ITALIANS SMASH BRITISH CONVOY

Russian Black Sea Fleet Joins Defense Of Sevastopol

Nazis Still Driving On Naval Base

Germans Paying A Toll In Life And In Equipment; Defenders Determined To Fight For Every Inch Of Ground; Nazis Make Gains Before Kharkov

By HENRY C. CASSIDY Moscow, June 15.—(AP)—Steaming into the fight for Sevastopol with its guns thundering, the Soviet Black Sea fleet was reported today to have brought aid to the hard-pressed land garrison by laying down a deadly barrage which took a heavy toll of the Axis assault forces.

The battles in the tight-drawn siege lines around the Crimean port and on the shell-pocked front east of Kharkov in the Ukraine continued with undiminished fury. However, there were no further reports of German gains on either front since dispatches of yesterday which said the Germans had pushed forward in some sectors at Kharkov and turned loose a full-scale onslaught against Sevastopol in an attempt to smash the Russian defenses by sheer weight of men and armor.

Dispatches from the Crimean flank of the battlefield did not identify the warships whose guns were reported in action for the first time since June 3 when the new battle for Sevastopol began.

The principal units of the Black Sea fleet are the cruisers Red Crimean and Red Caucasus which played an important part earlier in the Russian recapture of Kerch and Podosyia.

The warships previously had been engaged in maintaining a line of supply and communications for the port and naval base which has been cut off by land since last fall.

Naval infantry has been in action asport for some time.

The Germans were reported to have bolstered their assault forces with strong reserve strength including units shifted from other fronts.

Their former timetable of attack from 5 a. m. to 9 p. m.—was said to have given way to a 24-hour-a-day assault.

The Nazis, however, had little to show for their heavy sacrifices in either of those key battles of the coming Russian campaigns.

In the last two days, the Soviet Information Bureau said, the Germans have lost 2,850 men and much material on the Kharkov front alone.

Both the mighty thrust against Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies of the Ukraine and the onslaught to batter down the defenses of besieged Sevastopol, Russia's great Black Sea naval base and last Crimean foothold, had failed to develop the crushing momentum of Hitler's big 1941 offensives.

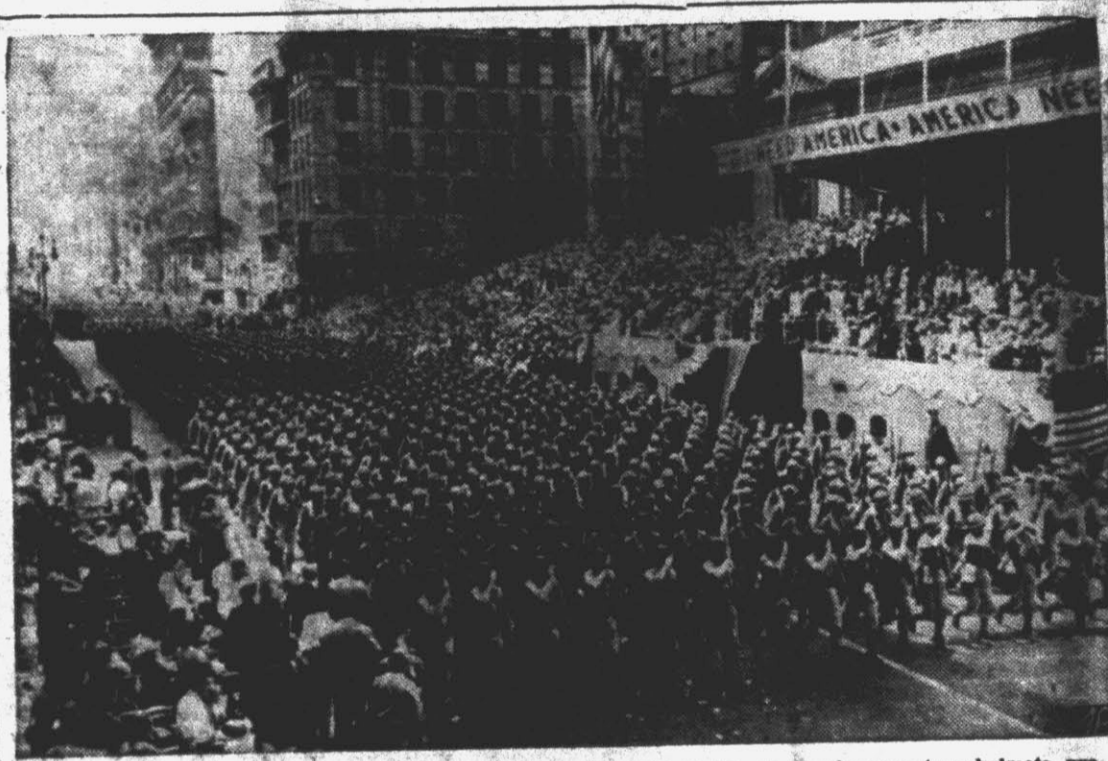

The rest of the long Russian front meanwhile, showed signs of shaking off the winter stalemate and bitter

AXIS CLAIMS LIBYAN GAINS

Tramp, Tramp, Tramp—Bad News For The Axis

BIG PLANS FOR JULY 4 RALLY

Chairman Clark Says: Observance To Be Gala Event

John G. Clark, general chairman of the Patriotic Day exercises and parade for civilian defense workers to be held in Greenville on Saturday, July 4, is developing plans for a gala day for Pitt county people in Greenville on Independence Day.

Pitt County civilian defense workers—hundreds of them—police, fire, air raid and others engaged in home defense work are to be recognized and honored on this day.

In addition the honor roll of the more than 2,000 men and women, boys and girls, who have qualified for first aid as Red Cross workers, will be announced. Civilian defense insignia will be awarded to all workers who have qualified by taking the 10-hour Red Cross first aid course.

The parade will include the State Guard, U. S. Army engineers stationed here, civilian defense workers from all parts of its county, the high school band, civic, fraternal and other groups, and Boy and Girl Scouts.

Stores in Greenville will close for an hour from 10 to 11 on July Fourth for the exercises and parade. June H. Rose, assistant state administrator of civilian defense, and the originator of the plan, stated.

Malta Defenders Down 12 Bombers

Valletta, Malta, June 15.—(AP)—Twelve Axis planes were destroyed over and near this Mediterranean fortress today and last night, a British communique said.

"Today during offensive patrols our fighters punished the enemy," the communique said. "Full details are not yet available but it is confirmed that seven German bombers, two Italian bombers and one float plane were destroyed and others were damaged."

Two other German bombers were shot down into the sea last night.

President Reports On Lend-Lease Activities

Says Production Up But Distribution Critical

Washington, June 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt informed Congress today that lend-lease aid up to the end of May totaled $4,497,000,000 and that while the battle of production was on the way to being won, the battle of distribution was "in its critical phase."

"Our reservoir of resources is now approaching flood stage," he said. "The next step is for our military, industrial and shipping experts to direct its full force against the centers of enemy power."

"Great Britain and the United States... are taking combined action to carry our men and weapons—on anything that will float or fly—to the places from which we can launch our offensives."

Mr. Roosevelt summed up for Congress the results of 15 months of lend-lease operations—with the emphasis finally shifted from foodstuffs and industrial materials to a preponderance of fighting weapons and military items.

The lend-lease program was instituted on March 11, 1941, and the aid extended since that time to the British commonwealth of nations and 35 other countries has mounted to $3,673,000,000 in goods and $824,000,000 in such services as repairing ships, ferrying aircraft and providing production facilities in this country.

The goods included $2,601,000,000 or articles transferred, that is, delivered to lend-lease nations at production or export points in this country. Of this amount $2,138,000,000 had been exported.

The balance of the $3,673,000,000 is accounted for by articles awaiting transfer or use and those in process of manufacture.

Congress requires a report on lend-lease activities from the President every three months, and today's was the fifth. It outlined how the United Nations, particularly Britain and the United States, were pooling their resources and raw materials and shipping and told of the mammoth strides in building up production of the things with which

The Merchants' Association and other local agencies will cooperate with the President's plan to speed up war plans for defeating Germany, Japan and the other Axis nations.

Say British Line Broken Near Tobruk

Rome Reports Troops Have Reached The Mediterranean Coast

Rome (from Italian broadcasts), June 15.—(AP)—The Italian high command declared today that Axis forces in the Libyan Desert had broken the British line near Acroma and driven to the Mediterranean coast west of Tobruk.

British forces remaining to the west of the new Axis gap were said to be encircled. This would mean the British Imperials defending Ain El Gazala, northern extremity of the original defense line which the Axis already has outflanked and pierced.

The number of prisoners and captured war material "cannot be estimated for the moment," the high command said in its third communique of the day.

The breakthrough, after fierce armored combat South of Acroma which subsided in a duststorm Sunday, was said to have been made by way of Balboa, the old Italian road along the coast.

The Italians said the British defending forces had been split in a bloody fight.

The Italian high command declared today that the British lost 69 tanks, 13 guns and 700 men taken prisoner in two days of fighting on the Libyan front June 12 and 13.

"Violent patrol and artillery activity" backed up by air blows on British concentrations marked the action in the Ain El Gazala region yesterday, it said.

Cairo, Egypt, June 15 (AP)—A fluid battle raged on the desert approaches to Tobruk today as the British sought to adjust their positions while from the rear they violently attacked the Axis columns of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel which were nudging a wedge toward the coast.

The British said the Germans were attacking near Acroma in an effort to reach the coast and "isolate the troops remaining in the Ain El Gazala salient," the coastal anchor of the former line of minefields 40 miles west of Tobruk.

Already the southern anchor at Bir Hacheim has been wiped out. (Continued On Page Three)

U. S. Crew Shoots It Out, And Wins

Jubilant gun crewmen of the U. S. Banana ship "Alenas" man their navy rifle in a demonstration of how they shot it out with two Axis submarines during a recent voyage in the Gulf of Mexico. In the first battle on May 26, they scored hits and expressed belief they sank the enemy. Seated at the gun are (left) James Terry, Montgomery, Ala., sight seer, and Henry A. Streib, Baltimore, trainer. Standing (left to right) Cecil D. Stevens, Saratoga, Fla., pointer; Johnnie E. Toole, Montgomery, main leader; and Coxswain Harry L. Wyland, Montross, Va., crew captain. Increased Jap Efforts Expected In Aleutians

Washington, June 15.—(AP)—An effort by the Japanese to expand their landings in the Aleutian Islands was expected by military authorities today, but whether they will try for knockout blows against important American bases was considered debatable.

Any large-scale operations well over into the waters of the western hemisphere, it was said, would certainly bring a swarm of United States army and navy bombers down upon invading ships. Short of desperation, the Japanese might well wish to avoid such attacks at this time, so soon after their bitter experiences with American air power in the Coral sea and Midway battles.

This would not, however, preclude further actions of the kind which last week put a small Jap force on remote Attu island, and the penetration of Jap ships in Kiska harbor in the Rat Islands group. Kiska is 560 miles west of Dutch Harbor and Attu is 770 miles west, locations which place them at the extreme end of the Aleutians and relatively close to Japan.

The nature of the enemy force which conducted the Attu and Kiska operations has not been described by the navy, but experts said it probably was the usual task force composed of one or more aircraft carriers, cruisers and destroyers which would be necessary to afford minimum protection to troop transports.

This, or similar task forces, probably still were at work in the Aleutian area, feinting off American defenses and maneuvering for landings on other islands. These operations, it was believed here, may lead to further attacks from the air on Dutch Harbor and other Alaskan defense posts.

Military experts emphasized, however, that the strategic areas (Continued on Page Six)

RAID DARWIN FOR THIRD DAY

Allies Beat Off Attempted Attack Yesterday

Allied Headquarters, Australia, June 15.—(AP)—Darwin, Australia's north coast base, was raided by Japanese warplanes today for the third successive day and a few casualties resulted, General MacArthur's headquarters announced.

Twenty-seven Japanese bombers escorted by fighters, the largest force yet to reach Darwin in the series of assaults over the week-end, came over this afternoon. The headquarters announcement, which was not a formal communique, said damage was slight.

The Japanese attacked Darwin also on Saturday and yesterday. Allied fighters, who tore into a formation of 18 to 25 Japanese fighters over Darwin yesterday, shooting down four in a furious dogfight, were credited officially today with saving that north Australian city from another air raid.

Claim Planes Sunk British War Vessels

Two Cruisers, Destroyer And Four Steamers Reported Sunk; Aircraft Carrier, Battleship, Destroyer, Cruiser And Steamers Reported Damaged

Rome, (From Italian Broadcasts), June 15.—(AP)—A violent battle between Italian warplanes and one of two strongly protected east-bound British convoys negotiating the perilous passage between Africa and Sardinia resulted in the sinking of two cruisers and a destroyer and damage to five other warships, including an aircraft carrier and a battleship, the Italian high command asserted today in a special communique.

These heavy blows were struck yesterday when Italian torpedo planes, bombers and fighters swarmed upon one convoy protected by two aircraft carriers and other warships, and the action was resumed early today, the announcement said.

The special announcement identified the warships only as "enemy" vessels. However, a little earlier the regular high command communique had told of violent air and naval action with two large, strongly-escorted British convoys, which obviously were the same involved in the later Italian claim of success.

(In London British authorities declined to comment on the Italian accounts.)

The Italian special announcement listed these enemy losses:

Sunk: Two cruisers. One destroyer. Four steamers. Heavily damaged by repeated torpedoes and bombs: An aircraft carrier. A battleship. Two cruisers. A destroyer. Four steamers.

In the running the Italians lost 20 planes and the high command said that among the missing crews were two air force commanders and two squadron commanders.

Fifteen planes defending the convoy were shot down, it was said.

The Italian report said the fight took place between Tunis and Sardinia.

(Sardinia flanks the convoy route past the bulging coastline of Tunisia, allowing a passage only a little over 100 miles wide.)

The special announcement said: "One of two convoys, covered on the flanks by numerous units of the line and by two aircraft carriers, which was sighted by our reconnaissance coming in from the Atlantic in the early hours of June 12 and again last night of during the day, was violently attacked yesterday by Italian air formations in the sea between Sardinia and Tunis."

"Numerous formations of torpedo-carrying aircraft, bombers and fighters were concentrated.

"Our aircraft were attacked by fighters from an air craft carrier. In the course of the engagement two cruisers, one destroyer and four steamers were sunk."

"One battleship, one aircraft carrier, two cruisers and four destroyers were repeatedly hit by torpedoes (Continued on Page Six)

New Hearing Motor Rates Be Held July

The Greenville Chamber of Commerce today was notified by the Interstate Commerce Commission that motor carrier freight rate increases scheduled to become effective today will not go into effect until January 15, 1943. Willard T. Kyzer, executive secretary of the trade body, stated today.

The increase in motor freight rates was recently protested by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, the Office of Price Administration, and others.

A further hearing is scheduled to be held at Charlotte sometime in July.

Silence

London, June 15 (AP)—Official silence which cloaked the mission of four United States bombers reported forced down last Friday in Turkey tended to confirm the belief expressed in many quarters here today that the United States has opened a new air front in the Eastern Mediterranean to block the Axis from the coast.

Observers said if the bombers had been on a routine ferry flight to Russia, India or China a quiet announcement of their purpose probably would have been forthcoming.

The WAR TODAY - By DeWITT MacKENZIE Wide-World News Analyst

The Russian lines held staunchly through a bloody week-end—and that's the vital news of the hour.

There can be no doubt that Hitler is straining every nerve to get his delayed offensive under way. But it won't roll until he can rip loose a portion of that magnificent Red line somewhere.

Particularly violent fighting continued in the two greatest battles—one on the Kharkov front in the Ukraine and the other before the long-besieged Soviet naval base of Sevastopol on the Crimea in the Black sea. These closely related operations represent a Nazi effort to crack the gateway into the Caucasus, thereby creating a funnel through which the Nazi chieftain could pour his warring legions.

Here the Germans, employing the tactics which they made so well known in the first world war, have been trying to breach the Red defense. (Continued on Page Four)

Christian Science Service. "God the preserver of man" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, June 14.

The golden text was from Psalms 99:18: "The Lord is our defense; and the Holy One is Israel to our king." Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon were the following from the Bible: "And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and he healed them; And he took the seven loaves and the fishes, and gave thanks, and brake them, and gave to his disciples, and the disciples to the multitude. And they did all eat, and were filled." (Matt. 15:30, 36, 37).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The divine Mind that made man maintains His own image and likeness. All that really exists is in the divine Mind and its idea, and in this Mind the entire being is found harmonious and eternal. The straight and narrow way is to see and acknowledge this fact, yield to this power, and follow the leadings of truth."

Library News

A Nice Custom
Years ago the book clubs of Greenville inaugurated a nice custom of giving their club books at the end of the club year to the Shepard Memorial Library. These books have been a great help to the library, increasing its circulation by over twelve hundred books. And today, when the library is serving sixteen book stations in the county, these books are rendering an even greater service. Even the "repeat" books (by which is meant a copy of a book already in the library) are much appreciated for several copies of the same book, especially best-sellers, are needed for this county service.

Four of the book clubs have already placed their last year's books on the shelves of the library. Among them are many choice selections, including biography, travel, religion, fiction and war books. The names of the clubs and the books they contributed are as follows:

"Book Of Books" Sermon Subject

By WYATT BROWN
Reverend George W. Perry preached on the subject "The Book of Books" using as his text II Timothy 2:15—Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly abiding by the word of truth—yesterday morning in his sermon at Jarvis Memorial Methodist church. In brief preliminary remarks Mr. Perry presented what he considered was the real issue in the matter of teaching the Bible in the city schools.

"It is up to the people of Greenville to decide whether this book—the Bible—is worthy of consideration," Mr. Perry had already remarked that the work of teaching the Bible in the schools would be carried on under people who could be trusted. In the matter of doctrine and interpretation Mr. Perry said he felt safe in saying that the teacher would know how to deal with such matters.

With these positive statements Mr. Perry launched into his treatment of the real issue giving the factors that determine the true worth of the Scriptures. Injunctive from time to time a note of caution that study of the scriptures in church, home and school was being neglected and great values thus being missed.

"It contains the mind of God, the way of life, the doctrine of sinners, and the happiness of believers. Study the Bible to be wise; believe it to be safe.

"Read the Bible slowly, frequently and prayerfully. Each one of us has failed to study the Scriptures when in this book we have the light, the strength to carry on in His name. In the Bible we have the comfort needed frequently in living one's life. Courage for youth, strength for middle life, and support for age. It is the literature that will live forever and forever.

"The person who has not put this book first is one who has missed the literature that makes for noble living. I have never known a great Christian worker who was not a student of the Scriptures in the home."

"It is utterly impossible to have a Christian home without the scriptures. It is impossible for parents to build a Christian home without the Scriptures. All of us would do well to heed the call of Paul in the text.

"It reveals God, reveals Christ, reveals the Holy Spirit. Yet in our homes and schools the book has been neglected. The Bible is entitled to first place. It deserves first place in our thinking, in the home, in the church, and I believe, in our educational system where it has been neglected," declared Mr. Perry.

Then Mr. Perry gave the Bible the title of "God's second best gift to the human family," coming second only to the supreme gift, Christ. "Ignorance of the Bible is one of our tragedies," he said.

At this point Mr. Perry deviated to recount the incident of the brilliant, highly educated young man who disparaged the scriptures. Myths and old folk's reading and for people that do not think he called them but had himself never read the Scriptures through and in fact had read them very little. Dr. Truett was the one addressed by the young man. Dr. Truett simply replied that men had studied the Scriptures for fifty years and each day found it more real.

"We ought to study literature that will stand us in good stead when we come to rear our children." Then he related the incident of the reading of the book of Ruth to a group of highly educated men none of whom had any idea where it came from but who were delighted

Greenville Men At Kiwanis Gathering

Claude Ward and Joe Taft, president and vice-president, respectively, of the Greenville Kiwanis Club, left Sunday for Cleveland, O., as delegates of the local club. More than 5,000 delegates from Kiwanis clubs of Canada and the United States are expected to attend the 27th international convention. Four days of business sessions and conferences are scheduled for planning war activities for the 2,180 Kiwanis clubs on the North American continent. The theme for the convention is "Victory—by United Effort—by Individual Service."

Charles S. Donley, of Pittsburgh, president, is presiding at all sessions. During this week all local clubs will observe "All-Kiwanis Week."

"We should keep in mind that our way of life must be preserved," Secretary Dave Moore of Greenville, quoted President Donley as saying during his recent visit to the North and South Carolina clubs. "The men and women who are living up to the recognized and true principles of church, home and school are doing their strongest patriotic service," said the international president.

Pennsylvania cities are digging up abandoned street car rails for defense.

Symphonic Choir Honored In North

Lewis Sidney Bullock's North Carolina Symphonic Choir will present a "Victory Concert" on Boston Common Tuesday night, sponsored by the City of Boston. The singers are to appear at Hartford, Conn., tonight.

The "North Carolina ambassadors of music and good-will, will sing in New York City Wednesday night, sponsored by the Park Commissioners. They will also broadcast a program from a New York radio station.

The "Victory Choir" will sing at Constitution Hall in Washington, D. C. Thursday night, sponsored by the District of Columbia commissioners and the North Carolina club.

The singers appeared in concert at numerous other northern cities and at Camp Lee, Va. Mr. Bullock and his talented singers were given special recognition by Dr. John Pinley Williamson, founder of Westminster Choir College, in New Jersey, who entertained them at his home. The nationally famous authority on song commented on the work of the "Victory Choir" as "lovely, of natural quality, unforced and of pure tone."

The choir will return to Greenville Friday. They have been accorded unusual recognition during their northern concert tour. They will return with signal honors for their own good work and for the outstandingly talented Eastern Carolina singers.

Swimming Class At Local Pool

The first swimming class began this morning at the local pool with a number of small children enrolled. This first class is for children who would like to learn to swim. Other classes for swimmers who would like to improve their stroke will be added from time to time. The swimming instructors are the regular life guard at the pool, Larry Brown, Bob Kittrell and Charlene Moye. Two instructors will be in charge of each class. The registration is still open and all who are interested should be at the pool at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

delivery to the government. Although officials had made no flat statement that a decision of nation wide gasoline rationing would hinge on the campaign, William R. Boyd, Jr., chairman of the petroleum industry war council said that whether automobiles could be kept rolling "depends entirely on the total tonnage of rubber scrap there is." Country-wide gas rationing has been considered as a means of conserving tires.

Boyd emphasized that "any and all profit" accruing to the oil companies in the scrap transaction—between the cent-a-pound for the scrap delivered at the service stations and the $25 a ton the government will pay for it—would go to the United Service Organizations, the Army and Navy Relief and the Red Cross.

said, apparently was covering a formation of bombers lurking off the coast to repeat Saturday's assault on Darwin.

The swift action of the Allied planes in intercepting them caused the bombers to veer off, without reaching their target. Only one Allied plane was lost in the melee, and the pilot of that craft was reported saved.

Twenty-seven bombers, escorted by 12 to 15 fighters, participated in Saturday's raid—the first aimed at Darwin in seven weeks. One Japanese plane and one Allied plane were shot down during the assault, which was said to have caused little damage and no casualties.

Allied headquarters also announced that coastal defenses at Newcastle, on the southeast Australian coast north of Sydney, had fired yesterday on a vessel suspected of being a Japanese submarine.

Enemy submarines have been active off eastern Australia recently, and only two weeks ago four Japanese midget submarines were sunk in an unsuccessful raid on shipping in Sydney harbor.

On the offensive side of the picture, the Allied reported their planes made a night attack on a Japanese base at Sohona, a small island in the Solomon group about 800 miles northeast of the Australian mainland.

Sohona is situated in Buka passage, which separates Bougainville, the largest of the Solomon group, from Buka, the most northerly island of the chain.

How to Save Clothes in Wartime

Use the NEW OXYDOL . . . So Rich in Washing Power You Can

—Wash WHITE WITHOUT BLEACHING

—Wash CLEAN WITHOUT HARD RUBBING

Declare war on washday wear and tear. Get clothes gloriously clean just with the rich, safe washing action of OXYDOL alone

Each washday, in millions of homes, a truly modern soap—New OXYDOL—is helping American women to make clothes last longer in wartime.

Avoid Risk of Harsh Bleaching
Every ounce of today's Oxydol is richer, more efficient in washing power. By its safe washing action alone . . . Oxydol brings clothes white without bleaching. And we mean radiantly gleaming white! Except for stains, of course, and unusual pieces . . . your clothes come truly white . . . and you avoid the risk of using harsh bleaches!

Eliminate Harmful Rubbing
Hard rubbing . . . the cause of so much wear and tear . . . is OUT! New Oxydol's livelier "Hustle-Bubble" suds soak the dirt loose in the washer. A quick rub here and there—where necessary—is all. But NOT the hard rubbing that wears clothes threadbare before their time!

And yet, for all its "wartime" efficiency . . . New Oxydol is even milder now on hands . . . safe for washable colors . . . safe for washable rayons!

Use this modern soap. Save your clothes in wartime by doing them the easier, safer OXYDOL way!

for Beautiful Washes with Safety
NEW OXYDOL WHITE WITHOUT BLEACHING!

U. S. GOVERNMENT SAYS SO:
Discussing use of chlorine bleaches, a bulletin from the Consumer Division of OPA states in part: "Bleaching has never been a good substitute for washing. . . using too much . . . in an effort to get clothes snowy-white has done much damage to fabrics. . . learn to depend on good washing and sunshine at a whitener. . . clothes will no doubt last much longer."

French And Free French Representatives In Quandary

ENVOYS FIND SITUATION IS COMPLICATED

Washington Life Not Easy Because Of Their Uncertain Positions

By ROY P. PORTER

Washington, June 15.—(Wide World)—That little man from Versailles—Gaston Henry-Haye, French ambassador to the United States—has been leading a complicated life in Washington which has not been made any easier by the BBC's latest broadcast telling Frenchmen to get out of the prohibited military zone established by the Germans from Belgium to the Pyrenees.

But if his position in Washington diplomatic society has been difficult of late, that of his opponent—Adrien Tixier, Free French representative and personal agent of General Charles De Gaulle—has not been much better.

And it will not improve until the State Department decides what requirements will be necessary for official recognition of the Free French as a United Nations partner against the Axis.

Two things have happened recently which have given each of these earnest French men some hope that his mission is on the way to being partly successful.

Henry-Haye received from Versailles a magnificent testimonial in the form of an illustrated booklet—as only the French can produce them—bearing greetings from both the high and lowly citizens of his home town for the service he is rendering "pour le France."

Significantly, it did not mention the Vichy government or its leader, pro-Axis Pierre Laval, but spoke only of "our friend and neighbor."

Nor did these citizens of Versailles speak of the German occupation forces which have dominated their city since June 15, 1940.

"There is nothing which could have warmed my heart more than this simple message from my own people," Henry-Haye told me. Tixier, formerly assistant director of the International Labor Office in Geneva when John G. Winant, now our ambassador to the Court of St. James, was in charge, has a different problem.

He is trying to find out what the United States wants before the Free French will be granted diplomatic recognition—a private mission confided to him in London by General De Gaulle.

For both these men Socialite Henry-Haye who has often had the Duke and Duchess of Windsor as his guests at Versailles, and one-armed, serious-minded Tixier—life in wartime Washington is far from pleasant.

The first represents a government headed by a Frenchman whom many of his countrymen call "Traitor Laval," which is in diplomatic disrepute at present.

Tixier is in a little better standing because he represents a movement which has official British approval in London. But, in Washington, he lacks the diplomatic status which opens the doors of officialdom.

Both men lead more or less secluded lives. They both have to be careful whom they invite to dine with them—and whose invitations they accept. They both live in constant expectation of sudden orders of recall.

And now, since the BBC began broadcasting its evacuation warnings, they have a new problem to solve.

For Henry-Haye, it is: "What will be the position of my government if there is an invasion of France against the German occupation forces and how will I interpret it to the United States?"

For Tixier, the problem is the same as has been posed before in Syria, Dakar and Mers-el-Kebir: "Will ultimate victory over the German invaders of two-thirds of my country be sufficient compensation for sending Frenchmen to fight against Frenchmen?"

Both these men know—just as many of us who lived in occupied France under the German military administration—that the instant an invasion—call it the second front if you like—starts, there will be blood flowing in the streets of many cities.

fighting at many scattered points suggested that the whole battle line may be springing into new action.

This is the psychological week for Hitler to show his people, if he can, that the winter disaster on the Russian steppes has not drained the German army of its lightning power.

Spring was the season heralded by the Germans for new progress deeper into Russia. In another week it will have faded into summer with Germany's 1942 offensive so far a dud except for the reconquest of the Kerch peninsula.

One week from today Germany's invasion of Russia will be one year old. Without a solid achievement to feed on since the Red army line recoiled before Moscow and started pushing the Nazis back last fall, Germany's men will be asked to fight and her people to support a second year of war against a foe whose army, they were told long ago, was crushed and broken.

The 15-mile deep defenses of Sevastopol were said to be exacting a frightful toll of the attackers as the Germans made assault after assault with manpower at some points five and six to one against the defenders.

In scorching heat, the enemy charged from all sides and were said to have reached the crest of one bombed and shelled hill before a quick Red army counter-attack backed them down. The hill was said to have changed hands four times.

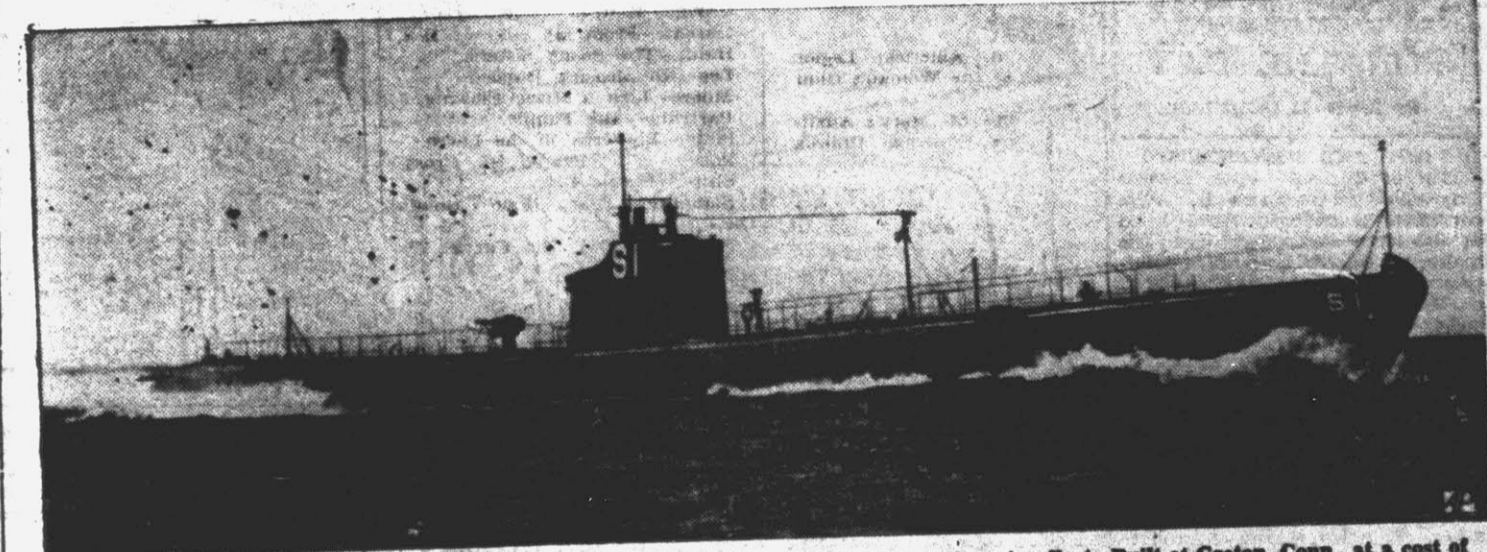

(The Germans, claiming to have wedged into the fortified belt surrounding Sevastopol, may have seized this hill in their report of having captured the "modern strong fort of Stalin" which they said, was taken in hand-to-hand fighting on "dramatic heights.")

Within Sevastopol, all civilians were reported armed with rifles and hand grenades, waiting coolly for any Nazi attempt to drop parachutists inside the fortifications.

As the troops battled under orders that there be "not a step back," the civilians were said also to be resolute and calm despite a rain of iron bars, rails, tractor wheels and plows dropped from German planes along with bombs in an effort to snap their nerves.

While the action in the south grew steadily bloodier, actions of local importance flared from the Black Sea to the Arctic.

On the Kallinin front northwest of Moscow, war bulletin reported two German attacks repulsed. It said 400 Nazis were killed in the capture of an unidentified important point and 1,335 others were slain by guerrillas in a five-day period on the Leningrad front.

Five times Sunday, German planes struck at Murmansk, the Arctic gateway for United States and British aid, but were said to have scored no military damage.

Axis Claims . . .

The British indicated a threat to another of their fortified boxes at El Adem. South of Tobruk had been eased by clearing the enemy out of the area to the East of that point.

"Heavy fighting continues," the communique said, indicating that despite the counter thrusts of Lieut. Gen. Neil M. Ritchie's forces, the Germans were still pressing strongly.

"The enemy are attacking our positions near Acroma in an attempt to isolate the troops remaining in the Ain El Gazala salient."

Ain El Gazala is nearly 40 miles west of Tobruk.

"The battle has become fluid, with the Germans attacking northward from Trigh Capuzzo and our mobile forces in turn attacking their rear from the south."

"The enemy has been cleared from eastward of El Adem."

"The eighth army is counterattacking vigorously and is in process of adjusting its dispositions to meet developments."

With Field Marshal Edwin Rommel's land forces still hammering at British lines defending Tobruk the German air force has opened an assault on British supply lines extending nearly 200 miles back into the desert front.

The air attacks, centered on Matruh, the railhead 150 miles east of the Egypt-Libya border, and Fuka, a station 40 miles farther East, apparently were part of an attempt to hamper the movement of British supplies and reinforcements to the desert front.

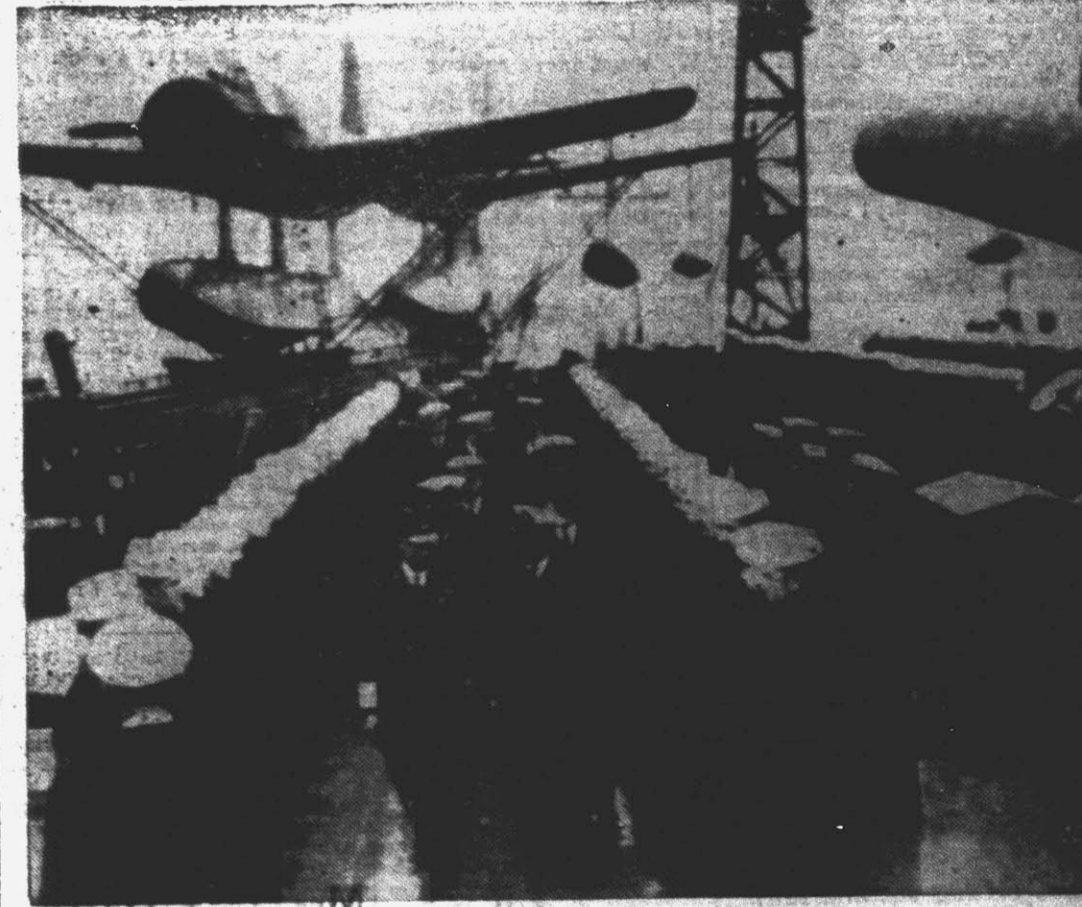

The communique said they were unsuccessful.

The bombings were carried out as the main British and Axis armored forces clashed furiously south of Acroma where today Marshal Rommel still was trying to break thru the coastal road between Tobruk and Ain El Gazala.

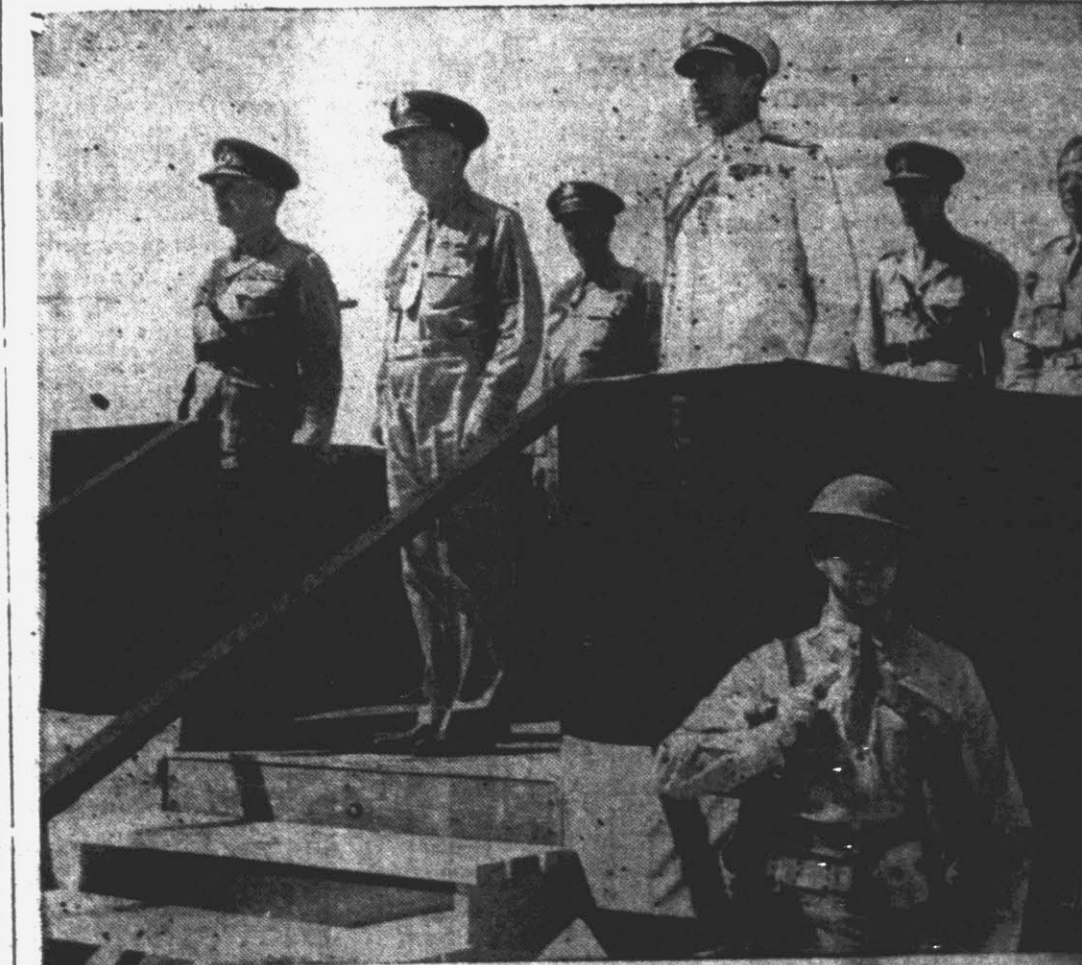

The communique said British fighter and bomber aircraft shot down three German planes Sunday when they tried to attack shipping off Tobruk.

British planes, the communique added, successfully attacked Axis motor transport and tanks near Acroma and made a raid at dusk yesterday on the main landing ground at Derna, starting numerous fires among Axis aircraft. This attack on Derna followed one made on Saturday night.

The big land battle going on south of Tobruk started Saturday, and halted at dusk by a dust storm, was resumed yesterday. Ain El Gazala is the northern anchor of the original British defense line, extending to Bir Hacheim, which the Axis forces have taken after outflanking and piercing the British line in that vicinity.

King George VI of Great Britain (left center) inspects American sailors on the flag ship of the United States Navy, which has joined the British home fleet in the fight on Axis sea power. This was the first indication that strong units of the American navy are now with the British fleet. This picture was radioed from London.

Strength FOR THE DAY
 By EARL L. DOUGLAS

GOD AND MAJORITIES
 Men of Christian faith, because they have God on their side, always constitute a majority. The hand of divinity always weighs down the scales, no matter how much influence and power the world may put on the other side. Men who have gone to the stake or gallows in one generation have been vindicated in the next. The martyr, howled at and abused by the angry mob, becomes an object of veneration for those who come after.

It is imperative that anyone who would get a true estimate of the factors of the public good, and most of the remaining ten per cent, although they admired him, considered him tragically misled. Of all the people in the world, only the thief on the cross seemed to have realized the significance of Jesus at the very last.

Jesus, the penitent thief, and God constituted a stupendous majority against which the forces of evil have cast themselves futilely through the ages.

BRIDGE CLUBS, TAKE NOTICE
 An item appearing in a recent issue of the Morehead City Twin-City Times, caught our attention. The item, headed "Bridge Club Sews" revealed that at a recent meeting of one of the Book and Bridge Clubs the ladies neither read nor played bridge, but spent their time cutting out and sewing garments for the Red Cross. The idea appears to us to be a good one that might well be copied by other clubs for the duration of the emergency.

THE BETTER PLAN
 Because of the multiplicity of drives that have come about since the beginning of the war, Kinston is working on a plan to combine all its drives into one major effort to be staged during the fall. The object of the plan is to avoid duplication of effort and to reduce expenses of making the drives. In almost every community there are a few persons upon whose shoulders fall the responsibilities of putting on the various kinds of drives and this plan of combining all the drives into one large War Chest appears to us to be a good one.

IT'S VITAL FOR VICTORY
 The scrap rubber campaign that got under way throughout the country today is a matter of most importance to every American. Rubber is a vital necessity for our victory in the war and it is essential that our government know at once just how much scrap rubber is available. Unless there is enough scrap available to take care of the needs for our war effort the government is going to find it necessary in the end to confiscate tires from private cars. We must have rubber to win the war and it must come either from your scrap piles or from your automobiles. If there is a piece of scrap rubber of any kind about your premises be sure that you turn it over to your nearest filling station at once. The government must have rubber if we are to win the war. It's vital for victory.

Washington Daybook
 By Jack Stewart

Washington—"Mr. Speaker, this is a 'lame duck's' report to Congress."

With those words, Luther Patrick, three times representative from the district around Birmingham, Ala., but defeated in the primary, opened a banquet of wit and wisdom on the floor of the House the other day. His colleagues, most of whom still have to face the voters, listened attentively, laughed often and applauded wildly.

Luther Patrick is a respected member of the House. He was one of the first toilers in the defense vineyard. He voted against that much-misunderstood, so-called Congressional "pension." I don't think he holds an X-card. In spite of the fact that he was up for re-election, he attended to affairs here until three weeks before election day.

Most congressmen were stunned by his defeat. If Patrick was, his sense of humor certainly has revived him. Without animosity toward voters or successor, Patrick reviewed his predicament.

"No one man is indispensable, but every man lost from a Congress weakens that Congress," he said. "The voters do not grasp the importance of holding a war Congress intact."

There is entirely too much distrust and skepticism in the minds of the populace toward this Congress. To blame the public is foolish. Congress must be able to blame itself, find the trouble, and find some way to overcome it.

"The vagueness of their unrest makes it all the more serious," Patrick said and to illustrate the troubled minds of the voters listed question after question he was asked; questions which he presumed other candidates for re-election to Congress also would be asked this summer.

Examples: "What about the agreement between Standard Oil and the German Chemical Trust? I heard that a number of times."

"What about Leon Henderson? Now, how are you going to answer a question like that?"

"What have you done for the small businessman? It seems there are so many small business men."

"What about gasoline rationing

The Guinea Pig
 Chapter 29
 Distasteful
 "Jimmy, darling, Kathleen was now saying, 'I know I shouldn't have come—knowing you're engaged to my sister, but—'"
 "I'm glad you did come, Maureen," said Paul. "I've always liked Maureen's little sister."
 "Is 'liked' all?"
 "In fact, of you, awfully fond of you—Maureen. You should know that."
 More lines along that order, with Maureen trying to tell Jimmy that she was in love with him, and Jimmy, suspecting, and trying to change the subject. It wasn't such a bad scene, Joe thought—if only they didn't drag it out so long. His hands were wet with perspiration, and perspiration was running down his back. He could feel it trickling under his shirt.
 Then, with a few little running steps, Kathleen was clinging to Paul. She was sobbing out her love. Her arms were clasped tightly about Paul's neck. It looked more like a stranglehold in a wrestling match than anything else, Mr. Frank thought.
 "I love you—I love you—I love you—Jimmy—darling!" Kathleen was saying, in between sobs.
 "You mustn't say that, Maureen," Paul said. "You mustn't! Then what voice? 'And for Pete's sake don't choke the life out of me.'"
 "Take me with you, Jimmy! Please!" said Kathleen. And aside: "I'm not choking you, I'm trying not to cover your face, like you said Ruby did."
 The word "please" was Ruby's cue. She came tripping in.
 "I forgot my fan!" she said. Then, seeing Kathleen in Paul's arms, she gasped. "Oh, so that's the way things are! My own little sister, my own innocent little sister, kissing my husband-to-be!"
 The words "husband-to-be" were Paul's cue, but he failed to take it. Ruby, startled, repeated them. Paul, who was now staring out across the footlights, appeared to be stone dead.
 "My own innocent little sister, kissing my husband-to-be!" said Ruby, this time so loud it sounded like a clarion call.
 Down front
 Paul jumped. "It's no fault of hers," he said, "if she falls in love with me, is it?" At last he found his line. "She is innocent, Molly. You must take good care of her, while I'm gone, and when this horrible war is over, I'll come back and take care of both of you."
 "Oh, Jimmy—Jimmy," said Ruby. "forgive me! I didn't mean to suspect you, but—" There was a sudden stop, as Ruby now looked out across the footlights. "But—but—I love someone else, Jimmy—I can't wait for you."
 "You—you—what?"
 "I'm going to marry Peter Van Wert. So when you come back, you must forget me—and learn to love Maureen."
 "Oh!" said Kathleen. "Oh, Jimmy—you will, won't you?"
 And then the curtain.
 Kathleen, spent, trembling, started to run off the stage. But the curtain went up. She took a step back, standing between Ruby and Paul. Then, finally, the curtain stayed down, and Kathleen rushed off to her dressing room.
 Ruby and Paul faced each other upon the stage.
 "I suppose you saw who's sitting down front as big as life!" said Ruby.
 "Yes, I saw," said Ruby. "She looks well, doesn't she? But she's pretty nearly ruined your scene."
 "Pretty nearly?" said Paul. "She did ruin it. But what could I expect of a woman like Laura—selfish, grasping."
 "Don't yell so," warned Ruby. "They'll hear you out front."
 "Well, let them!" said Paul. He started off, and then he whirled about. "Did you have anything to do with Laura coming down here?"
 "The idea, Paul!" protested Ruby.
 "What a thing to ask me. You don't think I'd deliberately do something to spoil our beautiful play, do you?"
 Paul watched Ruby's face closely. "Sometimes I think you are quite capable of anything," he said.
 Then he stormed off to change for the third and last act.
 There was shooting in the final scene—and several dead extras lay around the stage, having fallen when the "damned Yankees" fired upon the old homestead. Then the curtain fell at last, Paul and Ruby stood among the dead, safe in each other's arms, vowing to go on together, working to build up the waste that was their beloved Southland. "Innocent little sister Maureen" lay beneath the apple trees she had loved, the victim of a wild bullet.

 defenses by weight of numbers. It's a method of attack which frequently succeeds—if you don't care how many "lives" you sacrifice. However, Marshal Timoshenko's Bolsheviks at latest reports were standing off these terrific massed attacks and inflicting heavy losses on the enemy. That the defenders also were suffering many casualties seemed a foregone conclusion.
 Further evidence that the Pusher is trying to get his "spring-blatzker" going is seen in the building up of fierce local attacks throughout the length of the attenuated Russo-German line. One of the most important of these assaults continues against the Arctic port of Murmansk, the rail-head through which vital American and British military supplies are being poured into Russia. The Nazi objective, of course, is to cut this lifeline.
 Watch Murmansk, if you would keep well informed on the progress of the war, since preservation of this route is essential, and its loss would be a real catastrophe. Don't forget what I have taken the liberty of emphasizing so often—that this is a war of resources, in which production and transportation must be maintained at top pitch.
 War Production Board Chairman Nelson told us yesterday that "we are over the hump" in production. That's great news, but that won't win the war unless transportation gets the material to the soldiers on the front. So Murmansk, in some degree like the Burma road is one of the allied key positions right now.

UNFAIR TO LOVE
 By Watkins E. Wright

Chapter 29
 Distasteful
 "Jimmy, darling, Kathleen was now saying, 'I know I shouldn't have come—knowing you're engaged to my sister, but—'"
 "I'm glad you did come, Maureen," said Paul. "I've always liked Maureen's little sister."
 "Is 'liked' all?"
 "In fact, of you, awfully fond of you—Maureen. You should know that."
 More lines along that order, with Maureen trying to tell Jimmy that she was in love with him, and Jimmy, suspecting, and trying to change the subject. It wasn't such a bad scene, Joe thought—if only they didn't drag it out so long. His hands were wet with perspiration, and perspiration was running down his back. He could feel it trickling under his shirt.
 Then, with a few little running steps, Kathleen was clinging to Paul. She was sobbing out her love. Her arms were clasped tightly about Paul's neck. It looked more like a stranglehold in a wrestling match than anything else, Mr. Frank thought.
 "I love you—I love you—I love you—Jimmy—darling!" Kathleen was saying, in between sobs.
 "You mustn't say that, Maureen," Paul said. "You mustn't! Then what voice? 'And for Pete's sake don't choke the life out of me.'"
 "Take me with you, Jimmy! Please!" said Kathleen. And aside: "I'm not choking you, I'm trying not to cover your face, like you said Ruby did."
 The word "please" was Ruby's cue. She came tripping in.
 "I forgot my fan!" she said. Then, seeing Kathleen in Paul's arms, she gasped. "Oh, so that's the way things are! My own little sister, my own innocent little sister, kissing my husband-to-be!"
 The words "husband-to-be" were Paul's cue, but he failed to take it. Ruby, startled, repeated them. Paul, who was now staring out across the footlights, appeared to be stone dead.
 "My own innocent little sister, kissing my husband-to-be!" said Ruby, this time so loud it sounded like a clarion call.
 Down front
 Paul jumped. "It's no fault of hers," he said, "if she falls in love with me, is it?" At last he found his line. "She is innocent, Molly. You must take good care of her, while I'm gone, and when this horrible war is over, I'll come back and take care of both of you."
 "Oh, Jimmy—Jimmy," said Ruby. "forgive me! I didn't mean to suspect you, but—" There was a sudden stop, as Ruby now looked out across the footlights. "But—but—I love someone else, Jimmy—I can't wait for you."
 "You—you—what?"
 "I'm going to marry Peter Van Wert. So when you come back, you must forget me—and learn to love Maureen."
 "Oh!" said Kathleen. "Oh, Jimmy—you will, won't you?"
 And then the curtain.
 Kathleen, spent, trembling, started to run off the stage. But the curtain went up. She took a step back, standing between Ruby and Paul. Then, finally, the curtain stayed down, and Kathleen rushed off to her dressing room.
 Ruby and Paul faced each other upon the stage.
 "I suppose you saw who's sitting down front as big as life!" said Ruby.
 "Yes, I saw," said Ruby. "She looks well, doesn't she? But she's pretty nearly ruined your scene."
 "Pretty nearly?" said Paul. "She did ruin it. But what could I expect of a woman like Laura—selfish, grasping."
 "Don't yell so," warned Ruby. "They'll hear you out front."
 "Well, let them!" said Paul. He started off, and then he whirled about. "Did you have anything to do with Laura coming down here?"
 "The idea, Paul!" protested Ruby.
 "What a thing to ask me. You don't think I'd deliberately do something to spoil our beautiful play, do you?"
 Paul watched Ruby's face closely. "Sometimes I think you are quite capable of anything," he said.
 Then he stormed off to change for the third and last act.
 There was shooting in the final scene—and several dead extras lay around the stage, having fallen when the "damned Yankees" fired upon the old homestead. Then the curtain fell at last, Paul and Ruby stood among the dead, safe in each other's arms, vowing to go on together, working to build up the waste that was their beloved Southland. "Innocent little sister Maureen" lay beneath the apple trees she had loved, the victim of a wild bullet.

Save Ships By Refusing Rescue

An East Coast Port, June 15.—(AP)—Survivors of a torpedoed American merchantman, adrift in the Caribbean Sea, twice out-argued persistent would-be rescuers and waved them out of an area where a submarine was known to be lurking.

Two men died in the sinking of the vessel south of Cuba June 1. Fifty-three others—including four passengers, 14 members of a gun crew and 35 regular crewmen—escaped in two lifeboats and told the story released by the Navy today.

Two torpedoes, fired an hour apart, finished the ship.

Second Mate William J. McCarthy of New York, said that about the time the second torpedo struck a Brazilian ship hove into view and steamed directly to the lifeboats.

"Go away!" the American shouted. "There's a submarine here. Get away as fast as you can."

"We will pick you up," the unflinching South Americans replied. "We'll see you in five minutes," the survivors replied. "You'll be sunk."

But it required half an hour of argument before the courageous Brazilians gave up the rescue effort.

Next morning an airplane dropped a message to the boats. And a few hours later another ship sailed up, maneuvered alongside a lifeboat. It too, was Brazilian.

"Get away," shouted the men in the small boat. "A submarine is operating in these waters. You'll be sunk."

Nearly half an hour of argument was required to discourage this Brazilian crew.

"It would have taken some time to take all the men off both boats," said McCarthy. "We knew the danger and didn't want to feel responsible for the sinking of another vessel."

They called their own boats into port, in 45 hours.

U. S. Marine Dies Kinston Hospital

Kinston, June 15.—(AP)—Private E. N. Shute, 23, of the Eleventh Marines, stationed at the New River base, died in a Kinston hospital today of a gunshot wound he suffered in an affray at a nearby roadhouse Wednesday.

An employee of the roadhouse, booked as Frank Johnson, 25, who surrendered to officers shortly after the shooting, is being held without bond pending an inquest.

Shute's nearest relative was listed as his stepfather, Carmelo Lazzaro of Salisbury, Mass. Shute was a native of Haverhill, Mass.

It was announced that her job would be largely organizational. She will become dean of women at Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Va., September 1.

Women Prison Guards

Raleigh, June 15.—(AP)—Women guards, armed with guns, soon may be placed at woman's prison here to relieve a shortage in manpower, Penal Director Oscar Pitts said today.

"I'm afraid I shall have to agree with them," said Uncle Frank. "I, too," said Joe. "I'm afraid the play's one-woman run here in Kathleen's old time will be its life-

REPORT MORE SUB VICTIMS

Total Sinkings in The Western Atlantic Up to 265

By The Associated Press
 With the Germans threatening a new widespread campaign against all shipping in the Atlantic north of the West Indies, the total of ships sunk by enemy submarines in the Western Atlantic now stands at 265.

Additional sinkings of 12 merchant ships last week and one yesterday were officially announced. More than 394 crewmen and passengers of the 14 ships were reported rescued, while 16 lives were lost and 65 persons were missing.

Seven United States ships, two British, one Norwegian, one Brazilian, one Swedish and one unidentified Allied merchantman were included in last week's sinkings. The ship reported sunk yesterday was a small Dutch merchantman.

The German announcement of an intensified U-boat campaign north of the West Indies said that "every ship which enters this zone after June 20, 1942, will expose itself to destruction."

Germany claimed its submarine sank last week 40 Allied merchant ships and one destroyer off the United States coast, in the Caribbean and Panama Canal zones and in the Mediterranean.

Red Ruffin Ties Pitching Record Of Joe McGinnity

TOSSED 251ST WIN YESTERDAY

Only Three Pitchers Have Ever Surpassed This Record

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR (Associated Press Sports Writer) Beside the name of Joe (Iron Man) McGinnity on the list of Gotham's greatest pitchers they wrote another one today—Charles Herbert Ruffin of the world champion New York Yankees.

Charles the Red, winner of more games than any hurler active in the major leagues, chalked up the 251st victory on his 19-year career yesterday to tie the mark left by McGinnity, who often pitched, and sometimes won, doubleheaders for the New York Giants in the early years of John McGraw.

Only three pitchers in all the baseball history of the nation's largest city have topped the total reached by Ruffin.

The one and only Christy Mathewson won 372 games before gas poisoning in the other way forced him to call it quits. Amos Rusie of the pre-McGraw Giants won 352 and Mickey Welch won 309 while holding the same club under its initial pilot, Jim Mutrie.

In two games this year, Ruffin has pitched 83 innings and has come the distance seven times. He has yielded 69 hits while striking out 39 batters and issuing only 16 bases on balls.

Yesterday he tossed a five-hitter at the St. Louis Browns, the team that had beaten him twice before in his only reversals for 1942. He pitched the Yankees to a 6-1 victory in the first game and Ernie Bonham finished with a 5-4 decision in the second.

But while Ruffin was adding to his achievements with his seventh win and Bonham was turning in his ninth against one defeat, another Yankee came to the end of the longest hitting streak of 1942.

Joe Gordon, whose streak in the opener stretched his string to 29 consecutive games, went zero-for-four against John Niggeling, who held the Yanks to seven hits in the afternoon and watched his mates commit three errors which helped the champions score three runs.

At that, the Yanks failed to increase their rne and a half game lead in the American League for the second-place Boston Red Sox took a pair of close ones from Detroit, 3-2 in the regulation distance and 2-1 in 11 innings. Tony Laufen, Harvard's gift to the Red Sox and first base successor to Jimmy Fox, drove in both winning runs, with a double in the sixth inning of the first game and a single in the nightcap's 11th.

The only chance of the day in either league came at the other end of the American standings where the Chicago White Sox vacated the cellar and turned it over to Washington by crushing the Senators, 9-3, and 11-4.

Navy All-Stars Arrive For Scrap With Army

Ted Lyons, preparing to join Ruffin soon in making the active 250-game winners' club a two-man organization, pitched his fourth victory of the season in the opener and the 55th of his career. And River Smith, who had suffered ten defeats, went the route in the nightcap for win No. 1.

The Cleveland Indians and Philadelphia Athletics divided a double bill, with Luman Harris pitching a three-hitter to give the A's a 5-1 decision in the nightcap after the tribe had won the first game, 6-3.

Whitlow West pitched Brooklyn's National League leaders to a 4-1 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds with a three-hit performance in the first game, but Ray Starr turned in a four-hitter that gave the Reds the second, 2-1.

A three-run homer by Dolph Camilli, his ninth four-homer of the year, gave West his sixth triumph against one defeat, and the nod over Ruck Walters.

The defeat cost the Dodgers a full game on their lead since the St. Louis Cardinals downed the Philadelphia Phils twice, 9-1 and 6-5. A six-hitter by Lon Warneke in the first game and a three-run homer by Johnny Flinn in the second helped the Cards pull within five and a half games of the Dodgers.

The New York Giants snapped Pittsburgh's seven-game winning streak, 4-3, as Bob Carpenter went all the way, but the Pirates bounced back to win the nightcap, 8-3.

Charlotte Drops To Second Place

Charlotte, June 15 (AP)—Charlotte's Hornets quit a double bill yesterday with Norfolk but dropped to second place in the Piedmont League standings behind the Greensboro Red Sox, who walked Richmond twice during the day.

The Tar completed the earliest leaders 14-3 in the opener but dropped the six-inning nightcap, 9-8 as the home team rallied behind the pitching of Ruck Jacobs.

The Red Sox smashed out 17 hits in their opener with Richmond to behind the seven-hit pitching of Rip Sewell.

Another streak ended for the Boston Braves, who downed the Chicago Cubs, 10-1, for their first victory in 13 games after the Cubs had won the first half of the double bill, 8-6.

Paul Waner of the Braves collected two singles and a double and now needs only two more blows to become the seventh player in history to make 3,000 hits.
