HITLER CLAIMS GERMAN GAIN ON EASTERN FRONT

Roosevelt May Delay Action In Mine Dispute

MAY WAIT ON CIO MEETING

Troops, However, Stand Ready To Take Over Captive Pits; Numerous Commercial Mines Closed Down By Sympathy Strikes; Congress Reportedly Given Go-Ahead On Anti-Strike Measure

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Despite the steady spread of sympathy strikes in the commercial mines and some violence, an authoritative source said today that President Roosevelt probably would withhold executive action in the captive coal mine dispute until after the CIO concludes its national convention in Detroit Friday.

Washington, Nov. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, declaring that work in captive coal mines must recommence, called upon steel company and union executives today to maintain a status quo on the issue of a "closed shop" for the period of the national emergency or to submit this issue to arbitration, agreeing to accept in advance any decision reached.

The chief executive laid his alternative before John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers; Benjamin Fairless, president of United States Steel; Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel; and Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, in identical letters.

Preparations for the use of troops were said to be complete down to the last details, which includes special instruction to the men on how to comport themselves in the presence of mine workers. The time table calls for occupation of the captive mine centers within a few hours after the necessary orders are issued.

However, informed quarters emphasized, there has been no final decision yet to use the army. Mr. Roosevelt, one authoritative source indicated, was purposely biding his time and giving CIO's strikers United Mine Workers an opportunity to reconsider the adamant position the union has taken to enforce its demand for a union shop in the captive pits which are owned and operated by the big steel companies.

There was a veiled intimation of the President's attitude in the message he sent to the CIO convention (Continued on Page Six)

RUMORED THAT GEN. WEYGAND TO STEP DOWN

May Resign As Petain's Pro-Consul In Africa

NO COMMENT BY HIGH OFFICIALS

Indications That Official Announcement Will be Forthcoming From Vichy Regime Tomorrow

Vichy, Nov. 19.—(AP)—General Maxime Weygand, who commanded France's last war-time army, walked along the banks of the Allier at dusk tonight, slowly and alone, after conferences with Marshal Petain which may determine France's fate—and perhaps his own.

Even as he walked with his hands clasped behind his back, accompanied not even by his faithful aide, Major Gasser, rumors spread through Vichy that he would step down from his post as Petain's pro-consul in Africa.

This rumor was followed swiftly by another that, after three days of conferences with the aged Marshal, Weygand already had resigned, but had reconsidered and might accept a compromise.

Official circles refused either to confirm or deny reports that his authority in North Africa had been curtailed. There were indications that an official announcement to clarify the situation might be forthcoming tomorrow.

NEW ADVANCES BY FIRST ARMY

Gain In Face Successful Attack by Parachutists

With the First Army in the field, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Despite a successful attack by Red parachute troops upon one Blue airfield, the Blue First Army of Lieut. General Hugh today against the Red Fourth A. Drum claimed further advances Corps commanded by Major General Oscar W. Griswold.

The parachutists, numbering about 150, dropped from a dozen transports and seized an airport at Maxton, N. C., late yesterday. At last reports they were still in control of the situation but strong blue forces had been dispatched to try to capture them.

Sixteen other parachutists who landed at Hamlet, N. C., vital distribution center for General Drum's army, were captured shortly after they jumped from their planes.

The official communique issued by General Drum again reports successes along the battle line to the west of the Pee Dee river, the boundary line between the simulated hostile forces of the war games.

The Reds, it was claimed, were forced to retire west toward their bases beyond the Catawba river, "in some confusion."

Meanwhile, a large-scale parachute attack on Pope Field, the army's huge airfield at Fort Bragg, was launched today by Red forces, but umpires ruled it failed.

The attack was preceded by dive-bombing and ground strafing by army and navy planes.

Forty-two huge transport planes dropped 380 men and 36 officers, along with 100 impres, onto the field at 8:30 a. m. Large scores of "ammunition" and guns descended along with the men.

Col. Neill Creighton, commander of Pope Field, had placed machine guns on all sides of the field and the umpires ruled that these guns "destroyed" the invaders who were not captured, many of them tackled as in a football game, but the defending forces.

It is estimated that there are 250,000 reindeer in Alaska.

The people of Greenville are cordially invited to attend the Union Thanksgiving service, sponsored by the Greenville Ministerial Association, to be held in the Eighth Street Christian church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The following statement was issued by one of the members of the Ministerial Association: "There are so many things for which we should be thankful that it is inconceivable that we should be willing to allow for a day of worship set aside as a time of national thanksgiving for divine goodness to our people."

"To allow the day to become merely another holiday is to desert it and to divert it from its original purpose. The sermon will be delivered by the Reverend Hartwell Campbell, minister of the Emmanuel Baptist church.

Reds Reply Defense Arc Still Intact

German Bombers Reported to Have Raked Both Moscow and Leningrad; Soviets Claim Invaders Are Driven Off In Kalinin Sector; Soviet Advance Reported In Ukraine; Sevastopol Bombed By Nazis

By The Associated Press

Adolf Hitler's high command pictured the German armies as lunging forward once more on the eastern front today, executing "new and successful" attacks, while the Russians declared they had crushed Nazi attempts to pierce Soviet lines north and south of the 200-mile Moscow defense arc.

A Nazi military spokesman said German bombers raked both Moscow and Leningrad during the night and left spreading fires in the Red capital.

Russia's Ukraine armies were reported today to have inflicted a crushing defeat on German troops caught in a trap 25 miles northeast of Rostov-on-Don, while the German high command declared that Axis aviation had opened a new offensive.

A Berlin military spokesman asserted that "the whole Soviet front is definitely threatened, with German pressure centering on the Moscow and Leningrad fronts and in the sector southeast of Lake Ladoga.

The spokesman said about 100 Soviet divisions—approximately 1,500,000 men—were left in the battle lines after the destruction of about 300 out of 400 divisions (about 6,000,000 troops), with which Russia started the war.

A bulletin from the Fuehrer's headquarters reported that 10,000 Russian prisoners had been captured and 171 tanks destroyed during the last three days, out of a total of 200 tanks.

Soviet front line dispatches said two German infantry regiments, supported by tanks and armored cars, had been driven off with bloody losses in repeated attempts to storm across the upper Volga river in the Kalinin sector, 55 miles north of Moscow, and the Red army command gave this general summary of the nearly five months old struggle:

"Our troops are beating off the enemy attacks and destroying equipment and annihilating the manpower of the Germans."

On the Southern (Ukraine) front, the Russians said Marshal Timoshenko's forces had recaptured a number of villages and advanced four to 12 miles—presumably in the fiercely contested battle sector around Rostov-on-Don.

In the Crimean campaign, the German high command said Nazi bombers violently attacked Russia's great Black Sea naval base at Sevastopol, blasting docks, munitions dumps and a ship in the harbor, but there was still no indication of a direct land assault against the stronghold.

The British radio said Russian troops in the Kerch sector had been safely evacuated to the Caucasus, along with their complete equipment and war material.

Officially Russia has not yet recognized the German claim to the capture of Kerch, but the Moscow radio acknowledged that Axis invasion forces estimated at 90,000 troops had cracked Kerch's defenses "at a cost of colossal losses."

Chatham Book Club

The regular meeting of the Chatham Book Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. H. Thomas on Maple street. A most enjoyable sweet course with coffee was served by Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Neal, after which the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Bowling. Old and new business was enacted and the club voted unanimously to purchase a Tubercular Bond. The program chairman presented Mrs. Clayton, who gave a most understanding and well prepared paper on Brazil. She spoke of the founding and size of the republic whose area is one of the greatest in the world. It is peopled mainly by Portuguese, which is the native language, and has a population of about 40 million. The country has immense resources of minerals—iron deposits—produces two-thirds of the world's coffee and has an enormous meat-packing business. Mrs. Clayton spoke of the schools and churches and brought us all into much closer touch with our southern neighbor.

Mrs. Beard gave us several interesting current events, after which the meeting adjourned.—Reported.

End of the Century Club

Mrs. J. L. Little was hostess to the members of the End of the Century Club whom she graciously entertained Tuesday afternoon.

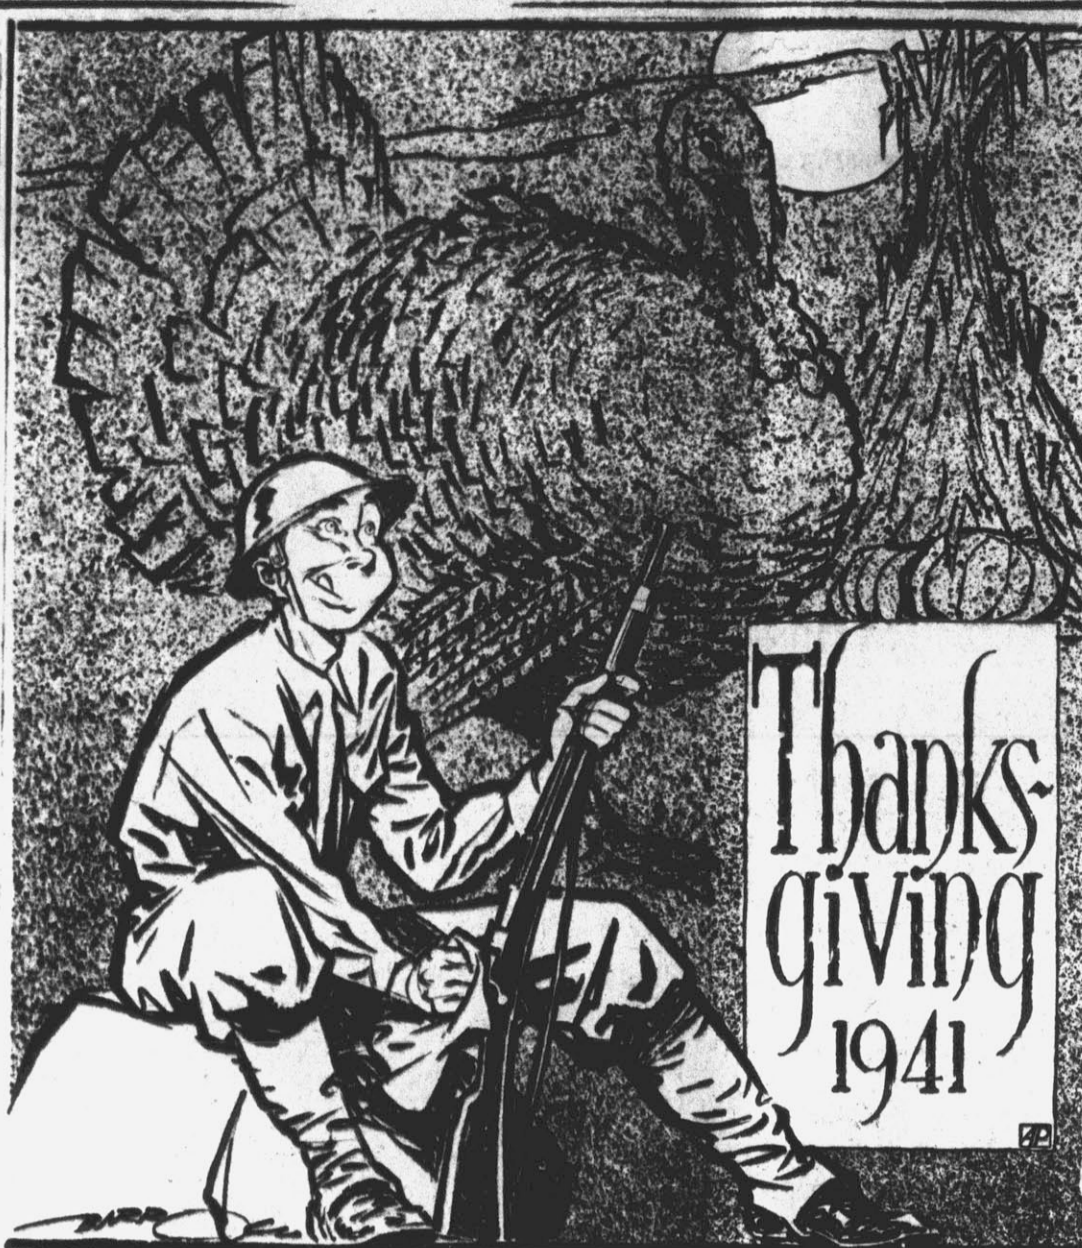

Mrs. Ed Batchelor, president, welcomed the guests, Mrs. Woodley of Suffolk, Va., Mrs. Edward Hamlin of West Point, Miss., and Miss Mary Harding. After the minutes were read and approved the meeting was turned over to Mr. Charles A. White, chairman of the program committee.

Mrs. White presented Mrs. Ed Harvey, the outstanding authority of the club on "The Flora of North Carolina." Mrs. Harvey's discussion was authentic, yet sprinkled with unique and witty side remarks based on fables and superstitions concerning various plants. She gave a clear picture of the flora characteristic of the seaside, salt marsh, sand hills, great forests and the Christmas tree land of the mountains.

Before this beautiful picture faded from our minds, Mrs. White presented Mrs. R. C. Stokes who continued our study of North Carolina history. She discussed "Contributions of certain leaders to the American Revolution and the American Independence."

Mrs. Stokes recalled the origin and characteristics of the early North Carolina settlers, the trials and achievements in their struggle for real independence, education, development of commerce, building of railroads, etc. She discussed many of the Colonial, Revolutionary and early American leaders. The mores, courage, disappointments and strength of these leaders were emphasized. It was interesting and encouraging to note that many of North Carolina's recent and most capable leaders can trace their ancestry to leaders of the Revolutionary period.

At the conclusion of the program, Mrs. Little, assisted by Mrs. J. T. Little, served a delicious salad course.

ACTIVITIES OF BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUB

WHY WE ARE THANKFUL

Thanksgiving Day gives each of us the opportunity to pause for a time and take stock of our blessings.

What have we to be thankful for in this year 1941?
First: We are thankful that we are citizens of the United States of America. By reason of our citizenship we enjoy freedom of press, freedom of speech, freedom of worship.

Second: We are thankful that as women we are voters, workers, defenders of democracy.

Third: We are thankful that we are members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc. for by reason of our membership we can participate in our program "Strengthen Democracy for Defense." Through our program we can contribute to the defense of Main Street. Defense of Main Street means that we are learning to know Main Street, and the problems of its front and back yards, so that we may be prepared to cope with these problems in an intelligent, visioned and realistic way.

—Minnie L. Maffett, M. D., Pres. National Federation Business & Professional Women's Clubs

The Round Table

Mrs. J. W. Higgs was hostess yesterday to the Ladies of the Round Table. The home was attractive with arrangements of chrysanthemums in various colors.

During the roll call each member gave some interesting thought gained from the lecture of Mrs. Roosevelt.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Mrs. J. E. Winslow, the president, gave a very instructive paper on "The Shuttle of the Scholars" of the twenty-one countries of Latin America; eleven of which are South American republics.

Several foundations are awarding fellowships and scholarships for this interchange of students. Congress recently passed a bill providing education for thirty-seven students from South America in our country. Two of these are to be in North Carolina.

The United States is endeavoring to create better commercial and cultural relations with these countries, thereby helping national defense.

Mrs. J. E. Nobles gave interesting news on the agricultural situation of today. Mrs. C. T. Munford, the pronunciation referee, gave a list of modern phrases and words. The hostess and her daughter, Mrs. H. H. Duncan, served a delicious salad course.

Forty-one Book Club

A most enjoyable meeting of the Forty-one Book Club was held at the home of Mrs. Louis Stuart Ficklen Tuesday. Four new members, Mrs. Charles Wilkerson, Mrs. Jim Moye, Mrs. Penrose Perkins and Miss Ruth Pritchard, were welcomed into the club. A letter from Mrs. Henry Harrell, representative of the Clio Book Club, welcoming the Forty-one Club to the group of book clubs in Greenville, was read by Mrs. Boley Farley.

Mrs. N. O. VanNortwick, Jr., discussion of "Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt" was particularly interesting since the First Lady had been a guest in Greenville the day before. In introducing Mrs. VanNortwick gave a brief account of Mrs. Roosevelt's life history, but devoted most of her time to unusual features of her life in the Gold Fish Bowl of the White House. Here she lives simply and easily with her family. Always a perfect hostess, she entertains a great deal, but in a very simple and enjoyable fashion.

Mrs. VanNortwick concluded her talk by stressing the outstanding contribution of Mrs. Roosevelt in the field of women's work over the entire nation. Although she believes in club work for women, she does not think the home should be neglected for civic work.

At the close of the meeting a salad course was served by the hostess. Special guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Louis Dibrell of Danville, mother of Mrs. Ficklen and Mrs. C. L. Loughner of Philadelphia, guest of Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Jr.

National Art Week

The opening day of National Art Week in the Greenville WPA Art Gallery became a red letter day when in the late afternoon Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt came in to see the gallery and the paintings and crafts work on exhibit there for the week.

Following the visit into her already heavy schedule for the day, Mrs. Roosevelt visited the gallery not only as a person genuinely interested in the work being done in WPA art centers throughout the country, but as honorary chairman of the committee on the observance of National Art Week, November 17-23. Greenville is one of five centers in North Carolina in which sales exhibits of work of local artists are on display during this week.

In the Greenville gallery are oils, water colors and block prints done by North Carolina artists—several of which have received favorable comment from critics when shown in galleries in Brooklyn, N. Y., and in Chapel Hill. Among the crafts pieces on sale are lovely handwoven towels, scarves, and other similar articles from the Penland Colony, a number of useful articles made by girls at the NYA center in Greenville. In the gallery work room on the basement floor is an interesting exhibit of paintings, puppets, and clay articles by children in the gallery classes. Of special interest to Mrs. Roosevelt was an exhibit of hand women articles from the State Farm Colony at Kinston. Visitors are invited to see these exhibits from 2 to 6 in the afternoon, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The gallery will be open on Thanksgiving afternoon but not on Saturday.

A. A. U. W. Meets

To one of the largest groups of A. A. U. W. members yet to attend a meeting, Dr. Elizabeth Fuller Jackson of Georgia, director of the national organization for the South Atlantic region, spoke last night at the dinner held by the group.

Dr. Jackson began by saying she wished to give a little history lesson in A. A. U. W. history, "for," said she, "if we see our activities in the light of what our predecessors have done, we can have a better perspective on what we ourselves are doing." She went on to trace in a most interesting way the growth of the American Association of University Women from its beginning out of the loneliness of one young college graduate in Boston when women graduates were few, to the wide scope of the organization today.

She told the first meetings, of the goals these women set for themselves, and the things they have accomplished. She emphasized especially their work in developing better physical education for women in colleges and finishing schools; their establishment of the first accrediting agency in the country to evaluate the work done by colleges and hold the institutions to thorough work, out of which have come all the other such agencies now famous for lifting the standards of work done in colleges and universities; their aid in stimulating graduate study for women; and the practical things they have been able to do for the public schools.

She was introduced by Miss Louise Williams, president of the Greenville branch, who said "There are several reasons why we are happy to welcome our speaker. A graduate of Wellesley and of the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Jackson is a student and a scholar, and we know she has something to say which we shall be glad to hear. Since her special field is modern European history, she has the advantage over most of us of being more nearly able to take the long view. She can more nearly say, 'Here is this present, which grew out of this past, and which may result in this future.' She then told of the many local, state and national offices in the A. A. U. W., held by Miss Jackson, and presented her to the group.

All arrangements for the dinner, served at the home of Mrs. E. B. Ferguson, were made by the social committee, of which Mrs. D. S. Spain, Jr., is chairman.

Athenum Club

On Tuesday morning, November 17, Mrs. D. M. Clark was a most gracious hostess at her home on Holly street to the members of the Athenum Book Club. Also present as guests of Mrs. Clark were Mrs. Paul Frizzelle, Sr., and Mrs. Paul Frizzelle, Jr., of Snow Hill, and Misses Anna and Hennie Long.

Members responded to the roll call with current events and after a very brief business session presided over by Mrs. K. B. Pace, we were taken on a most enjoyable and instructive imaginary journey to the quaint and unusual land of Chile by Mrs. Clark. She traveled by steamer, stopping first at Val-parao, the country's most important coastal city, suggesting a Babylonian garden as it spread in a glorious way from the ocean to the snow covered mountain top. She told of her trip through the valley of central Chile, visiting Santiago and many other places famed in history as well as in beauty. She told of her enchanting journey among the emerald colored lakes which served as reflectors for volcanoes, and pristine nature at its best. Theodore Roosevelt said of these lakes, "They are the most beautiful in all the world."

Further south she continued her imaginary journey among the glaciers and fjords and even to Magelanes, the southernmost city of the world. By steamer she returned to the northern section of Chile, the source of Chile's wealth and the most truly desert country of the world, some sections not receiving rainfall for ten years. Her automobile tour of the coffee and nitrate fields and to the borax and salt beds proved most informative but was certainly a physical endurance test.

Following this most interesting program, Mrs. Clark took her guests to the park, where a delicious picnic lunch was served. Miss Anna Long, bride-elect of December, was presented crystal by the hostess.—Reported.

"Lady, orders is orders," said the soldier.

The woman bit her lip.

"But I simply must get on! I've got to! Consider, they," the woman pointed toward the army, "they are headed toward Boston and are using one side of the road. I am headed for Provincetown and I'm on the other side of the road. I shall drive with great care on the extreme right of the road, my car is not large, and I shall not get in the army's way! I—"

"Orders, lady." The soldier's patience was wearing very thin.

"Oh, it's no use talkin' with him!" Jennie said, "Red tape, red tape! Minute you run into the army, you run into silly old red tape! Asey, give me the newspaper out of your pocket to put over my hat, will you? My hat's—"

"Please," the woman held out her umbrella. "Won't you share this? And as for you, young man, you'd best look out for that dog. If he's not caught before he jumps out in front of those trucks, your theoretical problem may have an actual incident!"

Asey and the soldier rushed to grab the playful black-and-white setter pup which, having just discovered the army, gave no indication of ever wanting to give up its new-found pleasure of bounding at every canvas-covered truck that passed. Three times he allowed his prospective captors to lay their hands on him, and each time, with a joyous yelp, he wriggled his wet body out of their grasp and bounded away after more trucks.

Five minutes later, Asey, breathless and soaked to the skin, placed the dog bodily in the arms of two soldiers and returned to where he had left Jennie by the traffic light.

She and the woman with the umbrella were shaking hands like old friends about to part for many years, and as Asey watched the pair curiously, Jennie turned, calmly removed her hat from her head, and tossed it into the path of the still passing column.

Then, before Asey could stop her, and with a sublime disregard for her own safety, Jennie dove after the hat.

The exact sequence of the ensuing events was something Asey never quite sorted out in his mind. There was a multiple shrieking of brakes, a great deal of whistle blowing and order shouting, and then the third truck back from Jennie's hat suddenly skidded on the glassy asphalt and headed, with a certain drunken dignity, for an adjacent telephone pole.

Although the impact seemed slight enough, the pole broke nearly in two. There was a flash of blue sparks, and at once the street lights and the traffic lights went out, and the gas station and stores and houses on the opposite corner were plunged into inky darkness.

But, over and above the subsequent din, Jennie's voice still managed to ring out shrill and clear.

"Cross over quick, Asey! I'm on the corner! Cross over quick! Hurry! Cross over!"

Opportunist

Asey found himself feeling a little guilty, as he ran for Syl's truck, but he consoled himself with the thought that there were literally no red lights barring his way across the intersection. Those trucks which had passed before Jennie put on her hat-retrieving act had already tumbled out of sight, and the remainder of the column had halted while the soldiers with the red lanterns busied themselves with the ditched truck.

As he struggled with Syl's starter, Asey suddenly realized that the small sedan of Jennie's new-found friend had sneaked past in front of him and was now speeding along the road toward Provincetown.

Asey grinned. She was an opportunist, that woman was, and he hoped that Jennie's spur of the moment act wouldn't get her into any trouble with the army as she passed the column. Jennie, he told himself as he guided the truck past the blacked-out traffic lights, was going to get a talking-to.

"Here I am!" Jennie jumped on the running board and plopped herself down on the seat beside him with a satisfied sigh. "Now! Up the street and take the first left turn, and it's just a little way down from there. Hustle!"

"Jennie," Asey said gravely, "I don't know what's going to happen to you, but I think you're liable to coast-martial! I saw you. You deliberately threw that hat!"

"And it wasn't hurt a bit," Jennie said cheerfully. "Didn't even bend the feather. Hurry, Asey! Did she get away?"

"Why bother to hurry now? It's been a lot more than eight minutes since we stopped. Nearer twenty, I'd say."

"Yes, yes, yes, but there's the extra fifteen minutes!"

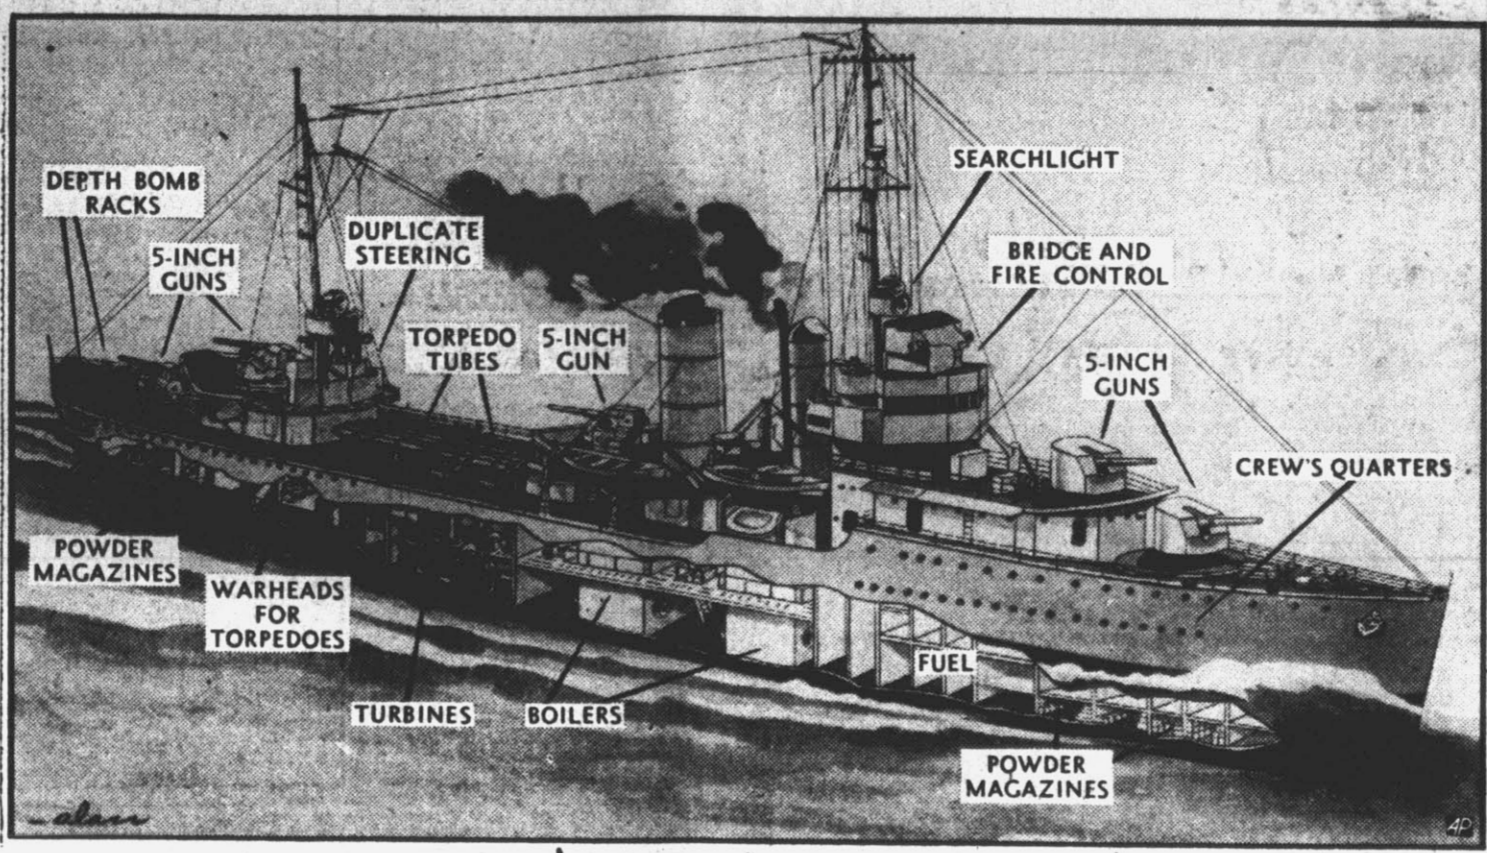

"The what?" Asey demanded.

"The extra fifteen minutes! You know I always keep my watch fifteen minutes fast," Jennie said, "so I don't miss radio programs. I think it pays to keep watches fast. We got three minutes. Did she get away?"

"Your girl friend with the umbrella? Uh-huh. She sneaked across Jennie, you want to think twice before you do things like that hat-tossing! It wasn't just dangerous for you—"

"Oh, it wasn't either! I only pretended I was going to jump after that hat! And no one saw me, Asey, and even if they did, they'd still

Terrier Of The Seas: An Intimate View

Terrier: A small active, wiry dog, adapted to pursue burrowing animals, and noted for the courage and eagerness with which it "goes to earth" in pursuit of vermin—Standard Dictionary.

In naval warfare terrier spells destroyer, that small, swift, thin-shelled, enormously powerful vessel that dashes in boldly to root out lurking submarines with depth-bombs.

It serves as a protecting screen for merchant ships as well as battleships.

The destroyer is unarmed and extremely vulnerable to shellfire and torpedo attack. It must depend on speed and maneuverability. Actually a destroyer is just a metal skin around extremely powerful engines. When the U.S.S. Kearny was hit, the 11 men killed were in the boiler room. The destroyer shown above is of the Farragut class.

Don't you dare ever do anything like it again!"

"All right, all right, I won't! But we did get across, didn't we? Turn now, Asey. Here, I suppose," Jennie asked, "we ought to go around to the back door, but I don't know just where it is, and with the rain and no lights to guide you, maybe you better just stop by that covered path ahead. There!"

Asey obediently drew the truck up beneath a porte-cochere.

"Now what?" he inquired.

"Why get them clams out, ninnie! What did you think?"

"Wa-el," Asey drawled, "considering what we been through to get here, it seems to me we ought to blow a trumpet or have a fanfare. Don't you think I should give 'em with you if they'd picked you up, and all account of this foul spur of the minute impulse of yours.

scandalized voice. "You get the clams out, and put them on the steps. I'll go inside and find Mrs. Doane and tell her we're right on time. Don't it look nice in there, with all the candles?"

It did look nice, Asey thought, as he hauled out the first of eight buckets of clams from the rear of the truck.

After hailstorms and wet dogs and pouring rain, the Whale Inn's glowing candles and chintz-covered chairs and lighted fires that he could see through the wide French doors were all a pleasant and welcome sight.

He had the last bucket lined up on the steps when Jennie bustled out.

"Asey, there isn't anyone in there! Not a soul!"

"Sure there is," Asey said. "Must be. Look around for a bell or some-

"Asey, forget your old stomach and come in here! I tell you, there isn't a soul around, and no bells! You come see!"

Asey followed her up the steps and through the French doors into the large, comfortable room, and looked around appreciatively.

"Why, I remember this place, Jennie! Used to be Mrs. Mercer's Boarding House. I used to take the Ketchikan, Alaska.—(AP)—Some bad little wolves, five of them, had a swell time fishing. Both sides of the creek were littered with the fish, killed on their way to spawning grounds.

That Old State College Spirit Is In Evidence Again

TO PLAY DUKE SATURDAY P.M.

Carolina-Virginia Tomorrow; Deacons Play Thursday

Raleigh, Nov. 19 — That spirit is here again. The State college spirit, we mean, and that spirit turned the trick once before this season when the chips were down.

The specific instance we refer to took place earlier in the 1941 grid campaign when Coach Doc Newton's warriors clamped down on their brothers from Chapel Hill, defeating Ray Wolf's Tar Heels, 13-7.

This week Duke's great Blue Devils are still streaming down "Bowl Avenue." The only obstacle in their path is the Wolfpack. Newton's club stands between an unbeaten and unified season, and that possibility of appearing in some bowl contest.

There was a certain feeling that pervaded the campus prior to the game with Carolina's thrice beaten Tar Heels before the "Pack went over and tore into them. The students felt it, the faculty felt it, Raleigh felt it, and best of all the varsity felt it.

Wake Forest, Nov. 19 — Although the Deacons of Wake Forest had only three days in which to get ready for their encounter with Geo. Washington's Colonials in Washington, D. C., Thursday afternoon, Coach Peahead Walker confined the Tuesday workout to contact work and announced that Wednesday's session would be devoted entirely to final polishing of touches.

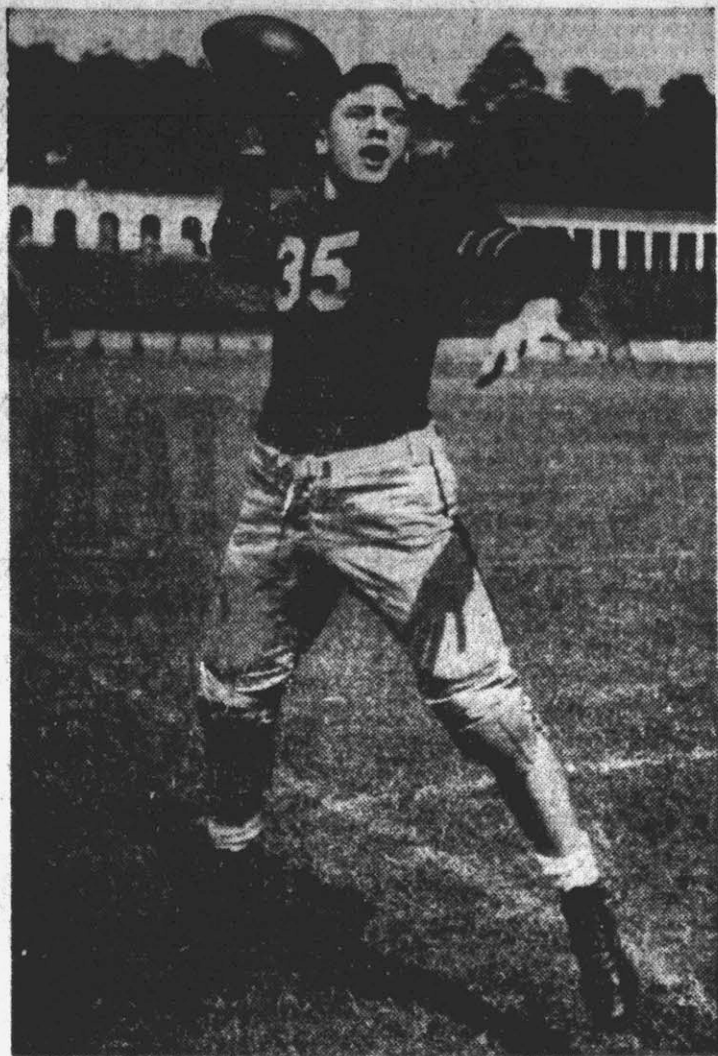

Wake Forest has gone through one of the toughest schedules of any club in the Southern Conference this fall — it's been one hard one behind the other.

The Deacon scouts, Line Coach Hank Bartos and Backfield Coach Bub Walker, came back from the Colonials' meetings with Clemson and Bucknell, and reported a vastly improved George Washington eleven from that which began the campaign in September.

Chapel Hill, Nov. 19 — Carolina's 1921 eleven, which beat Virginia 7 to 3, will hold its 20-year reunion and be guests of honor at the annual Thanksgiving classic with the Cavaliers here Thursday afternoon.

F. R. "Runt" Lowe, of Charlotte, who was captain and star quarterback, and Watts Hill, of Durham, who was manager, are arranging the gathering. Alumni Secretary J. M. Saunders is in charge from the local end.

Captain Bill Dudley, who is being hailed by many as the greatest all-round back in the nation, will lead the Virginia Cavaliers to Carolina Thursday for their annual Thanksgiving classic.

OPENER TAKEN BY WOLFPACK

Three-Game Championship Series Being Played

By CHARLES BROWN
Yesterday afternoon the Training School Wolfpack was victorious over the Third Street Blue Devils 6 to 0 in the WPA-City football play-off. This was the first of a three-game series.

Outstanding stars for the fighting Wolfpack was Jimmy (Happy) Gibson, assisted by Walter Lee and Bobby Smith. In the line were John Farley, David Clark, Evans, Joe Allwood and Milton Bunch. Triple-threat Gibson made the first and only touchdown in the first quarter, assisted by the hard charging of Walter Lee.

In the third quarter the Wolfpack power flared up again and the ball was carried over for what was supposed to be another touchdown, but there was a penalty on the play, and the ball was called back and the Wolfpack lost the ball on downs.

The Blue Devils had what it took but just couldn't get going. Those

PUTS PROBLEM UP TO LAWYER

Free Grocery Question Up to Attorney General

Reflector Bureau.
By BOB THOMPSON
Raleigh, Nov. 19—Whether or not the State prison system has a legal right to furnish free groceries to the Governor's mansion is a question that soon will be dropped in the lap of Attorney General Harry McMullen.

Ben Prince, chairman of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, said that he would ask for an official ruling on the practice which was resumed a few months ago. Charles Ross, attorney for the commission, already has said that he could find "no legal justification" for the practice.

Prince, however, said that he wanted an opinion from the State's No. 1 lawyer and would ask Ross to request a formal opinion.

Prince also said that he wanted an official ruling on the legality of allowing Prison Director Oscar Pitts and several other prison officials to buy groceries from the prison and pay for them at a wholesale rate.

The department records show that where milk costs the ordinary citizen of Raleigh from 16 to 17 cents a quart, the director of the prison gets his milk for seven and a half cents. The prison also sells him other food items at a rate below the retail prices which prevail in Raleigh stores.

In the opinion of Prince the legality of the prison sending free food to the mansion depends on whether or not the prison or the Governor should feed the several prisoners to work at the mansion as servants. No one claims that the prison groceries sent to the mansion are consumed by prisoners, only, but the defense of the practice is that the value of the free food is "equivalent" to the cost of feeding the prisoner-servants. The mansion does not pay for the service of the prisoners as does the highway department at the rate of $1 a day. The legality of the practice, which had been going on for years, was first "settled" four years ago. At that time Ross found that the statutes will not allow it and former Governor Hoey paid $433.20 for prison groceries the mansion used in the first few months of his administration and ordered the practice stopped. Governor Broughton did not request the practice be resumed, he told newspapermen, but it was started again within a few weeks after Pitts became prison director.

The following book review on "Who is this Girl?" by Helen Topping Miller, was written by Melba Forbes:
This novel has everything: suspense, mystery, excitement and an unusual background. It is a love story which is very original. Storm Greenlee who is the heroine of the story, didn't know who she was. After her mother's death she had been put into a convent and there she stayed until taken out by her guardian, Harp Greenlee, owner of a large horse ranch in Texas. When her guardian died, she became owner of his property.

Storm's future happiness depended upon the answer to the vital question "who is this girl?" This question was answered by Dan McCullough, her guardian's private secretary. The reader will enjoy this delightful novel from beginning to end.

Thanks to Father Maurice for books.

The entire personnel of the Greenville store and two Wilson stores were entertained at a banquet, after which members were given a pre-view of the Christmas merchandise.
Guests, other than members of the personnel were Jim Payne, secretary of the Wilson Chamber of Commerce; John G. Thomas, Wilson newspaper man, and D. J. Whichard, Jr. of this city. Paul B. Bissette of Wilson, senior member of the Bissette firm presided.
Leading lines of merchandise handled by the Bissette stores which will be featured during the Christmas season were attractively displayed in the hotel dining room.

WANT ADS PAY

Highly placed legislators said that the question probably would not come up in the House until CIO's Detroit convention had ended and until the captive mines strike had been settled.

As the suspense intensified, the coal strike front presented this general picture:
Captive mines—Most of them have been closed down, but a few continued to operate with curtailed working forces.
Commercial mines—The total of these mines tied up by sympathy walkouts in Pennsylvania has reached 18. Some 6,070 miners in 32 of Kentucky's commercial mines were ordered to quit work today in another series of sympathy demonstrations, and there was a possibility they might be joined by 8,000 from 25 other pits in the state. In West Virginia the union prediction was that all the 550 mines in that state, employing 105,000, would be closed within 48 hours. Already 5,500 West Virginia miners have quit the shafts in sympathy strikes.

Violence—Two hundred state troopers were ordered into Gary, West Va., after two men were wounded at one captive mine which was continuing operations. Independent union members there appealed to President Roosevelt for protection so they could keep working. Sporadic clashes between pickets and non-strikers were reported in western Pennsylvania.

Popular New Number At Sheppard Library

True life stories of more than 1,000 famous international and national leaders in all professions are now compiled into "Current Biography" 1940, a new book just received at the Sheppard Memorial Library, Miss Ruth D. Prichard, head librarian, announced today.

Detailed biographical facts of 1,002 modern famous men and women and their personality quirks make "Current Biography" interesting reading for library patrons who like to know "who's news and why." Miss Prichard declared. Published by the H. W. Wilson Company of New York City, the book contains 928 pages and over 650 photographs of people who have been most significant in the news of 1940.

Little-known items taken at random from the biographies by the librarian include: Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the United States, once milked a cow on a city street to boost milk consumption; Leon Blum, former premier of France did not abandon journalism and law for politics until the murder of a political friend; Al Jolson, comedian, is the son of a rabbi, and Erskine Caldwell, author of "Tobacco Road" is the son of a minister.

Roosevelt May Delay Action in Mine Dispute

Yesterday, calling for production of the sinews of defense "without delay and without interruption."

The statement that the President would stay his hand for a few days more found corroboration in authoritative House reports that Congress had received a quiet go-ahead signal for middle-of-the-road legislation to deal with defense strikes, but with the understanding that action would be deferred for a week.

What It Means

Yet it wouldn't be sensible to stop flying when the temperatures hover between those marks on the thermometer, for flying in such temperatures in itself is not dangerous. Rare combinations of moisture and temperature and height must occur in a certain spot at a certain moment, before conditions can be disastrous.
For example, take the Moorehead, Minn., commercial plane crash. Ice was forming on the wing, but it was easy to push off with the de-icer. The pilot played super-safe. Instead of plunging through clouds that might have formed heavier ice,

MILITARY AIRCRAFT ACCIDENTS

he flew down by instruments, circled the field according to regulations. Suddenly a blast of moist air hit the cold plane, and froze the controls stiff.

In the case of Army crashes, Army generals readily admit that pilot failures account for close to four out of five crashes. You get the same kind of story from the Navy. And, warn the services, there's going to be more and more of this kind of thing.
