Red Counter Thrusts Successful on Major Fronts

RUSSIAN NOW ON OFFENSIVE

Invaders Declared to Have Been Driven From 20 Villages In Kalinin Sector of Moscow Front Within Past 24 Hours; Nazis Reported Also To Have Been Pushed Back In Tula Sector

By The Associated Press Russia's armies before Moscow, pressing a tempestuous counter-offensive, were reported today to have driven the Germans out of 20 villages in the past 24 hours in the Kalinin sector, while on the Northern front, the Soviet radio said Red troops had scored a break through the Nazi siege ring outside Leningrad.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported also that tank-led German shock troops had been thrown back from the outskirts of Tula, 100 miles south of Moscow, after a bloody two-weeks battle.

"The Germans were here yesterday. Today only their corpses are here," Tass said.

The news agency said the Germans hurled 15 consecutive tank attacks at the little village of Rodeshny, on the southern outskirts of Tula, and gained a temporary foothold before being smashed back with heavy losses.

Soviet dispatches reported a series of smashing counter blows at Kalinin, a Malaya-Roslavets, 65 miles southwest of the capital, and in the far north around the Arctic port of Murmansk.

The Soviet radio said the initiative in the 43-day-old battle of Moscow had now definitely passed into Red army hands.

In the Crimean campaign, a bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters asserted that German troops were "in front of Kerch," gateway to the Caucasus oil fields, with the city and harbor under the fire of Nazi artillery.

Yesterday, the high command declared German assault troops actually were storming the port.

Soviet reinforcements, some of them drawn from the Rostov-on-Don sector, were reported racing to defend the Caucasus coast against a German drive across the narrow Kerch strait from the Crimea.

Federal Officials May Be Called On Raleigh, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Federal officials may be called upon to assist in the Port Brage area, where a marked improvement is immediately shown, Governor Broughton disclosed today.

The chief executive quoted Brigadier General E. P. Parker, Jr., commanding officer of the post, as saying that the vice situation in the vicinity of Port Brage "has got to the point where it will be necessary to invoke provisions of the Mav act, unless there is a marked improvement."

General Parker sent to the governor a formal request that a meeting be called of Port Brage officers and of representatives of the counties in the vicinity of the fort and the maneuvers area.

Steps Leading To War Deplored By Methodists

PREPARE SELL CITY PROPERTY

City And School Boards Plan To Auction Vines House The Greenville Board of Aldermen in a meeting last night held to dispose of business held over from the regular meeting last Thursday night, took steps to sell the Vines house in cooperation with the school board, heard a delegation from that body reiterating its intention to take no steps under the building program without the approval of the aldermen, discussed a systematic system for numbering houses and heard a report that a list of delinquent taxpayers had been turned over to the city attorneys for action.

E. G. Flanagan, W. E. Hooker and Joseph M. Taft, composing a special committee of the school board, appeared before the aldermen in regard to selling the Vines house and furniture at public auction, the sale to be subject to the confirmation of both boards. On a previous occasion when the house was ordered sold, all bids were rejected as being too low.

Mayor Sugg appointed David A. Evans and N. O. Van Nortwick, Jr., to serve with him on a committee representing the city board in matters relating to the sale of the building.

The question of properly numbering houses was brought to the attention of the board by City Engineer Henry L. Rivers, who has been working on the project for some time. It was explained that for several years the city has been trying to get residential and business houses numbered in a systematic manner to eliminate many existing irregularities, especially in the newly-developed sections.

Mr. Rivers recommended that even numbers be put on north and west sides of streets and that odd numbers be used on the east and south sides. Mr. Rivers, the mayor and the Street Committee were authorized to go in on the question further and see what can be worked out. After all houses, business and residential, have been numbered systematically, it is proposed to make up a map whereby any person can tell what his house number will be immediately upon making application for a building permit.

Several other routine matters were considered by the board. E. L. Strawsbury of Washington, D. C., asked the board for a letter giving him permission and approving a campaign for the extermination of ticks.

Over 1000 separate shows were given before soldier audiences totaling more than 3,000,000 during summer and fall months this year.

Berlin Warns Next Few Days to Show What a Dangerous Path Taken By Congress, With Rome Voicing the Same Theme; Japs Say Stage Set For Shooting War; Britain and Canada Hail Action

By The Associated Press Bitter reaction exploded in the capitals of the Axis alliance today over revision of the United States neutrality act, with the Germans declaring bluntly that the next few days would show what a dangerous path the American Congress had taken.

In Rome, Fascist quarters voiced a similar theme asserting that Congress' action in permitting U. S. ships to enter the blockade zones would result in attacks on those vessels.

On the other side of the picture, the London Daily Express put a banner headline over the story, saying: "They're coming over."

In Tokyo, Japan's attitude was expressed by the news agency Domei, which quoted well-informed circles as declaring that the revision "aggravates the situation not only in the Atlantic, but in the Pacific" and that "the stage is set for commencement of a shooting war."

Authorized Berlin quarters charged President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull with duping Congress by a false representation of facts, and said that in any case Germany would shoot at American ships carrying munitions.

The British public and press acclaimed the action as a step toward fuller American collaboration in the war. Authoritative quarters said that it would "refresh and reinvigorate" the will of the British people to fight the war to victory, and that it had removed an obstacle which impeded fulfillment of America's determination to play a leading role in the overthrow of Hitlerism.

In Ottawa, Canada's Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King hailed it as "the handwriting on the wall spelling the doom of the Axis powers."

Without apparent dissent, the conference adopted the report of the Commission on World Peace.

"We sympathize with the President and our other leaders in the grave responsibilities which are theirs," the report said. "But we would remind them of solemn assurances given to the American people that they would not be led into war."

"We call upon them to make every effort to redeem those pledges. We urgently request them to begin now to use the prestige and influence of this nation for the establishment of a just and enduring peace, achieved not by military force but by mediation."

The conference approved a drive to be made among churches for funds to aid the Fairmount church of Raleigh to erect a building. The church now meets in N. C. State College auditorium and the conference was asked to aid its building drive because it serves about 1,000 college students.

Following the reading of ministerial appointments by Bishop Claire Purcell, the conference prepared to adjourn its five-day meeting.

NOT TO FORCE MINORITY INTO JOINING UNION

Roosevelt Talks Frankly At Captive Mine Parley

ASKS RESUMPT'N OF NEGOTIAT'NS Mine Worker Spokesman Announces Union to Accede to Request That Conferences Be Renewed

Washington, Nov. 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, asking the CIO-United Mine Workers and steel company heads to continue negotiations to avert a strike in the captive coal mines, told them today that "the government will never compel" the minority non-union miners affected by the dispute to join the union.

"I tell you frankly," he said, "that the government of the United States will not order, nor will Congress pass legislation ordering, a so-called closed shop."

The union is asking a union shop in the mines, which supply coal to steel mills busy on defense orders. Such an arrangement would require that all employees become members of the union after a probationary period.

The closed shop, in labor parlance, provides that the employer may not hire any man who is not a union member.

The President asked the mine union leaders and the steel representatives to give him a report on an agreement to continue production by Monday, or at least a progress report.

A spokesman for the mine workers announced soon afterwards that they would accede to the request for three days of direct negotiations on the dispute.

A DISGRACE

New York, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Lynn Stanbaugh, national commander of the American Legion, said today it was "a disgrace to the nation and an insult to the American people" that President Roosevelt had to appeal to John L. Lewis for postponement of a strike.

"There should be no repetition of the President of the United States writing three letters to a labor leader begging that a strike be postponed," Stanbaugh said at a press conference.

Methodist Church Gets New Pastor

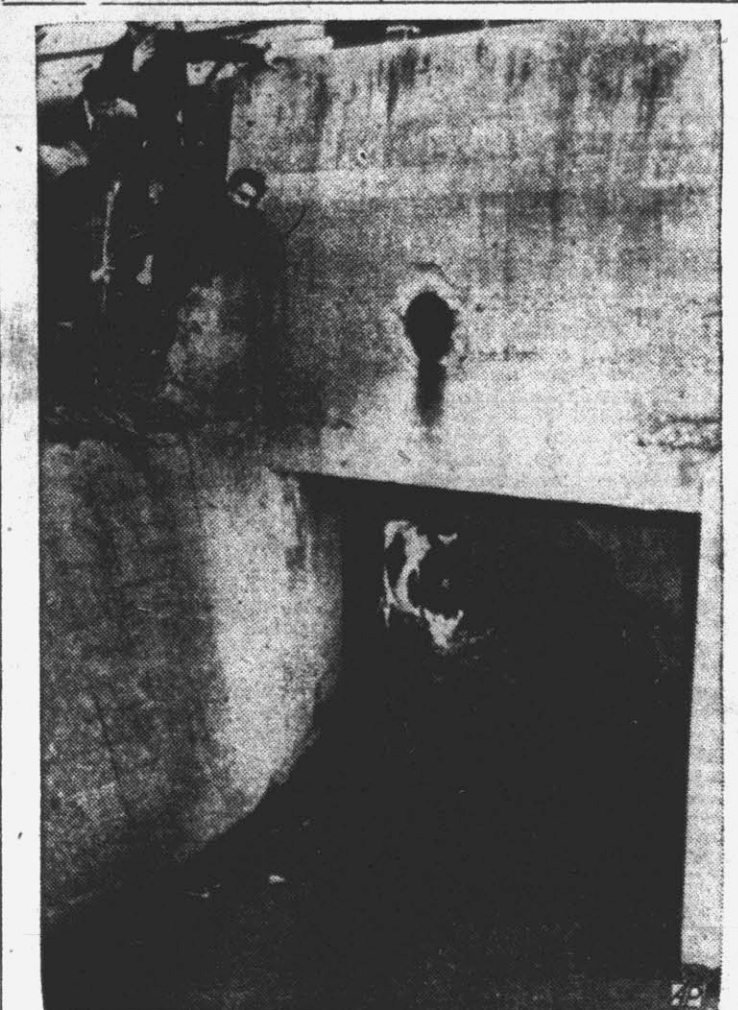

Rev. G. W. Perry who has been pastor of Trinity Methodist church at Durham will succeed Rev. T. M. Grant as pastor of the Memorial Methodist church here according to the list of appointments read at the closing session of the North Carolina Methodist Conference in Durham this afternoon.

It was not known here this afternoon where Rev. Mr. Grant will go.

East Carolina Teachers College will close for the Thanksgiving recess at 12 o'clock on Wednesday, November 19. Classes will begin again on the following Monday with the first morning period.

Cow Gets Lost In Jersey Sewer

Far from her Wisconsin home, Clara, a Holstein cow, wanders out of a sewer at Newark, N. J., after traveling for 12 hours from Union, N. J., in the subterranean passage. She broke away while being unloaded and entered the storm sewer. A trail of "moos" led searchers to the lost cow and she was driven two miles further to the exit.

Marines May Make Use Of City-County Airport

Permission Granted Today Following Formal Request

Formal permission was granted today for the Marine air wing to use the local City-County airport for a period of 30 days beginning January 5 and it appears probable that from 50 to 200 marines will be stationed here for that period and perhaps longer.

Chief Marine Gunner Michael Wodarczyk and Technical Sergeant R. L. Jonasson of Quantico, Va., landed their amphibian plane at the airport here this morning and went into conference with Mayor E. B. Sugg and others regarding the possibility of the use of the local field.

The Marine Corps already had in its possession all information regarding the airport and the two men here this morning were sent to make the formal request in behalf of Brig. General Roy S. Geiger of the First Marine Air Wing of Quantico, who is in charge of the entire Marine air force for the entire southeastern area of the United States.

Should the Marine air wing decide to utilize the local field, it would be used as an outpost of Cherry Point and other Marine bases in this section. An airport capable of housing from 50 to 200 men would be established at the field an men would be stationed here during the 30-day maneuvers period. It was pointed out that the field might be used permanently by the air unit.

While it was brought out that the local field is suitable for day-time flying only, it was explained that if the Marine Corps decided to make use of it permanently, the field probably would be lighted and hard-surface runways provided by the government without expense to the city or county, co-owners of the airport.

It also was explained that use of the field by the Marines would not interfere with the Civilian Pilots Training course now being conducted here.

Landing here this morning the two men immediately went to the mayor's office, and it was impossible for all members of the committees of the Board of Aldermen and Board of County Commissioners to be summoned for the conference.

Mayor Sugg, however, contacted each by telephone or in person before formally granting the request.

Wodarczyk and Jonasson planned to leave this afternoon to fly back to Quantico and report on their conferences with local officials.

Torpedoed, Presumably By Italians

Four-Year-Old, $16,000 Aircraft Carrier Claimed By Axis to Have Been Sunk on Several Previous Occasions Goes Down Before Reaching Gibraltar and Safety After Having Been Torpedoed

London, Nov. 14.—(AP) The four-year-old $16,000,000 aircraft carrier Ark Royal was torpedoed late yesterday east of Gibraltar, probably by an Italian submarine, and sank early today despite a desperate effort to bring the listing giant safely to port.

She carried down with her an undisclosed number of her crew of about 1600 men who remained aboard in the struggle to save the ship.

"A very large number of the ship's company was taken off," the Admiralty said, and indications were that personnel losses were "fortunately not heavy."

The story of the sinking, pieced together from the Admiralty's brief announcement and word in authoritative quarters, was that the Ark Royal was not in action when she was torpedoed and that she was en route to Gibraltar.

The strong suggestion was that an Italian submarine was the victor, although there was no positive identification.

Many of the company remained aboard after the hit or hits and helped to keep the Ark Royal afloat, in tow, during the hours of darkness as she listed further and further. Many worked to the very end. She finally rolled under the sea short of Gibraltar and safety.

The loss was belated fulfillment of many a German claim, since the beginning of the war, that the carrier had been sunk.

The concise communique said that the 22,000-ton floating airfield sank while in tow after having been torpedoed.

She was the third aircraft carrier lost by Britain in the war and the newest of them all.

The $16,000,000 vessel was under the command of Captain L. E. H. Maund, but whether the commander was among the casualties was not made public.

A mass meeting of Chicod school patrons has been called for Monday night at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of discussing and voting on recent requests that the school building be used for staging a square dance.

After receiving the requests, the Executive Committee of the Parent-Teacher Association took the attitude that it was not a question for the PTA or teachers to decide, but one for the community as a whole.

All patrons are urged to attend, take part in the discussions and then participate in the secret ballot.

Approximately one hundred guests called during the tea hour.

Late in the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Ficklen entertained informally at their home on Elizabeth street, honoring Miss Hodges and Dr. E. B. Aycock and Miss Merritt and Jack Horton.

The home was attractively decorated with colorful fall flowers.

A large number of callers enjoyed the delightful affair.

Speaks At Dinner Meeting. Dr. R. J. Slay, head of the science department of East Carolina Teachers College, was the principal speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Goldsboro chapter of the Alumni Association of the college, which was held Thursday evening in the education building of the Methodist church. In introducing Dr. Slay, Mr. James Butler who served as toastmaster, referred to him as "one of the most beloved faculty members."

In his most interesting and informative talk, Dr. Slay told the alumni about the B. S. degree that the college is now granting. The graduate work offered at East Carolina Teachers College, and college athletics. He referred to the members of the football team as "splendid young men, men who believe in their coach and believe in their institution."

Other guests from Greenville were Mrs. J. J. Slay, Miss Naomi Newell, and Miss Estelle McClees. Miss Newell, former president of the Goldsboro chapter, who is now a member of the faculty of the Greenville high school, expressed her appreciation to the group of the honor of being a guest at the meeting.

A welcome to chapter members, their husbands and wives, and other guests was given by Miss Lottie Moore, president of the local unit. Miss Marie Evans delighted the group with two vocal selections, "In the Garden of Tomorrow," and "A Candle, A Candle."

Third Street P. T. A. Meets.

The Third Street Parent-Teacher Association held a most enjoyable meeting on Wednesday afternoon. The auditorium was artistically decorated with yellow chrysanthemums.

Mrs. R. B. Lee presided at this meeting. A devotional was led by Mrs. Closs Hearne. The association at 7 o'clock and played games until repeated in unison a very beautiful prayer. Mrs. Hearne read one of Psalms. As we are approaching the Thanksgiving season she gave suggestions of many things for which we should be deeply grateful. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Glenn Scott.

Mrs. Lee then introduced Rev. W. A. Ryan, who gave a most informative talk on Savings Stamps and the Defense Bond issue.

Mrs. Lee announced that our members would certainly answer the Red Cross call for women to knit and sew at some appointed time and place.

Mrs. Burt Grease announced that she would gladly take any subscriptions to our Parent-Teacher magazine.

Mrs. Lee and several members discussed the need and value of study groups this year. Mesdames J. A. Watson, Albion Dunn and Jasper Jones were appointed as a committee to make further arrangements for this course and to report at the December meeting.

Mrs. Graham Flanagan, chairman, gave a very gratifying report of the Harvest Frolic held on Halloween night. She announced that sixty-five dollars was cleared.

After this important business session, Mrs. Gay Smith introduced our guest speaker, Mrs. Alice Elliott Futrelle of Hertford and Raleigh. Mrs. Futrelle is field representative for the Safety Highway Commission. She spoke on "Conservation of Human Resources for National Defense." She urged that Safety Education courses be put into every high school. There are courses of this kind in 900 schools in North Carolina. She urged that we build a safety program around three E's—Education, Enforcement and Engineering. She reminded us that more persons were killed in the United States on highways last year than the number of our boys lost in action in the last World War. After this splendid talk we realized more than ever the vital need of traffic safety.

Mrs. Futrelle was at one time a member of the state board of the P. T. A.

The meeting closed with the group singing "Come Ye Thankful People Come."

Those present included Jacquelyn Branch, Constance Vincent, Ruby Hazel McLawhorn, Alma Paramore, Rose Keeter, Mergie Little, Franklyn Little, Helen McLawhorn, Barbara Worthington, Marvin Little and Maylen Little.

Entertains For Bride-elect.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. Ott Tucker and Mrs. Mildred Owens entertained at bridge and a miscellaneous shower in compliment to Miss Christine Palmer, bride-elect of this month.

The country home was attractively decorated with chrysanthemums, the green and yellow color note being used.

After several spirited progressions high score prize went to Mrs. C. B. Rice and second high to Mrs. Larry Tighman.

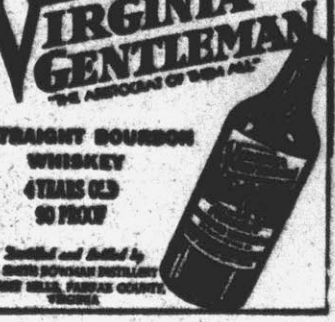

A tempting salad course with tea was served. Mrs. Joseph Palmer, Mrs. Herbert Harris and Miss Beth Howell were invited for refreshments.

At the conclusion of the evening the honoree was presented a shower of attractive and useful gifts. The hostesses' gift to Miss Palmer was crystal in her chosen pattern.

Is it Love? by MARGARETTA BRUCKER

Chapter 28
Errand Of Mercy

It couldn't be. All the bright future she had visioned was blotted out and she was a child on horseback, flying over fences, with Riv encouraging her on to new feats of daring. She was a girl home from school and Riv was walking with her in the moonlight and she was lifting her face for his kiss.

lights blazing from every window, cars crowding the drive. A servant opened the door, with a face grey with fear and eyes watery with tears.

"Evenin', Miss Sue Ellen." He was Jennie's son. He had followed Riv and Sue Ellen through the woods; he had been companion, protector, the black boy who was the same age as Riv and who loved him and lied for him.

"No matter how she tried to cling to the fact that she was married, that she loved Johnny—that all this day she had planned and looked forward to showing him that she loved him—everything seemed to slip away but the thought of Riv and the horror of knowing that he might die.

They turned in the drive of Colonel Moore's plantation home, Oak Hill. Before them stood the house,

"Good evening, Sam."

A friend of the Colonel's came to meet them and gravely told Sue Ellen to follow him upstairs.

A long, winding mahogany railed staircase which seemed endless. The upper hall with its gleaming crystal chandeliers and bright thick red carpet. Closed white doors, but from behind one came the muted murmur of voices and then her name, "Sue Ellen!"

Louder and louder, repeated over and over. For a minute she swayed and would have fallen, but Toby was right at her elbow and guided her forward.

Toby opened the door and for a minute the room and the surroundings lacked reality. Like a scene in a dream which might fog and disappear—like a nightmare from which she would awake.

"Sue Ellen!"

Suddenly every emotion was gone but compassion. She stripped off her raincoat and left it in Toby's hands. She ran forward and knelt down beside that poor broken, tossing figure. "Riv—"

This was the boy she had loved, who lay with his dark hair tumbling on the white pillow, whose head turned restlessly toward her, whose voice broken in a sob. "Sue Ellen."

"Yes, Riv."

"You do love me?"

"For a second she hesitated. "Yes, Riv."

She had not lied. She did love the boy who had been her childhood playmate, and even though she lied, wasn't a lie justifiable when Riv was dying?

At his halting plea, she came close to the bed and took his shaking hand.

"Sue—" His voice was pitiful and broken.

Moved by a sudden impulse, she stooped and kissed him. He closed his eyes and for the moment his face was frightening, grey with pallor—expressionless. Someone behind her came forward and took her arm. "He's unconscious." It was the old doctor whom she had known all her life. Young Doctor Warren stood with him, and behind them she saw the Colonel, his face ravaged and working pitifully. He was crying. It was terrible to see him cry. He was always so hard and impassive—there were others in the hall outside. Toby waited, and coming down the hall with the brilliant light from the crystal chandelier making her even more angular and tonight, downright ugly, she saw Deedora.

Deedora stopped dead still when she saw her. She never spoke, but the glance of contempt was like the flip of a whip across Sue Ellen's face. It told her that Deedora thought she had no right here—Riv was Deedora's husband. A dying man's hysterical cry during delirium was no excuse in Deedora's eyes for forcing her way into Riv's room.

It was Deedora whom he should have called. Innocently, she had done something she must bitterly regret. A compassionate gesture, even though backed by the doctor's assurance that it was necessary to quiet Riv, would never make Deedora understand.

Even Toby caught the significance of that glance. "Let's go," he said quickly. "Maybe I was wrong to bring you, but Doctor Warren thought you might help—"

"I was glad to help," said Sue Ellen quietly.

She started down the long winding stairs and then for the second time paused, clinging to the railing unable to take the next step, for at the foot of the stairs, with his grey eyes regarding her gravely, was Johnny Harris.

"Postponement"

Riv did not die. She did not want Riv to die, but in the days of his slow recovery, Sue Ellen thought bitterly of the impulsive trip to Oak Hill and how it had changed things for her. Except for Riv's accident, she would have had several hours alone with Johnny that evening after the long day of waiting and anticipation. She had planned to tell him that she loved him, but when she found him waiting for her with that grave expression in his steady grey eyes, her love was locked deep in her heart and she had no power to express it.

Johnny asked no explanation. He was gentle, understanding, but she knew without a word spoken, that Johnny had reached one conclusion, that she still loved Riv and her silence and grief were because of fear that Riv would not recover.

Toby drove off alone and Johnny told him that he would take her home.

They didn't exchange a word regarding her presence at Oak Hill. Twice she tried to frame an explanation, but the words died before she could utter them. Rather say nothing than be confused and make this misunderstanding worse than it was.

Johnny said finally: "I'll take you home and your aunt must put you to bed. Don't try to tell me anything tonight, Sue Ellen. You're unhappy, upset. The past week has been too much. I understand."

"But you don't, Johnny." Her voice was low and pleading.

He reached over and covered her hand. "I do," he said positively. "And you are not to worry. "Moore will not die."

"Toby said that he could not live through the night."

He shook his head. "The specialist from Memphis is a chap I know. He will save him."

"You sent for him?"

Again he nodded and then took his hand away from hers and drove ahead at a swifter rate through the stormy darkness.

Then Johnny knew earlier about the accident. Where was Johnny that he could have known?

He came into Magnolia House with her and helped remove her sodden coat, his hand pushed back the tumbled hair from her forehead and he held her face between his hands and looked deep into her eyes. For the first time he smiled—a grave, understanding smile. "Try and get some rest and forget all about Moore and about me for the present," he told her. "I gave your Aunt Car those papers and I'll call you from Washington tomorrow evening. I may be back in a month—I hope to be. Then there will be many things for us to talk over."

Torture

She clung to him, with her face buried in his rough coat. He held her, but he might have held anyone in distress as impersonally. He lifted her chin and kissed her lightly and then Aunt Car came in, with Aunt Pleas bustling behind her.

"Take good care of her," said Johnny to Aunt Car.

She cried then. Long and bitterly. There was something so sad and final about Johnny's goodbye. Maybe it was because she was all unnerved by the events of the evening, that the future looked so dark and her heart was so low and despondent.

Aunt Car put her to bed. Aunt Pleas brought a strong hot drink, and through the door she saw Aunt Jennie hovering in the hall, muttering to herself.

She choked on the drink and laughed hysterically.

"Stop that," said Aunt Pleas sharply. Aunt Car slipped away, with her gentle face frightened and working, and Aunt Pleas took charge, snapping up the shades, opening windows and letting the cool night air blow through the room. "The storm is over," said Aunt Pleas matter-of-factly. "I see three stars."

"What does it matter," Sue Ellen turned her face away from the window and stared at the blank wall opposite.

"Don't be a fool, Sue Ellen." Aunt Pleas moved and stood beside the bed and her small plump hand jerked the cover smooth and she touched Sue Ellen's cheek.

"I love Johnny so," Sue Ellen's voice trailed off.

"Then show him that you do and don't bother your head about Riv Moore or his problems. Riv will get well, don't worry. You couldn't kill anyone that mean. Why should you race off and ruin your life and reputation to hang over that boy. He ran into a ditch because he was drunk and in a vile temper. I hope he'll lie flat on his back long enough to do some serious thinking."

"Aunt Pleas—"

Aunt Pleas gave a sniff which was not all contempt, for two big tears rolled down her pink cheeks and splashed on her apron.

Then they were both crying, although Aunt Pleas recovered instantly and arose and switched off the lamp and moved toward the hall door. "Go to sleep and forget Riv," she advised.

"I'm not thinking about Riv Moore."

Finally she slept and it was eleven when she became aware of someone in her room and found Aunt Car sitting by the window.

SUPER SUDS MAKES 1/3 MORE SUDS* GETS OUT THAT DEEP DOWN DIRT—FROM GRIMY WORK SHIRTS EVEN!

Try SUPER SUDS! Enjoy quicker, easier washdays with this dirt-lacking soap that's safe enough for rayons, too

1/2 MORE SUDS, cup for cup, than the average of 8 brands tested... that means Super Suds gets family wash whiter, cleaner.

SAFE FOR RAYONS, TOO... and rayon experts have proved Super Suds is safe for rayons. Safe for all washable colors—even silks and wools. HUNG TO HANDS... a whiz in your dishpan. Quick grease-cutting suds leave glasses, dishes, sparkling—hands stay soft and smooth. GET SUPER SUDS in the big blue box—today! Made by Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co.

EXPERTS RECOMMEND SUPER SUDS

Here's How to Wash Rayons, Silks and Wool

1. Test patch in water for color-fastness. If color runs, it's not washable. (Test woolsens in soapy water.)
2. Wash garments separately, by hand.
3. Use lukewarm suds: Dissolve Super Suds completely in warm water, add cold for lukewarm suds.
4. Do not soak. Wash quickly, gently. Don't rub, wring or twist. Woolsens shrink from rubbing—avoid any excessive handling while wet.
5. Rinse thoroughly, gently, in clean, lukewarm water. Roll in towels; don't leave there. Never dry woolens in excessive heat or direct sun.
6. Shape garment over board before ironing. Use a moderate iron.
7. Certain type weaves and prints should not be washed. Look for washability guarantee when you buy.

QUICK FOR DISHES... KIND TO HANDS... LESS SNEEZY DUST THAN OTHER LEADING BRANDS!

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

LET THE MOTOR IDLE

Every time I see a person racing the motor while his car is standing still, I think of the hundreds of people I encounter every week who seem to be tearing themselves to pieces with ineffectualities. They get hot and bothered about everything under the sun. They worry about imaginary ills and anticipate the coming of a dreadful catastrophe. They fly into a rage over nothing; and probably if a doctor could be present to take their blood pressure, it would be found that every one of these anger fits is predisposing them to trouble in later life. Most people can't let a motor idle. They have to speed it up to see how it sounds. By the same token, many people can't let themselves alone. Their motor is always running about ten times faster than is necessary. And the only result produced is that they send up their temperatures and use up fuel.

Some people need to be urged to get to work; others need to be cautioned lest they wear themselves out, not through work but through racing their motors. If you will read the gospels carefully you, will see that our Lord counseled people not to march against the gross sins of the flesh as against those attitudes of mind—anger, discouragement, melancholy, etc.—which predispose people to the diseases which ravish modern life, high blood pressure and heart trouble.

NOW KEEP THEM CLEAN

Last night the city street force completed a job of cleaning up our back alleys in the business district. Now if the business houses will cooperate by seeing to it that no trash is put out except in containers that will keep it from blowing about, we will be able to keep these alleys clean and our streets in the business section likewise cleaner. When trash is permitted to blow about the back alleys it soon finds its way to the streets, which gives our city an unsightly appearance.

WE NEED IT

We are certainly glad that the city government is going to take some steps toward the proper numbering of residences throughout the city. At present there are numbers of houses in this city that do not have numbers, nor do the owners know what the numbers would be if they had them. Under the new plan the entire city map would be re-numbered in a systematic manner and then every building would be required to carry its proper number and each new building would be numbered as it is built. This would certainly be a great aid to persons who are not at present familiar enough with our city to find people, regardless of their addresses.

AIRPORT TO RENDER GREATER SERVICE

The airport committees of the city and county took the right step today when they

What Do You Think?

granted permission for the Marine flying corps to use the local airport, beginning in January. Of course, if the Marines come here at the proposed time it will probably be for a trial period, but if the location it found suitable as an outpost port in connection with the new Cherry Point Marine flying base, their stay may be permanent, or at least longer than for the original 30 days period requested.

Those who have given of their time and effort in behalf of the local airport should be pleased that it can now be of real use to our government in its defense program.

Looking at the picture from the other side, it is more than probable that should the Marines use the field for any great length of time they will make many improvements in the field without cost to the local community, with the result that we will have a much better airport when the present emergency is over and the field is turned back to us. Even while the field is being used by the Marines there will be no interference with the civilian flying courses being conducted here, so the field will really be serving a double purpose.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinson
Washington—It is difficult to imagine any greater confusion than Floyd B. Odum jumped into when he came to Washington a couple of months ago to head up the new Defense Contracts Distribution Division. Because of priorities in strategic materials and the concentration of contracts (85 per cent of them had been let to 56 firms in our largest industrial centers), nearly 185,000 small manufacturers, employing about 60 per cent (or 2,000,000 persons) of total factory labor had on the prospect of closing shop and going bankrupt.

In two months, the fog hasn't cleared much in this confused scene, for the task of bringing order out of the mess, pulling these little businesses out of the threatened black-out, and saving the jobs of those 2,000,000 is probably the biggest task that national defense has had to tackle.

Some things, however, have been done and others proposed. In setting up his organization, Odum already has established 55 field offices, about one-third of what he hopes to have in a few months. These field offices are conducting surveys, meeting with small manufacturers and advising them on how to go about getting subcontracts or pooling their resources with other small factory owners in the section to bid for basic contracts. They are conducting "clinics" where holders of the basic contracts meet with scores of the smaller manufacturers in round table discussions and work out subcontracts. Odum's office here is putting all the pressure possible on big manufacturers to get them to subcontract the work they can. He hasn't threatened to expose those who refuse but he has promised several times to give public credit to those companies which do.

Probably most important move in the office now is legislation Odum is preparing to submit to Congress, eliminating the legal barriers to forcing the big plans to give some of the work their little brothers and to spread the work by giving some of the big jobs directly to those little brothers of big industry. If he succeeds in getting this legislation through, he will remove one of the stock dodges which the advocates of big business in the Army, Navy and OPM have been using in keeping their contracts centralized.

Another effort toward taking defense work to the industrial hinterland is the three "Red, White and Blue" trains which will tour the country exhibiting hundreds of "bits and pieces" to small manufacturers. This isn't any defense publicity gag.

Technical experts of the army, navy, maritime commission and OPM will be on those trains to explain every one of the objects exhibited and to discuss with some 30,000 owners of little plants who are expected to visit the trains whether it would be possible for them to convert their factories to production of these needed articles.

Odum has suggested, but so recently there has been no opportunity yet for action, that government loans be made to small businesses threatened with liquidation to tide them through the emergency. He also is asking that minimum allocations of critical raw materials be made to thousands of threatened little fellows—just enough to keep them in business until something else can be done.

Summing up his job, Odum says: "I feel much like a doctor who has suddenly acquired thousands upon thousands of patients scattered over the length and breadth of the land. He doesn't even know how many or where they are. He knows they all need attention, but he doesn't know their individual symptoms and cannot possibly see them all personally."

"He therefore must do first things first. He must organize his staff of assistants, field officers, clinics, visiting doctors and nurses. In the meantime, he broadcasts general blanket advice. We are doing just that."

Whether he can get the job done in time to save all those who can be saved is what Washington is asking now. The answer probably will be known before spring, maybe long before.

ACTIVITIES OF THE BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMAN'S CLUB

On Tuesday morning, November 11, the local branch of Bundles for Britain completed Christmas shipments. This shipment also included our quotas through December. On October 29, our first shipment of Christmas toys was included with a shipment of fifty garments in knitting. Also at the same time we shipped hospital clothes and 36 dresses and bonnets. In reply National Headquarters at New York sent the following acknowledgment: Mrs. James T. Little, President, Bundles for Britain, Inc., Ayden Road, Greenville, North Carolina.

Dear Mrs. Little:
We are very grateful to you for the two shipments you have sent us and especially delighted with the Christmas packages. Will you extend to the little girl who sent us these Christmas gifts the gratitude of national headquarters?
The amount of work being done among your sewing and knitting groups is really grand, and we are very grateful for the aid given us by the members of the Greenville branch of Bundles for Britain.
We are always happy to have the children's dresses and the hospital pillows which are extremely useful.
I am so glad you enjoyed having our Janet Murrow who is such a wonderful person and has done such a magnificent job for us.
Sincerely,
MRS. PAUL WHITE,
Executive Director of Branches.

The Christmas packages acknowledged in the letter were the contribution of 24 Christmas packages which had been attractively wrapped and tied by Miss Eleanor James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. James. Eleanor had cut out paper dolls, selected small necklaces, etc., which she knew would delight the hearts of children receiving the packages.
On November 11 we shipped a box of knitting which included 45-knitted articles. The second box was made up of hospital necessities, listing 48 tray cloths, 12 size two pajamas, 12 abdominal sheets, 48 arm slings, 12 size eight gowns and eight stuffed animals. All these garments and articles had been made by the many volunteer workers in the Bundles for Britain work rooms. I am sure the people of Greenville appreciate the efforts set forth by these ladies, so that we as a community can gratefully feel we have done our part in this great emergency.

Beginning on Wednesday, November 19, we will be open at the work rooms only Wednesday of each week through Christmas. This will make possible the materials to those who wish to work at their convenience at home, and is made possible through the splendid response we have had in the work rooms to fill our quotas up to January 1. Our regular work will continue again in January.

The King's Daughters.

The Patient circle of The King's Daughters held the November meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. W. R. Jones, with a fair attendance.

Mrs. E. W. Harvey gave a very beautiful and inspiring devotional. Her topic being "What Christians Should Do At This Time of Unrest." Mrs. Perkins read the president's message which comes to us each month through the Silver Cross. This month Thanksgiving was her subject. She urged the Daughters and all peoples everywhere to thank God for this country of ours, "The home of the free and the land of the brave." She said we sing "God Bless America" so let us as King's Daughters show our thankfulness by helping men, women and little children who are hungry and homeless and to "thank God for the opportunity to minister in His Name."

The regular routine of business was resumed, and a number of people having been ministered to since our last meeting, food and clothing given out, milk given to a tubercular patient, a patient sent to a hospital, two boys assisted in getting work during their time out of the NYA, with clothing furnished them.

As a closing prayer, the prayer of the order was used. The meeting adjourned. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Virginia Perkins, served cookies and hot tea.

WHICH ARE YOU?
Are you an active member
The kind that would be missed,
Or are you just contented
That your name is on the list?

Do you attend the meetings
And mingle with the flock,
Or do you stay at home the while
And criticize and knock?

And do you take an active part
To help the work along,
Or are you satisfied to be the kind
That merely "just belong"?

Do you ever pay a visit
To a member who is sick
Or leave the work to just a few
And talk about the clique?

There's quite a program scheduled
That I am sure you've heard about,
And we'll appreciate it if you too
Will come and help us out.

So come to meetings often
And help with hand and heart,
Don't be another member,
But take an active part?

So think this over, member,
You know the right from wrong,
You know the right from wrong,
Or do you just belong?

Girl Scout Activities In Greenville

By PEARL SAIEED

A list is being made by the Mariners of Greenville of all the ex-Girl Scouts and the present Girl Scouts for a directory for the benefit of the Girl Scout organization. The Mariners think it will be of community interest and a valuable resource material to the organization for a complete list of this type to be made in order to recognize the past Girl Scouts. They have been going through the files and past records of these people, but there are some they can not get in touch with. Will any ex-Girl Scout contact the Girl Scout office or the ship's log, Susanne Kilgo?

Plans are being made in the near future for a tea in honor of the Scouts. The tea will be sponsored by the Mariners, who are Pat Waldrop, Pearl Saieed, Susanne Kilgo, Hennie Ruth Whichard, Lib Kittrell and Dorothy Nell Henderson. We think this will be of great interest to the community and the organization.

Miss Marjorie Perkins is leader of the Mariners.
