ALLIED FORCES PUSHING BACK JAP DRIVE ON PORT MORESBY

Navy Reports Bombing Attacks On Jap Transports Off The Shortland Island In Solomons; Aircraft Supporting Land Forces In New Guinea

Gen. MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, Sept. 26. (AP)—Aggressive Allied patrols, fighting in driving rain and aided for the first time by artillery, have forced the Japanese to withdraw from some of their advance positions in the Owen Stanley mountains north of Port Moresby, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

It was the first officially reported retirement on the part of the Japanese in this theater since they landed at Gona Mission on the southeast coast of New Guinea July 21 and launched an overland push which has been stalled for the last 10 days near Torilwaba, 32 miles from Port Moresby.

An Allied spokesman warned, however, against undue optimism, declaring the Japanese still were in force in that area and that their movement could not be considered a general withdrawal.

Another local Allied success, meanwhile, was reported in the Salamaua area some 140 miles north of this battle zone. In a sharp counter-attack, a communiqué said, Allied patrols drove the Japanese from a position near Mubo, 12 miles south of Salamaua.

Announcement of these gains was complemented by a communiqué from the Navy Department in Washington reporting that United States Army bombers had damaged docks and buildings and scored three hits on Japanese transports in attacks on enemy bases and shipping in the Solomon Islands.

The bombing of the transports, of Shortland Island in the western Solomons, was carried out despite the opposition of 20 enemy fighters, one of which was shot down, the bulletin said.

The Japanese bases attacked were situated at Gizo Island, in the New Georgia group of the Solomons, and Rekata Bay, on the northern coast of Santa Isabel Island. Flying fortresses carried out these assaults.

The Navy communiqué also disclosed that the Japanese still are holding several villages on Guadalcanal Island, 215 miles southeast of Gizo and site of an important, newly won American base. United States Marines, supported by Navy and Marine dive-bombers, have been active in attacking these scattered centers of resistance, the bulletin said.

The action on the New Guinea land front also was strongly supported by Allied aircraft of General (Continued on Page Six)

Farmer Has Narrow Escape In Wreck

Oran Hardee, elderly farmer, sustained painful bruises and other injuries when he lost control of his car this morning near Herman Station's service station, on the Washington highway, about 5 miles from Greenville. He was taken to Pitt General Hospital for treatment and observation.

Good Trick But It Didn't Work

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, Sept. 26 (AP) It's a neat trick if they could do it, but the Japanese invaders of New Guinea evidently are inept in their use of English phrases.

Farm Bloc Members Happy Over Parity Price Bill

Passage by the lower house of an anti-inflation bill, which included a provision for higher farm parity prices, brought smiles to the faces of these congressmen in Washington. Left to right: Rep. Hampton P. Fulmer, Democrat of South Carolina; Rep. Paul Brown, Democrat of Georgia, who introduced the parity amendment, and Rep. Henry Steagall, Democrat of Alabama.

Axis Report Allies Are Preparing Attack Dakar

Allies Deny Report as Darian Confers With Chief Of Morocco

London, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Axis reports that the Allies contemplate attacking Dakar, French West Africa, were followed today by others that Admiral Darian, commander-in-chief of all Vichy French armed forces, had held a long conference with General Auguste Nogues, governor general of Morocco.

The Algiers radio, which announced their meeting, did not mention where it occurred or what was discussed but the German radio broadcast simultaneously that Lieut. Gen. Luis Orgaz Yoldi, high commissioner of Spanish Morocco, was expected at Rabat within a few days to confer with Nogues.

The Berlin radio dispatch, dated-lined Tangier, said that Orgaz and Nogues would discuss "a number of questions out of which differences have recently arisen, between the two (French and Spanish Morocco) protectorates." It did not elaborate.

Spanish Morocco, adjacent to French Morocco, faces Gibraltar from the African shore.

The German-controlled Paris radio previously reported that "Allies are blockading Dakar" and "will attack it soon."

This, a Fighting French official said, was "news to us."

The German radio has spoken frequently of Allied designs on Dakar, but until last night there had been no charge of overt action.

Rain Can't Stop War Bond Auction

The Merchants' Association, sponsoring the auction sale of United States War Bonds at the court house this afternoon, announced that if it is raining at 4 o'clock the auction will be held in the armory nearby.

Two well known tobacco auctioneers, Billie Branch and Ray Oglesby, will do the auctioneering. Valuable articles of merchandise, including gasoline, sugar, flour, fertilizer, a gold dollar, etc. will be offered at the bidding for War Bonds.

Lawrence Stroud, J. Carroll Waldrop and T. Y. Walker, co-chairmen for the bond selling event, hope to sell $50,000 worth of bonds and make a good showing for Greenville and Pitt County.

TO FORCE TEST PARITY ISSUE

Farm Bloc Leaders Say They Will Force Showdown

By JACK BELL Washington, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Farm bloc leaders insisted today on forcing a showdown next week on a proposal to jack up the levels controlling agricultural prices despite administration claims a compromise would be adopted.

Senator Thomas (D-Okla.) said that despite any "half-way" peace moves the administration might make, he would demand a Senate vote on an amendment to the anti-inflation bill raising the basis of parity prices by about 12 per cent to include the cost of farm labor.

"I can't withdraw that amendment at this late hour," the Oklahoman told reporters. "I couldn't look anybody in the face if I did. I don't know what will happen, but I am going down the line for the farmer."

Thomas held a temporary parliamentary advantage requiring a vote first on the amendment he and Senator Hatch (D-NM) offered before a compromise proposal submitted by Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) could be brought up for a roll call.

Barkley indicated a vote might come Monday when the Senate reconvenes after a week-end recess it began yesterday afternoon.

Conceding that the Thomas proposal might carry, Barkley said he was confident it would be supplanted immediately by his amendment. The latter would leave the parity standard undisturbed but would direct President Roosevelt to lift individual price ceilings, where they did not reflect returns to the producers which took into account increased labor and other costs on the farm.

"I think we have the votes to save tires," he said.

140 Bonds Sold At Warehouses

War Bond sales on the Greenville tobacco market this week by R. E. Corbett, manager of the State Theatre, were 140 individual bonds totaling $22,125. The sales were made on the floors of the different warehouses where warehousemen willingly halted the sales in order that the bonds might be offered.

Mr. Corbett today expressed appreciation of the fine attitude shown by the tobacco people in cooperating in the movement and he also expressed his thanks to all who in any way aided in the plan.

Washington, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Rubber czar William M. Jeffers went the limit today and ordered nationwide gasoline rationing to save tires.

NAZIS FACING TROUBLE WITH NORWEGIANS

RAF Fliers Broke Up Quisling Speech With Raid On Oslo

London, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Striking at a moment of rising Axis dissension in Norway and violent new anti-German outbreaks in Oslo, the RAF made a daring daylight assault upon Nazi headquarters in the Norwegian capital yesterday and sent the followers of Vidkun Quisling's puppet regime scurrying to cover from a nearby rally.

Four raiding British bombers swept in low and dropped their bombs from about 100 feet altitude to score hits on Gestapo buildings, the Air Ministry announced. One British plane was lost and the Air Ministry said tartly that "German allegations that three of the attacking bombers were shot down confirms the effects of the attack."

Quisling, who had summoned members of his National Socialist party to the rally in Norway in an effort to quell discontent, denounced the raid in an address before his followers today as one by "RAF murder planes."

Quisling announced the raid casualties as four dead and 40 injured.

Stockholm dispatches reported that another flight of 25 planes, believed to be British, swept Thursday night across the Swedish west coast, which might well be in the region southeast of Oslo.

The Germans, who have shown increasing nervousness at developments in Scandinavia immediately pounced upon this incident to broadcast a tirade against what it called "the latest violation of Swedish neutrality by British bombers."

The Swedes themselves were verbally attacked last week by the Germans following elections in which the Communists showed gains and Swedish Nazis lost one of their five seats out of the country's several hundred.

Exchange Telegraph, British news agency, said in a Stockholm dispatch that Swedish anti-aircraft batteries were believed to have hit one of the planes engaged in Thursday night's operations and that a protest over their appearance would be made to Britain.

The connection between this action and the small-scale raid on Oslo, the first upon the Norwegian capital in more than a year, was not clear but the British recently have been engaged in a spreading aerial mine-sowing campaign in German shipping lanes. A Vichy broadcast today quoted Stockholm advices as saying two ships had struck mines "laid by British planes" off Sweden's Baltic coast in the last 24 hours.

One thing was clear though, and that was that the Germans were finding themselves in "deeper hot water in Norway."

With that strategically located Scandinavian country commanding heightened attention from both the British and the Germans, official Norwegian sources said in London that Quisling's party was so badly split that Gen. Nikolaus von Falkenhorst, Nazi occupation commander, had asked Hitler to dismiss Quisling and fully "Germanize" Norway.

The Quislings were reported split internally as well as snubbed by Norwegian labor and industry.

What About Interest Rates? Babson Advises Short Term Investments

Babson Park, Mass., Sept. 26.—An interest rate is a money fee paid by those who have less than they need of money, to those who have more than they can use. The rate at which money will be lent during the coming inflation will depend upon the relative status of two elements: (1) the eagerness of those who have insufficient money to have or do things which require money; (2) the eagerness of those who have ample funds to loan money for an interest return.

How Inflation Works Inflation means that there is plenty of money of a kind. In some cases, inflation takes on the characteristic of an apparent shortage of purchasing power. In Germany in the 20's since the huge increase in the supply of money was placed to the benefit of a small clique, the rest of the nation suffered a severe shortage of money. Prices would go up faster than this flood of money would reach the public

Thirty-Two German Counter-Attacks In Stalingrad Area In Past 48 Hours Were Crushed; Nazis Paying Heavily For Every Inch Gained

By HENRY C. CASSIDY Moscow, Sept. 26.—(AP)

The Russians officially announced the recapture of strategic positions, both within besieged Stalingrad and upon the German left flank today, and the roll of invasion dead was reported increased by about 3,000.

Although Red Star, the army newspaper, pointedly pictured the enemy as still able to inch forward over his own mounds of dead, it sounded an optimistic editorial note with the message to Stalingrad's fighters that "there now exists a possibility to hold the fascists and repulse them."

For the moment, at least, field dispatches indicated that the Germans had been brought to a halt on every front of the battle of Russia.

Repeated German counter-attacks against the Red army striking northwest of Stalingrad for part of the battle-worn garrison were declared repulsed with heavy losses.

"One Soviet infantry unit killed about 300 Germans and captured 200,000 rounds of ammunition," the noon communique said.

"In another sector Soviet troops repulsed an enemy counter-attack, advanced and occupied more advantageous positions.

"In this engagement 600 Germans were killed and 10 tanks, 12 guns and several mortars and machine-guns were destroyed."

Recapture of a valuable position by Stalingrad's Soviet street fighters had been advanced at midnight.

"In one fierce street engagement," it was added, "a Guards unit destroyed 10 enemy tanks and killed 285 Germans. In another sector our troops repulsed an attack, wiping out a company of enemy infantry and capturing six machine-guns, six mortars, 130 rifles and a quantity of ammunition."

Russians within Stalingrad, fighting from make-shift barricades, fire-blackened buildings and fox-holes in the damp earth, were undoubtedly giving the Germans their stiffest opposition in toe-to-toe fighting in this war.

The army newspaper Red Star said the German forces were wearing out and it was possible for the Russians to hold them.

Heavy squadrons of the German Air Force switched their attacks to Volga river crossings, evidently fearing to rain more bombs upon the complicated battle area lest they annihilate their own ground detachments.

Nazi dive-bombers maintained their raids upon Russian-held sectors both by darkness and daylight. Despite both the high altitude and low level assaults, dispatches stressed that food and munitions continued to flow to the defenders from supply stores on the east bank of the Volga.

Red army forces in a sector of the battle front northwest of Stalingrad were credited with repelling 32 German counter-attacks within a period of 48 hours.

Junior Day To Open. CLUB NURSERY MONDAY

The Day Nursery at the Woman's Club building sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club will start functioning on Monday, September 28, and will be open every Monday, Tuesday and Friday afternoons from 2 until 6 o'clock, as long as there seems to be a need.

Later, should the demand seem great enough, the nursery will be open every afternoon. All young children through six years of age are invited. A nominal fee per child will be charged, part of which will be used for wholesome refreshments and the remainder will help provide funds for numerous civic projects. The annual clean-up campaign, and the former sponsoring of a maternity clinic are two examples of public service the club has accomplished in the past.

This nursery project is undertaken in the realization of a very acute servant problem at present. It is hoped it will make it possible for mothers to attend their church, books and bridge clubs, and civic organizations, knowing that their children will be well cared for.

Two or three Junior Club members will be present at all times. Several of the members have had specialized training in nursery school work.

Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Clyde Hollowell, Miss Verda Harris or Mrs. Frank P. J. Jr.

Dave Moore Tells History Kiwanis

Greenville Kiwanians were surprised and gratified over the club's achievements in public service since it was organized in 1921, as reported by Secretary Dave Moore, Jr., in a review of the club's history at last night's meeting. The club held its first meeting at the college. The Rev. James Turner was the first president. Moore gave a detailed account of what the Kiwanians have done here in support of community affairs. It was an interesting story and entertainingly told. Some of the charter members are still in the club. They include Marvin K. Blount, J. Frank Harrington, Guy Smith, B. W. Moseley, W. H. Woodard and others.

President Claude Ward presided for the remaining three months of 1942 "should bring us to the 8,000,000 ton goal of your directive" for this calendar year and that next year's 16,000,000 ton goal "appears reasonably certain of accomplishment."

Accuse Negro Of Posing As Doctor

Leonard Kornegay, colored, of Kinston, was arrested there yesterday for Williamston authorities on a charge of practicing medicine without a license.

He is alleged to have diagnosed cases for female patients, prescribed medicine and collected fees therefor in Martin county. Kornegay is a former employe of a grist mill in Kinston.

Patrolman Charles Moore of Williamston stopped over in Greenville last night on the way back with his prisoner.

American Fliers Down Jap Planes

Chunking, Sept. 26—(AP)—American bombers escorted by fighters raided the Gai Lam airdrome at Hanoi, Indo-China, yesterday and shot down three Japanese planes. Chief of staff of Allied forces in China, announced today. Two other Japanese planes were listed as "probably" destroyed.

Tuesday American fighter planes attacked Japanese truck columns of about 30 vehicles on the Lungling-Tengyueh road in southwest Yunnan, destroying between 12 and 20 of them, the communique said.

Arrest 53 In Lottery Ring

Chicago, Sept. 26—(AP)—The Justice Department claimed today to have virtually liquidated a million dollar lottery business just as it was about to run a big job on the World Series. Fifty-three operators were arrested in 32 cities.

Special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation swept in, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, announced yesterday, as the syndicate was preparing to pour out hundreds of thousands of tickets for a World Series lottery. Named as ring leaders were Christ and Ernest Bauer, John Juan and William J. Santa, all of Chicago.

SHIPBUILDERS SET RECORDS

Record Number Ships Turned Out In 12 Months

Washington, Sept. 26—(AP)—America's humming shipyards are on the way to new construction records as they prepare to celebrate "victory fleet" day tomorrow—first anniversary of the launching of liberty cargo ships.

Managements and shipyard workers in more than 60 yards on the coasts and Great Lakes had the official word of the Maritime Commission today that 488 ships were delivered in the last 12 months, aggregating about 5,450,000 tons, and that 90 ships totaling 1,000,000 tons will be turned out this month, for a new record average of three a day. Meantime, Brig. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, federal works administrator, announced opening today of a five-mile road to speed transportation of workers to Henry J. Kaiser's Richmond, Calif., shipyards, one of the producers of liberty ships.

Financed with $883,000 of federal access-road funds, the new four-lane highway provides a direct route to the shipyards from the Oakland end of the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge and will serve about 25,000 persons daily, most of whom group-ride to work.

British Subs Sink Axis Supply Ships

London, Sept. 26—(AP)—British submarines have sunk at least five and probably seven Axis supply ships recently in the Mediterranean and have seriously damaged another, the Admiralty announced today.

The communique said the undersea attacks had dealt "further heavy" losses on enemy sea communications, already hard-pressed to keep Axis armies in North Africa reinforced and supplied in the face of Allied attacks on ships and harbors.

Four Killed And Twenty-Three Hurt

Middletown, N. Y., Sept. 26—(AP)—A high school sorority outing in an old fashioned hayrack ended in tragedy last night as four youths were killed and 23 others injured when a tractor-trailer truck plowed into their wagon.

Celebrating the initiation of new members, the girls and their boy companions were homeward bound about midnight, singing school songs.

The dead were Betty Goldsmith, 14; Douglas Winterbourne, Richard Wolf and Harry Butler, all of Middletown.

Plants Seek Locations

Raleigh, Sept. 26 (AP)—James E. east, Secretary of the War Industry ordination committee of the Department of Conservation and Development, said today that four manufacturers of wooden airplanes were interested in locating plants in North Carolina if sufficient sub-contracting arrangements could be made.

Eyewitness . . .

(Continued from Page One) We lost only one plane and pilot. Apart from that remarkable score, to watch a small part of the battle from foxholes in the sandy, anti-filled loam of Guadalcanal was well worth the night, but an astounding feat, many miles of travel to reach this island.

Some one listening on the radio which carries the pilots' running commentaries shouted, "raiders approaching from the south." Presently a thin, white waveling line of twin-engined bombers came into sight and crawled across the pale blue sky far above the line of coconut trees.

Guns boomed in the distance and the puffs of bursting anti-aircraft shells came into the picture. "Too high," yelled the men in the foxholes. More puffs exploded in the sky and the men yelled again, "too low."

The bombers hummed on, their engines growing gradually louder as they came through a field of anti-aircraft fire, many miles of travel to reach this island.

Still more anti-aircraft bursts blossomed in the sky, and then the men on the ground cheered. That found was exactly right. The bombers flew straight into "One plane flashed into flame and dropped. Two others faltered, trailing white smoke. Then our fighters moved in and the battle continued far out to sea.

But the raiders had had time to drop their bombs in one general target area. The word "general" in this instance covers lots of ground. The enemy had failed to damage the obviously prime objective.

The bombs sounded comfortably distant, but we were to learn later that this was a deception caused by the coconut trees muffling the sound.

Only a few hundred yards at sea a crippled bomber dropped out of the pack which, by this time, had turned noses down for greatest possible speed and was fleeing.

The damaged bomber wasn't badly hurt, but three fighters were there to finish it off. One fighter whirled in and made a pass, while the other two sat up there and watched. The bomber reeled and fell several hundred feet, then straightened out.

The same fighter lunged at it again and the bomber wheeled around like an addled boxer. Once more the fighter went in and the big raider nosed into the sea.

A gray geyser of water turned into flame as the bomber hit the water, and another cheer went up from the men who had jumped out of their foxholes to see the kill.

Later, at the airdrome, the pilot who got that bomber and one other enemy ship said the sides of the big plane's fuselage were shot away and its guns were hanging as though by threads.

This pilot was Major John L. Smith of Lexington, Ohio, who is the hottest pilot here with a score of 15 enemy planes shot down in five weeks. He's a quiet, modest man. He wears a red baseball cap and has to be urged before he'll tell much about what he has done. Major Smith's wife lives at Norfolk, Va.

Axis Report . . .

(Continued from Page One) Vichy French sources have complained of a British blockade against Dakar, but they have also boasted of the defenses of the African port and the ability of French ships to pass through the blockade.

Nazis Facing . . .

(Continued from Page One) tions followed the labor lead, these sources said, in overwhelmingly rejecting Quisling's plan for a cooperative movement based on the Fascist order.

Even while the Quislings were meeting over the week-end continuing outbreaks were reported in Oslo.

The Norwegian Telegraphic agency said patriots broke into buildings of the Bislep sports stadium where the Quisling party was forming for a parade and smashed standards then made a bon fire from stacks of the Quisling newspaper Fritt Folk.

Stadium buildings were reported damaged by fire. A number of arrests were made.

"The Norwegian capital is in a virtual state of emergency," the news agency said. "Patriots are distributing pamphlets in the streets advising the population to boycott the Quisling youth organization and there were numerous fights."

While weather curtailed activity over the continent last night British planes attacked enemy shipping near the Dutch coast and in Dover straits near the French coast hitting one vessel and causing a coastal ship to ground.

A few German planes appeared over the southwest coast of Britain during the night, but an authoritative statement, acknowledging "some damage," said only a small number of casualties were reported.

Stockholm dispatches to Reuters said four persons were killed and eight injured when four British planes flew low over Oslo late yesterday afternoon and dropped their bombs. A number of houses in the Norwegian capital were damaged.

Germans in Oslo claimed that three planes were destroyed in the action, but authoritative quarters here said the raid cost the RAF one plane.

Shipping in Oslo harbor was attacked by British planes on September 6, 1941, in the last RAF raid on Oslo.

The Berlin radio, avoiding mention of the raid, reported that Quisling announced at the meeting plans for the establishment of a parliament and two cooperative groups one economic, the other cultural.

These organizations, the Berlin radio said, would serve "in an advisory capacity" only.

Nation Wide Gas . . .

Jeffers said: "The Office of Price Administration is hereby directed and authorized to institute nationwide gasoline rationing on the same basis as the gasoline rationing program now existing in the eastern states."

"It will be understood that after the installation of a nationwide gasoline rationing program, the Office of Defense Transportation will review the program from the standpoint of its effects upon the transportation service of the nation."

The existing arrangements between the ODT and the OPA relative to rations for commercial vehicles in accordance with general order ODT No. 21 will be continued and extended throughout the nation."

The order referred to impose mileage and minimum load restrictions on 5,000,000 commercial vehicles, under "certificates of war necessity."

In a statement accompanying the directive, Jeffers said that by holding speeds down to 35 miles an hour, gasoline consumption would be decreased and tires saved.

"It will make it possible for you to keep your automobile rolling when you actually need it," said Jeffers, "and that's important when you remember that until we get enough rubber for military needs and for essential civilian needs there won't be any for new tires for you."

develop a resumption of international trade which should cause a renewed demand for funds for the purpose of rehabilitating devastated regions and inventories. This will come just at the time when individuals and businesses will be subjected to most severe income taxes which they may not have the money to pay. Due to increased wholesale prices more capital will be required to carry adequate inventories. Hence, many must go to the banks to borrow. Individuals will then want to cash in their war savings bonds so that the government may also have to borrow from the banks to get the money to pay them.

This cashing in of government securities held by individuals will not be sufficient to replenish the coffers of such individuals or business firms. It is likely, therefore, that despite the inflation of the post-war period, much of the money supply will be frozen. Banks will experience a rather heavy demand for loans, thus permitting them to charge higher interest rates than can be thought of today. Furthermore, from fear of a decreasing value of money due to inflation, lenders will want a higher interest rate due to the increased risk involved.

When we come to housing loans, it is likely that the present low interest rates may be a permanent feature; but for loans to merchants, we must visualize a situation when the lend-lease policy may have drained our huge surplus of most goods—not only foods. It is well to remember that the need for commercial loans arises primarily from the creation of goods and crops. When commercial loans shift from productive activity to inventory-holding it is usually about the end of the business boom. Therefore, lend-lease is an instrument which in the post-war period, might cause a renewed industrial boom at high prices when most firms find their cash resources depleted.

The outlook for banks is probably more hopeful now on such a long term view than it ever has been since 1926. A small increase in interest rates should greatly add to a bank's profits. Of course, politics enter into the problem. Social reformers always enjoy tinkering with some intriguing toy which they don't quite understand. We, however, have had so much social uplift in the last decade that perhaps voters are getting tired of Mildred Vines and husband of Mildred Vines, Eva Vines and husband of Eva Vines, Addie Vines and husband of Addie Vines, Elizabeth Vines and husband of Elizabeth Vines and Town of Farmville, Defendants.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

"THANKS FOR CHRISTMAS"
A missionary recently returned from a term in a Japanese concentration camp tells how on last Christmas Eve he whistled "Silent Night," "Adeste," and other carols softly in the prison stillness. The guards came in and shrieked at him to stop. The next morning,
however, in passing Japanese prisoners at the staircase, one of them,
a personal friend, braved the wrath of the guards by whispering,
"Thanks for Christmas."

He knew that there was no Christmas in his religion or in the outlook of his people. There was something in these beautiful hymns which told a deep story of love and solidarity for men which was foreign to the merciless drive of their war machine. In World War I the German high command forbade their soldiers singing Christmas carols or any kind of religious song
because, they said, this sort of thing damaged the morale of the men.
They were right. Recalling in beautiful word or song the tenderness
and love of Jesus Christ is designed to damage the morale of any group of men bent on plunder and tyranny, provided, of course, that there are some among them who still have left any health of conscience. And even in those sad and morally mutilated countries we can be pretty sure that there are still some who have.

LAW ENFORCEMENT, YES—BRUTALITY, NO.

As a rule we find that the law enforcement officers are right in their efforts to perform their duties and should have the support of law-abiding citizens, but when such instances as that which occurred at the football game last night take place,
we feel that it is time for the officer to turn in his badge and look for some other employment.

When a grown man entrusted with the enforcement of the law so far forgets himself as to wade into a fight between two boys of high school age, swinging a blackjack, he is far more dangerous than the fighters and a greater menace to public safety.

The writer was only a few feet away from the fight last night, but not being interested in high school boys'
fisticuffs, when it appeared that they were determined to have it out, was not an eye-witness to all that occured, but here's the way the story was told by those who stood even closer to the encounter and we heard no
one who gave a version any different.

Two boys, one from Greenville and the other from Kinston, had words and passed blows. After the first encounter it appears that neither was completely satisfied, so they decided to renew the encounter, and naturally the bystanders formed a ring about the two and watched them swing at each other. After a few moments Policeman Rogerson arrived on the scene, pushed his way to the circle and with a blackjack in his hand landed two blows on the Kinston boy, one blow across the temple and ear of the youth and the other across the left eye. Immediately bystanders halted the encounter and pulled the officer away from the fighters. There apparently was no one in the crowd

who expressed anything
other than disgust at the tactics used by the officer. They felt that it was the officer's duty to attempt to stop the fight and there were enough adults at hand to have given
any assistance he needed,
without his resorting to the use of a blackjack, but it appeared that his blackjack
went into play the moment
he got close enough to the fighters to land a blow.

Incidentally, the boy from Kinston who received the
blows from the blackjack,
was already handicapped in his fighting because one wrist was bandaged from a recent fracture and he was being forced to do all his fighting with his left hand.
To be sure, it shouldn't have been such a task to stop one in such a condition from fighting, that it was necessary to knock him in the head with a blackjack.

We believe that the great majority of the citizens of our city are for law and order and want to see peace kept among our people, but we believe that they will agree with us that there should be no man on our police force who cannot re-

Washington Daybook

Washington.—If you are on the uncalled selective service roles or have relatives or a sweetheart there,
the best thing you can do at the moment is not let the smoke screen
of confusion get you down.
Selective service is in that state of flux which has come to almost everything in the United States war plans. The trouble is that we started building on a foundation far too small and weak for the superstructure this war demands. Now, to save the whole business from collapsing, we have to jack up what building we have, and slide a new foundation under it.
That already has happened in war

industry and it isn't certain yet that the foundation is big enough to carry the load. That is what is happening now in the efforts to solve the problems of influenza and rubber. That is what is going to happen to manpower—both manpower for the armed forces and manpower for production of supplies for those forces.

It may be done by a complete overhauling of the existing policies of deferment. It may be done by new legislation. But a sure sign that it will be done is the confusion of statements and confusion of thought
now emanating from Washington.

Out of the muddle, there are a few things that are becoming pretly certain in the minds of closest Washington observers.

(1) Unless this war collapses within a year, we are going to have an army of 10,000,000 men or more —about two and a half times what we now have.

(2) The 18-19 year old lads will be drafted after the first of the year. There are about 1,000,000 perhaps 1,500,000 in this group. (Committee hearings are starting now on this legislation in both houses of Congress.)

A Promise for Tomorrow

Chapter Eight
To The Hospital
Julie scarcely had time to think of Dawn's strange request again all day. Driven by a relentless schedule of appointments, she put the tangle of thoughts into the back of her mind, concentrated on doing her job at hand thoroughly and well.

"Have a good day, Julie?" Dr.
Tom asked her as they met for the first time that day at the dinner table.
She nodded. "Hard, but everything went smoothly. Did you?"
"Old Kelland's got me baffled.
He's practically recovered complete muscular control but his mind doesn't clear accordingly." He buttered one of Hulda's golden biscuits, ate
it in one bite.

"Usually takes time, doesn't it?"
"Not this much time. At any rate, he can talk rationally enough about ordinary things. When you mention Dawn he goes off on a tangent."
Julie put down her fork. "What do you mean, Dad?"

"He seems obsessed by the idea that Dawn's in some great danger."
Her father shook his head helplessly.
"Even when she's right, in the room
with him, he can't seem to get it out of his mind."
"Anything to do with pressure of war strain?" Julie suggested.

"Indirectly, maybe. But Kelland's under no pressure and Dawn's in no greater danger than anyone else
on the Pacific Coast."
"True. Still being ill, probably Mr. Kelland distorts the facts and

"Funny thing is, Dawn sort of agrees with him. I think the girl is pretty badly scared."
Julie recalled the conversation of this morning, smiled thoughtfully.
"She's afraid for Pete, too."
"Young Fowler?" Dr. Tom looked up, another biscuit poised in mid-air.

"She wants him to go to the new yacht 'Riverport'."
"What for?"
"Be out of danger there."
Dr. Tom snorted. "What makes her think the yards up there are any safer?"

"I don't know. She just urged me to persuade him to go."
"Did you?"
Julie shook her head. "No, I haven't seen him today, but if I had, I think I'd have known better than
to try to tell him what to do."

Helps
"Right!" His hearty laugh rolled up from deep inside his big body.
"Young Pete's the kind who'll make his own decisions, if I'm any judge.
However, you may be interested to know, he's gone already."
"Gone! To Riverport?"

"He called in to cancel an appointment for a treatment this afternoon, Miss Dalton said. Told her
he was leaving town."
"Well—around a strange lightening in her throat, Julie tried to say, lightly, "Dawn should be satisfied now."

So it hadn't been because Dawn
believed in her influence with Pete that she had summoned Julie. It had rather been a sly way of proving that her own hold on him was complete. Julie ate the rest of her inner automatically. Dawn—always calm—had simply wanted to know whether or not Julie would put up a fight for Pete.

From now on it was to be Dawn and Pete. The thought stung like the scalding coffee she tasted. Dawn wouldn't be good for Pete, she told herself, trying to pretend hers was only professional interest. And knowing perfectly that there was nothing professional about the aching emptiness inside, Dawn would simply try to tempt him, to encourage him to self-pity, torment and pride with false goals. If he really loved her, she could ruin him. And she would if it suited her mood. Julie knew Dawn well enough for that.

And there was nothing she could do to prevent it. Even the best, the closest of old friends hadn't the right to touch a man's decision in love. Not the right, nor the power to affect the decision in any way,
probably, save to make it stronger.
Wouldn't Pete roar if Julie should say that Dawn made a coward of him, encouraged him to make a coward of himself? But it was true.
Pete, for all his physical strength,
his keen, hard-bitter determination,
had a sensitive streak that made him vulnerable. His affections were easy, strong, unquestioning. An enemy he could meet, master single-handed. A friend could betray him easily. Was Dawn his friend—or enemy?

The thought pursued her through the evening, the first she and her father had spent together in weeks.
Even a good detective story couldn't hold her attention. Finally she flung it aside.

"I think I'll go for a walk, Dad,"
she said, slipping on her coat.
On the battlements out his shadow
loomed ominously over all the Axis councils.

Against this background it becomes easy to understand why the Tokyo, Berlin and Rome broadcasts worked up such a hurrah over their story, to which this column was devoted yesterday, that the Japanese navy had extended its operations to the Atlantic, apparently by means of a submarine that had reached a German naval base. There was need, for purposes of this anniversary, of some tangible evidence of the unity of the three powers and their ability to concern their strategy in spite of the Allies' command of the seas. Let the Asahi of Tokyo, Japan's most influential newspaper,
tell it!

The powerful handshake between the Japanese fleet and the fleet of the Axis powers, which our enemies
always have feared, now has happened and doubtless will lead to an essential strengthening of the striking power of the Axis fleets."

The Axis propaganda machine runs on strange fuel but none
stranger than this.

And pulled on a sweater as she went.

Fire In The Shipyard
The wind that had been nagging
at loose window catches all evening, snatched at her rudely as she stepped out onto the porch. A sharp wind from the ocean, she noticed as she pulled her sweater close walked cross-lots and up the hill.
Dark clouds scudded swiftly, driven by the wind into deep black ceiling overhead. The ocean would be beautiful tonight, Julie thought, imagined she could hear the booming thunder of the surf. She loved a strong wind, liked to push against it, challenge it.

Hair streaming away from her face, cheeks tingling, she scrambled to the crest of the low foot-hill turned her back to the boisterous wind while she looked down on Santa Felice below her. Beyond that to the deep fringe of lights spread like a spangled border along the quiet
black waters of the Bay.

As she looked, she heard the shrill scream of a siren. She left the walk, ran out onto a narrow point. This time she saw the burst of flame far below her.

Julie turned then, raced back down the hill, pursued by the horrors her own imagination pictured.
All those men—those inflammable materials! And this wind to whip flames out of control, into an inferno!

Phantoms Win Season's Opener From LaGrange 13 to 0

MUSSELWHITE RUNS 70 YARDS

Team Shows Up Well Despite Losses Of Former Players

By S. DUNN and B. WHITLEY
In spite of smashing line plunges by a scrappy LaGrange eleven, the Greenville High School Phantoms cashed in on tricky reverses and end runs to land on the sunny side of a 13-0 score last night under the arcs of Guy Smith stadium.

The Greenville offense was paced by Hubert Musselwhite, who romped 70 yards in the first quarter for the first Greenville touchdown and seven yards in the third quarter to make the final Greenville tally. Riley Cox, alternate wingback, kicked the extra point to round out the night's scoring.

Talback Sutton, midget ace on the LaGrange team, was the biggest menace to the Phantoms with his continuous line plunges that gained much yardage for the LaGrangers. Another trouble-maker for the Green Wave was Chadwick, fullback for the LaGrange eleven.

The expected aerial attack of the Farley men went haywire with only one Greenville pass being completed. The loss of flankman Cecil Crawford in the latter part of the second quarter with a deep cut over the right eye is one explanation for this let-down.

Greenville's chief weaknesses were noticed in the middle of the line and at left end. With two first string tackles playing the whole of each game and in turn adding weight, to the Greenville front wall will aid immeasurably in overcoming these obstacles.

Playing a major roll in the Green and White defense were guard Jack Scott and end Cecil Crawford. Crashing through the LaGrange line, time and again they stopped many threats in the making.

Reserves showing up better than expected were Jim Turner and Ernest Cahoon. Fans were reminded of former ace John Spearman when Turner continuously gained yardage returning kicks from his safety position. Cahoon did a fine job of replacing Cecil Crawford after his injury.

Taking the field for the Phantoms at kick-off time was Hubert Musselwhite, Ed Rawl, Max Williams and Bill Sugg in the backfield. Starters for the line were Cecil Crawford, Henr Andrews, Jack Teel, Kirby Allen, Jack Scott, Ledyard Ross and Bob Kittrell.

Starting line up for LaGrange was Sutton, Chadwick, Coletrine and Suggs in the backfield. Linemen were Creech, B. Rouse, T. Rouse, Chase, Stroud, Elmore, and Crocker.

DODGERS AND CARDS BOTH WON FRIDAY

Tie For Pennant Is Best That Dodgers Could Hope For

By JUDSON BAILEY (Associated Press Sports Writer)
The St. Louis Cardinals are in a position to clinch the National League pennant today. Maybe it's time to start feeling sorry for the Brooklyn Dodgers—who never felt sorry for anybody when they were kicking other clubs around and aren't wasting any time grieving now.

Today, they are two games behind with two to play. The best they can hope for is a tie that would force a playoff.

They could have been eliminated Thursday or Friday if they had lost, but they won. Now, days after they had been counted out, they have crowded the Cardinals where the Red Birds must administer the knockout themselves.

It took 11 innings to beat the Braves yesterday, but the Dodgers made it with a 6-5 score for their sixth straight win. Max West hit two home runs to put the heat under the Dodgers. Dolph Camilli countered with his 26th round-tripper and Arky Vaughan hit a triple to tie the score in the eighth. In the 11th, Camilli led off with a single and the Dodgers loaded the bases with one out. When Billy Herman smacked a grounder, Sibby Sisti threw over Catcher Ernie Lombardi's head and Camilli slid home with the winning run.

This was the 102nd victory for the Dodgers, who never had won as many as 100 games till they bagged that number to win the pennant last year. Only one other club, the Chicago Cubs of 1909, ever won as many as 100 games without earning the pennant.

What other fun there was in the National League yesterday was concerned largely with Hank Leiber.

PRIZE FIGHT MAY BE HELD

Stimson May Change Order Cancelling Bout

By SID FEDER
Washington, Sept. 26—(AP)—War Department officials, who would not be quoted by name, promised today that consideration would be given the offer of Joe Louis and Billy Conn to go through with their heavyweight title fight without pay of any kind.

Little optimism was apparent, however, that Secretary of War Stimson was likely to alter yesterday's decision cancelling the proposed October 12 fight with the explanation it would conflict with the "standards and interests of the army."

The latest proposal to fight entirely for the benefit of the army relief fund must be in a definite, written form before being submitted to Stimson for a decision, it was indicated.

Louis, Conn and Promoter Mike Jacobs said last night they were willing to waive the original arrangement to deduct $135,451 from the gate to meet the fighters' obligations, largely to Jacobs.

Both Joe and Billy thought it was "a shame" the $300,000 worth of tickets sold for the tussle would have to be turned back "instead of going to army emergency relief."

Jacobs, requested by the War Department to promote the fight, immediately added if permission were received under the offer of the fighters, he would be willing to "bankroll" the fight. Earlier, Jacobs had explained that War Boxing, Inc., the organization the War Department had named to run the bout, was supposed to have financed the show for $75,000, but that this had never been done, and that he had paid $15,000 in promotional and ticket expenses.

Stimson's cancellation of the fight followed conferences with Major General A. D. Surles, head of the army's public relations, and various members of War Boxing, Inc. One of the "details" was the $135,451.53 which the War Department had promised the fighters were to get to pay debts. This total had been broken down this way: $59,805.50 owed by Louis to Jacobs; $34,500 owed by Conn to Jacobs; $41,146.03 owed by Louis to John Roxborough, one of his co-managers.

Stimson did not say just what there was that did not meet with the army's "standards and interests," nor did he explain which details had shocked him and caused him to start his investigation. He did point out, however, that there was no "reflection upon the principals" in the fight, that he appreciated the fact Louis gave to war relief his entire purses in his fights earlier this year with Abe Simon and Buddy Baer, and that members of War Boxing, Inc., had "given their devoted and patriotic services."

TRAINS FOR WAR BOND TOUR—Movie Actress Paulette Goddard, soon to start an extensive war bond selling tour, gets into condition for the job with a bit of roadwork on the beach at Virginia Beach, Va.

Stimson also ordered the fighters to "return at once to their military duties."

Conn and Louis made their offers to fight "for free" after leaving their training camps. Jacobs' only stipulation on his part was that he be permitted to fulfill his contractual obligations to the Mutual Broadcasting system, which has exclusive rights to broadcast all the fights he promotes. One controversy concerning the fight had to do with bids by radio chains.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLETON, JR. Wide World Sports Columnist

New York, Sept. 26—Secretary of War Stimson probably wouldn't know what to do with a pair of padded mittens, but there's no doubt he deserves the heavyweight thinking championship. ... Of all the people who had anything to do with the Louis-Conn affair, he was the one in authority to realize that the prestige of the army was a great deal more important than any amount of dough the fight might bring in for army relief. ... And he didn't hesitate to do the one thing that was best for the prestige of the army. ... Now, since Rep. O'Toole has brought up the question of how the money from the army all-star football games was distributed, he might ask for a full statement on that—soon. ... Pittsburgh papers give a good example of how to clear up all doubts in the report on the Bears-Steelers exhibition, which netted $5,000 for the relief fund.

Service Dept. Yoeman Barney Ross, the ex-welterweight champ, has left the San Diego naval training station to go on combat duty. ... When Lieut. Norb Ackerman, Tennessee's 1940 football captain, became a pappy two months ago, he was somewhere in Newfoundland but he bought the traditional cigars just the same. He didn't get to pass them out to the home folks in Louisville until a few days ago when he got home on furlough. His pals claimed he should have contributed the cigars to the scrap rubber drive. ... Joe Valentine, Camden, N. J. fight and wrestling show announcer, isn't a bit worried about the rigors of the army's basic training he will be undergoing soon. "After being bounced around by angry wrestlers for years," says Joe, "I can stand a beating."

Over Clubbed Boasting the suggestion that golfers should contribute extra clubs to the scrap metal drive, W. R. Wood, for many years president of the Virginia State Golf Association remarked that every golfer has a club he never uses. ... A fellow linksman broke in: "If they haven't got a club they never use, they've certainly got one they can't use. Donate that and save several strokes a round."

Today's Guest Star Robert L. Burnes, St. Louis Globe-Democrat: "One of the most familiar cries at the ball park is the one the score card vendors use: 'You can't tell the players without a scorecard.' Now, with players constantly borrowing somebody else's shirt, you have a heck of a time telling them even with the card."

One-Minute Sports Page Pretty swell gesture of the Yanks to vote $500 series cuts to Soldiers Sturm and Steve Peek, who didn't toss a ball for the club this season. ... But they'll get their reward.

Stimson also ordered the fighters to "return at once to their military duties."

Conn and Louis made their offers to fight "for free" after leaving their training camps. Jacobs' only stipulation on his part was that he be permitted to fulfill his contractual obligations to the Mutual Broadcasting system, which has exclusive rights to broadcast all the fights he promotes. One controversy concerning the fight had to do with bids by radio chains.

New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—The stock market today finished its best recovery week since mid-July on a slightly hesitant note due mainly to some cashing in on the recent upswing and the lightening of accounts for the Sunday recess.

While bids were plentiful for selected issues at the start, real strength was absent in most categories. On the other hand, little actual weakness cropped up and small variations either way ruled at the close. Dealings slowed at intervals but the turnover of around 225,000 shares was the largest for any Saturday since early March.

FIRE SWEEPS RIVER BOATS

Gas And Oil Laden Vessels Burn At Docks

Toledo, Sept. 26 (AP)—Fire fed crude oil and gasoline swept three boats in the Hocking Valley railroad docks here today resulting in injuries to 12 men and damage estimated at $110,000.

Two Coast Guard boats crept close to the blazing tanker Trans-oil to rescue seven of 18 crewmen trapped aboard the vessel, which was loaded with thousands of barrels of gasoline. The boat was ablaze from prow to stern.

The other eleven crewmen ran through flames and leaped to the dock.

Four of the crew of a barge loaded with 17,000 barrels of crude oil climbed through portholes to the dock as flames enveloped the deck.

Eight members of the crew of the tug William A. Whitney also escaped to the docks as flames spread over the tug. Seriously injured were Captain John P. Grimm, 54, of St. Joseph, Mich., Frank Rink, 54, Detroit, a cook, and Percy Wenman, 44, Sandusky, O., oiler.

Audience With Pope.
Bern, Switzerland, Sept. 26 (AP)—Myron C. Taylor, the personal envoy of President Roosevelt, had the third audience in his recent series of talks with Pope Pius XII today. The pontiff saw him for 40 minutes the Swiss Telegraph agency reported from Vatican city.

almost due north, by-passed the Japanese-occupied rail center of Tungyang to reach the suburbs of Chuki. The other dashed north-eastward to the outskirts of Chenghsien, one of the most important highway points in northern Chekiang.

The Japanese continued their shaky holds on Kinhsua, provincial capital and "bomb-Tokyo" air base and near Lanchi, but the Chinese said the garrisons were busy shipping loot from the two cities—possibly in preparation for abandoning them.

(The British radio, quoting a Chungking dispatch, said in a broadcast heard in New York by CBS that a tank-supported column of 1,000 Japanese had been sent reeling into retreat after a northward advance in Anhwei province).

adopt this compromise," Barkley said. "Some of the people who are supporting the Thomas amendment have said that my amendment is workable and that they will vote for it even if they vote for the Thomas amendment first."

However, Senator Brown (D-Mich.) one of the authors of the bill to direct President Roosevelt to stabilize prices, wages and salaries, said he was not as optimistic about the outcome.

"I hope we have them licked," he said, "but I am not so sure. I believe we will be in better shape for votes Monday, when the country has been heard from on this question, than we are today."

New Carrier . . .
Admiral Frederick C. Sherman, who as Captain Sherman of the old Lexington was the last man over the side before she plunged to the bottom of the Coral Sea last May. He spoke after Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson, widow of the former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, had christened the new vessel, just as she did the old "Lady Lex" 17 years ago in the same Fore River yard of the Bethlehem Steel Company.

The mighty vessel skimmed down the ways a full year ahead of schedule.

Admiral Sherman declared the traditions of his former ship would be passed on to the new, and added: "Today the new Lexington takes up where the old left off. May her career be full of glorious achievement. She will play her part. She will help carry out our pledge, that freedom shall not perish from this earth."

Before detailing the proud battle record of the old Lexington, including the fact that she "steamed" over 43,000 miles in her last five months," Sherman said: "During her 17 years of life the Lexington held many records. At the time she was built she was the heaviest ship ever launched. She broke the 24-hour steaming record three times, set a new world record for three consecutive days running and set a record time for the distance between the United States and the Hawaiian Islands. She was the first carrier to enter Pearl Harbor, the first carrier to tow another carrier and the first to complete fueling from a tanker at sea. Fifty-six thousand aircraft landings were made on her deck."

Russians Wrest . . .

tilla, performing as one dispatch said, "like river tanks," went into action anew against German artillery armored concentrations and troops.

A Russian gun battery was declared to have knocked out about 100 Nazi tanks and more than 100 troop-laden trucks in the last 20 days.

The gravity of the defense position—despite the heroic Russian stand and counter-attacks—was emphasized by Red Star in a graphic sentence on the ebb and flow of the scores of engagements which go to make up the whole of the confused battle.

"The Fascists are crawling ahead across mountains of bodies and burned tanks," it said.

Prisoners of war—human trophies always denied to an army in retreat—straggled to the rear under Soviet guards.

Range-finders planted atop two hills recaptured by Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's shock divisions northwest of Stalingrad helped Soviet artillery batteries to plant their shells within grey-green invasion columns moving up from the Don bend.

posed of about 1,500 enemy troops, 12 tanks, 20 guns and other arms. A number of prisoners were taken. Five German tanks and two armored cars were put out of action in another sector."

Inroads upon German assault divisions were emphasized in the related battles of the Caucasus.

About 2,000 enemy officers and men, including two colonels, were declared slain and munitions were seized in a three-day engagement in the corridor between the Caucasus mountains and the Black Sea southeast of Novorossisk.

"In the Mozdok area (of the central Caucasus) our forces were engaged in repulsing German attacks," the communique said.

The Soviet high command said the Germans at the cost of heavy losses, wedged into a Russian position in the Sinyavino salient on the Volkhov river front, but were halted by a counter-attack.
