

SOVIETS CLAIM NEW TOLL OF 3,000 GERMANS

British Bombers Play Havoc Over Continent; Nazi Drive In Libya Fails To Develop; Australian Airmen Bomb Jap Bases

On the Russian front, Soviet dispatches reported today that more than 3,000 Germans had been killed in the last few days around Bryansk, 220 miles southwest of Moscow, and declared the Nazis were suffering terrific casualties in counterattacks aimed at relieving encircled German garrisons.

Hitler's field headquarters claimed equally heavy losses by Red army troops in successful German thrusts on the central (Moscow) front.

On the North African front there was still no indication that German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was developing his expected major offensive aimed at conquest of Egypt and a drive through the Middle East to Russia's southern flank.

Waves of RAF planes blasted the German-occupied "invasion coast" of France today, capping heavy night assaults in which British raiders dropped hundreds of tons of high explosives and incendiaries on German's Ruhr valley war foundries in one of the fiercest attacks of the war.

The big Krupp armaments works was the chief target of the night foray, the London Air Ministry said, acknowledging the loss of 13 RAF bombers.

German-occupied Le Havre also was bombed.

The Germans said 12 British bombers were shot down and acknowledged that "houses were damaged and there were casualties among the civilian population."

RAF daylight raiders apparently struck in the direction of Boulogne. Coincidentally, the London Daily Sketch hinted at an Allied invasion of the continent, declaring that conferences of Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. Army chief of staff, and Harry Hopkins with Britain's war leaders indicated that "our plans have gone beyond the production stage."

"The contemplated stroke may be of an unexpected character and at an unexpected place," the newspaper said. "There is plenty of room for striking at Nazi-occupied Europe."

On the Pacific fronts Japanese invaders swarmed into the island of Cebu in a new phase of the Philippine campaign today while their warships and planes blasted at Corregidor in an attempt to knock out the last bastion of resistance in Luzon and gain control of Manila Bay—the finest harbor in the western Pacific.

With the Stars and Stripes still flying, the island fortress was manned by 3,500 U. S. Marines and blue-jackets who escaped from Bataan in the final hours of the bloody peninsula fighting and by the regular garrison of American and Filipino soldiers.

In addition, there was a sprinkling of nurses and troops still dazed by the shock of battle, who swam through shark-infested waters of the channel between Bataan and Corregidor or rowed in small boats.

To Convert Commercial Airlines To War Uses

Washington, April 11.—(AP)—Representative Nichols (D-Okla.) predicted today that America's air lines in the United States would be operating exclusively for war purposes "very soon."

Nichols, chairman of a special House aviation investigating committee, forecast that all passenger travel by air, not connected with the war effort, would be eliminated to make way for air transport of vast quantities of war freight across the country and to foreign bases.

One of the first steps in this new program, he said in an interview, would be diversion in the next few weeks of a "considerable number" of commercial planes to military use to be operated under military direction by existing air line personnel.

Reports in private aviation circles that this diversion would involve 120 or more planes were "wrong," Nichols said, confining his estimate only to a "considerable number."

For military reasons he would not say what specific use would be made of these planes by the army or what routes they would cover.

Reduction of the number of commercial planes for passenger use would, of course, increase existing priority control over seats. On this point, Nichols said:

"In the very near future I am of the opinion that air line seats will be controlled almost if not entirely by priorities, and the time is not far distant when all persons desiring to fly on commercial air lines will be flying on priorities necessary to the war effort."

Nichols has been conferring with interested government and private officials on the subject of diversion for several weeks. He said the real "import of this is that the government policy with respect to commercial aviation is now changed so that the facilities of the air lines will be used as units by the government; that is, instead of picking up a plane here and a pilot there, the government will utilize whole organizations of these lines in a broad, coordinated program."

The United States now has 17 commercial air lines.

AMERICAN SUB BELIEVED LOST

Washington, April 11.—(AP)—The U. S. submarine Perch has been overdue for a month and presumably is lost in the western Pacific, the navy announced today.

The Perch, commissioned six years ago, last was reported operating in the Java sea.

She was under command of Lieutenant Commander David Albert Hurt, 38, Pounding Mill, Va.

She was the fourth submarine reported lost or missing by the navy department since the war began. The others were the Shark, reported overdue in the western Pacific; the S-26, which went down after a collision off Panama and the Sea Lion, demolished at Cavite in the Philippines.

Loss of the Perch brought to 26 the number of naval vessels announced as lost since December 7.

The announcement said the next of kin of all members of the crew have been notified, but gave no estimate of the total personnel.

The loss was announced in the Navy Department's communique, No. 76.

"Southwest Pacific: "1. The U. S. submarine Perch has been overdue for more than a month and must be presumed to be lost."

"2. The Perch was one of the U. S. submarines operating in the vicinity of Java and her last position reported placed her in the Java sea."

"3. The next of kin have been notified."

"4. There is nothing to report from other areas."

Large Airliner Crashes Into Bay

New York, April 11.—(AP)—A 21-passenger United Airlines transport plane overshot a runway in landing at LaGuardia airport in pre-dawn murk today and plunged into Flushing bay. The three crew members were injured; six passengers were unhurt.

Quick action by two crash boats from the nearby Pan American Airways Clipper terminal averted further casualties by rescuing all nine occupants even while the plane was sinking under them.

The accident occurred at 5:37 a. m. as the plane, flight 12, originating in Oakland, Calif., completed the last leg of its trip, from Chicago.

The injured; Stewardess Josephine Dergis, 23, of Chicago, injured right arm; taken to Flushing hospital. Co-pilot Butterfield, injured left leg and sprained ankle; taken to a hospital. Captain Douglas Wilson, slight cut over the left eye.

As the bay's incoming morning tide swept in toward the short on which the sprawling airport fronts, it overturned the plane, and the craft began to sink nose first, its tail pointing skyward.

INDIA REJECTS BRITISH TERMS FOR FREEDOM

Cripps Announces British Offer Is Withdrawn

New Delhi, April 11.—(AP)—Sir Stafford Cripps in a farewell radio broadcast to the people of India said today: "I am sad that this great opportunity for rallying India for her defense and her freedom has been missed."

The British envoy, preparing to return to Britain after the collapse of the British plan for post-war independence of India said:

"You will have heard that the draft declaration which I brought to India on behalf of the War Cabinet and which I explained to you the last time I spoke over the wireless has been rejected by your leaders."

"I am sad that this great opportunity of rallying India for her defense and her freedom has been missed."

"No one could have been more fully conscious than I of the great difficulties which history has placed in the way of settlement of relations between the British and the Indian peoples and even more between the different communities in India."

The War Cabinet in sending me on this mission realized to the full that the opinion—though united in a desire for full self-government—was widely disunited as to the methods by which it should be attained. It was with these wide differences of view that we had to deal and it would have been no use if we had closed our eyes to the hard realities of the situation."

Unable to agree on who should govern India and how her military destiny should be guided, the powerful Hindu and Moslem parties rejected Britain's offer of Dominion status in the empire on the grounds that in practice it would fall short of true independence.

"Amid an outright atmosphere of gloom and disappointment Sir Stafford, who brought the War Cabinet's offer to India, announced that the proposal was withdrawn, and said he would leave for England tomorrow."

"The discussions," he said "are over."

Thus the present British administration presumably will continue throughout the war, or until such a time as the big Indian factions reconsider.

The door for future negotiations remained barely ajar. The dominant all-India congress party announced it would be prepared to cooperate in "a truly national government" if the British as seemed unlikely, should agree to let India completely direct her own defense.

Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, congress party president, told Sir Stafford in a letter that by postponing the troubled issue "the largest possible measure of unity might be achieved in the present crisis for India's defense."

Sir Stafford said without elaboration:

"I may come back to India. In what capacity that will be the Lord only knows."

He urged "all who love India" to rally to her defense against the Japanese, pledged that "Great Britain will do her utmost," and said "America is doing all she can."

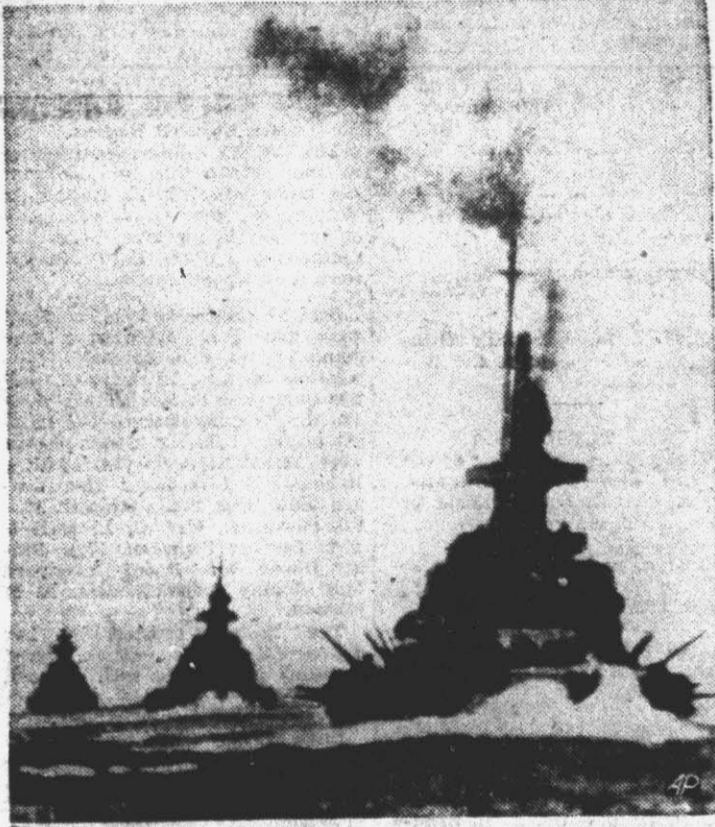

Despite the general disappointment at the failure to reach an agreement Sir Stafford will leave India with undiminished popularity.

Many Indians felt, whether rightly or wrongly, that he had been generous as possible, but that his hands had been tied by the British War Cabinet.

One disquieting feature of the fortnight of negotiations was the (Continued on Page Six)

Beleaguered Defenders Of Corregidor Continue Fight

German Warships On Channel Dash

British sources say this picture was published in a German periodical and described as showing the dash of the German warships Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen through the English channel, February 12. The vessel were not individually identified. The picture was radiocast from London to the U. S.

Escapes Tell Story Of Heroic Battle For Bataan

Defenders Fought for Days Without Sleep And Little Food

By DEAN SCHEDLER

Corregidor Fortress, April 9 (AP)—(delayed)—Nurses and soldiers of Bataan dazed with the shock of battle, sought rest and sleep today within the walls of Corregidor fortress, itself battered by Japanese bombs.

They came last night, brave refugees from the long battle that was gloriously lost, swimming through shark-infested waters of the channel between Bataan and this Manila bay fortress, or rowing pitifully in small boats through bombs and vicious machinegun blasts from enemy planes.

Nurses, fatigued after days and nights of service in Bataan's hospitals under constant fire, stumbled ashore from the boats, so weary they could hardly walk. Civilians, any who dared to risk the trip from stricken Bataan, were among the arrivals.

Those who swam were picked up in mid-channel by other small craft, saved from the sharks out still harassed by the machinegun fire of diving enemy planes.

I questioned soldiers who had gone one night after night without sleep and who had eaten but little during those final days when they faced overwhelming odds.

They had stood and fought, then retreated to stand and fight again but while they tried to be obliging and tell of Bataan's last hours, they wanted only one thing now—sleep. Grippled by this desire to sleep, their memory of experiences was unclear to them. They only knew that they were hungry, tired, sleepy.

During the night we looked across the channel toward Bataan and heard booming explosions and saw many-colored fires as the defenders in their last defiant action, destroyed munition dumps and fuel, and anything else that might be valuable to the ever-pressing enemy.

We on Corregidor had heard over short-wave radio from the United States of the fall of Bataan, after the defenders' gallant three month stand.

The soldiers of Corregidor, themselves veterans of scores of pounding Japanese bombing raids, wept unashamed at the announcer's words: "Bataan has fallen."

Island Fortress Bombed By Land and Sea Attack; American-Filipino Defenders Take Heavy Toll Of Japs At Cebu

Washington, April 11.—(AP)—The War Department reported today that a small American-Filipino force defending Cebu in the Philippines had inflicted heavy casualties on a Japanese invasion force estimated at 12,000 which was able nevertheless to effect a landing on the island.

A communique said that the defenders continued to resist stubbornly.

The invaders, supported by a fleet of four war ships and ten transports, by dive bombers and tanks, were said to have been able to advance only a few miles.

The island fortress of Corregidor and nearby Fort Hughes in Manila bay meanwhile were subjected to intensive air attacks and intermittent artillery cross fire but the War Department said casualties were few and the damage slight.

Lieutenant General Jonathan M. Wainwright reported that communication remained severed between Corregidor and the Bataan peninsula where his army was crushed by overwhelming Japanese forces.

The communique, number 185, based on reports received up to 9:30 a. m. eastern war time:

"1. Philippine theater: "Despite fierce resistance by the small American and Philippine forces, the enemy was able to effect a landing on the island of Cebu on April 10. The Japanese force now debarking on that island is estimated at 12,000. The landing is being supported by dive bombers and a heavy fire from hostile naval vessels. Tank units have been landed by the Japanese."

"2. The defense continues to resist stubbornly and the invaders have been unable to advance inland more than a few miles at any point. Enemy casualties have been heavy."

"Corregidor and Fort Hughes in Manila bay were subjected to intensive air attacks during the past twenty-four hours. However, our casualties were few and the damage inflicted was slight."

"Our fortified islands were under intermittent fire from enemy artillery in Bataan and on the south shore of the bay."

"There is no communication between our troops in Bataan and those in Corregidor."

"3. There is nothing to report from other areas."

"American soldiers and sailors on Corregidor kept up the fight today, charged with exacting the highest possible toll from the Japanese invaders."

"The garrison consisted of survivors of the 3,500 Bataan sailors and Marines General Wainwright ordered to the island stronghold in the closing hours of the peninsula fight and the American and Filipino soldiers who had manned its guns for weeks."

"Even as the Japanese struck again by air at the island whose guns deny them the use of Manila bay, the navy announced late yesterday that the Bataan forces had destroyed the submarine tender Canopus of the minesweeper Blitzer." (Continued on Page Six)

BRITISH FALL BACK IN BURMA

Withdraw On Irrawaddy River Valley Front

New Delhi, April 11.—(AP)—A further British withdrawal on the Irrawaddy river valley front in Burma was indicated today by a British communique announcing that three Japanese vehicles were engaged Wednesday "by light reconnaissance troops in the vicinity of Nyaungbintha."

Nyaungbintha is 18 miles north of the Thabeikmyin defenses and 58 miles above Prome, which was yielded before the pressure of numerically superior forces last week.

Japanese warplanes bombed British and Chinese positions and a town in central Burma yesterday, the communique said, and British pilots and American volunteers group fliers defending a northern airfield were credited with shooting down seven.

"On the Chinese front (the eastern defense lines above Toungoo) there was Japanese artillery fire yesterday, but no definite infantry action," it said.

Are We Headed For Bankruptcy? Babson Says No Cause For Alarm

Babson Park, Mass., April 11.—I have been asked how the government can continue to spend more than it takes in without going into bankruptcy. The first answer is that the government can issue legal currency. This is not true of individuals or corporations or even of municipalities or states. All these four groups can be "busted"; but this is not necessarily so of a federal government.

Government Vs. Private Enterprise The above is an example of the confused understanding which exists among many people of the operation of government as an enterprise, compared with the operation of private business as an enterprise. The average person has much difficulty in understanding how the government can continue a financial policy which would be ruinous to an individual or to a business. We should also keep in mind that our government is a separate legal entity and operates on an accounting basis which is quite separate and apart from that of its people.

Mayor Endorses Cancer Control

Giving his full endorsement to the Cancer Control Campaign being carried out on a nation-wide basis this month, Mayor B. B. Suggs of this city today issued the following statement:

"Our nation is engaged in the greatest war in its history. No one questions the necessity of aiding this vital effort by every possible means. But in our concern about this phase of our national welfare, we should not lose sight of other problems that will continue to face us, despite the war."

"One great objective of our city and of the nation is a high standard of public health that can be achieved through the efforts of modern science and the cooperation of voluntary organizations with the official health departments. Today one of the greatest problems we face is cancer—the second greatest cause of death in the United States. Authorities in this field state that almost two-thirds of the 150,000 lives annually from cancer could have been saved if the victims had known the early symptoms of the disease and the fact that early diagnosis and treatment are imperative."

"Consider it an obligation to help spread this vital information through any means in my power. Therefore, I proclaim the period April 1 to 30, 1942, as Cancer Control Month, and urge the public to support to the greatest possible extent the work of the Woman's Club of the American Society for the Control of Cancer."

The WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MacKENZIE, Wide-World News Analyst

Speculation increases like spring- fever on both sides of the Atlantic about the possibility of opening up an Allied front somewhere in western Europe in support of the Russians, and something like that might happen in due course, but it must be said that the Axis is making it very difficult for such a project to materialize.

I refer to the heavy toll of shipping which the triple alliance is taking. When we talk about invasion across water out of the first things we must think about is ships—a great numbers. I'm afraid a lot of critics have been overlooking that in demanding immediate invasion of the continent.

Winterville Department.
Last Saturday there were quite a host of applicants for examination for the different rural route carriers from this point. Now that the applications have been sent to the department many are the anxious hearts awaiting the result of that day's trying ordeal. Only two can secure a plum.

The question was asked us Tuesday in Greenville "as Winterville was such a growing, prosperous town didn't we expect the court house to be moved here?" Our answer was "We had heard it suggested as advisable to hold the different political conventions as well as other meetings of note here and we didn't know as a result the court house might follow."

April 12 is designated by the denomination as "Christian Education Day" and Dr. Boyd will preach on the subject, "The Student's Faith." Text John VI:68 and Matt. 11:29. All East Carolina Teachers College students are most cordially invited to be present.

The meeting at Ayden will close with the night service Sunday when Dr. Boyd will preach the closing sermon on "The Inspiration of Sonship." Sunday afternoon preaching services will be held at Hollywood school house, and Sunday night Rev. L. C. Carter will preach at Meadowbrook Chapel, following the young people's espers there.

Next week will be a busy week for Presbyterians. The Auxiliary circles will meet as usual in the homes on Monday at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday night prayer meeting will be held at Meadowbrook in the chapel at 8 o'clock. At 11 a. m., Tuesday, Albemarle presbytery will convene at Pinetops church and Dr. Boyd will preach the opening sermon. There will be no prayer meeting at the First Church Wednesday night. On Thursday at 10:30 a. m., Albemarle Presbytery will convene in the church, Mrs. R. C. Deal is local president of the Auxiliary which is host, and all arrangements have been made for a busy session for two days. Local papers will carry detailed announcements of the meeting.

Dr. Boyd, Rev. Clyde Carter and Mr. A. E. Gibson plan to attend the meeting of the presbytery, besides an elder who will officially represent the church, and make the report on the year's work.

Helen Jepson To Sing Here.
Helen Jepson, the glamorous grand opera and concert soprano, will give a concert at East Carolina Teachers College on the evening of April 24.

This is the final attraction in the series of six entertainments offered this season, and is included in the season ticket.

Miss Jepson has been a great favorite at every stage of her career, not only as the star singing the roles of the great heroines of opera, or as concert singer filling the halls in cities across the continent, but also as radio singer, and on the screen. At the beginning of her career she was soloist with Paul Whiteman's orchestra, and earlier still, she headed a quartette as Chautauqua "talent."

Her lovely lyric soprano voice and her artistic musicianship make her one of the great concert singers of the day. Added to these she has beauty of the golden blonde type, charming personality and stage presence, and rare good taste in dress.

Healthy and Wise

Even the littlest Girl Scouts, who are seven to ten years old, know what foods they should eat to be healthy. These Brownie Scouts, with the help of their leader, are making a poster to show their schoolmates how to choose good food—with plenty of vitamins.

Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, Mrs. J. B. James and Mrs. Walter Harrington have large trees now in full bloom. Lovely too is the wisteria in many places. Mrs. P. E. Wells on Seventh street, has it blooming in abundance on fences and trees.

Iris is particularly lovely in the front garden of Mrs. T. E. Hooker and at the side and rear of Mrs. Van Fleming's home. In both gardens the walk and drives are bordered with a wealth of blue phlox, pansies, candytuft and other low-growing flowers. These may be seen from the street. Across Fifth a street from Mrs. Hooker's is a mass of flaming azaleas and candytuft grown to perfection by Mrs. L. A. Stroud.

Other azaleas which may be enjoyed in passing are the brilliant varieties which Mrs. Heber Forbes has combined so effectively with boxwood and the soft shades of rose and pink which Mrs. Jesse Smith has edged with blue phlox and which grow lovelier every year.

On East Fourth street are exquisite low borders of mixed spring flowers in front of the home of Mrs. W. J. Cowell, Mrs. Bob Harrington, Mrs. C. B. Rowlette and Mrs. Luther Bowling. Other low borders are on East Eighth street at Mrs. F. A. Jordan's and in front of Mrs. W. F. Young's terrace.

Mrs. J. N. Hart combines low border plantings with flowering shrubs and Mrs. L. C. Skinner's garden is charming with wisteria, iris, azaleas and other bright flowers against a restful green background.

The above list is far from complete—just a few of the places which make "Our Greenville" a good place in which to live.

Our Farm Folks
VERONA LEE JOYNER, H. D. A. EDNA KIRBY, Assistant

Home Demonstration club members throughout the county have planted Victory Gardens, and soon will be canning the surplus products. Each year from now on a recipe on food preservation will be given in this article. Club members who have recipes they would like to have published may send them to the Home Demonstration office.

This recipe on Strawberry Preserves was sent in by Mrs. Fenner Allen of the Red Oak club. Don't forget to try it when your strawberries ripen.

2 quarts berries (3 lbs.); 6 cups sugar (3 lbs.).

Cover berries with boiling water for two minutes. Drain quickly and add 4 cups of sugar. Boil two minutes after entire mass is boiling. Remove from fire and after all bubbling has stopped, add two more cups of sugar and boil five minutes. Pour into shallow pans and let stand overnight. Next morning pack the cold preserves into the hot sterilized jars and process five minutes at simmering point and seal immediately.

Ballard's H. D. Club
The regular monthly meeting of the Ballard's Home Demonstration club was held at the home of Mrs. P. J. Elks, with 23 members present, one member and two visitors, Mrs. Marvin Blount and Mrs. Martin of Greenville.

Turnage, then presented Mrs. H. D. Moyer and Mrs. L. R. Jones, who gave most interesting book reviews from the approved readings of the Home Demonstration club.

The program "My Clothing Needs" was presented by Miss Joyner, the home agent, and Mrs. J. H. Moore, clothing leader. Mrs. Moore displayed a most attractive wardrobe for a Home Demonstration club member.

At the conclusion of the program the hostess conducted a contest with Mrs. E. D. Moge winning the prize. Delicious refreshments were served during the social hour by the hostess, Mrs. Elks and Mrs. L. R. Jones.

GREENVILLE

—Robert Browning.

The advancing spring brings us new beauty with each succeeding week and the sense of stability brought by growing things that we so sorely need in these days. Next week we shall have the pleasure of visiting some lovely Greenville gardens in any part of our city will provide much pleasure and inspiration.

Dogwood has never been lovelier than this year when it is blooming in profusion on the college campus and on our many streets and yards in town. A single tree of outstanding beauty may be seen on Mrs. S. J. Everitt's lawn while its broad and low white branches make charming contrast with the lavender and gold of wisteria and kerria framing the porch.

Pink dogwood is always beautiful.

It is not the government which is short on merchandise and has a well-filled till but rather our business men and investors. The $70,000,000,000 in bank deposits in the country belong not to the government but to the individuals. The business man is oversold, not the government. We all know that Washington has been spending far more money than it has gainfully received from taxes, revenue duties, and other sources. It will take considerable time to raise sufficient funds to anywhere near balance expenditures and income. Hence, our government, but not necessarily our business men and investors, will continue operating upon a deficit basis.

Appropriation And Debt.
Since September, 1939, when the war got under way, Congress has appropriated 170 billion dollars for armament and other purposes. Of course, not all of this has been spent. Furthermore, receipts have been secured from tax payments and other sources which have paid about 50 per cent of the amounts actually expended so far. In this connection, March income tax receipts permitted the budget to be balanced temporarily. Now, however, greater deficits than heretofore will shortly follow.

Our national debt is crossing the old 65 billion limit. By the end of the calendar year it will probably be 80 billion. The debt will continue to rise and will ultimately reach much higher figures. Many feel that we are headed for financial bankruptcy and ruin. "Why not ultimately write it all off through bankruptcy proceedings and start all over again with a new set of books?"—they ask.

Government Bonds Safe.
There is a vast difference between the bankruptcy of an individual and that of a government. Many honorable men have been forced over into bankruptcy by causes over which they had no control. Faith among individuals in society is not disturbed under such circumstances. It would, however, be very wrong for our people to declare their government bankrupt and wipe out its debt that way. Regardless of the power of the government or the weakness of the minorities who are its creditors, this should not be judicially honored. In fact, creditors seldom want repayment when repayment is possible. They prefer to remain invested in such sound securities. If the interest rate continues to remain low, the debt can easily be met for years to come. Hence, holders of government securities should not be fearful of the intrinsic worth of their investments.

Sales Tax Coming.
The present rate at which taxpayers' money is being spent does not mean that the debt cannot be reduced after the war ends. Following the close of the war, the budget can be balanced if the party in power truly desires to do so. My reason for this is not alone that armament spending will decline. The point is that we will continue to be taxed somewhat upon a war basis long after actual hostilities are over. This means that a surplus should pile up. In time this could equal and surpass the national debt at the beginning of the war.

The government will continue during the war to spend much more than it takes in. To shorten the deficit period, Congress is now considering a new tax bill far heavier than anything we or any other country has ever known. Washington is sound in seeking new tax sources, which—unlike the inheritance and high income taxes—are not destroying our seed corn. I believe that an honest sales tax is the answer.

For a federal or state government to depend wholly on a sales tax would be very unfair to people with small incomes. A sales tax—however—super-imposed on present income taxpayers is not unfair to those who pay no income taxes. In fact, such a sales tax could be more of a hardship on those who are also paying high income taxes in addition.

Spectators inspect the wreckage of a plane which collided with another in mid-air over the Hialeah suburb of Miami, Fla., killing five persons. One falling plane struck a dwelling house and damaged it. The other ship crashed on the lawn of another house. Occupants of both homes escaped injury. The victims were Lieut. Don Kenneth Jorcs, Jr., of Chicago, and his bride, the former Joan Wert of Ames, Iowa, who had rented one plane for an Easter ride; and William J. Britton, Jr., son of the former world's welterweight boxing champion; Laurence Hartzell of Bryn Mawr, Pa., and H. M. Carruthers of Miami.

The Tirpitz put to sea last month but returned when attacked by British planes. This picture was cabled from London.

Strength FOR THE DAY By EARL L. DOUGLAS

IT'S GOOD FOR US ALL. Franco's Fascism tells us in one of his historical works that the chiefs of the Hurons were induced from time to time to assemble in the house of the Jesuit missionaries, who explained to them the principal points of their doctrine and invited them to discussions. The Indians would often interrupt the missionaries with such expressions as "Good" or "That is true." But when they were urged to adopt the faith, to which they so readily gave their approval, they always made the same reply: "It is good for the French," they said, "but we are another people, with different customs."

They are perfectly willing to admit that religion is good for the French, or for the Chinese, or for the man who is down and out. But can we be sure that if religion is good for the French, it is good for the Hurons; if it benefits the down-and-out, it will also benefit the saint; if it is good for the wife and kids, it is good for us all. MAYBE According to reports of the District of Columbia Alcoholic Board of Control, taxes were paid on the sale of 373,055 gallons of liquor and wines during the month of December. Maybe it's the strain of war on the nerves of Washingtonians or maybe on the other hand, the folks in the nation's capital are not devoting as much time to the war effort as many of us thought they were.

A FINE SPIRIT The attendance at last night's Kiwanis minstrel filled the Austin auditorium at the college to overflowing and large numbers were turned away because there was not even standing room. This was the largest crowd we have ever witnessed at any home talent performance in this city, which calls for congratulations to the local Kiwanians for doing things in a big way. Congratulations are also in order for those in attendance, for the part they played in creating a larger Kiwanis fund for underprivileged children in this community. To our way of thinking the affair was a huge success.

ELECTION TIME COMING We agree heartily with Carl Goerch in the following editorial published in this week's issue of the State magazine: "Members of Congress are coming up for re-election. Before very long the people of America will be going to the polls and will decide whether to retain those members who are now in office or whether to send new ones to represent them in the national capital. "The kind of men we want in Congress are those who will see to it (1) that an end is put to strikes in defense projects; (2) that all wartime profiteering is blocked before it can get started; (3) that every energy be concentrated in winning this war and that needless expenditures will be discarded.

Those are three highly important points. We hope that our people will keep them in mind when they go to the polls to nominate and elect the men who make our laws in Washington."

Know Your Neighbor

One of a series descriptive of our neighbor nations prepared by the Pan American Union for the information of students participating in the 1942 Inter-American Student Forum, and/or their parents, teachers and friends.

HAITI—"MOUNTAINOUS ISLAND" Next-door neighbor to the United States, Haiti is the only French-speaking republic in America, is a land of a thousand farms. Jutting from the Caribbean about 50 miles to the southeast of Cuba is the mountainous tropical island of Hispaniola. Here is where Columbus first set foot in the New World. The island is shared by Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

wealth was but a scant five years away. The story of Haiti's struggle for liberty is one of the most stirring, as well as one of the most tragic of all the romances of the rise of free nations in the New World. Through it runs the name of a national hero, Toussaint Louverture; and second only to Louverture, the name of Jean Jacques Dessalines, then First Consul, out ragged, sent a powerful expedition of troops and warships under command of his brother-in-law, General LeClerc. After a number of fierce battles the colonists were defeated and Louverture, captured through treachery, was sent to France, to die in prison, in 1803.

The Haitians of today, after nearly 150 years, are still building from the devastation of two wars for independence in which extensive irrigation systems were destroyed and farm lands laid waste. Steadily, as a sovereign state, the nation moves not only toward a production such as the "Queen of the Antilles" once yielded to France, but looks forward, and with reason, to the day when its products, greater and more varied, as farm methods advance under a long-range plan, will far surpass all previous achievements.

SOMETHING THAT WASN'T FUNNY

To the Editor: Raising money for underprivileged children is one thing, but raising money by lowering morals is quite another, which is false economy by any standard. It is my pleasure to contribute to the underprivileged youth of our city, but the means whereby it was done was a distinct displeasure. After all, may it not be reasonable to believe that the underprivileged children of Greenville were the ones financially able to attend the vulgar fifth presented by a community service club. Let us in Christian forbearance keep from casting stones upon people who are not responsible, but someone should answer for the disgrace.

My voice is that of a minister that hopes to express the best conscience of the public. Personally, I make no professions to puritanism, realizing that self-righteousness is one of the worst of sins. But in the name of the Church of Jesus Christ, I do not believe that He who is the Head of the Church could stand with open arms at such a gathering and say, "Suffer the little children to come unto me." If that is where the privileged children are to go, one can only wonder where those underprivileged children are and where they ought to go. If you really want to help them, one would dare venture a minority opinion that the better place for them would be in Sunday School and Church Worship.

The WAR TODAY (Continued from Page One) ping—a lack which has been hampering operations the world over. Our entrance into the war has increased difficulties in this respect immediately. Not only do we have the growing depredations by the Nazis, Italians and Japanese, but the coming of the battle of the Pacific has multiplied Allied commitments and the length of sea communications. When we stop to consider that a convoyed vessel can make only three or four round trips in a year to the Orient from our west coast or from England, we begin to see what a strain both America and Britain are under. So thus far the Allies haven't had enough ready boats to stage an invasion, even if they had been prepared otherwise. And it must be remembered that it would require a huge fleet to get troops, equipment and continuing supplies across the English channel. And an armada would be necessary to blast open the way, and the Anglo-American naval fleets have been too busy with long-distance convoys for any concerted action like invasion. Then there is another point, it would be a terrific risk for the United States and Britain to mass their fleets, or any considerable portion of them, for the purposes of invasion now. Should things go badly, they might lose enough warships to throw control of the seas into the Axis pocket, to say nothing of giving the Japs run of the ocean while we were busy with the operation.

Thus we see that full-dress invasion of western Europe probably would be the most difficult and dangerous operation which could be undertaken. However, there is another area of inestimable strategic importance which must be manned by the Allies—that is, Syria, Iraq and Iran. From this middle eastern gasp help could be fed to the Russians through the Caucasus. And should Hitler break down through the caucasus, or by-pass Turkey in an effort to get into Syria, the Allied forces would be in position to block him.

Both British and American ships can reach the Persian Gulf via the Cape of Good Hope over the long haul and, believe it or not, it would be far easier to move a fully equipped army from England to the middle east over that 14,000 mile route, than to try to put the same army ashore across the 20 miles of English channel.

Track Meet and Baseball Make Up Program

Raleigh, April 11 (AP) — Baseball will be just one morsel today in a veritable banquet of spring sports.

N. C. State College plays host to South Carolina, Wake Forest goes to Tarboro to take on Elmira of the Eastern League, and the University of North Carolina faces the James Knitters in Winston-Salem.

The scheduled game between Duke University and the Lancaster, Pa., nine of the Inter-State League, to have been played today in Oxford, was called off because the playing field resembled a pig wallow rather than a ball diamond last night.

Other courses on today's athletic menu are two track meets, one in Raleigh between State and the University of Richmond; and the other in Chapel Hill, between the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia.

And in non-varsity sports, there will be a freshman baseball game between State and Carolina at Chapel Hill, and at Durham, about 14 high schools will participate in a scholastic track meet sponsored by Duke.

Getting back to baseball — the University of North Carolina is indeed fortunate to still rank as an undefeated baseball team.

The Tar Heels took their fifth straight yesterday by defeating Davidson, 4-2, but it wasn't exactly their fault that they beat the Wildcats.

If that doesn't make sense, may this will.

Ed Lucas had pitched masterful ball for eight innings, holding the Chapel Hill batsmen to two scattered hits, one of which was a powerful home run by Dub Johnson in the fourth. In the meantime, the Wildcats had backed him up by scoring two runs and what appeared to be the necessary victory margin.

In the last stanza, however, Lucas must have felt sorry for his opponents, who seemed destined to end their victory streak. Ed proceeded to walk the first two batters to face him, then threw a single to Lewis Hayworth, and on the same play made a wild throw to second base, giving Carolina two runs and the ball game.

Valdina Orphan Is Derby Threat

By J. H. ANDERSON
Lexington, Ky., April 11 (AP) — The Kentucky Derby has another threat from deep in the heart of Texas.

He is Emerson F. Woodward's big, mud-running colt, Valdina Orphan, which came from behind to beat nine other derby eligibles over six furlongs at Keeneland track yesterday.

The victory, the second by a Valdina farms derby nominee in two days at Keeneland, showed the Texas stable packs a one-two punch Woodward's Hollywood won easily Thursday, also in the mud.

Woodward's two other derby horses, Bounders, and Valdina Alpha, haven't performed here yet.

Woodward was cautious with comment on his colt's victory yesterday and declined to compare Valdina Orphan with his other derby eligibles.

"I don't want to say anything I might have to take back," he explained.

Altogether, 15 derby candidates displayed their wares at Keeneland yesterday in three races and Hal Price Headley's Anticlimax was the only other one to chalk up a triumph.

Valdina Orphan's time was 1:14 and Anticlimax's was 1:15 2-5.

will be the ball players watched most today as the St. Louis Browns and St. Louis Cardinals open the two-day city series. They are Stan Musial, Cardinal left fielder, and Junior Stephens, the Browns' shortstop.

Chicago — The Chicago Cubs, needing victories today and tomorrow to win the spring city series with the Chicago White Sox, called on Bill Lee to pitch today's game. Manager Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox chose Johnny Rigney.

Boston — Managers of the Boston Red Sox and Boston Braves hoped for good weather today for the start of their annual two-game-49 series since both teams have been forced into idleness the past few days.

Cleveland — Cleveland fans were out today to get their first look at Les Fleming and Oris Hockett, two Nashville graduates expected to give the Indians the batting punch which has been sorely lacking the last few years.

Washington — Big Jack Wilson will pitch for the Washington Nationals today against the Philadelphia Phillies, making his first Washington appearance since he was acquired from the Boston Red Sox last winter.

Dayton, O. — Idle for two days, the Detroit Tigers hoped the weather would permit today's exhibition with the Cincinnati Reds. Rookie Hal White, the young right-hander Detroit expects to be a winner this year, was named to start on the mound.

Wichita, Kas. — While the Pittsburgh Pirates was looking good on their exhibition tour, winning 18 out of 25 games, Manager Frankie Frisch is anxious to see how his youngsters will stand up against "tough competition." In this class he placed the Brooklyn Dodgers, St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds.

Cleveland — Carl Hubbell and Bill McGee will pitch for the New York Giants against the Cleveland Indians today if the two teams get to resume their exhibition series, which has been interrupted by weather conditions for four straight days.

Washington — Johnny Podgajny bespectacled right-hand pitcher to which has been interrupted by weather conditions for four straight days.

Secret Orders

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

Yesterday, Stephanie Merrill has wrecked her car on her way to dinner at her Aunt Allison's from her Red Cross work in San Francisco. Indirectly, the crash leads to her meeting two men—Capt. Kurt Knudsen of the Air Corps, and Henri de la Pagerie, who is a slick customer, and not entirely right in Stephanie's eyes. Now she finds she is to meet Captain Knudsen again at a dance—and is excited, and yet a little afraid.

Chapter Three
Revelry by Night

"Captain Kurt Knudsen is among those present," Vicki whispered excitedly later as the two girls met in the silver and blue powder room. "So that makes the evening complete, does it?" Stephanie shrugged off her wrap. Out of Vicki's long ermine-trimmed velvet cape, rather.

"But definitely," Vicki looked like something a modiste might have dreamed up in a long scarlet coat, lavishly gold-braided. "I've made Bill promise to introduce me and—"

"And the rest will be easy," Vicki's laugh rippled after her as she led the way down the stairs. "Hope you're right, angel."

Stephanie smiled grimly. She was right. She paused at the landing, looked down to where Henri de la Pagerie stood waiting for her. And for a moment she was sorely tempted to flee via some back stairway. Then she saw Kurt, his blond head towering over most of the others. She moved swiftly down the stairs, smiled as Henri guided her toward the ballroom.

The party was very gay tonight. Most of the Mayfair Club dances were fun. But tonight most of the men were in uniform and the gleam of polished leather, the alchemy of well-fitted uniforms brewed heady excitement. And straight out of Freshman English, she suddenly replete, does it?" Stephanie shrugged off her wrap. Out of Vicki's long ermine-trimmed velvet cape, rather.

And for a moment she was sorely tempted to flee via some back stairway. Then she saw Kurt, his blond head towering over most of the others. She moved swiftly down the stairs, smiled as Henri guided her toward the ballroom.

The party was very gay tonight. Most of the Mayfair Club dances were fun. But tonight most of the men were in uniform and the gleam of polished leather, the alchemy of well-fitted uniforms brewed heady excitement. And straight out of Freshman English, she suddenly remembered:

"There was a sound of revelry by night
And Belgium's capital had gathered then
Her Beauty and her Chivalry and bright
The lamps shone o'er fair women and brave men."
That had been the night before Waterloo, before the fair women had had to send their brave men into a hideous battle.

"War is Ugly" Henri reproached her as he guided her smoothly through the maze of dancing couples. "May I not share them?"

"I was thinking how sure we all are that war can't happen here," she said, still watching the doorway where Kurt Knudsen stood.

"War is ugly, but—" Henri shrugged a characteristic Gallic gesture of futility, "sometimes it is necessary. And it has some compensations, you know."

Stephanie shook her head. "I can't think of anything that would compensate for the life of a single one of these boys."

"You Americans are most surely the pacifists, are you not?" Henri laughed quietly.

But Stephanie didn't hear him. Because Kurt had recognized her, flashed her a smile that sent a tide of warm color flooding into her cheeks.

A moment later, Kurt tapped Henri's shoulder. "Sorry, may I cut in?"

"Oh, look here, Captain, I've only just begun—" Henri protested.

But Stephanie had already transferred her hand to Kurt's shoulder. Smiling, she felt his arm go around her, his step guide hers easily into the pattern of the music.

"Well," he grinned down at her. "Been saving any more dogs since I last saw you?"

Still not trusting her tongue, Stephanie only shook her head.

His blue eyes searched her face a moment. "Still sore at me for not leaving you out on that windy hill-top?"

"No, of course not. I'm—just surprised to see you—here."

"Do you suppose I'd be safe if I asked why?"

She slanted a smile at him. "Since when have you worried about being safe? I thought you loved the bright face of danger."

"But danger hasn't got big brown eyes and a cute little nose that goes up in the air when she's mad. Nor a pretty pink dress either," he approved, holding her off a little so he could look down at her. "I don't like women in uniforms."

"You mean, you don't like women," she amended, feeling her cheeks unfurl scarlet banners under his glance.

"Oh, now listen." He drew her close again. "Let's go have a drink on that." And then, moments later as he lifted the tall frosted glass, "Here's to—friendship."

Stephanie nodded, echoed, "To friendship," and sipped her drink.

Friendship
Friendship, of course. Why not? With other boys she'd known, she'd insisted on mere friendship. Love wasn't to be tried on like a new hat with every season. Falling in love wasn't something you did more than once. A long way off in the future.

But when she met his eyes across the top of her glass a moment later, she wasn't sure.

She was certain it wasn't after the next long dance. Kurt still laughed at her, teased her, and kept withdrawing his real self out of reach. As if he deliberately drew an invisible line and said "this far and no farther." He gave her only occasional glimpses of the real Kurt as if by accident. Glimpses of his deep-seated passion for flying, of his long, thrilling hours in the air, of his deep loyalty to freedom and to honor and to courage.

"No wonder you are such a wonderful pilot," she thought aloud. "Anyone who loves it the way you do, aren't you ever afraid?"

"Sure. Sometimes," he confessed honestly. "But not often and not for long. I'd be more afraid if I thought there was a chance I couldn't fly. You start really living when you're winged under you."

And gravity evaporated with his quick smile, "this isn't entertaining you with bright quips and sallies. Pardon me while I thumb through my stock of brilliant conversations."

When she boarded the train, after fleeing from her cousin's house, she had had a few moments of misgivings about returning to her childhood home, but the friendship begun that snowy day on the train was culminated when Cameron spoke his heart on Christmas and Astra realized anew that through all her adventures and unhappiness a supreme wisdom had guided her.

cooperation during the year and said that in spite of the curtailing of several activities this had been the best year of work.

Miss I. M. Donnell, Jeanes teacher, made some remarks and explained some closing plans. She thanked the group for such splendid work and cooperation. She announced that because of the shortage of trees there would be no Field Day, Commencement Day, nor seventh grade graduation program. The closing programs will be confined to the local schools. Miss Donnell suggested that each school hold a community day and place on exhibit the work done during the year, and emphasized the physical education program and better foods in the schools. A short report of the State Teachers' Association meeting in Winton-Salem was made, and because of the eighth grade being placed in the elementary school there will be no seventh grade graduation this year. The twelfth grade was discussed by Mr. Conley and Mr. Suggs.

A financial report was made and $25 was given to the Bethel school. Recently the teachers gave $10 to the Carver library and a letter of thanks was read from the library board.

The meeting adjourned to go on an inspection of the classrooms of the new Bethel school.

R. A. F. Bombers Blast Germans

London, April 11.—(AP)—With hundreds of tons of heavy caliber bombs and "countless" incendiaries, British planes spread destruction again through Germany's industrial sections in the Ruhr last night, Air Ministry sources announced today.

The great Krupp armament works were the principal targets of the raids which were reported to have been "as heavy" as any of the two previous assaults on the Ruhr this week.

Sub Activity Increases

Berlin From German Broad-casts, April 11.—(AP)—A special announcement said today that, since a report of April 8, German U-boats had sunk 12 merchant ships, including four large tankers, off the east coast of Africa.

The high command said the ships totaled 94,000 tons.

"An average toll of four ships a day was implied. Adolf Hitler's headquarters announced April 8 that German submarines had sunk 16 vessels totaling 104,000 tons in continued attacks on United States and British shipping, 13 off the American coast and the remainder off Africa."

India Rejects . . .

They resented what they understood to be the attitude of the American press toward the failure to reach an accord on independence. Many Indians said they regarded the American attitude as patronizing.

Remarks that "America wants to step into India economically" have been heard widely, along with increasing talk of a new American imperialism based on commercial supremacy.

The historic mission of Sir Stafford failed when the all-India congress party, potent voice of the Hindu majority and the Moslem league, strongest spokesman for the 700,000 minority Moslems, declared London's terms unacceptable.

With the Japanese threat to India increasing daily the British offer envisioned post-war dominion status and greater autonomy for India in return for full and immediate support of the British war effort.

At a press conference, the British emissary said that although Britain and China had failed in their negotiations there was a "large and very important area of agreement" as to the future freedom of India.

In announcing that the plan which he had brought to India was withdrawn Cripps said that the status of India reverted to what it was before he came here.

This organization which was formed in 1940 is composed of safety engineers from various industries and utilities as well as from the insurance field, and has interested itself in the promotion of safety programs throughout the state.

Mr. Martin Swartz of Greenville, who is a charter member of the organization was host to the membership last night, and after a delightful shad dinner, with all the trimmings, the members were given a cordial welcome.

By Mayor B. E. Stagg, with response on behalf of the safety organization by Mr. F. M. Culver of Charlotte.

Following the dinner the regular business session of the society was held, after which Mr. R. A. Lentz of Salisbury presented a splendid paper on the Responsibility of Management for Safety, and the importance of active management participation in any safety program was stressed.

Beleaguered . . .

A review of the official reports shows a continuing toll in Japanese planes, ships, supplies and men. The main results were that the great Japanese force which otherwise might have tried to invade Australia was held on Luzon, and that the invaders have been denied the use of the Manila harbor—finest in the western Pacific.

The defenders reported destruction of nearly 200 enemy planes, a high percentage of them heavy bombers. American forces sank a battleship and at least six other large ships, severely damaged at least five other vessels, destroyed large concentrations of Japanese supplies in sudden vicious raids, and killed and wounded enormous numbers of the invading troops.

The first communique of the war, issued by the War Department on October 10, told of American pilots scoring direct hits on three enemy transports, one of which capsized and sank immediately, and damaging three others as the Japanese began their landing operations in Lingayen gulf. The same day, although not announced by the department until the third communique of the war, Capt. Collin Kelly sank the battleship Haruna off the north coast, losing his life in the action.

Other ships were sunk and damaged off the southern islands before destruction of their bases forced the transfer of MacArthur's bombers to Java and Australia. Long after they were gone, Lieut. John D. Bulkeley took a navy torpedo boat inside Subic bay and sent at least two 5,000-ton enemy ships to the bottom. In one of the most spectacular episodes of the three-month battle on Bataan, the four remaining pursuit planes of MacArthur's air force were rigged up as bombers and sank three large enemy transports and two 100-ton launches in Subic bay.

Soviets Claim . . .

While American reports have never acknowledged a formal surrender of Gen. Wainwright's defenders, Domei asserted that a Maj. Gen. E. B. King, described as commander of American forces in Bataan, approached Japanese lines in a small open car displaying a white flag on the morning of April 9.

"The American officer revealed that he had been dispatched by American headquarters. . . and his aide, Lieut. Col. E. P. William, chief of staff, subsequently produced a written formal surrender." Domei asserted.

"The Japanese commander, however, refrained from giving a definite answer to the American officers."

Burma—A new British withdrawal on the vital Irrawaddy river front guarding the rich central Burma oil fields, was indicated by a British communique reporting a skirmish in the vicinity of Nyaung-U. Nyaung-U is 18 miles north of Thavetmyo, where the British were last reported holding a line and 58 miles above Promye, which fell to numerically superior Japanese columns last week.

By this account, the invaders were now less than 50 miles away from the big Yenangyaung oil fields, chief source of China's oil supplies.

Australia—Allied bombers renewing the assault on Japanese bases north of Australia carried out another successful raid on the air-drome at Koepang, enemy-occupied capital of Dutch Timor island in the Dutch East Indies.

Returning pilots said they left big fires raging at the flying field.

Views Russia . . .

Philadelphia, April 11.—(AP)—The United Nations, says Maxim M. Litvinoff, can crush Hitler and win the war only on the battlefields of Russia—not by blockade or bombardment of German towns.

The Soviet ambassador, in an address before the American Academy of Political Science last night declared the Allies should use their united efforts to defeat Hitler in Russia, "on the only front where this is now possible."

"The Red army has shown that these (German) divisions can be beaten, driven back and destroyed," he said.

"Victory may be long in coming if one state has to exhaust its major forces in today's military operations, while another harbors them for possible operations at some indefinite time in the future."

Escapes Tell . . .

"Filipino and American troops of this war-ravaged, blood stained peninsula have laid down their arms," the announcer said.

"The soldiers listened in reverent silence.

"With heads bowed but unbowed, they have yielded to the superior force and numbers of the enemy." The radio continued.

We remained silent, listening, but we also could hear the firing which we now knew was the end of the valiant fight on Bataan.

While much has been said of these Filipinos and Americans and their leaders fighting on Bataan, those who have seen them in action hope to be able some day to inform the world to the fullest of their performance which, with pen-dipped blood wrote unequalled pages of heroic history.
