Elizabeth Resents Intrusion Of Men

Redding Hudson had a 370-pound sow that didn't breed and was a general nuisance on the farm, breaking through fences and doing other damage. He lost patience and decided to sell her. He spent three days trying to round the porker up and put her in a crate for delivery to the slaughter house. With the help of neighbors Hudson spent half a day trying to corral the sow without success. She stepped into the noose of a rope laid on the ground and the men swung on to it, but had a "hayride" around the lot. Elizabeth (that's her name) — she was one pig too many when born and was brought up on a bottle — dragged the farmers around, finally rooting her snout under a small pile of lumber and spreading the timbers and the men on the rope all over the lot. They finally got the sow into a crate, put it on a trailer and went to town. At the slaughter pen Hudson and Marshall Clark, truck driver, had to take the crate apart, plank by plank, to get the sow out. That was week ago, but Hudson and Clark reminisced happily today in the belief that the porker is now bacon, ham and side-meat and maybe sausage in some grocery store.

Civilian Casualties
London, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Civilian air raid casualties totaling 268 killed and 808 injured seriously in Britain during July were announced today by the Minister of Home Security. The dead included 40 children and 180 women.

Andrew Kirby (left), 12, and his brother, Albert Kirby (right), 17, were jailed on a murder charge at Florence, Ala., after William Paul Hubbard, 20, was fatally shot in a strange series of circumstances. Crooner A. L. Ehrbridge said the boys' father, H. L. Kirby, suffered a slight stroke and fell to the ground while walking to church with Hubbard and the latter's brother, Melvin Hubbard. The Kirby brothers came up and found their father on the ground. They thought he had been attacked by the Hubbards, Crooner Ehrbridge said, and a rifle shot that followed struck William Paul Hubbard.

Convicted.
London, Aug. 14 (AP)—A United States Army court martial convicted Private Louis Stevens of Brooklyn of manslaughter today in the death of Private Bernard Soffer, a military policeman and sentenced him to six months hard labor.

Witnesses testified that Stevens was cleaning his gun in his barracks when it went off and that Soffer cried out, "I have been hit."

Struggle For Control War Program Continues

Argument As Who Should Be Boss
Goes On

By JAMES MARLOW and
WILLIAM PINKERTON

New York, Aug. 14 (Wide World)—There is still no end in sight for the homefront's thunderous struggle of words over the way to produce for war. But when it comes it will affect you, whether you are a businessman or a worker.

These are some of the arguments in the words that accuse, denounce, find fault and offer remedies for doing the producing job better:

Should the military move into real control of war production—considering war needs first and civilian needs second—which is now centered in the business men who staff the war production board?

Is small business going to be the whipping boy of this war while big business is the fair-haired boy, reaping the profits?

Is the profit motive after all a better incentive to production than patriotism? In other words, will businessmen work harder for a dollar than they will for their country?

The past week has produced an unusually heavy batch of arguments for and against business-as-usual.

Senator Truma (D-Mo.) said it was time to "quit thinking of both guns and butter and about keeping the business after the war. If we don't win the war, there won't be any business to keep."

Asserting that congressional "enthusiasm" for profit limitation on war contracts was dampened by Australia's move in the "opposite direction," the current Business Week magazine said:

"With characteristic socialist fervor, Canberra slapped a 4 per cent limit on all wartime profits shortly after the outbreak of hostilities in 1939."

Now the law has been rescinded because (1) it was too difficult to enforce, and (2) experience has proved that the promise of good profits is still a more potent incentive than patriotism for getting quick production results."

But to those business men who might fear that if the military once got control of industrial war production it might be reluctant to give it up when peace came, the Wall Street Journal said:

"This newspaper refuses to regard military control of industrial production with the surprised horror that seems to exist in a great many quarters. If we are not ready for that kind of thing, then we are not in the mood that we will have to be in to win the war. "Undoubtedly we are going to hear anguished cries about 'military dictatorship.' Very well, that is what war is. As for such dictatorship running beyond war purposes, that is bosh. The generals and the admirals want to win the war as quickly as they can. That is their business. When they have done so, they will probably be glad of a chance to rest."

But the New York Journal of Commerce, commenting that reports indicate a deep struggle between the Army and Navy and civilian administrators, said:

"Should the armed forces win control over the flow of materials, x x x business men generally would be deeply concerned x x x and so are back of the WPB in this test of strength."

The plight of small business was emphatically stressed by the House Defense Migration committee which blamed the WPB and the armed services for their alleged failure to bring the smaller manufacturers into the war production scheme.

Those small firms, the committee said, can supply $15 to $30 billions of war goods in the next two years. The WPB was alleged to have granted three-fourths of all war contracts to 100 concerns.

Defenders of contracts to big firms say that government agencies, anxious to get a job done with the greatest speed and least fuss, naturally go to the large companies that have the means and technique needed for mass-producing in a hurry.

The migration committee said thousands of small plants—"being pulverized between the millstones of civilian material priorities and failure to obtain war contracts"—are selling their tools while their workers migrate to already crowded centers of war production.

"The national economy," the committee said, "is gravitating toward the large corporations which dominate the heavy goods industries. The manpower needs of these companies make of them huge siphons sucking up the surplus manpower created in the hundreds of counties and cities without contracts."

"The present paradox is that the major portions of the country have a surplus of manpower, with people every day being unemployed, while a relatively few major centers of war production are crowded."

Gold Tooth For Colonel's Dog

Something new has been added to "Major," eight-month-old spotted pointer which belongs to a lieutenant colonel at Fort Moultrie, S. C. It's a gold-crowned upper canine tooth, the work of Maj. Neil W. McCaully, post dental surgeon, who is holding the dog. An army truck ran over the puppy and shattered his jaw three weeks ago.

"Can you name a cracker so fresh and crisp it perks up summer appetites?"

Let the mercury soar! Ritz crackers will be as temptingly crisp—as completely delicious as they are in January!

For a special baking process gives them sealed-in freshness—protects the flavor and crispness everyone loves.

Think how much that will mean to you when you want to get the very most out of the foods you buy!

So stick to Ritz this summer. You'll enjoy the zip and zing it brings to salads, spreads, cold drinks. You'll say—"no wonder Ritz is America's favorite cracker!"

"RITZ! It doesn't wilt in hot weather!"

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

"LET HIM DENY HIMSELF"

Nothing is so destructive to body, mind, and spirit as the disposition to live one's life within the narrow circle of self-interest. Many a person is actually sick today because his mind dwells continually upon his bodily functions. There are thousands of people who in reality haven't a care in the world, yet they allow every little circumstance in life to be enlarged into something so monstrous and irritating that all peace is banished from their minds.

Nine-tenths of all the quarreling of the world is over inconsequentialities. Most unhappy people would be cured of their unhappiness if for a moment they would stop thinking of themselves and resolutely establish the center of their lives outside the circle of a few selfish interests. Certainly one of the greatest requirements ever laid down by Jesus was that a man in order to be a disciple, must "deny himself." Many people wonder why it is they do not have more happiness, inasmuch as their lives are comparatively free of moral vices. The reason is that they are burdened physically, mentally, and spiritually with an abnormal anxiety about themselves. They are always on their own minds. The beauty of God's world round about them and the joys which the common run of people have in their fellowship one with another—these mean nothing to a person whose every thought begins and ends in self. He has never found life because he has not had the courage to deny himself.

CONFLICT OF AUTHORITY

(Scottish Rite News)

There comes a revelation, or rumor at least, from the War Production Board that the War and Navy Departments are wasting critical materials at a time when the Board is calling on the civilian population to cooperate and make sacrifices to help win the war. The chairman of the Board, Donald Nelson, was made czar of production when he was appointed and he accepted only on the condition that his word would be final except for the President, but he is now being defied by officialdom.

The Board has ordered substitutes in a long list of materials where substitutes would answer the purposes for which they would be used, thus releasing vast amounts of critical materials for strictly combat purposes. But it has met with steady refusal, or at least apathy or indifference.

The President alone has the power to settle this conflict of authority. Our country has always operated on the principle that civilian authority must rule over the military, although both groups are composed of loyal citizens of the United States. The system of checks and balances as set forth in the Constitution provide for this. The wisdom of such a principle has been proven many times in our history.

In recent years there have been examples in other countries where a profes-

a citizen army has taken over, and dictatorship or an oligarchy has resulted. Now our country is at war and it is certainly no time for any differences based on pride of opinion or desire for power to assert themselves. One rule only should be followed and that is to do what is in the best interests of our country to enable us to win the war in the shortest time possible. All other questions should wait for discussion and settlement until the war is over.

Washington Daybook

By J. W. B. B. B.

Washington—With the Army in the Capital:

The V-mail (transmission of letters to overseas soldiers by transiting them to microfilm) has proved so popular that the Army has placed it on a two-way basis to the United Kingdom, the Middle East, Hawaii and Australia.

In the first six weeks of the one-way service, the Army postal service handled 250,000 V-mail letters. APO officials have had to pause in their delivery of V-mail to warn soldiers of the danger of overloading their mailboxes.

Some of the flying school safety records have been phenomenal. For instance, at Chico Field, Calif., student pilots have flown the equivalent of 500 times around the equator without a single fatal accident.

Since the lipstick may blur the writing making it illegible on the photographic reproduction.

When the Army announced that it was transferring its pigeon breeding school training center from Fort Monmouth, N. J., to Camp Crowder, Mo., a couple of interesting facts came out about the Army's feathered messengers.

In the blood strains of carriers flying for the U. S. A. in World War II are those of "Always Faithful," a Hall of Fame award winner in the pigeon world who several years ago winged his way 716 miles from Chattanooga to Fort Monmouth at almost 47 miles an hour; and "General Mauborgne" who set an all-time speed record by flying 600 miles from Kansas City to Fort Sam Houston in less than 14 hours—with no tail winds.

It's the little things that win a war. For years the Army has been shipping its "G. I." (government issue) cans in nests of six cans, crated—and that's the way they've been going with and to the forces overseas.

Then along comes some unnamed hero of the loading lines, and with an eye on those subsinkings, works out three new "packs" for the 10 to 32 gallon cans that are used for everything from garbage to washing dishes. As a result, nested cans are now packed with sugar, flour, rice and dry produce—the result, space savings up to 47 per cent.

When the Army air forces announced recently, and with some justifiable pride, that their accident rate was 68 per cent lower than 12 years ago and 10 per cent below the 1930-40 ten-year average, they didn't tell all the story.

When the Army air forces announced recently, and with some justifiable pride, that their accident rate was 68 per cent lower than 12 years ago and 10 per cent below the 1930-40 ten-year average, they didn't tell all the story.

Some of the flying school safety records have been phenomenal. For instance, at Chico Field, Calif., student pilots have flown the equivalent of 500 times around the equator without a single fatal accident.

When the Army announced that it was transferring its pigeon breeding school training center from Fort Monmouth, N. J., to Camp Crowder, Mo., a couple of interesting facts came out about the Army's feathered messengers.

In the blood strains of carriers flying for the U. S. A. in World War II are those of "Always Faithful," a Hall of Fame award winner in the pigeon world who several years ago winged his way 716 miles from Chattanooga to Fort Monmouth at almost 47 miles an hour; and "General Mauborgne" who set an all-time speed record by flying 600 miles from Kansas City to Fort Sam Houston in less than 14 hours—with no tail winds.

It's the little things that win a war. For years the Army has been shipping its "G. I." (government issue) cans in nests of six cans, crated—and that's the way they've been going with and to the forces overseas.

Then along comes some unnamed hero of the loading lines, and with an eye on those subsinkings, works out three new "packs" for the 10 to 32 gallon cans that are used for everything from garbage to washing dishes. As a result, nested cans are now packed with sugar, flour, rice and dry produce—the result, space savings up to 47 per cent.

At Craig Field, Alabama, an advanced flying school, the pilots checked off a total distance of 1,179 times the earth's equatorial circumference with only one minor accident; and 23 million miles without any accident due to mechanical causes.

This last is important because not only were the pilots trained, but according to the National Aeronautics Association, which gathers the records on such things, the ground crew mechanics also were students.

er planes are for the first time operating on a large scale against the Axis in western Europe. Our forces are striking from bases in Britain.

Meantime American Marines, backed by our own and Allied warships and aircraft, are in the midst of a daring offensive against the Axis in the Solomon Islands, and at latest reports were getting ahead with the job of wresting highly important strategic points from the enemy in the Tulagi zone. Big U. S. bombers, handled by our own men, are making fierce war against the Axis in the Mediterranean area, and far afield in China are hammering the Axis. As among the fog-shrouded Aleutians a task force has been busy against enemy units which managed to get a foothold on isolated islands.

Now this doesn't mean that Uncle Sam has come into full-strength or anything like it. On the contrary he is just beginning to feel the swell of his muscles. But it does mean that we finally have the ball rolling.

The diversity of America's operations, which literally circle the world, emphasize the fact that this is a global war in the full meaning of the term. It shows us how impossible it is to dissociate any one theater from the rest. It makes it plain that all these widely separated operations are in reality closely linked.

Look at all the "fronts" there are. There's the Russian theater, the Anglo-American air offensive in western Europe, the nasty battle of the Atlantic, the battle of the Mediterranean, the battle for Egypt, the China-Jap conflict, the battle for the southwest Pacific, the battle for the Aleutians. What happens in any one of these zones affects all the others.

Thus we see that when we start to talk about opening up a "second front," there are many places in which it could be useful. Our drive against the vital Jap bases in the Solomons, for instance, if successful may prove to be a most important "second front" by creating a diversion to keep the Nipponese from attacking Russia in Siberia. Our Solomon island offensive also is a "second front" for "hard-pressed China."

When we look at the position from this standpoint it becomes clear how foolish it is for the general public in the Allied countries to take unto themselves the prerogatives of the Allied high command and insist that a "second front" be established in western Europe or any other theater. The establishment of a "second front" must depend on the pressure of the moment and on allied ability to meet the emergency.

At that hour no one would have guessed that this was a fateful day in Onha. The black shadows of the tropical foliage sprawled in cataleptic frescoes upon the packed earth of the winding streets. From the open doors no sounds came except, now and then, a gentle shuffling. The glimpses of the flower-brightened patios held the breathless wonder of tableaux seen through a stereoscope, three-dimensional, but unreal. The humid air was weighed with fragrance, cloyingly sweet yet somehow tainted with decay.

Even Sandy's quick, nervous steps were subconsciously showed as he made his way to the hotel. Although his thoughts were turned inward he was aware of a recurring image in the vistas around him, and was brought up short when he realized that every street appeared to terminate in mountains. He went on with the feeling that the mountains were there watching him.

The white-washed, tile-roofed little hotel came into view. Sandy hastened his steps so that he was at the hotel before he could be seen through the passage to the patio within.

YESTERDAY: At first there seemed to be no way in which Sandy Morse could get information about the Forbidden Land which lay in the mountains back of Onha, and contained the secret key to Mayan history—unless Sandy was very much mistaken. But then McIntyre remembered that Tyra Fleming was in town, and that Tyra and her father were the only people who ever had come out of the Forbidden Land whole and healthy. And he offered to see that Sandy met Tyra.

At that hour no one would have guessed that this was a fateful day in Onha. The black shadows of the tropical foliage sprawled in cataleptic frescoes upon the packed earth of the winding streets. Helen Comes In

Gil was waiting there as Sandy came in. He was a glass half empty, stood on a table beside him and he held a gaudy-hued parakeet on his fingers.

He was a stocky fellow, long of waist, short of legs, capable of great endurance. He had a swarthy skin, an ironic gleam in his eyes and an aplomb that was an entree to any social group. But perhaps his greatest value to Sandy was his disposition. Good-tempered, adaptable, blindly loyal, he acted as a balance wheel.

And on this expedition in particular such a balance wheel was needed. For there was Helen Brotherton.

Freedom of the seas.

Abandonment of the use of force among nations; disarmament of those threatening aggression.

On these points, the President told the Prime Minister, "we based, and continue to base, our hopes for a better future for the world."

A year ago, he recalled, nations fighting for their existence against a "common, barbaric foe" were united and small groups. Now these nations and groups of nations in all the continents, he said, have formed a great union of humanity, dedicated to realization of the program of purposes and principles of the Atlantic Charter, through a victory over common enemies.

"Their faith in life, liberty, independence and religious freedom, and in the preservation of human rights and justice in their own lands," Mr. Roosevelt declared, "has been given form and substance through a great gathering of peoples now known as the United Nations."

"Freedom and independence are today in jeopardy—the world over. If the forces of conquest are not successfully resisted and defeated there will be no freedom and no independence and no opportunity for freedom for any nation."

"It is the duty of the single and supreme objective of defeating the Axis forces of aggression that the United Nations have pledged all their resources and efforts."

Presumably for transmission to the heads of the United Nations, the State Department sent the text of the chief executive's message to American diplomats accredited to their governments.

The Japanese vessels attacked in New Guinea waters presumably were heading toward the Solomons from Salamaua, their chief base in New Guinea, or from Rabaul or Gasmata, in New Britain. The latter are some 700 miles northwest of the Tulagi area, where the Marines landed on three islands in the southeastern Solomons last Friday, and Salamaua is about 850 miles to the west.

All three of the enemy-held ports have been pounded during Allied aerial assaults which started against Japanese communications and reinforcement bases simultaneously with the attack on the Solomons. Heretofore the attacks have been for the most part on the port installations and airfields, but with the latest assaults the action has moved eastward out to sea.

Four Japanese ships were left sinking in flames in a Wednesday attack on Rabaul and some 2,000 miles farther to the west Allied bombers earlier sank a merchant ship.

An Italian communique summarizing "further operations in the Mediterranean against remaining units of the enemy convoy, apparently purported to give sinkings and damage in addition to that already reported in a special bulletin last night."

That case, the Italian claims totaled:

Sunk: Aircraft carrier Eagle, three cruisers two destroyers, and 21 mer-

It was through Gil that Sandy had met the young widow. Somewhere in Gil's wanderings he had come across the Brothertons—that was before Lang Brotherton had died. But Gil never forgot a face, and when he saw Helen Brotherton one day in the Regis Hotel Bar in Mexico City, he had not hesitated to renew his acquaintance. It appeared, then, that she was having a fling at seeing the world and that she was finding it a little disappointing.

She talked vaguely of "wasting" her youth and of wishing she had some goal besides aimlessly spending her late husband's money. She commiserated Gil to show her the sights of Mexico City, declaring she wanted to understand more about the Indian mind.

After a few of these excursions, the renewal acquaintance having grown with rapid strides, Gil told Helen about Sandy and his itch to search for an ancient Mayan city in Southern Mexico. The result of Gil's suggestion was a meeting, and before Sandy could whistle up a wind, Helen Brotherton had offered to finance the expedition. The joker was that she insisted upon being one of the party.

Excess Baggage
At first Sandy refused flatly, but Helen remained serenely adamant. Either she went along or she would not support the expedition with her money. Take it or leave it.

The lure was too much. At last Sandy grudgingly gave in to Helen's wishes. It was his secret hope that when they reached Onha where Helen found herself face to face with rather primitive living conditions, she would lose interest in continuing. They had arrived that morning, but so far Helen had shown no signs of losing interest in the little hotel or its service.

Sandy dropped into a chair opposite Gil and began wiping his brow with a handkerchief. Gil waited for him to make his report on his interview with McIntyre. When Sandy came to the part about Professor Fleming and his daughter, Gil cocked his head.

"Ah-h. Another female of the species. We'll make a lady's afternoon tea out of this expedition yet." "I don't quite get the set-up," Sandy said. "But maybe when I meet this Miss Fleming I'll find out a few things."

"Sounds slightly on the fishy side to me," Gil remarked. Sandy felt unaccountably out of sorts. He wondered, fleetingly, if it could be due to the heat, which was oppressive.

Damage: Two battleships, two aircraft carriers, and an unspecified number of other vessels. The claims in the Rome communiqués were for both German and Italian naval and air forces.

Except for the sinking of the Manchester and the carrier, "announced in London, there was no confirmation for any of these Axis tabulations."

Even on the basis of the Berlin radio, the Italian claims appeared to be a palpable exaggeration. A German broadcast today said there were 21 merchantmen in the convoy—the number claimed by the Italians now as sunk alone—and bracketed 19 of these as sunk or damaged.

While the Russians took the initiative in the north, the situation in the Caucasus became ever more grave.

Fracture Fatal To Dodge Heir

Detroit, Aug. 14.—(AP)—John Duval Dodge, 43-year-old son of the late multi-millionaire automobile maker, John F. Dodge, suffered a skull fracture at some time prior to his death in a hospital here last night, Wayne County Coroner Edmund J. Knobloch said today.

Knobloch emerged from an autopsy to make the bare announcement then returned to the post mortem room.

Police Inspector John O. Whiteman ordered the autopsy to aid in his investigation as to whether the injuries that caused Dodge's death were received during a domestic quarrel or in a scuffle at a precinct police station after he had been arrested Wednesday morning.

In Recorder's Court today two cases were tried and one was continued. Raymond White, colored, crashing a red traffic light, to pay $3 to apply on costs. Arthur Howell, disorderly conduct and profane language, 30 days in jail, judgment suspended on payment of costs.

Judge J. W. H. Roberts presided.

Commutes Sentence

Raleigh, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Governor J. M. Broughton said that John S. Baldwin, 39-year-old Columbus county farmer who was to have been executed this morning, would be committed to the criminally insane division of the state hospital.

The governor commuted Baldwin's death sentence last night to life imprisonment. Baldwin was convicted of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Dr. Randolph Jones, 39-year-old surgeon of Duke hospital in Durham, last November 18.

Test Of New Anti-Bean-Ball Ruling Expected Today

DODGERS AND BRAVES MEET FOR 5 GAMES

Managers Subject To $200 Fine Under New Ruling

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The National League's new rule making managers subject to an automatic fine of $200 for permitting their pitchers to blaze away at a rival's noggins is due for the acid test today when the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Braves collide in a doubleheader which opens a five-game series.

It will be their first meeting since they spent last Saturday afternoon ducking each other's high inside pitches—an exercise that is good for the legs if executed with speed but bad for the head if it isn't.

That get-together in Boston which saw the Braves sweep a two-game series from the first-place Brooks, prompted league president Ford Frick to toss the principle responsibility for future "bean balls" squarely into the managers' laps.

Frick fined Manuel Salvo of the Braves $50 and Brooklyn's Whitlow Wyatt $75 for participating in the "duster" duel and warned pitchers that they also would be fined in the future along with the managers. It cost Wyatt an extra $25 to throw his bat at Salvo.

"If other pitchers throw at our players," said Brooklyn President Larry MacPhail in discussing the new league rule, "we'll give them two for one, and I don't care whether it costs $200 or $400."

So, with Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers backed by MacPhail's bankroll, it is to be assumed that Professor Casey Stengel of the Braves will have his checkbook handy today in case a few well chosen pitches stray too near the region reserved for a batter's cranium.

Originally this was an open date for both teams, but the bargain bill at Ebbets Field was made necessary when weather kept them apart last Sunday and again yesterday.

Yesterday's postponement was one of four which left the major league card with only three completed contests.

In the only one of the National League, the Chicago Cubs ended a four-game losing streak by wallowing the St. Louis Cardinals, 13-5, and dropping the second-place Red Birds eight and a half games behind the Dodgers.

Claude Passeau notched his 16th pitching victory of the season against eight defeats, although he had to weather a ninth-inning Cardinal uprising which produced four runs on as many hits.

In the American League, the Cleveland Indians came from behind in the ninth inning to edge out the Detroit Tigers, 3-2, for their first victory in their last 8 starts, one of which ended in a tie.

Virgil Trucks blanked the Indians on four hits for eight and two-thirds innings, but he loaded the bases on walks in the final frame and Oris Hockett unloaded them with a double off Jack Wilson. Jim Bagby pitched six-hit ball for the Tribe and registered his 13th win.

The St. Louis Browns crushed the White Sox 8-3, largely through the efforts of Harold Clift who hit a home run, double and two singles and drove in four runs.

American League games between Boston and New York and Washington and Philadelphia, and a National League affair between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh all were postponed.

SUNDAY BEST.
For several years Ted Lyons has been reserved for the Sunday games of the White Sox. Now Thornton Lee, somewhat of a veteran, too, has joined Lyons, giving the Pare Hose a "Sunday Best" team. Lee didn't pitch an inning until very late in July, and Manager Dykes won't work him more than once in 7 days.

Three Doubles In The Piedmont

Charlotte, Aug. 14.—(AP)—After a siege of the kind of weather which is a military secret nowadays, the Piedmont got back into fairly full swing last night with doubleheaders in three North Carolina parks.

The only postponement was at Portsmouth, where Charlotte was booked.

The Cubs, although idle, remained in first place with Greensboro close behind.

Winston-Salem, aided by superb pitching, whacked Richmond 2-1 and 6-0 in their twin bill last night. Greensboro divided with Durham, dropping the opener 1-0 and taking the six-inning second game—halted by the midnight curfew—5-4.

The Durham victory came on a 14th inning single by Harold Haub which scored Eno Sweeney.

Asheville dropped its first game to Norfolk, 2-1, and then battled the Virginians to a 3-3 tie in 11 innings. The struggle finally was called to allow the Norfolk team to catch a bus.

Today's games find Charlotte at Richmond, Greensboro at Norfolk, Durham at Asheville, and Portsmouth at Winston-Salem.

New York, Aug. 14.—According to Ned Irish, colleges aren't worrying much about transportation for their basketball teams this winter although a lot of athletic directors are keeping their fingers crossed about moving big football squads around the country. ... Ned's winter court program at Madison Square Garden and waypoints is all set and so far no team has tried to back out of a scheduled date. ... Even the west coast colleges have assured him they'll be on hand. ... Leo Rodak and Willie Joyce will furnish the local interest for Chicago fans on the Tony Zale-George Abrams fight card. ... Clark Shaughnessy, as usual, is visiting the Chicago Bears' training camp and spending a lot of time confering with George Halas. ... Sounds like bad news for Maryland's—and the Bears'—opponents this fall.

Higher Bidder
Toms A. and M. has landed a double-threat athlete in Gus White, a nifty fullback and one of the best polo prospects in the state, but the story they tell down there is that Hardin-Simmons gave the Aggies quite a tussle. ... Finally Gib Sandifer, Hardin-Simmons athletic manager, offered to organize a polo team and make White the captain. ... But a few days later he was missing. "How could we compete with them? They offered to make Gus the polo coach down there."

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

"LET HIM DENY HIMSELF"
Nothing is so destructive to body, mind, and spirit as the disposition to live one's life within the narrow circle of self-interest. Many a person is actually sick today because his mind dwells continually upon his bodily functions. There are thousands of people who in reality haven't a care in the world, yet they allow every little circumstance in life to be enlarged into something so monstrous and irritating that all peace is banished from their minds.

Nine-tenths of all the quarreling of the world is over inconsequential matters. Most unhappy people would be cured of their unhappiness if for a moment they would stop thinking of themselves and resolutely establish the center of their lives outside the circle of a few selfish interests.

Certainly one of the greatest requirements ever laid down by Jesus was that a man in order to become a disciple, must "deny himself." Many people wonder why it is they do not have more happiness, as much as their lives are comparatively free of moral vices. The reason is that they are burdened physically, mentally, and spiritually with an abnormal anxiety about themselves. They are always on their own minds. The beauty of God's word round about them and the joy which the common run of people have in their fellowship with one another—these mean nothing to a person whose every thought begins and ends in self. He has never found life because he has not had the courage to deny himself.

CONFLICT OF AUTHORITY

(Scottish Rite News)

There comes a revelation, or rumor at least, from the War Production Board that the War and Navy Departments are wasting critical materials at a time when the Board is calling on the civilian population to cooperate and make sacrifices to help win the war. The chairman of the Board, Donald Nelson, was made czar of production when he was appointed and he accepted only on the condition that his word would be final except for the President, but he is now being defied by officialdom.

The Board has ordered substitutes in a long list of materials where substitutes would answer the purposes for which they would be used, thus releasing vast amounts of critical materials for strictly combat purposes. But it has met with steady refusal, or at least apathy or indifference.

The President alone has the power to settle this conflict of authority. Our country has always operated on the principle that civilian authority must rule over the military, although both groups are composed of loyal citizens of the United States. The system of checks and balances as set forth in the Constitution provide for this. The wisdom of such a principle has been proven many times in our history.

In recent years there have been examples in other countries where a professional as distinguished from a citizen army has taken over, and dictatorship or an oligarchy has resulted. Now our country is at war and it is certainly no time for any differences based on pride of opinion or desire for power to assert themselves. One rule only should be followed and that is to do what is in the best interests of our country to enable us to win the war in the shortest time possible. All other questions should wait for discussion and settlement until the war is over.

Washington—With the Army in the Capital:

The V-Mail (transmission of letters to overseas soldiers by transferring them to microfilm) has proved so popular that the Army has placed it on a two-way basis to the United Kingdom, the Middle East, Hawaii and Australia.

In the first six weeks of the one-way service, the Army postal service handled 250,000 V-Mail letters. APO officials have had to pause in their delivery of V-Mail to warn soldiers (1) addresses must be correct, (2) addresses must be at all post offices, and (3) of all things, women must not imprint kisses on letters to the soldiers, "since the lipstick may blur the

When the Army announced that it was transferring its pigeon breeding center from Fort Monmouth, N. J., to Camp Crowder, Mo., a couple of interesting facts came out about the Army's feathered Messengers.

In the blood strains of carriers flying for the U. S. A. in World War II are those of "Always Faithful," a Hall of Fame award winner in the pigeon world who several years ago winged his way 716 miles from Chattanooga to Fort Monmouth at almost 47 miles an hour, and "General Mauborgne," who set an all-time speed record by flying 600 miles from Kansas City to Fort Sam Houston in less than 14 hours—with no tail winds.

It's the little things that win a war. For years the Army has been shipping its "G. I. government" issues in "backs" for the 10 to 32 gallon cans that are used for everything from garbage to washing dishes. As a result, nested cans are now packed with sugar, flour, rice and dry produce—the result, space savings up to 47 per cent.

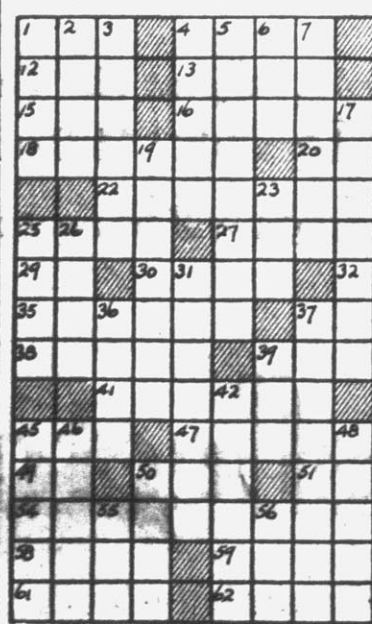

When the Army air forces announced recently, and with some justification, that their accident rate was 68 per cent lower than 12 years ago and 10 per cent below the 1930-40 ten-year average, they didn't tell all the story.

Some of the flying school safety records have been phenomenal. For instance, at Chino Field, Calif., student pilots have flown the equivalent of 500 times around the equator without a single fatal accident.

WILDERNESS GIRL

By LETA ZOE ADAMS

YESTERDAY: At first there seemed to be no way in which Sandy Morse could get information about the Forbidden Land which lay in the mountains back of Onha, and contained the secret key to Mayan history. Unless Sandy was very much mistaken. But then McIntyre remembered that Tyra Fleming was in town, and that Tyra and her father were the only people who ever had come out of the Forbidden Land whole and healthy. And he offered to see that Sandy met Tyra.

Chapter Three

At that hour no one would have guessed that this was a fiesta day in Onha. The black shadows of the tropical foliage sprawled in cataplectic fancies upon the packed earth of the winding streets. From the open doors no sounds came except, now and then, a gentle snoring. The glimpses of the flower-brightened patios held the breathless wonder of tabernacle seen through a stereoscope, three-dimensional, but unreal. The humid air was weighed with fragrance, cloyingly sweet yet somehow tainted with decay.

Even Sandy's quick, nervous steps were subconsciously slowed as he made his way to the hotel. Although his thoughts were turned inward he was aware of a recurring image in the vistas before him, and was brought up short when he realized that every street appeared to terminate in mountains. He went on with the feeling that the mountains were there watching him.

The white-washed, tile-roofed little hotel came into view. Sandy hastened his steps so that he was all but running when he strode through the passage to the patio within.

Helen Comes In

Gil was waiting there as Sandy came in. He was a tall, thin, half-breed, and he held a gaudy-hued parakeet on his fingers.

He was a stocky fellow, long of waist, short of legs, capable of great endurance. He had a swarthy skin, an ironic gleam in his eyes, and an aplomb that was an entree to any social group. But perhaps his greatest value to Sandy was his disposition. Good-tempered, adaptable, blindly loyal, he acted as a balance wheel.

And on this expedition in particular such a balance wheel was needed. For there was Helen Brotherton.

Freedom of the seas. Abandonment of the use of force among nations; disarmament of those threatening aggression.

On these points, the President told the Prime Minister, "we base and continue to base, our hopes for a better future for the world." A year ago, he recalled, nations fighting for their existence against a "common, barbaric foe" were united as small groups. Now these nations and groups of nations in all the continents, he said, have formed a great union of humanity, dedicated to realization of the program of purposes and principles of the Atlantic Charter, through a victory over common enemies.

"Their faith in life, liberty, independence and religious freedom, and in the preservation of human rights and justice in their own lands," Mr. Roosevelt declared, "has been given form and substance through a great gathering of peoples now known as the United Nations."

"Freedom and independence are today in jeopardy—the world over. If the forces of conquest are not successfully resisted and defeated there will be no freedom and no independence and no opportunity for freedom for any nation."

It is therefore, to the single and supreme objective of defeating the Axis forces of aggression that the United Nations have pledged all their resources and efforts."

Presumably for transmission to the heads of the United Nations, the State Department sent the text of the chief executive's message to American diplomats accredited to their governments.

London, Aug. 14—(AP)—Not a single morning newspaper in London noted today that this is the first anniversary of the signing of the Atlantic Charter by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Britain Reports . . .

The Manchester was a 9,400-ton cruiser completed Aug. 4, 1938. She usually carried 700 men. Her main battery consisted of 12 6-inch guns. Carrying three planes, she was one of six of the Newcastle class of cruisers.

"Naval operations have been taking place in the western and central Mediterranean during the past few days," said the text of the communiqué.

"Our forces were under command of acting Vice Admiral M. N. Syfret, C. B."

"These operations have resulted in supplies and reinforcements reaching the fortress of Malta despite very heavy enemy concentrations designed to prevent their passage."

"The reinforcements included a number of fighter aircraft."

An Italian communiqué summarizing "further operations in the Mediterranean against remaining units of the enemy convoy, apparently purported to give sinkings and damage in addition to that already reported in a special bulletin last night."

In that case, the Italian claims totaled:

Sunk: Aircraft carrier Eagle, three cruisers two destroyers, and 21 merchant ships.

It was through Gil that Sandy had met the young widow. Somewhere in Gil's wanderings he had come across the Brothertons—that was before Helen Brotherton had died. But Gil never forgot a face, and when he saw Helen Brotherton one day in the Regis Hotel Bar in Mexico City, he had not hesitated to renew his acquaintance. It appeared, then, that she was having a fling at seeing the world and that she was finding it a little disappointing.

She talked vaguely of "wasting" her youth, and of wishing she had some goal besides aimlessly spending her late husband's money. She commanded Gil to show her the sights of Mexico City, declaring she wanted to understand more about the Indian mind.

After a few of these excursions, the renewal acquaintance having grown with rapid strides, Gil told Helen about Sandy and his itch to search for an ancient Mayan city in Southern Mexico. The result of Gil's suggestion was a meeting, and before Sandy could whistle up a wind, Helen Brotherton had offered to finance the expedition. The joker was that she insisted upon being one of the party.

At first Sandy refused flatly, but Helen remained serenely adamant. Either she went along or she would not support the expedition with her money. Take it or leave it.

The lure was too much. At last Sandy grudgingly gave in to Helen's wishes. It was his secret hope that when they reached Onha where Helen found herself face to face with rather primitive living conditions, she would lose interest in continuing. They had arrived that morning, but so far Helen had made no complaints about the crude little hotel or its service.

Sandy dropped into a chair opposite Gil and began wiping his brow with a handkerchief. Gil waited for him to make his report on his interview with McIntyre. When Sandy came to the part about Professor Fleming and his daughter, Gil cocked his head.

"Ah-h. Another female of the species. We'll make a lady's afternoon tea out of this expedition, yet."

"I don't quite get the set-up," Sandy said. "But maybe when I meet this Miss Fleming I'll find out a few things."

"Sounds slightly on the fishy side to me," Gil remarked.

Sandy felt unaccountably out of sorts. He wondered, fleetingly, if it could be due to the heat, which was oppressive.

Damage: Two battleships, two aircraft carriers, and an unspecified number of other vessels.

The claims in the Rome communiqué were for both German and Italian naval and air forces.

Except for the sinking of the Manchester and the carrier, announced in London, there was no confirmation for any of these Axis tabulations.

Even on the basis of the Berlin radio, the Italian claims appeared to be a palpable exaggeration. A German broadcast today said there were 21 merchantmen in the convoy—the number claimed by the Italians now as sunk alone—and bracketed 19 of these as sunk or damaged.

A Red army bulletin conceded that German troops ranging toward the Grozny oil fields had reached Mineralnye Vody only 24 hours after breaking through Soviet defenses at Cherkessk, 50 miles to the west. The Russians said they were greatly outnumbered.

Mineralnye Vody is less than 175 miles from the Caspian Sea.

Solomon Battle . . .

All the Allied planes returned to their bases, but some sustained damage.

The Japanese vessels attacked in New Guinea waters presumably were heading toward the Solomons from Salamaua, their chief base in New Guinea, or from Rabaul or Gasmata, in New Britain. The latter are some 700 miles northwest of the Tulagi area, where the Marines landed on three islands in the southeastern Solomons last Friday, and Salamaua is about 850 miles to the west.

All three of the enemy-held ports have been pounded during Allied aerial assaults which started against Japanese communications and reinforcement bases simultaneously with the attack on the Solomons.

Heretofore the attacks have been for the most part on the port installations and airdromes, but with the latest assaults the action has moved eastward out to sea.

Four Japanese ships were left sinking or in flames in a Wednesday attack on Rabaul and some 2,000 miles farther to the west Allied bombers earlier sank a merchantman and damaged two other ships, one of them a destroyer.

Unofficial reports here said the Marines were striking deeper into the jungles after wresting begeh-heads from the Japanese on the three islands—believed here to be Florida, Guadalcanal and Malaita.

Fracture Fatal To Dodge Heir

Detroit, Aug. 14—(AP)—John Duval Dodge, 43-year-old son of the late multi-millionaire automobile maker, John F. Dodge, suffered a skull fracture at some time prior to his death in a hospital here last night, Wayne County Coroner Edmund J. Knobloch said today.

Dr. Knobloch emerged from an autopsy to make the bare announcement that Dodge had died of a mortal wound.

Police Inspector John O. Whitman ordered the autopsy to aid in his investigation as to whether the injuries that caused Dodge's death were received during a domestic quarrel or in a scuffle at a precinct police station after he had been arrested Wednesday morning.

Light Docket Today Recorder's Court

In Recorder's Court today two cases were tried and one was continued. Raymond White, colored, crashing a red traffic light, to pay $3 to apply on costs. Arthur Howell, disorderly conduct and profane language, 30 days in jail, judgment suspended on payment of costs.

Judge J. W. H. Roberts presided.

Communities Sentence

Raleigh, Aug. 14—(AP)—Governor J. M. Broughton said that John S. Baldwin, 39-year-old Columbus county farmer who was to have been executed this morning, would be committed to the criminally insane division of the state hospital.

The governor commuted Baldwin's death sentence last night to life imprisonment in connection with the fatal shooting of Dr. Randolph Jones, 39-year-old surgeon of Duke hospital in Durham, last November 18.

Test Of New Anti-Bean-Ball Ruling Expected Today

DODGERS AND BRAVES MEET FOR 5 GAMES

Managers Subject To $200 Fine Under New Ruling

By AUSTIN DEANER (Associated Press Writer)
The National League's new rule making managers subject to an automatic fine of $200 for permitting their pitchers to blaze away at a rival's noggin is due for the acid test today when the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Braves collide in a doubleheader which opens a five-game series.

It will be their first meeting since they spent last Saturday afternoon ducking each other's high inside pitches—an exercise that is good for the legs if executed with speed but bad for the head if it isn't.

That get-together in Boston which saw the Braves sweep a two-game series from the first-place Brooklyn Dodgers, prompted league president Ford Frick to toss the principal responsibility for future "bean balls" squarely into the managers' laps.

Frick fined Manuel Salvo of the Braves $50 and Brooklyn's Whitlow Wyatt $75 for participating in the "duster" duel and warned pitchers that they also would be fined in the future along with the managers. It cost Wyatt an extra $25 to throw his hat at Salvo.

"If other pitchers throw at our players," said Brooklyn President Larry MacPhail in discussing the new league rule, "we'll give them two for one, and I don't care whether it costs $20 or $400."

So, with Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers backed by MacPhail's bark, it is to be assumed that Professor Casey Stengel of the Braves will have his checkbook handy today in case a few well chosen pitches stray too near the region reserved for a batter's cranium.

Originally this was an open date for both teams, but the bargain bill at Ebbets Field was made necessary when weather kept them apart last Sunday and again yesterday.

Yesterday's postponement was one of four which left the major league card with only three completed contests.

In the only one of the National League, the Chicago Cubs ended a four-game losing streak by wallowing the St. Louis Cardinals, 13-5, and dropping the second-place Red Birds eight and a half games behind the Dodgers.

Claude Passeau notched his 16th pitching victory of the season against eight defeats, although he had to weather a ninth-inning Cardinal uprising which produced four runs on as many hits.

In the American League, the Cleveland Indians came from behind in the ninth inning to edge out the Detroit Tigers, 3-2, for their first victory in their last 8 starts, one of which ended in a tie.

Virgil Trucks blanked the Indians on four hits for eight and two-thirds

Virgil Trucks blanked the Indians on four hits for eight and two-thirds innings, but he loaded the bases on walks in the final frame and Oris Hockett unloaded them with a double off Jack Wilson. Jim Bagby pitched six-hit ball for the Tribe and registered his 13th win.

The St. Louis Browns crushed the White Sox 8-3, largely through the efforts of Harold Gilt who hit a home run, double and two singles and drove in four runs.

American League games between Boston and New York and Washington and Philadelphia, and a National League affair between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh all were postponed.

SUNDAY BEST.

For several years Ted Lyons has been reserved for the Sunday games of the White Sox. Now Thornton Lee, somewhat of a veteran, too, has joined Lyons, giving the Pare Hosi a "Sunday Best" team. Lee didn't pitch an inning until very late in July, and Manager Dykes won't work him more than once in 7 days.

LEAGUE LEADER PHELPS.

Three Doubles In The Piedmont

Charlotte, Aug. 14.—(AP)—After a siege of the kind of weather which is a military secret nowadays, the Piedmont got back into fairly full swing last night with doubleheaders in three North Carolina parks.

The only postponement was at Portsmouth, where Charlotte was booked.

The Cubs, although idle, remained in first place with Greensboro close behind.

Winston-Salem, aided by superb pitching, whacked Richmond 2-1 and 6-0 in their twin bill last night.

Greensboro divided with Durham, dropping the opener 1-0 and taking the six-inning second game—halted by the midnight curfew—5-4.

The Durham victory came on a 11th inning single by Harold Haub which scored Eno Sweeney.

Asheville dropped its first game to Norfolk, 2-1, and then battled the Virginians to a 3-3 tie in 11 innings. The struggle finally was called to allow the Norfolk team to catch a bus.

Today's games find Charlotte at Richmond, Greensboro at Norfolk, Durham at Asheville, and Portsmouth at Winston-Salem.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

New York, Aug. 14.—According to Ned Irish, colleges aren't worrying much about transportation for their basketball teams this winter although a lot of athletic directors are keeping their fingers crossed about moving big football squads around the country. Ned's winter court program at Madison Square Garden and waypoints is all set and so far no team has tried to back out of a scheduled date. ... Even the west coast colleges have assured him they'll be on hand. ... Leo Rodak and Willie Joyce will furnish the local interest for Chicago fans on the Tony Zale-George Abrams fight card. ... Clark Shaughnessy, as usual, is visiting the Chicago Bears' training camp and spending a lot of time conferring with George Halas. ... Sounds like bad news for Maryland's—and the Bears'—opponents this fall.

Higher Bidder
Texas A. and M. has landed a double-threat athlete in Gus White, a nifty fullback and one of the best polo prospects in the state, but the story they tell down there is that Hardin-Simmons gave the Aggies quite a tussle. ... Finally Gib Sandifer, Hardin-Simmons' athletic manager, offered to organize a polo team and make White the captain. ... But a few days later he was moaning, "How could we compete with them? They offered to make Gus the polo coach down there."

Waiting Wall
Replying to a football questionnaire which asked if coaches expected a drop in caliber of play because of war conditions, spokesman for Blue Ridge College of New Windsor, Md., wrote: "If we were to have a team this coming year, which we shall not, it would be practically recruited from scratch, and, of course, could not be expected to play normal football." ... Blue Ridge only lost seven straight games last season.

Drunken Driver
Wilson, N. C., Aug. 14 (AP)—Chief of Police C. P. Hocutt said today Marvin D. Owens, Clerk of Wilson County Superior Court, was arrested on a charge of drunken driving.

Chief Hocutt said policeman J. D. Lewis arrested Owens on highway 301 near the Wilson city limits. He was released on bond of $150.

Owens will appear in Recorder's Court Tuesday morning in answer to the charge.

Killed In Wreck
Hendersonville, N. C., Aug. 14.—(AP)—James A. Hawkins, 22, of Forest City, was killed in a truck accident on the Asheville-Cherokee Rock road near here.

N. Y. Stock Market

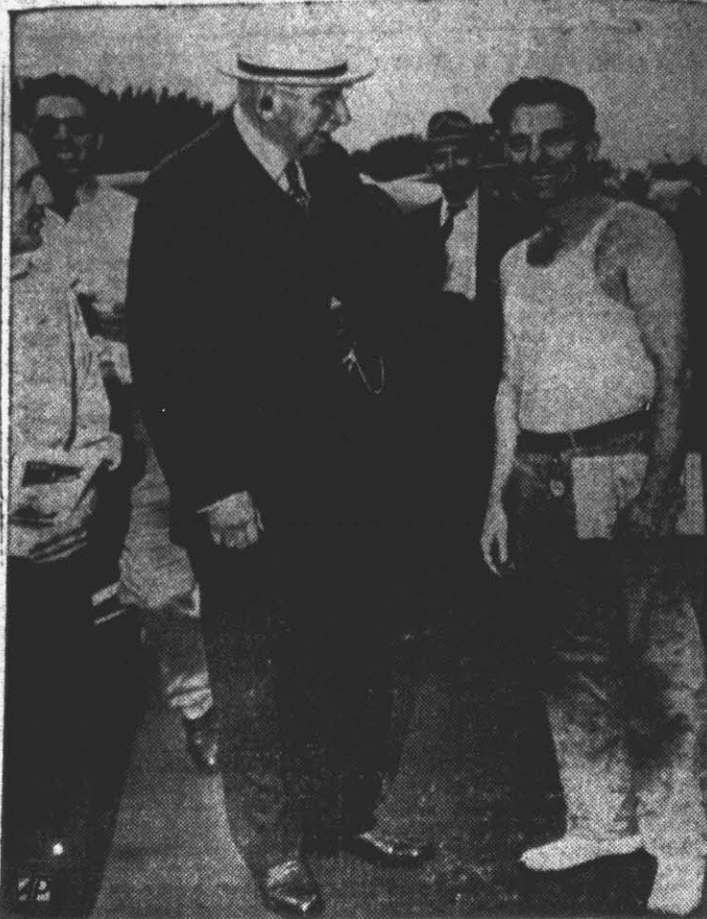

New York, Aug. 14—(AP)—There was a bullish rift in the stock market clouds today as the war news turned a shade better and hopes for more lenient corporate taxes broadened.

While the pace slowed after midday, and advances were reduced or cancelled in some cases, plus marks of fractions to around two points were well distributed in the final hour. New highs for the year or longer were plentiful. Transactions approximated 400,000 shares.

J. P. Morgan And Worker Chat

J. P. Morgan (left), the financier, chats with a workman at the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company at Kearny, N. J., at ceremonies in which an Army-Navy "E" pennant was awarded the plant by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox for its war production. The plant is a subsidiary of U. S. Steel of which Morgan is a director. Knox said the plant is reducing destroyers every 15 days.

Americans Destroy Seven Jap Planes

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 14—(AP)—Seven large anchored Japanese seaplanes were destroyed in one attack by big PBV amphibian planes operating in the Aleutian area under "seemingly impossible" weather conditions, Rear Admiral J. H. Towers, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, reported today.

The Consolidated Aircraft Corporation's famous flying boats, known as Catalinas, have been used in modified divebombing and strafing attacks on Japanese installations on Kiska island, Admiral Towers said in a communication to Harry Woodward, president of Consolidated.

"The Catalinas have been carrying out scouting expeditions with virtually no ceiling and have put in hundreds of hours of blind flying, both day and night," the communication said.

"In some instances the Catalinas have returned to their bases with more than 100 anti-aircraft bullet holes. The effectiveness of armor and self-sealing tanks need not be described."

Production Credit Group Sells Bonds

The Greenville Production Credit Association has been approved as an agency for the sale of War Savings Bonds according to an announcement by Robert A. Darr, secretary-treasurer of the association. Bonds or war savings stamps may be purchased at the association's offices in Greenville or Snow Hill or by mail.

Mr. Darr said, "Many farmers are preparing for the postwar period by using increased farm income to pay off debts and by using surplus funds to purchase War Bonds, which will serve as a financial reserve for the future and help win the war."

Everyone should invest in Freedom by purchasing War Bonds and Stamps to the limit of his ability.

New Lindbergh Baby. Detroit, Aug. 14—(AP)—A fifth child was born here Thursday to Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, informed sources said today.

Physicians and officials at Henry Ford hospital here refused any comment, and attempts to reach Lindbergh, who is employed by the Ford Motor Company, were unavailing.

Detroit newspapers said it was the Lindbergh's second daughter.

Held For Killing Wife. Rutherfordton, Aug. 14—(AP)—James Blackwell, 21, Spindale Mill hostages condemned might be increased as a result of the latest attempt against the radio station, but added: "We at least see that the people are not broken in spirit."

Meanwhile the Norwegian government in London said it had been unable to learn yet what punishment if any had been inflicted on some 800 men, women and children who were arrested in Oslo, Aug. 3, for wearing flowers to commemorate the birthday of King Haakon of Norway.

These sources quoted reports coming through Stockholm that Maj. Vidkun Quisling's Norwegian Gestapo regarded it as a "dangerous demonstration" and sought to avert it by forcing flower shops to close.

There were new reports of Axis reprisals and threats in old Yugoslavia.

Roundabout reports to Reuters said the Italians who "blasted the little Yugoslav village of Ravnik out of the ground" because of patriot activity, posted notices threatening death to any residents of neighboring villages who gave shelter to the homeless.

Reuters reported that "as most of the male population was shot on the spot or driven away to Italy the homeless consisted of women, children and the aged."

Ships, Planes ...

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 14 (AP)—Two Argentine ships arrived here today with 87 survivors of three torpedoed Allied vessels.

The Rio San Juan brought in 46 survivors of the 4,694-ton British freighter Treminnard and 11 from the 6,221-ton British tanker Tricula. The Juncal arrived with 30 survivors of the 6,161-ton Norwegian tanker Havsten.

The location of the sinkings was not disclosed.

Senate To Make ...

(Continued from Page One) es should be totaled and certain specific deductions subtracted. The most essential of those deductions, he declared, would be business expenses and reinvestments, taxes and reasonable deductions for dependents.

Taxing savings and undivided profits, Fisher said, means killing the goose that lays the golden egg. Declaring that "taxation is being overdone," Fisher predicted that his plan would offer incentives to buy government bonds, "which in fact could be made compulsory more easily than at present."

Democratic Leader Barkley declared today he would make every effort in the Senate to bring about a substantial increase in the yield of the House-approved revenue bill so as to preclude any need of writing another new tax measure this year.

The administration chieftain said he hoped the Senate Finance committee, of which he is a member, would find new revenue sources which would provide the full $3,700,000,000 in additional taxes requested by Secretary Morgenthau.

As passed by the House, the pending bill would boost federal income by $6,271,000,000 in a year's operations, but Barkley said he thought it was important from a psychological as well as from a revenue standpoint to obtain the full amount asked by the Treasury in its overall financing program.

"We are going to have to find some new source of revenue to do it," Barkley told reporters, "but I am in favor of doing it now. I don't want Congress to have to start writing an ew tax bill immediately this one is finished."

Barkley's desire for the passage of a measure which would stand without revision for at least several months was known to be shared by other committee members.

Indian Reign ...

(Continued from page one) eral passenger cars were burned after travelers had been evicted. Some telephone and telegraph lines were pulled down.

Some Indians and some newspapers such as the Bombay Chronicle suggested that the time had come for the government to consent to negotiate a settlement, but there was not the slightest indication of such a move in the capital of New Delhi.

Reports continued to come in on casualty totals from outbreaks in scattered sections earlier this week. An official compilation from Old Delhi said 40 persons had been killed and 55 injured in disturbances there between Tuesday and this morning.

One by one, mills and factories were reported reopening in Bombay, which had been the scene of the most turbulent outbreaks since Sunday.

Even in the most-ferred evening hours yesterday Bombay remained relatively quiet and there were no reports of casualties. New Delhi, another trouble center, also was reported quiet but tense.

With armed British security forces still patrolling and police and troops acting swiftly and firmly, however, there was some sporadic street fighting and vandalism elsewhere in the vast sub-continent.

At Dacca, one person was killed and several were injured, including policemen, when guards opened fire to protect a judge trying to save records from a crowd attempting to set them afire in a raid on a court.

Some post offices were raided and some property was destroyed at Lucknow where business still was partly closed down.

At Poona, Gandhi remained the guest-like prisoner of the British which he had been since soon after the All-India Congress party made him generalissimo Sunday of a mass civil disobedience movement to oust the British from rule of India.

A barred wire fence twice the little leader's height was more a barrier to keep his lieutenants but than to keep him in an insignificant marble-floored palace, of the Aga Khan.

Gandhi is being held incommunicado but his guards said he was eating his meals and living in a comfortable apartment where each room is bigger than his own thatched-walled combination of office and home.

Tokyo (From Japanese Broadcasts), Aug. 14—(AP)—Tomokazu Hori, government information bureau spokesman, told foreign press correspondents today that "present conditions in India are such that India is being used for Allied war purposes, and Japan cannot tolerate such a situation."

"It is a different question when and what steps Japan will take," Hori added.

The War Ministry, meanwhile, announced that Lieut. Gen. Masaharu Homma had been relieved of his post as commander-in-chief of Japanese forces in the Philippines to permit his assignment elsewhere. His place has been taken over by Lieut. Gen. Shizuchi Tanaka, former military attache of the Japanese embassy in Washington, commander of the gendarmes and later commander of eastern headquarters.
