Subs Sink Five Jap Ships And Damage Others; Airmen Down Six Jap Zeros And Report Two Ships Probably Sunk And Others Damaged In Aleutians

Washington, Oct. 2. — (AP) — Destruction of five Japanese ships, probable sinking of four others and damaging of three was announced by the Navy today in communiqués reporting on recent submarine actions in the western Pacific and Army aerial attacks against enemy forces in the Aleutians.

One of the vessels blasted and described as probably sunk was a Japanese submarine discovered by a strong air force which raided Japanese-held Kiska Island, in the Aleutians, on September 28. On that and the preceding day Army four-engine Liberators made five separate attacks on the Japanese.

The only United States loss in the actions was one fighter plane. Navy Department communiqué, No. 137, said:

"On September 27 Army Liberator bombers dropped bombs on enemy ships and short installations at Kiska. One Zero fighter was shot down. Damage to bomb objectives could not be determined. All our planes returned.

"On the same date near the island of Attu three Army bombers attacked a transport, escorted by a destroyer. Near misses damaged the transport which, when last seen, had stopped.

"During the morning of September 28 a strong force of Army heavy bombers, escorted by fighters, attacked Japanese ships and buildings at Kiska. Zero fighters and anti-aircraft batteries on surface vessels attempted to repel this attack. A transport and a submarine were damaged and probably sunk and five Zero fighters were shot down. One of our pursuit planes was lost.

"During the afternoon of September 28 Army bombers again attacked the Kiska area, strafing and bombing ships and short facilities. Results of this attack are not known.

"During the same afternoon Army planes attacked an enemy cargo ship northwest of Kiska. The ship was bombed and strafed and left in a damaged condition."

"These five actions in a two-day period raised the number of ships which the Japanese have now had blasted in the Aleutians to 13 sunk, three probably sunk and 21 damaged—a total of 37.

"The raid on the transport near Attu indicated that the Army's long range, four-engine bombers had gone far afield from the usual scene of their Aleutian operations. Attu, which was the first island reported occupied by the Japanese in early June, is the westernmost of the Aleutians.

Recent operations had been concentrated in the vicinity of Kiska, where in the past two months both Army and Navy planes and submarines have kept the enemy under a steady pounding even in the face of adverse weather conditions, fogs being very common in the north Pacific Islands.

Navy communiqué, No. 136, said: "Far East: "United States submarines have (Continued on Page Six)

Pitt County Girls Enter War Plants

Six Pitt county girls have recently been placed in positions with aircraft plants holding vital war contracts as a result of training received in the Greenville N.Y.A. Resident Center. Director Thomas H. Broughton announced today.

Girls recently placed in the Glenn L. Martin and Fairchild Aircraft plants at Baltimore, Md., include Edna Earl Sutton of Winterville. Alma H. Godley of Grimsland, and Katherine Scott, Katherine West, Cleo Pollard, and Virginia Smith of Greenville.

The six are a part of a group of 35 girls placed in the two Baltimore aircraft plants since July 30 from the Greenville Resident Center.

Girls enrolled in the Center receive training and work experience as aircraft woodworkers, machinists, radio operators and radio maintenance workers.

Too Much Talk

Washington, Oct. 2. — (AP) — Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) suggested in the Senate today that the American people and Wendell Willkie leave the question of a second front to the army. "I would like to see a second front, but I believe it should be left to the general staff," Senator Wheeler said. "If the people of the United States would let the army general staff try to run the thing, without bringing pressure from outside as Mr. Willkie suggests, I think it would be better."

Earlier, Chairman Connally (D-Texas) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, a critic of Willkie's observations in Russia favoring a second front, said that too much talk by people in public life endangers the war effort.

WILLKIE NOW IN CHUNGKING

Was Delayed Enroute By Japanese Plane

Chungking, Oct. 2. — (AP) — Wendell Willkie, disclosed on his arrival here today from Soviet Russia that at one point on route he was delayed by a Japanese plane.

All the world saw of the incident was that it did not occur today and then he quipped:

"There is much more danger of my being killed by the kindness of the Chinese than by enemy bullets."

By J. REILLY O'SULLIVAN
Chungking, Oct. 2. — (AP) — Wendell Willkie stepped from a United States Army transport plane here today at the end of a long flight from Russia over an inner Asia route seldom crossed by an Occidental and was welcomed with the greatest demonstration ever accorded a foreigner in this free China capital.

Some 10,000 representatives of various organizations were at the field when the transport landed with Moon F. Chin, Baltimore-born flier of the China National Aviation Corporation, at the controls.

Willkie's arrival ended the closely-guarded secret of the stages of his 4,000-mile air journey from Khabarovsk, Russia.

As Willkie was driven behind a motorcycle escort to the residence prepared for him, more thousands of Chinese lined the thoroughfares of this bomb-battered but still thriving city for a glimpse of President Roosevelt's emissary.

Willkie's arrival ended a period of strict secrecy concerning his whereabouts decreed by Chinese authorities for security reasons at the time he crossed the border.

His journey included three stops, but foreign correspondents were forbidden to cable news of his progress broad until his safe arrival in Chungking.

Heading the list of notables welcoming him at the airport were members of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's cabinet; Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, chief of the staff of Allied forces in China; and U. S. Ambassador Clarence E. Gauss.

"How do you do, everybody. Glad to see you," Willkie called out as he stepped from his plane. He stood bareheaded while a band played the Chinese national anthem and (Continued on page three)

Meeting Will Discuss Organizing Clubs Here

At last plans are under way to organize clubs in Greenville. Cubbing is the program for boys of 9, 10 and 11 years of age corresponding to the scouting program for older boys. It has been remarkably successful in other communities throughout the United States.

Local Scout Executive J. T. Uzle announces the initial meeting of parents of eligible boys, teachers, ministers, and any other interested adults at Immanuel Baptist church on Eighth street, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. A. Hartwell Campbell, pastor of the church, will cooperate in conducting the meeting. Everyone interested in the welfare of the youth of our community is cordially invited.

Inasmuch as the movement of cubbing, functioning in home and neighborhood groups, the interest and cooperation of parents is essential to success. The need for character training and wholesome recreation for boys of this age group has long been recognized. Several years ago, at the request of the national leaders of the Boy Scout program, cubbing was scientifically planned by a corps of famous educators and youth leaders to appeal to and meet the needs of boys of this pre-scout age. The program centers in a boy and his natural play group. Training is given in handicrafts; there is an abundance of ceremonial and symbolic actions that such boys appreciate. Upon completing the work in cubbing the boy automatically graduates into Scouting as a Tenderfoot.

The purpose of this preliminary meeting is to give those persons interested an opportunity to learn of the purposes, origin, organizational make-up, and community interrelations of Cubbing. Such material will be briefly presented by Felix E. Snider, of East Carolina Teachers' (Continued on Page Four)

SCRAPS ABOUT SCRAP

SCHOOLS REPORT

Three of Pitt county's schools came through with scrap reports this morning that were encouraging.

Bellair school reported collections last week of 1,500 pounds and 1,600 pounds this week for a total of 3,100 pounds. Grimsland school last week collected 3,000 pounds, to which was added 5,000 this week for a total of 8,000 pounds.

Falkland school this week has collected 2,000 pounds.

RELICS

Two more relics were assigned to the scrap pile this morning when The Reflector relinquished a hand-made plow, forged in the "early days" in a smith shop on one of the farms in Pitt county, and the brass nose from a 75 mm. shell that came from the World War I battlefield, in the sector where North Carolina troops broke the Hindenburg line.

LIBERTY BELL

The bell that for 25 years tolled the call of an older generation to classes at the old Evans street school, which burned in 1923, will be tossed into the community scrap metal pile at the court house here, June 11, Rose, superintendent of city schools, announced. Its several hundred pounds of bronze will be melted into bullets and shells and sent to the front, where some of the students of the school are now with the armed forces. The old school bell, when added to the salvage pile, became Greenville's "Liberty Bell," Rose said. The Evans street school was built in 1903 and destroyed by fire in 1923.

HEARSES, TOO

W. H. Davenport, principal of Greenville's Negro schools, reported today that his schools had collected 800 pounds of scrap metal this week, but that this total would be increased by another 6,000 pounds immediately. He explained that the Flanagan funeral home was planning to junk two hearses, weighing about 4,000 pounds each, with credit for the collection going to the schools.

Matrons To Meet.
The Young Matrons of the Eighth Street Christian Church will meet at 3:30 on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Plato Evans, with Mrs. Guy Evans, Mrs. E. K. Willis and Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Jr., assisting hostesses.

To Appear At College.
Albert Spalding, the famous violinist, will open the series of entertainments offered this season by East Carolina Teachers College. The date for his recital is October 29.

The opera "Traviata," which has been announced for the first entertainment, has been cancelled because of travel conditions. The manager made every effort possible to get permission to have the company fill their engagements but the authorities ruled against it. The same cause forced the Philadelphia Orchestra and many other large companies to cancel their entire season of engagements when the places were at a distance.

The other three attractions offered by the college in the season ticket have not been affected by the ruling. The second number will be in November, the Ball-Java Dancers. The other two, for dates later in the winter, are Rise Stephens, the singer with Nelson Eddy, whose fame was established by her stellar part in "The Chocolate Soldier" and Dennis Morgan, the noted tenor, who is also a movie star.

While only four attractions are announced before the season opens, which is the same number offered last year and the year before, others will be added if proceeds from these are sufficient. For the past two years two extra major attractions were secured and included in the season ticket.

Season tickets are now on sale at the same price as in the past, with the war tax added. Miss Ola Ross is again chairman of the entertainment committee.

Wilson Newspaper At Kiwanis Meet

John D. Gold, publisher and editor of the Wilson Daily Times, will be the speaker at the weekly supper session of the Kiwanis club at the Woman's Club this evening at 6:30. Mr. Gold will feature a program emphasizing "National Newspaper Week," being observed this week. Mr. Gold, widely known as an author and John Thomas, a member of the Wilson Times staff, will be guests of the club. A number of newspaper editors have been invited.

The Public Relations Committee, Chester Walsh, chairman, will have charge of the program.

The Lions' club, Frank M. Brown, president, will meet with the Kiwanians.

President Claude Ward will preside.

President ...

he said, he had heard how volunteers were going into the fields to help farmers unable to obtain labor.

In the factories themselves, he noted, what he termed amazing numbers of women workers, doing skilled trades, managers informed him, he said, that in another year probably half the workers would be women.

Turning at one point to persons who had predicted his trip around the country would be a political nature, the President said he was sorry to have to shock the readers of certain writers. But, he said, the only people remotely connected with politics whom he saw on the tour—and he said he did not talk politics with them—were 11 governors. He emphasized that he had not seen a single democratic national committeeman or state chairman.

The President left Washington on September 17 and covered an average of 600 miles daily.

In a single day, the busiest of the trip, he inspected a bomber plant, saw an old Spanish mission, dedicated a marine corps training station, and looked in on a naval hospital, naval training center, marine base and another bomber plant.

Turning eastward, Mr. Roosevelt stopped at Uvalde, Tex., and John N. Garner, the former vice president, came down to the train. The two exchanged uproarious greetings at their first reunion since they parted political company over the third term issue.

Inspections ended with calls at a bomber plant at Fort Worth, a Higgins boat yard at New Orleans, and at Camp Shelby, near Hattiesburg, Miss., and Fort Jackson, outside Columbia, S. C.

It seemed to amuse President Roosevelt to appear suddenly amid workers and find men and women gazing at him in astonishment. Most of them obviously had not been tipped off that the President of the United States was going to turn up among them in an open

Big Barges Used In Invasion Practice

This picture gives a good idea of the size of some of the invasion barges with which the Allies are practicing in Britain for attacks on the continent. British troops, in rehearsal, are loading Bofors anti-aircraft guns on one of the landing craft.

The reasons for the secrecy became apparent with the disclosure that Mr. Roosevelt had entered a military zone. That was in the Far West, where he frequently was in sight of the sea.

Japanese shells have dropped along that coast. But nothing happened to jeopardize the President on the trip.

When he wasn't inspecting, he was visiting members of his family at brief pauses at Seattle, Coronado, Calif., and Fort Worth, or he was sitting in his private car aboard his special train working on official documents or waving at every section hand or farmer he glimpsed along the right of way.

People waved back without knowing who was greeting them.

At some spots along the way, the President saw evidence of a deadly seriousness about the war. He observed row after row of air raid shelters and nests of machine guns and anti-aircraft weapons.

At naval hospitals, Mr. Roosevelt met men wounded in the major battles of the Pacific. He saw wounds being healed on fighting vessels damaged at Pearl Harbor. He saw an American submarine with nine naval flags painted on her conning tower, symbols of that many victories, as well as a two-man Jap sub which failed in its mission at Pearl Harbor.

There were only two speeches, both short and extemporaneous. At Bremerton, the chief executive spoke of "wounded ships and wounded men" that were being brought back. At the Portland shipyard, he told thousands of workers he wished every American could have witnessed the launching of a ship, as he had, and realized what it meant to the winning of the war.

Sailors Mass For Awards To Coral Sea Heroes

Twenty thousand sailors assembled on the parade ground at the Great Lakes Naval Training station in Great Lakes, Ill., to witness the presentation of awards to two navy fliers who participated in the destruction of a Japanese aircraft carrier in the Coral Sea. Lieut. George O. Wood of Galt, Calif., was awarded the Navy Cross, and Lieut. Robert D. Buchanan of Chicago received a gold star in lieu of a second navy cross. Presentations were made at the reviewing stand at the right.

A Promise for Tomorrow

Chapter 13
The Valley of Death
Julie reached the hospital just as the ambulance driver and an orderly were wheeling a stretcher through the door marked Emergency. She caught up with them in the wide, cool hallway just inside. "Pete," she said softly.

The dark head on the pillow turned slightly. He opened his eyes, recognized her, managed a little half-smile. "Hello, Sissy." Then the eyes closed with pain again. He closed them. Her heart weeping, Julie's voice was steady, her eyes clear as she said, "We won't let it hurt long, Steve." And she took the big hand that lay inert on the sheet, held it a moment.

She couldn't be sure he'd heard, or that she hadn't imagined the answering pressure of his cold fingers. But she was sure that Pete was hurt seriously.

Dr. Tom confirmed her judgment a little later. Scrubbed, immaculate in sterile linen, Julie met her father outside the X-ray room. The instant she met the concern in his gray eyes, she knew.

"What is it, Dad?" "No bones broken. He was thrown into the water. But even shock and chill don't account for pain in his head and back." He looked at her steadily a moment.

"You think it's—?" She couldn't bear to say it aloud.

"Wrenched that weak back somehow in falling. Pain is from pressure on nerves." He tapped the X-ray pictures he held. "Nothing in the pictures to show where it is."

A name leapt out of Julie's subconscious and she spoke it aloud almost before she realized it. "Call Dr. LeMeure. The Belgian surgeon, remember? He'd know."

Dr. Tom shrugged. "He's a big name. Doubt if he'd come this far. Besides, operation might not do any good."

"But it's a chance, Dad?"

"Sure—a long chance."

"I'll call him, then, and turning at a run back to the office, spoke rapidly to the switchboard operator.

It took eternities for the call to go through. Dr. LeMeure was reached at his club. He would be at Santa Felice General by eight o'clock in the morning. Before that, it would be impossible.

Julie had to be satisfied with that. She raced back along the corridor to the room where two nurses were settling Pete for the night. Dr. Tom followed her a moment later.

Vigil

He's running a temperature. If pneumonia sets in now, I'm afraid he won't have much chance."

"It won't," Julie said grimly as if giving herself for a fight. "I'll stay with him."

She kept vigil at Pete's bedside all through the long, quiet hours before daylight. Promptly at eight, the slight, absolutely bald Dr. LeMeure arrived, brusque, irritable, brushing aside all preliminaries.

Julie's heart sank as she took her place beside her father, watched the world-famous surgeon make swift examination of a dull-eyed Pete only just conscious of what was going on.

"There is a chance," the great doctor said finally, turning to Dr. Tom. "If the patient has courage and the will to recover, it is just possible an operation would be a complete success. It is also possible," he shrugged, a typically Gallic gesture of futility, "—to fail."

Pete's head turned on the table. "Take the chance, doc." Then his eyes found Julie's. "Tell him, Sissy."

Pete was in the operating room nearly four hours. Four hours of the most medieval torture for Julie.

When it was over, she stood by while they wheeled Pete out, an ashen-faced caricature of the real Pete.

"We have done all that we can," Dr. LeMeure said curtly. "The operation was a complete success. If the patient recovers, he will walk again quite normally."

"If the patient recovers." The words echoed hollowly against Julie's growing fear. For forty-eight hours she had kept under opiates. Hours in which Julie went about her duties, present in mind, but absent in heart. She slept and ate and cared for her patients and lived from one visit to the darkened room at the end of the hospital corridor to another.

Then at last Pete was conscious. It was Julie who found him so. Returning from a late call, Julie stopped at the hospital. The special nurse was on duty, silently handed Julie the chart where Pete's ebbing vitality was marked only too plainly. Pulse slow. Blood pressure down below normal, dangerously.

Julie moved to the bedside, took Pete's hand in hers. Leaning over him, she pressed her own warm cheek against his as if to share with him some of her own full-blooded strength.

"Pete," she whispered. "Pete, darling, come back. Try to come back, please Pete."

Success

Then, as if in response to her almost inaudible plea, he stirred a little, slowly the eyes opened, looked up into hers. Moments of blankness before recognition. Then, just a flicker before the lids dropped again.

Behind her, Julie heard the nurse slip away, close the door softly. For a long time, only the faint night sounds of the hospital came into the room. Then, amazingly, Julie was sure he'd spoken her name.

She stood up, leaned closer. "Julie!" So faint a whisper she barely caught it.

"Yes, Pete," quietly, calmly. "Don't go."

"I shan't, dear. I'll be right here for as long as you want me. Rest now."

"No. Can't," and turned his head ever so slightly. Then pain lanced across his face. "Oh, God."

He slipped away from her again back into unconsciousness. Alarm took grasping hold of Julie. If he let go of consciousness now, some part of her trained mind decided, it might be fatal. This was pushing back—away from the struggle to live.

"Pete!" she called softly. "Pete!"

No response.

"Pete! Listen to me. You must."

Slowly, he opened his eyes.

"Pete—fight. Understand! You're going to be well again. You're cured. You can walk again. But you must fight for it."

His eyes, glazed with pain, met hers steadily a moment. "No use. Rather be dead. Awful—pain—head."

And drew back toward unconsciousness again.

Once more, she pulled him back by the sound of her voice. "Listen. You must fight, Pete." And then, recklessly, "Please, darling, I love you. I won't lose you now. Please, try for my sake."

At first he seemed not to hear. Still, he seemed to struggle for consciousness, so Julie took heart. Pleading, her voice reached out to him, the only means by which she could penetrate the thick curtain of pain that shut him into a hideous world of his own.

Dr. Tom came in twice. The special night nurse returned to her vigil. Julie scarcely heard them. But when at daylight, her father took her arm, drew her gently away from the bedside, said quietly:

"You've done it, Julie. He's sleeping normally now. He'll pull through."

She turned, then, buried her face against her father's broad shoulder—

—wept quietly.

Minstrel

There will be a minstrel at the Fleming street school Wednesday night, October 7, at 8 o'clock, given by the Junior class of 1942.

Pitt county parents and teachers are asked to see that every seventh grade student in the elementary schools go to the nearest high school Wednesday, October 7, to school Wednesday. The tests will be given at the following schools: Farmville, Ayden, Bethel, Grimesland, Winterville and Falkland. Be sure that they go to the school indicated by the teacher for the tests will be sent to that particular school for them. Because of transportation the students will be sent on the bus wherever possible for that day. Teachers are asked to send in their plans for the years work in the P. T. A. and their health program for the year.

A number of teachers are taking the children after school and picking cotton, thereby aiding the farmers and helping out in the school's financial efforts. The schedule for the school day will be the same for this month as last.

A chairman has been appointed in each school to work with the Junior Red Cross and we are asking each teacher appointed to confer with Mrs. Bert James through correspondence when plans are completed. Through the Red Cross the schools will be able to have some valuable assistance in the school work this year. A letter will be sent to each school very soon.

A number of teachers have reported on the library drive and it is desired that all will report soon so that the order for the books may be made soon.—I. M. Donnell.

Whiteville, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Maggie Lee Norman, 5-months old, was fatally burned when fire destroyed a tenant house in which it had been left. No inquest was held.

The New York Yankees used three chartered cars to travel to St. Louis.

St. Louis police say that Robert Nash (above), 27-year-old electrician, has confessed he killed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Nash, after a quarrel about his personal and financial habits. The hatched and branded bodies of Nash, an official of the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue in St. Louis, and his wife were found in an automobile near Springfield, Ill.

TRAVEL TROUBLE

Washington Oct. 2.—The traveling schedules of the two teams in the World Series may be seriously disrupted by the "freezing" of passenger train schedules ordered yesterday by Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman.

He appeared tired from his long trip, but was in good spirits. A government spokesman said he would be given full opportunity to acquaint himself with all aspects of China's war effort and would be given a chance to visit war fronts if he desired.

Willkie could not say how long he would stay in Chungking. Military authorities have bound him to secrecy, he explained, because "they don't want me to become a clay pigeon for the Japanese." He said he did not know whether he would visit India.

Plans for Willkie's stay fitted with the fact-finding purposes of his mission and he told the welcoming delegation:

"It gives me great pleasure and I am proud and happy to be here because the Chinese people are led by one of the truly great men of the age, the Generalissimo."

A special target of the Allied air raiders was the Wairoki bridge over the Kumasi river, which was attacked four times yesterday by Allied planes. A large section of the span, damaged the previous day and partly repaired by the Japanese during the night, was reported destroyed by high explosives.

The bridge is the bottleneck of the Japanese supply line, for it offers the only means of moving heavy material across the rain-swollen Kumasi river, and hence has been the object of daily attacks by Allied airmen.

Relatively little action was reported elsewhere in the southwest Pacific, though Allied air scouts maintained ceaseless patrols over the waters northeast and northwest of Australia.

Permits Issued To Farmers Burn Brush

Farmers are showing a spirit to cooperate with the N. C. Department of Conservation and Development in preventing forest fires in the state. Itt County Forest Warden N. S. Tyson said today when he reported nine applications from farmers for permits to burn brush.

Official permits were issued to Wilbur A. Garris of Ayden, Sam Harris, Winterville; W. A. Clark, Black Jack; H. E. Nobles, Stokes; W. J. Taylor, Bethel; Willie Bell, Belvoir; J. A. Moore, Falkland; Turner Walston, Farmville, and J. S. Elks of Bell Arthur.

The state law requires all persons in rural sections to secure a permit to burn brush on their land. It also requires that adjoining land-owners be notified. The law provides a fine of $50 or 60 days in jail or both for persons who fail to secure permits, Warden Tyson said.

True Stories Mighty Men of Vision

THE SECRET OF JAVA'S DEATH PRISON

In the 1880's, in Java's steaming swamps, dread ber-ber paralyzed the nerves... killed thousands. An unknown Dutch Doctor of undaunted courage went among the people to find the cause. We re-enact the story.

ME FROM JANGRO PRISON, DOCTOR. ME NOT SICK. ME FEEL GOOD!

ME FROM HOBBI PRISON, DR. EIJKMAN. LEGS SWELL UP. JOINTS HURT. ME SICK ALL TIME.

TERRIBLE! BAFFLING. TWO PRISONS EXACTLY ALIKE. YET IN ONE OF THEM MEN DIE LIKE FLIES FROM BERI-BERI, THAT PARALYZING, PAINFUL NERVE DISEASE. I MUST FIND THE CAUSE!

COME! COME DOCTOR! LEAVE THIS TERRIBLE CLIMATE THAT HAS TAKEN YOUR BELOVED WIFE'S LIFE. GO BACK TO HOLLAND!

NO, HANS. I CANNOT. I MUST FIND THE CAUSE AND CURE OF BERI-BERI.

THE YEARS DRAG BY... STILL THE CAUSE ELUDES HIM. THEN ONE DAY IN HIS BACK YARD

LOOK! THIS CHICKEN'S LEGS ARE SWOLLEN, PARALYZED. IT SUFFERS LIKE A HUMAN WITH BERI-BERI...

I'VE FED THESE CHICKENS ONLY RICE FROM HOBBI PRISON... THE BERI-BERI DEATH HOUSE. H-M-M-M... HANS! I THINK I'VE FOUND THE CAUSE! QUICK CALL PRISON OFFICIALS!

IN HOBBI PRISON, WHERE MEN DIE, MACHINES REMOVE BITTER RICE HULLS.

IN JANGRO PRISON WHERE MEN ARE WELL, WE HAVE NO MACHINE TO REMOVE RICE HULLS.

AT LAST! THE ANSWER THAT THE WORLD IS WAITING FOR! RICE HULLS HOLD THE CURE FOR DREADED BERI-BERI.

Vitamin B₁ (which we doctors know as vital to life) was unwittingly taken from Hobbi prisoners by removal of hulls from rice—their principal food. Dr. Eijkman's findings pointed the way to today's science of Vitamins.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

AN AMERICAN TO REMEMBER

One of the most picturesque figures that ever made his appearance in the public life of America was Theodore Roosevelt, twenty-sixth president of the United States. He had been a delicate boy, born amid circumstances which might have discouraged him to coast along and take things easy. But he became the apostle of the strenuous life. He discovered that vigorous, outdoor exercise enabled him to throw off his childhood weakness and plunge vigorously into a career. His speeches thrilled the multitude, and they were especially intrigued by the way he shook "the big stick" at people whom politicians had feared from time immemorial.

The American people love to follow a leader who measures up to their standards in matters of honesty and courage. People from the highest station to the lowest gleefully followed T. R. because they believed that here was a man who saw clearly what the nation needed and was not afraid to take the courageous course among those who wanted to keep things as they had always been. But the people as a whole loved and trusted him. The youth of that day felt the thrill of his personality and was proud to follow in the paths he had established.

He was a great American who inspired his generation to attempt great things for the public good. All Rights Reserved—Hanson Newspaper Syndicate

BUY BONDS TOMORROW

The War Bonds rally that was rained out last Saturday afternoon will be held at the court house tomorrow afternoon, rain or shine. To date Pitt Countians have not bought enough war bonds and stamps, and at tomorrow afternoon's sale is a good time to do some catching up on your purchases. Some time ago Treasury officials declared that it would be necessary for the people of the nation to purchase a billion dollars worth of bonds each month to aid in financing the war, but up to the present time this goal has not been reached. Pitt County has been falling behind on its quota. Let's not permit this condition to continue. We are right in the midst of our tobacco selling season and there is little unemployment in the community, so there should be sufficient money in circulation for our people to make purchases of bonds. We hope that Pitt County citizens will attend the sale tomorrow afternoon and purchase bonds in sufficient quantities to put this county well over the top in its quotas.

WHAT ABOUT YOU?

The scrap drive in Pitt County is moving along nicely but let's not forget that anything below a perfect score in the present scrap metal drive means we are falling short of our duty to the men at the front by just that much. The government needs every pound of available scrap metal at this time and is calling upon every citizen to do his or her part in collecting this scrap.

Slot Machine

There are hundreds and hundreds of people in Pitt County who are making an all-out effort in the scrap drive at this time. How about you? Are you doing your part in this matter to help win the war, or are you one of those who are leaving it to your neighbors and to the men at the front to fight your battles for you?

WASHINGTON IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

Washington — There probably isn't a lad going off to the wars these days who isn't packing something or using something that was made in this country's prisons.

Already more than 100 prisons (and at least one in each of the 48 states are going all out on war materials. Prison farms and dairies are contributing to the food production program. Prison shops and machines are turning out hundreds of articles that go into the sinews of war: tent stakes, camouflage cloth, airplane castings, bomb parts, ammunition boxes, tool chests, and what not.

The prison industries section is part of the War Production Board. It was organized by Maury Maverick, chief of the bureau of government, chief of the bureau of government, and is one of the peaks of the former congressman and San Antonio mayor. It is directed by Dan Turner, former governor of Iowa.

Having had to overcome the hurdle which prison labor is always up against of not infringing on the rights of organized labor, prison war production still is in its infancy. It has, however, been given the green light by a Presidential directive just issued. This removes some of the legal obstacles surrounding the sale of prison made goods.

The point is that everything turn-out by the prisons now operating under the program goes directly to the Army, Navy, or lend-lease. Maverick and Turner hope eventually to put the whole force of 168,000 prison laborers, many of them skilled mechanics and machine tool operators, back of the war effort.

There are for example cotton spindles operated by state prisons capable of turning out 20,000,000 yards of 5-12-ounce fabric a year. Jute, no longer available from India, is being replaced by osage cloth fabricated from cotton grown on prison farms in the south. This is turned into camouflage cloth and sand bags. Vegetables and fruits from thousands of acres of prison farms are being canned in prison canneries. Maverick can reel off all the figures, but he likes to talk most about what all this is doing to prison morale. One of his favorite stories is about a young man serving a life sentence in a Georgia prison.

It's the young fellow's first stretch. Almost the first day of his sentence, he went berserk. Within a few weeks, he had drawn every kind of punishment the prison could mete out. He was a bad one and considered almost incurable. When Pearl Harbor came he was doing a long stretch in solitary confinement.

He heard the news and asked to be taken to the warden. He, pleading, "The interview was finally granted." He asked to be put to work on war materials. The warden could not believe his ears, but he gave the fellow a chance. For nearly ten months, the young man has been a model prisoner.

This, say Maverick, is one of hundreds of such cases that have been called to his attention. He's convinced that there is no group anywhere more eager to do their part in licking the Axis than the "men in stir."

The WAR TODAY

But there is more to it than concerns the hundreds of thousands of civilians who have been slain. Most of the continent has been ravaged. In many countries, there is starvation. The best that Hitler has to offer is serfdom.

At the earliest moment, the peoples are going to try to fight their way out of this slough of despond. For that reason there certainly can be no guarantee all pre-war governments will return to power.

Hitler announced Wednesday he is about to consolidate his winnings. This means he will apply more vicious repression to the folk whom he has enslaved. They are condemned to labor for the benefit of the Reich. He will continue the process of wiping out peoples who refused to respond to the lash.

The consolidation which Hitler hopes to effect this winter can only feed the fires. Those who consume him if the Allies don't crush him. His number is up.

There is a way of preventing Europe from plunging into utter chaos as the war ends. That involves Allied military control and relief in the way of food and other supplies.

Appropos of this, Foreign Secretary Eden the other night made an important statement. Referring to the condition of people in the conquered countries, he said:

"Who do we propose to help once the might of the Allies begins to assert itself? The enemy must be expelled by Allied armies from the countries he has occupied and be-fought. Law and order must be re-established, civil administration set going, communications repaired, essential services restored."

"This work must be carried out under military supervision since the Allied armies could not operate satisfactorily unless the essential needs of distressed populations behind the lines were secured. But there must be a transfer of responsibility to the civil administration."

It seems that immediate task is to remove any distrust which exists. There can be no doubt Russia and English-speaking allies are drawing closer. However, it's not so long ago that there was a wide gap between them. There still is work to be done.

This would explain Eden's activities in striving to tighten the bonds among the big three and with China. China makes it the big four. This presumably explains the mission of Wendell Willkie to Russia and China.

Senate Committee . . .

"The federal government has largely taken the relief burden off the states," he said. "War industries are opening up many thousands of new jobs. There is less need for spending state funds for building roads, repairing school-houses and the like."

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has expressed strong opposition to the sales tax principle, declaring it hits the poor a relatively harder blow than the rich. Herring countered that the income tax, with its sharply graduated rates, gives assurance the rich will pay their share.

The che is a Chinese musical instrument with 25 strings, played by plucking.

ers College staff. Mr. Sulder had considerable experience with cubbing and scouting before coming to Greenville.

Scout Executive Uzzle also states that a direct explanation of the parents' place in cubbing will be presented, to be followed by an examination of the activities actually practiced by the boys when they become cubs. This should certainly interest every parent and leader of children.

The cubs have a motto—and they take it quite seriously. It is "Do your best" (in their secret code it appears "od ruoy tseb"). It should be obeyed by adults too, as any cub will tell you. So if you are interested in the boys of our city, do your best to be at Immanuel Baptist church, 4 p. m. Sunday.

Victory Pig Plan Shows Progress

Seventeen Production Credit Associations in North Carolina, including the Greenville Association, with headquarters at Greenville, have either actively entered the "PCA Victory Pig Plan" or intend to enter this fall. W. A. Minor, president of the Production Credit Corporation of Columbia, announced today.

Under the Victory Pig Plan, according to Robert A. Darr, secretary-treasurer of the Greenville Association, Victory Pig clubs are being organized by farmers and farm boys and girls who pledge to designate at least one pig as a "victory pig." This pig is to be sold later at a Victory Pig sale and the proceeds invested in war bonds and stamps.

According to Jno. B. Carroll, president of the Greenville Association, thousands of hogs are expected to be sold in this campaign. Although the Victory Pig clubs are being sponsored by the Production Credit Associations, which are made up of farmer members, all farmers are invited to participate in the campaign to sell pigs which are being mobilized for action against the Axis powers.

"We've got to whip the Japs and Germans," President Carroll declared this week, "and we need plenty of meat and plenty of money to do it."

The following North Carolina Production Credit Associations are actively behind the Victory Pig Plan:

Asheville, Asheville, Carthage, Elizabeth City, Goldsboro, Greenville, Henderson, Louisboro, New Bern, Rocky Mount, Kennansville, Ruth-erfordton, Wadesboro, Washington, Weldon, Whiteville and Wilmington.

There are forty-four Production Credit Associations in the Third Farm Credit district—North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida—so far, sponsoring these Victory Pig clubs.

Phantoms Ready For Tilt With Scotland Neck Tonight

VISITORS HAVE STRONG TEAM

Game To Be Played At Stadium At 8 O'clock

After a week of intensive work trying to correct weaknesses that showed up in last week's opener, the Phantoms are waiting for the opening whistle tonight when they square off with a strong team from Scotland Neck. It has been quite awhile since the locals have been defeated by a non-conference foe, but tonight things will probably be different.

The visitors will bring with them a strong, big and veteran team that were tops in their conference last year. Against them Coach Boley Parley will field a team that is made up for the most part by light and inexperienced youngsters. They will probably make a lot of mistakes, but will make a battle of it all the way.

Crawford, one of the three veterans on the local eleven will be a doubtful starter, a cut that he received last Friday has practically healed, but he has not taken part in any contact work during the week. Another new starter will be Dick Fleming who will replace Ross at one of the guard spots. The game will begin promptly at 8 o'clock at Guy Smith Stadium. A big crowd is expected to turn out, in view of the fact that so few were able to attend the college games this year. Weather indications today point toward an ideal night to watch the game.

New York, Oct. 2.—New York doesn't show much outward excitement over a little thing like a World Series, but just try to get a hotel room here for the week-end. ... And the telephone company reports a jump of 100,000 calls during the time the ball games were on in St. Louis from folks who wanted to know the score. ... Looks as if it ought to be a great series for guys who never get anywhere on time. Most of the excitement in the opener was in that ninth inning and yesterday the big noise was in the eighth. ... Duke - Wake Forest Game Also In The Limelight

Richmond, Va., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Chas. Highsmith, sophomore North Carolina center who played a bang-up game against Wake Forest last week, will get a real test tomorrow when he goes up against Captain Louis Sossamon of South Carolina, one of the Southern Conference's best at the pivot job. The comparative performances of the men at center may provide a bright secondary issue to the renewal of the close rivalry between the Carolina teams at Chapel Hill. The Gamecocks triumphed last fall, 13 to 7, two backfields against N. C. State in Charlotte after getting bogged down in the mud and being held to a 0-0 tie by Virginia Military Institute last week at Lynchburg. Marion "Butch" Butler, who has accumulated 238 yards in his two games to date, will be one of the men the Tigers will be counting on heavily to outdo the Wolfpack's Art Faircloth.

Coach Eddie Cameron of Duke apparently wasn't taking anything for granted insofar as the tussle at Wake Forest is concerned, despite the Gamecocks' 6-0 setback at the hands of North Carolina.

"It should be one of the closest games ever played between the two schools," Cameron said.

George Washington's Colonials will be shooting for their first football victory in the conference when they engage Richmond Saturday night in Griffith stadium, and planned final tuning up this afternoon with a brief but fast workout. The best the Colonials could do in the conference last year—their first—was a scoreless tie with Washington and Lee.

The other conference offering Saturday sends William and Mary's proud Indians to Blacksburg as Virginia Tech's opening home opponent of the season. Tech's regular tail back, Jack Gallagher, and one regular left end, Elmer Wilson, may be unable to play because of injuries.

William and Mary, conquerors of Navy last week, will be gunning for their third victory of the year.

Virginia Military Institute meets Temple at Philadelphia tonight, seeking its first win in six games with the Owls, and other conference members also go outside the loop for their week-end opponents. Coach Clark Shaughnessy of Maryland indicated that Tommy Meets Rollins at Charlotte Saturday Mont's arm would be used to the night.

fullest extent against the Lakehurst naval station, which he termed "a tough foe," older, harder and more rugged than Maryland. However, Shaughnessy believes the Old Lineers will have the advantage in team advancement.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 2—(AP)—Stock market strength shifted to steels today.

Among stocks touching new tops for 1 to 5 years were Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway preferred, Atlantic Coast Line, Union Pacific, Paramount pictures, Twentieth Century-Fox, Goodyear, Goodrich and U. S. Rubber.

Slightly lower at times were American Telephone, Woolworth and American Can.

Bonds moved up selectively. Commodities were a trifle shaky. Transfers for the full proceedings expanded to approximately 800,000 shares.

BRITISH BLAST SUB SHIPYARD

Seventeen Planes Lost In Last Night's Attacks

London, Oct. 2—(AP)—The RAF struck at Germany last night after a week of bad weather, blasting anew at the Nazi U-boat building center at Flensburg with a bomber force described officially as fairly heavy.

Seventeen British planes were reported lost last night, compared with ten the night of the previous attack.

The port has been bombed six times before in an RAF campaign to weaken Nazi U-boat operations by smashing their source and bases. Last night's operations included attacks upon Axis shipping off the coast of Holland.

The German high command claimed that 22 of the raiders were downed during the night, and said the bombings at "several places in the north German coastal district" caused civilian casualties.

The home front remained quiet, with the government announcing tersely: "During darkness there was nothing to report."

A DNB dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio said the British attacked points in northern Germany, but declared the raids were of no military importance and caused slight damage.

The raiders suffered "heavy losses, out of proportion to the effects of the attacks," the news agency asserted. It did not give figures, however, in its preliminary account.

Gov't To Equip State Guardsmen

Washington, Oct. 2—(AP)—Legislation authorizing the War Department to furnish arms, ammunition, clothing and equipment to State Guard organizations as deemed necessary by the Secretary of War, was signed by President Roosevelt today.

The measure includes guards in the United States, its territories, Puerto Rico, Canal Zone and the Virgin Islands.

Army officials told the Senate Military Committee that states would be expected to arm and furnish equipment for their guards. They expected that not more than 150,000 guards would be armed by the government.

Twenty-Two Killed In Plane Accident

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Oct. 2—(AP)—The bodies of 22 persons including three women, were recovered today from the burned wreckage of a United States Army transport plane which crashed yesterday in the mountains northwest of Coamo.

The women were civilian employees of the army. The others were enlisted men and officers. The army withheld publication of names until next of kin are notified.

Decorated
London, Oct. 2—(AP)—Corporal Franklin M. Koons, member of the American Ranger Battalion, was awarded the British military medal today for "conspicuous and admirable leadership" during the August 19 raid on Dieppe.

Blow Dealt...

(Continued from Page One) reported the following results of operations against the enemy in Far Eastern waters:

"One large seaplane tender sunk.
"One large cargo passenger ship sunk.
"One large freighter sunk.

damaged and probably sunk.
"One large tanker damaged.
"These actions have not been announced in any previous Navy Department communique.
These successful attacks by American undersan raiders raised the total bag of Japanese ships taken by submarines, as reported by the Navy here, to 74 vessels sunk, 19 probably sunk, and 22 damaged—a grand total of 115 ships.

The operations announced by the Navy today did not include any sub activities in the Solomon Islands campaign since the Navy refers to the Solomons as being in the South Pacific.

The Navy's last previous submarine report was made on September 17, suggesting that while the period covered by today's communique was not specified, it possibly covered a period of about two weeks.
