LARGE AXIS FORCES TRAPPED IN AFRICAN WAR

Losses Fair To Halt Drive On Moscow

Nazi Forces Marshaled For Assault

Newspaper Pravda Declares German Strength Massed In Attempt To Push East And North Against Soviet Defense Arc, In Face Of Heavy Losses And Difficult Supply Problem

Moscow, Nov. 28.—(AP) The peril to Moscow is increasing, Pravda, the Communist party paper, acknowledged today, despite "tremendous" German losses and a difficult Nazi supply problem.

The newspaper said the Germans' main strength had been marshaled on the flanks of the capital's defenses for an attempt to push east and north in the past several days.

The Germans have encountered supply difficulties because their gains have extended their front, it declared, and reported the destruction of 330 tanks between November 16 and 25 as an indication of the Nazi losses.

A Russian counter-offensive in the Kalinin sector, 90 miles north of Moscow, has driven wedges into the German lines, and Red Army troops have recaptured several villages, Pravda said.

On the Rostov front in the South, the army newspaper Red Star said Soviet troops had made further advances.

Other Russian reports said the Russian air force as well as the army was taking a heavy toll of German forces before Moscow.

The Soviet communique said merely that Russian troops had fought the invaders on all fronts during the night.

Pravda said the Russians centered their attack on the northern prong of the German pincer movement against Moscow and "drove wedges into enemy lines and recaptured many villages, some of which had served the Germans as bases of resistance and had been fortified."

Soviet reports told of 15,000 Germans killed in one day's period at three points on the Moscow front and said 105 Nazi tanks were destroyed by the Red army.

Nippon Officials Are Weighing Statement Of U. S. Policy

IS PRESENTED AT CABINET MEET

Although No Official Comment, Nippon Press Expresses Belief Negotiations are At An End

Tokyo, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Japanese officials carefully weighed U. S. Secretary of State Hull's note today with no indication of when or whether it would be answered, but the press expressed belief that Japanese-American negotiations were near an end.

The contents of the note handed by Secretary Hull Wednesday to Japan's conferees in Washington, Ambassador Nomura and Special Envoy Kurosu, were not disclosed.

Foreign Minister Togo analyzed the present status of Japanese-American relations, with special reference to the Hull document, at a cabinet meeting, but the government gave no clue to its next step.

High War and Navy ministry officials met at the official residence of Premier General Tojo before the session to confer on the note and also sat in on the cabinet discussion.

The government spokesman's attention was called at a press conference to Japanese newspaper comment that Japan could accept no temporary makeshift arrangement and he was asked whether that was the government's attitude. He answered that such an opinion must be considered by the government but that it was in no position to comment.

U.S. Ships To Face Nazi-Sown Mines

London, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The German air force is sowing "considerable" mines along the seacoast of the west coast of England through which some United States ships coming directly to Britain must sail, an authoritative source said tonight.

He said that this mining has been a continuing process, but that the British had been "very successful" in dealing with air-sown mines, although the "nuisance value" to the Germans had been enormous, considering how many men were required to keep the approaches swept clear.

Separate Measures Considered by Two Branches

Washington, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Senate and House committees gave their approval today to separate bills which would empower the government to take over a defense plant when strikes impeded production.

The Senate Judiciary Committee voted 12 to two to recommend the bill of Senator Connally to take over such plants and freeze the open or closed shop status in them.

This action followed only by minutes House Labor Committee approval of legislation which, besides the seizure clause, would create machinery for voluntary arbitration of labor disputes.

Acting Chairman Ramspeck (D-Ga.) said it was a "middle-of-the-road bill" which "undertakes to settle disputes on a voluntary basis."

If that should fail the government could take possession of the defense plant after a 60-day cooling off period, he added.

Ramspeck said that the plant seizure was similar to legislation proposed by Senator Connolly (D-Tex.) and gave this explanation of it:

"Whenever a labor dispute is not settled by collective bargaining, conciliation or mediation and the President finds that continuation of the dispute impedes national defense, he may in his discretion take possession of the plant and operate it under provisions" of the Selective Service act.

Ramspeck said the committee did not take up at its meeting today a provision in another bill giving the President power to invoke compulsory arbitration of defense labor disputes and carrying stiff penalties against both management and labor if either refused to accept an arbitration board decision.

Army Air Force Has 2500 Combat Planes

Washington, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Major General Henry H. Arnold reported today the Army air forces possessed 2,500 more modern, combat type warplanes despite the diversion of American-made aircraft abroad.

THAI DEFENSE ACT APPROVED

Assembly Approves Measure Vesting Power in Govt.

Bangkok, Thailand, Nov. 27.—(delayed)—(AP)—The Thailand National Assembly approved today a defense measure which the defense minister, Lieut. General Promyodhi, declared empowered the government to prepare for war and act to meet any emergency.

Several hours later, Premier Songgram, in his first radio address to the nation since the Thai-French Indo-China conflict, said the nation might yet be able to avoid becoming involved in war although Thailand is confronted with political, economic and military pressure "from all quarters."

(In Tokyo, the newspaper Yomiuri said Japan's ambassador to Bangkok conferred for more than an hour Friday with Premier Songgram and the newspaper Nichi Nichi reported under a Bangkok date line that the British had stationed more than 50,000 troops along Thai frontiers.)

Soldiers Prepare To Head For Camp

With the First Army in the Carolinas, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A bitter mock battle raged today between the Blue First Army and the Red Fourth Corps as plans were made to return the 200,000 soldiers of the First Army to their bases this weekend.

It will end the Army's 1941 war maneuvers program. A Blue communique admitted that many Red tanks had slashed through the 44th division of Major General Lloyd R. Fredendall's Second Corps in the vicinity of Page-land, S. C., but declared that they were met by the tank attacker units developed by Lieut. General Hugh A. Drum.

A plan for deconcentration of the First Army provides for starting the soldiers on their homeward trek two days after the end of this practice battle, the final phase of maneuvers.

Their bases are along the eastern seaboard.

U.S. EXPECTED TO STAND FIRM AGAINST JAPS

Any Possibility Of A Compromise Is Declared Out

SITUATION SEEN AS VERY SERIOUS

Possibility of Arming American Merchantmen On The Pacific Routes Raised In Official Quarters

Washington, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The American government, it was learned today from the best available sources in Washington, has ruled out any possibility of a compromise with Japan on the Chinese issue and has raised a possibility that American merchantships in the Pacific may be armed.

While it was reported on the highest authority that negotiations looking toward peace in the Pacific and Far East had not broken down, the United States viewed the present situation as extremely serious.

An official White House announcement concerning merchantmen said that these vessels sailing on Pacific routes "will not be armed under existing circumstances."

And when President Roosevelt was asked at a press conference how long he thought those circumstances would prevail, he said he thought the question might better be asked in Tokyo.

He was asked also whether there was anything he might say on negotiations with Japan's envoys in this country and replied that he thought he had better not.

Yet he conceded that news on the negotiations had been based largely on dispatches from Tokyo and he declared that the reason for this was an American policy of infinite patience.

It was learned on the best of authority that the current situation in the Far East is regarded as serious because America desires that there be peace in the Pacific and is taking no steps that would alter prospects for peace.

Reports of unabated Japanese military activity near the border of Thailand brought new concern to the capital.

Diplomatic representatives of the other friendly powers concerned—Britain, Australia, China and the Netherlands—took a similar serious view.

Must Discard New Highway Projects

Raleigh, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Faced by an acute shortage of materials due to priority ratings, the State Highway and Public Works Commission announced today it would be necessary virtually to abandon new construction work in North Carolina.

Ben Prince, highway chairman, said the Commission still would be able to obtain materials to repair existing roads, bridges and other projects, but that there was little hope for new construction.

It also will be possible to obtain priorities on materials for roads leading to military encampments and roads designated by the War Department as strategic, he added.

To Rope Off Streets For Skaters In City

Beginning this Saturday morning, Myrtle avenue between Paris and Wade, will be roped-off for two hours, from 10 a. m. until noon, to provide a place for children to skate and the WPA-City recreation program will sponsor tournaments and supervise the children participating.

The possibility of roping-off the streets is being considered, it was disclosed by C. K. Beatty, City Street department superintendent who said the agreement to rope-off the street was reached only after the consent of persons living in the affected block.

The program will be conducted each Saturday morning for at least four weeks. Skating stunts will be judged and a city-wide contest is proposed for a later date. Charles Brown, WPA recreation leader, will direct the activities.

WAGE CONTROL ACT REJECTED

Amendment To Price Control Measure Defeated

Washington, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The House refused today to include a modified form of wage control in the administration's battered price control bill after the leadership had made other major concessions aimed at recruiting badly needed votes for the measure.

It rejected by a standing vote of 192 to 63 an amendment by Rep. Robertson (D-Va.) which would forbid any agency or official of the government approving or recommending wage increases which the price control administrator deemed inflationary. The amendment had the approval of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Robertson said.

Earlier, Chairman Steagall (D-Ala.) of the House Banking Committee announced that the administration would agree to "have" its proposed price control administered by a board rather than an individual.

He announced also the administration was willing to make some modification of two other major parts of the controverted legislation—a provision to license commodity dealers and one to empower the government to buy and sell commodity in the open market in a plan to keep prices stable.

Driving for a final vote on the control bill, administration lieutenants still sought to keep the licensing power in the bill, even though modified.

Britain's Bombers Raid Duesseldorf

London, Nov. 28.—(AP)—A large-scale attack on Duesseldorf was announced today by the Air Ministry, which said "railways and industrial districts were heavily bombed."

Docks at Ostend and German air-dromes in the Low Countries also were said to have been attacked as the British bombers swept eastward into Germany.

The Air and Home Security Ministry announced that a small number of persons was injured and some damage was caused in German air raids in coastal districts of East Anglia and southeastern England.

With Tobruk And Rezeq Forces United, British Reported Pushing Westward Along Mediterranean Coast, Apparently Headed For Axis Centers At Gazala And Derna

Cairo, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The British Tobruk and Rezeq forces, consolidating their junction today, trapped large Axis forces to the East which immediately began to attempt to battle their way out, a British spokesman announced here.

Practically the entire Italian Bologna division was wiped out in the action, the spokesman said.

Bitter fighting was in progress today, it was said, as Axis column which had darted into Egypt two days ago as a diversion tried to get back to the Axis main forces.

They were headed for a British wall, however, as the contact established by the Tobruk forces yesterday was strengthened into an effective line.

This flying column on its retreat westward was able to join with some forces from the strong Axis formations under the Axis African commander, General Erwin Rommel, which were entrenched along the Egyptian-Libyan border southward from Halfaya (Hellfire) pass to Sidi Omar when the British drive opened 11 days ago.

However, it was said, most of the forces were scattered by combined British air and ground forces which worked in unison to keep them trapped and smash them into small groups for easier annihilation.

The British also were pushing westward from Tobruk farther along the Mediterranean coast, heading toward the strong Axis centers at Gazala and Derna.

The British commander, Lieut. General Sir Alan Cunningham, however, appeared to be concentrating for the moment on the big Axis armies locked to the east of Tobruk.

The biggest tank encounter of yesterday occurred in this sector as the westward-moving Axis troops ran into the tank-toothed jaws of the British tank.

The Axis column was shattered, the British spokesman said, some running northward toward Gamal, which the British have recaptured, and others southward "into the void" of the desert sands.

The spokesman, although stressing that the British now had completed the junction with the Tobruk garrison forces, which had been besieged since April, nevertheless predicted more heavy fighting in the Tobruk area.

To escape to the main Axis forces, the trapped Germans and Italians would have to break the new British Tobruk-Rezeq connection.

Berlin, Nov. 28.—(AP)—British attempts to break out of Tobruk on the Libyan front have been repulsed, the German high command declared today.

Heavy battles are continuing on the North African desert, the communique said.

No Uncertainties On Finnish Policy

Washington, Nov. 28.—(AP)—The State Department said formally today that Finland's latest actions had "confirmed our apprehensions that it is fully cooperating with the Hitler forces."

"Every act of the Finnish government" since the delivery of its note rejecting a United States call for cessation of hostilities against Russia has made Finland's position clear, the department asserted in a statement.

Last Monday evening at 8 o'clock, Mrs. Fred E. The serving table was covered with an Italian cutwork cloth centered with a bowl of red and white chrysanthemums flanked with red, white and blue candles in silver holders. Refreshments were served by candlelight. Mrs. Worthington, assisted by Mrs. Wilbur K. Tripp, served a delicious salad plate with dainty cakes, mints and nuts. Hot tea was brewed by Mrs. Everett. Red, white and blue napkins were placed upon each plate as favors.

The Hawaiian Wizzards rendered lovely music throughout the evening. Dancing was enjoyed. Master Poe Worthington, Jr. presented the guest of honor a week-end bag filled with useful gifts. The bag was the hostesses' gift to the honoree. The patriotic motif was further emphasized in the wrapping of the gifts. About 26 guests were present.

Tyson-May Reunion.

The 21st reunion of the Tyson-May families was held Friday, November 21, at the Major Benjamin May Chapter House in Farmville. Perfect weather, efficient officers and a representative assembly, the invocation, the address of welcome, the reading of the minutes, the president's address, the solo, the genealogy report, the round table discussion, the memorial service, the duet, the introduction of the speaker followed by the timely, thought-provoking address all contributed to this ideal session of our organization.

The lunch so attractively set and served, the beautiful centerpiece, symbolizing Thanksgiving, eloquent of the loving service of the committee which arranged it.

The late Henry T. King in a discussion at one of the first reunions quoted some one saying "Being proud of our ancestors is not our goal, but to make our ancestors proud of us."

Judging the personnel of this 21st reunion, one might easily imagine that their ancestors would give them the glad hand.

In loving remembrance of those who are gone, in kindly fellowship for the ones present with sincere regret for those who were absent, this tribute is to attest my loyalty to family and to the principles for which these families have ever stood.

—Mrs. Charles McArthur.

Old Maids' Convention

People who attended the Old Maids' Convention in the opera house Thursday night (and everybody who could find room to get in) were there to have fun, to rob their sides and taking something for sore throat today.

It was 8:30 o'clock when the delegates began arriving, and as each one marched through the audience to the stage they were enthusiastically greeted. The fun began when the first one entered and it did not stop until the curtain dropped at the close.

When the convention was called to order among the delegates present were: Josephine Jane Greene, president—Mrs. A. H. Taft; Priscilla Abigail Hodge, secretary—Miss Bessie Jarvis; Calamity Jane Higgins, treasurer—Mrs. Wiley Brown; Charity Longfear—Mrs. R. J. Cobb; Beulah Bluegrass (dress reformer)—Miss Annie Perkins; "Tiny" (Miss Lorraine Horne; Dennis (the professor's assistant)—Hill Horne. It would take a whole newspaper to tell everything they said and did. It was altogether the most enjoyable entertainment Greenville has had and praise of it is heard on every hand. The convention was gotten up by Mrs. C. T. Mumford for the benefit of the Methodist Church lot, and the gross receipts were $97.05.

the Austin building of the college.

The meeting began with a discussion of old and new business. A report of the social service for the month included the sending of convalescence cards to the people in the infirmary, and the M. S. A. monthly contribution to the support of an orphan. The announcement was made that the E. C. T. C. Methodist Student Association will be represented at the conference to be held in Urbana, Illinois.

An impressive program of dramatic poetry was presented by Juliette Hickman and Sara Stanton. The topic of Miss Rice's talk, "Seeing God Through Poetry," was illustrated by a group of selected poems, emphasizing the philosophy of the subject. These poems, in the words of the speaker, "give us a keener appreciation for the beauties of life and the joy of living. Each poem contains some simple truth that may be applied to our own lives and we may be drawn closer to God, if we but find it."

Juliette Hickman recited Grace Noll Crowell's "Faith" and "There's Magic in Flowers," an original poem by Miss Hickman showing the splendor and wonders of God's world. "Barter" by Sara Teasdale and "Life's Mirror" by Madeline Bridges were recited by Sara Stanton.

Martha Rice's dramatic presentation of "The Touch of the Master's Hand" was met with approval by all, and equally as impressive was her recitation of the twenty-third Psalm.

The president closed the meeting with the benediction. —Evelyn Etheridge, Reporter.

THE PHONE BOOTH MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

Chapter Ten
Body In A Trunk

"Well," Alfred said judicially, "it would, ma'am, but for the sake of the trunk, I think I'd better get a spade and a shovel and bury it like we planned, tonight. After all, Mrs. Clutterfield, we don't want anyone to find that body in our trunk. Remember that old lady in Bar Harbor, and the trouble we had there. Cost us quite a tidy sum in bribes before we was through, that time, and all because we didn't bury the body proper."

Asey pulled himself together and took a step forward, and then he paused as the front door of the Inn opened and Mrs. Doane emerged to inquire from the top step if Mrs. Clutterfield was all right.

"Quite, thank you," Mrs. Clutterfield told her with icy politeness.

"The clams came, after all," Mrs. Doane said brightly. "You should have stayed here for dinner. I told you I thought they'd come."

"Really?" Mrs. Clutterfield said. "I had an excellent meal at the Country Club, thank you. Very good clams, and no waiting."

She turned suddenly and walked down the steps and got back into the car.

"Aren't you coming in?" Mrs. Doane sounded faintly worried.

"I have changed my mind," Mrs. Clutterfield announced. "I am going to accompany Alfred on an errand. I may be quite late."

Asey didn't jump for the car at once. His plan was to saunter up about the time that Alfred was bundling Mrs. Clutterfield up with the lap robe, and request some explanations before either of them could recover their poise.

But his plan didn't even begin to work out. It never had a chance.

With a speed that Asey never expected from a man of Alfred's wide girth, Alfred adjusted the lap robe, got in front, started the car, and had it rolling around the driveway turntable and out of the Inn grounds almost before Mrs. Doane had the front door shut, and seconds before Asey thought of moving.

"Flat foot!" Asey muttered in disgust. "Ole flat foot, that's what you are!"

There was no excuse for him. But at least, he thought as he crossed from the clump of lilacs to an arbor on the other side of the drive, at least Mrs. Clutterfield's license-plate numbers were engraved for all time on his mind, and there still might be time, when Hanson came, to look into this fantastic business of Mrs. Clutterfield and her man Friday.

From where he stood he could see Mrs. Doane talking to Freddy in the living room, and Asey found himself wondering just what would happen if he were to barge in and demand to be shown the body at once. With almost any other woman, and in almost any other house, his bluff would probably work. But at the thought of the combination of Mrs. Doane and all that maze of ells, Asey shook his head. He had nothing to back up his bluff, and they could deny everything till the cows came home. It would be better to wait for Hanson and see what effect his brass buttons and official manner might produce.

Idea

Asey leaned against the arbor. To him, the time element was still the most puzzling thing about the removal of that woman's body. If the girl Freddy actually had gone directly downstairs and phoned Hanson when he told her to, and if she had stayed there in the living room until her mother returned, that margin of eight or nine minutes would be sharply reduced to only two or three. The thing, Asey thought, smacked of Thurston and Mulholland and Houdini. A woman was in a box. You saw her in a box. Then, presto! The box was empty and the woman gone.

"Mayo," he said suddenly aloud, "you're a fool! That's what happened here!"

He could see now, as he looked across at the Inn, that the ell in which the telephone booth was located, was far wider than the mere width of the booth. It was certainly three times the width of the booth.

Asey grinned with pleasure as he strode across the driveway. The side of the telephone closet opposite the door opened, and he ought to have known as much, even in candlelight and with a body against it. He had a closet at home in Wellfleet, under his front stairs, that could be entered from the hall on one side and from his sitting room on the other. Neither any latch nor hinges had been visible here at the Inn, but another door was the answer. Asey felt sure it had to be.

He went close to the little window in the ell and was reaching up to unhook the screen when the lights conveniently flashed on inside.

Before he ducked down, Asey saw that he needed to convince him that, for the first time this evening, he had managed to hit the nail on the head.

The telephone booth backed onto a narrow hall, and on the opposite side of that hall was a series of doors, apparently leading into closets, which Asey found himself yearning to explore.

He looked up cautiously to find Mrs. Doane in the hall, removing a dustpan and brush from one of the closets. Then she turned her head and listened to some sound in the house, hurriedly returned the dustpan and brush to their place, and slipped away, leaving the lights on.

A few seconds later, rather to Asey's amazement, Mrs. Hingham slipped into the hall, walked along to the rear door of the phone booth, flipped a latch, and went inside.

Even from the brief glimpse he had of her face, Mrs. Hingham didn't look to Asey like a woman suffering intensely from migraine. She looked to him rather like a woman suffering from intense bad temper.

She looked even angrier when she came out of the phone booth.

Asey looked after her thoughtfully as she flounced up the narrow hall.

He had eliminated Mrs. Hingham from his mental list of people who might have removed the body from the phone booth, but now that he turned the matter over in his mind, it occurred to him that Mrs. Hingham, after sailing out of her room past Jennie and himself, had not appeared again until the conclusion of Mrs. Doane's lecture to her daughter.

Nervous Landlady

Mrs. Doane was tiptoeing back into the hallway now, and a look of irritation crossed her face as a car horn sounded in the driveway. Asey could see how hard she gritted her teeth as she again departed.

He turned and looked expectantly at the headlights of the arriving car. It ought to be Hanson, but it was not. It was a dark sedan, and it turned out to be the over-stuffed Mrs. Clutterfield and her nimble-footed eyes man. That pair, Asey frankly admitted to himself, were preying on his mind more than Mrs. Hingham, Mrs. Doane, and Washy the Biffer all put together.

But the car which drew up to the front door was a custom-built Porter which he recognized as belonging to Quisset's leading citizen Judge Houghton, a frequent visitor at the Porter house. His passenger, a tall, bearded man, jumped out after a brief conversation, ran up the steps and into the Inn. At least, Asey thought as the Judge's car swung around the turntable, the Whale Inn possessed one guest who seemed to be normal, without headaches or without a body that required burial.

He felt less sure of that conclusion a moment later when the bearded man came out, walked down the steps, and looked cautiously to the left and right as if he expected something ferocious lurking in the bushes to leap out and jump at him.

Then, staring down at the gravel, the man walked slowly along the driveway.

"Lost something?" Asey inquired as the man passed by him.

With a start, the man looked up, located Asey, and smiled.

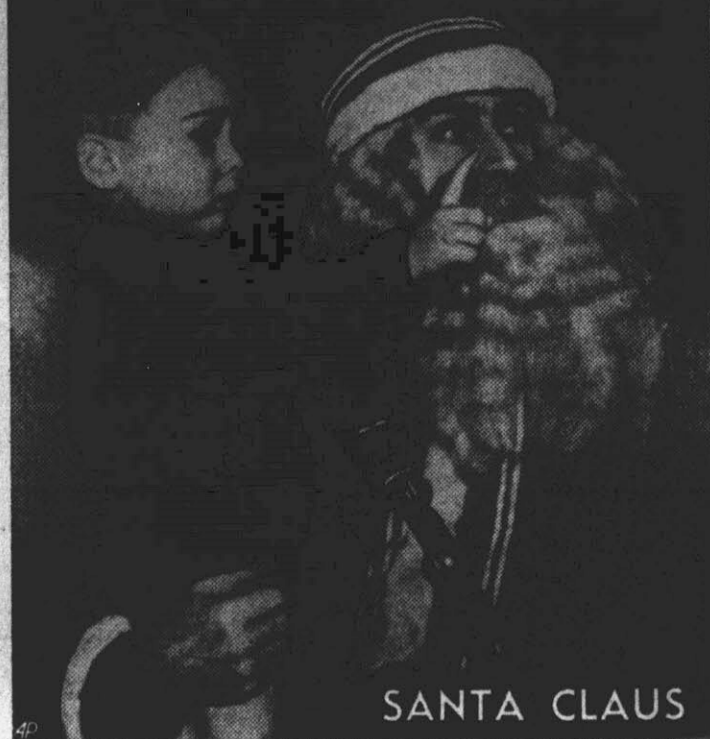

"Yes, a cigarette lighter," he said. "Last time I lost it, a heavy rain turned it up—I say, I know you! Mayo, Asey Mayo, isn't it? I thought so, called on you once a couple of summers ago. Remember?"

"I was trying to place your beard," Asey made his way around a flower bed and walked over to the man. "First I thought you was Bill Porter's explorer friend. But you're the genealogist, ain't you?"

"That's right, Rankin," is the name, Jonathan Rankin. He shook hands with Asey. "I'm pleased you remember me. I remember our chat about the Mayo family, and also your excellent cousin—Jennie, wasn't it? She fed us hot sugar gingerbread and told me more about the Mayos in an hour than I'd learned in six months. What in the world are you doing here, Mayo?"

"Wael," Asey drawled a little, "it's

A CANDID TALK WITH

SANTA CLAUS

WHO HE IS

E. S. PAYNE, formerly an assistant division superintendent for the Denver Tramway Corporation, now is a Pullman conductor. One month each year, December, he takes a layoff to play Santa Claus in the toy department of a Denver department store. "I do it just because I love children," says Payne. "No man who doesn't like children can be a successful Santa because children are quick to sense dislike." Store officials say Payne is one of the best they ever had. As frequently as possible he learns a child's name before he reaches the Santa booth, and when the child appears Payne calls him by his name and writes his "I want's" in a Big Book. Payne attends many holiday parties, impersonating Saint Nick. "Sure," says he, "my head's in a whirl frequently after a hard day but it still is a lot of fun. December's my happiest month."

"YOU'D be surprised at the number of children eight to ten years old, both boys and girls, who still believe in old Santa Claus. And, also, of the number of four year olds who don't."

"But believers or disbelievers, very few are tongue-tied when it comes to telling what they want."

"The scientific age is reflected more each year in what children request. This year I've had more orders for doctor and nurse sets than anything else and chemistry sets and similar things are high up on children's lists. That's a tip for fathers and mothers."

"The war hasn't had much effect upon what younger children choose for Christmas. Very few of them ask for toy machine guns, tanks or bombing planes. I don't believe it is a significant sign even if children do want war machines. When they do request such presents it apparently is just because that thing has caught their fancy temporarily; the toy has no lasting effect upon them."

"In general small tots want what they see before them.

"The older children have very definite ideas, however. It usually is easy for me to tell from what sort of families they come. This is especially true with children from extremely poor families who request such useful things as overcoats, or overshoes, and children from extremely wealthy families who want only frivolous trinkets or constructive or health-promoting."

"I've raised three boys and now I have three grandchildren and I think the best children's presents are those that are useful, instructive or health-promoting."

"Give the gift problem a little thought; buy wisely and stay within your means."

sort of an involved story, Mr. Rankin. It's my impression that there's been a murder here, but—"

"What!"

"Un-huh. But right now," Asey went on dryly, "if you was to ask me for proof, I'd look awful silly."

"What do you mean, man?"

Asey smiled. "I mean we had a body in a phone booth, and now it ain't."

"You mean it's gone?" Rankin demanded. "Where?"

"It might not seem that way to

KERR OPPOSES PRICE CEILING

Telegrams Sent To North Carolina Congressmen

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Nov. 27.—"We strongly oppose price ceiling on farm commodities unless on comparable basis with labor, business and industry," is the text of a telegram Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott has sent to every member of the North Carolina delegation in Congress.

The Commissioner's position was similar to that taken by Harry Caldwell, master of the State Grange. It is his argument that the farmers are entitled to more than parity prices. They deserve an income comparable to that of other classes of workers.

According to farm leaders the farmers' share of the consumer's dollar is about 35 per cent under what it was in 1910. If a ceiling is put upon the price of his commodities and not upon the cost of labor, the effect would be to freeze his income while the income of the laborer climbed to boom heights.

Scott has heard from a few members of the delegation, it was learned at the Department of Agriculture but for the most part the letters have been of the non-committal type which could have been written safely by any secretary. Congressmen on visits to Raleigh recently have been frank in saying that they did not know what should be done and few of them want to "get out on a limb" with any direct statement.

In taking its stand on farm prices the Grange goes further than does the commissioner. It wants the government to give the farmers an even break with labor, insofar as income is concerned and, at the same time, to lay off the regulation of farm work—such as by child legislation.

Strength For The Day

SPEECH VERSUS ACTION
This is a day which lays great emphasis on cleverness. If a man can converse brilliantly, if his ideas are scintillating, if his words sparkle, people will gather about him and bow and scrape in ridiculous adoration.

This, of course, is not just a characteristic of modern life. It has been a measure always been true. Yet it is well to remember that some of the greatest men of action the world has ever produced were men of halting speech and few words. Two of the greatest characters in the Bible, Moses and Paul, are definitely referred to as poor public speakers. Moses referred to himself as slow of tongue, and Paul declared that those who listened to his preaching said that his speech was contemptible. Cromwell was a man of few words, so were William the Silent, and Bismark. In our own day, Calvin Coolidge gained the respect of his contemporaries and won the reputation of great wisdom by the simple expedient of speaking seldom and speaking effectively when he did.

It is well for us to distrust facility of speech both in ourselves and in others. Some great orators have been great men also, but many who have had the reputation of being orators have been mere windbags. In the last analysis, it is the men who do things, not the men who can say things, that serve their generation best.

Most of the country wants to know what Congress is going to do about strikes in our vital industries, for our people will feel much safer when they know that, until there is a victory over Hitlerism, there will be no further unnecessary delays as a result of unwarranted strikes in this country.

Now that this country has placed the Far Eastern dispute squarely in Japan's lap, there are some who are wondering what Japan's next step will be. Our guess is that Premier Tojo will find some way to re-open conversations with this country while he stalls for time to see how Hitler is going to come out in Russia and North Africa. Frankly, we don't believe Japan will fight until and unless a Hitler victory is in sight and she thinks it's time to climb on the bandwagon.

Washington—One of the big problems of the Office of Price Administration is trying to solve now is how to educate the public against "scare buying" and at the same time hammer home the necessity of conservation of certain defense materials and products that contain them.

"Scare buying" is almost as old a merchandising itself. It's the old "get 'em while they last" game played with all the subtleties of modern salesmanship. It's the raw materials producer saying to the manufacturer: "I wouldn't do this for my own brother, but I can let you have ten tons and you better buy all of that because there probably won't be another ounce in 1942."

It's the wholesale salesman whispering to the retailer over a high-way luncheon table: "Joe, you better take the whole 10,000 gross. You know there are priorities now and they'll hit this stuff any day—maybe tomorrow."

It's the retailer telling his customers that he has been able to lay in a small supply of these or those and when they are gone, there won't be any more.

In some instances, it is just that kind of a vicious cycle and the evils that are born of it are high prices, hoarding, inflation—the business tripartite that invariably run interference for post-war depression.

On two major fronts (and a good many minor ones) OPA is waging a war against "scare buying" and at the same time trying to convince that greatest waster of all time, the American Public, that it has to mend its wasting ways if we are going to come even close to satisfying the appetite of defense industries for raw materials.

In the first place, OPA Director Leon Henderson called to Washington Edgar J. Kaufmann, the Pittsburgh department store tycoon. He put him behind an OPA desk, gave him the title of consultant on distribution problems—and ordered routed through him all questions relating to pricing and distribution of finished goods—with special reference to "scare buying."

Washington—Nothing official has been said about it and probably nothing will, but it is a fact that within the past week certain tight-lipped visitors have been in North Carolina looking for sites for shell loading plants and for factories which would manufacture barrage balloons.

Don't be surprised if a certain oldish mill, located between Greensboro and Raleigh, blossoms out as a fuse loading plant. It is not definite but negotiations are under way.

NEW ROUTE—With ribbon-cutting ceremonies by the Governor, route 102 between Goldsboro and Fayetteville recently was opened to traffic. But the number may not stick. As much as Kinross might dislike the idea, 102 may soon become part of U. S. 258 and that route will be turned west, north of Kinross, and become part of a new north-south route through the state. At present 258 dead-ends to the south of Kinross.

PARTY—Fayetteville used to be a town of 20,000 with Fort Bragg its military suburb of 5,000. The town liked the post and the post became several times larger than the town and the tail began to wag the dog. Relations between Bragg and Fayetteville have not been so cordial. Certain Fayetteville people are planning to do something about it.

On December 10, unless tentative plans fail to work out, Fayetteville is going to celebrate "Army Day" with one of the biggest parties in the history of the state. There will be a barbecue for 20,000 soldiers, dances, sports events and things of that sort. Those in charge hope the party will help to revive cordial relations between the neighbors.

WALK-OUT—Chief "Fats" Penry, whose huge hulk is a well known and equally welcome sight in every composing room in North Carolina, this week paid his first visit to the North Carolina Supreme Court. As usual when the clock struck two the seven justices immediately rose to their feet and marched out of the court, even though an attorney was in the midst of his argument.

"My gosh! It's a walk-out," said Penry who has had lots of experience dealing with labor unions. "Well, there's one thing certain," he said when it was explained that the court always did that at two o'clock, "these boys will stand by the wage and hour act.... Tell me, if a lawyer wanted to finish and go home would the court stay over time if they got paid time and a half?"

UNFORGIVEN—It's been well over a year since Chief Justice Stacy and Justices Barnhill and Winborn dissented in the judgment which gave Justice Clarkson a whopping big slice of highway funds for lands the state took over around Little Switzerland. But anybody who thinks that Judge Clarkson has forgiven his chief and colleagues knows him not.

DYNAMITE—When the State Highway and Public Works Commission got around to opening bids on the grading of the road to the top of Mount Mitchell, there were no bids to open. The first explanation of the absence of bids, unprecedented in the commission's experience, was that the contractors couldn't get the dynamite which would be necessary to do the job. But the Division of Purchase and Contract put an end to that report. Now the highway men have come to the conclusion that with winter coming, the contract could not be carried out until next year—though it was opened for bids a couple of months ago—and that in these uncertain times no contractor wanted to tie himself up with a contract for work so far in the future.

Interest Running High In Greenville-Washington Tilt

RECORD CROWD TO VIEW GAME

Contest To Offer Stiffest Rivalry In Section

By FERCY WELLS

Tonight is the big night when all eyes will be on Guy Smith stadium at 8 o'clock to witness one of the hardest-fought football tangles ever to be reeled off on local soil. When an expected overflow of spectators jam the stadium tonight, they will be there to watch two of the stiffest rivals clash in an all-out effort to ring up a victory. This is not the Carolina-Duke classic, but the annual Greenville-Washington battle which promises thrills by the dozen.

This is the last game of the season for both teams, and each has been grinding itself into tip-top shape for this all-important meeting. Coach Farley's Phantoms have been receiving stiff workouts throughout this week and are reported to have no injuries.

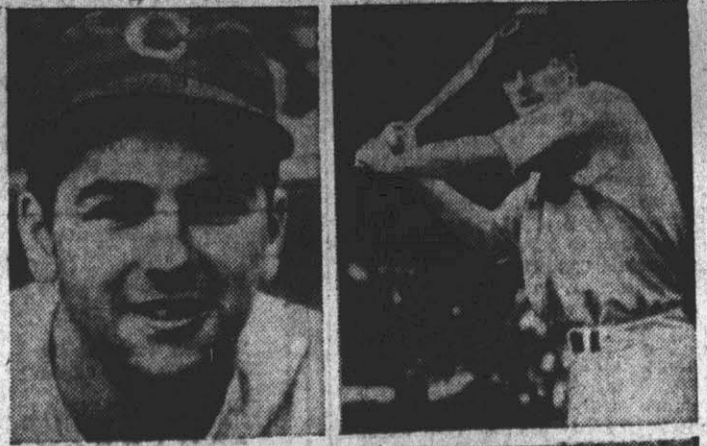

No one feels certain about how to predict an outcome for tonight's tilt, but if one bases his prediction by previous scores, the Green Wave should play the role as favorite. Incidentally, both teams engaged the Roanoke Rapids Yellow Jackets in their last game; Greenville won by a 27-0 score and Washington won 33-7.

Two Washington players whom the fans and the Phantoms will certainly be watching are Stancil, end, and Gerard, back. When it comes to passing, Gerard has shown much aerial ability for the Pam Pack and Stancil has displayed his worth also as a good pass snagger.

The locals are looking eagerly toward this game to set an all-time scoring record for Greenville High School. So far this season the Phantoms have racked up a total of 190 points against 32 made by the opponents. The record is 196 points to opponents' 39. Seven points tonight will cause this record to topple.

Starting for the locals tonight will be Cecil Crawford and Henry Andrews as ends; Ralph Hunter and Spencer Carroll as tackles; Noah Lee Edwards and Kirby Allen at the guard positions and H. R. Goodall centering the ball. Up to date the Lions club has sold a record number of tickets for the Green and White backfielders

Youngster Named Indians' Manager

At the age of 24, Lou Boudreau, shown in close-up and action, has been plucked from the ranks of the Cleveland Indians. He is the youngest baseball pilot in major league history. He's a flashy shortstop and will continue to play in the field.

are John Spearman, wingback; Bill Turner, blocking back; Hubert Musselwhite, fullback; and Leonard Briley, tailback.

Principal E. Frank Ruble of the Washington High School declared this morning that a large delegation of Washington enthusiasts would be on hand for tonight's game.

The Greenville band will furnish the music for the all-important game tonight and six smooth-working cheerleaders headed by Joyce Corbett will be present to lead the fans in whooping up the spirit.

Last night's bonfire and pep rally, along with the theater rally Wednesday evening, has created unprecedented enthusiasm for tonight's game.

Up to date the Lions club has sold a record number of tickets for the Green and White backfielders

RICE IS ADDED BY TAR HEELS

Grid Schedule For Next Year Disclosed Today

Chapel Hill, Nov. 28.—Rice University, which upset Tulane and tied the team that knocked off Texas, has been added to the University of North Carolina football schedule for next year.

The Owls are the only new opponents on the Tar Heels' 1942 card, which was announced today by Athletic Director R. A. Fetzler. The colorful Texas aerial circus, which is coached by Jess Neely, who also made a name for himself at Clemson, will come to Chapel Hill October 17. North Carolina and Richmond could not get together on dates for next year.

The Tar Heels will meet the Owls in Houston, Texas, in 1943. The only other major change was the transfer of the annual classic with Virginia from Thanksgiving to Saturday, November 21. This gives the Tar Heels a full week instead of three days after the Duke battle.

The opening game was still pending, Coach Fetzler said. The Tar Heels met Lenoir-Rhyne from the North State Conference in the first game this year. And the location of the Davidson game has not yet been settled.

The Tar Heels will have an attractive home schedule, opening with Wake Forest and South Carolina, both of which were strong this year, continuing with Rice, and reaching a home climax with the Duke headliner.

Carolina's 1942 schedule follows: Sept. 19—Pending. Sept. 26—Wake Forest at Chapel Hill. Oct. 3—South Carolina at Chapel Hill. Oct. 10—Fordham at New York. Oct. 17—Rice at Chapel Hill. Oct. 24—Tulane at New Orleans. Oct. 31—N. C. State at Raleigh. Nov. 7—Davidson (location undecided). Nov. 14—Duke at Chapel Hill. Nov. 21—Virginia at Charlottesville.

BIG SUM SAVED BY REFUNDING

County and City Credits Continue To Improve

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Nov. 28. — Refunding operations during the past 10 months have saved North Carolina counties, cities and towns $1,695,920, according to Local Government Commission records.

Although this savings is a drop in the bucket compared to the $46,000,000 interest originally saved when the commission began its efforts to refinance the obligations of units in default, the commission is rather proud of it. In each instance it means a second saving on an old obligation.

For instance, suppose a city had outstanding $10,000,000 of 5.5 per cent bonds when the depression came. Soon the city was in default, unable to meet the payments on interest and principal when they fell due. So taking advantage of the municipal bankruptcy act and other emergency statutes, the commission arranged with the bond holders to cut the interest, extend the period of payment and lower the load to a point where the city could carry it.

That was saving number one. It was done all over the state. Now the commission is taking up these refunding bonds with other refunding issue carrying a still lower rate of interest. That is made possible by the fact that all refunding bonds were callable and the fact that the financial conditions of the local units has so improved that many have better credit than ever before.

Some of the units which have made refunding savings this year are: Elizabeth City $519,337; High Point $167,577; New Bern $54,996; Stokes county $43,246; Dun $35,584; Roxboro $53,070 and $80,986; Alamance county $12,094; Bladen $70,387; East Spencer $8,835; Williams-son $23,142; Hamlet $129,233; Elkin $208,320; and Sanford $288,919.
