Invitations sent in Greenville

World Emergency Relief Campaign. The Southern Baptist Convention World Emergency Committee, under the leadership of Chairman George W. Truett, is launching a campaign to raise, during the month of April, the sum of $300,000 to be distributed in those lands in Central Europe and the Far East where missionaries are carrying on Christian work. This offering will be used for the relief of hungry, suffering, freezing, starving people in war ravaged lands and must be contributed by the churches. The Foreign Mission Board is able to care for the expenses of the missionaries who are staying at their posts in spite of conditions and each church in the Baptist Convention is expected to send in its quota for this special fund, which will be sent directly to the committee, headed by Dr. Truett.

Memorial Baptist Church is designating Easter Sunday as the time when the quota will be collected and wishes to take this opportunity to inform the membership in order that they may come prepared to make this offering. Other denominations are doing their part in caring for our Christian brethren in war-torn lands.

Mr. Britt was an active member of the Ayden Rotary club and the Baptist church, and also active in civic affairs of the community.

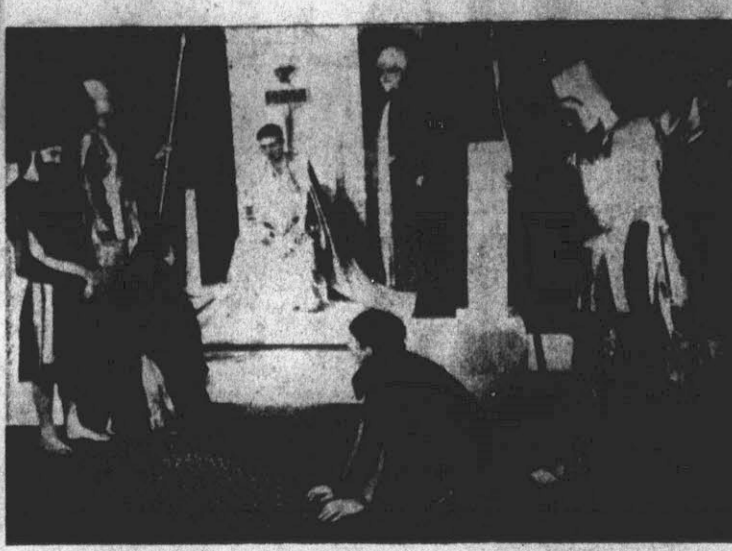

He was a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Collins of this city.

Norwegian Vessels Reported In Port. London, April 4. — (AP) — The Vichy radio, heard here by Reuters, said today that two of 10 Norwegian ships which made a dash for England from Gotenborg, Sweden, on Thursday, had reached an English port.

Two others returned to Gotenborg and two were sunk, the Vichy radio said, adding that there was no news from the other four.

Best reports of the mass escape attempt said that they had tried to break through the German blockade for England.

Scene From Pageant

A scene from the Easter pageant, "Victory Over Death," as it was presented last year at the College. It shows Pilate (Denton Rossell) in the chair of state, with his counselor (James B. Cummings) beside him, and the thieves he was to condemn to death, before him.

Tomorrow night at 8:30 and Monday night at the same hour "Victory Over Death" will be given again. Though basically the same, the pageant has a number of changes in sets, lighting, and music which add to its pictorial effectiveness. The emphasis is still, however, on the spirit of reverence and the atmosphere of worship that was its predominant quality last year.

The public is invited.

NIPPON SHIPS UNDER ATTACK

Heavily Pounded At Lair In Bay Of Bengal. New Delhi, April 4. — (AP) — Japanese ships moored in their newly-won lair of the Bay of Bengal, from which Japan presumably hopes to prey on the United Nations supply route to India and China, have taken a heavy pounding from United States flying fortress bombers operating for the first time from bases in India.

The first communique issued by the New Delhi headquarters of the U. S. air forces in India announced today that the huge bombers, flown under the personal direction of the U. S. Air Commander in India, Major Gen. Lewis H. Brerton, set fire to one Japanese cruiser and a troop ship and probably damaged two other ships.

Major Gen. Brerton, who flew with the American expeditionary force in France during the first World war and was commander of the Army Air Force in the Philippines before going to India, was said to have led his bombers into action at Port Blair in the Andaman islands. The Japanese occupied the islands last week.

The communique said: "American flying fortresses of the United States air forces made their first attack from India today.

"Led by Major Gen. Lewis Brerton, commanding the United States air forces in India, a squadron of heavy bombers attacked the enemy's shipping at Port Blair, setting fire to one Japanese cruiser and one troop ship and probably damaging two other ships.

"An enemy fighter was encountered and intense anti-aircraft fire but no damage was sustained. All our aircraft returned safely."

British Head For Targets In France

London, April 4. — (AP) — British bombers escorted by fighter planes thundered across the channel this morning, apparently headed for Boulogne, in German occupied France.

A British fighter-bomber hit a German airfield in northern France last night and destroyed a Heinkel 111 just returning from a raid against England, the British said.

The Air Ministry announced other British craft attacked airdromes and a railway junction in the same area.

A German aircraft caused slight bomb damage in southwest England on a solo attack last night, a communique reported.

The German-controlled Paris radio reported that the RAF caused a number of casualties in a raid during the night on Brugge, Belgium.

Waste Paper: Price schedule revised to encourage segregation of higher-grade materials, (amendment 2 to revised price schedule 30), effective March 23.

Planned Economy To Continue. I also submit the above for another reason. This is for you to ask yourself this question. When the boys get back from war, finding no jobs for themselves with wealth at one end of the town and poverty at the other while crops are rotting in the fields and factories are closing, will they not demand "rules and regulations" to give them jobs?

Will they not say: If you could make all these regulations to fight war, why no make a few to fight unemployment? If you could order the factories to keep running to feed the English, why not make them keep running to feed us? If you could fix prices and wages to enable everyone to buy food and clothing during the war, why not do it now?

Jobs For Everyone. The columnists say this is no time to talk about peace;—we first should lick Hitler, Mussolini, and Tojo. But there is one thing certain, namely, that World War II will end some day. The time is surely coming when our 2,500,000 boys are coming home to look for jobs.

For some of my friends in doing something now to see that they get them. I will not be shut up by business, politicians, or commentators.

For some weeks I have been studying various plans offered during the last depression. One of the best was prepared by Prestonia Mann Martin, Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida. Send her 25 cents for her book of 150 pages on how everybody can get a living after World War II. In this country, we need have no more poverty, no more unemployment, and a living for everybody. It can be done; it should be done; and after the boys come back it will be done.

Labor Unions Will Be Regulated. Some of my friends say the labor unions won't let the boys have jobs when they come back. Of course, I realize that many of the union members, now riding high and handsome, will be out-of-work themselves when peace comes; but they then will have to be on their good behavior. When the boys get home if any labor leader then tries what he's doing now, the boys will make quick work of him. He'll have a taste of "rules and regulations."

Just one closing thought. No economic planning or any legislation, including rationing and restrictions, will work except as people get a spiritual awakening. Without this Washington will make us a nation of bootleggers. We never can get an honest horse race until we get an honest human race! Economic planning and church planning must go hand-in-hand for either to succeed.

ANNOUNCEMENT. I, Zeno Dixon, wish to announce my candidacy for Constable of Chicod Township, subject for Democratic primary May 30, 1942. If elected I will serve the people of Chicod Township to the best of my ability.

Strength FOR THE DAY By EARL L. DOUGLAS

RECEIVING THE DIVINE VISITOR

As our Lord approached Jerusalem, just a few days before His crucifixion. He burst into tears at the first glimpse of the city and declared that the city had missed an eternal opportunity. It had known not the time of its visitation.

A visitation means a visit, and to know not the time of our visitation means to be ignorant and blind in that hour when the Lord pays us a visit. There is no discretion as to when the Lord will visit us. He comes to us as though everybody were Christ. By so doing we entertain the Christ unawares. We recognize the day of our visitation and meet it with joy.

OUR EASTER BOUQUET

One of the modern customs of Easter is the sending of flowers, and because of our belief in "flowers for the living" today we extend our Easter bouquet to Rev. W. A. Ryan of this city, who has recently resigned his pastorate of Eighth Street Christian Church, effective the first of September.

Since announcement of Mr. Ryan's resignation, it has been gratifying to us to note that so many local citizens, clubs and organizations have seen fit to pay high and well deserved tribute to the great work he has done in our city and to express regret that in the fall his work will carry him elsewhere.

We have had almost daily contact with "Bill" Ryan during his eleven years in this city and his life has always been an inspiration to us, and we believe, to others who have come into contact with him. He has proved not only one of this city's outstanding ministers of the gospel but he has always taken a most active part in everything for the welfare of the community, be it a drive for funds for the Community Chest, a Red Cross drive for flood sufferers, speaking engagements for campaigns of various kinds or work in Boy Scout or other movements. When there was a job to do and everyone else apparently was too busy with his or her own affairs to do it, it was upon Mr. Ryan's shoulders that the task fell, and always it was carried out successfully. Never has he been too busy to lend a hand, whether it be in some movement for the public good or an individual case of need for spiritual or material comfort.

If there was an award for Greenville's most valuable citizen for the past decade and it was our privilege to decide on the winner, our choice would be Rev. W. A. Ryan. And so, at this Easter season, when flowers for the living are appropriate, we give well deserved verbal "Orchids" to this man who has meant so much to this community.

continued literary. The colonel, after an interlude as a West Point brass hat, is now in Washington and in a position to be as authentic as a Bureau of Engraving $5 bill. The lieutenant likewise.

Yet the frontispiece of their book on civilian defense carries the caution: "Opinions expressed and conclusions drawn in this book are those of the authors. They must not be construed as necessarily reflecting the official opinion of the Office of Civilian Defense, of the War Department, or of the services in general."

I wouldn't mention this except that I don't believe it. The acknowledgments give credit to almost every person in Washington who has anything to do with civilian defense. The authors may have labeled somebody but they not only haven't been sued, they haven't even been shamed at.

Their book covers everything that has anything to do with civilian protection of the nation. It starts with such simple definitions as: "The civilian's defense (against modern enemies) is organization for his own protection. His counter-attack is production and the maintenance of a national morale that will outlast the enemy's attack."

The book is matter-of-fact. In spots it's even dull. But the authors have not gone about their business without imagination. For instance there is that preface to Chapter XII, "Women in Defense," which starts with a mention that Helen of Troy never rolled a bandage or drove an ambulance; Penelope never knit a sweater; and Florence Nightingale had to break down a door to get medical supplies because the soldier men of those days thought a woman's place was anywhere but in the fighting line. From there on they approach a

The WAR TODAY

(Continued from Page One) It's possible Hitler may lash out at Sweden, and if he does he may be expected to take that country over. Militarily he is set for this adventure, the purpose of which would be to put him up against his Finnish ally and thus improve his strategic position, and (2) to obtain the food and other supplies in Sweden.

Another possibility—and I am merely naming the possibilities and making predictions—is that the Japs may attack Siberia and thus weaken the Russians by making their fight on two fronts at once. Certainly we may expect more bad news from the Orient, for while they start the war, the initiative, he can't pull rabbits out of a hat, and we needn't expect any grand offensive in the near future.

Take Burma. The advancing Japs are threatening the great oil field from which China draws its supplies. That is the key to the Japanese objective, and if they are successful it will be a terrible blow to Chinese arms.

Then there are the threats to Australia, to India, to the allied supply lines in the Indian ocean, to the Suez Canal. So we might as well go on until we had a list as long as my arm, but we shall have achieved our object if we have made it clear that we are not out of the woods by a long shot.

CUBA—WORLD SUGAR BOWL Most famous of all contributors to the world's supply of sweets, Cuba has perhaps the bitterest struggle for independence in all the long story of New World revolt against Old World revolt against Old World tyranny.

Cuban sugar made its first bid for world fame hardly twenty years after the discovery of sugar by Columbus. In 1942, Diego Velazquez, sent by the Spanish Crown in 1511 to subdue the primitive Siboney and to govern their island, tried whether the newly discovered land would produce the luxury sweet. The result made news. Sugar, in those days, was prized chiefly as a medicine, though a taste for it was spreading among the rich, who alone could pay the price. The Spanish word "azucar" was a survival of the ancient Persian "shakar" meaning small grains. Famous Arabian doctors had used it in their compounds. The Crusaders had formed a liking for it in the Holy

Fort Bragg Guns Find Their Mark

Clouds of smoke and dust rise around an old tank (top) after artillery had laid down a salvo but missed the mark during maneuvers at Fort Bragg, N. C. Later shots, however, found the target (bottom) and the old tank was blown to bits in a shower of smoke and debris. The artillerymen were firing with the 240mm howitzer, heaviest in the army, and the 155mm rifle, the army's longest range field piece.

Land and had done not a little to promote its use in Central Europe. The fifteenth century saw Spaniards and Portuguese extending cultivation of sugar cane into the New World.

But it was not sugar, nor luscious Cuban fruits, nor delightful climate, nor great natural beauty, nor even all combined, that lay at the bottom of "Pearl of the Antilles" as romantic choice of title for Cuba. All played their part, no doubt. But the island's great value, from the early days of exploration, conquest and colonization to independence at the turn of our century, was geographical. Spanish conquistadores used the island as base for numerous expeditions to the mainland. It was from Cuba that Cortez set out for his conquest of Mexico. Havana was rendezvous for ships laden with treasure for Spain, French, British and Dutch buccaners sought repeatedly to wrest the port from Spain and failed. With Spain at war with Great Britain and France in 1622, Havana was taken by a British army, only to be returned to Spain, by treaty, a year later.

So it was more because of the island's key position than because of its possibilities as a producer of wealth that Cuba was to suffer more than others, and to win through to independence later than any other American republic except Panama. There were to be eighty years of bitter struggle. They were to produce national heroes such as Jose Marti, Bartolome Maso and Maximo Gomez; to culminate in a war between Spain and the United States; the Treaty of Paris, and Cuban freedom at last.

Sugar still leads all else in the Cuban economy, with the island's peculiarly fine tobacco second. But it is by no means certain that the day will not come when they, as well as the pineapples, oranges, guava, and choice vegetables that go to swell Cuban exports, will give place to minerals in the sum of the nation's wealth. Cuba has bitumen of exceptional purity and high quality. It is believed that the island's high place among the world's producers. In the province of Oriente, and in other regions, are deposits of iron, copper, manganese, gold, mercury, zinc, lead, silver and antimony, all awaiting further exploration and development.

Not in this all. Only a ferrying distance from Key West, with regular steamers running between its ports and those of the United States, the Republic of Cuba, important as it is in the world's seaports of today, stands, too, at a crossroads of the air commerce of tomorrow. Ready planes of the Cuban-Puerto Rico route, with stops also in Haiti and the Dominican Republic, have built up a considerable passenger, mail and light freight traffic, while planes of the American Airways bound Cuba, Panama and east along the coast ports of South America call at the busy and beautiful Cuban republic both going and coming.

Conspicuously, Cuba is a country of the future. The full luster of the "Pearl of the Antilles" has not yet been seen.

Maryland Still Thinking About And Needing Keller

TERPS BEATEN BY UNC 6 TO 0

Defeated In Opening Of 6-Game Southern Invasion

By DICK HUNT
 Raleigh, April 4.—(AP)—It will be a good many years before the students and alumni of the University of Maryland get used to thinking of Charlie Keller as a New York Yankee outfielder instead of as a mainstay of the old line baseball team.

Charlie's name has become almost a legend at the College Park institution—not so much for his athletic prowess, which speaks for itself—but mainly because he was just a darned good guy.

Nobody paid much attention when Freshman Keller came down from the mountains near Frederick and enrolled in the College of Agriculture. He was just a country boy who wanted to pick up a little scientific knowledge to apply to the running of his folks' farm.

Charlie didn't have much money. In order to go to college he had to work—that is, while he wasn't in class or in training for basketball, football or baseball.

He had made a good reputation as a high school athlete, and the university gave him some assistance. When he entered school, however, the Graham plan was being pushed throughout the conference, and Maryland was one of its strongest supporters, so his scholarship was meagre.

To pay his way, Charlie accepted any odd job he could find. He stoked furnaces in the various sorority houses, waited on tables in the university dining hall, and secured some assistance from the NYA.

He made the grade, however, and in addition, drew down good marks and earned letters in baseball, basketball and football.

Charlie was a fighting athlete. On the basketball floor, he made up for his small stature by utter ferocity.

He was a pretty good football player, too, but they made him give up the gridiron sport for fear he might injure himself out of future diamond greatness.

His record as a college basketball player is well known. The average collegiate pitcher didn't stand a chance against the clouting Keller.

One man, however, didn't think so. Clark Griffith, the old fox of the Washington Senators, came out to watch the Terps play. After the game somebody asked Griffith what he thought of Keller.

"Not bad," was the reply, "but he doesn't have the build for professional baseball."

Another man, however, had different ideas.

Coach Burton Shipley, veteran Terp baseball mentor, who has been teaching Maryland athletes the rudiments of the great American sport for a decade or so, knew Charlie's greatness and made sure everybody else did.

"Ship" took Charlie under his wing, seasoned him and turned out a ballplayer who may someday take over the toga of the great Ruth. And he's still just a modest, unassuming good guy.

Maryland could have used Charlie yesterday. The Terps, opening a six-game southern invasion, lost to the University of North Carolina, 6-6, in a pitcher's battle at Chapel Hill.

It was a mound fight in the sense that Bob Smith of Maryland and Horace "Red" Benton of Carolina held each other's team to five hits. Smith, however, was the wilder, and thus the Tar Heel victory.

The two teams will meet again today, and despite the one-sided score yesterday, the game should be of high quality.

This Is Doctor . . .

Your guess is as good as ours . . . anyway at the Kiwanis minstrel show you will have a chance to see Greenville's dignified business men be kids again for one night. They will sing and dance, tell screaming, side-splitting jokes, impersonations of Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, Bert Williams, Silas Green and many other oldtime minstrel favorites will parade before the footlights at the Austin building at E. C. T. C., on Friday night, April 10, at 8:15.

Carl (Jack) Alely is directing the minstrel and stated that rehearsals had been held every night for the past few weeks and will continue the rapid clip of rehearsals in order to whip this big local show in shape by next Friday night. Those lucky few who have witnessed a late rehearsal were loud in their praise of the efforts of the comedians and the chorus. In addition to the Kiwanis club the minstrel will feature the high school band under the direction of Harold McDougle . . . the songs of the Plantation Four, Berry Bostic, Guy Smith, Jimmy Simpson, Buster Starkey, James Pittman, Ed Parkinson, Aubrey Tilley and many others.

Billy Knoph's 15-piece swing band will play for several special numbers which will feature Marie Smith and a lovely array of dancing beauties, all in all it promises to be a grand show, and the entire proceeds will go for the benefit of underprivileged children—so get your ticket, see a good show and support a worthy cause.

DEMARET GOES AFTER SUCCESS

Again Heading For High Road In Golf Circles

By FRITZ LITTLEJOHN
 Asheville, April 4.—(AP)—Jimmy Demaret, the one time golden boy of golf, is heading for the highroad of success again today.

Overlooked by the galleries in the first two rounds of the Asheville open, Demaret, after a wobbly start, laid down a 71 and a 69 and last night when the last of the faithful had deserted the fairways, Jimmy was still polishing a game that is now near a peak of perfection.

The only man playing who has any chance of rivalling slugging Sammy Sneed at the Babe Ruth of golf, Demaret has put behind his habit of missing them quick, and now looks good even when flubs a shot.

Today he was only three shots off the pace, and playing beautifully.

Leading the field was Herman Barron, of White Plains, N. Y., at 137. Lawson Little of Monterey, with the acquisition of Colonel (Bus) Mills from Kansas City. The Indians sent outfielder Larry Rosenthal and cash to the New York Yankee farm.

Phoenix, Ariz.—Bob Johnson's late start in spring training, caused by his holding out, apparently hasn't affected his power. The Philadelphia Athletics outfielder slammed a 400-foot homer with two on base to lead yesterday's victory over Pittsburgh and added a single for a perfect day in two official trips to the plate.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Some railbirds are discounting the St. Louis Cardinals because they lack power. The Detroit Tigers don't believe it, not since they spent yesterday chasing 16 solid base hits off Cardinal bats, one of them a homer by young Stan Musial.

Nashville, Tenn.—Everything ran to number 14 for the New York Yankees yesterday. Not only did the world champions get 14 hits and 14 runs in their game with the Montgomery, Ala., Rebels, but they also left 14 runners stranded.

Pirates Lose

The baseball team of East Carolina Teachers College was held to three hits and dropped a 13-4 decision to the Oak Ridge nine at college field yesterday afternoon. The visitors used three hurlers against the locals and each was effective.

The only local boys able to reach first on a hit were Mayo, Waters and Futrell. King, with a triple, two doubles and a single in six trips to the plate, and Greene with three for three, paced the visitors at bat.

SHOW BOAT GIRL

By ROBERTA COURTLAND

Chapter 24
 New Offer

Melissa said swiftly, anxiously. "Oh, Randy, darling—please don't mind so much. I don't, honestly—I don't mind a bit—"

"Well, you should," said Randy savagely, through his clenched teeth. "It was the most deliberate insult any girl could receive—and you should have pride enough to be cut to the quick—humiliated—as I am, for you!"

"But after all, they are people who mean absolutely nothing to me, nor to you," protested Melissa almost frantically, because the lovely day was being torn to bits before her.

"They are the so-called 'best people,'" snapped Randy sharply. "And they are right. After all, one must draw the line somewhere, and a professional gambler's female associates is as good a place to begin as any. Come on, let's get out of here."

The sound of the blue announcement of the third race. But neither Randy nor Melissa heard it. She had almost to run to keep up with him as he strode to the parking place where he had left his car. And the wheels roared as he meshed them savagely so that the car leaped out of its parking space like a cruelly spurred horse.

During the drive Randy said nothing beyond the briefest, most curt monosyllables in answer to her desperate attempts at conversation. Her heart lay in the very heels of her smart brown suede slippers and her hands shook a little as she held them tightly clasped in her lap.

Just before they reached the show boat she said shakily, "Randy, I think you're being pretty much of a fool about all this. After all I was the one who was—well, insulted, if you want to put it that way—"

"There's scarcely any other way to put it, is there?" demanded Randy grimly.

"All right, if I'm not all hot and bothered about it, why should you be?" she answered with spirit.

"Put yourself in my place," suggested Randy grimly. "Suppose I were being brushed off like that by some of your friends—"

"They were not your friends—"

"they were just people who thought you'd help them with a lot of money by telling them how to lay their bets," Melissa cut in sharply.

"All right, but suppose you had dragged me into a situation where I got that sort of brush-off—how would you feel about it?" asked Randy grimly.

"As though I'd like to wring their aged to recount to Alice the events of the day, Alice looked troubled.

"Ace is such a sucker for rescue-ability so far as you're concerned that the big luc leans over backward," admitted Alice frankly. "It burns him up to have anybody behave as though you weren't the equal and then some of the sneaky little gals that flin around in the society set, Randy's pretty hipped on his own reputation, too. He goes through life believing that people think he's hand-in-glove with Satan himself, when as a matter of fact people who know him think he's just about the smartest little shooter in these parts."

"But, Alice, what am I going to do? How am I going to convince him that I don't care about people like that woman at the track—and that I love him—and that nothing else matters?" wailed Melissa miserably.

"Well, as to that little I wouldn't know," admitted Alice frankly. "I imagine you'll just have to give him time to get over the blow to his pride."

And then for the first time she saw the emerald, flashing green fire in its frosty setting, and she gasped.

"My saints alive! What a headlight!" she cried, and lifted Melissa's hand for a better look. "I'll say the man's mad about you. Don't worry, angel-face, he'll get over his peeve. You've got him roped and hog-tied."

Melissa tried hard to accept the comforting counsel that Alice offered, but her heart was heavy and there was a growing feeling of fear and uneasiness as the evening passed and Randy had not returned to the River Queen.

She was doing her first group of numbers when she saw him for a moment at the entrance to the auditorium, watching her and listening to her song. Her voice shook a little, throbbing with the intensity of her emotion. For just a moment she looked across the room and into his eyes—and then he was gone.

When she had finished her last encore and was free to leave the stage she slipped out of the doorway that led directly off the deck, intent on finding Randy and talking to him. But as she hurried toward the game room a waiter barred her way with a message. A guest wished to speak to her. It was very important. "Melissa would have brushed past the waiter, ignoring him; but the customer was directly behind him and she could not escape.

"Miss Marlowe, I'd like a few minutes of your time for a proposition I think might interest you," said the man, who was middle-aged, well groomed, very pleasant, quite obviously someone of importance. "Perhaps you'll come to my table. A drink maybe?"

Melissa said quickly, "I don't drink, but of course, if you have something to say—"

The man smiled. "I don't think you'll find it a waste of time to listen," he assured her, and guided her to a small table for two, where he drew a chair out for her. When she was seated, he asked at once, "Miss Marlowe, had you ever thought of going on the air? Radio stuff?"

"No, of course not," answered Melissa, almost rudely curt, for she was possessed of a terrific impatience with this man who was keeping her from seeing Randy.

"Why of course not?" asked the man, smiling faintly. "You have an almost perfect radio voice. I've been listening to you for some time—this is my fourth or fifth visit to the River Queen, especially to hear you—and I'm convinced that you would have a very nice career for yourself on the radio."

"You're very kind," said Melissa. "But I'm afraid I'm not interested."

"But what do you intend to do with yourself? Certain things of great future about the show here. After all, the show here is merely popular at the moment, because it happens to be a novelty. By next season it will be forgotten."

"I'm Todd Beasley of the Plantation Lady. I'm planning a new radio program to cover my territory—a weekly wide broadcast—and I can offer you a contract for a year, with an option for two more years after that at a very good salary."

"Thank you," said Melissa, smiling. "But I'm still not interested. You see, Mr. Beasley, I'm going to marry Mr. Randall."

"You mean Ace Randall's son, of the River Queen?" demanded Beasley, obviously startled.

Melissa's head went up a little and she said slowly, "Yes, we're going to be married within a week, on an even which I wouldn't be interested in your proposition."

Beasley nodded and for a moment his eyes sparkled with interest. Then he nodded a trifling smile and said, "Of course, in that case—"

Beasley rose and bowed as he hurried away.

 Orlando, Fla.—"This is the ball club I'm depending on to put us in the first division," said Manager Bucky Harris of the Washington Senators as he named his lineup for today's game with the Philadelphia Phils. Bobo Newsom will make his first start as a Washington pitcher, caught by Jake Early. Mickey Vernon will be at first, Frank Croucher at second, Bobby Estellella at third, Bob Respass at short and Stan Spence, George Case and Bruce Campbell in the outfield.

Birmingham, Ala.—Ted Williams will spend most of his time during the Boston Red Sox two-day visit here having his injured foot X-rayed. The slugger, who was nicked by one of Bucky Walters' pitches Thursday, insists the injury is slight, but Manager Joe Cronin warned him that he would play no more until he could produce a negative print.

De Land, Fla.—Continuous pressure is the system developed by Manager Luke Sewell as he herds his St. Louis Browns along the exhibition trail. His Browns have whipped the Boston Braves twice already this year, but Sewell plans to send Eldon Auker and Bob Harris, two of his most dependable pitchers, against them today.

Shreveport, La.—The Cleveland Indians' search for a right handed hitting outfielder was over today

Glenn W. Brooks Slated For Caterpillar Club

Forced To Leap from Burning Plane During Training

Some Experience

Glenn W. Brooks, young Greenville man in the radio division of the Army Air Corps, was forced to make a parachute jump last week when the plane in which he and other members of the crew on a routine training flight caught fire in mid-air.

Glenn W. Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Brooks of this city, had an experience last Thursday which few are privileged—or forced—to undergo. The B-17-7 Army plane in which he and six others were going through a routine flight caught fire in the air and all members of the crew were forced to parachute to the ground. It was Brooks' first jump.

Brooks is in the radio division of the Army Air Corps. He first went to a technical school in Illinois and after eight months of training there was transferred to Pendleton Field, Oregon, where he was at the time of the experience.

As a result of his feat he and the others who jumped will be made members of the Caterpillar Club, exclusive organization made up of fliers who are forced to jump from planes to save their lives.

The local young man wrote that shortly after taking off on routine flight all four motors of the plane "went wild." He wrote that they went from 3,000 rpm to beyond a speed possible for them to withstand.

"We turned to land, but the flaps wouldn't come down and we knew we were going to crash. The pilot got her to 7,000 feet and ordered us to jump."

He wrote that they opened the doors through which bombs are dropped and the navigator went first. Brooks followed and then the co-pilot. He wrote that he could not describe how it felt, but added that when the chute opened "I felt like I had been hit by a train, then I floated five or six minutes in the clouds watching the plane lose altitude, still on fire. When the pilot and engineer jumped (3,500) feet the plane banked and crashed with 1,700 gallons of gasoline. It was torn to bits."

Brooks wrote that he was lucky and landed safely, in a soft field, and suffered only soreness. He added that he and the rest of the men were being honored as a result of their feat. He expressed much regret at losing the plane and radio equipment.

According to Brooks, one of the men aboard, a cook just going for the ride, had to be thrown from the plane, as he was too scared to jump. The cook, however, opened his parachute and landed safely, but has vowed never to go in the air again.

Brooks since has been sent to Albuquerque, N. Mex., for a 30-day training period before being sent to a new field in Utah.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 4.—(AP)—An assortment of stock market leaders managed to work a little higher in today's brief session although numerous issues dozed at slightly lower levels.

Boardrooms were more or less deserted—many customers elected to stretch out the Good Friday recess over the week-end.

Scant speculative or investment optimism was found in the war news or business developments.

The list got off to a moderately easier start in fairly active dealings. Plus signs then began to show up in various departments and the close was no worse than a shade uneven. Transfers for the two hours were around 175,000 shares.

U. S. SOLDIERS PAID TRIBUTE

Annual Army Day Is Observed By Nation At War

Washington, April 4.—(AP)—A nation at war today started a three-day observance of Army Day.

Secretary of War Stimson, emphasizing the "particular significance" of the celebration this year, said it was "appropriate that the nation should pay tribute to the soldiers now engaged in the great struggle on many battle fronts."

"Within our own continental limits other patriotic Americans are taking part, as soldiers and as civilians, in the greatest national effort of our time. The observance of Army Day will make the respect and affection which we all feel for our armed forces," he said, "and the pride which we all share in the Army of the United States."

In his message in advance of the April 6 observance, which is the 25th anniversary of the United States entry in the last World War, Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, asked for "complete confidence in the efficiency of the United States Army." Undersecretary Patterson said the celebration "fittingly commemorates the inspiring tradition of our armed forces."

New York, with a parade of West Point cadets, and many other cities held their celebration today to avoid interference with war production. Regular army troops will participate in observations tomorrow at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., and at Baltimore Monday.

TO ASK LABOR WORK LONGER

Volunteer 44-48-hour Week Under Consideration

Washington, April 4.—(AP)—The administration was reported authoritatively today to be sounding out labor leaders on the possibility of obtaining a voluntary agreement for a 44 or 48 hour work week at regular pay in war industries.

Lieutenants of President Roosevelt, including Vice President Wallace, were said to be taking an active part in efforts to obtain some kind of pact between workers and management which would quiet the controversy which has arisen over the 40-hour week and prevent the possible enactment by Congress of restrictive labor legislation.

There has been some discussion in administration circles of a compromise calling for over-time pay only after 44 hours, but opposition to such a scheme was said to have arisen on the grounds that this would be a half-way measure likely to be unacceptable to congressional critics of the present law.

It was understood, however, that any agreement which might be reached would have to satisfy labor that the extra pay it would be giving up would go back to the government, rather than into the tills of war contractors.

Although he declined comment on these reports, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, said he hoped voluntary action could be taken before the Senate is called upon April 20 to debate a motion to take up a bill by Senator Connally (D-Tex) permitting the government to take over strike-bound war concerns and freezing working conditions in such plants.

fairly and served two terms as member of the Board of Aldermen. A man of strong personality and a keen sense of humor, he gained hosts of friends throughout this community and section since coming to Greenville. He continued in the brokerage business until last October when declining health forced him to retire from further business activities.

R. Conway, Honorary pallbearers will be members of the C. J. Ellen Bible Class of Memorial Baptist Church.

Mr. Parrish was born in Lunenburg County, Va., June 10, 1882. When he was but a small boy he moved to Richmond where he spent his boyhood, received his education and engaged in business, being connected with the Dunlop Mills until November, 1925, when he moved to Greenville to enter the brokerage business.

On March 12, 1921, he married Miss Hazel Jones of Richmond, who with son, Warren Parrish, survive.

In Richmond he was a member of Lee Street Baptist church and upon coming to this city he moved his membership to Memorial Baptist church here, where he continued his church activities, especially in connection with the men's Bible class of the Sunday school. In addition to his religious activities here he took a great interest in civic af-

Reveals Loss . . .

Meanwhile, fuller details of an earlier engagement came to light. It was disclosed that destroyer division 95 of the U. S. Asiatic fleet steamed back and forth through a Japanese convoy in a Makassar Strait night attack late in January, sent a number of enemy ships to the bottom with torpedoes and point blank gunfire, and escaped with only minor damage to one ship. Naval observers pointed out that when the battle of Java was fought U. S. vessels were handicapped by lack of air support. Now, however, the growing strength of American land-based units in northern Australia may reverse the picture. Both fighters and bombers of General MacArthur's forces sweep regularly over waters north of Australia where the Japanese effort in the southwest Pacific has been concentrated.

The new sinkings brought to 23 the number of U. S. naval losses in the war. Thus far 10 destroyers, one battleship, three submarines, one cruiser, one aircraft tender, two coast guard vessels, two tankers, one target ship, one cargo ship, the gunboat, and two miscellaneous type vessels have been officially listed as sunk.

But the launching of 16 destroyers, a battleship, two cruisers, two aircraft tenders and a number of other naval craft since Pearl Harbor dwarfs these losses.

The Japanese, on the other hand, have lost at least 30 warships including a battleship, six cruisers and two airplane carriers.

Bomber Crash.
Boise, Idaho, April 4.—(AP)—A four-motored army bomber crashed near the Utah-Idaho border last night. Two men were killed and the other seven aboard are missing. Gower Field Public Relations Officer R. S. Gibbs disclosed today.
