Churchill Granted Vote Of Confidence 464 to 1

WAR REVIEWED PRIOR TO VOTE

Premier Offers No Apologies For Setbacks To Date; Says Strong Reinforcements Sent To Bolster Singapore; Explains Loss Of Two Battleships; Says U. S. Aims End War at Earliest

By The Associated Press London, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The House of Commons, with but one dissenting vote, expressed confidence today in the conduct of the war by Prime Minister Churchill after he had told them the United States was determined to close with the German foe as soon as possible.

The vote was 464 to one. The lone negative ballot came from James Maxton, independent labor party, whose two co-members, Jock McGovern and Campbell Stephen, acted as tellers and could not vote. Twenty-four members, mostly laborites, abstained from voting.

The presence of an AEP on soil of the United Kingdom—in Northern Ireland—represents the desire of the United States that her ready troops should establish battle contact as soon as feasible, the Prime Minister said.

In a 42-minute summation for his government as the House moved toward a vote of confidence, Churchill also indicated appointment of a British counterpart to the United States' chief of war production, Donald M. Nelson, and disclosed that Singapore had been steadily reinforced for a fight to the finish.

These were Churchill's high spots: The AEP in the United Kingdom—"it seems the wishes of the American people and leaders of that republic—that the large mass of trained and equipped troops they have in the United States should come into contact with the enemy as close and as soon as possible."

War production—in reference to appointment of Donald M. Nelson as chief of the war production board in the United States: "Some similar office, not exactly with the same scope but with similar scope, must be created here."

Singapore—"I cannot tell how the Johore battle or the attack on the island of Singapore will go but there has been a steady flow of reinforcements for several weeks past."

In summation of his defense after three days of criticism and reply in general debate, Churchill said: "I offer no apologies. I offer no excuse and make no promises. I know my confidence was never stronger than at this moment that we shall bring this conflict to a end in a manner agreeable to the interests of our country and in a manner agreeable to the future of the world."

Headlong Thrust Thwarted By Gen. M'Arthur's Forces

Allied Airplanes Score Major Hits

Yanks And British Wipe Out Jap Formation Over Rangoon By Bagging 13 Invaders; Australian Attack Jap Vessels In New Britain Harbor

Rangoon, Burma, Jan. 29. (AP)—Sharp-shooting Yankee and British combat pilots wiped out a Japanese fighter plane sweep over the cloud-decked Rangoon area this afternoon destroying at least 13 enemy planes, and possibly four more, without a loss in their own squadrons.

The smashing blow to the Japanese added to the already illustrious lighting record of the American volunteers and the British pilots who yesterday knocked down seven raiders and chased off 30 others at a cost of but a single plane whose pilot bailed out unhurt.

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Australian aircraft scored a direct hit on one Japanese ship and probably hit another despite bad visibility in their third attack on Abauul, New Britain, since the island port was occupied by the Japanese, an RAF communique said today.

All the Australian planes returned to their base. Four of the 11 Japanese vessels known to be at Rabaul, were reported previously to have been knocked out of action by damage from the Australian raiders.

Reconnaissance flights over the Bismarck archipelago, of which New Britain is a part, were reported to have disclosed no developments of major importance. Formation of a special people's army, trained on the lines of Britain's home guard, for protection of the commonwealth against invasion is to be discussed by Army Minister Francis F. Forde and Maj. Gen. Vernon Sturdee, chief of the Australian general staff.

No Further Probe For Pearl Harbor

Washington, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The House Naval Committee refused today by a vote of 14 to 6 to undertake a supplementary congressional inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster.

May Be Required Ration Gasoline

Washington, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Interior Secretary Ickes said today the petroleum situation in the east where rationing was imposed last summer, was "tight and getting tighter" as a result of ship tanker sinkings and diversions of such vessels to war service.

HITLER UNABLE CARRY ON WAR WITHOUT AIDES

Said To Have Reached Compromise With Generals MORE ADVANCES SCORED BY REDS

British Middle East Headquarters, However, Acknowledge Further Reverses In North Africa

By The Associated Press Sweeping new gains by Russia's armies were reported today as word circulated in London that Adolf Hitler, who five weeks ago ousted Field Marshal Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch and assumed supreme command of the German army, had reached a compromise with his generals because he was "unable to carry on without the aid of his experienced strategists."

In dismissing von Brauchitsch, a few days before Christmas, Hitler declared his "intuitions" had led him "to reserve to himself personally all essential decisions" in directing the war.

Rome, (From Italian Broadcasts), Jan. 29.—(AP)—The Italian high command announced in a special bulletin that German and Italian troops this morning entered Bengasi, chief port and capital of Cyrenaica.

The entry of the Axis columns was made at dawn, the bulletin said. Today's British communique admitted Axis forces were closing in on the city, which now has changed hands four times in 13 months, from the east and south.

The British Ministry of Information circulated extracts of an article in the anti-Axis German language newspaper Die Zeitung, published in London, declaring that the Fuehrer now had changed his mind and that commands of the conservative Generals Von Bock, Von Rundstedt, Von Leeb and others "have been confirmed and they were now in charge of new armies."

The newspaper said the compromise was "equivalent to an admission on the part of Hitler" that he needed Germany's military brains to conduct the war. Hitler served as a corporal in the 1914-18 World War.

Allied Forces Ordered Turn Back Java Invasion

Report Says Japs Intent On Full-Scale Invasion

London, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The London Daily Mail, in a dispatch from Batavia, said today that the Japanese invasion fleet under attack in Macassar Strait is "intent on a full-scale invasion of Java" and Allied orders are to turn it back "at all costs."

Java is the headquarters of the Allied supreme command in the southwest Pacific. The dispatch described the fleet as a "great convoy of warships, troop transports and supply vessels—100 ships altogether."

"The total of ships now destroyed is 28," the dispatch continued. (Compliments from United Nations communique make the total 36 sunk or damaged). "But it is estimated that 65 ships carrying 150,000 troops with their full equipment still remain afloat. The threat to Java, though reduced, still is very real."

"I understand that Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell (Allied supreme commander) has ordered that at all costs the enemy fleet must be forced back," Salter added. "The armada here launched a new two-pronged drive into Dutch West Borneo, sharply threatening the chief city of Pontianak, south of the 'White Rajah' kingdom of Sarawak."

Pontianak lies 400 miles east across the China sea from Singapore and about 500 miles northeast across the Java sea from Batavia, the Dutch Indies capital.

Defenses Of Stronghold Facing Test

Although Acknowledging Further Advances by Japs, British Communique Reports Successful Counter-Offensive Carried Out By Aussies; Two-Pronged Thrust Made In Dutch West Borneo

By ROGER D. GREENE Associated Press War Editor The fateful battle for Singapore raged only 30 miles away in the jungles of Southern Malaya today, and as the "zero hour" approached, the world awaited an answer to the mystery of the island stronghold's $400,000,000 defense.

A British communique acknowledged that Japanese vanguards had advanced to within 30 miles of Johore Strait, which separates Singapore island from the mainland, but declared that bayonet-wielding Australians had successfully counter-attacked and inflicted 200 casualties.

On the Malay east coast other Japanese columns apparently had driven to a point 40 miles northwest of Johore Strait, with heavy fighting reported at this point.

British headquarters said imperial defense troops were "in contact" with the Japanese central front spearhead near Layans-Layans, a town on the main Singapore island 30 miles above Johore Strait.

A mile-wide strip was being cleared along the strait in preparation for the battle of Singapore island itself. Paramount were three questions: 1. Will Singapore, with its earth-shattering 18-inch guns turned toward the sea, become another "Maginot" line—a defenseless shell when attacked from the rear?

2. Or have the British erected a secret network of death-trap defenses at the lower tip of the Malay peninsula, guarding the mile-wide water barrier to Singapore island from the north? Pre-war dispatches from Singapore told of giant guns so powerful their detonations would burst ear drums at 100 yards and knock pictures from walls within a radius of several miles.

But as the hour of crisis neared, it remained to be seen whether the great fortress—originally built as an "impregnable" defense bastion against attack by sea—may have become outmoded under modern conditions of aerial warfare.

Meanwhile, Japan's invasion horns launched a new two-pronged drive into Dutch West Borneo, sharply threatening the chief city of Pontianak, south of the "White Rajah" kingdom of Sarawak. Pontianak lies 400 miles east across the China sea from Singapore and about 500 miles northeast across the Java sea from Batavia, the Dutch Indies capital.

FDR To Report

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP) — President Roosevelt expects to tell the nation by radio about the progress of the war effort around February 23 and the White House said today that by that time "it is quite possible he will have things of importance to say."

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early disclosed Mr. Roosevelt's intention to speak about the time of George Washington's Birthday. He said that the White House had been receiving, by mail, telegram and orally, many requests that the Chief Executive make another fireside chat to the country "to dispel pessimism and troublesome rumors and insofar as possible to give the country a clearer and better understanding of the war and all that it involves."

He said the President did not feel that the present was a very good time to talk to the people but thought late next month would be more propitious.

The WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MacKENZIE (World-wide News Analyst) The great vote of confidence given the Churchill government by the British House of Commons today is evidence of the tremendous trust placed in the Prime Minister by the general public.

One might even go further and venture the view that the genius of Mr. Churchill is so outstanding that there is no other man in Britain who could fill his place. As an Englishman remarked to me this morning, the average man in the street goes about with his fingers crossed, praying that a bomb won't fall on the Premier.

In appraising Churchill's capabilities it must be remembered that he not only is a statesman of broad experience but also has had wide training in both the military and the naval services—a rare combination of assets. And of course one mustn't overlook his really great qualities of leadership, and his practical skill in handling political crises.

Extension of the U-boat warfare in American waters, and the savagery exhibited in such attacks as that on the passenger liner Lady Hawkins which was sunk without warning with heavy loss of life, hold two vital lessons for the allies.

Reduce Quotas Of Automobile Tires

Raleigh, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The State Defense Council said today that tire and tube quotas for February would be substantially less than those in January. A person with a priority rating and a truck will have a better chance of getting a tube, however.

During the coming month passenger cars will be allotted 2,263 tires and 1,833 tubes and trucks 4,518 tires and 7,748 tubes.

The state's quotas this month were 2,871 tires and 2,403 tubes for passenger cars and 5,819 tires and 4,865 tubes for trucks.

Close Escape For Argentina's Envoy

Rio De Janeiro, Jan. 29.—(AP)—An airliner carrying Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, foreign minister of Argentina, and other delegates home from the Rio De Janeiro Pan-American conference fell into the sea today but all aboard were saved.

Ruiz Guinazu suffered a chest injury. He was picked up by a launch and taken to the Naval School hospital. The accident occurred at 9:30 a. m. (7:30 a. m. EST) as the plane was taking off from the Rio De Janeiro airport.

Besides Ruiz Guinazu, 11 other members of the Argentine delegation were aboard the plane. Submarines can stay at sea for long and travel as far as 10,000 miles.

To Give Radio Program.
Tonight at 8:30 the radio committee of the American Association of University Women, and several members of the cast of "Little Black Sambo and the Tigers" will broadcast a half-hour program about that delightful children's play by Charlotte A. Chorpennin, scheduled to be given in the Astin Auditorium at the college, with both afternoon and evening performances, and February 5.

In addition to the committee's telling how the story happened to be written, and something about the musical background of the play, the girls in the cast—Dorcas, Ronza, Houlene and Koombs—and little Black Sambo will give one scene from the play.

None of the money—Malinke, the friendly monkey; or Tangalingaling and Senkepenyana, the bad monkeys; or Mappo and Zalululu—will be heard over the radio, but their antics in the play will delight grown people as well as children. The production staff and actors, members of the Chi-Fi Players at the college, are working enthusiastically under the direction of Clifford Britton, happy in the knowledge that they will bring joy to the hearts of many children.

While the sets are designed to show the beauty and color, and something of the strangeness of the jungle, none of the terror is there. Anyone who would like to buy a ticket or several tickets for children who cannot otherwise attend, may get them at any one of the schools in town or from Mrs. R. S. Slay.

FALKLAND NEWS

The members of the Falkland Home Demonstration Club express their thanks and sincere appreciation to everyone responding so readily to the urgent call of our country, for scrap iron, metal, waste paper, newspapers, magazines and cardboard.

We thank Mr. Tyr for the use of his truck, to collect the material; Mrs. C. H. Mayo for storing it in her yard until moved; Mrs. H. Willis and Mrs. Tyler for their service, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stokes for the use of one room to store paper material until it can be moved.

The Falkland community helped the Red Cross in reaching their goal and the ladies are doing splendid work, sewing and knitting, and they stand ready and willing to serve their country, wherever and whenever the call comes.

Putting all your eggs in one basket is bad policy, so we are helping in this small way the Salvation Army, that they too may reach their goal and go forward. We appreciate their sending out for the material we had and hope to collect the balance soon.

We are asking everyone to continue to save everything, including rags. Let's keep them flying. Our faith must not falter in our God and the ultimate triumph of righteousness on the earth.

As we have observed, reports indicate a largely increased tobacco acreage in North Carolina this year. GREENVILLE CITY OF SUNSHINE War gardens to feed the hungry peoples of the world we must have and our own government favors also ornamental gardening as an aid to morale—but with reservations.

The first thing for us to do with time on our hands is to make sure we are carrying our share of the load in war activities. If perfectly sure we are doing that and then have time and energy left, no better outlet may be found than planning and planting to create beauty around us. Sitting, thinking with hands folded is a sure way to get the jitters these days, so let's put those hands to work.

The bright, cheery catalogs coming to us now offer many new exciting beauties and impatient "green-thumbed" gardeners welcome the sight of them and some beautiful spring-like morning will be found doing the chores that should be done several weeks later. Winter is with us yet, so let's go slow. Plan now what we are to do and how to do it, what we are to plant and where to plant it, whether in the open, in a coldframe or greenhouse. Too much haste now can be a waste of time and money. Be patient and you won't wake up some nice frosty morning and find your precious plants you had expected to enjoy so much, frozen stiff just because you did not wait until the proper time for planting. There are many other things that may be done, so plan them carefully now while there's time and doing them later will be much easier.

Assuming Initiative.

Safe in Philippines
Arthur MacArthur (above), 4, son of General Douglas MacArthur, is safe in the Philippines with his mother, the former Jean Faircloth of Murfreesboro, Tenn., relatives in Louisville, Ky., have learned.

When planting your garden you naturally want the best possible results for the time and money invested. New garden subjects invite new garden interest and the improved varieties of today outmode many of our cherished favorites, but maybe you prefer to plant those that have stood the test in your own garden or those of your friends, if so stick to them and grow them even better than you have before. Shortage of bulbs and seed imports will affect many changes in our gardens. Dutch Iris are replacing the lovely tulips of former years and some varieties of pansies and petunias are not to be had, but there are many lovely substitutes. Plant those best suited to your garden and the results will not be disappointing.

Many home gardeners are content to have flowers in the spring, so neglect to have them in summer and fall, and during these seasons their gardens are neither interesting nor attractive. By choosing the right kind of flowers, shrubs, trees and vines you can have them follow each other in a great array of kind and color for practically the whole year.

Soon to greet us will be the Camellias in their lovely forms and colors. The Azaleas with their showy colored flowers are a burst of beauty in the springtime garden. After tulips, daffodils and irises have had their day, low growing annuals and perennials will cover the barren spots in your garden and lend fresh bright colors. As mid-summer comes on other annuals and perennials greet us with their wealth of bloom and beauty. As fall approaches we can have the large, beautiful and aristocratic chrysanthemums or the smaller Korean Hybrids, or other varieties blooming clear up to the night Jack Frost puts out his icy hand and morning finds your lonely blooms of yesterday all blackened and limp but they were worth the care you gave them when you recall the pleasure they brought you and your friends. Include the cape jasmine in your garden for it has everything—form, texture, fragrance splendid background possibilities. Plant also the asmanthus, all three varieties, they seem to grow well in sun or shade and prefer a slightly acid soil. Their delightful fragrance makes them a favorite. The tea plant is another "must have." Let's plan and plant to bring into our gardens endless variety of form, a range of colors to rival the rainbow and some new joy for each month of the year.

Throughout our gardens and among the green things growing we need the lightness, grace and beauty of flowering shrubs and trees. Just here we are reminded of our state flower, the dogwood, in winter with its bare branches garlanded with glowing ruby berries and in spring its burst of lovely bloom. Plant just as many of these as you find space for. They grow lovelier with the years, adding much to your winter landscape. The comfort and cheer they bring may be greatly needed in the coming days.

There will be "war gardens" for food but there must be more flowers, shrubs and trees to bring to us that comfort and cheer and pledge divine that once again peace will come to our sorely tried world. We will need them more in these difficult times.

May your garden be a haven of refuge where beauty and peace flood your heart with confidence in the future.

MOR QUICKIES ARE WINNERS FOR BREAKFASTS, LUNCHES, DINNERS

Here's an easy-to-fix MOR dish for a Sunday breakfast, a special luncheon or a family dinner. Easy on your food budget, too.

Slice the contents of one can of MOR into 8 pieces, saute in frying pan. Turn. Break 4 Clear Brook eggs into a saucer, one at a time, and slip one egg on each two slices of MOR. Cook gently till eggs begin to firm. Then add 1 tsp. cream for each egg, season, cover tightly, cook slowly about 6 minutes. Serve immediately—a meal for 4.

Delicious variations—add to the cream 1/2 tsp. of Worcestershire Sauce or dry mustard.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

THE ETERNAL TRIUMPH SURE
The Bible teaches us to believe that God's will is unchangeable and that at the very moment of seeming frustration it is completing itself. It seems sometimes as if man were flouting the will of God and letting away with it. God and His good ways seem continuously to be getting the worst of it in this world. We look for the triumph of good over evil, and while it seems to come in one little area of life, the reverse comes in another area and it seems that we are just where we started.

But this is not true—it only appears to be true. With all the killing going on in the world today, this age in which we live is better and more hopeful than any which man has ever known. In the throes of war, the possibilities of centuries of peace are being born. Though stupid and selfish leaders may try to grasp some immediate good and cast away the ultimate by doing God always picks up enough fragments to build a little more of that eternal structure which He is fashioning amid the ruins of human folly.

God is not being defeated, and let us never believe for a moment that He is. We may be casting eternal values aside and joining in vain onslaught against God's will, but God is not thereby defeated. His will is unchangeable. At the very moment it seems to be frustrated, it is completing itself gloriously.

With all the emphasis that has been placed on the visit of the service men for the President's Birthday Ball here tomorrow night, some few of our people might have gotten the mistaken idea that the affair is one strictly for the service men. It is the annual President's Birthday Ball, the proceeds from which are used in the local and national fight against infantile paralysis. The Virginia State Legislature now in session has before it measures that would reduce the speed laws in that state as a means of saving both tires and gasoline during the national emergency. It might be added that such a reduction in speed limits also would probably save lives. This is a matter that should be given attention by every state just as soon as their respective law-making bodies meet for their next session, or better still, we might get quicker action in this matter if Congress could adopt a uniform speed law for the whole nation at this time as a national emergency measure.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stippert

Washington. — One of the great phenomena of the United States government is the peculiar quality of the White House and the way it fits into the American scheme of things. For generations, it has almost been a living personality in the minds of the American people, but in recent years it has become a world personality as never before. "The White House says..." the White House reports. And all the world listens.

This is something that transcends the men who have lived there, for although President Roosevelt has contributed much to the power and personality of the White House, it had assumed this air of personal entity before he was born. Washington, Jefferson, Hoban and L'Enfant, the men who planned and located "the mansion or palace of the presidents" as it was always thought of in those days, would be amazed to find that it has become a force in world affairs.

They envisioned it as a quiet retreat where the president might retire from the hurly-burly of politics raging at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue on Capitol Hill. They saw it as a peaceful dignified home, given over to pleasant living. They counted it as the center of that gay, social life in which the presumed Washington would duplicate the pattern of other great capitals.

Nevertheless, it was not until the British had sacked Washington and burned the mansion, and Hoban had set about rebuilding it, that it emerged as "the White House."

By that time, the outlines of the central part of the building, became pretty much as they are today and it remained only for Andrew Jackson to turn the building around, making the North Portico the front door; and for the long east and west wings to be built to give it its present appearance.

It has a swimming pool in the west wing now and beautiful lawns where the old swamp used to be. Many of its rooms have charm and dignity. The President has his breakfast in bed and starts the day's work before he is out of his pajamas. He lunches from a steam table in his office, generally in conference. The dinners are nearly always family or small group affairs, especially on Sunday nights, when Mrs. Roosevelt serves scrambled eggs to a small gathering of intimates. But these are not the things that make the White House a world personality. Probably much more vital to that growing tradition is the bustling secretarial staff; the scores of weekly conferences with the men who are turning the gears in our world war machine; the historic sessions such as that with Winston Churchill; and above all those daily utterances which come out of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue for all the world to weigh and consider: "The White House says..."

President Gets Birthday Cake

President Roosevelt coaxed a speech out of three-year-old Jill Myrup when she visited the White House in Washington and acted as spokesman for the Bakery and Confectionary Workers' union in presenting the Chief Executive a 350-pound birthday cake for his Diamond Jubilee January 30. Standing: William Green (left), president of the American Federation of Labor, and Clement Maggia (right), the baker who made the cake.

Wife Believed With MacArthur

Gen. Douglas MacArthur marked his 62nd birthday January 26 by successfully counter-attacking the Japs in the Philippines—and it was believed that close beside him was his wife, the former Jean Marie Faircloth of Murfreesboro, Tenn. Washington sources expressed belief she was at Fort Mills on Corregidor island in Manila bay. This picture of the MacArthurs was made shortly after their marriage in 1937. They have a three-year-old son.

RABBI SPEAKS AT ASSEMBLY

Says Jews No Different From Other Americans

Speaking at the college assembly Tuesday on the topic "The People Nobody Knows," Rabbi Leonard Rothstein of Harrisonburg, Va., emphasized the fact that Jews differ from other people only in religion—that they are not American Jews, but are Jewish Americans, just as there are Protestant and Catholic Americans.

Rabbi Rothstein, who came to the college from the Jewish Chatauque, was introduced by President Leon R. Meadows. From here he will go to Woman's College, Greensboro.

"The Jew is the greatest individualist on the face of the earth," declared the speaker. Pointing out that the Jews are divided into two distinct groups, the Orthodox and the Liberal, he discussed the points in spiritual values which are accepted by both groups. On the doctrine of monotheism and immortality both agree. They agree also that man is a choosing agent and that the Jews are the chosen people in that they have been selected for the heavier responsibility and not that they enjoy God's favor more than other people.

"On the other hand, the two groups differ on several important beliefs," continued the speaker. "The Orthodox group's religion is ritualistic while the Liberals emphasize the use of these ceremonies merely as an end to the good life. The Liberals say that the dietary laws of the Bible are not those of religion but of health; the Orthodox, that they are on the same basis as other laws. Only when the Liberal comes to a part of the Bible that tells a man how to live does he consider that it has any binding power, but to the Orthodox, the Bible is inspired and every word is equally binding." In his statement that he was a Jewish American, Rabbi Rothstein was stating the belief of the Liberal that the Jews are no longer a nation as opposed to the Orthodox belief that they are a nation dispossessed of their national home. While the Orthodox Jew believes in the coming of a Messiah from the house of David, the Liberal believes in a Messianic Age that will come from within each individual and through the united effort of all right-thinking, God-loving people and not as a gift from on high.

In concluding Rabbi Rothstein said "The greatest sin committed against the Jews is generalization" and urged that each Jew be treated according to his merit or demerit.

Jap Commander

Lieut. Gen. Masaharu Homma (above), one of Japan's crack military figures, commands a force estimated at 200,000 to 300,000 men who are battling to break the gallant resistance of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's small army of Americans and Filipinos. A late dispatch from MacArthur said all Jap attacks on the Bataan peninsula have been repulsed.

NO TIME FOR LOVE

Chapter 26
One Should Be Happy
"If you had your life to live over again," said Lavinia, "beginning with that man, would you live it differently? I mean, would you go to him, make up with him, and say you'd marry him?"
"You want the truth—the absolute truth?" said Aunt Dorcas.
"I certainly do. I won't be satisfied with anything less than the absolute truth."
"Then here it is. If I had my life to live over again, I'd marry that man so quickly he wouldn't know what had happened!" Aunt Dorcas caught her breath. "I'd never even look at a lion or a bear—and the only digging I'd do is the digging necessary to prove my love. So there!"
"Thank you, Aunt Dorcas."
"Well, what are you going to do about it?"
"You'll know tomorrow—when I get back to New York."
"Lavinia Prentiss, don't you dare keep me in suspense!" said Aunt Dorcas.
"Suspense is good for one," said Lavinia. "Good-bye, Aunt Dorcas." She went out to the porch, and stood looking down at Rod. She thought of him as he must have been in Dunkirk. She remembered how he had looked at Haroor Head. She moved toward him.
He heard her, and turned. He got up.
"Nothing wrong, I hope," he said.
"No," said Lavinia. "Everything's lovely."
"For you, maybe," said Rod. "But not for me. I suppose you told your aunt you were going back to Armworths."
Lavinia shook her head. "No, I didn't, Rod."
"Well, what next?" said Rod.
"Why don't you ask me to marry you?" said Lavinia.
"I've been asking you, darling."
"Well, do it again. I like hearing it."
"But I don't like hearing you say 'no.'"
"Try me once more."
"Lavinia, will you marry me?"
"Yes, Rod, darling."
"Good lord, do you mean it?"
"Of course I mean it," said Lavinia. "I never joke about serious matters."
Rod caught her to him. "Dearest—dearest," he said, his lips against her cheek.
"You have Aunt Dorcas to thank," Lavinia said.
"How do you mean?"
"Aunt Dorcas has always been the biggest influence in my life." Lavinia smiled; she held Rod off and looked at him. "I've always wanted to be just like her. And now I'm being just like she'd like to be."
"Doesn't make sense," said Rod, "as you tell it."
"Of course it doesn't," said Lavinia. "But one shouldn't be sensible when one's in love—or should one?"
"No," said Rod. "One should be happy—and nothing more."
Lavinia snuggled against him. "When one is in love—well, one just doesn't think." How long ago it seemed that Zoe had said those words. And now—here she stood in Hull, Connecticut, knowing that Zoe had spoken the truth.
"Rod."
"Yes, Lavinia."
"Do you mind very much getting married in the Little Church Around the Corner?"
"Certainly not—if that's what you wish."
"I don't care so much for myself," said Lavinia. "But you see Aunt Dorcas just loves a church wedding."
Rod laughed. "God bless Aunt Dorcas," he said.
"And one more thing, Rod."
"Yes, darling."
"Do you like bears?"
"Bears? What sort of bears?"
"I mean bears in the shape of rugs—fur rugs."
"Of course I like them. Why?"
"Because I'd like to take a bear-skin rug out to Michigan with us. It's the skin off a bear my Aunt Dorcas shot."
"Take it, by all means," said Rod. "Thanks, darling." Lavinia sighed. "It will serve as a sort of—of link between my life with you and the life I might have lived in a jungle."
"You blessed little idiot!" said Rod. And then: "Did Aunt Dorcas really shoot the bear?"
"She did," said Lavinia. "And then what do you suppose she did?"
"Shot another one."
"No, Rod, she faints."
"Now, listen Lavinia," said Rod. "You can't convince me that Aunt Dorcas did a thing like that."
"All right, have it your way, darling." Lavinia lifted her face. "Let's forget Aunt Dorcas and her bears for a moment—while you kiss me again."

Big Five Cage Talk Turns To Deacons Of Wake Forest.

WAKE SLATED COME THROUGH

If So, Four Tar Heel Teams To Enter Tourney

Raleigh, Jan. 29.—(AP)—If the Wake Forest basketball team continues to play the brand of ball it did in its smashing 36-20 victory over Carolina Tuesday night, Old North State court fans will be in for a rare treat when the annual Southern Conference tournament rolls around.

If the Deacons come through—and that they should—for the first time in three years the bicentennial of the Big Five will be in the yearly classic.

Duke, State and Carolina are well on their way toward the qualifying ranks, and if the Deacons are more than just an occasionally inspired quint, they will be present when the play begins in Memorial auditorium in late February.

Only the top eight teams in the conference play are eligible to compete in the tournament.

State, long a power in Dixie basketball, seems to be back in the top time ranks after two very lean years.

But getting back to Wake Forest. If you saw the Baptists play Duke Saturday night—score: Duke have been convinced that the Deacons weren't going to get what they were seeking, but after Tuesday night, you could safely say they were hot candidates for the title.

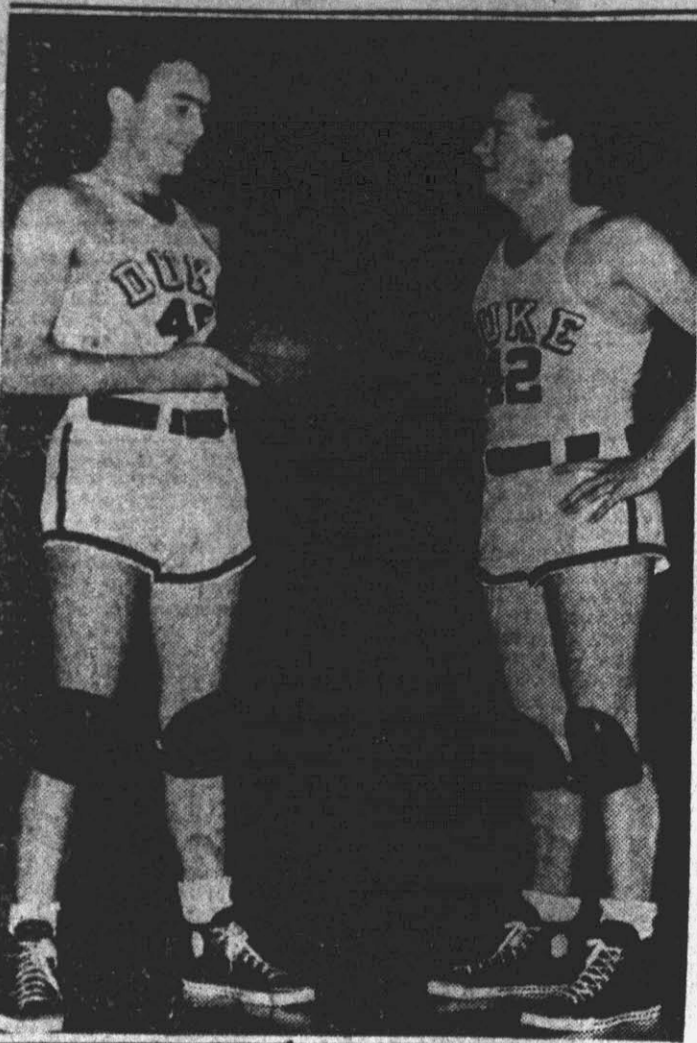

Carolina didn't play a poor game quite the contrary. It was just a case of being outplayed by a championship-calibre outfit.

Bob Rose, Chapel Hill's great center, deserves all the praise he has received, but Tuesday night, although the gangly Bob led both teams with 11 points he was just another ballplayer compared to Wake Forest's red hot trio of Herb Dine, Jimmy Bonds, and Ray Koski.

If the black and gold had clicked against Duke as it did against Carolina, the Deacons would have another conference win to its credit.

Carolina has a chance tomorrow night to show that it hasn't climb-

That Loftis Tandem

You've been reading a lot lately about Cedric and Garland Loftis, the sophomore brother act that's going over so big with Duke basketball fans this winter. Likewise, you've read plenty about another sophomore who's been burning up all adjacent courts—one Horace (Bones) McKinney, the high-scoring center of Dr. Bob Warren's N. C. State Red Terrors. It hasn't been so long since these three boys were teammates at Durham high school, sparking that great Bulldog quintet that mopped up in scholastic circles for three years. Saturday night in Duke gymnasium the Loftis kids will be on one side, Bones on the other. And it could be that Cedric (left) and Garland (right) are discussing ways and means of spiking their old sidekick in the picture above. Anyway, there's more than a little human interest in this Duke-State Red Terrors. It hasn't been so long since these three boys were teammates at Durham high school, sparking that great Bulldog quintet

Winterville Maps Blackout Details

The Winterville community is set for its test blackout next Monday night and the town has enacted ordinances carrying a $50 fine or 30 days for refusal or willful failure of citizens to cooperate in the movement.

According to Chief Air Raid Warden Ray Oglesby the city has been divided into four zones, each with its chief and assistants and all will be at their posts and ready when the signal for the blackout comes. For the rural communities around Winterville, Ray E. Dayenport is warden and the signal for the blackout in the rural sections will be sounded by the ringing of farm bells.

In Winterville proper the siren will sound one long blast 20 minutes before the blackout; two long blasts will be sounded 12 minutes before the blackout and one long blast will signal the blackout itself. One long and two short blasts of the siren will give the all clear signal at the end of the test.

Mr. Oglesby called attention to the fact that Winterville has but three telephone lines and about 30 telephones which at times causes much congestion in the handling of calls in the community. In view of this situation he urges that telephones in the Winterville area be used for emergency purposes only between the hours of eight and ten o'clock Monday night in order that the lines will be clear for receiving information at Winterville air raid headquarters to be maintained at the mayor's office.

To Keep Players

Durham, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The Bi-State Baseball league will meet Sunday to consider admitting Rocky Mount and Wilson for the 1942 season.

Meanwhile, President W. G. Bramham of the National Association, ruled that the cities, members of the collapsed Coastal Plain League, could retain title to their players until February 2.

HIGHS TO PLAY IN WASHINGTON

Locals To Engage Pam Pack In That City Tonight

After dropping their first conference meet with the Goldsboro Earthquakes, the Phantoms went on a winning spree and have taken five consecutive loop battles since.

Tonight the locals journey over to Washington to clash with the Pam Pack basketball team in what is expected to be a tough engagement for the Greens.

Last Tuesday night Coach Farley's proteges wasted no time in racking up a 69-21 win over the New Bern Bears in the local gymnasium. Larry Brown, flashie forward, was an offensive standout in this game as he tallied 13 points to lead the victors. Sydney Dunn closely followed with 10, total of 12 points.

Washington is the only Eastern Conference aggregation the Phantoms haven't played this season and reports are that the Pam Pack are out to stop any Greenville hopes for victory.

Probable starters for the local cagers will be lanky Troy Riddle, center; Larry Brown and John Spearman, forwards; and Gene Jonsson and Hubert Musselwhite guards. Those slated to see action are: Sydney Dunn, Connor Merritt, Ben Harrison, Joe Register, Henry Andrews and John Saied.

ed on a toboggan when it plays best to V. M. I., and possibly a season highlight may be turned on Saturday night when Duke and State clash in Durham.

I don't mean a thing, but Davidson took Guilford, 44-27, in a non-conference, non-Big Five game in Greensboro last night. It will take more than a war production board priority rating to get the Wildcats in this year's conference tourney.

Receipts Of Game Presented to Fund

The Infantile Paralysis fund in Pitt county was boosted by $48 as a result of the basketball game with New Bern Tuesday night and by the efforts of the Junior class of the Greenville High School.

The entire net proceeds from the game, amounting to $31, were turned over to the fund. The Junior class made and sold refreshments which brought in $17 which was turned over to the fund.

Annual Seed Exposition To Open Here Tomorrow A. M.

Event To Be Conducted At Tobacco Warehouse

Interesting Program Outlined For Annual Affair

The annual seed exposition and annual meeting of the North Carolina Crop Improvement Association will be formally opened at Keel's warehouse with the judging of farmers' exhibits tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and will continue through Saturday with two full days of activities planned. There will be prizes for the farmers.

The joint affair was held here two years ago and was declared to have been one of the best in history. Meetings are alternated annually between the eastern and western part of the state.

Extensive plans have been made for making this year's event even bigger and better than any previous exposition and meeting. Large numbers of exhibits have been entered in the competition by farmers from many sections of the state.

The program lists many of the most outstanding farm leaders in the entire state and a feature of the entire meeting will be an address by Gov. Broughton at the annual luncheon session to be held at 1 p. m., Saturday. F. H. Jeter, editor of the Agricultural Extension Service, N. C. State College, will act as toastmaster. Many other Extension specialists will appear on the two-day program.

One of the highlight discussions will be by Lewis P. Watson, Extension horticulturist, at the afternoon session tomorrow. He will discuss the North Carolina Victory Garden program which is being stressed to encourage farmers and farm women to grow more gardens during the current war emergency.

The building has been attractively decorated and made ready in every way and today the many exhibits had been entered and arranged.

In addition to the various exhibits entered in competition by farmers, numerous farm machinery and other commercial displays have been arranged on the warehouse floor.

The educational exhibits will be varied and will set forth many interesting and valuable facts for the farmers.

The Rural Electrification exhibit will include a small flour mill for family use on the farm. There will be demonstrations of grinding wheat and the County Home Demonstration Department will give demonstrations in cooking and preparation of breads and cereals made possible by the use of the home mill.

Other exhibits will include those by the Agriculture Extension and Forestry Division; a special exhibit on soy beans and the value of the product; Seed Laboratory Division; Tobacco grading exhibits; 4-H club exhibits; Plant diseases; American Cotton Council exhibit; Horticulture; Pasture demonstrations; Soil Conservation Service; Vocational Training; Future Farmers of America educational exhibit, and the Crop Improvement Association exhibit.

The Crop Improvement Association exhibit, of interest to all farmers, should prove of special interest to Pitt counties in that it reveals that while in 1936 there were practically no certified seed grown in Pitt county, the county now ranks third in the state in the production of certified seed.

Roxboro, Jan. 29. (AP)—Trial of 10 men charged with participating in a lynching attempt here last August was continued until the next term of Person county Superior court.

The continuance was granted by Judge E. Hunt Parker because of the illness of one of the defense lawyers, R. P. Reade of Durham.

The case will be called again in April. Parker will be the presiding judge at that time.

Makes Second Appeal To Serve His Country
Johnnie Tyson, 23-year-old Ayden man, again has appealed to the White House in an effort to enlist in the armed forces or civilian defense of his country.

A reply to his latest letter stated that the "proper authorities" were being notified of his willingness to serve.

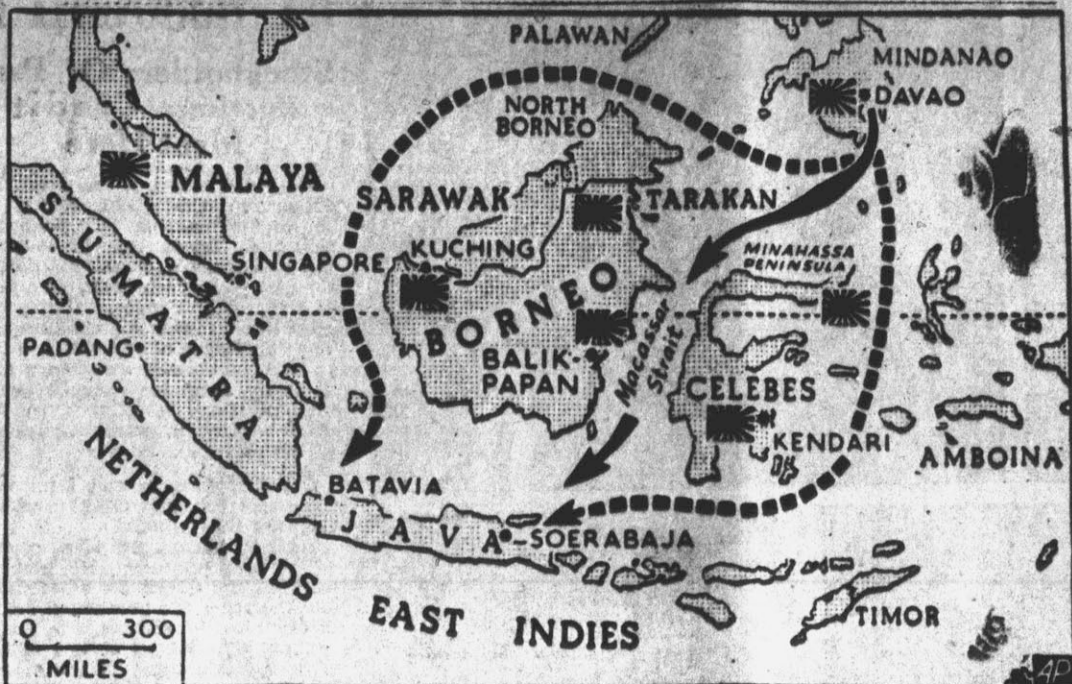

The young man, after being rejected by the various armed services because of lack of education, wrote to the President and received a letter advising him to take it to any recruiting station.

Everything went well when he tried to enlist in the Marine Corps until it came to the final examination. Then he was rejected on account of bad teeth.

Meanwhile Tyson is waiting on action by the "proper authorities" and asks the assistance of anyone knowing of any way he can enlist to serve his country.

Dangerous Baggage

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

Chapter One

Sharon ran the last block to the office. Being on time was one of Mr. Goodwin's "musts" and she had exactly four and a half minutes. Clutching her smart new green felt, she rounded the corner into the teeth of a boisterous March wind.

If she hadn't stopped to quarrel with Dennis this morning, she wouldn't have missed that bus. Their quarrels were getting to be a habit, too. Of course, both having tempers like their hot-headed Irish ancestors didn't help any. But the row this morning hadn't been any ordinary brother-and-sister scrap.

Dennis was so unreasonable about being poor. Naturally he couldn't earn much at his gas station job. And she wasn't making enough to buy any top hats. Grinly, she shouldered against the heavy, glass-paneled door. But somehow she had to make him see that poker and shooting dice weren't the answer. And traveling around with that crowd he'd found so thrilling lately, Dennis was so young and so terribly head-strong. Of course, if Dad had lived, things would be different.

Her high heels clicked smartly against the stone floor as she crossed the foyer. Pat, the red-headed elevator boy, held his door for her.

"Top of the morning to you, Miss Doyle," he grinned. "And you can relax now. The Colonel ain't here yet."

"Thanks, Pat," she panted. That was a break it was only a few seconds after nine but Mr. Goodwin was seldom late. He'd been raised, someone had told her, by a retired Army captain grandfather and the training had left an indelible stamp on his bearing, his dress, his habits. It was part of his distinctive charm.

The elevator rocketed to the eleventh floor. Sharon pulled off her hat as she sped down the long marbled hall. The door to Sierra Steel, Inc. Harvey Goodwin, Pres., was still locked.

"Thank Heaven," she gasped aloud. "Now if I haven't lost my key, and snapped open her long envelope bag.

Compact, lipstick, her driver's license, gloves—everything but a key. "Damn," she muttered, poking at the bag frantically.

"Maybe you left it home in your other pants," a deep voice suggested over her shoulder.

Sharon whirled. The compact clattered to the floor, went careening dizzily down the hall leaving a woolly little wake of white powder.

Calmly, the tall young man who'd been propped against a window ledge, retrieved the compact, dropped it into her open bag. Then, deliberately, he took the bag from her hand.

"Let me try." Smiling, his dark eyes were intent on her face as he coolly emptied the contents of her purse into one large well-shaped hand. The key came out on top.

"Oh—thank you, Sharon managed, recovering her voice and clutching at her dignity too.

"Suppose we see if it's the right one." Turning, he unlocked the door, swung it wide. "Shucks, I was really hoping it was the key to your flat."

"I don't have a flat," Sharon reached for the bag he still held. "Besides, it's none of—"

"A penthouse, then?" His smile teased her and revealed nice white teeth.

"No—nor a penthouse. Please give me my bag."

"An igloo, maybe," he persisted. "You must live somewhere. Or aren't you even real?"

"Please, I'm in a hurry," Sharon snatched the bag. The mirror flew out, smashed into a hundred glittering fragments.

Seven hears Bad Luck. The young man shook his head. "Now see what a streak of bad luck you're going to have."

"Don't be ridiculous," she snapped, irritated and perfectly aware that she was being a little ridiculous herself. But she loathed being teased—and breaking mirrors. There was enough bad luck to be had already. Besides, if this smart young chap would mind his own business—

"It does sound ridiculous, doesn't it," he was saying. "A dream walking and stuff. They write songs about things like this. Your black hair and your big blue eyes and a brow like a snow-drift. Just what they said about Kathleen Mavourneen wasn't it?"

Heads U.S. Forces

Maj. Gen. James Chaney (above), rated both as a combat pilot and a combat observer by the United States Air Corps, has been made commanding general of U. S. army forces in the British Isles. He is a native of Chaney, Maryland.

Embarrassment surged into her cheeks like a hot tide. Mr. Goodwin stopped short when he saw them. And Sharon, terribly aware of her crimson cheeks, of the tall young man in tweeds still perched on her desk so chummily, wished—the floor would swallow her.

"Good morning," Mr. Goodwin smiled suddenly, came toward them.

"G-good morning, Mr. Goodwin," Sharon stammered. "This man is—this gentleman is—"

"Getting acquainted with your very charming secretary," the stranger finished smoothly, and inviting her to lunch.

All Wrong! Amazingly, Mr. Goodwin actually nodded approval. "A nice idea, Stafford. Only it so happens that Miss Doyle is having luncheon with me today. Some other time she'd be delighted, I know."

Sharon stared at him, not sure she wasn't dreaming all this. "You're prompt, Stafford," Goodwin went on. "Glad to see you again."

Stafford! Not Thomas W. Stafford, electrical engineer and technical expert being sent from the Pittsburgh branch? Mr. Goodwin had been expecting him for more than a week. But of course this smart aleck wasn't old enough to have acquired all the degrees and recommendations Mr. Stafford's letters mentioned.

"Thank you, Goodwin. Glad to be here."

The two men were shaking hands. "You've met Miss Doyle, I see," Goodwin said casually.

Tom Stafford grinned at her. "Yes, it's been charming, Miss Doyle."

Furious, Sharon permitted herself a cool nod. He might have told her in the first place. All his wise-cracking about—

"Now if you'll just step into my office, Stafford, we'll get down to cases."

"Good." Tom tossed his hat onto a filing cabinet. Then as he passed Sharon's desk, "How about dinner tonight?" he said in a stage whisper. Then, hastily, "We could take Goodwin along if you insist."

"No, thank you."

"Good." He nodded. "I prefer a twosome myself. I'll pick you up about eight," and still grinning closed the door before she could answer.

Seething, Sharon stripped the cover off her typewriter. Honor graduate of Massachusetts Tech and the best electrical engineer they had. She spun a sheet of white paper under the platen. He looked more like the college cheer leader or the campus "catch." He was good-looking enough for either if you went in for tweeds and tall ranginess—which Sharon didn't, definitely.

Her fingers fled while with part of her mind she transcribed her shorthand notes and with the other thought about Tom Stafford. He was going to be a nuisance. She could see that now. If she'd only had wit enough to guess who it was, she might have avoided that silly scene in the hall. That had gotten her off to a bad start.

Goodwin had chosen her out of all the stenographers in the plant offices because, he'd said, she had the necessary dignity for the position. And now the first chance she had to show she was equal to any situation, he found her flushed and stammering like a school girl.

And Tom Stafford had thoroughly enjoyed the whole thing. He should care if it lost her the break of a lifetime. Her fingers tripped and the keys went into a huddle. Damn Tom Stafford. She ripped the page out of the machine. She wished she might rip him out of her mind as easily. Instead, she was going to have to work practically cheek by jaw with him for the next few months. Breaking that mirror this morning had certainly started things off.

Mr. Goodwin's buzzer sounded. Instantly her visa fell into rank. Sharp pencil; her notepad; the letters he had dictated late yesterday—she checked everything swiftly.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The lightest kind of selling was sufficient to keep the general run of stock market leaders on the downgrade in today's lackadaisical proceedings. The list inclined to back water at the start and, while assorted favorites eventually managed to pin on gains, declines of fractions to a point or so were to be found in most departments at the close. The ticker tape frequently did little more than stutter, with the printing of bids and offers occupying a sizeable amount of space.

America Needs Your Waste Paper—Here's Why

Uncle Sam has need for your old newspapers and other waste products to help win the war. Up on left: Mrs. Sam Kendrick of Atlanta and son Sammy show that a stack of papers should be as high as Sammy's head before you call a charitable organization to pick them up, or sell them to a junk dealer. Upper right: Waste paper has been sold to a paper mill, has been sorted as to grades, and this batch is going into a vat of chemicals to be "melter down." Lower right: One of dozens of uses the armed forces find for paper. A navy air corps ground worker is breaking up heavy paper squares which will be unrolled and used for targets. If you live in a small town where there are no charities to pick up such material, schools throughout the nation are now organizing to handle not only paper, but other products such as metal and rags.

250 ARE LOST ABOARD VESS'L

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Jan. 28.—(AP)—An Axis submarine appeared today to have inflicted the heaviest loss of life in enemy forays on the United States waters with 250 persons, including Americans, dead or missing in the torpedo sinking of the Canadian liner Lady Hawkins. Only one boat-load of 71 survivors has been accounted for from the ship which sank Jan. 19 so suddenly that even an urgent call for help could not be sent. Seventeen survivors are Americans, 12 from St. Joseph, Mo. The others were from Canada, Newfoundland, the British Isles and the British West Indies. Found last Friday by the New York-Puerto Rico steamer Coamo, they were landed here yesterday. The School of Tropical Medicine for examination. The Red Cross provided clothing and other necessities. Army and Navy units cared for the crew survivors and British Army and Navy men on the boat. Most of those rescued had rested aboard the ship and all but one were able to disembark without help. They have been given emergency clothing by the crew and passengers of the Coamo. Before their rescue they subsisted on slim daily rations of one sea biscuit, two tablespoons of evaporated milk and four ounces of water per person. Their morale was buoyed by prayers and hymns led by one of the missionaries aboard, Mrs. Marian Parkinson, whose husband apparently went down with the ship. Originally there were 76 in the lifeboat but—five times Mrs. Parkinson conducted funeral services for persons who died before the Coamo appeared. Abbreviations were commonly used among the ancient writers.

On the Russian front, Soviet dispatches reported a 93 mile advance by Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies somewhere on the southwest (Ukraine) front, along with the recapture of 90 populated places. Russian naval dispatches declared in a summary of far north operations that Soviet submarines had been playing havoc with Nazi transports attempting to supply German forces above the arctic circle. The dispatches said Red fleet submarines had sunk among other vessels, 45 troop and supply ships totalling 200,000 tons and declared that if Nazi troops in Finland and Norway were suffering from lack of food, clothing and ammunition, it was due to Soviet naval activities.

Sinking of Lady Hawkins Claims Heaviest Toll

MEET IS HELD BY ASSOCIAT'N

Stockholders Of Production Credit Meet Here

The stockholders of the Greenville Production Credit Association in the annual meeting here yesterday afternoon heard reports covering the association's operations during the past year which indicated a year of progress and success of this cooperative farmer's organization. The importance of agriculture in the present world wide emergency and plans for financing changed farming operations resulting from the defense program were emphasized to the members.

Over 300 farmers and farm women from Pitt and Green counties attended the meeting. John R. Carroll, president of the association, presided. He pointed out that the Greenville association, like the other 524 production credit associations throughout the country, would adapt its service to the changing conditions with the view of being of the most possible aid in helping to meet the need for additional credit for production and general agricultural purposes. Reports given by Robert A. Darr, secretary-treasurer, indicated that during 1941 the association made loans in the amount of $438,375.00 to 600 members. Mr. Darr stated that members now own $24,000.00 in capital stock and that accumulated reserves amount to $30,254.00. John B. Mann, representative of the Production Credit Corporation, which supervises production credit associations in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida, addressed the group briefly. He referred to the production credit association as "the farmer's own credit institution, standing ready to help him do his part to help his country win the war."

Mr. J. P. Davenport of Pitt county and G. L. Mewborn of Greene county were re-elected directors for terms of three years. Other members of the Board are D. F. Hardison, Mack G. Smith, and John R. Carroll. Following the stockholder's meeting the Board of Directors met and elected the following officers, John R. Carroll, president; G. L. Mewborn, vice-president; and Robert A. Darr, secretary-treasurer.

The Prime Minister said that the landing of the American troops in Northern Ireland—a part of the United Kingdom which shares a land frontier with Eire—"cannot do Mr. Valera any harm and it might do him good; it offers a measure of protection to southern Ireland and Ireland as a whole which she would not otherwise enjoy."

Prime Minister Eamon de Valera has protested that the American landing in Northern Ireland without prior consultation of his government.

Turning to criticism of setbacks in the southwest Pacific, Churchill said that if Britain had reduced her help to Russia she would have been better prepared in Burma and Malaya.

"But," he added, "we did not make such a reduction and I believe in the House and country endorse our decision how even after the events in the Far East have taken place. Churchill said that the battleships Prince of Wales and the Repulse, sunk off Malay at the outset of the Japanese attack there, had been sent into action without air support against Japanese bombing because there was no available aircraft carrier to accompany the two battleships.
