Jap Action Foreshadows Greater Attack To Come

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER Washington, June 5.—(AP)—American and Japanese fleet units apparently were engaged today in one of the greatest battles of the Pacific as a result of the enemy's attempt yesterday to raid the strongly-garrisoned United States outpost on Midway Island.

Commenting on the communique issued at Pearl Harbor early today by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, naval experts here emphasized that Nimitz had said "attacks on the enemy are continuing."

It was the first time that Japanese battleships have been reported east of home waters.

There was no immediate indication here whether a major portion of the enemy fleet was involved, but observers agreed that the presence of so large a force more than 1,000 miles from Yokohama indicated the Japanese were bent on reducing America's growing offensive power in the Pacific and possibly bringing the war within threatening distance of the west coast.

Americans Damage Jap Battleship, Carrier And Possibly Others; Battle May Be Fought To Finish For Possession Of Most Western U. S. Outpost

Honolulu, June 5.—(AP) American defenders, spurred by initial successes, closed battle today with a strong Japanese sea-air task force in what may be a finish fight for possession of Midway Island.

Already the island garrison had scored hits on an enemy battleship, an aircraft carrier and possibly other war vessels. Raiding planes were brought down in great number.

And, said Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, "our attacks on the enemy are continuing."

Presence of capital ships in the attacking force and the heavy toll the defenders were able to exact in the first few hours of the operation suggested the enemy was at hand with the sole purpose of taking over the island, completely and finally.

And Midway, with the tradition of Wake Island as its guide, was obviously in no mind to let the issue go by default.

The Admiral's communique indicated the Americans' first success was achieved at little cost to themselves. He reported that damage to materiel and installations on the island, 1,140 miles northwest of Hawaii, was minor.

"No reports of personnel casualties were received," the communique added.

Nor did the Admiral clarify which units of the United States defenders delivered the telling blows against the Jap battleship and carrier.

"The attack was repulsed by local defenders in which all armed services are represented," he said, indicating that marine, sea and air forces were in action.

The Admiral's communique told this terse story: "At 6:30 a. m. today (Thursday), Midway Island, that island was heavily raided by Japanese carrier-based planes. The attack was repulsed by local defenders in which all armed services are represented. A heavy toll of attacking planes was taken. Damage to materiel and installations on Midway were reported minor. No reports of personnel casualties were received."

Thompson-Thigpen. This morning at half after ten o'clock, the Eighth Street Christian Church was the scene of a lovely wedding, when Miss Margaret Louise Thigpen was married to Mr. Reuben Dickerson Thompson, III, of Richmond, Va. The vows were spoken before the Reverend William A. Ryan, pastor of the bride.

The altar was decorated with tall standards of white gladioli, lilies, combined with palms and plumosa fern in the background. Ivory tapers in tall cathedral standards of seven-branched candelabra burned on either side of the flowers.

As the wedding guests were assembling, a program of nuptial music was played by Miss Marie Smith. Included in the organ selections were "At Dawning," by Cadman; "June" from Barcarolle by Tschalkowsky; "Liebestraum," by Liszt, and "Evening Star" from Wagner's Tannhauser.

Immediately preceding the ceremony, Mrs. George Leonard Mann of New Bern, sang "Because," by d'Hardelot, and "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs Bond, with Miss Smith at the console.

For the recessional, Miss Smith played Wagner's Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin," and for the recessional Mandelstam's Wedding March from "Midsummer Night's Dream." During the ceremony "Elizabeth's Prayer" by Wagner, was softly played.

Miss Smith wore a light blue jersey dress, blue hat and a shoulder corsage of sweetpeas. Mrs. Mann was dressed in a white jersey dress, a green hat, and her corsage was of sweetpeas.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Claude Luther Thigpen, wore a lovely navy and Alice blue dress. Its graceful skirt had the new front fullness achieved by altering. The sweetheart neck, self belt and set in midriff all added tasteful touches. A navy veil fell from her large off-the-face Alice blue hat. Her bouquet was of white bridal roses and orchids. The orchids were later taken from her bouquet and used for traveling.

Miss Frances Thigpen of Washington, D. C., attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a becoming dress of yellow jersey and a white off-the-face hat. She carried an arm bouquet of garden flowers with contrasting ribbon.

Preceding the bride was the little ringbearer, Master Charles Edward Broughton, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Broughton, Jr., of Durham. He wore a white suit and carried the ring in a Regale lily.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Joel E. Thompson, as best man. The ushers were J. T. Windham, of Farmville, George Morgan and Jack E. Nokes of Greenville, and Tom W. Graves of Wilson.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Claude Luther Thigpen and the late Mr. Thigpen of Greenville. After attending the Greenville high school and East Carolina Teachers College, where she received her A. B. degree, she entered the teaching profession and for the past three years has been a member of the faculty of the Farmville city schools. She is popular among a wide circle of friends and has been entertained extensively since her engagement has been announced.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Dickerson Thompson, Jr., of Richmond, Va. He attended the Wilson high school and the University of North Carolina. For several years he has been connected with the Imperial Tobacco Company.

For the wedding, Mrs. Thigpen, mother of the bride, wore a red-rose dress of figured Soldier blue crepe with which she wore a shoulder corsage of red roses. Her accessories were white. Mrs. Thompson, mother of the groom, was attired in a navy dress and accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will be at home for the summer in Richmond.

Immediately after the rehearsal for the Thompson-Thigpen wedding last evening, Miss Frances Thigpen delightfully but informally entertained at the home of Mrs. E. B. Ferguson for members of the bridal party and out-of-town guests here for the wedding. The Ferguson home was beautifully decorated for the occasion to carry out a green and white color scheme. Vases of white gladioli, larkspur and feverfew were used in pleasing effects throughout the rooms.

As the guests arrived, they were cordially greeted by Miss Frances Thigpen, who introduced them to the receiving line consisting of Miss Thigpen, Mr. Thompson and out-of-town members of the wedding party.

The guests were directed by Miss Ann Jones of Raleigh, to the punch

Soil Program Is Strong In Pitt

Increases in conservation practices on North Carolina farms since beginning of the AAA agricultural conservation program in 1936 are shown in a report received by J. V. Taylor, chairman of the Pitt county AAA committee.

The report, issued by E. Y. Floyd, state AAA executive assistant at Raleigh, shows that during the past year 94.9 per cent of all the cropland in the state was operated under the AAA conservation program. This is a gain of 4.9 per cent over the previous year, and an increase of 25.1 per cent over the 1936-39 period.

Farmers of Pitt county placed 100 per cent of their cropland under the program last year, as compared with 97 per cent in 1940 and 72.5 per cent for the 1936-39 period.

Farmers of Pitt county placed 100 per cent of their cropland under the program last year, as compared with 97 per cent for 1940 and 72.5 per cent for the 1936-39 period. Among soil-building practices listed, the report showed that Pitt county farmers grew 6,401 acres of legumes and grasses last year as compared with 7,277 acres in 1940 and an average of 1,785 acres each year in the previous 4-year period. In addition, there were 51,986 acres of green manure crops in the county last year as compared with 40,798 acres in 1940 and 25,539 acres in the 1936-39 period. The total for the entire state last year was 1,206,008 acres of legumes and grasses, and 1,785,828 acres of green manure crops.

Use of soil-building materials in the county as shown by the report included 5,579 tons of ground limestone and 4,069 tons of 16 per cent superphosphate last year. In the previous year, 944 tons of limestone and 223.0 tons of superphosphate were spread in the county, and 57 tons of limestone and 18.2 tons of superphosphate were listed for the 1936-39 average. Figures for state show farmers used 372,919 tons of limestone and 30,598 tons of superphosphate last year.

Chairman Taylor pointed out that both limestone and phosphate are available to farmers of the county through the AAA as grant-of-aid materials without an immediate outlay of cash. Costs of the materials may be deducted from any conservation payments due the farmer at the close of the program year. Praising the conservation work carried out in the past few years, Mr. Taylor said, "the value of these practices will be demonstrated more than ever now that farmers are engaged in a race to produce the crops needed for the nation's war effort. This is our biggest job, and the fertility we have stored in the soil and the soil we have saved will show its worth."

The report also showed that no acres of land were planted in forest trees last year, and the stands of trees on 15.0 acres were improved. In the previous year, no acres were planted to forest trees and the stands on 23.0 acres were improved. The state's total of forest trees planted last year was 2,147 acres, 4,258 acres were improved as compared with an average of 893 acres planted and 1,894 acres improved in the 1936-39 period.

Also during the past year, 19.3 feet of terraces were constructed in the county as compared with 33.9 feet in 1940 and 8.6 feet per year during the county's previous 4-year period. The total amount of terraces constructed in the state last year was 14,871,600 feet, or more than 2,816 miles.

Orders Forced Labor For Netherlanders

DUTCH FAILURE TO COOPERATE DISAPPOINTING

Labor is Bottleneck in Germany's War Effort

Editor's Note: Dutchmen are "collaborating" with the East armies as enthusiastically as Hitler expected, and the German leader has ordered compulsory labor for the Netherlands, so Ernest G. Fischer, back home at the interment in Germany reports.

By ERNEST G. FISHER
New York, June 5.—(Wide World)—Hitler's big-brother attitude toward Holland after the five-day blitzkrieg of May, 1940, definitely has changed to bulldozing. And the Dutchmen are going to have to work for Hitler.

The reason the Germans give is "collaboration" with the Nazi new order as they were expected to do. One of the first overtures on the part of the Reich was the release of Dutch prisoners of war to clean up the bombing wreckage in Rotterdam and other cities in Holland. They, the Germans argued, at least had the privilege of remaining in the homeland, but the Nazi-controlled press did not consider the Dutch appreciative.

The saddest thing about the "collaboration" problem," wrote the Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger, "is that a people of Germanic origin, of our own flesh and blood, through the fatal movement of the historic events of the last 300 years, since the unfortunate peace of Westphalia of 1648, not only stood aside, but under western and northwestern influences to a frightful degree."

But the Reich, so the writer intimated, would be willing to let bygones be bygones and would accept a "wayward child" into the "new order."

Still the Dutch did not show any great desire for collaboration with the conqueror. Executions for sabotage and for harboring enemy agents didn't help matters much. After the East Indies were lost to the Japanese, the Dutch again were on the receiving end of an editorial barrage from Berlin. The Nazi newspapers told the Dutchmen that it served them right.

It is not inconceivable that Hitler's lap—at least it was the hope in many Nazi circles that the conquest of Holland had given the Reich at least a legal claim to the Dutch colonies.

But as the Japanese took one after the other of the East Indies, the German people began to ask themselves whether the three-power pact indeed had aligned them with the devil. This feeling of misapprehension, however, was suppressed by soothing statements made by Japanese Foreign Minister Togo and Prime Minister Tojo that they longed for German cooperation in development of the Indies.

In Holland the Reich's commissioner has sent orders from Berlin for all unemployed persons to register as the first step for compulsory labor for the Netherlands. Dutch workers who cannot find employment in the homeland will be sent elsewhere to work.

A stagnation of labor power cannot be tolerated today," was the Wilhelmstrasse view of the situation. This supports the view that labor definitely constitutes a bottleneck in Germany's war economy.

Of course, explained the German labor procurement officers, sending Dutchmen to work in Germany would remain on a voluntary basis—the idea of the registration was to find out just how many jobs there were in the nation.

Out of the 2,100,000 foreigners employed in greater Germany during the latter months of 1941, there were 83,000 laborers from Holland.

In addition to the Dutch workers brought to Germany, there were approximately 50,000 additional persons employed in the Reich's war industries in Holland herself. The nature of their employment was not revealed by the German statisticians, but it is safe assumption that there are arduous plants in the Netherlands.

There were another 100,000 Dutchmen who remained unemployed and had elected to remain at home and take the weekly dole in preference to working for Hitler. German sources gave the pre-war unemployment as 369,000.

UNFAIR TO LOVE

By Watkins E. Wright

Chapter 31
Kathleen's Chance
Ruby Howard, enjoying herself thoroughly, smiled at Uncle Frank.

"This," she said, "is what I call living. Really living, I mean."

Mr. Frank, refilling his paper plate and taking a place beside her, thought she looked lovely even when there was a bit of grease upon her face.

"I'm glad you like it," he said sincerely. "After all my roving about, I think it's the only way to live."

Ruby searched his face. "Did it ever occur to you that the actress, Stella, might now be ready to settle down—and enjoy this sort of life with you?" she asked.

"Yes, it has occurred to me," said Uncle Frank. "But it's too late now. I'm afraid Stella would never fit into the picture at this late day."

"I wonder," said Ruby thoughtfully. "If I could fit into it."

"You do," Uncle Frank said. "I keep thinking how well you fit in. And I keep thinking also how much like Stella you are in some ways. It's almost as though Stella had come back to me—with a lot of improvements."

"That's a queer sort of thing to say, Mr. Frank—but I like it. I'm taking it as a compliment. Do you mind?"

"Certainly not. I mean it for a compliment."

"And you still feel," Ruby continued presently, "that Kathleen should give up all thought of the stage—and live this sort of life?"

"I do," Uncle Frank replied. "Tell me frankly, straight from your heart: would you advise Kathleen to go on trying to be an actress?"

"I don't think I would," Ruby said after a moment's thought. "And yet I may feel differently about it when I see her acting."

"Meaning you are going to see her?"

It looks that way, Paul wants to give her a small part in 'Goodbye, Honey Chile!'

"Can't you keep him from doing this?"

"I could make a scene, I suppose. But it wouldn't do much good—only make everyone unhappy. Besides, since I'm encouraging Joe to write me a play, I am scarcely in a position where I can criticize Paul for encouraging Kathleen."

We Shall See
"No, I suppose not," said Uncle Frank. "Maybe it would be best in the long run for Kathleen to have her chance. She may be a terrific flop professionally—and, frankly, I hope and pray she will be. Then, once she's convinced she isn't cut out for the stage, she may settle down and marry Joe."

Ruby smiled, and patted Uncle Frank's hand. "We shall see what we shall see," she said cryptically.

"Maybe there's some handwriting on the wall after all," said Uncle Frank. "On the outside of the barbecue house—or some place like that."

were not staying over-night, began to leave, they did so with hearts as full of gratitude for Kathleen's sweetness as their stomachs were full of barbecued pork and all the fixings.

Kathleen now turned her attention to the people who were to be her guests until sometime the next day.

"If anyone gets hungry," she said, "there'll be sandwiches and a bowl of salad in the dining room—also the makings of iced tea."

"Hungry?" said Daisy Doran. "I feel now as though I could never again eat a bite of food."

"You'll feel differently before bedtime," said Uncle Frank. "Anyway, it's there or you."

"What time will the moon be up tonight, Uncle Frank?" Kathleen asked.

"Around nine o'clock, I think," her uncle replied.

"I'm taking Ruby, if she'll let me," said Fred. "I'll give us a chance to discuss some directing problems in next week's play."

"Very well," said Ruby, "although I wanted to get away from shop talk while I was out here."

Paul slid over beside Kathleen. "That leaves you and me," he said. "I hope you don't mind."

"Of course I don't!" said Kathleen. She glanced over to where Daisy was holding on to Joe's arm. "You two seem to have your plan all made."

"Yes," said Daisy. "Joe's going to show me how to handle a paddle." "Really?" said Ruby, not bothering to conceal the sarcasm. "Do be careful, my dear," she added, "and don't tempt Joe to handle the paddle—on you."

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

CULTIVATION REQUIRES PATIENCE

People often find it hard to realize that richness of character has to be developed precisely the same as anything else. No one would expect to become proficient as a pianist without practice. It takes years of training, also, to enter any one of the professions and then years of experience before a person becomes proficient. No one probably practices more assiduously than the juggler, the acrobat, the tap dancer.

So why should we feel that character development and spiritual perception will become realities in our lives without the most assiduous application? Many centuries ago there was a humble monk known as Brother Lawrence who practiced the presence of God until that divine presence became as real to him as the persons with whom he came in contact every day. But this took years of practice. As the musician spends endless hours practicing his scales, as the surgeon tries year after year to perfect himself in some little detail of an operation, so must he who aspires to richness of character and spiritual insight employ the technique which these things demand.

"SPARE THE DOCTOR"

"Patriotism need not be limited to such things as driving slowly and saving one's toothpaste tubes," says Medical Economics. "A 'Spare the Doctor' campaign might be promoted on similar grounds. Few people appreciate how many physicians are being siphoned off into the armed forces and how great an added burden this imposes on the doctor who remains at home. Few realize, therefore, that continued good medical service depends on helping the doctor to conserve his time. . . . The more time the doctor can save in traveling to see his patients, the more time he will have to treat them."

Thousands of doctors are being called into military service. Thousands more will be called as the Army and Navy grow. So a doctor who stays at home will have to take care of a great many more patients than in the past. The doctor will do his best. But there are only so many hours in the day, and each hour wasted means that an hour less can be given to people who really need attention.

Don't ask the doctor to make house calls when you are perfectly able to go to his office. Don't expect him to sit around and talk about extraneous matters. Don't try to turn a professional visit into a social occasion. The American people are used to the best medical service on earth—and they will continue to receive that kind of service if they give due consideration to the fact that the doctor is one of the busiest of men.

Washington Daybook

By Leo S. Brown

Washington. — There must be hardly a war industrial or military center in the country that isn't asking where is that defense housing we've heard so much about? Certainly the question is being asked here in Washington which, in spite of its staggering expansion, hasn't mushroomed like some of the villages which have become cities overnight. Defense housing has been one of the chief topics of discussion around here for well over a year, but you'll wear out good shoelather trying to find any of it.

The answer is simple enough. Defense housing is caught in that old, old log jam called priorities. Appropriations and authorizations for defense housing started shortly after the same for guns and tanks and planes. But by then it was too late.

It is only a little more than nine months ago that the old OPM issued its first authorization for 300,000 defense housing units. And it has been since that time that all the shortages in materials have become critical.

According to Sullivan W. Jones, chief of WPB housing priorities, there are between 80,000 and 110,000 housing units in the country now completed, near completion or under construction with no connections for utility services. That's because of shortages of copper wire and pipe for anything but military uses.

When the present inventories of bathtubs are gone, there won't be any more. Reinforcing steel is not available for housing. There are restrictions on fixtures, furnaces, metal windows and what-not. The lumber and wood products situation is becoming serious.

Private advisers state that the Nazi Chief has ready for action some 200 divisions of fresh troops—say in the neighborhood of two and three quarter million men. These are in addition to the million and a half who have been holding the long Russian line during the past fierce winter of Napoleonic tragedy. They are resting on new arms which have been pouring from the hard pushed factories of Germany and the occupied countries.

Then we have that vast Nazi air fleet which has been largely idle for months. Hitler apparently has his husbanding and adding to his aerial striking power for coming events. The strength of this arm of the force, of course, is not in the hands of military experts are agreed that it is a mighty force.

All this sounds formidable—and indeed it is. Any allied complacency because of recent successes certainly would be badly misplaced. The allied high command is in no way underrating Hitler's strength. He is a dangerous enemy.

What we can note with satisfaction is that drawn up against him is a Russian force which numerically is superior. Whether the Reds are equipped to withstand the mechanized German onslaught cannot be answered in advance of the event. We can say, though, that if the Russians can hold the Germans, keep them from breaking through to the resources of the Caucasus and middle east—then the allies will have Herr Hitler neatly speared on the toasting fork. In other words, the Hitlerites back and invade Germany at the juncture in order to achieve ultimate victory.

The WAR TODAY

Also a part of this broad picture, as I indicated earlier this week, is the thusfar unsuccessful but determined offensive of the Nazi Marshal Rommel in an effort to get set for a drive against Egypt and the Suez canal across the Libyan sands. That is an integral item of the Hitlerian strategy for conquering the middle east and thus reaching the supplies which Germany must have.

In short, the Nazi Fuehrer is about to strike, and his allies and henchmen are coming into action. Any day now we may expect him to launch against the Muscovites that much advertised "Spring" offensive which has been so long delayed; that summer already is edging onto the Southern Russian Steppes. We are on the verge of the conflict which bids fair to be the greatest and bloodiest of history, for upon its course depends in major degree the outcome of the entire world war, both in Europe and the Pacific.

Private advisers state that the Nazi Chief has ready for action some 200 divisions of fresh troops—say in the neighborhood of two and three quarter million men. These are in addition to the million and a half who have been holding the long Russian line during the past fierce winter of Napoleonic tragedy. wife or children, his contribution to the latter class of dependents would be $22 on a voluntary basis, and the government would add $15 for one parent, $25 for two, and $5 for a brother or sister.

A House version of this measure would provide only $40 for the wife of which the enlisted man would contribute 20, with the government providing $10 for each child.

Another provision of the Senate bill would authorize the selective service, under the President's direction, to fix the order in which registrants would be called for active service.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said this section ought to make it fairly certain that men of 30 or over who had been married before the draft would be the last to be called.

He said Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, had indicated that men would be classified and called in the following order:

- 1. Registrants unmarried or married since the draft law was enacted.
2. Men with dependent parents who would be taken care of by federal allowances.
3. Married men with no children.
4. Married men with no 30 with children.

British Smash . . .

The long battle line as a whole appeared quiet. Hitler's field headquarters said German troops gained ground in attacks on the Ukraine, Moscow and Leningrad fronts, but these were apparently only minor actions.

Madagascar — Imperial Tokyo headquarters asserted that Japanese "special" (two man) submarines had torpedoed and seriously damaged a 30,600-ton British battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class and a 5,220-ton British light cruiser of the Arethusa class in a surprise dawn attack on Diego Suarez naval base, Madagascar.

Tokyo's claim met a swift denial by the British Admiralty, which said Japanese submarines attacked the British-occupied base on May 30 but added:

There were no casualties in His Majesty's ships. British sea-borne forces captured the French colonial base, off the southeast coast of Africa, on May 7.

envy are continuing.

Broadening the fast developing Pacific war, the Midway raid followed by a day two raids of Japanese planes on Dutch Harbor Alaska.

The Midway attack was the first the Japanese had aimed at that island since Admiral Nimitz flew there last month to decorate four naval and marine officers for their bravery in previous raids. At that time he said the ground and air forces under Commander Cyril T. Simard had demonstrated a commendable efficiency of coordination.

Japan's first, and previously their heaviest, attack was made by cruisers and destroyers December 7, the same day of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

after the bombing, her bows sticking straight up through the water and surrounded by oil.

anning out over a broad area to the north of Australia, allied airmen bombed Japanese bases on Timor and New Britain and scouted as far east as the Solomon Islands, General MacArthur's headquarters announced.

The planes winged their way to Timor some 500 miles northwest of Darwin, concentrated on the airport at Koepang, capital of the Dutch half of the island, where they started fires and destroyed anti-aircraft installations, a communique said.

The attack on New Britain—approximately 800 miles northeast of Cape York—was directed against Rabaul, where wharves and adjoining areas, including a military camp, were reported, bombed. The mission was carried out without the loss of a single allied plane.

Melbourne, June 5—(AP)—Twenty-three survivors of an allied merchant vessel sunk by a Japanese submarine Wednesday night 35 miles east of Sydney, landed from a lifeboat today at a small Australian fishing port.

Twelve other men from the sunken vessel, which carried a crew of about 50, previously had been picked up from three life rafts by an allied warship.

Mel Ott Sets New Record For Number Runs Batted In

GIANTS BEAT CHICAGO CUBS

Yanks Increase Their Lead In American League

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
Mel Ott is likely to be remembered in baseball as the quietest record breaker on record.

Nobody gives it much thought anymore, but every time the 33-year-old outfielder-manager of the New York Giants hits a home run or draws a base on balls he breaks the all-time National league record — which he himself holds, of course.

Yesterday he broke another record—the runs batted in mark of 1,582 that Rogers Hornsby took 22 years to set while moving about among four different clubs—and Ott performed the deed in such a muffled way that it would not even have been noticed if people hadn't been waiting and watching for the last week.

With Bill Werber on third base in the third inning of a game at Chicago with the Cubs, Ott lofted a long fly to right and Werber scampered home with the run that brought Ott the record in his 17th season.

Now every time Ott drives in a tally for the rest of his National league career he will keep on setting a record and fans will think no more of it than they do his bases on balls and home run marks—unless he remains active long enough to get close to the record for both major leagues, 2,209 set by Babe Ruth during 22 years service in the American league.

Ott did not get a hit yesterday and his record-breaking feat was largely obscured by the exploit of a rookie teammate, Willard Marshall, who hammered his eighth home run of the season into the right field seats at Wrigley Field in the 11th inning to win the game 4-3.

The St. Louis Cardinals strengthened their hold on second place in the only other National league encounter by beating Boston Braves 6-2.

In the American league the New York Yankees sent Edgar Smith, the mucky southpaw, staggering to his ninth straight defeat with an

New York, June 5 — With Jimmy Foxx gone, Joe Cronin figures on himself as the Red Sox regular first baseman. He has started seven games so far at third base, short and first and the Sox have won five of them. But old double X claims that the club's best first baseman is Paul Campbell, who gave up trying to get Jimmy's job and shifted to the outfield. Word floating around Belmont is that the racing commission is getting ready to throw the book at Wendell Eads for his rough riding tactics. Hornets Increase Lead in Piedmont

Charlotte, June 5 (AP)—Charlotte's pace-setting Hornets strengthened their Piedmont league lead last night by taking a ball game from Winston-Salem 4-3. The Hornets scored all four of their runs in the first inning.

Asheville won another game over the Greensboro Red Sox, 5-2. Ken Johnson limited the Greensboro club to four safeties. Anle and Genovese led the 13-hit assault on Whitey Gluchoski.

The Norfolk Tars, behind the 4-hit pitcher of Jack McKinney made it two in a row over the Durham Bulls and won easily 11-0. Manager Bruno Letzel used three pitchers in an attempt to halt the Tars' 12-hit attack.

The Portsmouth Cubs swept into second place in the loop race by taking a doubleheader from Richmond-Colts. The Cubs won the twilight game handily, 6-3, but had to stage a ninth inning rally that produced all their runs to win the nightcap, 3 to 1.

The clubs play at the same stands tonight—Charlotte at Winston-Salem, Greensboro at Asheville, Durham at Norfolk, and Portsmouth at Richmond.

Birth Certificate For Anglers
St. Petersburg, Fla., June 5 (AP)—And who'd have thought you'd need a birth certificate to go fishing? That's just what is causing consternation among guideboat operators here. All fishermen must carry identification cards, issued by the U. S. Maritime station here, and to obtain them they must produce birth certificates or other proof of citizenship, plus four photographs. The photos are easy—but operators say fishing is almost at a standstill while anglers prove their citizenship.

JAPAN TRYING FOR KNOCKOUT

Chinese Claim 8,000 Jap Casualties Yesterday

By SPENCER MOOSA - Chungking, China, June 5 - (AP) Japan is developing a knock-out blow against China designed to end the Chinese war at any cost...

"The Japanese concern over the land communications with occupied territories in Asia was said to be heightened by the possibility that the Allies might reach the stage where they could threaten seriously Japan's sea routes."

"Disposal of the China incident - as the Japanese call the war in China - at any cost."

"The Chinese high command announced tonight that about 8,000 Japanese were killed or wounded yesterday in fighting around Chuchien, rail center in western Chekiang province."

"That increased the number of Japanese casualties reported in two days of fighting for the important walled town to 10,000."

"The Chinese said the importance with which the Japanese regarded the battle was reflected in that they had sent more than 100,000 troops into the assault."

"The Chinese high command reported the Japanese repulsed in new attempts to cross the upper Salween river in their attack into Yunnan province from the Burma frontier."

FDR Studies Gas Shortage Situation

Washington, June 5 - (AP) - President Roosevelt began today a comprehensive study of the interlinked shortages of gasoline and rubber...

"But while all this sounds encouraging," he said, "let me say that civilians can expect no rubber to meet their needs in the immediate future - certainly not within the next year..."

"The erection of plants for synthetic rubber are now under way," he said, and it is estimated that 300,000 tons will be produced in the United States in 1943 and that 600,000 tons will be produced in 1944."

To make additional supplies of synthetic rubber available for ordinary civilian needs, he said, it would require plant capacity for at least 300,000 additional tons, and to attempt it at this time would seriously affect America's war effort...

Just where or in what manner this retribution might be carried out was, of course, a matter of continuing secrecy. But the American bombing attack on key Japanese cities and military objectives, in April came readily to the minds of Mr. Roosevelt's hearers.
