Germans Gain Foothold On Caucasus Side Don River

United States Bombers Giving Aid To Defending Russians; German Forces Are Pushing Toward Stalingrad; Eighty Nazi Planes Destroyed In Raid On Flying Field

By EDDY GILMORE
Moscow, July 25.—(AP) United States bombers took part in the desperate Russian defense of the Caucasus today as the Germans drove dangerous wedges into the forts guarding Rostov and struck ever nearer vital Stalingrad in an offensive that reached the middle Don.

A U. S. source whose name may not be divulged said the swift twin-engine Douglas bombers were flying wing to wing with Russian planes in a fierce pounding at German tanks, motorized columns and men who were seeking to engulf the southern Don steppes.

Presumably the planes were flown by the Russians, although this dispatch did not specifically say so.

The point on the middle Don which the German vanguards reached was not specified in battle dispatches. On one sector, nearest Stalingrad, the great elbows of the Don and Volga form a 45-mile bottleneck.

Dispatches said the Germans had broken through one sector of the front in the region of Rostov, great oil port on the Don delta just off the Sea of Azov.

The Germans established a hazardous bridgehead across the lower Don near Tsimlyansk, 120 miles up the river from Rostov.

The army newspaper said that vast air battles were being fought over wide areas of the treeless Don steppes. The dispatch said the Germans were availing themselves of the flat terrain to establish airbases swiftly near the front lines.

Fighters principally were based at the front but the swiftly built airbases also were used by transport planes bringing up fuel and ammunition. A Soviet raid on one of these fields was said to have destroyed 28 of the huge Junkers-52 transports.

Without comment, Red Star carried Lenin's words to the Russian army: "Fight to the last drop of blood, comrades. Keep on for every inch of land. Be firm until the end."

Only skilled operations, courage and self sacrifice by our troops will save Rostov from the fascist invasion," the military newspaper said.

Dispatches indicated the Timlyansk combat left the Don flowing red with the blood of the fallen. One German thrust across the river, a natural defense line before the lower Caucasus, was frustrated and the infantry regiment in the van was wiped out, a communique announced at midnight.

Later advice, however, said that in a second big push, supported by heavy forces, small units reached the south shore and dug in.

They were declared "being dealt with," but the situation indicated an ominous parallel to the original German crossing of the upper Don at Voronezh.

Counter-attacks were declared to have bettered the Red army position in some sectors before Rostov and the city's approaches were reported dotted with thousands of German dead, but the numerically superior invaders occupied several new positions to the south to establish a four-way offensive.

Gravedigger On Picket Line

When gravediggers at a cemetery in Denver, Col., went after increased pay, they threw a picket line out to patrol the entrance to the grounds. Here's one of the pickets, armed with a sign.

Rain

Heavy showers over a wide area adjacent to Greenville yesterday, the first good rain in the section since crops were planted, came late, farmers here said today, but was worth hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Tobacco growers said the showers would add weight to the leaf. Corn, cotton and truck crops were seriously damaged by the drought. Streams in low-grounds backed up and ditches overflowed, the first time this summer, farmers said.

SEIZE MAPS OF NEW YORK

Alien Had Aerial Photos and "Bomber" Maps

New York, July 25.—(AP)—Aerial photographs and "bomber" maps showing vital spots throughout New York and New Jersey were found in the possession of one of 11 enemy aliens seized in a roundup yesterday, P. E. Foxworth, assistant director of the FBI, reported today.

There were 100 such photographs and maps, specifically designed as guides to enemy bombers, Foxworth declared. He added that all the photographs were developed in Germany, leaving no doubt that (Continued on page two)

RAF Plane Kills American Flier

New Delhi, India, July 24.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Capt. Howard M. Lammer, United States naval liaison officer at Colombo, Ceylon, was killed today in the crash of an RAF plane. The United States Commission here was informed the plane struck a hill upon flying out of a cloud formation.

Captain Lammer was about 48 years old. He had served in Colombia 18 months.

The WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MacKENZIE, Wide-World News Analyst

The battle for the Caucasus now has reached the point at which Soviet Marshal Timoshenko presumably had figured on making a back-to-the-wall stand, south of the broad reaches of the lower Don which forms a partial barrier to this land of oil.

NAVY VESSELS ARE LAUNCHED

Aircraft Carrier To Be Launched Next Friday

Quincy, Mass., July 25.—(AP)—The U. S. S. Champlin, one of four destroyers built this year at the Fore River Shipyard of the Bethlehem Steel company, was launched today.

Mrs. Adelaide Champlin Brendel, of Buffalo, N. Y., great-granddaughter of Captain Stephen Champlin, naval hero of the War of 1812 after whom the ship was named, christened the vessel at ceremonies attended by naval officers attached to the yard and a large group of workmen.

Charleson, S. C., July 25.—(AP)—A mother whose five sons all joined the navy before Pearl Harbor, Mrs. Thomas D. Horton of near Yemassee, will christen a large sea-going tug, the U. S. S. Chipewa, here today.

The tug, one of the largest of its type ever built for the navy on the Atlantic coast, will be the fourth navy ship to slide down the ways at the Charleston Navy Yard in slightly more than a month.

Bury Army Flier At Rocky Mount

Lieutenant Orville D. Andrews, who was killed in a crash of a United States bomber July 18 near Westover Field, Chocoma Falls, Mass., will be buried in Rocky Mount. The funeral will be held from his home Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Lieutenant Andrews, stationed in New Foundland, was on an army mission to this country when his plane crashed near Chocoma Falls. He was a graduate of East Carolina Teachers' College. He was well known and popular in Greenville and had many friends.

We may expect the Red commander to continue his studied retirement eastward into the great bend of the Don river to (Continued on Page Four)

Hoover Warns Of More Saboteurs

Urges Nation To Be On Look-Out For Three More Expected In This Country Soon

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, asked the nation today to be on the look-out for three men identified as expert German saboteurs, who he said might come to the United States.

The three have been trained in the German sabotage school and have received orders from the Nazi high command to come to this country to destroy vital war industries, Hoover said in a statement.

They were associated with the eight Nazi saboteurs now on trial before a military commission sitting secretly in the Justice Department, the FBI chief said.

The men were identified by Hoover as Palter Kappe, alias Kappel, 37, a lieutenant in the intelligence section of the German army and an instructor in the sabotage school near Berlin; Joseph Schmidt, alias Paul Schmidt, alias Jerry Swenson, and Rhengold Rudolph Barth, 35, all natives of Germany.

Hundreds of thousands of posters containing pictures and descriptions of the three men will be distributed over the country to aid in apprehending them.

Hoover did not say that the three saboteurs actually had left for this country or arrived here, but only that they had been ordered to do so.

The FBI announced this data concerning the three men: Kappe—a native of Alfred, Germany, first arrived in the United States on March 9, 1925; filed a petition for citizenship at Kankakee, Ill., in June, 1925, but never acquired citizenship; was active here in promoting a German society and advocated Nazism prior to Hitler's rise to power; became telegraph news editor for the "Freie Presse" at Cincinnati, was the leader of a movement which sought to organize a National Socialist party in the United States in 1932, when he was described as American correspondent for the Nazi press with headquarters at 1050 Waveland avenue, (Continued on Page Four)

ALLIES BLAST NEW JAP BASE

Dive Bombers Prevent Landing Of Supplies

General MacArthur's headquarters, Australia, July 25.—(AP)—Steady Allied dive-bombing has broken off the landing of Japanese supplies in the newly occupied Buna-Gona area of New Guinea and several fully loaded enemy vessels have withdrawn northward under naval escort, a communique announced today.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said 45,000 pounds of explosives and incendiaries were dropped yesterday on troops, invasion barges, stores and installations in that region low on the northeast coast of the Papuan peninsula.

Large fires were started and an anti-aircraft battery was silenced, the communique reported.

"A number of enemy's cargo vessels have been unable to unload, being forced to withdraw to the north under cover of naval forces," it said.

Eighteen Japanese bombers and ported, meanwhile, to have struck a 16-plane fighter escort were re-infectively at the airfield of Port Moresby, advanced allied base on New Guinea's south coast 110 miles from Buna.

"There were no casualties and only slight damage," it was said.

The dive-bomber, which is playing a big part in Allied operations over New Guinea is the twin-engine Douglas A-24, first used by the U. S. Navy and then by the Army, officers said.

SAYS GERMANY TO SEEK PEACE

Benes Urges Second Front Against Nazis Now

London, July 25.—(AP)—President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia's exiled government, urging a second front in Europe in 1942, declared today that the Germans will offer peace to Britain, the United States and Russia by Oct. 15 if they do not score a decisive military success by that time.

"Foolish unacceptable terms" already are being prepared, he said in a talk to Czech soldiers.

Benes spoke as ten London munition workers, who said they represented 4,000 colleagues, took a petition to No. 10 Downing Street, the residence of the Prime Minister, asking for a western front in Europe.

Benes predicted that Hitler's peace offer would not be accepted "and if the Russians hold out"—and he thought they will—"Germany would be exhausted by spring."

"How long the war will last depends upon whether there is a second front in Europe this year," he continued. "I myself desire there should be one and am making endeavors to obtain this solution of the question. There is a certain risk connected with it but the risk next year will be even greater x x x."

"If a second front can be established within the next three months to divert a certain proportion of the German forces from the eastern front it is probable that things will develop quickly and we might be home within a year."

The chorus advocating an immediate front in Europe this year, he said, is a second front in Europe this year, he continued. "I myself desire there should be one and am making endeavors to obtain this solution of the question. There is a certain risk connected with it but the risk next year will be even greater x x x."

Week's Activity Results In Heavy Damage To Three Axis Ports; Ground Activity In Egypt Confined To Artillery Action; Many Airplanes Destroyed

Cairo, July 25.—(AP)—United States Army bombers in seven daylight raids in a week have wrought heavy damage to the Axis ports of Tobruk and Bengasi in Libya and Suda Bay in Crete, U. S. Airforce headquarters declared today as the RAF added more than 20 additional Axis planes to its fast-increasing tally of enemy craft destroyed or damaged on the ground.

The RAF announced its latest blow at the forward landing field at El Daba, east of the Axis more than a score of planes, ground and three destroyed in the air yesterday.

Since Sunday the field at El Daba has been heavily hit three times and that at Fuks once. Figures on Axis planes destroyed on the ground have totalled more than 50, in addition to some communique which merely have listed "many."

The U. S. Army Airforce headquarters announced on the American bomber operations for the week ending today said besides heavy damage to the enemy docks and installations, several medium-sized merchant vessels were left in flames and a direct hit set fire to a large ship at Bengasi.

The ground fighting consisted mainly of artillery duels in the central and northern sectors with some mortar activity in the southern sector where the fighting is heavy, the communique said.

In addition to the three Axis aircraft shot down in air fights over El Daba, two others crashed in taking off to challenge the RAF bombers, the communique said.

RAF fighters ranged over the battle area in which British troops were consolidating newly-won positions and "successfully attacked" enemy vehicles, the communique reported.

Allied planes have been raiding El Daba day and night for several days in an effort to cut down the air support for Rommel's forces.

Torpedo-carrying aircraft of the RAF went across the Mediterranean into the Ionian sea to attack an enemy merchant ship yesterday. The ship was blown to the end of the attack and was down at the bows, the communique said.

"A British military commentator in London disclosed that Imperial troops had withdrawn from "one or two positions exposed to heavy enemy artillery fire."

(Informed military opinion in London was that although the British retain the initiative in Africa, the arrival of a single Axis convoy could swing the balance to the other side at any time.

It was reliably reported in Ankara yesterday that five trains had passed through Yugoslavia into Greece carrying 120 eighteen-ton tanks for shipment to the Axis-African armies.)

Boy Scout Leader Coming Here Aug.

J. T. Ussell, experienced Boy Scout worker who has been principal of the Jamestown high school, will come to Greenville August 4 to be Boy Scout executive, L. M. Buchanan, district chairman, announced today. Ussell is married and has three children. He is a son-in-law of Herbert Stucky, the first Boy Scout executive here. He is a brother-in-law of Charles I. Bissett.

Carrying out President Roosevelt's suggestion, leaders of boy scouting here are planning an intensive program to encourage scouting. The many useful things taught by Boy Scouts are now being used in the civilian defense program. Sam Underwood is Boy Scout commissioner.

Italian Airmen Back From Tokyo

Berlin, (From German Broadcast), July 25.—(AP)—An Italian Savoia Marchetti plane has made a round trip flight from Rome to Tokyo, and its crew personally welcomed back to Italy by Premier Mussolini, it was announced in Rome today.

REPORT LOSS TWO VESSELS

Western Atlantic Sub Toll Nears the 400 Mark

(By The Associated Press) The toll taken by U-boats in the western Atlantic neared the 400 mark today with the Navy announcement of the sinking of a medium-sized U. S. merchant vessel 800 miles off the coast July 16.

All of the 123 persons aboard were rescued in the torpedoing, which raised to 398 the unofficial Associated Press tabulation of Allied and neutral ship losses in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

Claim Allied Ships Sunk. Rome, (From Italian Broadcasts), July 25.—(AP)—Italian submarines have sunk a troop-laden transport ship and a 5,000-ton merchantman in the Mediterranean, the Italian high command announced today.

Drunk Teaches Drunk. High Point, July 25.—(AP)—A 37-year-old man and a 19-year-old girl, both occupants of the same automobile, were charged with drunken driving.

The girl was convicted in Municipal court and the charge against the man was continued.

Police quoted the man as saying at the time of the apprehension that he was teaching the girl to drive.

Life-Saving Class Begins Here Monday

A life saving and water safety class for instructors will begin at the municipal pool Monday morning. It is sponsored by the American Red Cross. Emil Lewis of Washington, D. C., will be in charge. Harold McDougle, chairman of the local Red Cross Life Saving and Water Safety Committee, is enrolling students. The classes are free to qualified persons.

The instructors' course will continue through next week.

Teachers Accepting Jobs With Higher Pay

The schools of this state are facing a serious problem in securing teachers for the 1942-43 school term. It is more apparent now than a month ago that the rural schools will be seriously handicapped when they begin their terms in September," said a widely known school man, visiting in Greenville today.

"In my county we were all ready to go a month ago, but since that time the teachers and principals have resigned in great numbers to accept better jobs at substantial increases in salary. The school teacher shortage today is really serious throughout the state and many school boards are having to revise or change altogether long standing policies so as to meet the present teacher shortage.

Most school boards however, are sticking to the regulation which requires teachers to live in the community where they teach. It is felt that this is a good policy since means of travel are now difficult to get and the school program is kept in better balance if teachers live near the school," he said.

Looking over the situation here in Pitt county, this reporter (who keeps in intimate touch with the county situation) believes it is our job to report that, according to the records in the office of the Pitt county superintendent's office here in Greenville, enough teachers have been employed to teach the schools in this county the coming session.

Pitt—but principals and teachers are resigning! They are going to government jobs where they will be paid higher salaries. No one can blame them. The situation here is serious. Superintendent Don Conley said today when interviewed. He declined to be quoted other than that we need teachers in Pitt county.

Tobacconists Move To Georgia Points

Many of the local tobacco colony will migrate this weekend to Georgia points for the remaining heavy Tuesday of the Georgia-Florida tobacco markets. Some of the tobacconists are "pooling" rides for trips south through the country. Others are going by train. Pullman reservations are next to impossible on account of the heavy wartime travel.

The border leaf markets will open August 6. The bright belt markets in Eastern Carolina open August 25.

American Nationals Are Enroute Home From Japan

Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, July 23.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The first diplomatic transfer of nationals between United States and Japan since the start of the Pacific war was completed here today when more than 1,100 North and South Americans boarded the Swedish liner Gripsholm to take the places vacated by Japanese diplomats and their families brought from America.

The Americans arrived here on the liners Conte Verde and Asama Maru. They walked down the gangplanks of the two ships as the Japanese left the Gripsholm and the two groups moved along the quay in parallel lines to their new state-rooms.

(The Tokyo radio said the Americans were scheduled to sail today from the East African port.)

A line of railway cars had been drawn up on the quay, separating the Japanese and Americans as they marched to their new ships. Soon after moving to the Gripsholm, the Americans were permitted to dis-embark and tour the city.

The exchange was supervised by the Portuguese foreign office.

The North and South Americans brought with them from Japan and Japanese occupied territories stories of their existence in the Orient under Japanese supervision. Some of these accounts told of hunger, cold and threats.

Four Associated Press correspondents arrived with the group. Following are portions of a composite story on conditions in Japan and Japanese occupied territory written by the correspondents. Some parts of the story are omitted to conform with official requests from Washington that nothing be done which could interfere in the slightest with the welfare or repatriation of Americans still in Japanese-occupied territory. The correspondents are Max Hill, chief of the former Associated Press bureau in Tokyo; Regman Morin, who was in Indonesia; Joseph Dyan, who was in Tokyo; and Vaughn Meisling, who (Continued on page three)

New Era Ahead For Advertisers

Outlook For Agencies and Newspapers

Have been reading in a New York newspaper a most interesting advertisement of a great steel company. In effect, it constitutes a report of the progress this company has made in its production of steel plates for ships, bombs, and other war materials. This company has nothing whatever to sell to the general public, but it chooses to buy considerable newspaper space to give the people some most encouraging facts.

YES, THE HEAVENS CRIED. It rained the night my darling died. The lightning flashed. The thunder crashed. And the rain splashed.

On her face how she lay. In the rain so full of gloom. She looked at me and spoke. And I as if from a come woke. Heard her say, "Don't go away."

As the candles flickering light Pierced the darkness of the night. I saw though tears dimmed my sight That her soul would soon take flight.

As the tears-down my face did roll. I held the hand that was so cold. For she was dearer to me than a miser's gold. Sweeter than a flower fresh unfold.

Again the lightning flashed. And the thunder crashed. While the rain splashed. Yes, even the heavens cried. For my darling had died.

THEIR LIPS WILL NEVER DIE. Lips of Confederate gray smile down. And sadly say the love That was yesterday Is not today.

Yet even the whippoorwill knows I love you still. As the mockingbird's sweet song Breaks the stillness of the dawn. They think the love that was ours is gone.

"Yes, gone never to be again," chirps a little wren. "Why," the wise old owl asked the wren, "is this love affair to end?"

Yet the wren only repeats again—"Yes, gone never to be again."

Then all is still for a while till the oak asks, "Is it not a sin to lie little wren?"

Then the wren flapped her wings to fly away. Yet as she flew she turned again to say, "Yes, gone never to be again."

"Why," asked the owl, "did you ask if it were a lie?" "Don't you know that love does die?" "Yes," replied the oak with a sigh, "some may."

Yet true love will never die.

As the oak spoke the owl looked down and said, "Who was there but you and I?" "You're right," said the owl. "True love will never die."

Allies Blast . . .

From there, the route is hazardous even for foot travel. A wire suspension bridge permits passage across the Kumusi river, 14 miles farther southwest. Just beyond the river is an almost perpendicular hill, 800 feet high. Then come gorges, high mountains, jungles.

U. S. Army fliers first detected the sea movement of the Japanese down the Papuan peninsula from their older bases at Salamaua and Lae last Monday and three Japanese transports were listed among the invasion craft destroyed.

Nevertheless, the Japanese are believed to have put several thousand men ashore and the Brisbane Courier mail expressed disappointment in an editorial headed "Attack Must Be Our Aim."

"Disappointment," it said, "must be felt on two scores: first that Allied forces were not in a position to take the initiative; second that the approaching convoy was not intercepted earlier and attacked hard."

Kiwanians Enjoy War Discussion

Chief Specialist J. T. Stephenson, United States Navy recruiting officer temporarily stationed here, and Charles A. White, commander of the local Civilian Defense Council, participated in a panel discussion of "What Kiwanis Can Do in the War Effort." Judge Dink James had charge of the program. Lieut. Vernon Tyson, U. S. Army Air Corps, stationed at Bedford, Mass., also spoke. President Claude Ward presided.

Mr. Stephenson gave some timely advice by about talking too much about war work, especially about armed movements. He gave an informative insight into navy life, emphasizing the opportunities for young men to secure an education in any of 55 trades and schools.

More than 2500 young men in the navy attend the schools each month, he said. The naval officer told how civic and other clubs can help to increase enlistments either in the Naval Reserve for the duration, or in the Navy for six years.

Commander White gave a detailed outline of the civilian defense setup here, enumerating the various offices and the duties of those in charge and plead for better cooperation of the public in the practice blackouts. Every test alert or blackout should be carried out as though it is the real thing, he stated.

The Underprivileged Child committee reported that the club will send five Pitt county boys to Camp Edgerton near Raleigh next Monday. They are Robert Earle Flye Hyman, B. Venable, Ernie Topper, Homer Whitehurst and Randall Skinner.

Berry Bostic led the singing of Kiwanis songs. Mrs. Ray Tyson was accompanist.

Deporting Jews From Holland

London, July 25.—(AP)—The Netherlands news agency, Aneta, reported today that mass deportation of Jews from Holland to Poland and Russia was started by German authorities last Thursday. About 60,000 Jews already have been sent from Amsterdam, where they had been concentrated, the agency said. Its information, it added, came from a source in Zurich.

The schedule calls for deportation of about 600 Jews daily. It was stated. Each person was allowed only 33 pounds of personal luggage, and all other property is subject to confiscation.

The news agency, quoting the Stockholm newspaper, Nya Dagligt Allehande, said that a German degree for the disposition of Netherlands Jews provided that all between the ages of 15 and 46 will be deported.

VACATION FOR CONGRESSMEN

President To Handle Matter Of Inflation

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—As House members prepare today to start their summer vacation, President Roosevelt is reported to have reached the conclusion that he could take steps to curb inflation without additional legislation.

Members who declined to be quoted by name said they had received word that there was little likelihood Mr. Roosevelt would send a message to Congress asking for additional authority to control rising costs of living.

Therefore, they said, they could return to their homes or take a vacation for a few weeks since the calendars were cleared of all business and no important new proposals were in sight.

It was assumed that the President had found, after a careful survey, that he had adequate authority under his powers as commander in chief in time of war under authority of the price control and war powers acts to deal with any such situation as it might develop.

Papers Essential To Win The War

Asheville, July 25.—(AP)—Davis Lillenthal, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, told the North Carolina Press Association here last night that "if we were a country without newspapers, we could not win this war."

Lillenthal's address, made at the annual banquet of the association's convention, followed a full day of convention activities which included group meetings of weekly and daily newspaper publishers, an advertising clinic, and a tour of the State House.

"Ideas are more explosive than TNT," Lillenthal said, "and offensive tactics are strong and effective. It is a flaming public will, set a-fire by understanding and publication, that is the key to victory."

Speaking on the subject, "The Press Goes To War," Lillenthal listed the major functions of the press as: "First, to report; second, to criticize; third, to clarify, and fourth, to unify—to make us one."

DUKE TO GET ARMY SCHOOL

Finance School To Be Moved From Indiana

Washington, July 25 (AP)—The War Department said today that the Army Finance School would be transferred from Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., to Duke University at Durham, N. C., by August 1.

Expansion of the finance replacement center at Fort Harrison the department said, prompted the move which would take the finance officer candidate school and the finance officers school to Durham.

The department contract with Duke calls for the use of the entire Crowell Quadrangle of the University, and in addition classrooms in the law school, dormitory, drill grounds, recreational and exercise grounds and an infirmary.

Major General Howard K. Loughry, chief of finance, services of supply, said the transfer was arranged after Duke officials expressed a desire to participate more directly in the war program.

Seize Maps . . .

such important centers as the George Washington bridge, the banks of the Hudson river, airplane factories, war plants, reservoirs and other logical bomber targets. Foxworth said the alien also had between 50 and 75 similar maps of South and Central America, particularly of Peru and Chile.

Germans Gain . . .

(Continued from Page One) in hand-to-hand fighting our men annihilated over 2,000 Germans, set fire to 18 German tanks and destroyed three self-propelled guns and 14 machine-guns.

A Nazi advance also was recorded in another section of the Rostov zone, but this was declared to have been made only at a disproportional cost "after all the defenders of these positions died the death of the brave, fighting to the last drop of blood for their native land."

(The German high command declared yesterday that although mopping-up operations remained, Rostov had been captured. The Vichy radio said block-destroying explosions of delayed action bombs planted by the Russians were hindering the Nazi occupation.)

Red army men fought around the clock to check the grave threat to the Trans-Caucasus, a region of 96,000 square miles (almost as large as Oregon) containing a wealth of petroleum, timber and minerals coveted by Adolf Hitler.

More than 400 miles to the north-west, other Soviet soldiers knifed into German lines on the Bryansk front in a diversion supplementing counter-attacks at Voronezh. A communique announced that more than 20 German tanks were damaged and "our units occupied a number of populated places."

The Soviet Information Bureau said large enemy tank formations were attempting to break into Rostov, a city of 500,000.

"Intense and sanguinary battle are taking place," it said. "On one of the sectors our artillery tank destroyers repelled six enemy tanks and destroyed eight German tanks. Approaches to the fortified districts are littered with the corpses of thousands of Hitlerites. However, disregarding their losses, the enemy continues to throw more and more forces into the battle."

Fighting for Don river crossings in the region of Tsimlyansk, about half way between Rostov and the Volga river city of Stalingrad, was declared to have cost the invaders more than 1,500 dead on a single sector, yesterday.

"In another sector," it was reported, "the Germans were able to over cover of their air force and heavy artillery fire, to cross the river. With counter-blows, our units encircled and destroyed the infantry regiment which had broken through."

Germans and Hungarians, although again reinforced, were reported under continued punishment at Voronezh.

What's Up to the U. S. is Up to Us

This war belongs to all of us—to fight, to finance, to finish! (As the President has said: "We are all in it—all the way.") Every man, woman, and child is a partner in the most tremendous undertaking of our American history. Your part is clear—to put every dime and dollar you can possibly spare into uniform—to buy U. S. Savings Bonds and Stamps regularly—so that our boys will have the guns and planes and tanks they need to put the enemy on the run. Take part of your change in U. S. Savings Stamps every time you shop—your 25-cent Stamp may buy the machine bullet that sends an enemy bomber crashing in flames. Turn Stamps into Bonds as fast as you can, that is the American way—the volunteer way—to preserve our freedom and safeguard your home, your family, and your future. Remember that you can start buying U. S. Savings Bonds for as low as $18.75 (for the $25.00 Bond) and Savings Stamps for as little as 10 cents.

Mickey Efferson Chief Character At Air Base

Texan Is Daredevil Of Barnstorming Days

By DON WHITEHEAD
An Air Base Somewhere in Newfoundland, July 25—(Wide World)—Newfoundland never had seen anyone quite like Michael Patrick Ryan Efferson a self-appointed ambassador of good will for the United States.

He sort of dropped in unannounced on this remote outpost on the Trans-Atlantic ferry route, looked the situation over and proclaimed himself the mayor and president of the Chamber of Commerce, of which he is the only member.

Officially, the red-faced, blue-eyed Texan with a battered canvas hat over his thinning hair, holds an important position in the Royal Air Force Ferry Command.

A plane seldom leaves the field for the long hop to England that he doesn't see it off, and give the boys a thumbs up.

"And I ain't lost a ship yet, that I've given the old thumb," Mickey boasts.

He greets all visitors with a speech of welcome and presents them with the key to the city—which he promptly takes away from them to be autographed. The names of Molotov, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., Col. Bill Donovan, Lord and Lady Halifax and others are thick on his key.

The Newfoundlanders still can't figure out the shrewd, good-natured Texan. They see him hobnob with cooks, laborers, truck drivers and the lowliest of the workmen. Five minutes later he'll be chatting with a visiting ambassador or an English Lord.

Efferson came here only a few weeks ago, but already he knows most of the people by their first names. If there ever is an election, Mickey could win hands down.

"These are right nice folks up here," Mickey says, rattling a pair of battered dice. "They don't know much about crap shootin' but they sho' are eager to learn. And I'm just the man, as mayor of this fair city, to teach my constituents this old American pastime."

The Newfoundlanders gather around in droves to listen to Mickey talk to the dice.

The Mick is a product of Brady, Texas, and a veteran of the first World War. He got his start in aviation as a parachute jumper and wing walker in the old barnstorming days. He's twice a member of the Caterpillar club—men who have jumped from planes to save their lives.

He was with Cate's Flying Circus, billed as Diavolo, the world's greatest daredevil.

"Shucks," Mickey says, "I reckon I got to believin' the stuff myself. But a little woman cured me. It was like this:

"I was married at the time, havin' some trouble, and I went up to make a jump knowin' my wife was going to raise Cain when I got down. There was about 6,000 people on the ground watching me.

"When I was comin' down, I looked at the crowd and I said to myself, 'Mickey, them people think you are a great daredevil, a man without fear. You ain't afraid of man nor beast, but down there is a little old 100 pound woman who's got you scared half to death. I mean scared, mister!'"

That marriage didn't last and Mickey knocked around the country flying and doing stunts. He lost his pilot's license temporarily when he flew under the San Francisco Golden Gate Bridge and the Bay bridge to win a bet.

Mickey's a long way from home now, but:

"I reckon it just goes to show you can put an old Texas boy down anywhere on God's green earth and he'll get along."

American Nationals

was in Hongkong at its capitulation.

Some of the returning American nationals reported that some prisoners were threatened with the guillotine by Japanese authorities seeking to obtain admissions of guilt from men charged with espionage.

There were no known cases in Japan of physical abuse of women or children among the prisoners, but some men were told their wives and children would be made to suffer if they did not confess to espionage charges.

(These reports are those of individuals and have not yet been brought to the official attention of the United States government.)

There was a general food shortage in Hongkong and Americans and Canadians held there suffered from beri-beri, pellagra and other ailments caused by diet deficiencies. Some lost as much as 60 pounds in weight and the average was 20 pounds.

In the northern areas of the Japanese empire, internees suffered from cold during the winter. Those held in Korea and Manchukuo endured unheated cells and houses with temperatures below zero. There were no reports of deaths among American prisoners from mistreatment, but a number of British nationals committed suicide in prison.

A score of American priests, captured in Hongkong on Christmas Day, said they were marched to a ravine for execution, then relieved at the last moment. They were held in a garage for three days, tied in groups with insufficient water and food.

The United Press received a dispatch from its correspondent Robert Bellaire telling how he and Joseph Dynan of the Associated Press were beaten and choked by the Japanese when they refused to write certain statements. His dispatch

British Report Gains On Egyptian Front

Attacking in Egypt on a front west of El Alamein (broken line) the British were reporting gains as the new battle got underway. Drives centered around Tel El Eisa (1), along El Ruweisat ridge (2), where Axis forces were reported pushed back; and at the southern end of the line. Planes were heavily supporting the allied effort.

Artillery Erupts As British Open On Rommel

This radio photo, direct from Cairo to New York, arrived in the U. S. just as news developed that the British in Egypt had opened a simultaneous attack on all sectors of the El Alamein front in an effort to wipe out Nazi Leader Rommel's forces. Shown is a medium British artillery piece firing at the enemy. Vast artillery fighting, such as this, marked the initial stages of the battle.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

HIS GRACE SUFFICIENT
Charles Kingsley once declared that in an hour of trouble he challenged God so earnestly to fulfill His promise that he almost expected Him to appear in visible form. But God did something better than this, he declared Kingsley. He so filled the heart with peace, the mind with resourcefulness, and the whole life with new power that again was the grace of God, shown to be sufficient.

St. Paul once prayed God that he might be relieved of what he referred to as a thorn in his flesh. This God declined to do. But He answered the apostle that He would put such grace and power into his heart that the presence of the thorn would make no difference. Even as Paul prayed and the Most High in a kindly fashion denied his request. He was adding power upon power to the Apostle's life, until, in spite of his affliction, Paul was made adequate to everything that life demanded.

God's greatest blessing is conferred upon us not when He grants our requests but when He gives us something better than we know how to ask for. The lame beggar at the gate of the temple asked Peter and John for alms, and they gave him healing. We often ask God for alms and He graciously gives us bread.

Kingsley does not tell us whether God rescued him from his trouble or not. He simply declares that God answered his cry with a still small voice and made him equal to the circumstances he had to confront.

"POLITICS AS USUAL"

Frankly we will be glad when the November elections have passed, for then it will be two whole years before time for another election and maybe Washington can get something done. From the legislative standpoint, election years are bad enough in peacetime, but apparently it is next to impossible to get action on necessary war legislation while Congressmen are trying to carry on "politics as usual" at the same time. Maybe after the elections we can get down to the serious business of trying to win the war.

HOW ABOUT THOSE OLD PHONOGRAPH RECORDS?

Sheriff J. Knott Proctor, chairman of the American Legion old phonograph record drive, is urging the citizens of Pitt county to donate their old or broken records to the campaign being waged to procure new records and phonographs for the men in our armed services at the various war fronts and outposts. The Legion in its nationwide drive is trying to collect thirty-seven million old records to be sold for salvage with the proceeds to be used for the above-mentioned purposes and Pitt county's quota of these old records is between five and six thousand. There must be far more than that many old unused records in this county and we are sure that our citizens will be glad to donate them now that the matter has been brought to your attention. If you have records you would like to contribute please turn them over to some member of the American Legion in your community or notify Sheriff Proctor. Your contribution of these old records will help to furnish wholesome entertainment to the men in our armed services without depriving you of anything of value to you. Let's put Pitt county over the top in this drive now.

Washington Daybook

Washington.—President Roosevelt probably can be rated now as one of the world's foremost amateur military experts.

While associates say Mr. Roosevelt makes no pretense of being an expert (he got quite a laugh out of Hitler's "disturbances" telling him to take direct command of the German army in Russia), as supreme commander of American armed forces he has to know plenty about what it takes to wage war all over the world.

Since early summer of 1940, when the Nazis conquest of western Europe scared this country into a big defense program, the President has had extraordinary schooling in military problems. Since Pearl Harbor that schooling has been intensive.

He has almost daily discussions with the top men of the army and navy, frequent meetings with the Pacific War Council and conferences with military missions from Russia, Britain and China.

He gets the "lowdown" on war plans and developments from Admiral, commander-in-chief of the fleet and from General George Marshall, chief of staff of the army. He sees secret analyses made by our military "best minds" of German and Japanese power and weakness and of the progress of their campaigns.

He studies confidential reports from General MacArthur in Australia, from General Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of U. S. forces in Europe and from Admiral Leahy, recent ambassador to Vichy, recent reports from military leaders in the Pacific, the Atlantic and the Caribbean, in Africa, China, Iceland, the Aleutian Islands and Hawaii.

The extent of the President's influence on military decisions is a government secret. When, and if, members of the joint army-navy board disagree, the President's suggestions undoubtedly have considerable weight because of his position as supreme commander. His ideas on grand strategy by the United Nations, based largely on information obtained from his military advisers, obviously have much influence with Winston Churchill and Josef Stalin.

While Mr. Roosevelt has frequently demonstrated that he is strong-willed and not bashful about asserting his authority, friends say he fully consults the experts before making a military decision. He has too much sense, they assert, to make a major decision against general opposition by the professional military people.

Army and navy men point out, moreover, that Admiral King, General Marshall, Admiral Leahy and General MacArthur aren't what you would call "yes men."

"Imagine 'Old Eagle Eye' Ernie (King), tough and tough-tempered as he is, toadying to anybody in a matter of naval strategy," commented one veteran officer.

As background for his present "advanced course" in military problems, the President has an unusually extensive knowledge of world geography, study since boyhood of naval warfare and experience as assistant secretary of the navy during the first World War.

ward Stalingrad, but the question must appear to have arrived when he must hold in the south.

In short, we have reached a crisis in this bloody engagement which is bound to have a vital and perhaps decisive influence on the outcome of the war. Now is the time when we begin to ask in earnest whether the Russians can hold. That is a logical assumption, although the Muscovites naturally haven't been broadcasting the strength of their forces. The world long has known that Hitler intended to strike for the Caucasus and Middle East in an effort to secure the oil and other supplies which he needs so badly. If therefore would be passing strange if a man as shrewd as Joseph Stalin had left the gateway to the Caucasus unguarded.

Unfortunately, however, we oversimplify the matter if we believe that holding the line of the lower Don, or even the whole gateway to the Caucasus, ends the Hitlerian threat. As explained before in this column, the Nazi chief had two objectives in his great offensive. One is to break into the Caucasus, and the other is to cut the Soviet proper off from his lifeline to the Caucasus and the Persian Gulf.

Now it is possible for Hitler to sever the lifeline even if he can't crash the gateway. If you will look again at your map, you will see that he could badly cripple the Russians by capturing the big industrial and rail center of Stalingrad on the Volga, towards which the Nazi eastward drive is now headed. It's vital to the foe that he hamstring Russia now so that he may be able to meet the threatened allied invasion of western Europe.

Therefore the battle of the Caucasus shortly is likely to break into two major engagements, one at the gateway in the Rostov sector of the lower Don, and the other for Stalingrad. In fact, we may have a third engagement growing out of this situation, for the Reds continue on the offensive at Cornezh, on the upper Don.

That push in the Vronzh sector may have great possibilities. This city is at the extreme left flank of the Nazi offensive, and if the Muscovites do get a major drive under way there it will create a very grave threat to the invading armies to the south. A Red breakthrough there likely would lessen the seriousness of the Russian position. We must await developments, though, for the picture isn't yet clear.

In any event, the battles on the lower Don and for Stalingrad are likely to be sanguinary and protracted. They will take time which Hitler can't afford to spare. Don't forget that if he can be held until winter comes, he will be in a mighty bad way.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

Chapter 33
Surprise For Kent
Puzzled, Kent stood very still. With every sense alert, he tried to project his perceptions through the darkness, and suddenly he had the feeling that someone was here. He listened, hearing nothing, then moved aside, away from the door, and pressed the switch. After that there was nothing he could do but stare.

Smack in the middle of the double bed lay Jack Fenner, his face turned towards the windows. On the bedside table was a pack of cigarettes, a pitcher of water, an empty glass and a bottle of Scotch, half full.

"Well, how do you like that?" Murdock said aloud.
Nothing happened. He walked around the foot of the bed. Fenner's eyes were closed.

"Hey," he said, and stood there another moment or two, running his fingers through dark hair already touched, frowning, watching the detective with mild annoyance. Finally he picked up the bottle of whiskey and uncorked it. He held it under Fenner's nose.

Fenner stirred, muttering softly. He licked his lips and opened one eye; then he opened both and turned over on his back.
Without a word he reached for the bottle. Murdock put it back on the table. Fenner sighed loudly and grinned.

"It was a swell dream," he said. "All about a robbery in a distillery." "Nuts," Murdock said. "You were playing possum."
"Ho-hum," said Fenner, stretching. "What time is it?"
"After three."
"My, my."
Fenner reached for a cigarette and lit it, propping the pillows behind him. Murdock began to undress and his grin went away. A sobersnack came upon his face and trouble touched his eyes, for he could no longer pretend that Jack Fenner was merely here as an overnight guest.

"What's up, Jack?"
"I guess they wanted a man in the house. We got in a little after one and sat around."
"Who you protecting them from?"
"The guy that killed Clarke. He was at it again tonight." Fenner (King), tough and tough-tempered as he is, toadying to anybody in a matter of naval strategy," commented one veteran officer.

Murdock put on his robe and sat on the edge of the bed, trying to put down his bewilderment, to speak reasonably.
"What did Joyce and Della have to do with it?"
"Plenty."
"But how, damn it? And how did you get mixed up in it?"
"I'm working for him." "You're what?"
Fenner nodded. "I told your wife you'd probably find out about it."
"Go on."
"I told her you'd get sore too." "Never mind that. What were you doing for them?"

"Ordinarily a client's rights have to be protected."
"Oh, sure," Murdock said disgustedly.
"But this time it's okay. Joyce knew you'd find me here, so she said I'd better tell you the whole thing."
"Well, that's big of you both." "I knew you'd get sore." "I'm not sore but—"
"You want me to tell it or not?" Fenner waited; when he saw he wouldn't be interrupted he said: "The way I get it is . . ."

At first, as Fenner began to unfold the story, Murdock's reaction was one of resentment, but as the details began to pile up the feeling of resentment gave way to one of worry. He had known, of course, that Joyce had been anxious about Ward Allen and Della Stewart, but he'd had no idea that she would actually involve herself in the investigation without telling him.

Actually he had had no opinion on the matter at all. He had been puzzled, but he had no time to think about it when he heard what had happened that night. A feeling of alarm and dismay came over him. It was impossible now to ignore the threat of danger to Della and Joyce.

New York Giants Resourceful In Winning Ball Games

PLAYER SHIFT HELPS IN WIN FROM THE REDS

Bench-Warmer Hits Second Homer In Two Days

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

There are more ways than one to win a baseball game, but the formula employed with increasing success by the New York Giants is to harness all the power available, even if it means sending infielders to the outfield and regulars to the scrap heap.

The latest of masterful Melvin Ott's experiments took big Babe Young off the bench, which he had warmed all season because Johnny Mize was doing a brisk business at the Babe's old first base stand, and spotted him in center field.

Young came through yesterday with an eleventh inning homer—his second game-winning circuit clout in as many days—to give the Giants a 3-2 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

Only 24 hours earlier he had smashed a home run with two men on base to turn back the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Yesterday's win not only stopped Cincinnati and Bucky Walters, but it saved third place in the National league standings for the Giants, who now own a margin of a game and a half over the Reds.

The game was one of a trio of extra-inning affairs in the major leagues' nine-game program for the day and night.

A pair of twilight-night double-headers broke precedent in two American league cities and left the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians in a virtual deadlock for second place, eleven and a half games behind the pennant-bound New York Yankees.

At St. Louis, where an unusually large crowd of 24,000 took advantage of the starting time, the Red Sox whipped the Browns, 5-3, in the twilight opener of their bargain bill but once under the lights, the teams battled eleven innings before Chet Laabs gave the Browns the nod with a two-run homer for a 3-1 triumph.

At Cleveland, the Indians, edged out the Washington Senators, 4-3 and 5-4. The afterpiece went 12 frames.

Jack Wade registered his second straight triumph since being gashed up by the Chicago White Sox, shading Dick Fowler as he pitches a 2-1 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics in a night contest.

The only afternoon game in the American league saw the Yankees blank the Detroit Tigers, 3-0.

The Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals maintained their one-two pace atop the National league with little trouble.

Whitlow Wyatt stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates with seven hits as Brooklyn triumphed, 6-4.

Lefty Max Lanier shut out the Boston Braves on six hits while his Cardinal mates collected 16 and coasted to an 8-0 victory.

A night game between the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phils was postponed.

Greensboro And Norfolk Split

Charlotte, July 25 (AP)—The league-leading Greensboro Red Sox split a double bill with the Norfolk Tars last night, while Portsmouth, trailing the leaders by a half-game saw its scheduled game with Winston-Salem postponed.

The Red Sox won the first game of the doubleheader, 2-1, but in the eighth-inning nightcap they handed the Tars five unearned runs and the Virginians won 7-3.atcher Paul Kluk's single in the 11th gave the Sox their triumph in the first game.

Charlotte edged out Richmond 2-1 in a five inning game called on account of the weather. Bucky Jacobs allowed the Colts only two hits. The second game of the scheduled double header was postponed.

Weather also caused postponement of the Asheville-Durham tilt.

New York, July 25—(Wide World)—Pass the posters to Al Sabath for deciding not to start Alsbath in the Arlington classic today. ... That seventy grand is a lot of tin since coming off his sickbed, and you don't need a crystal ball to tell you he's not ready for a million-and-a-quarter waltz. ... By keeping him in his barn, Sabath goes a long way toward wiping out some of the criticism that chased him all year about working the willing little celt too hard. ... With him sitting this one out, it looks from here like the Valdina Entry, bless me and shut out in that order. ... You may dream, but your unashed mutual tickets in this corner.

Don't be surprised if Belmont Park comes up with a "Jacing Olympics" this fall. ... Leaders in all divisions will meet to clear up the year's title confusions.

The Giants are getting ready to pop with a new pitcher. ... Don't look now, but King Levinsky not only passed his physical, but also his mental exam for the army. ... And is now ready to go into his "transom" for Uncle Sam. ... The whole Minnesota High School basketball tournament for this winter looks pretty shaky because of transportation headaches. ... Willard Marshall used one of Johnny Mize's 46-ounce pals, against the Reds yesterday and clocked one of the heaviest homers seen in the Polo Grounds this year. ... Needless to say, Big Jawn now has a partner. ... No matter whether he goes in at end or back, they're already tabbing the Vanderbilt soph, Johnny North, as all-America stuff.

ing of advertisements has held to high standards. Some copy is, of course, in the "silly class," but, generally, agency men have made it their business to avoid misleading statements. The public has come to rely upon advertisements. In countless instances people make it a practice to read the ads first and the news stories second. Naturally, there is some waste in advertising; but 90 per cent of it is to the good.

Generally, the individual or firm which foots a bill for advertising expects his ad to "pay its way." The return in merchandise sales per dollar spent for space is carefully watched by retailers and other advertisers. In certain types of copy featuring the sale of shoes, dresses, and various other articles of consumer goods, a merchant can determine an hour after his store opens for business whether or not the advertisement is a success.

Colored Baseball Be Here Monday Night

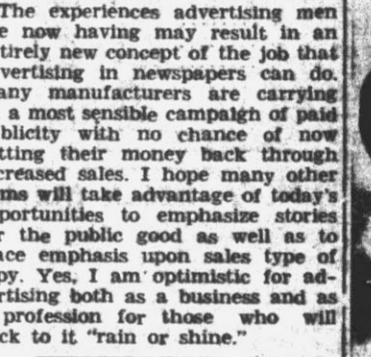

Such revenue is vastly important not only to advertising agencies and to the papers, but to retailers, to manufacturers, and even to churches. All kinds of civic and social organizations rely upon free notices of their activities. For this reason, I would like to see all daily newspapers sell for five cents and weeklies for ten cents. We all have more of a stake in the business of advertising and newspaper publishing than we realize. Our papers make it possible for us to have each day not only our local news but information from every point in the world. Washington certainly owes a debt to all papers whether editorially they are "for" or "agin" the administration. Rationing and other government controls could not be put into effect without the free publicity given by the press.

The government might well underwrite a series of advertisements prepared, through regular agency channels, to keep the people informed on what is going on. After all, as it has been said before, this is the people's war. They are paying the bills in life and property and have a right to know what is going on. Even Elmer Davis must depend upon the generosity of newspaper publishers to get his stories across to the public. Furthermore, the government must appreciate that the advertisements of our steel companies, air lines, railroads, banks, and other business interests are today helping Washington acquire the people with the progress of our war effort.

Opportunity For Advertisers
The experiences advertising men are now having may result in an entirely new concept of the job that advertising in newspapers can do. Many manufacturers are carrying on a most sensible campaign of paid publicity with no chance of now getting their money back through increased sales. I hope many other firms will take advantage of today's opportunities to emphasize stories for the public good as well as to place emphasis upon sales type of copy. Yes, I am optimistic for advertising both as a business and as a profession for those who will stick to it "rain or shine."

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Navy is making a plea to civilians to turn in their binoculars for military use during the War. The Army and Navy both need binoculars for navigation and scouting purposes. Depending on the power of the lenses, they cost from $50 to $90 each.

If you have a set of 6 x 30 up to 7 x 50-power lens binoculars loan them to the Army or Navy. If not, your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps will help buy this equipment for our fighting forces. At least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every payday will do the job... and provide the "eyes" through which a scouting pilot may spot an enemy battleship.

EDITOR HELD FOR SEDITION

Indicted for Attempting Undermine Army Morale

New York, July 25.—(AP)—Charged in a warrant with conspiring to undermine the morale of America's armed forces, William Griffin, editor-publisher of the New York Enquirer, has been placed under technical arrest at St. Claire's hospital.

The search began when U. S. Commissioner Carroll W. Cotler issued bench warrants for Griffin, Col. Eugene Nelson, Sanctuaries, army reserve officer, and James Smythe, executive of the Protestant War Veterans Association.

Dr. William Wagner, who visited Griffin at the hospital yesterday, said the publisher was suffering from coronary thrombosis.
