BRITISH FORCED BACK IN AFRICA

Axis Acknowledged To Be Pressing On in Middle East, But Success Fails Offset Reverses in Russia

By The Associated Press Unbroken Russian advances against the Germans on the major front and a continuing British retreat from the Germans and Italians on the secondary front tightened the score today in the European-African war.

The African successes of the Axis however, were far short of offsetting the German misfortunes in Russia.

In sea warfare, the German high command reported the sinking of a destroyer off the Sanadian coast, a corvette west of Gibraltar and an "armed ship off Ceylon and another off Murrumbidgee—all apparently credited to U-boat action—and bomb hits on three merchantmen off the southeast coast of England.

The British imperial retreat in North Africa found the erstwhile attackers fighting a defensive engagement about 100 miles northeast on Bengasi.

The British Middle East command said that the Axis forces were pressing on east of Barca "in considerable strength." The announcement implied that Barca, 60 miles northeast of Bengasi, was lost, as reported by the Axis.

The Italian high command reported that German planes had carried out new, severe raids on a British airbase on Malta, British base in mid-Mediterranean, destroying numerous grounded planes.

Russian forces carrying on unceasing warfare against the Germans and their allies in the snows and cold of deep winter were reported to have scored fresh gains from Leningrad to the Crimean peninsula.

The most striking reports told of a 30-mile Russian advance in the Loozovaya sector 80 miles south of Kharkov along a 60-mile front in the Ukraine.

The Russian reports said many German units had been routed before Leningrad, including the seventh parachute division recently brought from Crete and the 223rd Infantry division, whose captured members said they had been transferred from Bordeaux, occupied France.

Ski troops hurling back five German counterattacks in three days in the Moscow zone were said to have killed 4,000 Germans and recaptured 60 inhabited places.

Several important hills overlooking the Crimean port of Sevastopol were said to have been occupied by the Russians.

For Repairs. Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—A $26,495,265,474 Naval Appropriations Bill, largest measure of its kind ever to win approval of a legislative body, was passed by the Senate today and returned to the House for action on amendments.

Increased more than $6,000,000 over the total previously voted by the House, the measure would provide approximately $8,000,000,000 for new airplanes and a like amount for ships, in addition to $7,000,000,000 for maintaining the fleet.

Funds would be made available in the bill to boost plane production to the Navy's quota of 18,000 out of the 60,000 planes for which President Roosevelt had called this year.

The measure was passed on a voice vote two hours and five minutes after it was called.

Aid For China

Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has asked Congress to approve a $500,000,000 loan for China.

The White House disclosed today that Mr. Roosevelt had sent a letter to Speaker Rayburn requesting that Congress approve the fund.

Republican and Democratic leaders in Congress, the White House said, conferred Saturday with Secretary of the Treasury Mergenthaler and Secretary of Commerce Jones, who explained the President's request to them.

President Secretary Stephen Early said today the leaders agreed to support the request and that Speaker Rayburn would have the proper resolution introduced in the House at noon and would recite the text of the President's letter.

London, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The foreign office announced today that Britain would lend China up to $50,000,000 pounds ($200,000,000) for war purposes.

PRO-AMERICAN WINS IN CHILE

South American Republic Hails New President

Santiago, Chile, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Chile hailed today as her next president 56-year-old Juan Antonio Rios, exponent of full cooperation with the United States, victor in a Sunday election over former President General Carlos Ibanez Del Campo, whom pro-Axis forces had backed.

With only 9,000 votes to be counted, Rios held a lead of nearly 56,000 having polled 237,980 votes to 202,033 for Ibanez.

Ibanez conceded his opponent's victory early this morning and Rios declared his election constituted "a triumph for the democratic ideal and an annihilation of totalitarian forces as well as a reaffirmation of the policy of continental collaboration."

His government was expected by Chileans to sever relations with the Axis, leaving Argentina the only one of the 21 American Republics maintaining these ties.

Rios succeeds the late Democratic and popular Pedro Aguirre Cerda, head of the first and only popular front government ever to gain power in the Western hemisphere, who died last November with three years of his six-year term remaining.

In defeating Ibanez, Rios swept the Northern mining and nitrate districts as well as the coal-mining region about Conception. The vote in Santiago province was close. Rios polled 63,130 to 60,007 for Ibanez.

Rios long has been a champion of Pan-American solidarity in general and cooperation with the United States in particular.

"Collaboration no longer is a matter of individual preference," Rios said in a recent interview. "The realities of the moment remain full cooperation with the United States. No other course is possible for Chile."

In the presidential campaign he was supported by the "Democratic bloc" leftist and anti-dictatorship groups plus elements which formed the former popular front.

General Ibanez was considered extremely friendly to the United States during his presidency from 1927 to 1931 and in this campaign strongly denied totalitarian sympathies.

But his first organized support came from small, Nazi-patterned pro-Axis movements.

ALLIES AWAIT ANY JAP MOVE ON SINGAPORE

Defenders Poised For Any Thrust Across Strait

Singapore, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The defenders of Singapore, on guard against an expected Japanese thrust across Johore Strait, blasted three small enemy craft which appeared yesterday in the narrow waterway and sank one of the vessels, British headquarters announced today.

The blackout was ordered by the Third Interceptor Command of the U. S. Army.

The moment the alarm is sounded—short blasts on the fire alarm and other whistles—all persons are urged to cut off all lights that will show outside their homes.

The exact time of the blackout signal will not be known here until the official order comes from Norfolk.

There will be no alert and persons are urged to bear this in mind and darken their homes the moment the alarm sounds.

The all-clear signal will be long blasts on various whistles in the city, but the fire department system will not participate in this signal, it being unable to sound low blasts because of its mechanical structure.

Persons may turn on their lights and go back to normal activities immediately upon the sounding of the all-clear signal.

The blackout will not last more than 30 minutes, it was explained, the usual time being between 15 and 30 minutes.

Auxiliary policemen have been trained and assigned districts. They will go into action patrolling their respective areas the moment the alarm sounds, their primary aim being to see that all lights are out.

Persons are urged not to smoke in the open, the blaze from a match being visible with high-powered glasses for miles.

Following are the various zones in which the town has been divided for police and fire protection during blackouts.

Negroes On Strike At Wayne Prison

Goldboro, Feb. 2.—(AP)—A group of Negroes at the Wayne county prison camp near here refused to go to work this morning.

After gathering in the prison yard, however, the convicts still refused to go to work.

Warden Ralph McLean of central prison in Raleigh, who rushed here, said the men complained about the food they had received.

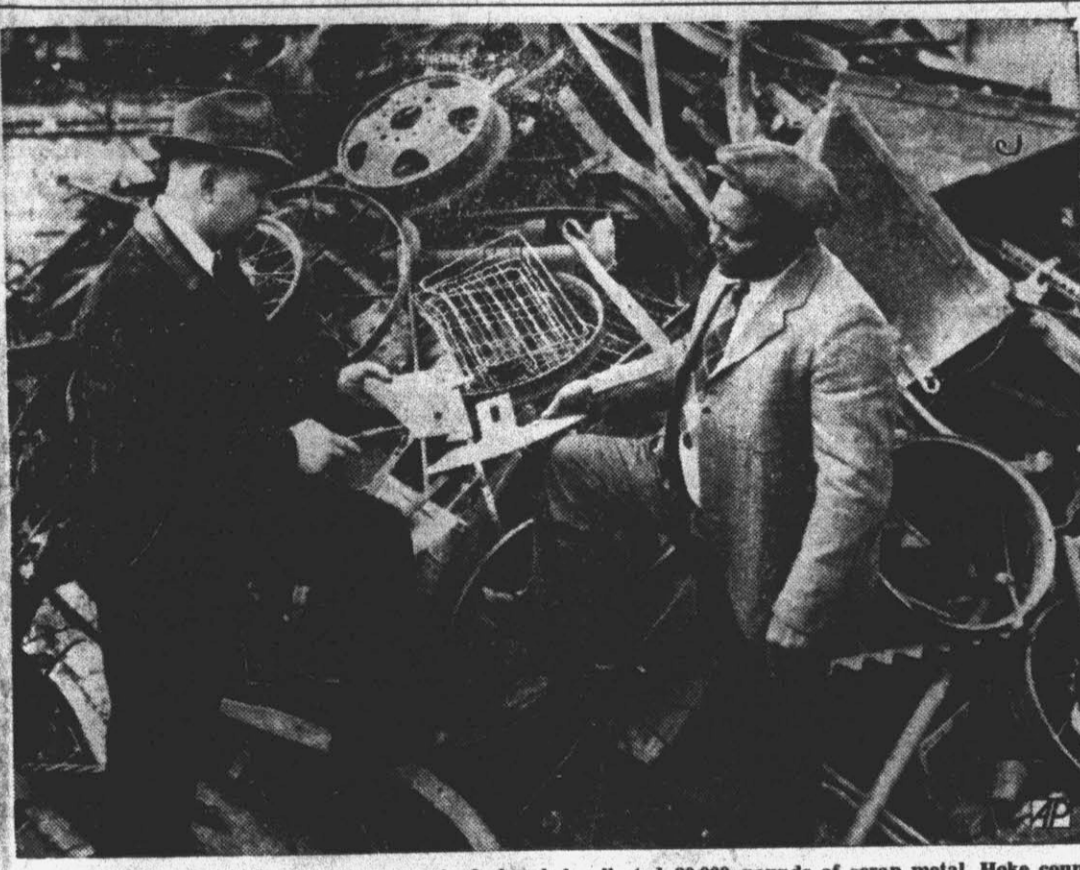

Penal Director Oscar Pitts was in the western part of the state and was not immediately reached for comment.

McLean, reached at the camp by telephone, said he had just begun an investigation, and that the Negroes still were in the prison yard.

He gave this account of the strike: "The men complained of the breakfast they received this morning. About half of the 108 convicts refused to go to work and remained in their cells."

Camp Superintendent H. S. Welton ordered that two rounds of tear gas be released in the cell block. The striking Negroes came out into the yard, but still wouldn't work. There was no general disorder.

North Carolina's Salvage Pace-Setter

Aided by George Willis (right) who single-handedly collected 30,000 pounds of scrap metal, Hoke county stepped out in front in North Carolina's Salvage for Victory campaign. Under the direction of Farm Agent A. S. Knowles, shown inspecting part of Willis collection, Hoke county gathered nearly 900,000 pounds since launching its drive December 19. The state campaign, conducted by the Civilian Defense Council, is under the direction of N. E. Edgerton of Raleigh.

CLAIM SINKING OF DESTROYER

Berlin Reports Vessel Sunk Off Coast Of Canada

Berlin (From German Broadcasts), Feb. 2.—(AP)—The Japanese public is counting on the fall of Singapore before Feb. 11, which is Japan's chief patriotic holiday, a German correspondent telegraphed from Tokyo today.

The Japanese celebrate February 11 as Kingentstu, the anniversary of the legendary foundation of their empire in 660 B. C.

The high command's communique, apparently referring to the same ships, merely said that bombers "obtained bomb hits on three medium sized merchant ships, one of them an oil tanker."

In action west of the British stronghold of Gibraltar, the high command added, a corvette was sunk.

The Germans also said an armed ship was sunk off the coast of Oran and an armed ship was sent to the bottom off Murmansk, far north Russian port.

Malta, whose airline distance from Sicily is measured in minutes, already has undergone about 1,500 separate air raid alerts and hundreds of actual attacks in this war.

The latest, according to the Italian high command, was a heavy assault on an airbase there in which a fire was caused and numerous airplanes were destroyed.

This probably was the work of German planes based in Sicily, whose nearest coast is less than 60 miles north of the Malta shore.

The British are not sure that Malta can be held against all-out air attack.

Goering's visit to Sicily may indicate a considerable reinforcement of German air units in the Mediterranean area.

Several months ago when Adolf Hitler's Russian drive was at its height it was announced that the German planes had been withdrawn.

What turn the Axis offensive might take in the Mediterranean zone is conjectural—ranging from powerful reinforcements of the land drive through Eastern Libya, toward Alexandria and Suez, to a possible attempt at air-borne capture of the Alexandria base and the nearby canal.

Proclaims Change To Daylight Time

Raleigh, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Governor Broughton issued a proclamation today urging all North Carolinians to cooperate with daylight saving time, which was ordered by Congress to become effective at 2 a. m., February 9.

In the proclamation, the governor ordered all state departments and institutions to observe the new time schedule.

MORE TALK OF AXIS CAMPAIGN

New Signs of Possible Campaign for Mediterranean

New signs of an Axis Mediterranean campaign, much more serious than the present counter-offensive in Eastern Libya appeared today.

Coinciding with the British retreat from Bengasi and Italian reports of intensified German air assault on Malta, Berlin let it be known by radio that Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering has been in Italy since last Tuesday, conferring with Premier Mussolini and inspecting German air force units in Sicily.

Besides being Adolf Hitler's chief lieutenant, the corpulent Goering is chief of the German air force.

Malta, whose airline distance from Sicily is measured in minutes, already has undergone about 1,500 separate air raid alerts and hundreds of actual attacks in this war.

The latest, according to the Italian high command, was a heavy assault on an airbase there in which a fire was caused and numerous airplanes were destroyed.

This probably was the work of German planes based in Sicily, whose nearest coast is less than 60 miles north of the Malta shore.

MAKES REPORT ON U. S. RAID

Admiral Says Japs Suffered Extensive Damage

Honolulu, Feb. 2 (AP)—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific fleet, said of the attack by the U.S. Navy on Japanese bases in the Central Pacific: "It is certain that extensive damage was done. Our own losses were slight."

The operations were carried out in accordance with prearranged plans. I am greatly pleased with the performances of both officers and men in all units concerned and particularly with the vigorous action of the commanders in pushing the attack home.

"I regret further details of the action cannot now be disclosed."

Unrest Spreads In Germany Proper

London, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Encouraged by Russian military successes anti-Hitler forces inside Germany are becoming bolder in their efforts to undermine the Nazi machine, the German writer Lion Feuchtwanger said in a publication issued today by the Soviet embassy.

The Germans are waking up to the extent of the Russian offensive and are questioning Hitler's earlier boasts that the Red army was defeated, Feuchtwanger said.

The writer is understood to be in Britain.

The publication "Soviet War News" also carried a manifesto signed by 57 refugee German writers, artists and politicians calling upon their countrymen to renounce Hitler and return to the ideas of Goethe, Schiller and Beethoven.

They asked German soldiers to lay down their arms and refuse to obey the officers.

Leaf Warehouse Sale Is Formally Approved

Safe of German's warehouse to Gus E. Forbes, well-known Greenville tobacco man, was confirmed today with the expiration of the period pending final approval.

Mr. Forbes, who operated the warehouse last year with Q. L. Joyner and plans to operate it again this year, paid $54,000 for the building.

Singapore's Guns

London, Feb. 2.—(AP)—A British military commentator said today it was entirely possible that Singapore's big coast defense guns, intended primarily to meet a sea attack, had been turned against Japanese troops concentrated on the Malayan mainland north of Johore Strait.

Singapore's defenses, this commentator said, were built with the idea of making the fortress impregnable and the designers certainly would have taken into consideration the possibility of attack from the mainland.

It has been said frequently that Singapore's defenses were designed with the idea the island could be attacked only from the sea and that all the big coastal guns occupied fixed positions pointing in that direction.

New Tactics Frustrated By Defense

Invaders Declared To Have Suffered Heavy Casualties In Latest Thrusts At Island Defenders; A Slashing Sea And Air Attack Carried Out By U.S. On Jap Islands In Pacific

Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—General Douglas MacArthur reported today that the defenders of the Batan peninsula in the Philippines had repulsed with heavy enemy losses the latest series of Japanese attacks, which were made by the foe's best troops who employed new tactics.

A war department communique reporting developments of the past 24 hours and also summarizing savage fighting of the past several days said that two Japanese divisions were hurled simultaneously against American-Philippine lines.

On the west coast, the South China sea shore, the invaders were forced back to the coast, and either destroyed, captured or drowned, the communique said.

On the east side of the peninsula, facing Manila bay, a frontal mass attack was smashed by artillery fire before it got well under way.

The communique made clear however that the Japanese had fought their way in the last three weeks about half way down the peninsula.

The fighting on the east coast took place in the area of Pilar, the war department said, and this point near an important road junction is only 17 miles from the end of the peninsula opposite the Corregidor fortress.

The latest report of MacArthur's staunch defense lines in rugged Batan peninsula coincided with a belief in Washington that the Pacific fleet has recovered a considerable measure of the striking power lost at Pearl Harbor December 7.

New Offensive action against Japan's position in the mid-Pacific was regarded as entirely probable.

This view was held by naval experts as a result of the Navy's disclosure yesterday that fleet units had attacked Japanese naval and air bases in the Marshall and Gilbert islands.

General MacArthur said the Batan west coast attack was made by picked groups known as Tatori who made simultaneous attacks at several points. He paid tribute to their courage in a report which the communique thus quoted:

"All enemy thrusts on the west coast have now been completely mastered. The enemy troops employed in this desperate venture were his best. They were shock units especially trained and selected."

"They have now been entirely destroyed. They resisted with the courage which is characteristic of Japanese troops but at the end were treated with the respect and consideration which their gallantry so well merits."

Two Japanese divisions, the 19th and 65th were specifically identified by the war department and constituted what he paid tribute to be the largest force yet hurled at one time against the American and Filipino defenders. The attack was directed by Lieutenant General Nara, who was not otherwise identified.

On the east coast, the war department said that the 142nd Japanese infantry regiment, a component (Continued on page two)

Christian Science Service. "Love" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science Churches and Societies on Sunday, February 1.

The golden text was from I John 4:19: "And we have known and believed the love that God hath given to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "Beloved, let us love one another; for love is of God; and everyone that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love." (I John 4:7-8).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "When we realize that there is one Mind, the divine law of loving out neighbor as ourselves is unfolded, whereas a belief in many ruling minds hinders man's normal drift towards the one Mind, one God, and leads human thought into opposite channels where selfishness reigns."

Gonia-Tyson

The wedding of Miss Catherine Tyson of this city and George Gonia, Jr., of Wilmington, was solemnized in a formal ceremony Saturday afternoon, January 31, at 5 o'clock, in St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The Rev. John Armfield read the vows.

White gladioli were used in the altar vases and cathedral tapers in altar candelabra.

Miss Eva Hodges at the organ presented a program of nuptial music. The vested choir entered singing "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden" and at the close of the ceremony sang "Benediction" by Lutkin.

G. F. Smith and James McKelthorn of Wilmington, Earle Hellen, Jr., nephew of the bride, and James G. Shields of Scotland Neck, were ushers. Mr. Gonia had for his best man his brother, Henry Gonia, of Wilmington.

The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Shaw Robeson of Greenville, and Miss Vashli Gonia of Marion, Va., sister of the bridegroom. They wore identical gowns of aqua falla taffeta with matching hats and carried arm bouquets of mixed spring flowers.

The maid of honor was Miss Mammie Lee Kimball of Enfield. Her gown of dusty pink falla taffeta was fashioned along the lines of the bridesmaids, with matching hat. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow jonquils, purple iris and gladioli.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father, James Clifford Tyson. Her wedding gown of white duchesse satin was made with fitted bodice and full flare skirt. The neckline was outlined in lace, embroidered in seed pearls. The leg-of-mutton sleeves were fitted from the elbow and ended in a point over the hand. Her veil of illusion cascaded from a Juliet cap of old lace, which was caught at each side with tiny sprays of orange blossoms. She wore heirloom jewelry which had been worn by her mother and her maternal grandmother on her wedding days. She carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses.

Mrs. Gonia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Clifford Tyson of Greenville. She graduated from the local city schools and E. C. T. C. For the past two years she has been a member of the faculty of the Scotland Neck school.

Mr. Gonia is the son of George Gonia, Sr., of Wilmington and the late Mrs. Gonia. He attended the Wilmington city schools and Wake Forest College. He is associated with the legal department of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad at Wilmington.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Charles O.H. Horne entertained the wedding party, out-of-town guests and a few close friends at an informal tea.

Immediately following the tea, Mr. and Mrs. Gonia left for a trip to Florida and other Southern points. For traveling, the bride wore a suit of beige wool with brown hat and accessories. On their return they will be at home in Wilmington.

Among pre-nuptial parties given for the Gonia-Tyson wedding party was the cake-cutting Friday evening when Miss Mary Shaw Robeson entertained.

Saturday, Miss Elizabeth Wilson, Miss Geneva Marks, Miss Frances Boland, Miss Julia Oates and Miss Sarah Hayworth were joint hostesses at a lovely breakfast at the home of Mrs. E. B. Ferguson, in compliment to Miss Tyson, Mr. Gonia and their wedding attendants.

Miss Tyson shared honors with Miss Charles Cobb, a recent bride, Monday morning when Mrs. Ray MacKenzie and Mrs. Bob Moffett were co-hostesses at a coffee hour at the home of Mrs. MacKenzie.

Miss Martha Tyson and Mrs. K. W. Cobb poured coffee. Mrs. A. B. Cosby and Miss Marie Smith passed sandwiches, cookies and salted nuts. The hostesses remembered their honor guests with crystal.

Mrs. R. A. Fountain, Jr., of Fountain, and Mrs. Frank Payne of Raleigh, were joint hostesses at a beautifully appointed luncheon at the home of Mrs. E. B. Ferguson Friday in compliment to Miss Tyson, Miss Annie Lee Hooker of Washington, D. C., and Miss Vashli Gonia of Marion, Va., were out-of-town guests.

IN MEMORIAM
(In memory of Egon Franz Taper January 31).
You left us, dear Daddy, to go far away,
We miss you more each day by day
You left us in sorrow, many tears
Have we shed,
But we hope to join you, never to part again.

We loved you much, but God loved God,
He called you home where forever
You'll rest.
In a world bright with sunshine
Where there will be no worry nor care.

Two years has been said and lonely
No years will be the same,
You have gone and left us broken-hearted
But in heaven you have gone to wait
For the ones you have left behind to weep.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR

Monday, February 2, 1902

February.

Ground hog day today. There was much ice this morning and today was plenty cold.

One month of the year gone without inaugurating a new enterprise in Greenville. Can't we do better this month?

Even the musical woman may harp too much on one string. One's own words are very sweet until one is forced to eat them.

Mrs. Barnhill Entertains. Mrs. Arthur C. Barnhill entertained last Friday night in honor of her son, Virgil Barnhill's 16th birthday.

The guests were directed to the living room by Mrs. Barnhill, where they found a lovely scheme of floating red, white and blue balloons which helped to carry out the color scheme of the season's most popular colors.

Each guest was presented a stick of candy which contained a little note asking them to imitate different animals. This created much laughter from those present. They were ushered into the dining room by Mr. F. L. Whitehurst. They found this room very attractive with a table full of good things to eat and drink. Punch was served in huge red, white and blue cups. Then they were taken by Mrs. J. T. Dupree, Sr., to help themselves to located pens and Rita. They returned to the living room and Mrs. Clarence Barnhill entertained them with many interesting contests and games. Those winning prizes were Miss Pauline Worthington, Elizabeth James, Messrs. Earl Rogers, Larry Hodges, Howard Whitehurst and Bud Whitehurst.

Mrs. Barnhill, assisted by Mrs. Clarence Barnhill, served ice cream and cake. Each cup of cream was decorated with tiny silk flags. While the guests were busy with their refreshments, red candles with beautiful chins holders were lighted. A table decorated with the appropriate paper for the occasion was placed in the center of the room. Virgil's grandmother, Mrs. Whitehurst, entered with a pretty birthday cake with red, white and blue candles. The light from the tiny candles showed us a stack of gifts underneath the table.

Virgil received many useful gifts. The following guests departed wishing him another birthday as happy as this one: Misses Elinor Brown, Pauline Worthington, Janell Whitehurst, Addie T. James, Martha Whitehurst, Lib James, Messrs. Howard Whitehurst, Larry Hodges, Hugh James, Earl Rogers, Bud Whitehurst and Styron James.

College Vesper Service.
A deputation team of six students, Cade Covington, Hubert Willis, Walton Thompson, Ben Cobler, Hugh Bell and Franklin Teague, representing the Y. M. C. A. of State College, conducted vesper service at East Carolina Teachers College on Sunday evening.

The theme of their program was "What can make higher education more religious?" The discussion was given in three parts—problem, methods, and contributions students can make.

Walton Thompson, speaker on the first subject, pointed out that a number of people consider religion contrary to education, but he denied this opinion, saying "Religion and education are not antagonistic. He emphasized the need of strengthening spiritual and moral forces of American youth and at the same time making them feel the need of higher education."

"Religion in many large colleges and universities has in recent years been treated only as an object of curiosity and research. Colleges of Europe have lost their interest in religious learning. American institutions must remain a stronghold of qualitative education and students and professors must see that religious life is of central importance."

The second speaker, Franklin Teague, discussed the methods that have been used to promote religious education. He brought out the fact that chapel period, which was once used as a worship period, has degenerated into a snappy program of announcements and pep singing. Courses of fundamental theology and ethics that used to be required studies in college curricula have been thrown out altogether or are retained only as electives. The speaker declared, "That leaves to student religious organizations the task of carrying on. These organizations he thinks inefficient because of their denominationalism and the fact that they stress the social life more than the religious life."

Hubert Willis presented suggestions as to what college students can do to help the situation. A place on the campus can be set aside for worship with doors open at all times where people can go for meditation and prayer. "A quiet hour," he remarked, "is uplifting; it gives direction. It is impossible to develop a Christian personality without this." Well planned services, regular forums, and seminars in which questions of vital interest to students could be discussed, small discussion groups in dormitories and reading seminars were proposed. The faculty could be invited to help local churches and their pastors asked to cooperate with the non-denominational organizations and work with the students on the campus. "As Christians there is one thing we must all do," said this speaker in conclusion, "we must learn to think."

Cade Covington read the devotional, which was followed by a prayer by Ben Cobler. Dorothea Massey of Pleasant Hill, at student of ECTC, was pianist.

Entertains For Miss Ricks

Honoring Miss Inogene Ricks, bride-elect of this month, Mrs. B. B. Gibbs charmingly entertained at bridge and a miscellaneous shower Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock at her home on Eastern street.

Beautiful arrangements of pink and white carnations with fern decorated the living room where four tables were arranged for bridge and one for Chinese checkers.

On arrival the guests were greeted by the hostess and directed to the refreshments table, at which Mrs. Crandall, mother of the hostess, served fruit punch from a beautiful silver punch bowl. The guests found their places marked with attractive bridal taffies carrying out the color scheme of pink, white and green. The bride-elect found her place marked with a corsage of white carnations.

High score prize, bath powder, was awarded Mrs. James Keel and for consolation prize, Mexican glass holders, went to Mrs. Phillip Kramer. Winner at Chinese checkers, Mrs. J. E. Dees, received a crystal bon bon dish.

Miss Ricks was presented a shower of beautiful and useful gifts from the guests and the hostess' gift to the honoree was a sugar and cream set in her crystal.

After Miss Ricks, in her charming manner, thanked each and everyone for the gifts, the hostess invited the guests into the dining room where Mrs. R. E. Corbett, Jr., served ices with decorated bridal cakes, mints and nutlets.

The dining room table, covered with a handsome hand-made lace cloth, was centered with a beautiful silver bowl of pink and white carnations interspersed with fern. Eight white tapers burned at either side of the floral arrangement, affording a soft glow over the crystal and silver used in the table appointments.

Library News

Civilian Defense.
There are so many questions being asked about what individual citizens can do to help in Civilian Defense that the Sheppard Memorial Library has gathered together from every source available more than 50 pamphlets on this subject. Last week these pamphlets were placed on one of the large tables in the main reading room. Each pamphlet gives specific information about a certain phase of a defense work. For instance, if you are a nurse, and want to know how to find a place in defense nursing there is a pamphlet giving all the necessary information in detail. Or maybe you are a young man not in school and you want to learn a trade, then the one entitled "Youth, Jobs and Defense" is what you want, for it tells all about the NYA and its training of young men for specific jobs. And if you are a mother who has to stay at home and want to know what you can do to help there is a most helpful pamphlet "Planning Diets," that used the new yardstick of good nutrition for its basis. The diets are arranged on three cost levels, low, moderate and liberal, thus serving every mother who reads them.

Some of the other more important pamphlets on the table are: "The United States Citizen's Defense"—tells who can join, how to join and qualifications. "A Civilian Defense Volunteer Office"—answers what it is, how it is set up, what it does, and how to organize it.

"American Communities Face a New Challenge"—deals with the routine social hygiene of a community. "Nursing and the Registered Professional Nurse." "Ship for Freedom"—information for workers in shipyards. "The Part Defense Bonds Play"—how the money will be spent, etc. "Better Nursing for America," by Beulah Amidon.

"School and College Civilian Moral Service"—tells how to participate, and the needs to be served. "Emergency Medical Services for Civilian Defense."

"Citadels of Democracy"—shows pictures of camps and plants for men and munitions. "Children Bear the Promise of a Better World"—plans a better defense of children.

"How Libraries May Serve"—answers are given from Army and Navy school and college libraries. "A Church Program for Defense Areas," by Leland Foster Wood. "The U. S. Navy"—everything you want to know about life in the U. S. Navy.

"Steel for Defense"—offers methods of conserving steel for defense. "1942 War Atlas"—edited by H. V. Kaltenborn.—H. L. R.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

TRUE SYMPATHY IS RARE
Charles W. Eliot, for many years president of Harvard University, had a quite disfiguring birthmark on his face. One day he was passing down the street and saw some youngsters teasing and abusing a little fellow who was similarly disfigured. The youngster was crying bitterly when he fell some one slip an arm around his shoulder, and he looked up into the smiling face of that good old man whom everyone in Cambridge knew so well. "Don't worry, son," he said in the tenderest of tones, "you see I have the mark also."

The word sympathy means "to suffer with," and so does the word compassion. Nobody, probably, is able to put himself in another person's place, but the more we approximate that condition of complete understanding, the more useful we are in the world and the more beloved. Of course we suffer very deeply when we enter sympathetically into the experiences of those around about us. But it is the kind of suffering that it is well worth our while to endure. If we can bear the disfigurement of our disfigured brothers, limp because they limp, grope with them in blindness, or stand in the midst of the deaf and speechless and understand; if we can weep with those who sorrow and sit with quiet understanding beside those whose disappointment is too deep to measure, then are we friends indeed. Then do we truly sympathize. Then do we demonstrate to them that Christ still lives in human hearts.

This drive is a part of the Victory Book Campaign put on throughout the nation to procure ten million books for members of our armed forces. One of the visiting Marines here over the week-end summed up America's attitude in this war in just a few words that should mean much to all of us. In comparing the American service men with those of our enemies he declared, "We are better fighters because we have something to fight for. We are fighting for freedom that the soldiers of the dictator nations would not have even if they could win the war, which they can not."

more than a speaking acquaintance with either the Army or the Navy. In a brief ten lines he mentioned that the Japs had been attacking the island intermittently from the air and from the sea; that there had been some casualties.

Then, for more than 300 words, he detailed his findings in connection with the construction work. He was all at odds with the Navy for the way some of the work had been done. The window casings particularly perturbed him. The specifications and materials were not made to stand up in the tropical sea air. He had explained to the Navy that they had been very foolish; that their buildings were not being built to last in that climate.

His last line was to the effect that he didn't think the Navy would do any more construction work like that on Wake Island in the near future.

thau, Jr. Disney agreed to make the picture for cost. He set down a column of figures and ran through them hurriedly. The total was amazingly low and would have sounded like chicken feed to even a minor treasury official. "That's fine, that's wonderful," said Mr. Morgenhuau. Then the brow of the man who juggles American billion furrowed, and he added: "But where are we going to get the money?" Maybe Disney - or Donald Duck - told him.

The Treasury Department, by the way, is going Hollywood in some other ways than getting its taxes subsidized by Disney shorts. I mean those usherettes.

The treasury these days isn't open to the public and if you are just an ordinary taxpayer without official identification, you have to step up, state your business and get okayed. After that, you are turned over to an usherette - snappy young ladies who escort you to the office in the building where you have business.

They wear uniforms, too - a sort of airline hostess coat and skirt and a jaunty little overseas cap. When the tailor took the order, he was told that the uniforms were for usherettes and he started designing in movie theatre lines.

The treasury sent them back for remodeling. They were, the department explained, a little extreme.

The WAR TODAY

The havoc wrought by our bombers and warships represents a double-edged victory. It has vastly lowered the Japanese striking power against the Hawaiian Islands and our west coast. And it has eased the threat against our vital sea communications with Australia and the western Pacific battle ground.

Our allies in the Orient are bound to take much encouragement from this display of American air and sea power.

But just as we shouldn't get down in the mouth every time there is a set-back, so it's equally bad for our blood pressure to entertain fantastic dreams.

The picture of the battle of Singapore looks fairly grim. Reinforcements of a nature unspecified have arrived within the last few days. Singapore to encourage the defenders. They need all encouragement they can get, for the great trial is at hand. The Japs are getting set on the mainland for the grand attempt to invade the island.

Unless air reinforcements arrive the Japanese may be able to blast their way ashore. There is to my mind another grave danger for the defenders, and that lies in the open reservoirs of rain-water upon which three-quarters of a million people must depend. The amount of water undoubtedly is sufficient for a long siege, but there is a possibility of the Japs poisoning it from the air.

Founder's Week Being Observed By A & P

Veteran of three past wars and committed to a definite role in the present world strife, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company will observe this week as founder's week. The company, which was two years old when the war between the states broke out and which continued through Appomattox, the conquest of Spain and World War I, will honor George Huntington Hartford, originator of the straight line method of distribution. With the opening of hostilities between this country and the Axis nations, the company charted its course in an open letter to the American public pledging cooperation in the nation's effort.

Over the signature of John A. Hartford, president of the company and a son of the founder, the A & P pledged itself to continue efforts to reduce the spread between prices paid the grower and prices charged the consumer; to continue to assist farmers and growers in the orderly marketing of their products at fair prices; to continue the payment of high wages to employees; to maintain a high standard of living conditions; to make every effort to hold inventories to the lowest point consistent with good service to customers, because hoarding, whether by wholesalers, retailers, or consumers, will cause higher prices, and to make every effort to continue to sell food at retail at the lowest margin of profit for the benefit of the retail grocery business.

Mr. A. H. Hogwood, vice president for the company in this area, in announcing the observance of Founder's Week, said, "Founder's Week this year comes at a critical period in our national life. It comes at a time when not only planes and tanks, but food, stand between us and the powers that would destroy us. We must keep our people healthy so that they may prosecute this war with all vigor and to do this, we must make foods available to all at fair prices. The A & P, with its simplified methods of distribution, is pledged to this course."

Theatres' Employees Buy Defense Bonds

Practically the entire personnel of the three Greenville theaters, including management and employees, signed up to the part of their week's salaries in the purchase of defense stamps and bonds. At the request of the employees, the management will take out a certain amount of the salaries of those joining in the movement and purchase the stamps. The three local theaters are the Pitt, State and Colony.

During the month of January three Home Demonstration clubs were organized in the following communities: Belvoir, Stokes and Pactolus with an enrollment of 53 members. New interest in club work is being created daily by farm women.

With the increase in wages the club members are not getting excited over it because they realize too along with other folks that food, clothing and household equipment have too advanced in price. They are beginning to see the necessity of conducting the farm and home on business principles and each family member has a part to play. More careful planning needed to help the farm family achieve a better and happier life more thrift and cooperation are necessary than at any time in recent years.

The farm women must do more home sewing, as she must take advantage of fabrics on the market now and to make the present supply of clothes last longer by mending and renovating out-grown and outmoded clothes in order that each one will be well clothed at all times.

With the great increase in the cost of food supplies everyone needs to save all he can by producing as much of his food as possible at home, therefore it is necessary for every farm family to put forth all efforts to join the victory garden campaign in order to produce an

NEED WORKERS ON DOG WATCH

Knox Reports Lack of Help Holding Up Program

Washington, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Knox has told Congress that the navy is having difficulty in getting 24-hour production for its tremendously expanded armaments program because manufacturers can induce only about 10 per cent of their employees to work in the early morning "dog watch" shifts.

In testimony made public today on the $26,486,265,474 naval supply bill, Knox declared that the greatest bottleneck faced in the production program was in turning out aircraft engines. The navy would boost its production to 48,000 planes yearly with funds provided in the measure.

There was every indication the bill would be sent to the President for signing before the week-end, making $26,000,000,000 appropriated and authorized in a month for the war program.

"We are apparently getting the capacity for the bodies of planes faster than we can get the planes with which to equip them and we have got to expand tremendously our engine production to keep up with this enlarged program," testified.

"We are trying to fight a two-ocean war with a one-ocean navy this far and it is going to take time to build up our strength," Knox testified. "We must not expect quick results. It is a problem largely of holding and doing the best we can with what we have, and putting every ounce of pressure in order to get more as fast as possible."

The appropriations, averaging more than $1,300,000,000 daily, would represent congressional approval in 30 days of about three-fourths of the $66,000,000,000 war expenditures outlined by the President.

of the health department permits, the department follows up all delinquents after the second week. But it is not uncommon for patients to give the wrong address, and when they give the proper address, it is not uncommon for them to move frequently, therefore, it becomes next to impossible for the health department to follow up these cases successfully.

The health officer states that it is his opinion that there is no reason why a servant with syphilis should be discharged if the servant stays under regular treatment, and now that we are at war, he hopes the employer will give full cooperation to the health department, realizing that proper treatment is a vital part of our National Defense effort.

Two Teams To Meet At Chapel Hill on Saturday Night

Raleigh, Feb. 2 (AP)—Basketball teams of Duke and North Carolina will meet at Chapel Hill Saturday night to continue another chapter in the intense Blue Devil-Tar Heel rivalry and the result, as usual, will have an important effect on Big Five and Southern Conference standings.

The Duke-Carolina contest will highlight a seven-game program of Big Five quints have scheduled for the week.

By virtue of its 40-28 triumph over N. C. State Saturday night the Blue Devils became undoubted Southern Conference and Big Five leaders. The Tar Heels have won three Big Five encounters and lost one and have chalked up five conference victories and two defeats. The Big Five schedule for the week follows:

Thursday—Davidson-North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Wednesday—Wake Forest-Washington and Lee at Lenoir-Rhyne, Davidson-Duke at Durham.

Thursday—Wake Forest-VMI at Lenoir-Rhyne, Va.

MAP BASEBALL ON WAR BASIS

Would Pay Players in Part With Defense Bonds

By JUDSON BAILEY
New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—A wartime program for baseball, involving an all-star game with a service team and partial payment of players in defense bonds, was proposed for the major leagues today by re-elected Larry MacPhail, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The boss of the National League Champions outlined an all-out emergency effort for the diamond sport last night at the 19th annual dinner of the New York Baseball Writers and said he expected the National and American leagues to consider the subject at their meetings today.

His suggestions fell into four groups:

1. Move this year's all-star game from Little Ebbets Field to the

Cotton for Milady

Modeling at a Women's Wear convention in Boston, Miss Marie Burke is clad in cotton undergarments and hose stockings. Fashion forecasts greater use of cotton for women's clothes when present silk supplies are gone.

JUST-LIKE HIS PAW—At 12 years, Henry MacGregor Hunter (above), son of Pro Willie Hunter who was once a British champion, outgulls his elders. He recently scored a 74 over the difficult Riviera country club course at Los Angeles.

In Bi-State Loop

Leaksville, N. C., Feb. 2 (AP)—The Bi-State League was assured today of at least six members for the 1942 season, with Wilson and Rocky Mount the newest additions to the circuit.

Sanford, Danville, Burlington and Leaksville also are in the league. Mount Airy failed to make a bid for membership and Martinsville did not seek a berth. Wilson and Rocky Mount were recruiting from the collapsed Coastal Plain League.

The Bi-State loop will play 124 games this season, starting May 1.

N. C. STATE ACE IS TOP SCORER

Bones McKinney Takes Lead With 88 Points

Richmond, Feb. 2 (AP)—Horace (Bones) McKinney, North Carolina State's colorful snh center, has taken over the leadership in the up-saw Southern Conference basketball scoring race with 88 points in six family games.

Last week's leaders, Glenn Knox of William and Mary and Matt Zupic of George Washington, both with 74 points in five games, have been idle for examinations.

McKinney, a Durham native, stands six-foot-five and weighs 181 pounds. In a dozen games against all foes this season McKinney has tallied 174 points. Knox's average is somewhat better than this against all comers, the W & M star having tallied 189 points in 11 games.

North Carolina's Captain Bob Rose is the next ranking point-getter with 68 in seven loop appearances. Other leading scorers and points made in loop clashes are: Cline, Wake Forest, 69; C. Loftis, Duke, 61; Travis, Maryland, 58; and Westmoreland, South Carolina, 47.

Making up for time lost during examinations, circuit members meet in a busy round of 19 games this season. Polo Grounds and let the winner face an all-star service team in some Midwestern city.

2. Let everyone in organized baseball, including the players, accept a percentage of his salary in Defense bonds.

3. Set aside a part of every admission to buy a bomber, which he suggested might appropriately be named Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

4. Make use of every open date before and during the season for major league clubs to play service teams at army or navy camps.

MacPhail made clear that he was offering these suggestions solely on his own responsibility, and during his talk mentioned consultation with only one other magnate. He said he already had talked to President Horace Stoneham of the New York Giants about transferring the all-star game and had received approval.

Dangerous Baggage

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

YESTERDAY, Sharon's day has been completely upset. She has had to fight off a brash young man named Stafford, who demanded a date two minutes after he met her. She has been invited to lunch by her boss, and now he has offered her a job in the Sierra Steel plant. Sharon likes Mr. Goodwin, who is her boss, and she is flattered very much by his interest.

Chapter Four
Afraid—But Game

"You can do this," Goodwin continued. "You can make the person of whom we spoke, your special subject for investigation. Guard against his knowing that you are more than just a secretary. Talk to him with confidence, his trust. If possible, make him believe you would conspire with him against us."

"But, if you suspect him, why are you turning the files over to him, why are you helping him to learn all about the plant?" Sharon demanded.

Goodwin smiled. "Lesson number two. The files in your office, the information I've given him is true as far as it goes. The real files are locked safely in a secret vault. You needn't know where. Secrets make dangerous baggage."

"Still, you allow him complete freedom to go where he pleases, to observe—"

"And thus I know exactly where he is and what he is observing," Goodwin interrupted dryly. "An enemy you know of is better than one hidden in shadows isn't it?"

Slowly Sharon nodded. "I suppose so."

"Afraid to tackle this job?"

She hesitated. "Why—yes, I guess I am afraid," she admitted honestly. "But I want to tackle it. It's my chance to help—"

"To help my country. I guess. Anyway please let me try."

"Good girl. I was sure you would. Just be yourself and you'll have our young man telling you all his secrets."

Sharon drew a deep breath. "I'll do my best."

"Just remember," Goodwin pushed back his chair, "that he mustn't even suspect you have secrets! That's where your safety lies. So play dumb and our chances to outwit him are excellent. The responsibility lies with you, you see."

Responsibility, danger—and what else! As in a dream Sharon crossed the dining room, stood silent while a doorman called a taxi.

Goodwin put her carefully into the cab, handed the driver a bill. "I'll be back at the office about four this afternoon, Sharon." He smiled and Sharon was aware of a new relationship between them—a secret shared, more than that—perhaps a mutual respect, even admiration. "Until then."

The cab moved slowly through the crush of noon-day traffic. Sharon, conscious of the fragrant lei still draped around her shoulders, buried her nose in the soft petals and tried hard to believe that the last two hours had happened. And tried to convince herself, too, that Mr. Goodwin's confidence in her was not misplaced. It was an wonderful opportunity to prove herself invaluable to him. And a warning inner voice reminded her—an equal opportunity to fail dangerously.

The taxi drew up before the tall office building. She couldn't fail. She mustn't even think of it. She must only remember to guard their secret. And secrets, Mr. Goodwin had said, are dangerous baggage!

Apology

Sharon got back to the office about three o'clock. Tom Stafford was at his desk folders from the big file piled high before him. In the instant before he glanced up she saw a different Tom. A grave-faced young man whose deep concentration bore little resemblance to the careless ex-colleagues who'd opened the door for her this morning. Maybe Mr. Goodwin was right. Tom's "line" was only clever camouflage.

But in the next instant Tom's gravity disappeared behind a smile so infectious Sharon felt her own line waver in response.

"Hello." His glance snapped on the lovely lei still draped around her shoulders. "Forget your grass skirt this time?"

She slipped the lei off over her head, smiled sweetly. "Yes, stupid of me, wasn't it? And my steel outfit too. Otherwise I'd dance a hula for you."

Tom shook his head. "Not your type. You should never dance anything but waltzes—to Strauss' music and soft moonlight."

"In a wig and hoop skirt," she added, flushing a little under the directness of his gaze. "You make me sound about as glamorous as smelling salts."

"Glamor has never touched you with its waxy palm. Thank your smiling Irish ancestors." Deliberately he pulled a pipe from his coat pocket.

Sharon felt her temper, bequeathed her by some of her not-so-smiling Irish ancestors, arch its

Ayden Negro Dies As Home Catches Fire

John Henry Gray, Ayden Negro about 65 years of age, died when fire partially destroyed his home about 10 o'clock Saturday night.

Gray, who lived with another Negro man, was in the house alone. A neighbor saw the fire and spread the alarm. After the fire was extinguished Gray's body was found by a window.

Officers called to the scene said the man probably set the bed afire since the mattress and bed covering were burned and the floor by the side of the bed had been burned through. The belief was expressed that the man was burned so severely before he awoke that he was unable to escape.

Winterville To Have Talk On Television

Lewis Hoskins, television engineer, will make a personal appearance in Winterville at 8 o'clock, Wednesday night, February 11, at which time he will show "how it's done."

The story of how television works will be presented in such a simple manner that even the youngest student can see why television is possible. An actual demonstration also will be presented by the engineer.

"Well, really—"

"And when those blue eyes snap like that, you're prettier than ever," he interrupted, teasing. "Don't ever be a glamor girl, Sharon. I like you just the way you are."

"That's certainly comforting," she retorted, scathingly. "As long as I have your approval, I suppose I just shouldn't worry."

"Certainly." Then, abruptly, "How long have you worked for Goodwin?"

A sharp retort sprang to Sharon's lips but, remembering her new role, she bit it back. "Three months. Why?"

"Thought so. You haven't the career woman's look yet. Hope you never get it."

"I'm sure I don't know what's wrong with having a career," Sharon answered indifferently.

"Not a thing—for some girls but not you," Tom said flatly. "This will spoil you if you stick around here." He swept the whole office into his gesture. "You ought to be married to some deserving guy raising a couple of cute kids."

"And you?" Sharon snapped. "Should be running an Advice to the Lovelorn column in some daily paper so you'd get paid for your smart advice."

Tom's grin crinkled the corners of his eyes. "Are you loveless?"

"No." And promptly flushed scarlet. Denying herself, she turned her back to him, began opening the afternoon mail.

A moment later she felt him standing beside her, his hand out-thrust.

"I'm sorry," he apologized. "Forgive me. I didn't mean to be rude." Sharon met his eyes for an instant. Then her smile, relaxed a little. "You're forgiven."

"And you'll have dinner with me as you promised?"

Sharon tipped her head back slowly, looked at him from under long dark lashes. "I don't remember promising."

"But you will? Goodwin's lunch couldn't have been that good. Anyway, it's good technique, you know, to give a little competition."

"Mr. Goodwin's lunch was delicious and strictly on business. The only competition he'd be interested in involves steel."

"Uh-huh," Tom dragged on his pipe. "Well that's good news. Goodwin's not the man for you."

"Well—really!"

"Now you take a man like me."

"No thanks," Sharon said promptly. "Not today."

"Parnest, hard-working—"

"Yes, you look it," she scoffed, glancing past him to the unopened folders stacked on his desk.

"But I am working hard," he insisted. Sharon couldn't be sure about the chuckle lurking deep in his voice. "Important business too—this setting a date with you."

"Well—suppose you go on with the more important business of getting more steel for Mr. Goodwin—at least during office hours."

"Meaning you'll go?"

Sharon hesitated, wanting to refuse, yet realizing she must use every opportunity. "Meaning—I'll think it over."

"Congratulations, Stafford," Tom threw an imaginary hat in the air and began shaking his own hand. "Nice going, boy."

New Secret

Sharon eyed him in spite of herself. How anyone could suspect this smart-aleck of anything more sinister than a plot for a dinner date was really amazing.

"Now be still," she scolded. "I really have work to do."

"Is it all right if I just look at you?"

"No. And please—"

The telephone interrupted insistently. A telegram for Mr. Goodwin. In code, Sharon recognized, she noted down the long message. She'd just finished translating her shorthand to a typed page when Mr. Goodwin arrived.

"Hello, Stafford. All settled, I see," he said, smiling.

"Yes, indeed," Tom nodded and then glanced at Sharon. "And hard at work."

Sharon ignored him. "A message from Los Angeles, Mr. Goodwin."

As he read the message, his smile disappeared. "Een into my office, please, Sharon. Bring your notebook."

Inside his private office, he paced nervously for several moments, his face a grave mask. Then "Here's secret number two, Sharon."

"Yes, Mr. Goodwin," and her heart picked up momentum. Glancing up, she saw him studying her face intently. Then, a hand on each shoulder, he turned her toward the window. "You realize this isn't going to be child's play? You still want to go through with it?"

"I'm not a child, Mr. Goodwin. I'm willing to risk the danger."

"Good girl. I'll see to it you're not involved any more than necessary. I shall also see that there is a substantial increase in your salary check."

Sharon's eyes sparkled dangerously. "I don't need to be bribed."

"You aren't being bribed," he replied dryly. "You'll earn it." He picked up the type message. "This means trouble."

"Trouble?"

"That last shipment of tools never reached the Los Angeles plant. It's a week over-due now and no trace of it since it left the dock here in San Francisco."

"Does that mean—" Sharon tried to read the expression on his face.

"It might mean a number of things. Until today, I thought it meant some fool had bungled. But—he glanced toward the door, lowered his voice, "since the loss coincides with the arrival of our friend—"

"But—he arrived this morning. That shipment—"

Goodwin shook his head. "He's been in town a week. I learned that an hour ago."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Selective demand kept the stock market on its feet today but real progress power was lacking. Slightly irregular tendencies prevailed at the opening. Trends steadied later and, while many leaders were unchanged or a trifle in arrears, small advances were well distributed at the close. Buying was just about as timid as selling, however, and transfers of around 300,000 shares for the full proceedings were among the smallest since June last year.

WILL PROVIDE FARMER NEEDS

Wickard Says Equipment Will Be Available

St. Louis, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard today said adequate steps have been taken to assure farmers sufficient equipment and machinery to attain increased 1942 production goals, greatest in the nation's history.

"Some new farm machinery will be available and plans have been made to produce the kinds most needed," he told a meeting of the agriculture department's midwestern war boards in an address broadcast on the National Farm and Home Hour.

Expressing confidence in agriculture's ability to meet increased needs, the secretary emphasized particularly the importance of oil-yielding crops—soy beans, peanuts and flax. Soy bean acreage, he said, must be boosted from 5 1/2 to nine million acres with the bulk of that production in the middle west.

He explained, "Since Pearl Harbor, we have come face to face with the facts that imports of fats and oils from the Pacific area may be decreased a billion pounds.

"Of equipment repairs, Wickard said there will be plenty of parts, and added that reports farmers throughout the nation were repaired their present machinery was "good news."

Wickard urged early buying of stored grain for feeding purposes to make every cubic foot of terminal storage space available for the 1942 wheat crop.

STATE 3RD IN ILLICIT STILLS

Total Of 1,245 Plants Seized During the Past Year

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—If whisky-making stills seized in North Carolina last year by government agents were made of copper, Uncle Sam's supply of this precious war metal should be increased considerably.

Published hearings on the Treasury Department's 1942 appropriation bill, submitted to Congress today, showed 1,245 stills were seized in that southern state in 1941—an increase of 132 over the previous year, ranking North Carolina third among the states in still seizures. Only Georgia, with 1,501 seizures, and Alabama with 1,347, were ahead.

Although Alabama beat out North Carolina for second place in still seizures, North Carolina ranked second to Georgia in the thousands of gallons of mash destroyed.

Government agents reported 883,324 gallons destroyed at still sites in North Carolina, against 1,211,435 in Georgia and 77,545 in Virginia, a high figure considering only 878 stills were seized in the Old Dominion.

Still seizures and mash destruction, however, were not the only thing in the Treasury Department hearings.

The hearings disclosed also the Treasury wants two additional guards for the North Carolina customs district with headquarters at Wilmington.

They also revealed North Carolinians purchased $8,286,000 in defense savings bonds from May to November, 1942, and $586,000 in Postal Savings Stamps from May through December.

NATION NEEDS ALL OLD SCRAP

Waste Material Important For Making Armaments

Raleigh, Feb. 2.—(AP)—Got any waste paper, old rags, scrap metal, old rubber?

Well, Uncle Sam needs it to fight the Axis, and he is counting on the American public to dig deep into its yards, attics, cellars, stores and farms—for materials that can be salvaged for the war effort.

Governor Broughton has appointed N. E. Edgerton of Raleigh as chairman of the State Salvage for Victory program. J. B. Vogler of Charlotte, veteran legislator, has been appointed executive director of the state salvage office.

Here are the waste products that are needed most and can be salvaged easiest:

Waste paper—old newspaper wrapping paper, cardboard cartons and boxes, paper bags, old magazines—to make paperboard containers for munitions, clothing and food.

Old rags—all cast-off clothing, draperies, mattresses, pillow sheets, towels, flour and sugar bags—to make materials for emergency building, wiring rags, and reworked textiles.

Scrap metal—everything made of

Best Jewelry Co Robbed Last Night

Two cases of breaking, entering and larceny during the week-end were reported today by officials of the local police department.

Best Jewelry store on Evans street was said to have been the victim of a robbery between 3:15 and 4 o'clock this morning. An empty soft drink bottle was said to have been thrown through a front window and eight rings valued at $250 each, a necklace valued at $6 and a bracelet also valued at $6 were reported missing.

Early Sunday morning the Fifth street store operated by M. L. Bartlett, colored, was said to have been entered by an intruder who broke out the window pane and then slipped between bars. Among the reported missing articles were cigars, cigarettes and clothing, including a fur coat.

Only Three Cases In Monday's City Court

Only three cases were tried in Municipal recorder's court this morning, but one of the cases listed six defendants and another three.

Ned Staton, colored, was acquitted of a charge of gambling, but five co-defendants, Ernest Hyman, Joe Anderson, Rufus Mason, Joe Taylor and Roosevelt Whitfield, all colored, were convicted. Prayer for judgment was continued.

John Ellen Rogers, Doris Dixon and Ruby Lee Brewington, colored, were convicted of engaging in riotous and disorderly conduct. Prayer for judgment was continued as to Dixon, while the other two defendants were given 30-day sentences, suspended upon payment of costs.

Claude Christopher, Jr., convicted of speeding, was ordered to pay $10 to be applied on costs.
