British Gain Upper Hand In North African Battle Repulsing Axis Attacks

Rommel's Nazi Forces Receive Setbacks In Two Sectors At Hands of British and Free French; Effort Being Made To Encircle Axis Troops

Cairo, Egypt, June 8. — (AP)—The great tank battle in the Libyan desert raged into its 14th day today with the British and their Free French allies apparently holding the upper hand after repulsing new Axis attacks at Knightsbridge and Bir Hacheim.

The British reported that their artillery fire had smashed another attempt by Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's columns yesterday to break through toward Tobruk, 15 miles northeast of Knightsbridge.

At the same time, a communiqué said, the Free French at Bir Hacheim threw back a tank assault at that bastion menacing the right flank of Rommel's forces.

It was the second time in as many days that the British had reported the Axis chief had repulsed an attempt to break through at Knightsbridge.

Yesterday, British headquarters said, Rommel twice hurled his full remaining armored strength into the British positions in this sector only to be beaten back with losses.

Military quarters said that the Axis mechanized forces still were being reinforced through the gap in the British minefields. Between Ain El Gazala and Bir Hacheim, but it was believed that their lines of communication were severely strained under the continued pounding of British bombers.

It appeared that the British were trying to force a strong semi-circle around Rommel's forces east of this gap preparatory to an attempt to cut the Axis leader off from the rear.

His line of withdrawal was being threatened by British and Indian troops who established themselves Saturday night at Harmit, inside the Axis corridor, and were reported holding their position against repeated attempts to dislodge them.

Harmit is six miles south of Knightsbridge and about 15 miles east of the Ain El Gazala-Bir Hacheim line, base of the Axis salient.

The Free French forces which have been holding Bir Hacheim with the support of Indian troops were reported, meanwhile, to have beaten off two new assaults by Italian mechanized units over the weekend. The Free French were said to have had dwindling munitions replenished and their position seemed secure for the moment.

RAF BOMBERS AGAIN ACTIVE

Channel Ports And Shipping Blasted By British

London, June 8.—(AP)—Hundreds of fighting planes and fighter-bombers from the scores of airfields of Britain swept in a series of thrusts over Hitler's channel ports and defenses today, continuing the regular daylight offensive which has accompanied the RAF's heavy bombing drive.

British warplanes attacked targets in northern France and Holland last night and damaged a German ship off the Frisian islands, the Air Ministry announced today, but bad weather over the continent kept the RAF from following up its Saturday night assault on Emden with another massed raid upon Germany.

All the planes which participated in the overnight operations returned safely to their bases, a communiqué said.

Fighter command planes which carried out the sweeps over France were reported to have bombed a railway yard near Caen and shot up a train at Montdidier, 21 miles southeast of Amiens. A lone Boston bomber also attacked the German airbase at Leeuwarden, Holland, 70 miles from Amsterdam.

It was the second time within a week that weather had interrupted the RAF's offensive, bad conditions likewise having kept the British air armada away from Germany last Thursday night.

There was only light German aerial activity over Britain during the night and this was confined to the southwest coast, where, a communiqué said, bombs caused a few casualties and damage to residences.

The English channel was the scene of action yesterday when a patrol of light British naval forces had a brief engagement with greatly superior German units off the Belgian coast, during which a 600-ton Nazi torpedo boat was torpedoed and apparently sunk, the Admiralty announced.

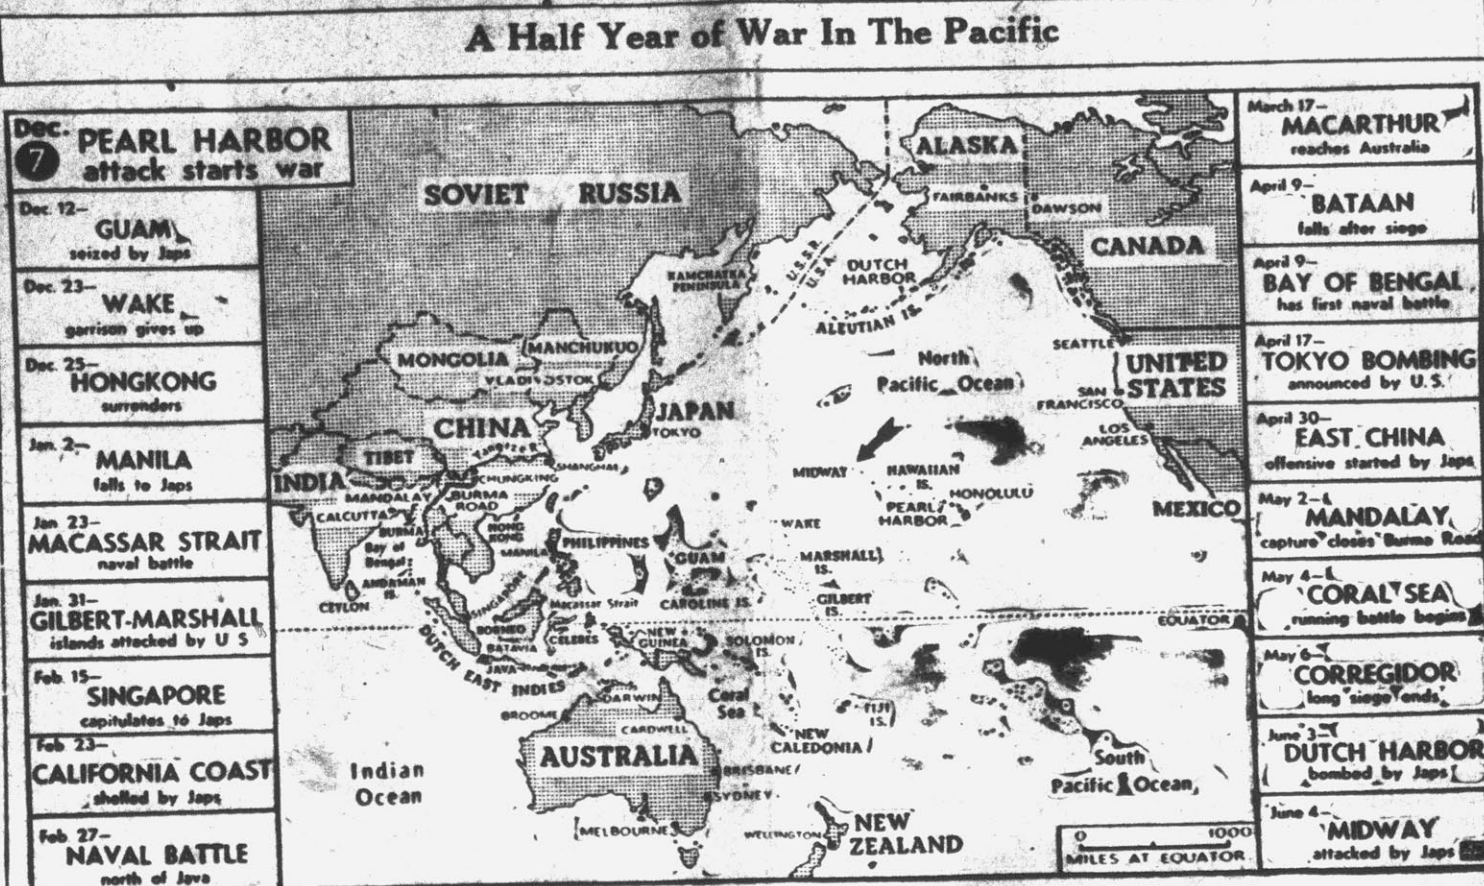

The British forces were said to have suffered only minor damage.

Bomb-Laden Plane Falls In Georgia

Port Benning, Ga., June 8.—(AP)—

An airplane crashed on the Port Benning reservation today and Lt. Russell Hammargren, public relations officer, said the craft's load of bombs exploded.

The plane fell some 15 miles from the post headquarters and it was not immediately determined whether there had been loss of life. Lt. Hammargren said first reports indicated that one bomb exploded and set off other bombs aboard the craft.

These twenty chronologically listed events were major developments of a Pacific war which six months ago on December was begun by the Japanese attack against a United States at peace. The three dates representing United Nations' triumphs—January 31, April 17 and May 9—all are to the credit of American fighting men. Arrow points out Midway Island where the Jap attack has been smashed.

ASKS INCREASE FOR WAR CHEST

New Appropriation Calls for Additional 39 Billion

Washington, June 8.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked Congress today for a new appropriation of $39,417,227,337 for the war department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943.

If granted, his request, made in a memorandum to Speaker Rayburn, would boost to more than $200,000,000,000 the war chest approved by Congress for the three years ending June 30, 1943.

Previous appropriations and authorizations for the armed services are estimated by appropriations committee attaches at approximately $165,000,000,000.

In January the President asked for $6,398,091,747 for the war department's regular activities for the next fiscal year, with the understanding the amount would be increased.

"Under the change in conditions which has since come about," he said in his letter of transmittal today, "such estimates fall far short of reflecting the estimated needs of the military establishment for 1943 and their complete revision becomes necessary."

The largest single item in the total was $11,043,000,000 for the army air corps, but there was no detailed explanation of the manner in which the fund would be spent.

Other larger items included: Ordnance, $9,943,920,000; army pay, $4,127,000,000; army travel, $5,077,400,000; quartermaster and transportation service, $6,964,882,000 including $1,736,902,000 for clothing and equipment; signal corps, $2,506,730,000; medical service, $45,720,000; corps of engineers, $2,923,548,000; chemical warfare service, $617,510,000.

Without explanation, the total also included $28,313,000 for maintenance of the army of the Philippines, although those Pacific islands now are in enemy hands.

Pitt County Man Is Paroled by Governor

Raleigh, June 8.—(AP)—Governor Broughton paroled 12 prisoners today. Among them was John Martin, a Negro convicted in Martin County in 1933 of second degree murder and sentenced to 20-25 years. His victim was another Negro.

Others freed included Charles F. Horton, convicted in Pitt county last August of assault with a deadly weapon and reckless driving, and sentenced to two years.

British Urge Frenchmen To Evacuate Coast Area

Broadcast Leads To Speculation of Second Front

London, June 8.—(AP)—The British radio broadcast instructions to the French people today to evacuate a broad coastal area from the Belgian to the Spanish border, which strip the Germans have designated as a prohibited military zone.

"Operations of capital importance for the liberation of France will start in due time," said the broadcast.

"It has been shown on several occasions that the presence of the civilian population on the scene of active operations hinders the action of troops, and particularly of friendly troops, in a very grave manner," said the broadcast beamed across the channel in the regular French language news program.

British sources said that they could not interpret the bulletin that it would have to stand for itself.

"The coastal regions of occupied France are likely to become more and more a theater of war operations," the warning continued. "They will inevitably bring with them the gravest dangers for the civilian population."

The radio referred to "notice No. 1," however, which was broadcast after the commando raid on the Germans' U-boat base at St. Nazaire March 28 when Frenchmen in that city took up arms and fought for three days after the British had departed.

Part of the first notice, as read by the announcer, said "your role for the moment should be limited to the care of your own safety. Do everything you can to preserve your own lives. You will be needed by the armies of liberation. We give you formal assurance that when the hour comes to ask for active participation of the French people as a whole you will be warned of it."

"Here is notice No. 2," the broadcast said. It added:

"Don't wait until the last moment. It would be too late. Go away at the earliest possible moment and those who don't have the possibility to go," we repeat with new insistence some of the instructions contained in notice No. 1."

The notice acknowledged that the Germans would place difficulties in the way of the evacuation, but urged Frenchmen to overcome such obstacles.

It was not possible to specify either the time or place of the contemplated operations, it added.

ROWAN COUNTY BANK HELD-UP

Lone Bandit Makes His Escape With $750

Salisbury, June 8.—(AP)—A young man wearing dark glasses walked into the Rockwell Bank at Rockwell, Rowan county, at 10 a. m. today, flashed a gun, and made off with $750. Cashier R. W. Brown reported to Rowan Sheriff J. H. Krider.

It was the second daylight robbery of this bank in 12 years. Sheriff Krider and his officers are searching for the robber and his automobile. The car was reported to have been driven in the direction of Albemarle.

Cashier Brown, who said the money was in a brown sack, brown pants, no tie, and appeared to be in his 20's, was first asked for a five dollar bill in exchange for a small bag of silver. The next moment he poked a gun through the window at Cashier Brown, the bank official said.

When last sighted, state highway patrolmen reported, the holdup car had turned off the Albemarle highway and was headed toward Asheboro. Patrolmen said the first three digits of the car license (North Carolina) were 528. All roads in the area were being patrolled.

When the bank was robbed of $1,028 in 1930, Brown was on duty, and was locked in the vault. Three people two men and a woman were later sentenced to prison terms for the crime.

Big Fire Loss At Morganton

Morganton, June 9.—(AP)—A series of explosions, followed by fire, destroyed three warehouses stocked with finishing materials, and machinery veneer at the Drexel Furniture Company plant here yesterday.

The damage was estimated at $100,000 and Jason Branch, assistant superintendent, and Philo Seagle, who were helping firemen, were badly burned.

The explosions began at 4:30 a. m. and lacquer in containers continued to burn throughout the day.

Chinese Army Centers Raided

Tokyo, (From Japanese Broadcasts). June 8.—(AP)—Japanese army planes heavily raided Shang-jiao, on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway in Eastern Kiangsi province today, raining tons of bombs on the railway station and military objectives in and around the city. Domei reported in a dispatch from the war zone.

Shang-jiao, 70 miles southwest of Chongshien in Chekiang, was identified by Domei as headquarters of the Chinese third army zone. Other Chinese "concentration points" along the railway also were raided, the agency said.

COURT RULES ON OVERTIME

High Court Overrules Government Contentions

Washington, June 8.—(AP)—The Supreme Court ruled today that the Federal Wage-Hour Act does not require payment for overtime to employees whose fixed weekly salary is large enough to meet the minimum wage requirements of the legislation and whose hourly wage is fixed by contract.

Justice Byrnes delivered the 5 to 4 decision which overruled the government's contention that overtime compensation under the conditions should be based on an hourly wage computed by dividing the weekly salary by the number of hours worked, regardless of how much the weekly salary exceeded the amount required by the act.

The opinion applied specifically to the A. H. Belo Corporation, publisher of the Dallas Morning News and owner of radio station WFAA.

"When employer and employee," Justice Byrnes said, "have agreed upon an arrangement which has proven mutually satisfactory we should not upset it and approve an inflexible and artificial interpretation of the act which finds no support in its text and which as a practical matter eliminates the possibility of steady income to employees with irregular hours."

Justice Byrnes said Congress had failed to provide a definition of "regular rate" of pay under the wage hour act and that the company was within its rights in negotiating a regular hourly rate with its employees.

"Presumably Congress refrained from attempting such a definition," Justice Byrnes said, "because the employment relationships to which the act would apply were so various and unpredictable."

"And that which it was unwise for Congress to do, this court should not do."

"Where the question is as close as this one, it is well to follow the congressional lead and to afford the fullest possible scope to agreement among the individuals who are actually affected."

"This policy is based upon a common sense recognition of the special problems confronting employer and employee in businesses where the work hours fluctuate from week to week and from day to day."

"Many such employees value the security of a regular weekly income. They want to operate on a family budget, to make commitments for payments on homes and automobiles and insurance."

Federal Reserve Man Here June 16

American Defenders Take Heavy Toll Of Ships And Planes; Three Warships are Known Sunk and 14 Or More Damaged; U. S. Destroyer Sunk And Carrier Damaged

Pearl Harbor, June 8.—(AP)—A once mighty Japanese naval force, reported to constitute the bulk of that country's sea power, today limped westward in desperate retreat from Midway island, its proud units pounded by an American defense turned into a shattering offense.

"The enemy appears to be withdrawing," said Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet. "Contact was lost during last night."

But even should the Japanese make good their escape, it will be only at the cost of at least three warships sunk, 11 or more others damaged and the virtually complete destruction of their protecting air arm.

Against this formidable score, the only announced American losses in equipment were one destroyer sunk by a submarine, one aircraft carrier hit by a bomb and some planes missing.

Loss of the U. S. destroyer was acknowledged in the same communiqué in which Nimitz told of the enemy's apparent withdrawal. But it was offset by official word that a Jap destroyer also had been sent to the bottom and that additional damage had been inflicted on two enemy cruisers.

The crew of the lost U. S. destroyer, Nimitz said, was picked up by other ships "with small loss of life." The admiral was uncertain whether the report of fresh damage to Japanese cruisers referred to further hits on vessels previously damaged or represented entirely new successes.

As the three-day battle of the central Pacific seemed to be nearing its finish in what was likely the greatest single victory of American naval history, word of congratulations began to arrive at Nimitz' headquarters here.

"The splendid victory at Midway has aroused the greatest enthusiasm throughout this area," General Douglas MacArthur advised the admiral from Australia. "The Prime Minister of Australia asked me to join his felicitations. My own pride and satisfaction are boundless. We will not fail."

From Lieut. Gen. J. L. Dewitt, commanding general of the western defense command and fourth army at San Francisco, came this message:

"To the commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet and all his officers and men this command extends hearty congratulations on the success of your forces and desires to express its admiration for the gallant action by all arms in the decisive repulse of the enemy attack on Midway. May the final outcome be enemy annihilation."

Nimitz' communiqué announced three previous reports telling a story of mounting disaster for the enemy. It came on a day which the admiral said found the Hawaiian area quiet "except for minor submarine activity," in sharp contrast to the date six months before when Japan started far in the Pacific with its attack on Pearl Harbor.

The WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MacKENZIE, Wide-World News Analyst

The smashing American victory over the Japs off our base at Midway—an atoll that is minute in size but vast in defensive importance—must have far-reaching and perhaps decisive effects on the battle of the Pacific, which the men of Nippon started six months ago and now are finding difficult to finish, when we are on the alert.

Indeed, on the face of returns thus far, so heavy is the punishment administered to the enemy off Midway that one has the rather justifiable urge to wave the flag a bit. However, naval operations also are proceeding off Dutch Harbor, and we shall do well to restrain our enthusiasm until we have the whole story.

Battle For Midway Puts Japs On The Defensive

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Desperate new Japanese efforts to break the growing might of America's air and sea power in the Pacific were predicted in informed quarters here today as the only course left open to the enemy, now clearly in the defensive.

Subsequently to the United States victory in the battle that started with the repulse of a huge attacking force at Midway island last week, authorities said that the Japs must either initiate new operations somewhere along the sweeping defense line that runs from Alaska to Australia or else by inactivity admit their eventual complete defeat even before the grand offensive on the United Nations starts rolling in the Pacific.

Meanwhile the armada of battleships and aircraft carriers, cruisers and destroyers which steamed

Christian Science Service.

"God the Only Cause and Creator" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, June 7.

The golden text was from Acts 4:24, "Lord, thou art God, which hast made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "O Lord how manifold are thy works! In wisdom hast thou made them all; the earth is full of thy riches. Thou createdst forth thy spirit, they are created; and thou renewest the face of the earth. The glory of the Lord shall endure for ever; the Lord shall rejoice in his works." (Ps. 104: 24, 30, 31)

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The creative Principle—Life, Truth and Love—is God. The universe reflects God. There is but one creator and one creation. This creation consists of the unfolding of spiritual ideas and their identities, which are embraced in the infinite Mind and forever perfected. These ideas range from the infinitesimal to infinity, and the highest ideas are the sons and daughters of God."

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT

The passing of Walter S. Dail, on May 7th at the age of 59 brought the deepest sorrow to the entire Greenville section and we, the members of the Board of Stewards of Jarvis Memorial church wish to pay tribute to him who served so many years and so faithfully as a member of this board, having recently completed four years as its Chairman.

A native of Greene County, he came to Greenville in 1913 where his friendly personality earned him the good will and friendship of everyone. A man of sound judgement, of courage and positive convictions, he was yet kind and gentle in every act and to every person. Possessing great native ability, he did not seek fame or position or praise but by performing every task large or small, diligently and well, and by being a servant of us all, he became a leader. Interested in every activity of the church, he attended all the services, speaking to little children, welcoming the strangers, taking part in discussions and ready always to give generously of his time and his means.

It is impossible to measure the value of the life of a good man who gives all and asks nothing for himself, but such a man was Walter Dail. He was not only a leader but he was an inspiration to all who met him and the influence of his good life and kindly acts will live on when we ourselves have passed away.

"Seest thou a man diligent in business? He shall stand before Kings." Mr. Dail was diligent in the business of his Master and when he shall stand before the King of Kings, it will be as a "workman that needeth not to be ashamed."

We ask that this tribute be recorded in the official records of this board and that copies be sent to the family with our love and deepest sympathy and to the North Carolina Christian Advocate and the local papers for publication.

USO Carrying On An Important Phase Of War Work

SERVICE MEN PRAISE WORK

Organization Helps Morale Of Armed Forces

By BILL BONI
Wide World Military Editor
New York, June 8.—Strictly speaking this is not a military story. Yet it is a story of important war work, work that perhaps provides a clue to the man-for-man superiority of U. S. soldiers, sailors and marines over their axis opposite numbers.

Individuality, the ability to call your soul your own, and still be a hell-for-leather fighting man, has a lot to do with that. Discipline and regimentation are essential factors in any successful war effort.

Yet the soldier, sailor or marine, to produce peak performance all the way, needs a place where he can forget to salute, where he can assume his nickname and discard the feeling he's just the end man in a column of fours.

Therefore, this story:

The sentry guarding the isolated strip of Pacific beach front is alert and tense. That truck rolling along towards him has no business here, he's sure. He brings his Garand rifle to the "ready," barks out an authoritative "halt!"

At that moment the truck's wheels hit a patch of loose sand. It slows sideways. The rising moon picks out the foot-high letters emblazoned on its side: "USO."

"Hey, gang, come-a-runnin'," yells the delighted sentry to his mates of the anti-aircraft battery. "The USO has found us, even in this forsaken hole."

It costs 50 cents to have a single shirt laundered in Alaska, $3 for overnight accommodation in even the lowest-priced hotel. That's a tough tariff on coast guard pay. The local USO solved the problem for the boys in blue by importing a washing machine from Seattle, which now is in almost constant operation. In the same clubhouse is a dormitory, where service men get clean, comfortable beds for 25 cents.

A troop train is steaming east, headed perhaps for an overseas embarkation point. Its next stop, for only a 10-minute halt, is the home town of one of the soldiers aboard. He hasn't been there for 15 years, hasn't seen his parents in that time.

The soldier approaches his commanding officer, says "I'd give anything to see them" the officer wires ahead to the USO lounge in the town's railway station. As the train pulls in, father and mother are there to greet their son.

"And the officer told me later," says Randall J. Leboeuf, Jr., chairman of USO's transit service committee, "that lad was a far better soldier from then on."

This is the USO, which Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, head of the army's service of supply, has called the "people's service to the fighting men."

Committees in 6,000 communities are campaigning now to raise a war fund of $23,000,000 to maintain these "homes away from home" in Maine and California, Newfoundland and the Canal Zone, Florida and Hawaii.

That sounds like a lot of money. But the USO, supplying outside our army and navy establishments what the government and Red Cross provide on the inside, now has more than 700 clubhouses in 46 of the 48 states and on overseas stations.

Furnishes recreational facilities—libraries, game rooms, showers, to name just a few used by more than 5,000,000 men a month in the United States alone.

Stages camp shows that will play to 3,500,000 service men a year.

Has five mobile service clubs, stocked with everything from the latest movies to sewing kits, to reach isolated stations on the Atlantic coast, and 10 more, the gift of Edsel Ford, to tour the west coast.

Takes care of an average of 5,000 men a day with its troops-in-transit service in railway stations and bus terminals in 361 cities.

Thus it combines under the general administration the work done heretofore by its six component agencies.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

TEST REGION OF MORAL DANGER

It used to be customary when a man had to explore an old well that he would have a candle lowered and kept suspended quite a few feet below him as he descended. If the candle went out, then he knew there was not enough air there to permit him to continue breathing. If there was not enough oxygen for the lighted candle, there was not enough oxygen for him.

There are certain tests by which we can keep ourselves from moral compromises and evasions which would violate the conscience. The tendency of life is always to let us down into regions where lower moral standards prevail. In business, in social life, in the dealings we have with our friends day by day we are continually tempted to evade, equivocate, and in some instances to betray.

The man who is morally alert is constantly on the lookout to see that his conscience is kept clear of moral guilt. He keeps a candle suspended below him to make sure that he doesn't get down so far that his moral life will die of asphyxiation. He has certain standards taught him in the home, absorbed from his religious training—things he has observed as valid and necessary for the living of a good life. He knows that he had better steer clear of any region into which he cannot carry these basic moral truths. He knows that if there is not enough moral oxygen to keep the flame of these truths burning, there is not enough to keep life in his conscience.

PARKING SPACE FOR BICYCLES NEEDED

Local bicyclists are asking to be given some consideration in the matter of parking space in the business section and we believe they are right in such a request. Naturally business houses don't want the bikes parked against their front windows for fear of breakage, but at the same time motorists pay little regard to bicycles parked against the curb and several have been damaged by automobiles. In some cities wide-awake merchants have provided parking stands in front of their stores while in other cities the facilities have been provided by the city governments at convenient locations. The use of bicycles is growing here each day and some provision should be made for the riders to park them when they use this means of transportation for their shopping trips in the business section.

THEY'RE DOING THEIR PART

While it is still too soon to count the full significance of the naval battle off Midway Island, reports from the engagement so far should convince our people that on anywhere near even terms our American boys can be counted upon to make a good showing. The heroic effort being put forth by our men in the armed services should be an incentive to those of us back home to increase our every effort to do our full part and more in the nation's war effort. The men in the service are setting us a fine example.

Washington Daybook

By Joe's Editors

Washington—For the first time in history, so far as I can find out, this nation is publishing at its own expense a monthly magazine and a twice-monthly "News Letter" for consumption solely in western hemisphere countries outside our own borders.

If it were purely a propaganda effort shoved down the reading throats of our sister republics, it wouldn't be worth mentioning. But "En Guardia," a 10-by-14 inch slick paper black-and-white and color photographs, started nine months ago with a timid 50,000 circulation has now reached 200,000 and the demand far exceeds the supply.

"The American News Letter—Circulated for Private Information in the Western Hemisphere" is no older but just as much in demand. It's a four-page, unillustrated pamphlet, printed in English, Spanish and Portuguese. The magazine is printed only in the two latter languages though there has been one edition recently in French, also for Latin American consumption.

Behind these two publications is an amazing publishing story. Under a contract let by Nelson Rockefeller's Office of Inter-American Affairs, they are published and edited by the Business Publishers International Corporation, a Washington editorial staff, headed by J. C. Stark, worked in glove with Frank Jamieson, in charge of public relations for the Rockefeller office. These two staffs produce and edit "En Guardia" and the "News Letter."

Turned into foreign tongues by a staff of translators, the copy is laid out in New York, printed in Philadelphia, and circulated mostly by air to a selected list of officials, educators and industrialists in the Latin American republics. The first two numbers of "En Guardia" were put out entirely by the Rockefeller office. They were something of an experiment. Never before had the United States spoken to Latin America through its own publication. The "experiment" got out of hand almost immediately. Popularity of the magazine zoomed. It had to be placed in the hand of a publishing house.

There is one amusing story in connection with the sudden popularity of "En Guardia" in South America. Although it has been sent only to the highest officials it constantly has been cropping up on the newsstands in South American cities (there never has been a copy released from here for sale) and the "bootleg price" is purportedly twice that charged for the most expensive United States magazine sold commercially in those countries.

There is talk now that "En Guardia" or a little sister under another name—will be published in a cheaper edition and circulated (still without cost) to the hundreds of thousands who apparently are clamoring for it. The Rockefeller office won't comment, but off-the-record sources admit that vast expansion of the biggest publishing effort of World War II is under discussion.

The Japanese, combining necessity with strategic speculation, plotted to restore their prestige, shattered by their defeat in the Coral sea and our unprecedented bombing raid over Tokyo and other cities of Nippon. They picked Midway and Dutch Harbor as the subjects of their attention.

The midwest Midway is the outpost of Hawaii and Pearl Harbor, and since the latter is the key to the Pacific, the little atoll becomes a mighty important part of the defenses of North America. If the Japs could capture it they would have secured a base from which they could raid Pearl Harbor. What is more important, they would have a base from which they could launch a major offensive, with our west coast and the Panama canal as ultimate objectives.

Midway also is a sentinel over our life-line to Australia.

Dutch Harbor, set down amidst the fogs and violent storms of the far north, bars the northwest route to Alaska. In other words it is the guardian of the northwest approach to this continent.

On the basis of present information it seems possible that the losses inflicted on the Japanese at Midway, coupled with their heavy setback in the Coral sea, may severely limit their ability to stage further great offensives, and it is important to note that they are dependent on their navy for operations. Certainly we can agree with observers at General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia that the Midway defeat has hastened the day when the United Nations can stage a major offensive in the southwestern Pacific.

Battle of Midway . . .

headquarters described the attacks, which caused few casualties and no military damage, as nuisance raids.

Without giving statistics, Admiral King said that the Japanese had thrown the bulk of their sea power into the effort to take Midway, but that the Army and Navy had been prepared for just such an attempt. Land based aircraft "played a big part" in repelling the attack, King said, and we used that fact to give a clue to the limits beyond which the pursuit of the outed enemy would not be continued.

King linked the Midway action with the bombing attack on Dutch Harbor, Alaska, where, he disclosed, battle maneuvers of an unspecified nature were still in progress.

All commercial vehicles, including trucks, taxicabs, buses and government-operated automobiles will receive "S" books—likewise "tailored" to fit.

All "C" books will be reviewed and reissued every three months; "S" books will be reviewed and reissued every four months.

UNFAIR TO LOVE

By Watkins E. Wright

Chapter 23
Just Thank You
Kathleen made herself relax. She made herself smile. But she began to experience a hard-to-explain sense of uneasiness—even fear. She didn't want to have Paul kiss her again, nor did she want to kiss him. All she wanted now was a chance to prove to Joe and Uncle Frank that she had real ability.

Yet she had sense enough to know that she was more or less committed to Paul; that she would have to accept his romantic attentions from now on, anyway until she had rehearsed and played the part she had been wanting so long. "Say something, loveliness," Paul said.

"What shall I say, Paul? Unless it's just the two words 'thank you'." Paul leaned forward and caressed her cheek. "How wonderful life would be," he said, "if we could just go on like this—drifting in the moonlight."

Again words failed Kathleen. The only thing she could possibly say was that she thought drifting in the moonlight forever would be decidedly dull. But saying such a thing would never do. Not when Paul Pennell was in such a romantic mood—and was, so to speak, holding her future in the very palm of his hand.

The next day Lizzie served what Paul chose to call "brunchon."

"What's that?" Lizzie asked, eyeing him suspiciously.

"A combination breakfast and luncheon, my dear Ethiopian maid," smiled Paul.

"Effie you-all had got up earlier," Lizzie said, not caring whether she offended the man or not, "we'd have had lunch separate."

"That will do, Lizzie," said Kathleen.

Lizzie went out, slowing up as she passed Joe, and giving him a look that was full of pleading.

Coffee—eggs—country sausages—hot biscuits—homemade preserves. "And me thinking I'd never want another bite to eat," said Daisy, accepting a second helping of sausages.

"Is the country air, my child," said Uncle Frank.

"Don't you eat too much, Kathleen," Paul said. "Now that you're to join our company, you mustn't lose your slimmest."

"Is it all settled?" asked Joe.

"All settled," said Paul.

"Of course," said Ruby. "Run get the script of your play. I'd better start reading before Daisy and Paul come to blows."

Then when Joe had gone into the house, she spoke to Kathleen. "Don't forget you're to read aloud the part Paul's going to give you."

"I haven't forgotten," said Kathleen. "Only—well, Paul said he'd rather I wouldn't."

"Why not, for Pete's sake?" said Daisy.

"I'll answer that," said Paul. "Kathleen's a find of mine, and I don't want her reading the part until I've heard her do it, and—"

"You mean you've promised her the part without first hearing her read it?" said Uncle Frank.

"Yes," said Paul. "I'm trusting my instinct. I've been with Kathleen enough to realize she's just the type the play requires for that part."

"Then why not let us share your discovery?" said Ruby.

"You can share it when rehearsal starts," said Paul. "I want to direct her in it, and then—"

"I thought I was the director," Paul cut in.

"Very well, I mean I want to coach her in it," said Paul.

Joe returned with the manuscript of his own play, and handed it to Ruby.

"It's beautifully typed, Joe," said Ruby. "If it's half as good as its typing, it's a masterpiece." She looked around at the others. "All right, you folks, get settled. I don't want any interruptions."

"Yes, teacher," said Daisy. "Maybe you missed your calling, Ruby."

"Maybe I did," said Ruby. "Anyway, it would be nice to be a school teacher for a while—just long enough to chastise some of my particularly offensive pupils."

"Meaning me," said Daisy.

"If the cap fits—wear it," Ruby retorted.

"Go on with the reading," said Fred. "Before you and Daisy come to blows!"

Ruby opened the manuscript, and began to read.

"It was a light play—almost too light, Uncle Frank began to think—and it concerned people like those in Linville, the leading character being a lovely girl who 'gets religion' at a tabernacle revival."

In the play, Joe had tried to show how the girl had been moved by emotionalism rather than real sincerity, and how, as a result, she found herself badly confused. She kept trying to improve on the lives of others, while not understanding just what was wrong with her own.

Yet, out of the chaos, she emerged a much better person, with a clearer understanding of people as a whole.

Ruby turned the last page. "Curtain!" she said, finally.

Paul's Letter

For a moment no one spoke. They just sat in complete silence, Kathleen thought it was like when the curtain falls on a play that has been so moving that the audience spellbound, forgets to applaud.

"Well," said Fred DeMille, "do you think you could do it, Ruby?"

"Yes," said Ruby. "I think I could."

"Lots of rewriting needed, though," said Paul.

"Naturally," said Ruby. She looked at Joe. "But Paul, man and Ferber have to do that."

Joe studied her face. "Thanks a lot for reading it, Ruby," he said simply. "It's pretty bad in places. I know—a lot of clichés and dull stretches where I tried to bridge over between more important scenes."

"Don't let that bother you, Joe," Ruby said.

"No," said Uncle Frank. "I heard somewhere that plays are not written, but rewritten."

Ruby patted the manuscript. "I'm going to hold on to it for a while, Joe," she said. "It needs a lot of thought. Later we'll discuss it in private."

"I thought it sounded pretty good—in spots," said Daisy.

"I think the character 'Dolly' ought to be built up. There's too much of the lead, and not enough of 'Dolly'."

"Meaning, of course," said Paul, "that you want to play 'Dolly'."

"I visualized myself in the role, yes," said Daisy. She moved even closer to Joe. "And I've got some ideas about the part. I'm going to talk them over with Joe—in private."

Fred shrugged. "Well," he said, "with Ruby working on her part and you working on the part you want—and both of you working on Joe, something ought to materialize."

"I thought it was adorable!" said Mrs. Buxton. "It would be wonderful, Ruby, if you got the play produced on Broadway."

"Yes," said Paul. "All you Linville people could charter a train and come up for the opening—like when Marion Talley made her debut at the Met."

"Let's talk about something else," said Joe.

Paul looked at his watch. "You'll have to excuse me now," he said. "I must run into town."

Nazi Pincer Drive Toward Caucasus Forecast

Adolf Hitler plans to execute a pincer drive (arrows) in hopes of grabbing the rich Caucasian oil fields, according to German sources cited by Louis F. Lochner, chief of the former Associated Press bureau in Berlin. Lochner arrived in New York June 1 aboard the repatriation ship Drottningholm. One section of the German army, Lochner says, will drive through Turkey and Iran, under Hitler's plan, and the other force will try to push through the Ukraine.

Smith Hurls And Bats Indians To Victory Over Yanks

INDIANS WIN BY 5-4 SCORE

Yanks Swamp Indians In Second Game Of Twin Bill

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer
Nearly everybody in the major leagues, it seems, is working on a "streak" of some kind these days, but the ones who hope to keep them intact will take a tip from the New York Yankees and steer clear of Al Smith, the Cleveland southpaw.

Ernie Bonham is the latest to tangle with Lefty Al, whose port-side tactics have made him an unpopular citizen in the vicinity of the Bronx.

Sporting a record of eight straight victories and topping the pitching ranks of both leagues, undefeated Ernie went after number nine against the Indians yesterday and 71,910 paying customers were on hand at the Yankee stadium to watch him work.

But Smith had ideas of his own. Joe Heving lasted less than an inning against the American league leaders, who drove him to cover with three hits and as many runs. Then Smith came along and checked the Yanks with a single run the rest of the way while his mates tore in to Bonham and tied the score.

And when Lou Boudreau singled in the ninth for the 11th blow off the Yankee ace and moved to second on a sacrifice, Smith stepped up and lashed out a hit for the run that won the game, 5-4.

Cleveland's success was short-lived yesterday, however for the Yanks splattered home runs all over the place in the second game, winning 13-1 behind Spud Chandler's five-hit pitching and dumping the Indians into fourth place as the Boston Red Sox moved into third. Joe Gordon poled a grand slam homer and bled his consecutive game hitting streak to 24.

The Detroit Tigers held on to second place in the American league, ten games behind the Yanks, by dividing a double bill with the Washington Senators. Detroit took the first game, 6-4, with the timely hitting of Pinky Higgins and Roger Cramer, but Walt Masterson blanked the Tigers on four hits in hurling the Senators to an 8-0 win in the afterpiece.

The Boston Red Sox tripped the Chicago White Sox twice, winning both games by a score of 3-2 and scoring their ninth runs in the final frames.

Continuing their flirt with the first division, the St. Louis Browns knocked off the Philadelphia Athletics in both games, 5-2, and 7-1.

In the National League, the Cincinnati Reds took a pair from the tumbling Boston Braves and moved into third place, vacated by the New York Giants who lost a twin bill to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Four unearned runs helped the Reds win their first game, 6-2, but it took a ninth-inning homer by Ray Lamanno to decide the second, 3-2.

Howard Pollet pitched the Cards to a 4-1 triumph over the Giants in their opener and Mort Cooper made it unanimous with a four-hit 2-0 shut-out.

The Brooklyn Dodgers clung to their seven game lead over the Cards by winning a pair from the Chicago Cubs. Arky Vaughn, Dixie Walker, and Pete Reiser paced a 10-hit attack which won the first game, 8-4, and Reiser drove in the winning tally in the tenth inning of the 4-3 second game.

Willard Marshall (center) whose homer in the 11th won 4 to 3 for the Giants, adds a pat on the back for both. It was later found that Mel really had set his record last season because Rogers Hornsby, former record holder, had been credited with runs batted in in the American league. Marshall is the former Wake Forest and Atlanta Cracker star.

New York, June 8 — Suggestion we'd like to see tried: Charles O'Connor, Cincinnati Times-Star golf expert, comes up with an idea for an open military golf tournament this summer, which undoubtedly would net a nice bit of change for the relief societies or other charity. It would only require about a week's furlough for the boys in uniform, he points out, and the service roster includes such crack amateurs as Bud Ward, Johnny Fischer, Pat Abbott, Willie Turnesa, Dick Chapman, Tommy Tailor, and Charley Yates and professionals Sammy Sneed, Jim Turnesa, Vic Ghezzi, Porky Oliver and a flock of others. Incidentally, the Norfolk Training Station, with Willie Turnesa and Fischer on hand and Speed heading that way, would like to book a few team matches against other Navy and Army posts.

Initial Error.
When the Red Sox made a trip to Washington recently, Thomas William Oscar (Lefty) Judd turned his luggage over to a porter while he went to buy a newspaper. Losing track of the prospective tip, the Red Sox approached Manager Joe Cronin and asked, "Where is that two jay man?" "You mean double X, don't you?" asked Cronin, thinking of Jimmy Fox. "No," insisted the Red Sox. "I mean two jay; here it is right on the bag." Sure enough, the bag was marked T.W.O.J.

Hornets Win Two Off Durham Bulls

Charlotte, June 8 (AP)—Those sizzling Charlotte Hornets grasped the top rung of the loop ladder with a firmer grip by stinging the Durham Bulls twice 7-6 in the opener and 3-2 in the seventh-inning nightcap.

The two wins kept the Charlotte nine on top with a percentage point lead of .034 over the idle Portsmouth Cubs.

Smut Aderholt, Hornet second baseman who has been batting at a .320 clip, had a heavy night at the plate getting three for five in the first and two for three in the nightcap.

A three-base wallop by pinch hitter Cliff Bolton in the ninth inning of the first game started the Bulls off to a three-run rally and enabled them to overcome a 4 to 5 deficit while in the nightcap the Hornets got off to a lead of two runs in the first inning which the Bulls never overcame.

The losses cut the Bulls down to the cellar dwelling level as the lowly Winston-Salem Twins, split a double-header with the Norfolk Tars, 4-1 and 1-2.

The Bulls and the Twins each boast a percentage rating of .341 for an equal claim on the cellar position.

The Twins captured the curtain-tit behind the fine elbowing of Teddy Gray, who kept the eight Norfolk hits well scattered. Murray, Winston-Salem centerfielder, got three for four, one of them a two-bagger, while Grant, rightfielder for the Tars, got four for four.

In the second game Vic Raschi held the Twins to six hits and then got two hits for three trips to the plate, batting in two of his club's four runs.

REPORT MORE SHIP LOSSES

Twenty-Five Sinkings Announced Last Week

By The Associated Press
On the bottom of the Western Atlantic vessels of allied and neutral registry, downed by submarines totaled 252 today by official navy announcement as 25 new victims were reported last week and yesterday to have been sunk by undersea wolf packs on the prow from Canada to South America.

The casualty list for the attacks announced last week was 105 persons dead and 44 missing. Some 880 seamen and passengers survived the sinkings. Losses reported last week included 10 U. S. ships, seven British, three Norwegian, one Brazilian, one Panamanian, one Dutch and one unidentified allied vessel. Another U. S. ship was reported yesterday as a recent victim.

The enemy submarines picked off 10 newly announced victims off the U. S. east coast to swell to 120 their total for that area since Pearl Harbor. One sinking in Canadian waters brought the war total there to 34, while in warmer climes nine more boosted to 68 the number of Caribbean sinkings, three more in the Gulf of Mexico made that total 16 and wto more off South America raised that to 14. At least one submarine got a taste of its own medicine during the week's sea warfare when the American merchant vessel Atenas sank in the Gulf of Mexico and out of a second undersea raider to reach port only slightly damaged, according to a description of the encounter in Latribuna, San Jose, Costa Rica, newspaper.

"Dawn of a Day of Wrath," For Japs

Mount Pleasant, Pa., June 8.—(AP)—Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the United States army airforce, declared here today that "for every one of our planes shot down, the Japs have lost four."

In an address prepared for the 100th annual commencement of Iowa Wesleyan college, at which he received an honorary doctor of laws degree, the general said "the day of reckoning is not as far off as some people think."

"I am telling Tokyo that we have thousands more Colin Kelleys and Butch O'Hares and Jimmy Doolittles on the way. This is just the dawn of a day of wrath."

SUB ATTACKS ON AUSTRALIA

Japanese Subs Shell Sydney And Newcastle

Allied headquarters, Australia, June 8 (AP)—Japanese submarines, slipping inshore under cover of darkness, shelled Sydney and Newcastle during last night in the first sea-borne attack on the Australian mainland since the start of the war. (Exchange Telegraph said the shells were of German origin.)

An official announcement said the shelling caused no military damage and few casualties in the two cities, both on Australia's southeast coast.

The attack following by one week an unsuccessful raid on Sydney harbor by Japanese midget submarines, four of which were destroyed before they could do more than sink an old harbor vessel.

Newcastle was reported under attack for about 30 minutes and Sydney, which is 80 miles to the south, for about 15 minutes. No estimate on the number of shells fired at either place was available here, but General MacArthur's headquarters characterized the foray as merely a "nuisance raid."

Both cities were blacked out at the time. Residents, awakened by the shelling, hastened to air raid shelters.

Allied offensive operations over the week-end were marked by two raids, Saturday on the Island of Timor, some 400 miles off the northwest tip of Australia.

Direct bomb hits were scored on a bridge near Ermera and on a barracks at Atambora, a commune said.

Twelve Violent Deaths In N. C.

Charlotte, June 8.—(AP)—There were at least twelve violent deaths in North Carolina over the week-end.

Glenn Barker, 15, of near Belmont drowned in Fork river and Private Harold Hileman, 21, of the military police at Camp Croft, S. C., a native of New Kensington, Pa., drowned in Lake Lanier.

Bobbie Gene Smith, 11, of Charlotte, died of injuries received when he ran over a public park bench. Jessie Evelyn Avery, 13, of Dunn, was injured fatally in a fall from a wagon load of hay when a mule became frightened and jumped suddenly.

Mrs. Sara Griffin Caldwell, 40, of Winston-Salem was killed when the automobile in which she was riding overturned near Elkin. Eddie Sawyer, 36, a Negro, was killed in Raleigh when struck by a freight train.

Two-year-old Henry Fred Crawford of East Rockingham, died of strangulation when an electric light plug which he had put into his mouth lodged in his throat.

Mrs. May Bell Carpenter, 27, and Boyce Lee Miller, 24, both of Rockingham, were killed instantly when they were struck by a freight train. Joseph Lamar of Ellerbe was drowned while wading in a lake near Ellerbe.

W. J. Bullins, 56, of Walnut Cove, died of injuries suffered in a truck accident. Jesse Hicks, 35, of Hillsboro, was killed by a freight train. Clifton D. Scott, 21, died of electric shock after coming in contact with a 2,300-volt power line in Greensboro while working on a transformer.

REDS HOLDING SEVASTOPOL

Black Sea Base Has Withstood Seven Month's Siege

Moscow, June 8.—(AP)—Despite massive German efforts to batter down Sevastopol by land and air assault, the Russians announced today, the Soviet naval base fortress which has withstood seven months of siege still stands as Russia's last stronghold in the Crimea.

The Nazis were said to have paid heavily for their three-day onslaught, apparently a supreme effort to erase the final barrier to total conquest of the Black sea peninsula.

The Soviet Information Bureau's midnight communique which said 528 German planes had been destroyed against 151 Russian losses in the week ended yesterday indicated the weight of the Nazi air assault on Sevastopol since there had been no report of major air activity on any other sector.

The droves of German planes were backing up a sustained land offensive but the Russians said the Nazis had suffered heavy losses and had been stopped by combined Soviet land and air defenses.

The Nazis have a two-fold purpose in striving to reduce the Sevastopol stronghold.

Capture of Sevastopol would eliminate a dangerous Russian position on the flank of any German attempt to jump the narrow Kerch strait from the Crimea for a drive into the Caucasus.

The loss of Sevastopol would deprive the Russians of their last Black sea naval base within short striking distance of the German invasion route through the Crimea.

Methodist Hear Eloquent Sermon

By WYATT BROWN
"When we do the will of our Father in Heaven, we become the brothers, sisters, and mother of Jesus," declared Rev. George W. Perry, the pastor, in a brief devotional preceding the celebration of the holy communion at Jarvis Memorial Methodist church Sunday. "What we need today is to stand shoulder to shoulder and heart to heart with Christ and follow His lead."

Upon reading the text, Matthew 12:46, Mr. Perry commented that too many have overlooked in reading the Scriptures where Christ tells who our brothers are. There is no indication according to Mr. Perry that color or where people live makes any difference as to whether they can qualify as brother, sister or mother of Christ.

"The strongest note in the Scriptures is the cry of the heart of God as He tells us He loves us and that He wants us to love Him. People turn a deaf ear to the divine call. In the Old Testament it was a call for soldiers and sacrifice, but the biggest call then was for love. The New Testament throbs and sometimes sobs with the message of love."

"I wonder have we said by our conduct that we love one who loves us and who has done so much for us. When we experience much kindness, it is the result of obedience. It is preferable to sacrifice," he went on.

At this point Mr. Perry brought out that culture did not necessarily make one do the will of God. He defined culture as being the tendency to remember that somebody is on the other side of the hill.

"Jesus, the Son of Man, said, 'Not I, but you, a kinsman of Christ. On our Sunday school and in our homes it is possible to study the Scriptures critically, and it is possible for us to fence a dead Jesus,' he said. Then at this point Mr. Perry made the remark about the need of today. When we see with the eye of Jesus, we see someone who is akin to God. His ability to see something akin to God enabling Him to administer to the suffering. Brethren, are we that much concerned about lost people in our own community and other communities? Have you ever lead a soul to Christ?" queried Mr. Perry in his concluding words.

Well Known AP Official Is Dead

Washington, June 8.—(AP)—Brian Bell, chief of the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press and known by newspapermen from coast to coast, died at his Arlington, Va., home this morning at 5:40.

The 52-year-old native of South Carolina had headed the Washington office of the Associated Press since January 1, 1939, after serving in Atlanta, Ga., New Orleans, New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco. He was a member of the staff of The State, Columbia, S. C., for 15 years before joining the Associated Press.

Widely known a few years ago as a sports writer, Bell was stricken yesterday as he watched the Washington-Detroit baseball game. His physician said he suffered an acute coronary thrombosis at the ball park. A second this morning at 5:40 proved fatal.

Funeral plans will be announced later. During his long career, Bell directed the coverage for the Associated Press of the famous Scopes trial in Dayton, Tenn., and the death there of William Jennings Bryan. He was assigned to the sensational Hall-Mills murder trial at Somerville, N. J., and was at Roosevelt Field, L. I., when Charles Lindbergh took off on his flight to Paris.

Bell was an easy-going, lovable man who made friends wherever he went. He was equally at home among sportsmen, politicians, diplomats, or royalty.
