

Allies Slow Jap Drive On Port Moresby; Mopping-Up Milne Area

Japs Lose Heavily In Attempt To Storm Mountain Pass; Bombers Attack Jap Warships Probably Damaging Destroyer; Australians Destroy 700 Japs Milne Bay Area

Gen. MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, Sept. 9. (AP)—Allied forces have slowed up Japanese troops in the steep and rocky approaches to "the gap"—a mountain pass 8,000 feet up on the Owen Stanley range about 50 miles from the important Allied base at Port Moresby—and Australian troops have practically destroyed 700 Japanese troops in the Milne Bay area of New Guinea, General Douglas MacArthur announced today.

While General MacArthur's forces were thus tightening their grip on this northern bastion of Australia in the face of determined Japanese infiltration, allied bombers and torpedo-carrying planes attacked Japanese warships supporting the invaders and probably damaged a destroyer.

Two more attacks were made on the warships among the Trobriand Islands yesterday and it was there that a destroyer probably was hit. Weather conditions made observation of results difficult.

The warships apparently were those which shelled positions Sunday in the Milne Bay area. The Japanese warships were now being practically destroyed, it was declared. This force was named the Kure No. 5 landing force, presumably after the Kure naval base near Nagasaki, Japan.

The Japanese casualties on this expedition were estimated at approximately 700 in the communique. Nine Japanese bombers and five fighters attacked the Milne Bay positions yesterday, but damage and casualties were listed as light.

After Japanese forces were reported yesterday in contact with the allied defense positions north of the key mountain pass leading to Port Moresby, 50 miles to the southwest, the situation was today described as static.

A headquarters spokesman said the area of conflict there lies at an altitude of 6,000 feet in a pass which leads from Kokoda to Port Moresby. The fighting has been on the Kokoda side of the mountains and about 2,000 feet below the pass, which is virtually only a trail. In advancing to the region of the pass, the Japanese lost heavily in close fighting in which allied patrols frequently used bayonets, it was reported here.

There were fierce fights between opposing patrols for the possession of small areas of the jungle bordering the trail leading up the mountains.

One Australian patrol of 20 men, opposed by 300 Japanese, carried out an effective ambush with machineguns, tommy guns and rifles Sunday, and the following day another patrol attacked a Japanese post with grenades and killed six Japanese without loss.

The supply problem is particularly difficult for both the Japanese and allied forces. Native carriers climbed through steep, rugged terrain under extremely bad weather conditions to supply the Allies.

New clashes were reported at Mubo, eight miles south of the Japanese base at Salamaua, between

Congress Ready To Carry Out Presidents Request

Washington, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Representatives in Congress urged quick action today on legislation to stabilize the cost of living as Democratic leaders assured President Roosevelt of prompt introduction of a resolution giving him authority for "stabilization of everything that goes into the cost of living."

One after another Representatives Rich of Pennsylvania, Fish of New York, Hoffman of Michigan, Tamm of Illinois, and Mason of Illinois, all Republicans, discussed the matter on the House floor, even as Speaker Rayburn and Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts told reporters of administration plans.

Rayburn said that he and McCormack informed Mr. Roosevelt at a two-hour conference this morning that they would do everything possible to expedite the legislation the President has asked for before October 1.

Rep. Rich told the House that if Congress failed to do its duty, the Since there will be no general distribution of the premium list other than through the newspaper, fair officials today urged that exhibitors save the list from Saturday's paper.

The chief engineer, whose name as well as the captain's was not disclosed, was also taken aboard the U-boat after the vessel was attacked several hundred miles off the east coast of South America.

One man was missing but 50 other survivors hoisted sail on lifeboats and after 10 days at sea landed on the west coast of Africa.

The torpedoing and sinking of two other vessels, an American freighter in the North Atlantic and a British merchantman in the Caribbean, was reported by the navy yesterday.

FIRE DAMAGES US TRANSPORT

Passengers, Crew Removed Without Loss of Life

Washington, Sept. 9.—(AP)—The naval transport Wakefield, formerly the liner Manhattan, was severely damaged by a fire at sea September 3, the Navy announced today, but more than 1,700 passengers and crew members were removed without loss of life.

The charred hulk of the 24,000-ton ship, one time queen of the United States merchant fleet, has now been salvaged and towed to an Atlantic coast port, a Navy statement said.

Adding that "preliminary reports indicate" that all the passengers and crew were safe, the Navy said several were injured.

The fire was described as being of "undetermined origin." It broke out on one deck level and spread swiftly throughout the ten-year-old, $10,000,000 ship.

It soon became necessary to remove the more than one thousand passengers, many of whom were civilians, the others presumably being men in the naval service, the Navy related.

In addition to the one thousand there were, according to the vessel's normal complement, six hundred to seven hundred officers and crewmen aboard, commanded by Com. Harold Gardner Bradbury of Port Angeles, Washington, a Coast Guard officer.

The Navy said the rescue was brought about in a thrilling manner by warships protecting the convoy in which the Wakefield was traveling to an east coast port.

A cruiser maneuvered its bow alongside the stern of the transport and a destroyer moved in along the side. At these close quarters the passengers were transferred rapidly from the blazing liner.

The crew remained aboard the ship fighting to bring the fire under control, the Navy account continued, but their efforts were unsuccessful, and it soon became necessary for them also to transfer to the cruiser.

Aboard that ship they waited until the intensity of the fire had decreased somewhat and Commander Bradbury then led a special fire fighting party back aboard the transport and succeeded in bringing the flames under control.

Meanwhile tug and salvage craft had been summoned and when they arrived successfully began towing operations. They finally delivered the former Manhattan to port.

The vessel was built in 1932 for the United States Lines by the New York Shipbuilding Company in Camden, N. J.

The Navy said that at the time of her completion she was the largest transatlantic liner built in the United States.

FEAR BREAK WITH VICHY

U.S. Sends Blunt Reply To Laval's Protest

Washington, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Rupture of United States relations with Vichy loomed again today on the diplomatic horizon.

This time it was Vichy's protest against American air raids over occupied France, and the United States' sharp rejection of that protest, which revived talk of an imminent break.

The protest, delivered personally to the American charge d'affaires in Vichy by pro-Axis chief of government Pierre Laval, was "immediately" rejected, the State Department disclosed last night, and Laval was notified the bombing of German military plants in France would continue.

Laval protested specifically against recent bombings of Le Havre and Rouen both in the occupied zone in which he said there were numerous casualties. (Vichy reported 80 civilians killed and 130 injured).

In rejecting the protest and assuring Laval that the attacks would continue, American charges d'affaires S. Pinkney Tick drew the distinction between occupied and unoccupied France, stating simply that "military plants operated by or for Germany and other German military properties in France will be bombed at every opportunity in the future."

Tuck emphasized that Americans have no desire to see Frenchmen

Reinforced Germans Seek To Widen The Wedge West of City But Are Repulsed on Southwest; Situation Described As "Complicated"; Reds Continue Gains Central Front

By EDDIE GILMORE

Moscow, Sept. 9.—(AP)—Reinforced German divisions concentrated attacks upon the western defenses of Stalingrad today in an effort to widen a hard-won wedge and the situation was described here as "particularly complicated," but the Red army was reported holding fiercely in every sector.

The Russians said Nazi tanks and infantry, sheltered by dive bombers, had deepened the wedge of a series of west yesterday while Soviet troops beat off flanking attacks from the southwest.

Today's mid-day communique, however, announced further gains in the central front offensive.

Russian troops dislodged the enemy from fortified district west of Moscow and occupied three more settlements, it said. They were reported to have slain 400 Germans and captured prisoners and war supplies.

A Russian minefield west of Stalingrad blew up three German tanks and Soviet gunners damaged six others of a formation maneuvering in front of the field, the communique said.

Red Army mortar batteries and riflemen were reported to have slain 300 invaders in the face of a series of actions south of the Volga river industrial center, where field dispatches said Italian and Rumanian troops and tank units from other fronts had been moved into action.

Four successive assaults supported by massed planes were repulsed in that sector, it said. The government newspaper said the air force was literally hanging over the front from the bombing of oil refineries, but the Russian forces waited them out and then arose to drive off the enemy land forces.

Red Army patrol and mortar batteries wiped out 200 Germans in the overnight fighting about Novorossiysk, a Black Sea naval base, and 40 German troop trucks were smashed, the Russians said.

Red Star reported that a violent battle raged around the wedge which the Russians and Sussanians have thrust into the sector. The defense position was described as both strained and difficult. German tank units were repulsed. A Russian tank was declared unsuccessful.

Soviet resistance appeared firmer in the Monte district of the central Caucasus, where a battle is under way south of the Terek river.

The Russians also reported fighting to annihilate German formations which crossed the river.

"Five German tanks were disabled and a company of enemy infantry was wiped out" yesterday in phases of this continuing engagement, it was announced.

Red Star said the Russians had driven the Germans from a village or that sector at bayonet point. Red army cavalry hurled back a German regiment and forced the invaders to withdraw from an important position, and the Red Air force raided crossings where the Germans were attempting to move reserves to the south bank and wrecked a number of bridges.

Soviet artillery hurled back a preliminary thrust by armored vanguards of the divisions arrayed west of Stalingrad, and new fighting for a village near the invaders five tanks and about 450 officers and men, the Soviet Information Bureau said.

But fresh Axis troops and machines moved up to bolster Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock's columns and, for the second successive day, (Continued on Page Six)

Seek Bill Acceptable To Farm And Labor Groups

By FANCIS J. KELLY

Washington, Sept. 9.—(AP)—An initial blaze of congressional opposition to President Roosevelt's demand for legislation to stabilize farm prices subsided somewhat today as administration leaders labored over a bill which they hoped would appeal to farm and labor groups alike.

Chairman Brown (D-Mich) of a senate subcommittee which has handled previous price control legislation announced that a comprehensive measure would be introduced in the senate tomorrow and would be taken up by the full banking committee either Friday or Monday.

Brown, declaring both houses should act promptly and simultaneously on the President's request, said:

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
September 3, 1902

Winterville Department
Well, we feel like we've left home and gone off visiting strangers. Jerusalem! Nothing hardly but strangers. It is only once in a while we see something familiar and then we have to look twice. Anyway, it don't make much difference; these strangers are just the cleverest set of ladies and gentlemen one ever did see. Maybe we will know 'em all after awhile and then we are going to feel better. They know us already, for the girls, bless their hearts, always smile when they see us. The dormitories are just run over, but ample preparation has been made and we can accommodate everybody.

New Art Exhibit.
The new art exhibit, entitled "People of Virginia," placed on display in Sheppard Memorial Library today by the local WPA Art Gallery, is one more illustration of the excellent effects a talented artist can achieve through the use of a very simple medium.

Ralph Lermond, the Virginia artist who did the 15 portrait drawings included in this show, used contour crayons for his medium—and used them with a discernment and artistry that make his "People in Virginia" all but come alive in their frames.

Not from the "velvet-clad aristocracy" has he chosen his subjects, but from mountain women ballad singers, electric welders, school girls, tide-water farmers, and old family washerwomen. And his portrayals of these people—whom he obviously paints with affection—make plain the reason for the signal recognition this artist has achieved. "His characteristics," to quote one critic, "belong to American history in its humbler aspect."

The show of reproductions of paintings in the National Gallery, our second exhibit from the American Federation of Arts, is on display in the galleries on the second floor of the library throughout this week.

Library News

The annual statistical report of the Sheppard Memorial Library for the year ending June 30, 1942, reveals many interesting figures and accomplishments. A total of 125,460 books were circulated in the city and throughout the county during the fiscal year, a decided increase over the previous year; 2,536 volumes were added to the library during the year and 613 new members were enrolled during this period of time.

As a result of the enlarged library program in Pitt county six library branches and five deposit stations are now functioning throughout the area. These are regularly visited by the county librarian and are under her direct supervision. The Sheppard Memorial Library acts as the central unit of this new system and all work progresses from this focal location.

The library has added many new features during the past year, the most vital of these being the recently established War Information Center which features books and pamphlets covering all phases of the war. Smaller units of this center have been set up in branch libraries throughout the county and it is reported that each of these are constantly used by the communities.

As the annual Vacation Reading Club at the library draws to a close statistics show an enrollment of 275 members during the summer months. Members of the club this year not only read and reported upon books but attended clay modeling classes, where they had the opportunity to mold characters read about during the summer. This new feature was enthusiastically received by the club members and the models are now on display at the library.

The library anticipates an even larger circulation of books during the coming year for in these crucial times people are turning more and more to books and reading, seeking both information and relation.

Soldier Shower.
Last night when Belk-Tyler's store closed, the manager, Mr. C. A. Plyler, and employees cornered Pvt. R. L. (Bill) Taylor, who was acting assistant manager of the firm, and who was recently inducted into the army, and showered him with gifts that a soldier can use.

Edw. W. Hearne, display manager, acted as master of ceremonies and told Mr. Taylor that heretofore these store gatherings had been held to honor a bride, or groom in the organization. But that this gathering was different, for the bride, or groom, was just beginning a lifelong war. But he hoped the war Taylor was entering would soon be over.

After the gifts were presented the master of ceremonies closed with the following remarks:

To R. L. (Bill) Taylor
Buck private—we will miss you—
We just want you to know
You've won our hearts in these few months

We've known you—and so
We want to give you some little gift.
It isn't much, and yet
It expresses in a way
Our very deep regret
At losing you—you've done your part
Since you've been one of us,
To prove you are sincere—
A man that men can trust.
To the girl you leave behind, be true—

Stay away from France,
Cause when you get in uniform
Clark Gable won't have a chance.
We know what lies before you—but
You've won struggles before—
Again you'll come out winner
Whenever this war is o'er.
So goodbye, Bill, and good luck—
You'll be the same fine man
In uniform—so proudly now
We lend you to "Uncle Sam."
Employees, Belk-Tyler Co.

for farm prices the Michigan senator said they probably would be included in the program. The proposed bill would call for repeal of section 3 of the Price Control Act, which provides that price ceilings on farm products may not be set at less than 110 per cent of parity, or the market rice as of last Oct. 1, last Dec. 15, or the average price from 1919 to 1929, whichever is the highest.

Brown indicated that the measure probably would "authorize" the Chief Executive to control wages, but added that the authorization might be turned into a directive before the bill was enacted. Whether wage floors as well as ceilings would be established remained to be decided.

Certainly it would be impractical for congress to attempt to legislate a definite price for every kind of crop and a wage for every job,

Brown said, adding that flexibility was necessary.
Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.) a member of the Agriculture committee, pledged his support to Mr. Roosevelt's proposal and said he could see no necessity for lengthy hearings.

"I'd rather support it and put it through than talk about it," Norris said.

Paper May Take Place Of Critical Materials

Paper Tires, Shoes May Become Common-Place Articles

By JAMES MARLOW AND GEORGE ZIELKE
Washington, Sept. 9—(Wide World)—Paper may provide an answer to some of the shortages of critical materials.

Civilian life, paper is giving new uses in these days of restrictions on such materials as steel, copper, tin and rubber.

And as stockpiles of metals and other items become smaller, paper may yet substitute in the war effort.

That is the picture drawn by Arnold C. Schumacher, the Department of Commerce industrial specialist. Writing in "Domestic Commerce," an official publication of the department, he says:

"You have long been accustomed to writing on paper, drinking from paper cups, eating off paper plates and drying your hands with paper towels.

But in the future you may be getting your food from paper cans, hanging your paper clothes on paper hangers, not to mention walking on paper shoes and riding on paper tires."

Some of these things may be a long time coming, but developments in use of wood pulp and improvements in manufacturing have brought paper a long way from the ancient days when it was used primarily to carry the written word.

From the velvety softness of a fine cleansing tissue to the hard toughness of the strongest board, almost any degree of absorbency, moisture-proofness and resiliency can be built into the final material, Schumacher says. For example:

For use as an insulation wrapping around a copper wire, the production must be strong but pliable, must have a degree of elasticity in order to hug the wire tightly and must be soft enough to prevent injury to the workman's hands.

"This is a large order; but such a paper exists and is doing a valuable job in saving critical rubber needed elsewhere."

Other uses as an insulation wrapping around a copper wire, the production must be strong but pliable, must have a degree of elasticity in order to hug the wire tightly and must be soft enough to prevent injury to the workman's hands.

NEW CAMPAIGN AGAINST SUBS

Will Seek Keep Every Sub Under Constant Attack

London, Sept. 9—(AP)—Official circles said today a new allied anti-submarine campaign was under way, aimed at subjecting each Nazi underwater raider to constant attacks from the surface and the air during the whole time it is at sea.

"We must destroy U-boats faster than Germany can commission them," a source said. "We are building up an offensive against the U-boat which we hope will produce the results we want."

He termed fantastic a proposal to divert all shipment of war materials to air freighters as a means of defeating the submarines.

"Certain specialized equipment can and has been transported by air," he said, "but the great bulk of the material must go by ships."

The present predicament of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in the North African desert was attributed in part to the difficulties besetting Axis shipping in the Mediterranean.

Some of these developments, to be sure, may have to wait until after the war because they require special machinery and equipment which can't be obtained now.

So far as paper itself is concerned, WPB men say there's a "very adequate supply." Transportation, of course, is another problem.

Canadian Officer Killed In Georgia

Furt Benning, Ga., Sept. 9—(AP)—

George P. Howell, commander of the army parachute school, announced today that Maj. Hilton D. Proctor, leader of a contingent of Canadian paratroopers, was killed in a jump here Monday when a transport plane sheared into his parachute.

The army said announcement of the accident was withheld pending clearance with Canadian authorities.

Maj. Proctor plummeted to earth after a plane following his own fumbled his newly-opened chute, and army investigators said it was probably that he was killed instantly by contact with the plane.

The body was to be flown to his home in Ottawa, Canada, today, accompanied by a representative of the Canadian army and a representative of Fort Benning.

Luxembourg Steel Workers On Strike

London, Sept. 9—(AP)—Workers throughout steel-producing Luxembourg were declared today to have gone on general strike in protest against the incorporation of the little grand duchy into the German Reich and in defiance of Nazi warnings that convicted strikers would be sentenced to death.

The British Ministry of Information said this was "the first occasion in which a general strike has been ordered in German-occupied territory, and gains additional significance from the fact that Luxembourg ranks among the ten largest steel producers in the world."

Detroit, Sept. 9—(AP)—R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers (UAW), said today he had received word from President Roosevelt that an executive order soon would prohibit double-time pay for Sunday work within a 40-hour work week.

The President, Thomas said, urged that UAW-CIO members take no steps to revise present working agreements which already contain such a prohibition.

Plane Crash Toll Mounts To Eight

Newark, Ohio, Sept. 9—(AP)—The midday crash yesterday of a twin-motored Army bomber into an apartment building killed eight persons—six occupants of the plane and two women civilians, authorities reported today.

City firemen, directed by Army officers, investigating the accident, early today found the body of Mrs. A. L. Weston, 62-year-old widow, deep under debris of the two-story structure which she owned. Mrs. Dollie Campbell, returning from a shopping trip, was killed while walking by the building.

Salvage workers also recovered in part to the difficulties besetting Axis shipping in the Mediterranean. Two of the plane's occupants, Lieut. Mrs. John L. Lewis Dead Washington, Sept. 9—(AP)—Mrs. John L. Lewis, wife of the president of the United Mine Workers of America, died early today after a lingering illness.

Funeral plans will be announced later. In addition to the husband, survivors include a son, John L. Lewis, Jr., a medical student, and a daughter, Kathryn, who is secretary-treasurer of district 50 of the United Mine Workers.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

WORTH EVENTUALLY APPRECIATED

The name Winston Churchill seems to be earmarked for immortality. But did you ever hear of Charles Churchill? Probably not. Only a few college English professors would recognize the name. He was an English poet—or rather an altered English poet—who lived one hundred and fifty years ago. He was all the rage. One piece he wrote, called "Rosciad," had a sale of 25,000 copies, which was equivalent to a million today. The London of his generation cast itself at his feet in adoration.

But nobody paid any attention at that time to a modest Oxford don named Thomas Gray, who wrote a poem "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard," and polished its phrases for seven years before he offered it for publication.

If you should by chance have heard of Charles Churchill and his works, you are one in a half million, but most high school students today know of Gray's "Elegy."

Don't be swept off your feet by the estimate that the supposed bigwigs make of their contemporaries whether the estimate be good or bad. While Shakespeare was writing his immortal dramas, a number of thoroughly cheap playwrights were getting considerable attention from the theater-going public. Germany drove the composer, Richard Wagner, into exile. France would have named Victor Hugo. The Pharisaea called for the release of the popular leader Barabbas and the crucifixion of Jesus.

History is replete with accounts of how the Charles Churchill variety of folk gets the public ear, while some unknown man of real worth finally achieves immortality.

FIGHT, END WAR, AND RETURN HOME

How do our soldiers overseas feel, especially those who have been sent to the British Isles to await combat duty? Information received indicates that they are eager to get into action, have the war over with and return to the United States.

Their attitude is not one of dissatisfaction with the Army. They realize they have a job to do, but many of them feel that the training which they can get until they actually start fighting. Time does not exactly drag on their hands because they are too busy for that. There is no denying some of them have a longing to see the old home town and the folks that center around it.

There is no complaint about army food because it is good and there is an ample supply of it. Little by little the soldiers have been adjusting themselves to the lack of conveniences which they found on that side of the Atlantic. In fact, some of them are compelled to live in an unpleasantly primitive way, yet they put up with this condition without complaint. They realize it is all part of the war toward checking totalitarianism, even though but a preliminary part.

The newspapers on the far side of the Atlantic are carrying only the headline type of news. Naturally, the soldiers would like to see some of the papers from this side of the big pond. They miss things American and they have come to an appreciation of things in the United States that they once complained about.

But foremost in their feeling it is their desire to get into the war and finish it quickly so they can return home to their normal life once more.

Washington Daybook

By JOHN GROVER

(For Jack Stinnett, on vacation)
Washington—It's six months since the House began to write the new tax and revenue bill, and it's still "fluid," with even the experts unsure what final form it will take. It's been a powerful headache to everybody concerned. The Treasury has repeatedly changed its recommendations on the revenue needed and the proper means of achieving it. Income, Electioneering, administration "sacred cow" policies, pressure groups and wartime necessity have all left their imprint on the fiscal hodge-podge the House finally turned over to the Senate for re-drafting.

It was on March 3 that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau 3,000 pages of attached transcripts said the Treasury judged $7,000,- 000,000 of new revenue would be about right, to bring the federal income to $26,000,000,000 as asked by President Roosevelt in his January message.

On May 7, the Treasury changed its mind and asked for $4,700,000,000 in new revenue, with the suggestion that minimum exemptions on personal income tax be cut to $800 and $1,200 for single and married persons.

Since then, the tax bill has been kicked around. Swatting the rich, corporations and periods alike, and giving horror to mention of a sales tax have been basic financial tenets of administration stalwarts for ten years. However, faced with unprecedented war expenditures, all the very real spectre of inflation, and some runaway national income and some headwinds have challenged the validity of the fiscal plans that made history in peace times.

So far, the legislative wizards composing the potion we'll all have to swallow have managed to steer clear of a sales tax. The issue is by no means dead, however.

A mighty hopeful evidence of forethought is the careful and realistic statesmanlike consideration given to preventing financial collapse after the war. All the bills have contained provisions for rebates of excess profits taxes paid by corporations, provided the rebates are used to prevent unemployment.

Otherwise, anything can happen. Sales tax, withholding tax, even greater reduction of personal income tax exemptions and higher rates, increased rebates for postwar rehabilitation—all these are possibilities by the time the Senate completes its anxious chore.

The House Committee two weeks to face through the house bill, with its tary of the Treasury Morgenthau 3,000 pages of attached transcripts said the Treasury judged $7,000,-

The WAR TODAY

It is known that more than half a million Yankee troops already have been sent overseas.

2. July, August and thus far in September we've (knock wood) vastly reduced the deprivations of the U-boats in the western Atlantic. That's to say, we have, at least temporarily regained that control of the sea which is vital to the movement of our resources and men to the theaters of war.

3. We not only have been holding the Japs, but have assumed the initiative with splendid success in several sectors.

4. The blockade of Europe still holds tight—one of the greatest of the Allied assets—and the Axis strength is on the down-grade, due to lack of resources of all kinds.

5. Intensification of the American and British bombing of Germany is raising havoc with Hitler's factories and transport. There's no question now about allied superiority in the air over Europe.

6. Thus far Hitler has failed to reach the objectives of his mammoth assault on the Caucasus and Middle East. He has achieved much, but still the magnificent Red line remains unbroken, although it has had to pull back and it has sagged.

With the fall rains already falling, every day that the Bolsheviks keep Hitler out of his Garden of Eden near the hell of winter which soon will clamp down again on the unhappy armies of the man who would be tyrant over the world.

Hitler's almost axiomatic belief that the Führer doesn't get his hands on the resources, and the strategic bases, of the Caucasus and Middle East this fall, his hide surely will be nailed on the old barn door. His waning resources won't permit him to duplicate this great offensive again come another spring.

All this gives the Allies something concrete to go on with. So what news?

Well, it means that we must swing definitely into the offensive. The birthday cake has been cut. And both President Roosevelt and Premier Churchill promised action.

From now on it must be bullets and not words. Announcement of our intention to assume the offensive was undoubtedly calculated to give further assurance to a Russia which has indicated that it felt Uncle Sam and John Bull ought to be doing more on the actual battle field. Churchill's report to Commons seemed to make it clear that one of his chief reasons for visiting Stalin in Moscow recently was to convince the Communist chief that his allies do mean business.

Afternoon Session Pitt County Court

Cases tried at the afternoon session of county court yesterday included the following:

Douglas Omary, larceny, six months in jail; Preston Ellis, assault with deadly weapon, $50 fine, costs deducted, appealed to Superior court; Harvey Mordcaid, colored, speeding, judgment suspended on payment of costs, forfeit license 10 days; Jesse Ellis and A. J. Ellis, assault with deadly weapon, $50 and costs deducted for Jesse Ellis; 18 months for A. J. Ellis, appealed to Superior court.

WILDERNESS GIRL

By LETA ZOE ADAMS

Chapter 25
Well-Meant Brife
Tyra's father didn't answer for a moment. Finally he said slowly "We'll have to talk to this Morse fellow. Maybe we can persuade him to wait a while before going after that Rosetta-stone."

"You mean off to a share? I'd thought of that, too. Dad, but I'm not certain that he'd listen. He'd say, you know how archeologists are. They're just as crazy in their way as we are in ours."

"We could offer to share our supplies with him," Fleming went on. "And if all that fails we've still got you."

Tyra's head came up. "I don't understand, Dad."

"A twinkle found its way to Mr. Fleming's deep-set eyes. "Sandy Morse is in love with you, isn't he?"

"Tyra said slowly, "I don't see what that has to do with it."

"If he likes you he'll want to please you, won't he?"

"Yes, but . . ."

"I think between us, we can persuade him to stay, all right. We'll go over to their camp right after we have something to eat."

Tyra gazed thoughtfully into the fire. All these weeks she had leath-ered being suspicious of Sandy. Each day of companionship on the trail had been harder than the last, with the knowledge in her heart that she was not trusting the zealous young archeologist. Only today she had been released from her torment, only to be plunged, it seemed, into something more disagreeable.

Use Sandy's liking for her as a club to bend his judgment? She decided. No, she was done with that. She had finished with it today.

Proposition
Sandy, Gil and Helen were seated around their fire discussing ways and means of approaching the Chamber of the Serpent God when Tyra and her father stepped out of the shadows. After some formalities of greeting the Fleminga made themselves comfortable in the circle, and Mr. Fleming commented upon the events of the day as reported to him by Tyra.

He went on, "I don't mind telling you, now, that I was suspicious of you people. That's why I sent Tyra with you today."

Across the fire Sandy met Tyra's eyes. "Then you went with us today—to spy on us," he said slowly, like a statement.

She answered in an oddly muffled voice, "Yes, to know."

So far as Sandy was concerned they might have been alone. "I think I see, now, why you didn't want to guide us here."

"I had a good reason . . . Dad will tell you about it."

Mr. Fleming took up the conversation. "Yes, I'll tell you, Morse. We're not botanists. That is a blind to put the people off the scent. I am a mining engineer."

Helen gasped and Sandy remarked dryly, "I'm not surprised to hear you're not botanists."

Mr. Fleming continued, "For 20 years, since Tyra was a baby, I've drifted around Mexico from one property to another Chihuahua, Durango, Sonora. I've managed mines and prospected all through those states. Then, two-three years ago I picked up a property in the Banabua River District of Nicaragua. That was where I first heard of the Forbidden Land and what I heard made me curious to find out more. So I went to Guatemala, from the Gulf side, and was fortunate enough to talk to a party who had penetrated this country for quite a distance. Their descriptions of the geologic formations made me certain there was gold in here."

Sandy asked that one without comment. "Then I take it that you found a mine?"

"Mr. Fleming lit his eyes rest momentarily upon each face as if to assure himself how his news would be received. "I hadn't been prospecting around this plateau a week when I ran onto a free gold pocket that's a bonanza. Frankly, I've never seen anything equal to it, in any experience. Nuggets—well, you have to see them to believe it."

Sandy said carefully, "I noticed some of Hunac-Ceel's people wear- ing nuggets today."

Mr. Fleming cleared his throat and continued, "I've already panned out a nice little lump. Probably I'd have had the whole pocket cleaned up if I'd been able to work with my the Yaguas the whole time."

From now on it must be bullets and not words. Announcement of our intention to assume the offensive was undoubtedly calculated to give further assurance to a Russia which has indicated that it felt Uncle Sam and John Bull ought to be doing more on the actual battle field. Churchill's report to Commons seemed to make it clear that one of his chief reasons for visiting Stalin in Moscow recently was to convince the Communist chief that his allies do mean business.

Fleming leaned closer. "From what Tyra tells me you plan to make your raid on that altar in spite of the warnings of the Indians. You must realize that if you do this we'll all have to leave the plateau right away."

Sandy gave a start. "I suppose that is true."

"You've been thinking about it, I see."

"Well, yes. Of course I didn't know about your gold mine."

make your raid on the altar and get your Rosetta-stone. In that way, we'd both have what we came up here for, only you'd have a poke of gold in addition. How does it sound to you?"

Agreed
It sounded like more delay, more frustration. "With Gil and me working how long do you think it will take to clean up the pocket?" Sandy asked, choosing his words with care.

"Hard to tell exactly. Maybe two months. And of course we'll divide our supplies with you—I forgot to mention that. My Yaguas can do all the hunting, which will save time, and we can concentrate our camps in order to have one cooking unit."

"All right," Sandy said, a husky note in his voice. "We'll wait until you clean up your gold pocket. We'll put our own plan aside until then."

A curious silence followed his announcement. The faces around the fire appeared to have been cast in copper.

Mr. Fleming arose. Tyra, too, stood up. Fleming said: "Come over to the camp first thing in the morning. We'll get together on our plans, and start things moving."

Dodgers Gain Half A Game In Lead Over The Cardinals

BEAT PIRATES AS CARDS IDLE

National Champs Are Now 3 Games In The Lead

By SID FEDEL (Associated Press Sports Writer)

Take it direct from Billy (The Kid) Southworth, the Brooklyn Dodgers don't look any different to his St. Louis Cardinals than any other club in the National League.

Now this is not to imply that the Phillies resemble the Dodgers—or are even a reasonable facsimile thereof. But as he led his roaring Redbirds into their final full scale invasion of the east today—an invasion that the Cards will confidently expect will wind up with the National League pennant—Billy the Kid came right out with his battle strategy: "We play 'em as we meet 'em, game by game."

He stayed by this theory, even though the Bums boasted a gaudy three-game bulge on the Cardinals as a result of Ed Head's four-hit whitewash job to give the Dodgers a 4-0 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday. The Cardinals couldn't do a thing to stop the Brooklynans from picking up that half-a-game, simply because the schedule gave them the day off.

"But we're still confident, and we are still in the fight," Southworth insisted. "We play this single tilt with the Giants today. Then we move into Brooklyn for those two games Friday and Saturday. And then we have the Phillies and the Braves after that."

"Well, we're playing every ball game as it comes along. Brooklyn is just another ball game, the same as Boston and Philadelphia. We're trying to win each one of 'em and get this—we're not looking forward or backward. We're only looking at what's right there in front of us each day."

There's no doubt the Cards have the toughest kind of a haul if they expect to overtake the battered Brooklynans, especially since shortstop Slaty Marion and outpaw Ernie White are still nursing ailments. The front office tried to take up some of the slack caused by these injuries by buying Jeff Cross, Houston's classy infielder, and calling up veteran-thrower Bill Blackman from Rochester yesterday.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers took advantage of the situation as fully as the fellow who suddenly finds the steak platter set right in front of him on the boarding house table. Head had the Bucs rolling over and playing dead, and when his mates gave him a run in the first frame, the whole thing was over. In fact, after the first inning of 'em and got as far as second base.

This was the only battle on the National League calendar, while over in the American League three games were run off, chief of which saw the Washington Senators nesting out the Boston Red Sox, 15 to 11. All told, 35 hits rattled off the Griffith Stadium fences but in the end, ten walks handed out by the Sox blowers did as much damage as anything else. A second game had to be called at the end of four innings so both teams could catch a train.

The setback sank the second place Sox 9 1-2 games behind the idle New York Yankees and left them with only 15 to play.

The St. Louis Browns put a firmer grab on the American League's third place by whipping the Detroit Tigers 4-1 with the help of a couple of Yankee castoffs—Steve Sundra, who served up a four-hit pitching job, and Walt Judnich, who whacked his 11th homer of the year.

The Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox were slated for a doubleheader, but after Young Ray Post's seven-hit twirling whipped the Sox 10-0 in the opener, the second game had to be called off. It was Post's first start since the Tribe recalled him from Indianapolis.

Dark Gloom Invades Land Of The Dodgers

It's dark gloom for Brooklyn's Dodgers and the gloom of Manager Leo Durocher (standing) and loyal Dodger fans, including Mrs. Durocher (arrow), is apparent as they watch Brooklyn batters go down in order in the last inning of Sunday's defeat at the hands of the Giants in New York. Meanwhile, the scoreboard records a victory for the second place St. Louis Cardinals over Cincinnati. The Dodgers' defeat, coupled with the Cardinals' victory, trimmed Brooklyn's lead in the National League race.

Greensboro Wins Play-Off Opener

Charlotte, Sept. 9—(AP)—Greensboro's Red Sox, who won the 1942 Piedmont league pennant, defeated Charlotte last night, 2-1, in the opening game of the Shaughnessy playoffs.

Adam (Whitey) Gluchoski got the better of Charlotte's Gil Torres in a pitching duel. Gluchoski gave up only two hits, to five for Torres. Charlotte led until the sixth when the Red Sox scored both their runs. The two teams meet in Greensboro again tonight. Richmond, meanwhile, will play Portsmouth at Portsmouth.

Grid Practice Now Underway
By BEVERLY WHITLEY
Football practice is well underway for the 1942 edition of the Green Phantoms at Third Street Park under the direction of Coach Boley Farley, Greenville mentor for the past three years.

Only seven letters from last year are back to push the Greenies through their seven game conference schedule with Goldsboro, Roanoke Rapids, Tarboro, Kinston, Elizabeth City, New Bern and Washington.

Although expectations are that the average team weight will be considerably lighter than last year's eleven, it will be just as fast and tricky.

With two stellar flank men, Henry Andrews and Cecil Crawford, last year all-conference end, and Hubert Muschwhite, veteran pass slinger at tailback, Coach Farley is expected to develop a passing attack that will smother any opponent's defensive stronghold.

From observations made the Green and White's weakest spot is in the line due to the fact that all guards, tackles and centers are reserves, but all are proving their worth at the position.

At present, the first scheduled game is October 9 with Goldsboro, however, Coach Farley is attempting to schedule tilts on September 18 and 25 and October 2.

WARNS TROOPS STRIKE FIRST

MacArthur Asks Men To Kill One Jap Apiece

Somewhere in Australia, Sept. 9. (AP)—General MacArthur told U. S. troops in the field today that all he asked of them in action was that they kill one Japanese apiece.

The General talked at length to officers on the fighting qualities of the enemy they will meet eventually and counseled them to remember Napoleon's admonition that a soldier must never surrender except when he is unable to deliver any stroke against his enemy.

As long as he had power to injure his enemy, even though he knew he was going to be defeated or destroyed locally, he must strike, MacArthur said, because in that way he helped his comrades on some other front.

MacArthur described the Japanese soldier as a hard fighter who fought courageously and intelligently and who gave no quarter and asked no quarter.

Japanese tactics, he said, were to disperse along their enemy's lines rapidly in groups of never more than 1,000, often half that number, keep pushing in until they found the enemy and then hit him.

He called the Japanese the greatest exploiters of inefficient, incompetent troops the world has ever seen. When the Japanese met such troops nothing could stop them, the General said, but good troops could. He advised the American never to let the Japanese attack them, but to make it a fundamental, whatever their position, might be, to be prepared to attack.

Fear Break...

(Continued from Page One) suffer any more than can be avoided, "since they have already suffered to an incalculable extent under German occupation," but he left no doubt that attacks on German objectives would be continued regardless of protests.

While the bluntness of the American rejection caused new speculation as to a possible break with Vichy, there was no indication that the State Department contemplated such a step.

Vichy, Sept. 9—(AP)—A source close to the government said today that Washington's rejection of the Vichy protest over the American air raids on German-occupied France had not yet been received officially.

This informant, who insisted that his name not be disclosed, asserted that the bombing of Rouen—the immediate cause of the protest—was "at Stalin's orders."

"The French nation will not be duped," he declared, adding that "such raids will only succeed in uniting the indignant French around their legitimate government against their real enemies."

Nazis Strike...

Counterattacking Red army tanks were declared to have upset a flanking offensive on the steppes southwest of the Volga river arsenal city named for Premier Joseph Stalin.

"Nine German tanks were disabled and a company of Hitlerites annihilated," it was announced.

Fliers of the Red Banner Baltic fleet were credited with destruction of ten German tri-motored planes in an attack on an Axis airbase, breaking through "a solid anti-aircraft barrage" to lose their explosive cargoes.

Senate Asks...

The plan apparently most favored by the treasury, he said, combined rate increases with a reduction in exemption to $400 for single persons, and $800 for married couples, with $200 credit being allowed for dependents.

The present law grants exemptions of $750 to single persons, $1500 for married couples and $400 for dependents. The House voted to lower these to $500 for single persons and $1,200 for married, retaining the $400 credit for dependents. The Senate committee has previously voted to approve the $500 and $1,200 exemptions but moved to cut the dependency credit to $300.

Radcliffe said treasury officials objected that five per cent "victory" tax would be difficult to administer, particularly as to provisions for post-war credits and debt deductions.

As approved yesterday by the committee, an extra levy of five per cent would be made against the earnings of individuals above a basic exemption of $625 a year. The levy would be calculated to rise about $3,500,000,000 yearly, of which $1,100,000,000 would be rebated to taxpayers through credits allowed them at the end of the year.

In approving the tax, the committee directed the treasury to submit today proposals for combining it with the regular income taxes.

Radcliffe said the treasury plans involved no postwar rebate or debt credit provisions, the full amount of collections under them to be retained as direct taxes.

Committee members said that whatever the details might be, the net result in any event might be to increase the nation's annual tax yield to more than $25,000,000,000 compared with slightly more than $17,000,000,000 collected under present laws.

"If you don't act, you are not worthy to sit in this house," Rich declared.

"This is not the time for politics or obstructionism," declared Rep. Fish. "It is the duty of the Democratic Congress to exert every possible legislative power to protect the American people... from the tragic effects of inflation."

Fish referred to the President's message as an "ultimatum" and said the chief executive "could have exerted his influence in other ways than by threats of invoking war powers beyond his constitutional authority."

Rep. Taber accused the President of lacking "the courage to ask us" to fix ceilings on wages at the same time farm prices were controlled.
