Secretary of the Navy, the job of keeping the lanes of the sea safe for American soldiers en route to the battlefield in Europe in the high and difficult days of 1917-18. The Ferry to France, protected by the American Navy, made possible what had never been achieved before in the annals of history - the transport of more than 2,000,000 fighting men to France through an ocean infested with U-boats. This was done without the loss of a single man or an American ship, and under American naval escort. It makes the famous Hellespont achievement look small. It was possible only because the Navy, fit and ready, was on the job. Courage gave safe conduct to courage.

I am sure as we do honor to the American fighting men of the World War whose valor furnished the deciding strength that forced the surrender of an army which had successfully won victory after victory until the song "The Yanks Are Coming" changed the tide of war. From the moment American soldiers charged in force there was never any doubt as to what the result would be. In that song soldier from the Carolinas did not refer to the force being called "Yanks."

But when you said "Never again" you did not make the mistake of sinking fighting ships, reducing the army, neglecting air strength and abolishing the two-ocean Navy which had been created in 1920 under the Wilson policy of being able to defend the country by continuing to build until the United States should have incomparably the strongest navy in the world. It is not the fault of the more than two million who went to France and the two million more in training at home that it is necessary in this emergency to build in haste, at heavy cost, what you advocated and which should have been provided in the years since the Armistice.

And now, in less than a quarter of a century, you come to celebrate as this old world is engaged in an orgy of killing the like of which was never before seen. The rights of small nations, the advances in racial accord, the progress made in assuring better living conditions to men who labor, the protection of property justly acquired, the freedom of the ballot, of the press, of worship, the security of life and hope itself have been ruthlessly trodden under foot. You, no doubt, are tempted to ask: "Did our comrades die in vain? Were our sacrifices useless? Is the democracy and the freedom of the seas which we fought to preserve, doomed?"

These are very natural questions that disturb you as you think of your comrades who believed, as their life blood ebbed away, that they had brought a better life by giving their lives in a holy cause. My answer is that you were not wanting in one whit, but the lack of wisdom in the seats of the mighty failed to reap where you had sown. If the Senate of the United States had promptly ratified the treaty and entered the League of Nations, the tragedy of the war which afflicts mankind today would have been averted. To the rejection of the leadership of Woodrow Wilson, the chief casualty of the World War, can be attributed much of the responsibility for the present war.

Yes, I know that for years some writers in our country and elsewhere have told us that the Versailles treaty was written in a spirit of vengeance. In Germany the warlords seek to hide their greed for domination by declaring the Versailles treaty responsible for the present woe in Europe. They declare the causes of this war can be traced to the hard provisions of the Versailles treaty. I am sick and tired of hearing that treaty made the scapegoat for the sins of totalitarian rulers. The Versailles treaty was drawn by men, and lacked perfection. However, before signing it and recommending his countrymen to accept it, Woodrow Wilson secured in the treaty what he considered to be the best that could have been obtained. And if with the dire results which are now murdering millions of human beings and burning up the accumulations of centuries.

In this hour of danger to what we cherish as the American way of life, what is the duty of America? It is to uphold democracy, give aid to all who are fighting against the destruction of human values, to insure the freedom of the seas and to uphold the hands of the chosen leaders of the country as they adopt policies to guide us in these difficult days, to have faith in Franklin Roosevelt as you had in Wilson in 1917-18, and to declare with Stephen Decatur:

"Our country, in its dealings with foreign nations, may it always be right, but our country right or wrong."
