BRITAIN-RUSSIA SIGN 20 YEAR PACT

Complete Understanding Reached As To Second Front

REPORT NAZIS ENTERING CAUCASUS

Statement Issued From White House

Roosevelt and Molotov reach understanding on urgency of second front in 1942; announcement fails to reveal if and when front to be opened

Washington, June 11. (AP)—The United States, Great Britain and Russia have reached a "full understanding" with regard to the urgency of "creating a second front in Europe" this year.

This was announced officially today in Washington and London and in the latter capital there also was disclosed the signing of a 20-year mutual assistance treaty between Great Britain and the Soviet aimed at "Hitlerite Germany."

The announcements disclosed for the first time that Vyacheslav Molotov, the Russian Foreign Commissar, had been in Washington.

Whether the agreements provided for opening of a second front, which would relieve strain on the "struggling Russians manning the eastern front in Europe, was not specifically stated.

The American announcement, from the White House, spoke of the "urgent tasks" of opening such a front "in 1942" while in London Foreign Minister Anthony Eden spoke both of the "urgent task" and the "urgent need."

On post-war objectives, the statements were similar, the White House, speaking of cooperation between the Soviet Union and the United States "in safeguarding the peace and security of the freedom loving peoples after the war."

London said the new treaty provided for "common action to preserve peace and resist aggression in the post-war period."

The American President and the Russian Commissar, the White House said, also attained a "unity of views on two other vital questions pertaining to their war efforts: "Measures for increasing and speeding up the supplies of planes, tanks and other kinds of war materiel" from the United States to Russia, and the "fundamental problems of cooperation of the Soviet Union and the United States in safeguarding peace and security to the freedom-loving peoples after the war."

"Both sides state with satisfaction," the statement declared, "the unity of their views on all these questions."

Molotov, bespectacled, 52-year-old right-hand man of Premier Joseph Stalin, arrived in Washington May 29 and left on June 4. He now is safely back home, the White House said.

The statement released today was approved by both Molotov and Mr. Roosevelt and withheld until the former had returned. The discussions entered into while the Foreign Secretary was a secret guest at the White House apparently ranged over the whole field of military and economic problems of mutual concern to the two nations.

Mr. Roosevelt, at their conclusion, asked Molotov to inform Stalin that the chief executive "feels these conversations have been most useful in establishing a basis for fruitful and closer relationship between the two governments in the pursuit of the common objectives of the United Nations."

Final Action

Washington, June 11 (AP)—The Senate completed congressional approval today of a military wage adjustment bill fixing a minimum pay scale of $50 a month for the armed forces, effective as of June 1, 1942.

Senate adoption of a conference report, approved yesterday by the House, sent the comprehensive pay measure to President Roosevelt for his consideration.

Vow Vengeance

London, June 11.—(AP)—The Czech government here vowed vengeance tonight for the execution of the hundreds of persons put to death by the Germans in reprisal for the assassination of the Gestapo hangman, Reinhard Heydrich.

In a formal note to the Allied governments the Czechs said: "The Czechoslovak government will take all necessary steps which it may regard as desirable to secure retribution for these atrocities, and will relax no efforts to bring to account all those who committed these crimes or who were in any way responsible for them..."

Funeral services will be conducted from the home of his father, R. A. Gardner, in Fountain, at five o'clock this afternoon followed by burial in the Fountain cemetery. The services will be in charge of Rev. A. G. Courtney, pastor of Fountain Presbyterian church.

Proclaims July 4th As "Victory Day"

Raleigh, June 11.—(AP)—Director Ben Douglas said today the state office of civilian defense had set a goal of victory day celebrations in each of the 100 counties in North Carolina.

In accordance with Governor Broughton's proclamation of the fourth of July as victory day Douglas said he was urging all county civilian defense chairmen to proceed immediately with the formation of suitable programs. The scope of volunteers organized for home front defense would be demonstrated.

The idea, Douglas said, resulted from limitations upon travel that would prevent many persons from making customary fourth of July excursions. "I regard as most fortunate," he said, "this opportunity to combine patriotic celebration of the birthdate of our independence with recognition of the vast army enlisted in home front protection and of parents of men and women now on duty with our armed forces."

The newly elected officers promised a successful year, and asked the cooperation of all Voyageurs to aid in the carrying out of such promise.

SEA VICTORY SAVED HAWAII FROM ATTACK

Airmen Sink Jap Sub Near Australia; Battle for China Continues

By ROGER D. GREENE (Associated Press War Editor) Dramatic new accounts of the battle of Midway revealed today that American flying fortresses and other U. S. forces broke up two huge Japanese fleets, beat off the Hawaiian Islands from invasion.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the U. S. Pacific fleet, said perhaps half of the enemy ships were sunk or damaged in the three-day battle which saw Japan suffer her greatest naval disaster in history.

Admiral Nimitz said thousands of Japanese must have perished—left to drown by their shipmates in flight before the Americans.

Coincidentally, Japan's reputation for veracity appeared to have slumped even in Berlin as the German radio broadcast Stockholm reports discounting the Japanese boast of victory in the battle of Midway and Tokyo hints that Japanese troops had landed in the Aleutian Islands off Japan.

The broadcast cited American viewpoints that "after the naval battle in the Coral Sea and heavy losses in the attacks on Midway Island, the Japanese had lost so much of their combined military fighting power that they could not attempt a successful invasion."

At the same time, Japan's leading civilian naval expert, Mesanori Ito, gave the first authoritative suggestion from Tokyo that two Japanese aircraft carriers had been sunk, as claimed by the United States, instead of one sunk and one heavily damaged.

It is declared that "in view of the great success" of Japan's far-flung invasion forces "we should not be disappointed at the loss of two aircraft carriers."

Other developments in the Far Pacific theater included: On the China front—the Chinese have engaged the Japanese in a "severe battle" in Kiangsi province near Taungjen, 60 miles south of Nanchang, and are increasing their forces.

Service Battery privates promoted to corporals included Theron R. Evans, of Ayden, and James D. Barnhill, of Greenville Route 5. Johnnie Crandell, of Stokes, has been promoted to sergeant in Battery A.

Commission Helps Teacher Salaries

Raleigh, June 11.—(AP)—The State School Commission today appropriated $242,000 to help close differentials in salaries between white and Negro teachers.

The commission also approved its salary committee's recommendation that the daily average attendance serve as a basis for a new salary schedule for city and county superintendents. Nathan Yelton, secretary of the State School Commission, said the measure would involve an expenditure of $15,800.

An additional salary bracket for principals with master's degrees was set up by the commission, effecting a monthly salary increase of approximately $5.

Special school elections were authorized for High Point and Washington.

Fliers Tell Story Battle of Midway

American Forces Deal Smashing Blow To Admiral Yamamoto's Invasion Fleet

By CLARK LEE General Emmons Headquarters, Territory of Hawaii, June 11.—(AP)—"A better show than the World Series," was the way crew members of one of the Army's big B-17 bombers described the battle of Midway.

Pilot Captain Charles E. Gregory of Houston, nudged his co-pilot and fellow Texan, Lieut. Robert O. Pate of Dallas, the first time they saw anti-aircraft shells coming up at them.

"We felt so good to be in action," the captain recalled today, "that we just laughed at those shells."

General Emmons Headquarters, Territory of Hawaii, June 11.—(AP)—Part of the epic story of the battle of Midway was told today by American army pilots who with Navy and Marine fliers smashed Admiral Yamamoto's fleet and saved the Hawaiian Islands from invasion.

It is a story of cool courage and firm determination—the unhesitant combination of American men and machines.

Its moral is that American planes alone may not win the war—but the boys flying American planes will—they and their companions on land and sea and those Americans who are working and sacrificing to produce the tools for the war machine.

American boys fought until they were dizzy for lack of sleep, and kept fighting. Planes did things they never were built to do and stood the test.

HOME CANNERS MAY GET SUGAR Ration Board Gives Facts On Regulations

The Pitt county Sugar Ration Board revealed today that under the new sugar regulation, home canners may obtain one pound of sugar for every four quarts of finished canned fruit, and an additional pound of sugar for each member of the family unit for the packing of preserves, jams, jellies, and fruit butters.

One purpose of this regulation is to encourage home canning instead of preserving, since the amount of sugar required per unit of fruit is less in canning than in preserving.

Consumers wanting to take advantage of this new regulation may make application to their respective local rationing boards, using OPA Form No. R-315, which is the Special Purpose Application for a Sugar Purchase Certificate. One adult member of a family unit may apply for the entire family.

In making applications, consumers must furnish information which will enable the local boards to determine the quantity of sugar which the family unit needs.

An applicant must give the names of all consumers on whose behalf an application is filed, the serial numbers of their War Ration books, the number of quarts of fruit now in their possession and the number of quarts they intend to can during the period for which the application (Continued on page four)

The WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MacKENZIE, Wide-World News Analyst

The Japs, whose reputation for veracity isn't above reproach, claim they have been able to occupy western islands in the Aleutian chain off the Alaskan peninsula, and they emphasize this as having "pointed a sword at the enemy's throat."

Washington replies through a Navy spokesman: "We have no information about any Japanese on Alaskan soil. Certainly none of our inhabited areas, islands or rocks are troubled with uninvited visitors up to this time."

Well, if the little men of Nippon are lying, who can blame them for trying to save face with their home folk in view of our great victory at Midway? Admiral Nimitz, commander of the U. S. Pacific fleet, discloses that our Midway forces routed an armada of over thirty warships and that perhaps half the vessels of this great fleet were casualties, with the resulting deaths of thousands of Japanese.

That will take some explaining to the people of the Mikado's domains, and the claim of a landing in the Aleutians may make the task easier.

Nazis Claim Capture Of Bir Hacheim

British Positions In North Africa Endangered; Sevastopol Battle Rages

By The Associated Press A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch today reporting that the German Crimean armies had crossed the Strait of Kerch and landed on the mainland of the oil-rich Caucasus.

The broadcast said the Nazis had occupied the Caucasus town of Anapa. There was no confirmation of this elsewhere.

On the North African front, Hitler's high command asserted that Axis troops had captured Bir Hacheim, southern anchor of the 50-mile British defense line, while British headquarters declared that the Free French fighters had beaten off a new series of assaults on the key outpost.

A German submarine attack on a strongly escorted convoy in the Eastern Mediterranean, destined for

Cairo, June 11.—(AP)—The British command announced tonight that "on the orders of General Ritchie the garrison of Bir Hacheim"—former anchor of the British line in Libya—"was withdrawn during the night of June 10-11."

Tobruk (resulted in the sinking of two heavily laden tankers totaling 12,000 tons and the damaging of four transports by torpedoes, the high command reported.

The Germans said the British lost 21 planes in aerial combats in the Libyan area while German and Italian fighters destroyed eight British planes in day and night raids on airfields on Malta.

The Nazi commander said: "The port of Bir Hacheim, southern pillar of the British defensive system, was this morning taken by storm after several days of bitter resistance by strong enemy units encircled there."

The Free French commander of the garrison had previously rejected six Axis demands for surrender.

Confirmation of the German claim was lacking elsewhere and like past Nazi claims may be premature, although London military quarters said it probably was true.

British general headquarters said, supported by RAF planes, aided the Free French in repulsing Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's furious tank assaults on Bir Hacheim all day yesterday.

The German claim, if true, apparently would mean that the British flank had been placed in considerable danger and might mean a re-arrangement of the whole British front.

In the Russian campaign, bitter fighting raged in the seven-day-old German offensive against Sevastopol, Russia's big Crimean naval base, with 10 Nazi divisions of perhaps 150,000 troops thrown into the attack.

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters, which yesterday had claimed that Axis forces had lunged deep into Sevastopol's fortifications system, declared today that the Russians were making "desperate" counter-attacks and were being repulsed.

Sevastopol is the last Soviet stronghold in the Crimea, and apparently Hitler is intent on knocking it out before attempting a thrust into the Caucasus oil fields to the east.

Soviet dispatches said the Axis drive against Sevastopol was stalled, but acknowledged that the German armies again had taken the initiative in the battle-scarred sector of Kharkov, Russia's "Pittsburgh" in the Ukraine, 400 miles south of Moscow.

A Red army communique reported tersely that "a battle took place" around Kharkov. No details were given.

Pledge Guarantee Mutual Assistance

Neither To Enter Into Negotiations With Hitler Or Any German Government That Does Not Renounce Aggression; Favor A Post-War League of Nations

By DREW MIDDLETON London, June 11.—(AP) Pledging themselves to rebuild Europe on the terms of the Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic charter, Britain and Russia have signed a 20-year mutual assistance treaty "against Hitlerite Germany" Foreign Minister Anthony Eden announced today.

The pact was signed on May 26 by Eden and Russia's Foreign Commissar, Vyacheslav Molotov, at the British Foreign Office, five days after the Russian premier had returned to London on a route to Washington. Molotov now has returned to Moscow.

The United States was kept fully informed of the London negotiations, it was said. Japan is not mentioned in the British-Russian treaty.

The announcement was the first official disclosure that Molotov had been in the United States or London.

It was announced that Molotov had had "most useful and satisfactory" talks with the President in Washington.

Paralleling the London treaty talks was a series of military discussions in which the "urgent need" of a second European front was agreed upon, it was announced.

Eden said that a "full understanding" had been reached with "regard to the urgent task of creating a second front in Europe in 1942," but whether the actual opening of such a front was definitely decided on was not stated.

The 20-year treaty, which Foreign Commissar Molotov signed at the Foreign Office here for Russia, provides for common action to preserve peace and resist aggression in the post-war period.

It pledges the nations "not to enter into any negotiations" with Hitler's government or any German government that fails to denounce aggression.

Molotov agreed to the treaty on the evening of May 25 after three days of discussion.

The treaty was signed by Eden and Molotov with a gold mounted fountain pen belonging to Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Britain and Russia agreed to render one another "all possible economic assistance after the war" and to avoid participation in any alliance directed against the other contracting power.

Molotov has "now got back to Moscow," Eden said. In the reconstruction of Europe, the two nations agreed to be guided by the principles of "not seeking territorial aggrandizement for themselves" and "not interfering in the internal affairs of other states," Eden said.

The treaty negotiations were accompanied by a series of military discussions in which the "urgent need" of a European front, although not necessarily this year, was agreed upon.

The two countries have agreed, Eden said, that they would "work" (Continued on Page Six)

Red Cross First Aiders Graduate

A Red Cross class in first aid, taught by Mrs. C. C. Hilton, at the High School on Wednesday and Friday nights, will complete the 20-hour course Friday night and receive certificates as first aid workers. New classes are formed as soon as a class completes its course.

"The need for first aid workers and home nurses is vital at this time when so many registered nurses and physicians are entering the armed services of the country," said June H. Rose, assistant director of civilian defense for North Carolina. The former state commander of the American Legion reminded that on Wednesday and Friday nights there are more than 1,000 men and women assembled in Red Cross first aid classes.

A number of the first aid class to graduate here Friday are connected with the civilian defense control center.

British Bombers Raid French Area London, June 11.—(AP)—British fighters blasted Nazi airbases in the Low Countries and military targets in northern France last night, the Air Ministry announced today, as bad weather over the continent was blamed for keeping the RAF away from Germany for the second successive night.

All planes participating in the overnight forays returned safely to their bases, a communique said. Targets reported attacked in occupied France included a power station and railway communication lines.

WPA Saved Washington, June 11 (AP)—The House refused today, by a 199 to 66, to abolish the WPA.

The vote came on a motion by Rep. Pearson (D-Tenn.), to strike on the WPA bill an appropriation for the fiscal year beginning next month.

A bill earlier, the House refused by a 400 to 100, to cut the proposed WPA fund to half.

Vacation Bible School. The rain today did not prevent 65 faculty members and students from attending the vacation school at Memorial Baptist Church. Such an attendance is indicative of the sustaining interest of the boys and girls.

Mrs. J. E. Spilman has been added to the faculty of the Intermediate department as teacher of Bible. This morning she directed the study of the sixth chapter of Mark. The girls of the department are knitting squares for a quilt which will be given to the Red Cross. Mrs. C. E. Blair is directing this project.

Your scribe made two visits to the Junior department. On his first visit he saw two boys delighting the department with a dialogue, which taught the lesson that it is better for a boy to attend Vacation Bible school than to run around in search of pleasure. When your scribe made his second visit he was shown some doll beds which the girls had just made. During the handwork period the boys completed work on their bird houses. Tomorrow they will begin work on book racks.

Miss Jane Hall and Miss Ruth White today served refreshments to the school.

The school will enjoy a picnic tomorrow at the recreation grounds on Cotanche street—Reported.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR June 11, 1902

The educational rally at Farmville Wednesday was a great occasion. Fully a thousand people were present and an influence for education was awakened that will no doubt result in much good.

After the speaking by Governor Aycock the occasion was turned into a picnic and the remainder of the day given over to pleasure.

Farmville has become greatly interested in graded schools, and will have one before a great while.

The program for the afternoon was presented by Mrs. Whichard, who very ably presented the topic, "Living High in the Andies." This was indeed one of the most interesting tours we have had in our study of "The Good Neighbor Tour of the American Republics."

We were delighted to have as guests Mrs. W. L. Whichard, Miss Elizabeth Bridgers, and Mrs. A. L. Hughes of Atlanta, Ga.

Hammack-Rogerson.
The Memorial Baptist Church, in Greenville, was the scene of the wedding Saturday morning, June 8, of Miss Marguerite Rogerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Thaddeus Rogerson, and Theodore Turner Hammack of Spottswood and Blackstone, Virginia, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Hammack of Blackstone.

The church was decorated with white flowers. The Reverend J. D. Simons, pastor of the bride, officiated, using the ring ritual.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a blue ensemble and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies. Her accessories were white.

Miss Louise Speight was maid of honor and the only attendant. She wore a pink dress with navy and white accessories and carried a bouquet of mixed spring flowers. The bride's mother wore a blue triple sheer dress. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of pink roses.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Miss Velma McConnell, and Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Parkinson sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told."

During the ceremony Miss McCannell played "A Wild Rose" and "Romance" by McDowell; Schubert's Serenade, and Theme in "D," by Tchaikowsky. The traditional bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" by Wagner, and Mendelssohn's Recessional from "Midsummer Night's Dream" were used.

Ellis Hammack of Richmond, nephew of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Russell Rogerson, brother of the bride; Bradley Roebuck of Wilmington; cousin of the bride; Sidney Johnson and Carl Whitehurst of Greenville.

Mrs. Hammack is a graduate of East Carolina Teachers College and has done graduate work at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. She was a member of the faculty in Clinch during the past two years.

Mr. Hammack is a graduate of Hampden-Sydney. He also attended William and Mary, and has done graduate work at the University of North Carolina. Mr. Hammack is principal of Spottswood School, Spottswood, Va.

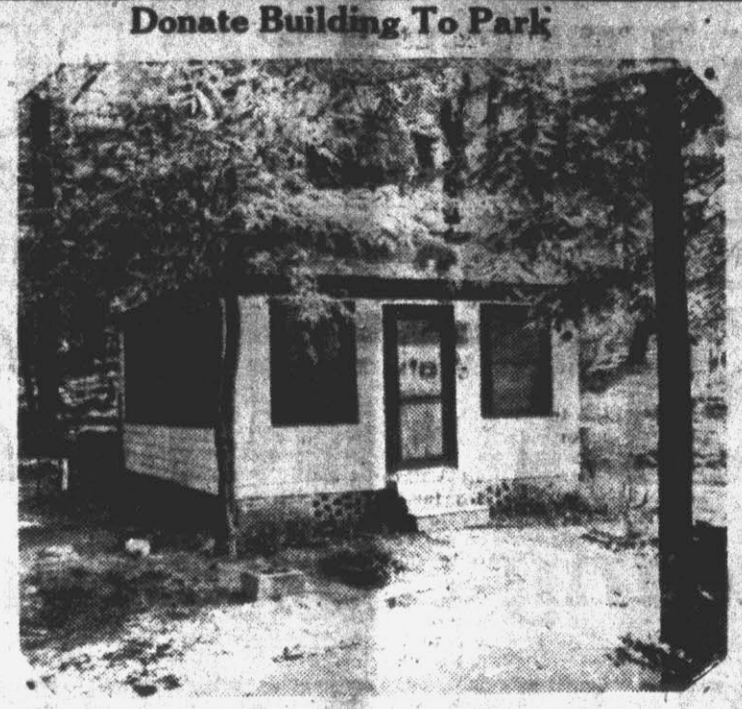

After a short wedding trip, the couple will be at Chapel Hill where Mr. Hammack will be in school.

On Friday evening Miss Louise Speight entertained the wedding party and out-of-town guests at her home near Greenville, with a buffet dinner. The bride's place was marked by a corsage of gardenias.

After the dinner the party re-heated at the church for the wedding.

Following the rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Rogerson entertained at the cake-cutting at their home on Summit street. The home was decorated in white lilies, gardenias and other summer flowers.

Out-of-town guests here for the wedding included: Mrs. F. E. Palmerton of Blackstone, Va.; Mrs. Gordon Burton of Richmond; Miss Inez Breedlove of Blackstone; Mr. Ellis Hammack of Richmond; Mr. R. B. Roebuck and Mr. Bradley Roebuck of Wilmington; Mrs. J. S. Rogerson

Entertain For Miss Cooper.
Mrs. S. T. White and Mrs. J. B. Hayes entertained at a lovely luncheon today at the home of Mrs. White, honoring Miss Fannie Spottswood Cooper, bride-elect of this month.

The summer motif was artistically used in the luncheon appointments. Guests were greeted on the porch by Misses Mary Lee Cooper and Nita Lee Townsend, and presented to the hostesses and their honor guest, who received in the reception hall. Miss Cooper wore a corsage, the gift of the hostesses.

Pink roses, gypsophelia and feverfew, effectively arranged, decorated the rooms in which small tables, in groups of four, were placed. The spacious porch was lovely with vases and bowls of colorful summer flowers. In the dining room the central table was covered with an exquisite cloth of lace and embroidered and centered with a silver bowl of pink roses, blue double larkspur, feverfew and gypsophelia. Presiding in the dining room were Mrs. J. H. Blount and Mrs. F. J. Forbes.

The hostesses presented the honoree a gift of china in her pattern. The guest list included about fifty of Miss Cooper's friends.

Air Raid Control Group To Practice

The civilian defense air raid control center will hold a practice session in the lobby of the City Hall tonight under the direction of Charles A. White, commander of the Greenville unit. Mayor D. A. Herring, of the United States Army, liaison officer with the North Carolina Civilian Defense Council, will be present to assist in setting up the system to be used in case of an air raid by the enemy.

The control center is set up on instructions from the army. It consists of a commander, executive officer and controller and varied staff. At this point air raid wardens in different parts of the area of Eastern Carolina will phone in reports of approaching enemy planes.

The control center is arranged somewhat like the stock exchange, with telephones, messengers, bulletin boards, etc. When reports are received from air raid wardens of the approach of enemy planes or from the U. S. Army at Norfolk, Va., main control center for this part of North Carolina, the signals are flashed in the control room at the City Hall.

If Greenville is ever attacked the staff of the control center would be on the job in a jiffy. Reports of approaching enemy planes would be reported. In case of assault the information would filter in from all over the county to the control center. If there were a fire the controller at headquarters here would notify the chief fire warden. If a bomb broke a water or gas main or damaged an electric line the utilities warden would be notified, and so on. And, in case of a raid, the control center would be in operation.

People Invited To Use Play Centers

Greenville is well provided with play space for children—an effective influence against juvenile delinquency, said Mrs. D. M. Clark, chairman of the Greenville WPA Recreation Committee. "For a year the city has assumed responsibility for providing for the young folks and the mayor and aldermen have given fine support and encouragement. There are four play areas for whites and two for Negroes. They were equipped and have been maintained now for more than a year. Gifts of brick for picnic chimneys from the late R. E. Sellers and $222 donated help to finance the program during the first few months of operation.

The park, or play area, nearest to completion is the Cotanche street park. Families, clubs and other groups are finding comfort in this park area, which is free to the public. The recreational project, sponsored by the WPA and the city, is for the people of the city, especially the children. They are always welcome," Mrs. Clark said.

Mrs. Earl Henby is very much improved from a recent illness.

It is to train those engaged in civilian defense work in their duties. It is a process of being ready for any emergency during the war. # Jews Suffer Great Persecutions At Hands Of The Nazis

60 PER CENT JEWS DRIVEN OUT GERMANY

Those Remaining Deprived Of All Rights As Citizens

Editor's Note: The status of the Jew under Nazism is described by Louis F. Lochner, chief of the former Associated Press and Wide World bureau in Berlin, in this ninth of a daily series for The Daily Reflector since his return from internment in Germany.

By LOUIS F. LOCHNER
New York, June 11.—(Wide World) Because of Adolf Hitler's blind hatred, the Jew is a marked man wherever Nazism holds sway. The yellow five-pointed star with the German word "Jude," or its Czech or Dutch or other foreign language equivalent, points him out as a person who must be avoided.

In Nazi Germany the treatment of the Jew has alternated between broken promises and sadistic cruelty. That the Jew would be removed from public office and possibly also dislodged from cultural positions of influence, once the Nazis came into power, was apparent long before Adolf Hitler took over on January 30, 1933.

The Nazis themselves, however, were careful to say that the Jew could continue in business. Soon he was not only barred from every form of business and his property virtually confiscated. Today he is unable even to go into a shop except during certain hours, and then only if there is no sign to the effect that "We Don't Sell To Jews."

Restaurants are closed to the Jew. If he is found in a movie theater, the concentration camp is certain for him.

In 1934 the so-called Nurnberg laws defining the status of the Jew were passed by the Reichstag during the Nazi party annual convention. The laws were stringent, but there was a clearly defined basis for his further existence in the Reich. The Nurnberg laws have long since been put in the discard except when it is possible to invoke them to the disfavor of the Jew. The plain fact is that the Jew stands beyond the pale of any law. Until quite recently, he still had the comforting thought in some cases that the firm in whose service he had grown grey would continue to pay him the pension accorded all faithful workers reaching the retirement age.

But last March, Hitler decreed that all firms must report what pensions they still pay Jews. Everyone acquainted with Nazi practices knew instinctively that this foreshadowed the cancellation of pensions for Jews. The extraordinary powers voted to Hitler by the Reichstag April 26, whereby he can do anything he pleases without even the semblance of due process of law, confirmed this fear.

It now comes to this: Any Jew appearing on the streets is marked by a Jew-star band. If he waits for a street car, his Aryan fellow commuters have the right to climb into the vehicle firm. Since all cars are crowded in wartime during rush hours because of the exceedingly limited service, the Jew might as well give up hope of securing transportation. He is not allowed to take an taxi, and he is not permitted to enter a railway train except with a special permit.

But supposing he had the rare good fortune of crowding on to a trolley or street car, he may not take a seat unless Aryans have first been seated, on many an occasion we Americans have encountered angry glares by dyed-in-the-wool Nazis for offering our seats to some emaciated, bent old Jewish lady.

On the other hand it must be said that we also at times witnessed scenes of real courage, especially on the part of German men in military uniforms, who likewise yielded their places when some particularly miserable-looking Jewish individual entered.

German food rations are notoriously meager; so meager, in fact, that more than 50 per cent of those receiving food cards are awarded supplementary rations as "heavy workers" and "heaviest workers." The Jew cannot get beyond the stage of the basic food ration.

From time to time, as a sop to the population, small extra favors are granted. During a certain week everybody is permitted to buy a few chocolate drops, or a few ounces of coffee, or two eggs for Easter, or what-not. No Jew ever participates in these extras.

Even in his own home he is not master of his fate. That he may not have any servants goes without saying. But he is not permitted to dispose of any rug or article of furniture without official permission.

The reason is two-fold: Many Jews managed, by bartering their last valuables against food, to obtain a little added sustenance. This was a thorn in the flesh of the Nazis. But probably carrying more weight was the fact that, when the wholesale banishments to former Poland began, Nazi party ward healers were often disappointed, on breaking into the abandoned homes of Jews, by failure to find anything of real value.

The history of these evacuations is one of the darkest blots on the Nazi conscience. Jews soon dreaded looking into their mail boxes, for any morning a Gestapo notice might come telling them they must be ready in so-and-so many days for evacuation. They were permitted to take with them only what they could carry on their persons and in their hands; and even here the number and kinds of articles were strictly limited.

Children were separated from their parents; often married couples were torn asunder.

During the dead of the night, when kind-hearted Germans would not see these ghastly processions, they were herded together in some former synagogue (the right of worship was also denied Jews), and from these on into the most primitive third-class cars, without knowing where they were headed for.

I know of cases where the unheated train in the dead of winter suddenly stopped on a bleak, cold field in eastern Poland, with the sharp Russian wind blowing across the wild steppes, and everybody was told to get out.

The Jews then had to begin a trek of four or five miles to some little ghetto village assigned to them. Their one larger suit case in the baggage car, were told, would follow them. It never arrived.

What little they carried in their hands often had to be abandoned because their hands were freezing. Others who clung to their possessions until they reached their destination found they had meanwhile frozen a limb or two.

By strong-arm methods like these, gradually almost 60 per cent of Germans professing the Jewish faith were ousted. There are only about 300,000 Orthodox Jews left in the Reich.

It must be said for the decent element in Germany that these practices of the Nazi bureaucracy were related in hushed whispers from mouth to mouth in horror and shame, but there was nothing, apparently, that anybody could do in the face of Nazi terrorism.

To sympathize with a Jew meant loss of position and possibly worse.

UNFAIR TO LOVE

By Watkins E. Wright

Chapter 26
Stubborn Girl
As the days passed Joe had the feeling that Kathleen had walked straight out of his life. So far as ever getting an opportunity to talk to her, he and she might as well have been living on opposite sides of the globe.

He forced himself to keep hard at work, trying to improve upon the play, giving a "homey" air to his reviews. There was certainly plenty to do—and he liked working. But he couldn't keep his thoughts from returning again and again to Kathleen and the dreams and hopes he had so long held where she was concerned.

Finally there came a day when he could no longer resist the urge to see her, to talk to her. He wrote a last item to his column—an item about Miss Camilla's furniture being used to outfit a stage setting—and then placed the cover over his typewriter. He picked up some rewritten scenes of his play, planless ran down the worn stairs of the Linville Gazette Building, and jumped into his car.

Not long afterwards he was facing Lizzie out at the Vaughan residence. "No, Mr. Joe," said Lizzie, "she ain't to home. Seems like she ain't never to home no more."

"Okay," said Joe. "Thanks, Lizzie." He turned to go, but Lizzie had an idea. "Ah got some sugar-cured ham for supper, Mr. Joe," she said. "No kidding?" said Joe. "An' it's a shame for Mr. Frank to be eatin' by himself all the time."

"Are you going around your elbow to ask me to stay and eat some of that ham?" Lizzie's face brightened. "Yas," she said. "Ah shore hates seeing good food go to waste."

"Then I'll stay," said Joe. "Sure I'm not going to be a pest?" "Lawsy, Mr. Joe, you-all ain't never no pest." Lizzie hustled off, calling back, "You-all just set the table and cool off. Ah'll go add the final fixings."

Joe dropped down into a porch chair. He took the rewritten scenes of the play from his pocket, and tried to read them. But he felt no interest. He jammed the typed sheets back into his pocket, and stared out across the well-kept yard. He was still staring, lost in thought, when Mr. Frank drove up.

Supper For Two
"Hello, Joe, boy!" Mr. Frank greeted. "Waiting for someone?" "No," said Joe. "I'm waiting for some sugar-cured ham. Smell it?" Mr. Frank sniffed the air. "Do I?" he said. "My, that smells appetizing. Where's Kathleen?" "I thought you were waiting for her."

"She's not coming home," said Joe. He explained about the telephone call. "Lizzie thought you might like to have me eat with you."

"Lizzie's right," said Mr. Frank. He sat down upon the top step. "Kathleen's been as scarce as hen's teeth here of late. Oh, well, I suppose rehearsing is an exacting business."

"Evidently," said Joe dryly. "But not unexciting when you have a handsome actor to coach you, and drive you back and forth to the theater."

"Don't let it get you down, Joe," said Uncle Frank. "I don't think it's going to come to anything."

"What's not going to come to anything?" Joe demanded. "All this stage-struck business. Ruby told me the longer Kathleen rehearsed, the more certain she became that she was an amateur and nothing more."

"She did?" Joe brightened. "You mean she thinks this acting craze of Kathleen's will turn out to be just a sort of teapot tempest?" Uncle Frank nodded. "I only hope Kathleen won't take it too hard," he said.

Lizzie called them to supper then. "Come on," said Uncle Frank. "Let's go wash up."

Presently, washed up, their hair neatly combed and brushed, the two men walked into the dining room. Lizzie beamed upon them.

"Ah shore does love cookin' for men-folks," she said, bustling about the table. "Men-folks always eats like they enjoys it."

"And when men-folks have a cook lace you, Lizzie," said Uncle Frank, "they just naturally have to eat." Lizzie smiled her thanks. "Had it occurred to you, Joe," said Mr. Frank, "that you've got a fine opportunity to squelch Kathleen's plans to be an actress?" "How?" said Joe.

At Dutch Harbor

"Have a Western sandwich on me," said Fred. "They're about the only things our cook knows how to make. The coffee's tired, too—but it's hot."

"All right," said Ruby. "I suppose I'll have to take something, if I'm to get through the show to-night."

Her order was given, and when it was placed before her, she gave it her listless attention. "I'm worried, Fred," she said. "What about?" Fred wanted to know.

"Kathleen—Paul."

"You mean—off stage?"

"Yes."

"And Paul's worried about you on stage. He thinks you make too early an entrance—that you deliberately try to spoil his scene with Kathleen." Fred eyed her with one brow arched. "Do you do it—deliberately?"

"No, I don't," answered Ruby. "It's only Paul's imagination. But it gives me an idea."

"Yes, go on," said Fred. "This ought to be good."

"I'd do it deliberately on the night we open," said Ruby. "If I thought it would finish forever Kathleen's feeble chances of getting anywhere with a stage career."

"Has Paul said anything about Laura of late?" Fred asked.

"Only when I referred to her," said Ruby. "Then he nearly bit my head off."

"Do you think we ought to tell Kathleen about her?"

"It wouldn't do any good. Kathleen's too stage-struck at the moment to care. Besides, she might develop a terrific sympathy for Paul—and then things would be even worse."

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

PLACE BURDENS WHERE THEY BELONG

There are two burdens no man can bear, and burdens, furthermore, God never intends us to bear. The first is the burden of sin; the second, the burden of self. The Bible tells us that God has no interest in helping us bear these burdens. Before He will help us bear any burden He requires us to put these burdens absolutely upon Him and forget about them.

The burden of our sins was once for all assumed by Christ when He suffered on the cross. He came into the world not to help men conquer sin but to persuade them to accept Him and allow Him to do His supernatural power to conquer it. The Bible tells us there is a cure for sin. We are not to regard ourselves as patients continuously coming back to a clinic for treatment; rather we are to regard ourselves as those whose opportunity and privilege it is to be cured of this deadly once and for all.

As to the burden of self, we can be sure that so long as we worry about ourselves, our future, our health, our position, our standing in the community, we can never really unleash our energy and get down to real business. The man who is always on his own mind is unsteady and frustrated. It is never until he puts the burden of self upon the burden of sin where they belong, namely, in God's hands, that he will be able to do the work and live the life he should.

According to announcement from Washington, the government is going to issue a "Win The War" postage stamp on July 4. To our way of thinking the best "win the war" stamp at this time is the War Savings Stamp. If every citizen will go the limit in purchasing War Stamps and Bonds it will go a long way toward helping to purchase the necessary materials to help us win the war.

In their campaign of reprisals for the assassination of Reinhard Heydrich the Nazis are reported to have shot all the men, sent the women and children to concentration camps and completely razed a Czech village and ordered its name removed forever from the maps. The Hitlerites might think that by such reigns of terror they will be able to subdue the people of conquered lands but instead they are only piling up grievances that must and will be avenged in that day of reckoning when the war turns against Hitler and the maniacs that are doing his bidding.

As was to have been expected the Japs have now come forward with big claims as to their victories at Midway and Dutch Harbor, but according to a lot of people's way of thinking, it's another case of the Japs losing their pants trying to save face and now all the exaggerated claims are to keep the Jap people from finding out what a licking the fleet really has taken.

According to letters of appreciation being received from service men who have visited our city, our local service men's organization, with the cooperation of our people as a whole, is doing a fine job of furnishing entertainment for the men over the week-ends. Greenville has gained for itself a wide reputation for hospitality to the service men which should be an incentive to us not to let up in our efforts along this line.

Washington Daybook

By Leo S. Brown

Washington—The Navy is (and has been for some time) stealing a march on the Army.

For purposes of clarification, I'm going to tell the story of a young lad I know, because it explains how the Navy is doing it. This chap is a statistician with a master's degree from Harvard. His selective service rating is 3-A. He's married. His present job isn't one of the best from a remunerative standpoint. He's patriotic, he decided to enlist, but felt his training should merit a commission, especially since all the armed forces are scrambling for the best available special ability.

His first choice was the Army. He put in an application through the adjutant general's office. After a couple of weeks, he inquired what had happened. Nothing, they said, and probably nothing would for some months to come. His second choice was the Army air corps. Desk specialists, he was told, had to be over 30 years old. There wasn't a chance for him for years yet.

In sheer desperation, he applied to the Navy. Forty-eight hours after he applied, he was taking the physical. He passed it and a few days after that was notified that he could have his commission any time he wanted it.

Why? In his specific field, this young man is topnotch officer material. Why did the Army turn him down and the Navy snap him up? The question is being asked by thousands. I personally know of four other young men who are in the same boat.

The answer really isn't so complicated. The Army draws its millions from Selective Service. The Navy (although it now has the as yet unexercised privilege of calling upon Selective Service for required personnel) is still the voluntary enlistment branch of the armed forces.

On a basis of percentages, the Army so far has been able to get most of its office and paper work specialists from the men called up through the regular channels of Selective Service. Furthermore, all enlistments of draft registrants in the Army have to clear through Selective Service. Why? Because the whole theory of Selective Service is that the local draft boards, operating under instructions from national Selective Service, are the best judges of whether a man should go into the armed forces or stay on the civilian battlefield.

The Navy, not (until recently at least) having anything to do with Selective Service, is only interested in supplying its needs. The result is that (physical fitness and a few other things aside) it's easier to get into the Navy than the Army. If you have special skill that is on the priority list,

OPPORTUNITY

On Thursday night of last week there met in the Greenville High School auditorium one of the finest gatherings Pitt County has ever assembled.

It was a meeting of Civilian Defense workers. It was fine and ennobling because of its spirit of determination, of willing service to community and country, of same preparation against danger and against a way of life which is destructive of all the ideals of our American way of life.

There were gathered together men and women from all the walks of life represented in Pitt County. There were no distinctions of race, religion, age, occupation, or wealth. It was the meeting of a democracy. Those gathered there represented the earnest, responsible members of their communities. They were all busy people, dedicating a portion of their full and profitable lives to the cause of defending Pitt County against Japanese bombers. Many hours have these Civilian Defense workers already given. They will give willingly and earnestly of many more hours in sincere preparation which will not only enable us to be ready for the emergencies of war, but which will also actually prevent such emergencies arising here. For where the enemy knows us to be prepared and unafraid he acknowledges the ineffectuality of attack. Another quality of the gathering which was ennobling was the realization which one gained as he looked about the room that these people were not alone. That, after all, there are many more of us equally as willing, equally as aware, equally as determined. Back of these C. D. workers are others of us who are earnestly ready to do our parts to support them and to support our armed forces. Where we can serve we will serve.

One of the most effectual ways of serving our country is to learn how to care for our people, whether in the emergencies of wars, attacks, and the epidemics which inevitably come upon us with war, or in the matters of healthful, wholesome everyday living and in the emergencies of peace time living of which we are less aware, but which are no less vital to our country.

For those of us who want to serve, courses in First Aid are being offered continuously throughout Pitt County. These courses, too, are of the spirit of democracy.

If you are interested in taking a course in First Aid call or see C. W. Willard, head of First Aid in Pitt County.

The WAR TODAY

tiny, unoccupied rock. Anyway, if none of our "inhabited areas, islands or rocks," have been occupied, any argument about the matter is a tempest in a teapot. There are plenty of uninhabited spots among the volcanic pimples which form the islands in the western Aleutians where a Jap or a monkey could clamber ashore and hang on, though such a precarious perch would be a painful liability. The Aleutians swing westward from the Alaskan peninsula in a great curve for a thousand miles toward Kamchatka and Japan. Most of these islands are volcanic and some are active. They have rocky coasts and are very dangerous to approach because the land rises sharply from the sea to steep mountains.

The weather is an abomination, for though most of the year the Aleutians are shrouded in fogs which frequently give way to hurricanes. In some sections the hurricanes are punctuated by dangerous whirlwinds, violent icy blasts. It is a most inhospitable picture. June and July are the only months which provide decent weather and this fact presumably was one thing which encouraged the Japs to attack. By the same token they may return to the assault.

Unalaska, which lies near the tip of the Alaskan peninsula, is the biggest of the Aleutians and our air-naval base of Dutch Harbor is on an island in Unalaska bay. This base is about 140 miles from the peninsula and, as I have pointed out before, is of great strategic value because it not only is guardian of the northwest approach to our continent but the Japs fear it as a starting point for operations against Japan proper.

The position of Dutch Harbor becomes more significant when the National Geographic Society points out that "though it does not appear so on the flat map, Dutch Harbor is virtually on the shortest possible route from Seattle to Tokyo. This is true because of the curvature of the earth, which makes the great circle route the shortest distance between two points."

Had the Japanese captured Dutch Harbor they would have created a serious position for us.

However, the best they claim is occupation of something or other in the western Aleutians.

Army Fliers . . .

number was not large—Americans died. But in dying they took enemies down in flames with them.

This part of the story is that of the army's land-based aircraft, for them the battle started the afternoon of June 3 when they got in the first punch.

Two huge Japanese fleets were approaching Midway, one consisting principally of transports from the west and the other of the battle fleet from another direction.

General Willis T. Hale of Colorado Springs, commander of the Hawaiian bombardment command, told how Americans got in the first decisive blow.

Army bombers made their first contact with the enemy far to the west of Midway the afternoon of June 3. Bombs, dropped in a medium altitude, struck the Japanese one cruiser or battleship which was left in flames, as were also one transport and one destroyer.

The following morning, army planes took off anticipating that Japanese planes from the second enemy fleet—which was much closer than the force bombed the previous afternoon—would hit the island. Marine fliers also hopped off and were in the air when the Japanese arrived.

Twenty minutes later, Marine dive bombers swarmed down on Japanese ships, adding further destruction. Navy dive-bombers and the same time, but the details have been released.

At 8:30 a. m. Army heavy bombers—flying fortresses—attacked the Japanese battle fleet from a high altitude, hitting one carrier.

Meanwhile, Japanese planes from carriers were attacking Midway. Their first attack made at a high level by heavy demolition bombs, lasted 30 minutes.

Japanese dive-bombers then slipped out of the sun and attacked Midway's ground installations while pursuit planes followed with strafing attacks. At least 180 enemy planes participated in the attacks.

Marine fighters engaged the enemy planes and the Marine ground defenders cut loose with everything from anti-aircraft to sidearms.

The Japanese did not bomb runways, apparently expecting to occupy the islands and use them for an airbase.

Shortly after the Japanese withdrew, the American planes returned to refuel and take on more bombs.

"This was the critical period of the entire battle for our land-based airforce," said General Hale.

"But the enemy didn't come back. They were too busy protecting themselves. From then on the Japanese were withdrawing and it was a series of mopping up operations."

Col. Walter C. Sweeney, Jr., of San Francisco, son of Major General Walter C. Sweeney, led the squadron of flying fortresses in attacks both on June 3 and 4.

Colonel Sweeney told of the attacks from close up.

"Everyone of our squadrons got into the Midway battle before it ended and my squadron was lucky enough to have been in three attacks," he said. "Any commander would have given a right arm to have been in our position."

Sweeney and other crewmen of the B-17's praised their planes most enthusiastically, some saying: "These planes will win the war."

Crews of the flying fortresses said the Japanese fliers never pressed the home attacks on the American bombers, not a single one of which was shot down, whereas the fortresses downed three and possibly four enemy Zero fighters.

Sweeney's squadron lost two men on the ground at Midway but the only other casualty was one rear-gunner who was shot through the finger.

"Frankly, we didn't stay around too long to check up. Anti-aircraft fire was making things hot, and we left in a hurry."

"We really were happy as we headed home. We had our first taste of battle and had given the Japs a taste of our striking power."

"We hopped off the next morning at dawn under orders to attack the same enemy force. After a short while new orders came over the radio, and we were told to attack even a larger Japanese battle fleet which already was close to Midway."

"That change didn't puzzle our navigator, Lieut. Bill Adams of San Bernardino, Calif., who as far as I'm concerned is the best navigator in the world."

"Adams told me we would reach our targets at 34 minutes after the hour, and sure enough we hit it to the minute. Capt. Paul Payne of Des Moines, Ia., sighted the enemy first through broken clouds."

"There was a big battle line, with destroyers outside, then cruisers, battleships and away back the carriers which we picked for our target."

"We picked the biggest carrier and headed for it."

"The minutes our bomb-bays opened, the ack-ack started coming up. The Japs must have good range-finders because the first shots were right at our altitude."

"The Jap ships started their frantic escape maneuvers but our pattern of bombs blanketed a carrier. We got at least one definite hit on the port bow of the carrier and saw flame and smoke of the explosion."

"Even in the midst of the attack we have time to chuckle over our bombardier who coolly remarked over the plane's radio: 'My God, that anti-aircraft looks beautiful through this telescope.'"

"It looked beautiful, all right, but it also looked dangerous, so we headed out and away."

"A few Zeros came up at us but we lost them quickly due to our speed and their faint-heartedness."

"We streaked for our base and found that Midway had been bombed while we were out there. So we loaded as rapidly as possible and got back into the air and sped back toward the battle line."

"Adams was doing his job as usual, and at four p. m. we found the enemy. We saw one carrier and one capital ship burning. They were lying dead, not making headway, and obviously they were badly damaged."

"No undamaged carrier was visible, so we picked out the biggest ship we could see—a heavy cruiser. We let go at it. One bomb struck it directly amidships and left it smoking and badly damaged."

"When we got back to our base our planes and crews both needed rest badly so Lieut. Colonel Brook Allen took over with his squadron."

Marines . . .

fire and fighter opposition said: "I can't get over those young Marine pilots, many of them kids just out of flying school."

"One Marine pilot couldn't get his wheels retracted after the take-off, so he was unable to fight. Instead of flying away from the battle area he stayed at 48 feet above the water. He let a Zero fighter get on his tail, then let it over our anti-aircraft which shot it down. Then he did the same stunt with another Jap."

"Before the fight started we were boasting with Marine dive bomber pilots—it was just bear talk—over what we would do to the Japs. They told us: 'We'll cripple every one of their carriers, we'll sink them.' As it turned out we hit the Japs first. But when those Marine pilots came back they told us they had kept their word and hit every single carrier they had sighted."

"Another Army pilot said: 'When we landed after bombing the Jap fleet, the morning of June 4 we found Midway had been attacked. Many of the Marines were dead but the survivors were the coolest and most determined bunch of men I ever saw.'"

"Grunners were sitting around patting their guns, picking their teeth, glaring skyward and saying to one another: 'I wish those would come back soon.'"

"We expected them back at any moment and were hurrying to get off again. We knew if we made it we would be okay. But those Marines weren't going anywhere. It was their job to stick and fight, if necessary to the death. There's never been anything like it."

Home Canners . . .

Consumers who had excess amount of sugar and were not issued War Ration Books at the time of the sugar rationing registration may also make application for sugar under the home canning regulation.

In their cases, the amount of sugar to which they may be entitled for home canning will be subtracted from their excess, and if this is less than the maximum permitted at the time of registration, they will be issued War Ration Books at the end of the fourth ration period, June 27. Other details may be worked out with local rationing boards, which will be guided by instructions issued from the Washington office of the OPA.

The OPA warned that on any subsequent application for sugar for purposes of home canning, the applicant will be required to report the number of quarts of fruit actually canned with the sugar previously obtained, and the quantity of sugar and canned goods remaining on hand. A person making a false report will be subject to the penalties prescribed for violation of the rationing regulations.

If any of the sugar allotted for home canning was not used in accordance with regulations, stamps will be removed from War Ration

Books equivalent in weight value to the amount of sugar improperly used.

The OPA said the same general principle of basing the allowance upon the quantity of units packed applies to commercial canning as well as home canning under the sugar rationing regulations.

This method of allocation is believed to be more satisfactory than the original allotment of five pounds per person inasmuch as some families do more home canning than others, and canning conditions vary in different sections of the country.

Persons who wish to apply for sugar for canning purposes, should make application with the site administrator in the community in which they registered.

In addition to physicians, nurses, ministers and those in certain civic services, all persons directly or indirectly connected with the war's production are eligible to purchase a new car. This regulation has behind it the patriotic purpose of enabling these persons to replace worn and inefficient cars with modern, economical transportation. If you are in any way connected with a war activity—or if your present car should be replaced—come in. We will help you determine whether you are eligible, and then help you get a "certificate of purchase" on a new Pontiac.

Roger Cramer Joins Ranks Baseball's Record Hitters

TOPS COVETED 2,000TH MARK

Goal Reached by Only Seven Other Still Active Players

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Step by step the present stars of the major leagues are finding their way into the hallowed company of baseball's old-time all-time standouts.

The latest to earn a place on the permanent honor roll of the game is Roger (Doc) Cramer, the Detroit Tigers' outfielder, who made three hits against the New York Yankees yesterday to lift his lifetime total to 2,001, a level that has been reached by only seven other players still active in the major leagues.

Dick Bartell of the New York Giants entered the 2,000 hit class in April and Mel Ott, Paul and Lloyd Waner, Jimmie Foxx, Joe Cronin and Charley Gehringer already were there. Joe Medwick and Billy Herman of Brooklyn have a good chance of qualifying near the end of the season.

Cramer's achievement in his 14th year in the American League called attention to Paul (Big Poison) Waner, who in his 17th season needs only five hits to total 2,000. Including Cramer, just 77 batters in the history of the major leagues have passed 2,000 hits, but only six have reached Waner's goal. Everyone that made it now is memorialized in baseball's hall of fame at Cooperstown—Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Honus Wagner, Eddie Collins, Nap Lajoie and Cap Anson.

The three hits by Cramer were important individually, but they had nothing to do with the Tigers beating the world champions, 4-1.

The blows that counted in that battle were a homer in the fifth by Jim Bloodworth and another by Ned Harris with two on in the 11th.

It was the first time this year that the Yanks had been beaten in extra innings, but the overtime was not entirely wasted by New York in this game. Joe Gordon got an added turn at bat and, with two out in the last of the 11th, singled to extend his hitting streak to 27 consecutive games.

Paul Waner notched his 2,095th hit last night, but his Boston mates collected only three others off Rip Sewell, who pitched the Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-0 shutout over the Braves.

It was the sixth straight win in the longest streak of the season for the Braves and the ninth straight setback for the Yankees. Sewell drove in two of the runs by singling with the bases loaded.

In another night contest, the New York Giants climbed into a third place tie in the National League with Cincinnati by beating the Reds, 6-1 their fifth straight victory over the Redlegs.

Johnny Mize and Harry Danning led the nine-hit attack on three Cincinnati hurlers, driving in two runs each. Mize had three hits in four times at bat, including a pair of doubles.

Big Bill Lee acquired his eighth victory of the season as the Chicago

Weather kept the Brooklyn Dodgers idle at St. Louis again.

The Boston Red Sox reinforced their hold on second place in the American League by trimming the St. Louis Browns, 10-3.

The Chicago White Sox made the Philadelphia Athletics exchange places in the cellar by beating the A's 4-1.

The Cleveland Indians, held scoreless for eight innings by Buck Newsom, moved ahead with a three-run rally in the ninth, but had to go 12 innings to beat the Washington Senators, 4-3, in a night game.

The Senators had tied the score in their half of the ninth with the help of an error by Lou Bourdeau.

Ray Mack scored the winning run. He singled, moved to third on a single by Otto Danning and came home on a fielder's choice.

Tars Split Bill With Asheville

Charlotte, June 11.—(AP)—The Norfolk Tars and the Asheville Tourists split a couple of nip and tuck ball games last night, the Tars winning the opener 5 to 3 in the ninth and the Tourists taking the nightcap 11 to 10.

The other Piedmont league games were postponed.

First Baseman Al Clark, coming up with the score three all in the last half of the eighth, hit a mighty 380 foot homer to give the Tars the first game. Eddie Bockman, third baseman who scored three runs and slugged a homer in the fourth, was on base at the time of Clark's blow.

The game was to have been a seven-inning affair but the Tourists tied the score in the seventh on Martolomei's double and "Right" Angle's single.

The Tourists put on a three-run rally in the eighth to over come a 10 to 18 Norfolk advantage and win the second game from the Tars' ace, Roman Pfeffer.

Every Asheville player except Gera, the catcher, and Bakkelund, the pitcher, scored. Ramsey led the Tourists' assault with three hits for four trips to the plate.

West Greenville Wins "C" Opener

W. Greenville won over Training School yesterday in the opening game of the "C" league, by the score of 16-12. Hits and errors were plentiful on both sides, but the game was undecided until the last inning.

Conrad Taylor and Crawford led the hitting for W. Greenville. Tommy Lupton and Bobby Fleming were best for Training School.

Batteries—W. Greenville: Taylor and Whitehurst; Training School: Roberson, Farley and Fleming.

All games scheduled for Thursday were rained out. These games will be played on Friday.

Training School "C" at W. Greenville at 2:30 p. m.

POOR EDGAR.

Edgar Smith, who hasn't won a game in 10 starts for the Chicago White Sox, pitched a great game against the Athletics on Tuesday night in Philadelphia, but the A's came through with a 2-0 victory in spite of the fact that they collected only two hits.

Bob Harris, recent addition from the Browns, pitched the shutout for Philadelphia.

Fire Damages Cargo Vessel

New York, June 11.—(AP)—A fire of suspicious origin broke out today on the S. S. Irene Dupont, which the fire department reported was being loaded with a cargo of rubber tires, aviation oil and cartridges at its Brooklyn pier.

The fire department dispatched two fireboats to fight the blaze, which it said was discovered at 6:54 a. m. in the No. 2 hatchway of the ship and was raging between decks.

Huge clouds of dense smoke were pouring from the stricken vessel, tied up at pier 2 at the foot of Columbia street in Brooklyn.

The third naval district public relations office authorized use of the story, including the ship's name.

The naval district officer said he had no knowledge that there were cartridges on the ship, and it was his understanding she carried a general cargo.

The fire was brought under control within an hour, and fire officials said that it had been confined to a section of the ship's general cargo.

No one was working on the freighter at the time of the fire, and police said no one was injured.

Police reported to the fire marshal's office that the fire might be of suspicious origin, and the fire marshal and police began an investigation.

The S. S. Irene Dupont is a ship of 6,400 tons and was launched in 1941.

Urges Farmers To Take Care of Tires

J. V. Taylor, chairman of the county USDA War Board, today appealed to the "pioneer neighborly spirit" of Pitt county farmers, urging that they make their cars and trucks last longer by pooling their transportation whenever possible.

He recalled a by-gone horse and buggy day when farmers, in going to town, always gave a ride to neighbors or did errands for them. This same cooperative spirit today will help "stretch" farm tires, save on repairs, and materially aid wartime food production and transportation, he declared.

"While it's true that farm automobiles and trucks are allowed certain preferences by local tire rationing boards, we can't depend on this too far into the future," he said. "We know we can't expect new trucks, nor can we hope to get repair parts indefinitely.

"Today America has about 30 million passenger cars on the road. The government tire rationing people estimate that, at the present rate of tire wear, only about 7% million of these can be kept in active operation through 1943 and 1944.

"Obviously, with so many vehicles dropping out of use, farm cars and trucks will be affected along with city vehicles."

The war board chairman urged that farmers take every precaution to make present tires last for the duration, rather than depend on scraps, synthetic rubber, reclaimed rubber, or similar limited tire sources.

To safeguard essential farm transportation and to help the food for freedom program, he said, farmers need to limit driving to a bare minimum, pool driving and trucking with neighbors, drive slowly, and take finest possible care of motors and tires.

Chinese And Jap Losses are Heavy

London, June 11.—(AP)—Japanese losses in China up to the end of 1941 exceeded 2,000,000 killed and wounded, K. C. George Yeh, director of the Chinese Ministry of Information in London, declared today.

Yeh said he was unable to disclose Chinese casualties, but added grimly: "I would be lying if I were to say we have suffered smaller losses than our enemy."

He said the Chinese were immobilizing more than 1,000,000 Japanese troops, including the forces in both China and Manchuria.

China, Yeh declared, has more than 300 divisions under arms, with 5,000,000 soldiers in the field and 10,000,000 more men behind the lines.

But participating in the discussions here were Maxim Litvinov, Soviet ambassador to the United States, whom Molotov succeeded as Foreign Commissar in April, 1939; Harry Hopkins, key adviser to the President on supply problems; General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the army; Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the navy; and, in the non-military zone of conversations, Secretary of State Hull.

The 12 passengers on the British ship were field service workers — among them four Americans who arrived safely at an Atlantic port in a damaged lifeboat which narrowly escaped being blown to bits by a second torpedo which hit the merchantman just 15 feet from the bobbing lifeboat.

All 21 were either picked up by rescue craft or made port themselves, but the story of the day for coolness is that of 20 occupants of one of the British ship's lifeboats who declined with thanks an offer of rescue from an outward-bound freighter.

Their lifeboat had an auxiliary engine for which they accepted some gasoline from the freighter, but it took gasoline and massage oil in addition to keep the engine running for the 63 hours necessary for the 100-mile trip to shore.

The survivors thought nothing of their pluck in shrugging off the freighter's offer of rescue.

"They weren't going our way," explained Second Engineer John A. Wilson of Liverpool, in command of the lifeboat.

harassing operations behind the Japanese lines in Chekiang province to the east, the Chinese high command said tonight.

The Tokyo radio broadcast a Bomei report that the Japanese had occupied Tengpu, 60 miles southeast of Nanchang and approximately that far east of Tsungien. A prize of the bitter Kiangsi-Chekiang province fight, the Hangchow-Nanchang rail line, runs through Fuchow midway between Tengpu and Tsungien.

A Chinese communique said that the walled town of Chursien, surrounded by the Japs in western Chekiang province, "remains in Chinese hands with severe fighting going on east of Chengshan." Chengshan is 12 miles west of Chugsten on the rail line into Kiangsi province.

The land transport link between Allied forces in India and China is intact despite the Japanese penetration of Burma, a Chinese spokesman said today.

"The route remains possible," he said. "There has been no contact between Japanese and Chinese troops north of Myitkyina (Burmeses railroad 185 miles south of the Sikang province border)."

Balle of Australia—Allied airmen listed a Japanese submarine and a number of grounded planes today as fresh victims of their southwest Pacific operations, but Australians were warned that another attack was probable.

Army Minister Francis Forde expressed belief in Melbourne that "we must be even stronger" defensively.

"No one knowing Japan's naval and military strength will be fooled into believing that she will accept the Coral Sea and Midway reverses without hitting back," he said.

A communique from General MacArthur's headquarters announced that a reconnaissance unit "seriously damaged and probably sank an enemy submarine off the coast." Eight others are known to have been destroyed in Australian waters recently.

Cards Necessary To Market Wheat

Many Pitt county farmers are carrying out the idea of producing their own food and feed at home by harvesting wheat this year.

According to the regulations under the Agricultural Adjustment Administration it will be necessary for those farmers who either have their wheat milled for home use or sell wheat, to secure a wheat marketing card from the county agent's office before they are eligible to make any disposition of the wheat.

Dealers Convicted For Selling Tires

Los Angeles, June 10.—(AP)—Guy O. Bryan, tire dealer, and three of four co-defendants were convicted today of selling $28,000 worth of tires and tubes in violation of government freezing and rationing orders.

Bryan, Vernal D. Webb, Martin Logan and Ralph Johnston were found guilty.

Robert Bullington was acquitted. Bryan, one of the city's largest dealers, pleaded that he sold the rubber without certificates from rationing boards on legal advice that the freezing order was unconstitutional.

Sentence will be passed June 22.

He heard the Foreign Secretary declare the "whole terms of the agreement" were published in a White Paper and "there are no secret engagements or commitments of any kind whatsoever."
