Americans Continue Jabs At Japs On Guadalcanal

Pierce Japs Into Jap Lines Despite Landing Of Reinforcements; Australians Push Ahead In New Guinea; Allied Airmen Busy Blasting Enemy Bases

By JOHN H. WIGGINS
Washington, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Hard-pressed American forces stabbed at bolstered Japanese troops on Guadalcanal today in a two-pronged attack that pierced deeper into one flank and threatened another.

To the west of the island's American-held airbase, Marines and soldiers successfully attacked enemy positions, the Navy reported yesterday, slaying 350 Japanese and capturing twelve 37-mm. light artillery guns, three field pieces and 30 machine guns.

The offensive drive on November 3 gained the American troops two additional miles of jungle. But a similar attempt to smash enemy concentrations to the east of the airfield on the following day was repulsed.

The Japanese forces, put ashore on the coast east of the American base five days ago under cover of darkness, were reinforced by additional night landings November 3 and 4, the Navy explained.

It was this strengthened force apparently which the Americans attacked at dawn on November 4 and met what the Navy termed "an initial repulse."

"Marines are pressing their attack on these enemy troops," added the communiqué.

On another South Pacific war front west of the Solomon, Japanese invasion forces were continuing to fall back in New Guinea under steady pressure of an Allied drive.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Australian command declared today (South Pacific time) that the ill-fated enemy assault which late in September had advanced to within 32 miles of the Allied Port Moresby naval base, had been pushed back well beyond the half-way point at Kokoda, about 60 miles inland.

While bitter fighting was indicated, the communiqué said the Allied troops were advancing slowly toward the foe's north coastal base at Buna. Allied bombers also struck for the second successive day at enemy-occupied towns of Noumea and Aileu in Portuguese Timor, northwest of Australia, and at the Japanese north shore New Guinea base.

Walter Harrington On Victory Council

Walter L. Harrington, manager of the White Chevrolet Company, of this city, at a meeting in Charlotte was chosen a member of the Victory Service League Council, an organization to encourage motorists to keep their cars in good operating condition. The Chevrolet companies of the Carolinas are sponsoring the association. Its slogan is "Service for Victory and Save the Wheels That Serve America." Frequent car checkups are recommended.

Harrington was one of 30 dealers in this state appointed to the council. A chairman and vice chairman were appointed. They will attend a regional meeting at Atlanta, which will choose representatives to attend a national-wide meeting in Detroit, Mich.

Curtail Service Telegraph Firms

Washington, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Board of War Communications today ordered telegraphic companies to refuse felicitation and congratulatory messages and to discontinue all non-telegraphic services beginning December 15 in a series of steps to gear the domestic telegraphic industry more closely to the war effort.

The BWC acted on information supplied it through an investigation conducted by the Federal Communications Commission.

The portion of the order calling for discontinuance of non-telegraphic services said that it included messages, errand, distribution, remittance, installment, payment and shopping service sale of travelers' checks, sale of mail money orders and acceptance of express packages.

The order referring to discontinuance of felicitation messages said that it included greetings for Christmas, New Year, Easter, Father's Day, Thanksgiving, Valentine's day, congratulations on the birth of a child, graduations, weddings, anniversaries and birthdays.

An exception was made for such messages when addressed to American expeditionary forces.

Japs Join Germans In Reprisals On British

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Berlin radio said today it had been announced officially in Tokyo that Japan would impose "reprisals" against British prisoners of war in Japanese hands in case the British government does not change its attitude toward German captives.

The announcement, attributed by the German broadcast to the Japanese foreign office, was quoted as saying "the Japanese government has noted with grave concern the inhuman treatment of German prisoners of war and the intention of the British to extend this treatment also to Italian prisoners of war."

Presumably the Japanese were talking about the recent Nazi chainings and British reprisal chainings of prisoners, all of which was started by the Germans, who charged the British bound the hands of Nazis captured during the Dieppe raid and another against Sark Island.

The Japanese radio, for a purpose not immediately clear, revived allegations today of bad treatment of Japanese nationals in the United States and Canada, stating protests had been lodged with the two governments and asserting Japan's treatment of war prisoners and civilian internees had been "fair and humane."

The last time this theme had been sounded was last summer when Japan apparently sought to counter the stories of ill treatment hardship and suffering told by the first American repatriates to reach the outside world from Japan, Japanese-occupied China and other places in the Orient after the outbreak of the Pacific war.

Today Domei said that Japan had lodged "strong protests" last month with the governments of the United States and Canada against "unreasonable and unwarranted" treatment of Japanese nationals. It added (Continued on Page Four)

The Counterattacking Reds Improve Stalingrad And Caucasus Positions

By EDDIE GILMORE
Moscow, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Russians said today counterattacking garrison troops had improved their positions somewhat in a Stalingrad factory area while the Red army maintained active operations on the Black sea front and slew 1,000 invaders in the battle for the central Caucasus.

Two companies of tank-supported Nazi infantrymen were declared smashed as Russian forces struck across a debris-littered expanse of north Stalingrad after repulsing enemy attacks.

Russian artillerymen destroyed eight German tanks by point blank fire and Soviet fliers struck heavily at German troops positions, the noon communiqué said.

Bombs and gunfire of the Russian aircraft were reported to have destroyed 13 enemy batteries and 26 machine-gun positions within 24 hours.

Three more batteries were silenced and 19 German dugouts and blockhouses were wrecked by Soviet shells on the steppes northwest of Stalingrad, it was announced.

The Moscow radio reported that the defenders of the city, in a letter expressing determination to fight to the last heart beat, said that they are sure the time is not far off when we shall hear of the opening of a second front.

The letter was addressed to premier Stalin. Delivered on the eve of the 25th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, it expressed confidence that the troops would "deal a crushing blow to the enemy from Stalingrad."

"The entire world is watching our struggle," it said. "The voices of our allies are reaching us from all corners of the globe, expressing admiration for our resistance. Accepting this moral aid, we are sure the time is not far off when we shall hear of the opening of a second front. This will be not only a moral but a real support for the defenders of Stalingrad and will hasten and help achieve victory over the enemy."

Need Certificates Get Gas Rations

Operators of trucks, buses and taxis must have their Certificates of War Necessity before applying to the local War Price and Rationing Board for their mileage ration. B. Kittrell, chairman of the board, stated today.

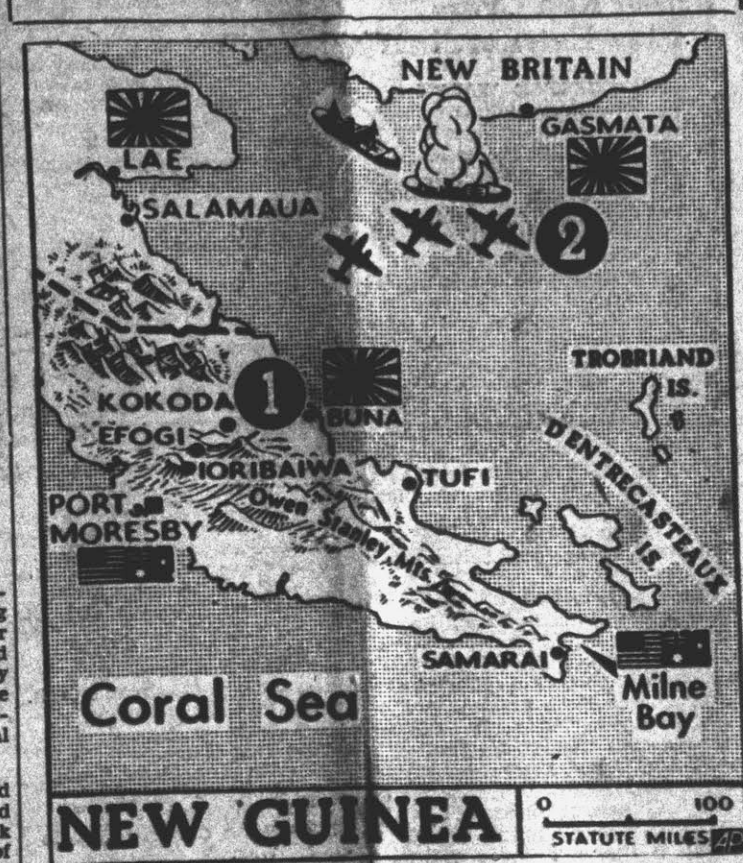

"The Certificates of War Necessity, issued by the Office of Defense Transportation, form the basis for our issuance of transport rations to these commercial vehicles," said Mr. Kittrell. "When applicants come to the board they must bring with them these certificates, together with properly executed application for a mileage ration."

Each war necessity certificate states the number of miles the vehicle for which the certificate is issued will be allowed to travel during a three-month period. The certificate also states the number of gallons of gasoline needed to cover this mileage.

The OPA rationing board will determine the amount of transport rations to be issued for the vehicle on the basis of the mileage allowed on the certificate. In no case is the board permitted to allow more gasoline than is stipulated on the certificate.

All outstanding 5 coupons will become invalid at 12-01 A. M. November 21.

Allied Forces Advance On Buna

Allied ground forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command in New Guinea have captured the base set up by the Japs at Kokoda (1) and are now moving toward Buna, the main Japanese base. MacArthur's aerial forces already have driven away from Buna an enemy convey with reinforcements. Medium bombers finished the job Nov. 2 by setting fire to one troop transport and getting a near hit on another transport off the Jap base in Gasmata (2) in New Britain. Allies landed the Jap drive toward Port Moresby and turned it at Lae. Allied bases at Port Moresby and on Milne Bay now rest safer.

Stalin Declares Second Front Must Be Opened

Says Lack Of Second Front Responsible For Axis Gains

By The Associated Press
Moscow, Nov. 6.—Joseph Stalin today said the lack of a second front would result in catastrophe for them and at the same time assured his people that there would be such an Allied offensive "sooner or later."

He said that because of the lack of a second front the Germans have been able to break through the Russian lines last summer for their 300-mile eastward and southward drives which have carried them to the banks of the Volga, in Stalingrad, and deep into the Caucasus.

"I think no other army or country could stand up to such an onslaught," he said. Then, answering the question, "will there be a second front?" he said:

"Yes, there will be one sooner or later because it is no less essential for our allies than it is for us."

Still, however, the Soviet premier told a special meeting of the Moscow Soviet—convoked to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution—that never before had Russia been as strong and well-organized on the home front.

The break-through in the west, he said, came after the Red army had routed the Germans on the approaches to Moscow last winter, at (Continued on Page Five)

The WAR TODAY

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Wide-World News Analyst

(This column, conducted as a daily feature by DeWitt Mackenzie, war analyst, is written today by Glenn Babb. Mackenzie, now traveling abroad, is expected to resume shortly.)

The three-power Axis alliance dedicated at Berlin two years ago to the remaking of a new world ruled by force and terror, is being subjected now for the first time to the strains which great disaster exacts on such a combination.

While Rommel's armies struggle westward across the inhospitable Egyptian desert under skies made still more inhospitable by the RAF and American air forces, Tokyo and Rome are reviewing the worth and costs of their ties to Berlin.

Little doubt remains that the victory of the eighth army has brought us to one of the war's great crises. History may nominate these days the turning point of the whole day-by-day struggle, comparable to those July days of 1918 when Foch turned back the last great German drive and seized the offensive.

Britain's leaders, twice burned in previous moments of apparent triumph in Africa can be counted on to be twice shy about overstating the completeness and magnitude of the victory in Egypt. And they leave no doubt of their conviction that Rommel has been smashed, that the elimination of the Axis from Africa is in progress.

Today's sober British headquarters communiqué fully bears out the exultant announcements of victory which came yesterday from General Montgomery himself and from that "high British official" in London who doubtless spoke with the highest authority and on the basis of the most complete information. Where previous war bulletins have announced the continued advance of the eighth army, today's notes the altered character of the battle with its introduction: "The eighth army continued its pursuit of the enemy."

Then it notes that Rommel's mechanized forces apparently are abandoning their hapless Italian allies on the battlefield, where lack of transport leaves no choice but death or surrender. Rommel, perhaps still hoping to achieve one of those near-miracles of recovery which gained him renown in happier times, is bent on saving his own armored corps at any cost to (Continued on Page Four)

British African Drive Gaining Momentum

Hitler Tries Desperately To Get Help To Rommel

Japanese Unable To Meet Hitler's Request For Diver-sionary Action

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 5.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Information received here from Greece today said that the Germans, in a desperate attempt to bolster Field Marshal Rommel's retreating forces in Egypt, were using upwards of 500 planes to transport troops from near Athens, Greece, to an unknown German African base.

This information said the troops had been removed from the Russian front to near Athens.

An earlier report had said that four trainloads of German soldiers from the eastern front, transported through Rumania and Yugoslavia, had passed through Athens on Monday.

The newest advices said that transport planes to speed the passage of the reinforcements to Africa had been in use since Tuesday. Normally the troops would be sent by sea via Crete.

Another report in the Turkish capital was given circulation today by an informed Japanese quarter.

It said that a week ago Berlin had realized the perilous situation of the Axis forces in Africa and Reichsheer Hitler had appealed to Tokyo for indirect aid in the form of a Japanese naval attack on Madagascar or South Africa which might compel a shift of strength southward.

This report added that Tokyo turned down the appeal, stating it did not possess the required naval strength because of blows received from the U. S. navy in the southwest Pacific during the summer and fall.

Information received here by a diplomatic source who cannot be identified said, meanwhile, that 15 Vichy-French ships, some of them thought to be converted French naval tankers, had left a North African port in the direction of the Black Sea, which lead to the Balkans.

This source asserted the Germans were urgently pressing Vichy for the use of these ships in the Black Sea area to serve German armies fighting in the Caucasus and relieve strained Axis rail transportation of supplies from Germany and Rumania.

A year ago a converted Italian naval tanker failed in an attempt to pass through the Turkish straits into the Black sea, the Turks ruling that the ship actually was a war vessel.

Band Will Give Victory Concert

A Victory concert will be given by the high school band Monday night, November 9 at 8 o'clock. This is the first concert by the band this fall and it will be free to the public. Harold McDougall, the director, has arranged an interesting program consisting of overtures and other symphonic music in addition to several patriotic airs and marches. During the program the band will give a salute to the armed forces by playing the official songs of the several branches of our armed service.

The band members are very anxious that our people come out to hear the concert and support the band by their presence.

Believe New Congress Will Favor Sales Tax

By IRVING FREEMAN

Washington, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Administration economists claim today that sentiment for a general retail sales tax would be much stronger in the new Congress which organizes in January.

This appeared to be the only prediction in the economic field upon which these government agency leaders agreed.

A sales tax, if it materializes, either could be added onto all existing taxes or substituted for some of the heavy income taxes recently enacted. The war budget to be presented to Congress in January may influence this decision.

The influence of the election on economic issues was intensified by general agreement that argument on military matters probably will be restrained, leaving a "home front" questions as an outlet for political stream.

Except for the sales tax question, the officials interviewed, all of whom asked to remain anonymous, ranged in their beliefs from one group who said "the new Congress won't be any different from the last one" to another who feared "it's going to toughen now to get through some of stabilization measures which we believe are necessary."

One of the major "home front" decisions which may come before the new Congress is manpower. Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower Commission, speaking so far without open administration support, has advocated a national service act, under which workers could be drafted much as men are inducted into the army. Alternatives, such as prohibiting a man from changing jobs unless he went into a war industry, or specifying promises of military draft deferment, also may come before the lawmakers.

Jaycees To Sponsor Commandos In City

The Junior Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a "commando camp drive" here in the near future, it was decided at a meeting last night. Plans are being worked out by a committee and commando insignia has been ordered. The Jaycees will work in cooperation with the schools.

A drive for new members of the Junior Chamber has been started. Committees of two are soliciting the business places, with the suggestion that business men recommend their choice of representation in the membership. Mack Tripp, representing the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company, was the first new member.

Taylor Carr, a former member who is in the city for a visit, was a special guest last night. He will enter the armed forces in about two weeks.

President Fred Forbes, Jr., presided.

Meadows Heads College Group

The election yesterday afternoon of Dr. Leon R. Meadows of East Carolina Teachers College as president of the Conference, and the adoption of a resolution pledging "all-out" cooperation in the war effort and urging the formation of a special war-time federal education board, were the climax of the 22nd annual session of the North Carolina College Conference held in Greensboro Wednesday and Thursday.

A proposal for revision of requirements for teaching, in such a way as to offset the present drain on the profession and still hold to an essential minimum in qualification, also was endorsed.

In the discussion from various angles of the theme for the two-day session, "War and the Colleges," it was brought out that North Carolina colleges are adjusting their curricula and speeding up their program to get both men and women students ready as fast as possible to enter their part in the war.

Donald J. Shank of the American Council of Education, Washington, discussed women's part in the war, taking up particularly the proposal of the Curtis Wright Corporation to finance the education of women as engineers and then place them in war industry.

Among the recommendations endorsed as a means of meeting the need for teachers were the creation of "war permit" teachers who would teach without certification during 1943-1945, and the suggested deferment of the requirement for a master's degree for a high school principal and a college degree for class A teachers.

At the annual conference dinner last night, at which Dr. Meadows presided, Dr. Luther Collier, president of Greensboro College and retiring president of the Conference, spoke on the role of the American college in the war.

An Axis Report Says British Nearing Matruh, 104 Miles From El Alamein Line; 79 More Axis Tanks Destroyed And 4,000 More Prisoners Taken

BRITISH (By The Associated Press) Cairo, Nov. 6.—(AP)—

Three fast armored divisions of the British Eighth Army led by Lieut. Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery have driven two wedges through Marshal Rommel's forces and are fighting inside enemy positions.

The Axis high commands conceded that the Allied offensive was nearing Matruh, 104 miles west of the old El Alamein battlefield, but the British said officially only that the battle had been carried "well west of El Daba," 33 miles from El Alamein.

London, Nov. 6.—(AP)—DNE reported today that a large Allied convoy, accompanied by several large aircraft carriers and other warships, left Gibraltar and sailed into the Mediterranean last night.

"It appears the British are repeating their attempts to supply Malta in grand style," the agency said.

With Rommel's armies fleeing westward in Egypt under a threat of annihilation by the British Eighth Army, the Axis showed signs today of a wary watch for new Allied ventures which might imperil its position elsewhere in Africa and on the Mediterranean.

Tanks were operating at the heels of the Axis retreat in the El Daba sector, a British communiqué said.

Portions of Rommel's armies which managed to escape the tank wedging and encirclement were said by Montgomery to be in full retreat.

This situation—of deep tank thrusts encirclement and hammering pursuit—suggested that the fate of the German-Italian North African corps might well be sealed before the surviving portions could retreat across the Egyptian Libyan border some 150 miles farther west.

Montgomery told of the armored penetrations when he received correspondents at his desert headquarters yesterday to announce complete and absolute victory in the battle of El Alamein.

A well-informed British source at London said of the last offensive that "there is reason to believe that our armored forces now have succeeded in getting behind some of the retreating German and Italian forces and that their retreat is virtually cut off."

Entertain For Miss Spivey.
Mrs. J. S. Blair, Misses Patricia Stuvivint and Elsie Barker of Elizabethtown, were joint hostesses at bridge honoring Miss Marjorie Spivey, bride-elect of the week-end, on last Monday evening in Elizabethtown.

The Blair home was attractively decorated with fall flowers and autumn leaves. After three progressions, high score prize, War Stamps, was awarded to Mrs. Channing Glenn and visitor's high went to Mrs. E. N. Howell of Swannanoa. Miss Spivey was presented cocktail forks in her chosen pattern. Two recent brides, Mrs. D. V. Durham and Mrs. J. P. Freeman, received gifts of crystal. Shower gifts were presented to Miss Spivey by all those present.

A delicious salad plate was served.
Bride-elect Honored.
Miss Marjorie Spivey, whose marriage to Nathan Ernest Winslow, Jr., United States Army, will take place tomorrow afternoon in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, was honored last evening, when Mrs. W. H. Smith and Miss Jane Smith entertained at their home on Evans street.

Tables for bridge were arranged in rooms made colorful with zinnias and marigolds. Miss Emma Lou Seales was given War Stamps for making high score.

For the refreshment hour the tables were centered with burning candles tied with white tulle to carry out a bridal motif. A dainty ice course was served.

Miss Spivey was remembered with an honor gift, a crystal vase.
Mrs. J. K. Spivey, mother of the bride-elect, was a guest for refreshments.

Mrs. John Adams gave an interesting talk on "What War Has Done to Life in the Kitchen."

Junior Red Cross Play Extraordinary

By CHESTER WALSH
The presentation of the Junior Red Cross play, depicting scenes on the battle fronts, at the Ayden High School yesterday, evidenced talent on the part of the script writers, histrionic ability of those who took part, and exceptional ability by Miss Naomi Newell, English teacher at Greenville High School, who directed the play.

Six hundred students and others witnessed the play at Ayden and received greater inspiration to do more war work. The war play should be seen by everybody in the county. It gripped adults and young people and carried a war message that "all of us will learn sooner or later." Mrs. S. B. James, chairman of Junior Red Cross work here, and others are impressively getting the Red Cross message over to the public.

Those participating on the program were: William Keck, Ralph Fleming, Louis Dupree, Charles Whiteford, Jack Scott, Shirley Warner, Joyce Corbett, Henry Andrews, Larry Tucker, Della Frances Perry, Sara Frances Williams, Lottie Thomas, Billy Tucker, Peggy Reid, Mary Ann Harris, Mary Ann Duncan, Leon Fleming, Arthur Whitehurst and Herbert Waldrop.
Ralph Fleming, Lottie Thomas, Nancy Harris and Louis Dupree wrote the script.

Lottie Thomas, Della Frances Perry, Katherine Ann Jolly and Nancy Harris, assisted in publicity and arranging a window at the Blount-Harvey Co.

Members of the committee boosting the Junior Red Cross Drive are: Ralph Fleming, Della Frances Perry, Helen Piver and Lottie Thomas. Enrollment, which means "enlistment for service," is being made from November 1st to the 15th. Pitt County has pledged to 80 50 memberships over the top, and that's 400 per cent. There are 10,000 white and 7,000 colored people in Pitt county.

FISTS FLY IN ELECTION ROW

State Board May Have To Settle Watauga Dispute

Boone, N. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—An election dispute caused some tense moments, some fist fights and a few black eyes here last night, but order was finally restored. The trouble was over 312 county tickets found in the box for the constitutional amendment tickets. If counted, these votes would also change the results of the county election. The county board of elections met yesterday afternoon to try to decide what should be done. R. D. Hodges, G.O.P. member, wanted the returns certified minus the 312 tickets. Don Lee Hagaman, the Democratic member, wanted them to include the 312 ballots. A hot argument ensued and chairman R. T. Greer, a Democrat, recessed the meeting until today. Then the real trouble began. A crowd assembled in front of the courthouse refused to let the Democrats leave the building. The Democrats sent hurried calls to Lenoir and North Wilkesboro for policemen and highway patrolmen to come and disperse the crowd. But finally local authorities succeeded in persuading the crowd to go home. There were no arrests, no serious casualties. The board will meet again today to try to decide what to do about the 312 ballots. From Raleigh, W. A. Lucas of Wilson, chairman of the State elections board, wired the Watauga board that the ballots should not be invalidated simply because they were in the wrong box. If all other circumstances were in order, but that any irregularities in the attending circumstances should be considered.

Reduce Quantity Of Fuel Oil This Year

Fuel oil for heating purposes throughout this area and those persons who do not have a certification of last year's purchases or a certification of the estimated gallonage required for their home or apartment will be severely curtailed on all allowed for this year's consumption.

A certification of estimated gallonage for this year may be obtained from a qualified heating or plumbing expert for a small charge and should be obtained if there is no previous record on the dwelling now occupied.

Consumers are urged to convert their stoves and furnaces to coal if possible. From 15 to 50 per cent less oil will be available this year for heating purposes is the official announcement from the Office of Price Administration. Without required certification the cut might even exceed the estimated curtailment. This certification should be obtained immediately to the Pitt County Ration Board, 119 W. Fourth St., Greenville.

Many Cases Tried In Superior Court

By CHESTER WALSH In Superior Court today a jury found McKinley Taft, colored, guilty of the shotgun slaying of Willie Howard Nobles, colored. Judge Luther Hamilton of Morehead City, sentenced Taft to from 12 to 15 years in State Prison. Taft was charged with second degree murder. He pled guilty to manslaughter.

Lyman Jarman, driver of the car that struck and killed Juanita Kittrell, 12, of Winterville, while roller-skating on the highway near Bethel some weeks ago, was guilty and given five years in prison. Sentence was suspended for five years when the court was informed that the girl's mother had agreed to a $500 settlement. Jarman also paid the court costs.

O. V. Rowe, charged by city police with driving his car while drunk, was not guilty. The case did not go to a jury. Judge Hamilton threw it out for lack of evidence. Cases disposed of yesterday included the following:

McD. Hux, bad check, costs.

R. J. Rogers, driving drunk, 90 days on roads.

James Blow, colored, assault with a deadly weapon, pled guilty to assault, six months, suspended provided he pays $20 to Dr. J. D. Hemmaway and court costs.

Forgery: David Lee Creech, not pressed with leave.

Drunk: Dave Creech, judgment suspended, provided he report to Recorder's Court Friday morning.

Failure to vaccinate dog: Noah Hardy, colored, not pressed with leave.

Hunting out of season: Dennis B. Robertson, not pressed with leave.

Assault: Roscoe Wainwright of Farmville, two years. Wainwright was charged with fatally injuring Isham Gay of Walsenburg in Farmville during a fist fight. An autopsy failed to show that Gay died as a result of the fight with Wainwright.

Driving drunk: Sam B. Moore, colored, six months, sentence to begin at end of term he is now serving.

Wilbur Davis, colored, was found not guilty of a crime against nature with a small child, for lack of evidence.

Fatal Plane Crash. Memphis, Nov. 6.—(AP)—An Army airplane operating in unfavorable weather conditions, crashed near the Memphis airport today, killing both occupants.

The dead were identified tentatively as Raphael Clyde Clayton of Olive Branch, Miss., who died shortly after reaching a hospital, and J. Norman Rhew of Memphis who succumbed three hours later.

HURRICANE OFF FLORIDA COAST

Gales Expected To Reach 75 Miles An Hour

Miami, Fla., Nov. 6.—(A)—Storm winds that may exceed 75 miles an hour and thus rank as a full-fledged hurricane today tore at the central Bahama Islands and headed toward the lower east coast of Florida.

Warnings of an approaching blow were hoisted from Melbourne to Key West, and the Miami area appeared to be in the exact path of the storm.

The storm, centered in early morning at Long Island in the Bahamas, was moving west or northwest. If it maintained this course, it would pass in the vicinity of New Providence Island, where the Duke and Duchess of Windsor reside in Nassau's government house.

Along lower Florida's Atlantic coast line and down the Archipelago to Key West, vessels hurried into port. Storm shutters were fastened to windows facing seaward.

Miami's public schools were ordered closed for the day and a high school football game was cancelled. The weather bureau went on an emergency basis to keep the area informed, and wartime censorship of storm news was lifted to permit notification of all who might be threatened.

Navy officials in the area announced that hotels housing Navy and Coast Guard personnel along the waterfront in Miami were being shuttered and that the service was taking the same precautions that civilians in the area are schooled to observe.

The storm apparently made up more rapidly than usual and the customary two or three days' advance notice was missing. Before daylight, however, the weather bureau began broadcasting its warnings and stormwise Miami's began protecting their property before 6 A.M.

Dedicate Building At Colored School

The principal, teachers and students of the home economics department of the C. M. Epps Colored School cordially invite the parents and friends of the school to attend the opening of the Home Economics building on the campus Sunday afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock. The invitation is also extended to white friends of the school.

The building was recently completed. It is a credit to the school and the community. Prof. W. H. Davenport, principal of colored schools, stated.

Russians Holding ...

"In one sector," it said, "about half a regiment of infantry, supported by tanks, launched an attack on our strong points. Soviet troops met the enemy with artillery and mortar fire and, after losing 300 officers and men killed, the Germans retreated to their initial positions."

Progress was reported in the Russian counterdrive from Tuapse and the communiques said 310 more invaders had been wiped out and prisoners and war material captured. Sixteen German planes were said to have been shot down by anti-aircraft gunners in two days.

Action somewhat heavier than usual was indicated far to the north on the Leningrad front.

"Our snipers in three days killed 820 officers and men," the communique said. "But artillery fire destroyed 28 dugouts and 17 enemy blockhouses."

About 800 enemy officers and men were declared annihilated northwest of Stalingrad, boosting German losses already estimated to include more than 100,000 killed and 800 tanks and 1,000 planes destroyed in the 73-day-old struggle for the city.

The estimate was contained in a message to Premier Stalin from the garrison, which has been fighting almost without interruption since the five-day lull was broken by a resumption of German assaults October 12.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

DOING ONE'S BEST

The great poet, Robert Browning, was a man of some means, and he founded in Florence, Italy, as a memorial to his father and mother, an exchange to which people were invited to bring their handmade lace and offer it for sale. Most of the lace was very beautiful, for the workers were paid not for the quantity but for the quality of their work. Tourists eagerly bought the rare and costly pieces.

But one day an old woman came to the Browning Memorial to sell her lace. Her son had been killed in the war, and she was struggling to care for her two grandchildren. She had worked on this piece of lace for three months, but her eyes were failing, and the work was crude and uneven. "What shall I do with it?" asked the superintendent, showing it to Mr. Browning. "It is worthless, but I dread sending the poor soul away."

"Pay her for it," said Browning, "and give it to me. She has done the best she could." Every three months for several years the rapidly aging woman turned in her work more poorly done each time. But always Browning said the same thing. "Pay her for it and give it to me." Certainly the great poet reflected the spirit of that One who is pictured saying to those who have done their best. "Well done, good and faithful servant. Thou hast been faithful in a few things. I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord!"

A STEP FORWARD

The appointment of a city-wide Juvenile Delinquency Committee to cooperate with the schools and welfare organizations to cut juvenile delinquency in this community to a minimum is a wise move. This is a matter that is important to the community and it is well that it is getting official attention.

IT WAS A SWELL JOB

The people of Pitt County have done a "swell job" in the matter of the collection of scrap metal. In the recent drives great quantities of scrap have found their way to the junk yards and in turn will go to the steel mills and on to the war plants to be converted into implements necessary for our victory in the war. There is still probably some scrap scattered about the county and we urge our people to continue their efforts to see that all of it eventually gets to the official scrap piles. The government is going to keep on needing scrap metal as long as the war lasts, so let's keep it moving. We repeat, you have done a fine job and we know you can be counted upon to continue to do your part in the war effort here on the home front.

WE HOPE THEY MEAN BUSINESS

Leaders in Congress have rightly declared that the time is at hand for a "real coalition" for an all-out effort to win the war and that politics and wrangling over domestic issues should be relegated to the background for the duration. We hope they mean business in this respect and that no time will be lost in getting things moving along these lines. America has before it at this time the two-fold task of winning the war and winning the peace that is to follow, and nothing short of a hundred per cent effort will make the victory in both possible. If there ever was a time that Congress, and the government as a whole, should lay aside useless bickering and petty personal and departmental jealousies it is right now. Winning the war is our first great task and nothing should be permitted to delay or interfere with our prosecution of the war now.

WASHINGTON IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—The Shadow of Things to Come: Covering Washington from the War Department on lower Constitution to Congress on Capitol Hill, one must inevitably come to the conclusion that future historians may well look back on the fall and early winter of 1942 as the "turning point" in the war.

The reasons: (1) The Solomon Islands battle has spread to the whole 1,200-mile long Coral Sea and may a year at least and maybe longer, go down as the greatest battle the Pacific ever has seen.

(2) The United Nations' offensive in Egypt is more than a sideshow and could be the beginning of the end of the battle for Africa and control of the Mediterranean.

(3) The battle for Stalingrad and the striking power the Russians have left when it is over may determine the fate of the Eastern front.

No. 4. There is a growing conviction here that the striking power of the United Nations in Great Britain (both in the air and on the ground) is rapidly being brought to such strength that it is no longer possible for the Nazis to ignore the fact that the "second front" is on the move.

(5) Air power of the United Nations in China is reaching the point where the Japs must give it serious consideration if they are to hold the gains they have made.

(6) The battle of the Aleutians could determine the future supply lines to Russia and possibly to air bases near the heart of Japan.

On the home front: (7) The taxpayers have got their bill for the first real down payment on this war and now know what they are up against.

(8) The manpower problem, though far from solved, is getting the kind of blitz treatment that foreshadows epoch-making war time legislation.

No. 9. Price control, rationing, forced savings and all the other factors in the war on inflation are shaping into accepted facts and the public is cooperating wholeheartedly in regulatory measures that a year ago brought a storm of controversy whenever they were mentioned.

(10) The United States has had its off-year elections. Don't under-the legislative branch can settle its task without casting too many distracting glances at the ballot box. It doesn't, of course, mean an end to politics—but it does mean that the members on both sides of the Capital can come to grips with the problems ahead without fear of immediate loss of their jobs.

If you are interested in following the course of this war, measure the news of the next few weeks by those ten yardsticks.

If things go well, the period may be marked as that in which the United Nations quit sparring for time and started on the move. If things don't go well, it will be another story but perhaps no less a turning point. It at least would postpone victory for months, maybe years.

his confederates. This will not be lost on Rome where the Egyptian disaster already has produced premonitions of doom for Mussolini and his Roman empire. The United Nations leave no room for doubt that the Egyptian victory is merely the prelude to a campaign to rid the whole African continent of the Axis and restore domination of the Mediterranean to Britain and her allies. Then the soft underside of Hitler's Europe will be laid open to Allied attack; Sicily and Sardinia will lie at the mercy of a constantly more powerful air and naval combination and the Italian homeland itself will be marked for conquest. To this, as Winston Churchill told the Italian people two years ago when today's picture was only a dream of his imagination, Benito Mussolini will have brought them.

At this juncture Japan has summoned all her diplomats in Europe to conclave in Berlin. The announced purpose is to consider methods of more fruitful cooperation within the three-power alliance, but undoubtedly the entire question of the value to Japan of her German alliance will be under sober consideration.

One very definite result of the Egyptian victory should be the laying of one of the United Nations' most frightening bogeys of a few months ago, a Japanese-German juncture somewhere in the Middle East. Japan's fundamental purposes being what they are—creation of an East Asiatic empire—that bogey probably never had much substance. But what is happening in Africa is likely to produce a further separation of the European and Pacific phases of the war as far as the Axis is concerned, with Japan concentrating on her increasingly bitter effort to hold what she has and letting her allies seek their own salvation.

ed that "immediate remedial steps" were demanded. As to the statement that Japan's treatment of war prisoners and internees had been "very fair and humane," it is less than a month since the Tokyo radio said that U. S. airman captured after the April 18 raid on Tokyo and other Japanese centers had been convicted of "inhuman acts" and had been or would be "severely punished in accordance with international law." It warned that fliers captured in the future would be dealt with sternly.

MURDER on the Campus

By JERRY BRONFIELD

Chapter 14
A Different Todd

Saturday was cold and gray. The sun tried to break through heavy overhanging clouds but couldn't quite make it. Susan, Jane and Amy sat together with a heavy blanket over their knees. A chilling wind swept down through the stadium.

A newspaper was folded on Jane's lap with a headline revealed: "Majesty Regains Squad After Strange Absence."

But it wasn't usual Todd Malone on the field that day. Susan could hear criticism all around her of his play-calling. Once he missed a block completely and remained on his hands and knees, shaking his head disgustedly. Eddie Luttrell came over and helped him up.

Vanderbilt scored first and held a 7-0 lead going into the final quarter. Finally, Johnny Harris broke through and blocked a Vandy punt and the ball bounced crazily back into the end zone where Bert Elliott fell on it for a touchdown.

The roar from the crowd faded into a note of surprise when Pete Bailey sent in a substitute for Todd. The sub booted the extra point as Todd sat hunched on the bench, a blanket tossed over his head and shoulders.

Five minutes later State scored again on a sustained drive but missed the extra point. Pete Bailey rubbed Todd's back.

"Okay, boy . . . back you go . . . a little fire, son . . . a little fire. Whip 'em up."

But Todd had no fire that day. It was all too apparent to 45,000 people—and especially to Susan. "He must have had a bad three days," Jane murmured with a sideways glance at Susan.

"He did," she returned.

Tight Spot

There were three minutes remaining in the final quarter. Todd skipped back to the safety position as Vanderbilt went into punt formation. The Vandy punter set it away and the ball soared down toward Todd, waiting for it on the State 15-yard line.

He moved slightly to the right to allow for the wind as two Vanderbilt linemen thundered down on him. He moved forward as the ball dropped toward his arms.

He seemed to start running before he had the ball. He juggled it for an instant at the end of his fingers and then the Vandy end hit him. The ball bounced out of his hands completely and rolled toward the State goal line. The other Vandy lineman swooped down on it on the four-yard line.

It was in stunned silence that the crowd watched Vanderbilt line up in a single wing. The ball carrier, behind a wall of interference, swept around right end over the goal line.

That made it 13-13. The big clock was stopped at the two-minute mark as Vanderbilt lined up for the extra point. Two minutes to go. If Vandy converted, it would be all over. There would be no time for State to strike back and pull it out of the fire.

The ball came back from center. The Vanderbilt kicker stepped in to it but Bert Elliott, crashing in over a protecting back, leaped upward and the ball bounced off his chest.

A gathering, pent-up sight of relief ran through the stadium. The game ended in a 13-13 tie a short while later.

Good Creditors

Todd lay on the rubbing table in the dressing room, his face buried in his arms, folded above his head. A dull, sick feeling in his stomach hurt him more than the ugly, spreading blue blotch on his side.

Delinquents still have a few days in which to pay up and avoid penalties.

where a knee had landed. Trainer Johnny Miller worked over him soothingly. The others were dressing usually all around him. It was a bad game they should have won comfortably. Gone now were their hopes for an undefeated, untied season and a possible invitation to one of the bowl games.

Pete Bailey sat down on the edge of the rubbing table. "How's the side, Todd?" he asked kindly. Todd didn't answer. He merely nodded his head slightly, indicating he would be all right.

Pete dropped a hand on his shoulder and rubbed it gently. There was no hurt in Pete's heart. He liked to win them all, too, but he knew there was more than a football game in his quarterback's mind.

"See you Monday. But if you feel like taking a walk tomorrow stop at our place. My kid's having a birthday party and he'd love to have you stop in."

Todd nodded again, vaguely.

A sports writer from the Chronicle edged toward Todd but Eddie intercepted him. "If you don't mind, Bob," he said. The sports writer looked at Todd, then Eddie, shrugged and turned away, seeking Pete Bailey.

Todd flexed his shoulder looked at Eddie. He smiled. Eddie grinned back.

"I guess I owe the gang a for today," Todd said.

Eddie nodded. "But you're good creditors. We won you for it."

Todd swung his feet down the floor. "Johnny," he said, "I'm a lucky guy at the moment."

BARKER PICKS THE WINNERS

Duke, Wake Forest, State And Carolina Favorites

By HERR BARKER

New York, Nov. 6—(AP)—Taking the weekly aim in the general direction of football winners (and hitting some, perhaps):

Wisconsin-Iowa: Not as easy as some might think. It seems certain that Wisconsin will have lost some of its fine edge after the victory over Ohio States and Iowa boasts a real scoring punch when Tommy Farmer's pitching arm is in shape. Still, a vote for Harter, Hirsch, Schreiner and Wisconsin.

Notre Dame-Army: Normally this is close every year. It probably will be again. Despite the Penn defeat, Army is a well-rounded outfit and should extend the Irish to the limit. Doubtfully, Notre Dame.

Georgia-Florida: Frankie Sinkwich and his mates will have trouble getting "up" for this one, but there is entirely too much talent in the Georgia ensemble to permit any choice but Georgia.

Kentucky-Georgia Tech: Dition on this one. Georgia Tech.

Temple-Boston College: If Boston's Eagles aren't the best team in the east, somebody will have to prove it to this corner. Boston College.

U. C. L. A.-Oregon: Peculiar things happen to teams from southern California when they invade the northwest. Nevertheless, a determined ball for U. C. L. A. sheathing, perhaps, for the coast conference title.

Pitt-Ohio State: This seems to come under the head of unfair competition. Ohio State.

Indiana-Minnesota: The Gophers are clicking in accustomed style now and that spells trouble for the Hoosiers. Minnesota.

South Carolina-Alabama: The Gamecocks have been a disappointment. Alabama.

Navy-Penn: Penn is the undisputed powerhouse of the East's Ivy Leaguers with a hard-bitten line and a set of great backs led by Bert Stiff. No reason to expect Navy to do more than make it close. Penn.

California-Southern California: Throw out the form charts here. California seems to have pulled itself together finally. The Trojans have had two weeks to get ready. All of which leaves us just where we started. On the flip of a coin, Southern California.

Harvard-Michigan: Perhaps this will be no run-away but there's no reason to believe the easterners can cope successfully with the Wolverines. Michigan.

Missouri-Nebraska: This should settle the big six race. A solid vote for Missouri, last year's title-holder.

Mississippi State-Tulane: Tough enough. Out of the hat, Tulane.

Colgate-Columbia: Perhaps this is the spot for the Red Raiders to get back in winning stride. Colgate.

Cornell-Yale: If Wally Kretz returns to action there is a strong temptation to pick Cornell. Resisting the impulse, Yale.

Dartmouth-Princeton: No real surprise either way. Resisting to

Rose Bowl

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 6—(AP)—The Rose Bowl football game, transferred to the east coast last year when California went on an all-out war footing, will return to Pasadena next New Year's Day, an unimpeachable source said today.

The Associated Press learned that the formal application has not yet been sent to the Western Defense Command, but that it would be approved when it is received.

The source of the information cannot be disclosed.

Princeton.

Georgia Naval-Auburn: Ditto in this one. Georgia Naval.

Mississippi-Vanderbilt: Stringing along with Vanderbilt.

Maryland-Duke: The Terrapins sprang a big upset at Florida's expense last week but this ball is cast for Duke.

Texas A. & M.-Southern Methodist: Having finally found the scoring combination maybe the Aggies can keep it. Texas A. and M.

Texas Christian-Texas Tech: Should be T. C. U.

Washington-Stanford: Who can figure these far western teams? Stanford.

North Carolina Naval-Georgia Tech: Taking the Pre-Flighters.

Rice-Arkansas: Looks like Rice.

Virginia Military-Wake Forest: V.M.I. has an outstanding back in Joe Muha but the Deacons seem to have the greater all-round strength.

Wake Forest.

North Carolina State-Miami: Probably close. N. C. State.

Davidson-North Carolina: Taking North Carolina.

Skipping over the chalklines otherwise: Furman over Citadel; Clemson over Georgia Washington; Iowa Naval over Ft. Knox; William & Mary over Randolph-Macon; Virginia Tech over Richmond; Virginia over Washington & Lee.

Sports Roundup

SPORTS ROUNDUP - M

New York, Nov. 6—(AP)—That idea of having eastern and western major leagues next season is as dead as a slow-footed Nazi in Egypt, but while it lasted it did show up one of baseball's greatest weaknesses—the guys who run the game.

Reading some comments in this week's "Sporting News" we've reached the conclusion that some of the reactions were at least as silly as the idea. Or don't they remember how they holed "No" when such popular innovations as night baseball came along? Regardless of the merits of the idea, we can't see the point of such statements as Sam Braden's "If ever we have to come to that, let us lock the gates." We like steak for dinner, too, but we wouldn't keep our mouth shut for the duration rather than eat hamburger.

There's an old yarn about a footballer who was being given a special examination by the college dean. "Young man, what is the sum of seven and seven?" the dean asked. "The griddle thought hard and responded, 'twelve.'" Just then the football coach broke in, "Aw, let him pass, dean. He only missed by one." What brings this up is a report from Akron, O., about a high school coach who sent in one sub during a hot game and took out two players. He didn't discover the error until two plays had been run and when he finally sent in the eleventh man, his team was penalized for taking too many times out. In this connection, Jim Schlemmer of the Akron Beacon-Journal points out that Coach Ross Starr of State college was a bit smarter. Finding he had 12 men on the field, Ross sent in two subs and while they were reporting beckoned three players to the sideline.

Today's Guest Star

L. J. Skiddy, Syracuse Herald-Journal: "Branch Rickey's first move as generalissimo at Brooklyn indicates he wants to preserve the Dodger tradition as 'Daffiness Boys,' he drafted Dee Moore, former Syracuse catcher. As a chief, Moore, a man with as much natural ability as any catcher in baseball, should march in step with the dearest Dodger that ever sang tenor or other midnight in Sheepshead Bay."

Service Dept.

Nine of the eleven starters on Colgate's 1941 football team are in the armed forces and Hank Zittel, the big tackle, already has reached the Pacific war zone. Buddy Lewis, former Washington infielder has been transferred to the Lubbock, Tex. army flying school to complete his advanced twin-engine bomber training. Although the navy pre-flight training program normally lasts twelve weeks, halfback Bill Schatzler and fullback George Benson of the Iowa Sea-hawks have been "graduated" to flight training after only ten weeks—and right in the middle of the football season, too. Lou Cassidy, former U. of Richmond athlete and more recently coach at Stanton Military Academy, was inducted into the army at Camp Lee, Va. the other day. The best policy, no doubt.

British African ...

may be able to annihilate them completely without having to chase them across the Libyan desert as in other advances.

The steady liquidation of Rommel's forces was recorded today in the official disclosure that his losses by capture alone now total more than 13,000 men and that at least 339 of his tanks have been knocked out.

The full measure of Rommel's defeat was indicated in a British communiqué which told of a round-up of large numbers of Italian troops, apparently abandoned in their front positions while the Germans on wheels or caterpillar tracks tried to save themselves by flight along the coastal road.

The Axis high commands still led the British in progress reports on the Allied offensive. The broadest communiqué from one and Berlin placed the area of violent combat between Fuka and Matruh—82 and 104 miles west of the original El Alamein line.

The new British figures on tanks destroyed and prisoners taken incorporated the latest figures, 4,000 more men and at least 73 more tanks. And still the roundup went on in the desert, and the relentless attacks on Rommel's rear guards continued along the coastal road, paced by a continuous aerial offensive which dwarfed the Axis air efforts.

(Allied pressure on the Axis Mediterranean supply line was emphasized by the London Admiralty's report that six more Axis vessels had been sunk and two damaged by British submarines.)

Announcement of the new Allied successes indicated that the victorious Eighth Army had ground out an advance of 50 miles since breaking through the enemy's positions near El Alamein and dispatches from the front suggested that the battle of North Africa rapidly was degenerating into a race across the desert, with Rommel's forces trying desperately to escape utter destruction.

Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery, commander of the Eighth Army, proclaimed a complete and absolute victory for the Allies in Egypt and declared that his troops would wipe out all the Axis forces remaining in North Africa.

Official British figures placed Axis prisoners at 13,000 and the number was growing hourly.

Among the captives taken yesterday, a communiqué said, was the commander of the Italians' vaunted Trento division and his chief of staff. (The authoritative British Press Association in London identified the Italian as Gen. Francesco Scotti.)

The bulletin said that a large number of Italians, apparently abandoned by fleeing German mechanized formations in the southern sector of the battlefield, were being rounded up.

Fifty-nine Italian and 20 German tanks were reported destroyed yesterday, bringing the total knocked out by the British offensive to 339.

British submarines cooperating with the Allied air forces in attacking Rommel's overseas supply lines were credited officially with sinking six more Axis vessels and damaging two others in the Mediterranean.

The Axis air forces appeared to have been virtually driven from the skies over Egypt, the British reporting that their troops were free from aerial attack yesterday while their own bombers hammered at the enemy almost unopposed.

Five enemy fighters which tried to intercept Allied planes were shot down yesterday along with a small communications aircraft. Allied losses were put at four planes.

Although some Axis forces were reported yesterday to be holding out in isolated spots on the southern end of the Alamein line, Montgomery asserted that they would quickly be "put in the bag."

The British general called upon his armored formations to follow up the victory by proclaimed, striking at the retreating enemy with unremitting fury and thus insuring his complete destruction.

Reports from the battlefield indicated that British tanks and armoured cars were carrying out their chief tasks in the desert, the letter, ably supported by the RAF and the United States Army air forces.

German divisions as during the first World War, the position of the German armies today would be bad indeed.

The Germans' aim in the Southwestern drive was to divert the main Soviet reserves in order to attack Moscow from the South, Stalin said.

He said the year had shown that the German army has its weaknesses.

"The Germans," he added, "are not strong enough to attack the southwest and north at the same time, like last summer, but are still strong enough to launch a serious attack in one direction."

Stalin noted that during the World War, out of 230 German divisions then existing there were 85 on the Russian front.

"Now, however, this year, out of 236 divisions, 179 are on our front," he said.

"To this can be added 23 Rumanian, 14 Finnish, 10 Italian, 13 Hungarian, one Spanish and another division making, in all, 240 divisions altogether on our front against the Red army."

"The enemy's other troops are in occupied France, Norway and in North Africa. Part of them are in Libya, fighting against the British but only four German divisions and 11 Italian divisions, that is all."

"We have over 3,000,000 men arrayed against us."

"I think no other army or country could stand up to such an onslaught."

Replying to the rhetorical question, "will there be a second front?" Stalin gave this answer:

"Yes, there will be one sooner or later because it is no less essential for our allies than for us."

"Our allies must understand that with France fallen the absence of a second front can mean catastrophe for them."

ONE MORE WEEK!

The Greenville Tobacco Market Will Close Friday, November 13

This Decision Was Made By The Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade After A Thorough Survey Was Made And It Was A Certain Fact Every Tobacco Grower In The Territory Of The Greenville Market Would Have Ample Time To Sell The Last Of His Crop.

TOBACCO IS SELLING HIGH!

Tobacco Is Scarce... There Isn't Much Left, But There's Plenty Of Money In The Greenville Banks And The Greenville Warehousemen Are Spending It Freely In Order To Pay For The Tobacco They Sell.

Top Grades Are Selling For $50.00 & $51.00 Per Hundred.
Grade By Grade All Other Tobaccos Are Just As High

The Greenville Warehousemen Work Just As Hard In Order To Sell Tobacco High On The Last Day Of The Season As They Do On Opening Day Or Any Other Day Of The Year. They Are Appreciative Of Every Load Brought To Their Warehouses And They Sell Every Pound For The Highest Market Price.
