CAPTIVE COAL MINES CLOSED DOWN

Stern Steps Expected To Be Taken

President Believed to Be Ready To Order Army To Take Over Mines; Lewis, Failing To Appear At White House Conference As Requested, Writes President Open Shop Agreement Rejected

Washington, Nov. 17. — (AP) — CIO United Mine Workers halted all production today in one after another of the coal mines which supply the nation's biggest steel companies — and thereby openly defied President Roosevelt's twice-repeated injunction that the coal "must be mined."

UMW's decision brought the current labor crisis to a breaking point. Storm signals were flying in Congress and the Capitol waited momentarily for the president to order decisive counter measures.

The White House was silent, pending formal notification of the collapse of settlement negotiations, but Mr. Roosevelt already has given his pledge to Congress that "the government proposes to see this thing through" and keep the mines operating, regardless of the negotiations' outcome.

There was a widespread belief that the President was ready to order the army to take over the captive mines.

Washington, Nov. 17. — (AP) — John L. Lewis informed President Roosevelt by letter today that the United Mine Workers had refused to accept an open shop agreement in the captive coal mines because it would "invalidate" other agreements in operation throughout the soft coal mining industry.

He told the President that officers of the union had no authority to execute an open shop agreement, "thereby destroying the assets of the membership represented by existing collective bargaining agreements."

The union shop was the sole issue in the dispute which culminated in a work stoppage today in the captive mines.

Lewis did not call at the White House, as he had been requested to do when Mr. Roosevelt asked last Friday that negotiations be extended over the week-end in an 11th hour attempt to halt the threatened shutdowns in captive mines which supply coal to steel mills.

The three representatives of the steel companies, Eugene G. Grace of the Bethlehem Steel Company, Frank Purnell, head of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, and Benjamin Fairless of United States Steel Company, conferred at the White House with President Roosevelt for nearly an hour.

They announced they would send a formal report this afternoon to the public at the president's convenience.

Asked whether it would be a joint statement, Fairless replied: "Yes, sir. And there are no differences of opinion, may I add."

He branded as "an absolute falsehood" Lewis' statement that United States Steel was ready to sign, while Purnell added that "that also goes for us, 100 per cent."

Mrs. Roosevelt Blames Irresponsible Leaders For Labor Difficulties

To Stay On Job

Washington, Nov. 17. — (AP) — Because they considered the labor situation acute, administration leaders decided today to keep Congress on the job and abandoned their hopes for a series of three-day recesses after Thanksgiving.

Democratic chieftains in the House were reported to have told friends that "something" apparently will have to be done about continuing strikes in defense industries, and a group of Southern Democrats already was at work drafting a new bill they intend to lay before the administration shortly.

At the same time, Chairman Norton (D-NJ) called a meeting of the House Labor Committee for tomorrow to consider whether to initiate anti-strike legislation.

AXIS SHIP AT SAN JUAN PORT

Axis Vessel Taken In Custody Flying U.S. Flag

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Nov. 17. — (AP) — The German motorship Odensvald, seized in the South Atlantic by units of the U. S. Navy, arrived here this afternoon under American escort.

She was traveling under her own power.

It was understood that prompt action would be brought in U. S. courts to forfeit the ship, a 5,000-tonner listed as owned by the Hamburg-American line, for disguising herself illegally as a United States merchantman.

She was en route to Germany from Japan when she was seized. Much of her cargo was understood to have been rubber, metals and other essential war materials.

Washington, Nov. 17. — (AP) — A navy escort steamed slowly toward port today with a badly damaged Axis merchantman, captured in the South Atlantic masquerading as an American cargo vessel, with the Stars and Stripes at her masthead.

The blockade runner was caught by an unnamed U. S. cruiser in equatorial waters on November 6, but the Navy Department withheld news of the seizure until last night — a fact which led to the belief that the ship was within a few hours of port.

The crew of the ship tried to scuttle her as soon as the cruiser ordered her to heave to, the Navy reported, but quick action by a salvage party of bluejackets kept the vessel afloat, although badly damaged and unseaworthy.

The Navy announcement had nothing to say regarding the exact nationality of the vessel and her crew, or about her destination. Neither did it identify the port to which the ship was now being taken, except that it was one "within jurisdiction of a United States court."

Pneumonia Fatal To Mrs. J. S. Ross

NAZIS DIE OF COLD WEATHER

Soviet Army Counter-Attacks in Two Moscow Front Sectors After Repulsing Nazi Thrusts; Invaders Found Frozen To Death; Nazis Claim To Have Taken Kerch In Eastern Crimea

London, Nov. 17. — (AP) — Red army counter-attacks were reported by Russians today to have driven back German forces in the zones of Kalinin and Tikhvin, amid cold so intense that some of the invaders were found frozen to death.

Repulse of German forces which had broken into the vital area of Tikhvin was announced in Khabyshev.

German reports said, however, that Nazi troops had taken Kerch, easternmost city in the Crimea, and now held all of the eastern Crimea. Tikhvin is a junction on railways linking Leningrad, Archangel and Moscow, and a possible route for British and American war supplies for Russia. It lies 110 miles east and south of Leningrad.

A Moscow communique said the Russians had flung back violent German attacks on the Kalinin front, 95 miles northwest of Moscow.

A Russian war correspondent of Reuters declared that 4,000 Germans were killed in vain attacks upon the Red army's Kestenga positions in a general Karelian offensive launched two weeks ago.

The army newspaper Red Star, which called the battle of Tikhvin one of the most important in the war, said the Russians recaptured several settlements.

Shifting the direction of their attack, the newspaper continued, the Germans broke through in another sector of the northwest front and tried to advance toward Volkovo, 40 miles northwest of Tikhvin at the junction of the Leningrad-Murmansk and the Leningrad-Vologda railroads. The Germans were reported to have wavered and come to a stop as Russians recaptured two villages.

Attack Launched In War Maneuvers

With the Army in the Field, November 17. — (AP) — The mightiest attack of the Army's training year was launched at dawn today in the Carolinas war games.

Two armored divisions and a full air support command were ordered to smash ahead at a strong spearhead the First Army had forced over the Pee Dee River on the south edge of the 10,000-square-mile maneuver area.

There and at the northern tip-east of Charlotte, N. C., were the only two places the stronger but less mobile first army was able to get any sizable force across the river during the first day of the two-week field exercise. Under the direction of Army General Headquarters, the training battle will end November 30.

PROMISES BILL CURB STRIKES

Rayburn Says House Soon To Get Legislation

Washington, Nov. 17. — (AP) — Speaker Rayburn said flatly today that the House would be given an opportunity to "pass" on defense legislation "as the earliest date consistent with proper consideration."

He declined to specify whether a bill designed to prevent strikes in defense industry would be called up for action this week, saying that it "might take some time" because he "certainly want to pass considered legislation."

Rayburn took the floor last week during debate on the neutrality act to assert that he would "follow or lead" in any movement to deal "sanely" with the labor situation.

Rayburn's press conference statement followed a stormy session of the House Rules Committee at which the acting chairman, Rep. C. D. Clegg, urged swift congressional action to deal with defense strikes without awaiting settlement of the captive mine dispute on the ground that President Roosevelt "is still in the talking stage."

The committee session was called technically to consider granting right-of-way for the price control bill, but Clegg asserted that the committee might "put the lid" on that measure until the question of labor legislation was settled.

Entertained at Luncheon By Dr. And Mrs. Meadows

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose appearance on the lecture platform at East Carolina Teachers College tonight has been eagerly anticipated not only by college and town, but by this whole section of the state, was the guest at a luncheon given in her honor by President and Mrs. Leon R. Meadows at one o'clock in their home on Fifth Street. Accompanying Mrs. Roosevelt was her secretary, Miss Malvina Thompson.

Present also were Mayor and Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Dr. and Mrs. W. I. Wooten, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Moseley, of the town of Greenville, and Miss Ola Ross and Miss Sallie Joyner Davis of the college staff.

The luncheon was prepared and served by the senior girls now in the home economics Home Management class, under the supervision of Mrs. Adelaide Blount. The girls taking part were: Lula M. Whitworth and Nina Smith of Greenville; Virginia Whitley, Nashville; Julia Latham, Washington; Lucile Privatt, Spring Hope; Lois Lee Britton, Seaboard; Sybil Taylor, Seaboard; Hazel White, Creswell; and Pecolia Fisher Smith, St. Paul's.

Autumn decorations were used, with yellow chrysanthemums and a centerpiece of fruit emphasizing fall coloring.

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived by train at Wilson at 9:30, and was met there by President and Mrs. Meadows and Miss Ross. Entertainment Committee chairman, she reached Greenville at 11:30.

Mrs. Roosevelt's lecture is scheduled to begin at 8:30. She is coming to East Carolina Teachers College under the auspices of the Entertainment Committee composed of three faculty members, Miss Ola Ross, Miss Mamie Jenkins, and Miss Margarette Austin, and six students, Harriet Marshburn, president of the Women's Student Government Association, William Burks, Wilda Royall, Katherine Kyser, Joyce Dunham and Ruth Spencer. Money paid her for such lectures does not go to personal use.

During the afternoon the First Lady made a tour of the campus, and was greeted somewhere along her route by practically the whole 1200 of the student body, dismissed from classes for the occasion, the faculty and staff, and workmen on all parts of the campus.

Returns Certified

The County Board of Commissioners, in special session today, certified the returns by which the $250,000 school bond election October 28 was carried 625 to 252.

The vote certifying the returns was taken after E. L. Henderson had opposed such action on the grounds that the question of the bonds had been misrepresented to the citizens of Greenville and also on the complaint that the election was illegal in that disqualified persons participated in the voting.

Raleigh B. Lee, city attorney, explained that the commissioners were not sitting as a court, but their duty was merely to pass on the record they had before them.

It was brought out that any further action to nullify the issuance of the bonds could be taken to the courts and Mr. Henderson indicated this step might be taken when he asked the city attorney if an injunction would not halt the sale of all or any of the bonds and was advised that it would.

KURUSHI VISITS WHITE HOUSE

No Immediate Information On Topics Discussed

Washington, Nov. 17. — (AP) — A formal conference brought President Roosevelt and Japan's special envoy, Saburo Kurusu, together for more than an hour today to talk of "many things" centering around the explosive Far Eastern situation.

But there was no indication immediately whether any satisfactory progress had been made toward achieving a better understanding on Pacific problems between this country and Japan or whether any decisions were approached which might lead to assurance of continued peace in the Pacific.

As they entered a waiting limousine, reporters pressed them for information.

"Was a satisfactory beginning made?" the ambassador was asked. Kurusu dug an elbow into Nomura's ribs and admonished against answering. The special envoy merely laughed when he was asked if he suggested upon his arrival in this country Saturday that he might score a touchdown in his conversations with American officials.

Before their reception by Mr. Roosevelt in the White House Red room, the Japanese had met with Hull at the State Department.

Christian Science Service.
"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, November 16.

The golden text was from 1. Cor. 15:48. "As is the earthly such are they also that are earthly; and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly." Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again." (John 3:5-7).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "In Science man is the offspring of Spirit. The beautiful, good, and pure constitute his ancestry. Spirit is his primitive and ultimate source of being; God is his Father, and

Episcopal Convocation
Saturday—Business session. This meeting was mainly devoted to reports of the progress of work in the different sections of the convocation district. All parishes represented were called upon by the Dean to give brief accounts of their condition. The evangelist told of the missionary work in his charge. The question of supplying the demand for labor was introduced by the great need of workers shown by these encouraging reports.

Sunday—At the morning service the Bishop preached the sermon and administered the Holy Communion. In the afternoon there was the rite of baptism. At night there was evening service. One candidate was presented for confirmation.

By the use of large white footprints on the grass guests were invited to enter at the east entrance, where they were welcomed by several of the hosts. In each room at least one of the occupants was present, to talk with the callers and answer questions. Punch was served for refreshments.

Many comments were heard on the neatness of the quarters, especially the well-made beds, and the individual touches in the various rooms, in the curtains at the windows, growing plants on window sills, the use of window shades for the one or two wardrobes without doors, and lamp shades made by some of the men for their lights.

The callers enjoyed also the placards here and there, one a circle graph like a clock face with hands that would show where the occupants of one room would be at certain hours, another a hint to callers who might drop in on the average college day—"If you can't be quiet, don't come in."

Clifton Britton of Milwaukee, a graduate student, is in charge of the men's quarters. Other members of the dormitory group and hosts of the evening were O. D. A. A. U. W. To Meet.

The dinner meeting of the A. A. U. W. Tuesday night will be held in the home of Mrs. E. B. Ferguson, at 609 W. Fourth street, instead of at the place originally announced, according to Mrs. D. S. Spain, Jr., chairman of the Social Committee of the local branch. Dr. Elizabeth Fuller Jackson, vice-president of the American Association of University Women for the South Atlantic region, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the meeting.

Dr. Jackson, who has taught history for a number of years at Agnes Scott College, near Atlanta, is a leader in the Atlanta branch of the A. A. U. W., and has held various national offices in the association.

In Greenville she will be the guest of Miss Louise Williams, president of the Greenville branch.

Observe 'Open House.'
The men housed in the men's dormitory section of Ragsdale Hall were hosts to the whole college Friday night in an "Open House" that lasted from 8 until 10 o'clock and brought around 300 students and faculty members in for a short visit.

WILSON'S Thanksgiving RECIPES

What's better for Thanksgiving than turkey? A new combination—two great American meats...carve and serve slices of plump, tender Certified Turkey on top of mouth-watering broiled slices of Wilson's Certified Tender Made Ham. What a flavor bouquet these two meats make together on each plate! What delicious meal possibilities clear through the week-end! Try this new "double feature" for your Thanksgiving.

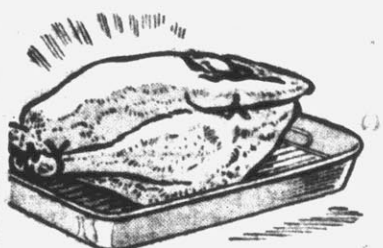

George Rector
Food Consultant
Wilson & Co.

Roast Turkey Supreme

Since your Thanksgiving dinner depends on tender, juicy poultry, take no chances. Insist on Wilson's Certified Poultry (turkey, chicken, duck or goose). Look for the Wilson Certified label.

Rub the inside cavity of a Wilson Certified Turkey with salt. Stuff lightly. Truss. Lay on a rack in a roasting pan. Grease with sausage fat. Cover with a fat-moistened cloth. Roast uncovered in a moderate oven (325° F.) about 22 minutes per pound or until the thigh joint moves easily.

SAUSAGE STUFFING
1 lb. Wilson's Certified Pure Pork Sausage links fried lightly, then sliced thin. 1/4 cup Clear Brook Butter. 8 cups stale bread cut in 1/2-inch cubes. 1/2 teaspoon each salt, pepper, sage and minced onion. This makes enough for an 8-pound turkey.

LITTLE HINTS THAT MAKE A BIG DIFFERENCE

Turkey: For extra juiciness don't sear, cover, nor add water.

Ham: There's only one genuine—it's Wilson's Certified Tender Made Ham. It's the famous "ham you cut with a fork," made only by Wilson & Co. Ready to serve or just heat and eat.

Pumpkin Pie: Make with the new vitamin-enriched flour and Wilson's Certified Pure Lard (to get a rich, tender, flaky crust). See my recipe inside the top of the double sealed lard container.

Cheese: Serve Wilson's Certified American Cheese in fancy triangles on top your pumpkin pie.

Rector recommends Wilson's new, fresh Gela Seald Beef, Lamb and Veal. They're kept "Cooler-Fresh" by a coating of pure edible gelatin which guards against the loss of precious meat juices.

See you next week, G. R.

American Home Dept. Meets.
The American Home Department of the Woman's Club held its regular meeting Friday afternoon, November 13, with Mrs. D. H. Conley, chairman, presiding.

Mrs. C. E. Oakley introduced the speaker, Miss Louise Swann. Her subject was "Holiday Decorations" and every phase was interesting, especially since the holiday season is so near. She emphasized the following: First, what do I have available that I may make my decorations individual? Second, do I have a hobby or talent in my family group that may be used? Third, what occupations in family may be used—electrician, etc. Four outdoor decorations, and in that way share Christmas with the passerby. During her talk pictures of her many suggestions were shown separately by being passed through the group. She also had on display several able arrangements which were attractive and individual.

The "Ovillian Defense Pledge" was signed by all members, after Mrs. Dink James explained how much we could help our country by keeping this pledge.

Mrs. W. H. Woolard, chairman of the Red Cross knitting, gave wool to all interested in knitting for our soldiers.

The hostesses, Misses Leslie T. Jones, Mrs. W. M. Spruill and Mrs. Selma Carson Moore, served delicious sandwiches, cookies and hot tea.—Reported.

The vows were spoken before a background of palms, ferns and tall baskets of large white chrysanthemums.

Prior to the ceremony Miss Beth Mowell, organist, rendered a program of nuptial music. Mrs. Ola Tucker sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." Traditional wedding marches were used.

The bride entered with her cousin, Ronald Palmer of Raleigh. She wore an ensemble of Rosewood with brown accessories. Her corsage was of Tailsman roses. Miss Sallie Mae Davis of Washington and Greenville, was maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. Her costume suit was of Winter green with black accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom had as his best man Roland Edwards of Snow Hill. Ushers were R. A. Mewborn, Jr., of Snow Hill, and Norman Wilkerson of Greenville.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left for a wedding trip. On their return they will make their home in Snow Hill.

College Vesper Service.
"Our faith is bound up with all races," said Dr. W. A. Ryan, pastor of the Eighth Street Christian Church, as he spoke at the college vesper service Sunday night and used as his topic better understanding between races and different groups of people.

Study of inter-racial relationship is an essential part of Christian discipleship, declared the speaker, pointing out that in the New Testament no distinction is made between races with reference to the universal Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man.

Aimed at better race understanding and mutual appreciation of each race, and essential to the preservation of our social order and mutual interests such meetings as "The Inter-racial Conference, assembled last week in Durham at the North Carolina College for Negroes, are held. To produce a better social order, all must cooperate not only as good Christians but as good citizens.

Emphasizing the fact that when people know other people better they are nearer to solving the problem than at any other time, the speaker closed his remarks.

President of the Y. M. C. A., read the scripture lesson and introduced the speaker.

fourth Sunday night. Rev. L. R. Ennis of Goldsboro, did the preaching. It was wonderful from the beginning. He has been our pastor in the past, the church under his leadership did some splendid work. We give him credit for us having our Sunday school rooms. They were built then and have proved to be of great value to the Sunday school people. First, it makes us very comfortable during the Sunday school hour when we have cold weather. I am a member of the Willing Workers class and have enjoyed several hours with them in their work, but health does not permit me to attend. Many years have passed. I still remember the girls I learned to love, some are dead, others are living elsewhere and a few charter members of the class are still working and with their splendid teacher, Mrs. B. F. James I am still depending on them. I know just what they can do. I especially want to mention the card class. Mrs. Ed Smith has been their teacher for a great number of years, sometimes when you are in our church, just take a peep inside, the sight of the pretty little room and how it's arranged and just how they love their teacher will convince you what Sunday school rooms are worth.

The crowds at our revival were not so large. Much sickness among our members. We have some that are always faithful. Lots of other churches were represented. We were more than glad to have one more of our old pastors visit us, also his good wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Moye. Rev. Ennis really knows the Bible and proved it. He really did some real preaching. Our denomination is proud of him, the writer having known him when he went to school in Ayden, he lived with us in our home, was a splendid man, and after many years of preparedness, is among the best and still has a host of friends around Reedy Branch.

We extend to him and family a warm welcome to visit us any time. We wish for him many years of active service for the Master. We had the pleasure of hearing several quartets which were very beautiful also Mrs. Pelt. We also enjoy her solos and always look forward to her beautiful singing. Ten were added to the church and will be baptized Sunday at 3 o'clock. Rev. Chester Pelt is our pastor, and with the aid of his good wife are doing great work. The church has an active L. A. S. and S. S. We had the misfortune to lose our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. Cleveland Vincent, Jr. Uncle Sam called him in August. We regretted this very much, so the assistant, Mr. C. F. Little, is going his best.

Mrs. Hursel Bowers is in Pitt General Hospital, and is improving from her operation.

Mr. Frank Little has been sick for some time, went to the Veterans' Hospital in Fayetteville and is doing nicely.

Mr. Hubert Vincent continues sick, his leg was broken over a year ago, also complications set in and at this writing is still sick.

James A. Little is still going to school at E. C. T. C. Also is a football player. First the players went to South Carolina to play there on one of Rick's bus, had a nice trip and won the game, last week 27 of the "players" went again to New York on Wednesday, returned on Sunday night, had a swell trip, although very cold and it snowed, they won the game 13 to 7. The players went to Gastonia in the western part of the state.

Mrs. B. F. Little and son, Norman Little, visited at Veterans Hospital in Fayetteville Wednesday.

Charlie Hagan Little is at Fort Bragg, now one of Uncle Sam's boys. Mrs. Charlie Little has been sick two weeks with infection of wisdom teeth, is now improving.

Mr. Kenneth James, Auralia Vincent and Nannie Lou Little attended a business meeting of the Young People's League at Mrs. Faulner's Wednesday night.

4-H Clubs Meet.
Chicod, Grimesland, Bellarthur, Fountain, Stokes, Pactolus and Farmville 4-H clubs met last week. The attendance was good at all the meetings. The girls and boys met together for the business meeting after which they separated for the program. Mr. Griggs discussed poultry with the boys. Grimesland, Chicod, Bellarthur, Fountain and Stokes girls have Foods and Nutrition for their major project. Miss Kirby discussed the importance of milk in the diet. The lecture included a discussion of the contents of milk, milk products, care of milk and the uses of all milk products.

A demonstration of the making of cocoa was given. Girls were encouraged to use more milk in the diet by trying out new recipes including milk dishes and milk drinks. Pactolus and Farmville girls are taking room improvement for their major project. Miss Kirby discussed room arrangement and the hanging of pictures with these groups. Several girls reported the improvements they had started making and others gave their plans for making improvements.

Older Youth Meets.
The Pitt county older youth organization of young men and women from 18 to 25 years of age met with a group of former 4-H club girls at East Carolina Teachers College last Tuesday night to assist in the organization of an East Carolina Teachers College 4-H club.

The meeting was presided over by John Watson, who is president of the Pitt county older youth club, the sponsoring organization.

Mr. Herbert Waldrop of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, gave a very interesting and practical talk to the group on money saving and investments.

Following the talk the college girls voted to organize a college 4-H club in order to continue the 4-H club work and keep posted on the state 4-H club program.

Willie Mae Daniels of Granville county was elected president of the college club. Miss Daniels has had wide and valuable experience in 4-H club work in her home county. She was president of the Oxford 4-H club for two years, president of the county 4-H council for two years, and vice-president of the state 4-H council for one year. She was chosen as "best all-round" 4-H club girl in the state for which she was awarded a trip to the 4-H club conference in Chicago. Under her leadership the ECTC 4-H club should get off to a good start.

Sue Parker of Jones county, was elected vice-president. Miss Parker has had seven years of club work in the Pollockville club and was elected delegate to the National 4-H Club Congress in Washington, D. C., in 1940. She has held the office of vice-president, secretary and reporter, respectively, in her home county.

Laurene Marshburn of Sampson county, was elected secretary of the college 4-H club. She served as secretary of a local 4-H club in her home county.

Jewel Langley of Nash county, was elected treasurer. She served as president of a 4-H club in Nash county one year and won the county prize for the best scrap book on room improvement.

Annie Kate Evans of Sampson county, was elected reporter. Miss Evans served as president of her local club and as secretary of the county 4-H council.

Lucy Warren, who did outstanding 4-H club work in her home county, was elected historian.

Farmville Club Meets.
Twenty-one of the Farmville Home Demonstration club members met at their club house on Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. J. R. Lewis, president, presiding. After the roll call and minutes, the treasurer gave a report stating that the Farmville club had made enough money this fall to pay in full the debt on the club house. The members rejoiced at this report. Mrs. Lizzie Allen then made a short talk on Vitamins For Defense as the minor project for the month. Mrs. R. R. Fields, chairman of the Defense Committee, told the club members of two Radio Chats she had given, in which she encouraged all homemakers to do their part in the National Preparedness program. She had also contacted the Red Cross for garments for the club members to make. Each club member pledged their support by promising to make one or more garments.

Food for Defense was the subject.
The minimum goals for Pitt county for 1942 for food defense were given. After the goals were presented to the club members, ways and plans for obtaining such were made.

In this great agricultural program this community said they would help by producing their food and feed in 1942.

Strength For The Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO SEEK?
Jesus expressed His idea of the chief good in life with these words:
"Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."— (Matt. 6:33).

These words have come down to us, of course, in Greek. But it is interesting to observe that the Greek word translated "seek" in this statement really means "to beat the bushes for birds." So the declaration of our Lord really means, Put first in your life the kingdom of God and seek after it like a man beating the bushes for game.
There is nothing too difficult for the hunter, once he starts after his quarry. He forgets about food. No hill is too high to be scaled, no underbrush too thick to be broken down. He will go from sunrise to sunset; he will scale rocks and wade streams; the baying of the hounds is like music in his ears. What he would not do for the love of money, he does for the love of hunting.
Seek the kingdom in the same way, said our Lord. Let your enthusiasms never die down. No obstacle is too great to be surmounted, no sacrifice too agonizing to be endured. Put the kingdom as the object of your getting, and throw yourself into the search with the exultant zeal of a man on the trail of game.

WE ARE DELIGHTED

Greenville is the proud host today to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, truly America's "First Lady," both from the standpoint of being the wife of our beloved President and for her record of activities in behalf of the people of her nation. A woman of rare charm and almost unlimited energies and capabilities, she is a Democrat, not just in the political sense, but in fact. Mrs.
Roosevelt is a person well known to the American people, although there are millions of them who have never seen her, and in welcoming her into our midst today we can truthfully say,
"We are delighted."

IT SHOULD BE THE END

The coal strike situation seems to have settled down to the one issue of whether or not John L. Lewis will be able to dictate to the United States what it can and cannot do, regardless of its effect upon the preparedness program and the future safety of America. In view of this fact, it seems to us that it is high time the administration let Mr. Lewis know once and for all that as a factor in American affairs, he is through. John L. Lewis is not only America's enemy No. 1 at this time, but he is likewise organized labor's worst enemy in that he is willing to sacrifice the rank and file of labor and bring it into disrepute with the American people just to avenge his grudge against President Roosevelt. For a long time Mr. Lewis has been literally asking for trouble,

and we believe that in the present case he has stuck his neck out too far, for if we know the sentiment of the American people they are not going to stand for any more trouble as a result of the C. I. O. leader's efforts to dictate to the country.
America should write 'Finis' to John L. Lewis without further delay.

NO TURNING BACK NOW

Reports from the Far East are to the effect that the United States can keep peace with Japan and avert war in the Pacific only by a complete reversal of this country's policy in China and the Pacific. America's answer to such a proposal should be an emphatic "No," backed up by a willingness to fight if necessary. There is no turning back in America's policy to China. We cannot "sell China down the river" and we should lose no time in letting Japan know that we have neither the desire or intention of doing so.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Strimmet

Washington — Russian politics is as turbulent as a waterspout and no better proof of it is to be found than how Maxim Litvinov, sucked down into obscurity two years ago, now has been hoisted again to the saddle and handed that all-important portfolio, Ambassador to the United States.

The life of this round, jovial bolshevik, for many years described as the only great diplomat that the Soviet has produced, has moved in strangely overlapping circles.

His revolutionary activity started in 1898, when he was 22 years old and he never deviated from that line. A year later, he was sentenced to five years in Siberia, but escaped after 18 months, and from then on spent more time out of Russia than in it. When the present Soviet state emerged in 1918, he was an exile in England, bringing the wrath of that nation down on his head by speeches advocating peace.
When Bruce Lockhart, the British diplomat in Moscow, was arrested and charged with being an agent provocateur, it was Litvinov who was seized in England as a hostage and the exchange of these two "prisoners" brought Litvinov home and started him on a 20-year career that was uninterrupted by the drastic upheavals and purges that so often changed the Soviet political scene.

Almost single-handed, Litvinov was responsible for the recognition of the USSR, culminating for him in what was a great personal victory when, after 15 years of fighting for it, he obtained the recognition of the United States in 1933. Had the U. S. recognized the Soviet in 1919, Litvinov would have been its first ambassador to the United States, for he had that commission in his pocket and was on his way to Washington when State Department representatives in Stockholm turned him back by refusing to give him an American visa.

Never until 1939 was Litvinov out of favor with the heads of his party.
The ordinarily cold, aloof Lenin seemed to have a warm affection for him, referred to him often as "Papasha" (Dear Father), and Stalin had continued that affection until he and his diplomat parted ways over Stalin's relationship with Hitler.

A life long advocate of peace and total disarmament by all nations, Litvinov apparently couldn't stomach giving the nod to Nazi aggression.
He "resigned" from office and had almost disappeared from the public scene when he was recalled to take over the Washington post and presumably to rehabilitate the USSR's diplomatic standing with the United States and the world.

By one of those quirks of international romance, the new hostess of the Russian embassy here will be an English lady, for while in exile in England, Litvinov married Ivy Low, daughter of Sir Sydney Low, a famous barrister; and niece of Sir Maurice Low, a prominent journalist. Mme. Litvinov is herself a skilled musician and well-known author of fiction.

As host and hostess of the big Soviet embassy on Sixteenth street, the Litvinovs will have no trouble with their hosting. Time was when not so many months ago when a Soviet society function had about the same attendance and atmosphere as a county creperanger's convention, but that's all changed.
When Mme. Constantine A. Ouman-sky, wife of the former ambassador, with other embassy officials, tossed their little farewell party the other day on the event of the 24th anniversary of the Russian revolution, no less than 3,000 guests appeared, jamming traffic for blocks along Sixteenth street, making a shambles of the spacious cloak-rooms; stripping to the bone those great portions of sturgeon and clearing the plates of caviar before the party was two-thirds over.

Mme. Oumansky turned off a masterpiece of understatement when she called it "the biggest reception we ever had." It was the biggest and most glittering reception Washington has had since the present World War was born.

mended the practice of praying for the President of the United States.
"And while you're at it, don't forget the Governor of North Carolina," he added.

Sweetheart.—Mrs. Ruth Robinson, vivacious blonde secretary of Charles Parker, manager of the State News Bureau, went down to Southport during the meeting of the directors of the Outdoor Writers Association of America, recently held there. Immediately the Outdoormen elected her "Sweetheart of OWAA." The next week the newly chosen goddess of the chase went hunting and bagged two geese and two ducks, a thing she had never been able to accomplish before.
"There must be something in a name after all."

Neighbors.—Judging by the inquiries received by the Department of Conservation and Development from prospective visitors to North Carolina, President Roosevelt's good neighbor campaign is taking effect in South America.
During recent weeks the department has received more inquiries from the other Americas than at any other time in its history.

Jaypees.—There are many state officials who think that something ought to be done to clean up the justice of the Peace courts of the state. They don't like the business of the magistrates' fees depending on conviction any more than does Judge Luther Hamilton. But most of them hope that the Supreme Court will overrule Judge Hamilton in the case "in re Eldon Streele" which is to be argued here next week.

If the court decides with Judge Hamilton it will mean the overthrow of all the magistrate's courts and will necessitate a special session of the Legislature, said one.
And there is nothing Raleigh dreads more than a special session.

Birthrate.—Since the selected service act was passed, in fact since it first began to be discussed, there has been a decided increase in the North Carolina birthrate. For several years it had been dropping steadily but in 1940 began to climb and has been going up ever since.
Last year there were approximately 22 births per 1,000 population. The rate last month was over

25. The prospect is that the state will pay at least 5,000 more visits to North Carolina this year than in 1940.

Fund.—The Old North State
Fund, by which the people of North Carolina intend to buy an amphibian ambulance airplane to serve British flying forces, is within less than 10 per cent of its $75,000 goal.
December 1 is the deadline.

Civilian Defense Insignia

The Office of Civilian Defense has released illustrations and specifications of dimensions, colors, and materials for 16 different insignia.
Each of the activities in civilian defense, 15 in number, will have a distinctive design which the volunteer workers, after they have been enrolled and trained, will wear on white armbands or embroidered on the left sleeve of uniforms, 1 inch below the shoulder seam. One of the insignia is shown below.

AUXILIARY POLICE

Auxiliary Police will be identified by a red shield within white triangle set in blue circle.

During emergencies, such as air raids, fires, floods, etc., men and women volunteers will be needed to aid local police.

Auxiliary Police officers may be called upon to aid in enforcement of emergency restriction on lighting and trespassing; guarding docks, bridges, and factories against sabotage; guarding against the looting of partially demolished shops and homes.

The wearing of this insignia is limited to workers enrolled as Auxiliary Police in the city of Greenville Civilian Defense Organization.

Is it Love? by MARGARETTA BRUCKER

Chapter 30
The Rains Came

Sue Ellen was jealous. Insanely jealous of Deedora.

Before she went away, Ginny had told her that Riv refused to stay with one maid in the great lonely plantation house which was four miles down a winding road from Belle Acres. Sue Ellen wondered what Deedora thought, shut in with her own thoughts and the rain.
Finally, one afternoon, she decided to visit her.

Having made this decision, her mind cleared. Why hadn't she thought of doing this before? No matter how much Deedora hated her, they could talk things over sensibly and reach an understanding.

When she announced that she must drive out to Belle Acres to see just how much damage the storm had done, Aunt Pleas objected vigorously. "That place will be cold and damp as the grave, and it's risky to drive those clay roads when they're slippery."

She promised to be careful and stubbornly continued her preparations.

"You can't go alone. Uncle Freeman must go along and build a fire where you can dry your clothes and wait if the storm should delay you."

"The storm won't delay me. Besides—it isn't raining now."

Aunt Pleas stood staring through the windows at the sullen sky. "I don't like that sky," she grumbled.
"Aunt Jennie says we're going to have a wind storm."

"Aunt Jennie's a goose," Sue Ellen buttoned her coat about her throat and stopped to drop a kiss on her aunt's forehead. "You miss Aunt Jennie, don't you, Aunt Pleas?"

"That's dear, but I shouldn't want you out of my sight. But please be careful."

Uncle Freeman sat huddled in the car. "We're agoin' to have a bad storm, Miss Sue Ellen." He shook his head gloomily.

Sue Ellen stepped firmly on the starter. "You're as bad as Aunt Pleas. She's always predicting trouble."

"I feel in my bones somepin's goin' to happen," he grumbled, hunching down into his faded overcoat. "I suah don't like that sky."

Aunt Pleas was right. The roads were bad—slippery, washed away in places, and treacherous. Sue Ellen decided to drive straight to Belle Acres and take her aunt's advice and leave Uncle Freeman to build a fire. From there she would go on to see Deedora and later return and pick up Uncle Freeman.

Out Of The Storm
As they turned into the gates of Belle Acres, the rain suddenly ceased, but the wind arose and with hurricane force rocked the car and fairly swept them off their feet as they staggered onto the veranda.
The wind caught the door which she finally succeeded in opening and crashed it closed behind them.
It was only two in the afternoon, but the sky was black as ink.

Uncle Freeman was terrified and moaned and groaned until Sue Ellen turned upon him severely and ordered him to look for candles in the kitchen. She remembered that some workmen had used candles.
She told him to bring in wood from the shed and build a roaring fire.
She was frightened herself. The wind bent the trees—it screamed down the chimney—it died and then arose again, bringing a deluge of rain with it.

The fire blazed up on the hearth and she drew up a chair and crouched over the blaze, hoping Aunt Pleas would not be too frightened, and angry with herself because she had neglected to have a telephone installed at Belle Acres.
She watched the eerie dancing flames in the fireplace and the flickering candlelight shining on the walland carpets, listened to Uncle Freeman putting about in the distant kitchen where he was building a fire in the range.

"Why should you build up a fire in that cook stove?" she demanded.
"You can sit in here with me, Uncle Freeman."

But he stubbornly shook his head.
She could hear the stove lid rattle and then every sound was lost in another, which pierced the roar of the storm. A human voice—calling —crying.

At first she thought it some animal in distress. The cry was so piercing so unnerving, and then she was flying to the hall door and struggling to hold it as the wind and the rain swept through from the outside.

She had been mistaken — there was no one there—who could be there?

She ran back for a candle and the wind blew out the flame, and then in the darkness which faced her she heard the cry again.

Piteous—pleading.

She ran out with the wind whipping her hair and tearing at her skirts, and halfway across the veranda stumbled over someone.

It seemed an eternity before her call brought Uncle Freeman to help her, and together they managed to pick up the figure lying face down ward on the veranda floor.

It was Deedora, of wood, litte later, lay on the sofa in the front room with the firelight patterning weird shadows on her anguished face.

There was no doubt about the reason for Deedora's coming, even before she murmured: "I was alone —the telephone is out of order, so I drove—you'll have to help me."

Sue Ellen stood staring down at her and every nerve in her body tightened with a fear beyond any fear she had ever known. How could she help her? Deedora needed a doctor—but Deedora, seeming to read her thought, turned her face, twisted with pain. "There isn't time. Don't leave me—" Her voice died away.

Sue Ellen turned and saw Uncle Freeman standing in the doorway with an armful of wood.

"Get blankets from the chest upstairs," she ordered. "Then come down and fill everything in the house with water. Heat it."

Uncle Freeman dropped the wood with a thud on the polished floor.
He shook his grizzled head. "I knewed somepin' would happen," he mumbled. "All dis day I knowed—"
"Will you hurry," said Sue Ellen sharply. She was already kneeling beside Deedora, stripping off her wet sodden clothes.

"I'll Never Leave You"

At Four o'clock in the morning, the fire burned low on the hearth and shed a red glow over the front drawing room at Belle Acres. Uncle Freeman stood with his back to the candlelight, warming blank-kets. Blankets stretched across chairs, shut off the view of Dedora's weary figure on the sofa. Sue Ellen sat in a chair with her disheveled head against the chair back and her arms dangling over its arms. She was tired but triumphant. Across her knees lay a bundle wrapped in a soft bit of wool.
With Sue Ellen's bright yellow scarf swathing her head and body. Just a tiny button nose and a wrinkled red cheek and a tiny groping hand were visible.

The baby was Deedora's son and he was alive and strong, although the struggle to save him had exhausted her so completely that Sue Ellen wondered if she could ever move again.

The storm continued. Any attempt to go for help was out of the question until morning. Then Aunt Pleas would send someone to bring her home and she could call for Doctor Warren. She lifted the baby close to her breast. She was becoming drowsy.

When she opened her eyes, the dawn had come. A grey dawn with the wind still moaning about the house and whipping the trees.

Uncle Freeman tiptoed in and stood in the doorway. "Ain't no way to get back to town," he told her.
"Watah's risin' and floodin' all those fields, Miss Sue Ellen. Reckon it will come up here?"

She felt a new alarm. "Of course not," she told him.

Uncle Freeman built up the fire and she realized that there was no food, and what if no one came and she was left alone, with Deedora helpless and the baby waking and
crying.

Just then there was a quick step on the front veranda.
Before she could rise, the step reached the front door—it was coming across the hall—

"Johnny! Johnny!"
He looked so tall as he stood there for a minute, before he was beside her chair, and then he stopped and stared down at the bundle of wrappings in her arms.

Sue Ellen pushed back the yellow scarf and showed him the tiny wrinkled face. "It's Deedora's," she said simply. "It was born last night.
Uncle Freeman helped me—"

She was shaking all over as she remembered. Johnny's tall figure blurred, grew hazy—everything turned black.

When she opened her eyes, Johnny knelt beside her with a glass in his hand and Uncle Freeman, looking terrified and ludicrous, stood beside her holding the baby.

"I fainted!"
Johnny nodded. He set down the glass and took her in his arms and held her tight against his breast. "I shall never let you go. What a fool
I was to leave you. What a fool
I was to leave you. What a fool
I was to leave you."

Her fingers touched his rough brown hair. "You haven't kissed your wife, Johnny Harris," she whispered.

She went away then, but looked back from the stairway and could see Johnny sitting by the fire, awkwardly cuddling Deedora's son. His lean face was tender—one big finger curiously touching a tiny groping hand.

"I love you, Johnny Harris," she said over and over to herself as she ran up the long wide stairs.

Wade May Accept Bowl Bid In Order Get Golf Course

GOT $100,000 FOR '38 GAME

Such Sum Would Provide Dandy Links At Duke

AP Feature Service
Durham, Nov. 17.—Because Coach Wallace Wade of Duke wants to build a new golf course, there's a chance that the undefeated Blue Devils would accept a bowl bid this year.
If it weren't for that burning desire to improve the athletic facilities at Duke, Wade wouldn't even consider a bowl bid. He'd turn thumbs-down quicker than a sadist at a Roman circus.
But a bowl appearance would mean a big slice of cash, and Wade, who's in charge of the whole athletic setup at Duke, could use that booty to build the links.
Even the lure of bowl money, though, might not be enough to cause Wade to recommend acceptance of a bowl bid, if such a bid were received.
Wade took a Duke team to the Rose Bowl in 1938, came back with $100,000, and soon built a castle of a gymnasium. He wasn't too enthusiastic, though, about the trip.
The fact of the matter is that the coach and most Duke administrative officials now are opposed to post season contests, on grounds that studies take a beating and that the games are too far away.
The Duke administration would almost certainly follow Wade's recommendation in regard to a bowl bid this year.
Wade won't talk for quotation on the bowl question, but he says rather wistfully:
"You know, it would be mighty nice if our students had a golf course."

Carver Library News

The drive to raise funds for The George W. Carver Library has begun. There will be heard on the air from Station WGII at 6:05 p. m. until 6:15 various persons speaking in interest of the library. Tonight, speaking for Rev. J. E. Tillet, will be Rev. E. S. Parker, principal of the Simpson Colored School. Please tune in.
The George Washington Carver Library, since it first opened its doors to the Negro reading public on February 15, 1940, has surely justified the interest and effort of those persons who worked untiringly for its organization. It has undoubtedly supplied free recreational enjoyment to many of our people.

ple, who otherwise could never have afforded it. Its value in providing wholesome habits of reading enjoyment for our young people cannot be underestimated.
In the spring of 1940, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, Mrs. E. W. Harvey, and Mrs. Lizzie Kearney appeared before the city board of aldermen asking for the city to guarantee the rent on a house that could be used for library purposes. At their meeting in July, the board agreed to pay the rent on a place that met the approval of a committee appointed by the mayor. The city water and light department allowed the minimum water and light rate free of charge. The first books were donated and some new ones bought with money which had accrued from donations. The city now allows a monthly sum for the purchase of books. To this sum has been recently added ten dollars per month by the state library fund. The WPA supplies the services of a librarian. The general maintenance of the library, including wood, coal, cleaning materials, library supplies as paste, shellac, date due cards, etc., is dependent on the Negro citizenry of Greenville. For the past year, through the kindness of Mr. Warner of the Plaza theater, we have received substantial checks which have assured finance for operation. Contributions from clubs have greatly helped.
At the beginning of the current year, a budget of $75 was made, which the executive committee with the aid of subordinate committees, felt was sufficient for the year's general running expenses of the library. In order to meet this budget for maintenance, the library is sponsoring a financial drive, and we are asking that all Negro citizens make some contribution to it.

Dr. J. A. Battle, chairman of the finance committee and acting chairman of the library campaign, will launch the opening of the drive with a radio talk tomorrow evening, November 16th, at 6:05 o'clock. This program will be brought to you in various ways during the week. On Monday evening at 6:05 o'clock the Reverend J. E. Tillet will speak; on Tuesday evening Father Maurice; on Wednesday the Reverend J. A. Nimmo; on Thursday the Reverend S. P. League; on Friday the Reverend Hill and on Saturday, Prof. C. M. Eppes will consummate all that has been said during the week. The C. M. Eppes High School Glee club will sing on the program.
Don't fail to make your contribution when the actual campaign begins during the week of November 23rd.

We wish to thank Father Maurice for the gift of a number of very useful books.

The Pirates of East Carolina Teachers College Saturday continued their winning streak, defeating Belmont Abbey 13-0, with touchdowns in the first and third quarters.
It was the first defeat for the Belmont Crusaders on their home grounds in five years.
The first period touchdown was scored when the Pirates took the ball on their own 35 and marched to pay dirt in consecutive line plays. Schuerholz plunged over from the half-yard mark.
In the third quarter, the Pirates recovered a fumble on the Crusaders' 27. Schuerholz made 15 yards on an off-tackle play and then Teague passed to Cooper in the end zone.

WITH only a few more weeks of football remaining, only a few dozen stars are left as All-America contenders. Here are three aces still in the running:

FRANK ALBERT'S all-round fine running, passing and quarterbacking has kept Stanford among the far western leaders.

Our scouts in the mid-west say there is no better tackle than DICK WILDUNG, Minnesota's burly forward.

JIMMY NELSON has stood out in every Alabama game. In Bama's first six contests he averaged 5 yards a try lugging the ball, completed 15 of 30 passes, scored 36 points and boasted a punting average of 41 yards.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The stock market was beset mainly by labor problems today and leading issues failed to work up a definite trend.

Prices shifted in fractions at the start and, near the fourth hour, the direction still was inconclusive. A few sizable blocks of low-priced stocks made for intermittent activity, but dealings on the whole were slow.

The car alleged to have been driven by Stewart struck Mrs. D. W. Bailey, walking along the side of the road, as it started to pass a bus. The driver failed to stop and officers have continued their investigation since. Mrs. Bailey was painfully, but not seriously injured.

Says Ship Under Attack In Pacific

Balboa, Canal Zone, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The U. S. 15th Naval district ordered its patrols on the alert today following receipt in maritime circles of unconfirmed reports that a British-operated transport ship had been attacked in the Pacific apparently by an Axis raider.

The ship attacked, according to these unconfirmed reports, was the 4,375-ton Olga Topica.

Naval circles reported that officers of a Greek vessel arriving here told of hearing the Olga Topica sending an SOS reporting she was being attacked.

The Olga Topica left Balboa November 13, and was believed to be sailing down the Pacific coast of South America en route to Chile.

the outlying boundaries of the country and the lack of army camps, the people apparently were not aware to the seriousness of the situation.

The emergency is a time for sacrifice, she said, and should we become embroiled in the world conflict, the need for sacrifices will be even greater. Women, she pointed out, and the children, can help to do their part by signing consumers' pledges and help in every way to conserve food and other resources of our nation. Likewise, she said, stronger bodies mean stronger minds and every citizen should be directed toward proper diets, proper rest periods and proper care of one's own health as well as the health of those about. Examinations for the army and the CCC camps, she said, have shown certain health deficiencies in this country, that should not exist and she expressed hope for the day in the early future when each community would feel its duty to see to the health of its citizens, both young and old.

Orders Reduction In Liquor Prices

Raleigh, Nov. 14.—The price of at least one commodity is scheduled for reduction on December 1. That is liquor.

The impending reduction, which will be quite small and only on certain brands—has been evident during the hearings of the State Alcohol Beverage Control Board which ended yesterday afternoon.

Probably in no case will the reduction be as large as the increase on October 1 when, due to increased federal taxes, prices were raised. Several of the companies, however, are reducing their share of the price. The new price cut will become effective on the first of next month.

Few realize that considerably less than half of the retail price of liquor goes to the distiller, the distributors and the 26 wet counties which sell it in North Carolina. Take, for instance, a $2 quart of bourbon whiskey which is about as cheap as a customer of average stomach can get by with. Half of that goes to the federal government which levies an excise tax of $4 a gallon. The state gets approximately 15 cents as it levies an 8 1/2 percent sales tax on liquor, the tax being included in the $2. That leaves 85 cents to be distributed among all those, including the counties, which are in the liquor business.
