Roosevelt Confers With President Of Brazil On Trip Home From Africa

Leaders Discuss Main Points Of War Strategy As Brazilians Celebrate First Anniversary Of Break With Axis; President Reviews Troops In Liberia

Natal, Brazil, Jan. 29 (AP)—President Roosevelt, safely back in the western hemisphere after his historic meeting with Prime Minister Churchill in Casablanca, conferred here yesterday with President Getulio Vargas of Brazil, largest South American state among the United Nations.

It was the first meeting between the two presidents since 1936, when Mr. Roosevelt visited Brazil on a South American tour, and came as this republic celebrated the first anniversary of her rupture of relations with the Axis powers.

It was understood that Admiral Jonas Ingram, commander of United States naval forces in the South Atlantic, and U. S. Ambassador Jefferson Caffery sat in on the talks. Natal, situated on the "bulge" of Brazil, is the main western terminus of trans-Atlantic plane services operating between South America and Africa. It is the site of an important Brazilian naval base from which U. S. naval forces operate and likewise the site of a great U. S. Army air base from which American planes take off for far-flung fighting fronts.

Like the conference at Casablanca between Roosevelt and Churchill preparations for the meeting here were made with the greatest secrecy. A brief official announcement of the conference said merely that the presidents had met and that details would be given following the Brazilian chief executive's return to Rio De Janeiro some time today.

It was presumed, however, that one of the subjects they discussed was the German effort to cut South Atlantic shipping lanes by a stepped-up submarine drive in recent months.

It also was presumed the two presidents reviewed the subject of economic aid to Brazil, an important western hemisphere source of supplies for the United Nations.

North American government agencies and technicians throughout Brazil have been helping recently to increase the production of rubber, minerals and other products and United States government capital has been loaned for numerous purposes.

The talks between the chief executives apparently were carried on through an interpreter.

Get Tickets Now President's Ball Several hundred servicemen are expected here Saturday night to attend the President's Ball at East Carolina Teachers' College. The people of Greenville are asked to buy tickets now at a dollar each and turn some of them over to the committee in charge to be distributed to the servicemen. If tickets are bought promptly the committee will know how many servicemen to invite. They may be secured from Chairman "Bill" Lee or John G. Clark Prof. Ralph C. Deal will be master of ceremonies.

The President's Ball will be informal. Those who wish to attend in evening dress may do so, but informality will characterize the social event for the benefit of infantile paralysis sufferers. Money derived from the ball will be turned over to the National Infantile Paralysis Foundation, of which President Roosevelt is chairman.

In connection with the President's Ball there will be a square dance at the army beginning at 8 o'clock. Tickets are a quarter each.

Proclamation London, Jan. 29.—(AP)—A proclamation by Adolf Hitler, to be broadcast by Propaganda Minister Goebbels at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, (11 a. m. E. W. T.) will be a highlight of Germany's observance of the tenth anniversary of the Führer's rise to power, the Berlin radio announced today.

It will, however, be a flagrant celebration, according to other broadcasts recorded here by the Associated Press.

BILL PROVIDES SUMMER CAMP

Would Use School Buses To Transport Guardsmen

Raleigh, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Bills to finance a summer encampment of the State Guard, to provide all the men with equipment and to increase the number of units from 42 to 51 were introduced today by Senator Farthing of Watauga and Rep. Cavness of Guilford.

Requested by Adjutant General J. Van B. Metts, the measures would appropriate $5,800 for the nine additional units, $118,901.95 for equipment and $103,349.12 for a 10-day encampment.

In addition, Cavness would authorize the use of school buses to carry the State or National Guard to places of encampment.

General Metts, who appeared before a legislative committee several days ago, said that the guard was responsible now for certain types of civilian protection, since the National Guard had been called in to service. Additional units, further training and equipment, he said, are vitally needed and would prove their worth in cases of emergency or disaster.

A measure similar to one introduced in the House yesterday would provide scholarships for children of disabled or deceased veterans of any world war. Should more than 15 apply, the Veterans Administration would select the 15 to receive the scholarships to any state educational institution. The Senate bill was by Taylor of Anson, Cherry of Gaston, and Blothe of Mecklenburg.

Keeping its work strictly on scholarship lines, the Joint Appropriations Committee of the General Assembly today neared the end of hearings on the biennial budgets of state departments and institutions.

The smooth work of the committee, which early in the session set a February 1 deadline for hearings, will be an important factor in speeding sine die adjournment of the legislature within the 60 days predicted by Lieut. Gov. R. L. Harris at the beginning of the session. Hearings today and Monday will enable the committee to meet the deadline unless an unforeseen hitch occurs.

Under consideration by the Appropriations Committee today were budget requests of the state's mental institutions—hospitals at Goldsboro, Raleigh and Morganton and the Caswell Training School for Children at Kinston.

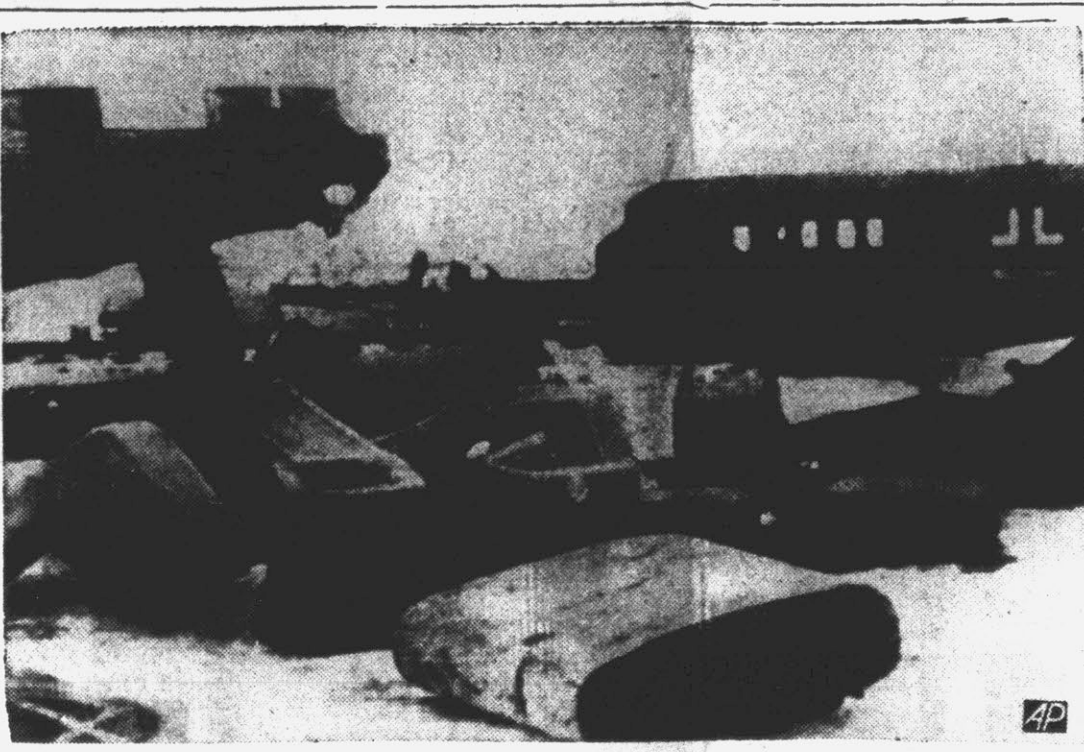

Senator Hugh Horton of Martin chairman of the Senate Education Committee, announced the joint committee would meet at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning to act on bills to extend the school term to nine months.

Axix Looses U-Boats Off American Coast Miami, Fla., Jan. 29.—(AP)—Goaded apparently to desperation by everlengthening United States convoy routes, the Axis sent a wolf-pack of submarines against an escorted fleet of merchant ships off the South American coast this month and blasted four American vessels to the bottom.

Twenty-five men were lost and 28 others were missing from the four craft. Some of the missing were believed to be safe. The sinkings raised to 608 the reported number of United Nations and neutral ships lost in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor.

It was the first wolfpack action reported in western Atlantic waters, and news of it, told here by survivors with navy permission, lent emphasis to warnings by high government officials that the submarine menace remains great. Wolfpack tactics have long been used in North Atlantic convoy lanes.

Nazi Transport Planes Down Near Stalingrad

This clutter of wrecked German transport planes and their cargoes of munitions and food lies on a frozen field southwest of Stalingrad. The Nazis sought to use these planes to fly supplies to their trapped troops surrounded near Stalingrad. The Russians say they have seized airports near the city and thus severed the last line of supply for the isolated Germans. This picture was radioed from Moscow.

Russia's Triumphant Armies Crashing Into German Front

Moscow Says Nazis Suffered Greater Defeat Than Napoleon

Moscow, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Red army forces were reported driving steadily forward on the plains west of Voronezh today, tearing into the flanks of the retreating Germans who already had been thrust back more than 12 miles, losing 9,000 men killed and captured.

The Germans, using reserves mounted counterattacks in vain efforts to stem the Soviet advance. The advancing Russians were at points only about 75 miles from Kharkov and Kursk.

The capture of Kastornoye at the crossroads of railways between Voronezh and Kursk and between Moscow and the Donbas basin to Taganrog on the sea of Azov was effected by sharp attacks from the north and south of the strongly fortified city. Dispatches said the Germans were driven out house by house and street by street with bayonets and grenades.

Among the 6,000 enemy troops reported captured overnight on the Voronezh front alone there were three generals.

Other troops were reported closing in on the important Caucasian rail junctions of Kropotkin and Tikhoretsk.

Envelopment of the Caucasian cities and the spread of a pincers movement around the Maikop oil field provided the most spectacular (Continued on Page Four)

NEW FIGHTING IN SOLOMONS

Americans Blast Destroyers, Cargo Ships And Tanker

Washington, Jan. 29.—(AP)—In two furious days of fighting in the Solomon Islands, the navy reported today, American forces damaged two Japanese cargo ships, two destroyers and a tanker, destroyed ten enemy planes and killed 36 Japanese troops in operations which resulted in the capture of an enemy command post.

Three Japanese were taken prisoner. One of the cargo ships which was damaged probably sunk. Four American planes were reported missing. Navy communique No. 265: "South Pacific: (A) On January 27th: (A) Ground operations on Guadalcanal Island resulted in the capture of a large, well-established enemy command post. Thirty-six Japanese were killed and three prisoners and a large amount of equipment were captured. In other sectors, two pockets of enemy resistance were wiped out.

(B) During the morning, enemy dive bombers and high level bombers, escorted by fighters, approached Guadalcanal. U. S. fighters engaged the enemy planes and incomplete reports indicate that nine Zeros were destroyed and six others probably destroyed. The enemy planes dropped no bombs. Four U. S. planes are missing.

Bombs fell close to the destroyer which was left smoking.

The tanker was last seen smoking. One of the four enemy Zeros which intercepted was shot down. All U. S. planes returned.

Motorists Speed On West Fourth Street

By CHESTER WALSH Numerous pedestrians today called attention to motorists speeding on West Fourth street as a speedway, especially in the mornings when children are on the street in numbers en route to school. Several persons interested in the welfare of the young people, more than in saving gasoline and tires, lingered near the high school this morning to observe the "Indianapolis speeding" of cars past the school. Many cars with boys and girls in them stop at the school corner to let out their passengers. The youngsters risk life and limb to cross Fourth street near the school between 8 and 9 o'clock in the mornings.

Incidentally, cars pass at from 40 to 50 miles an hour while a school bus is parked at the curb to discharge school boys and girls. Not a car stopped today while the school bus was unloading, except to let out students.

Bill Will Test Labor's Strength In Congress

Washington, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Organized labor's first test of strength in the 78th Congress shaped up today amid signs that its outcome would furnish a clue as to whether a sharp revision of present labor laws is in the offing.

The impending showdown comes on a measure approved overwhelmingly by the House Judiciary Committee yesterday to subject labor groups to the 1934 anti-racketeering act by broadening the definitions of robbery and extortion.

Shuns Axis

President Juan Antonio Rios of Chile (above) asked his congress to sever relations with Axis powers. Congress responded by cutting the ties.

Washington, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Daniel Bell, Treasury undersecretary, told the House Ways and Means Committee today the Treasury expected the nation's public debt, notwithstanding high taxes, to reach $210,000,000,000 on June 30, 1944.

Appearing in support of legislation to raise the debt authority from one hundred and twenty-five billion to two hundred and ten billion dollars, he stated the debt amounted to one hundred and eight billion dollars last December 31 and would rise to one hundred and thirty-five billion dollars by June 30 this year.

The committee heard Bell behind closed doors, and an account of the testimony was given newspapermen by Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) and Reps. Cooper (D-Tenn.) and Robertson (D-Va.). The committee indicated (Continued on Page Three)

Pitt February Quota To Be 50 Bicycles

Raleigh, N. C., January 29.—Director T. S. Johnson, of the Raleigh OPA office, announced today that a total of 1,767 bicycles for rationing in February will be available in 61 counties under the Raleigh office.

On a national basis the February quota reflects a wider eligibility list with an increase 700 bicycles over January's quota of 85,000 machines. The North Carolina February quota reflects a slight increase also.

The quota for Pitt county will be 50 bicycles.

Heavy And Medium Bombers Hit In Four Waves To Leave Destruction And Fires; Italy Acknowledges Much Damage; British Army Duels With Rommel's Forces

By ALFRED E. WALL London, Jan. 29 (AP)—The harbor and railway yards of Sfax, a supply port vital for regrouping of Axis forces in Tunisia, were officially declared today to have been hard hit by the 12th U. S. Air Force's greatest raid of the war while British Eighth Army artillerymen duelled with Marshal Rommel's rear guard in the Zuara area 35 miles east of the Tunisia frontier.

The Axis betrayed jitters by radio suggestions that the British First Army already had started a big move in the Tunisian theater, these following unconfirmed reports that the American ground forces there had launched or were preparing an offensive.

The broadcast had no confirmation and today's communique from Allied headquarters in North Africa said "there is no change in the ground situation."

U. S. heavy and medium bombers, escorted by P-38 Lightning fighters, struck Sfax in four waves yesterday, blasted the rail lines and harbor facilities heavily, left many fires burning and set down six Axis planes which accounted for 100 lives.

A 12th air force spokesman said the number of planes used was the largest it had ever sent against a single target. The Italian high command acknowledged that damage was heavy.

Axis troops and vehicles were bombed and shot up in a series of other raids from the Point Du Fahs area to the Ousselia valley and three enemy bombers were reported shot from a small formation which attacked Algiers last night. From all the operations, two Allied aircraft were reported missing.

The gradual shortening of Marshal Rommel's narrow escape corridor is illustrated by the fact that Sfax, on the upper curve of the Gulf of Gabes, lies only 150 miles by air northwest of Zuara.

Despite the fact that Rommel assigned artillery to the rear guard in the area of the Tripolitanian port, London military sources reiterated the opinion that he would not make a real delaying stand before he reached the Mareth line.

Well-placed observers said it was not yet apparent that the Fifth American army's operations in the Gafsa-Maknassy area of central Tunisia were of sufficient weight (Continued on Page Six)

Dr. Crossfield Goes Washington

By CHESTER WALSH Dr. R. H. Crossfield of Birmingham, Ala., who served as temporary pastor of Eighth Street Christian Church in Greenville several months last fall and who made so many friends in this part of Eastern Carolina by his outstanding church work and unusual activities in community projects, will begin a temporary pastorate at the First Christian Church in Washington, N. C., on February 1.

Dr. Crossfield is nationally known in the work of the brotherhood. He has been college president and lecturer, and has served some of the most important pastorates in the church. He immediately made friends when he came to Greenville through his deep spiritual and broad-minded conception of his duties, his fine sense of humor and enjoyment of close contact with his fellow-men. His work in the church here is a monument to a great theologian, an exceptionally efficient executive and a moulder of public sentiment the Christian way.

The WAR TODAY AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

By GLENN BABB The most powerful and successful of all Adolf Hitler's allies is giving public notice that she is having no part in his crusade against Bolshevism, at least for the time being. In his outline of foreign policy to the Parliament yesterday Foreign Minister Tani declared that Japan intends to respect her neutrality pact with Russia and expects Russia to reciprocate.

No one of course takes Tani's statement as an irrevocable guarantee of Japan's Pacific intent. But in this case there is strong evidence that the civilian foreign minister's peaceful professions are consonant with the real intent of the war lords. Less than month ago General Tojo himself said the reason for strengthening the Japanese garrisons along the Manchukuo frontier was to make sure that the undisturbed progress of the eastern Asiatic war (against America, Britain and China) is guaranteed.

Tin Can Campaign Begins Next Week. By LUCY CHERRY CRISP. "Win with tin" now becomes the battle-cry of the scrap-saving committees all over the country, as they go out these next ten days to gather in the tin cans to save the precious tin which ranks, we hear, right up in the front row along with rubber in importance as war material.

In Pitt county the tin collection days will be February 1 through 6 which means that every family's help is urgently needed if we are to send from our county a creditable contribution of the now much needed scrap tin.

There are definite instructions to be followed in preparing the cans for collection four important things to remember and to do, according to official information. And these are the important four things:

1. Clean the can well, and soak off the label. 2. Open the cans, both bottom and top. Bend in the tops and bottoms, or if they are completely removed, tuck them back inside the can.

3. Flatten the can by putting it on the floor and stepping on it as hard as necessary. 4. Keep the can in a basket, box or some place separate from other trash and garbage, to be ready for the collection truck.

These are the preparation instructions. If our tin can collection is to be of real value, these instructions need to be followed carefully. And one other thing we might add: No rusty tin cans need apply. Uncle Sam just can't use them.

Further information and instructions about our tin can collection will be found in the local newspaper each day. Watch for it and use it. We are out now to save tin to help win the war.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR January 29, 1903

Of course we are ready to throw up our hat and shout for good roads, but if some of the streets of Greenville were as good as some of the roads of Pitt County, we could certainly put a deal more enthusiasm into our shouting.

An 8 o'clock audience in the opera house is no go in Greenville at that hour, the time advertised for the curtain to rise Thursday night, not half a dozen people had arrived. It seems fashionable to go late.

Warehousemen Lose Sleep At Farm Meet

Mayor Bruce Sugg went to Raleigh the other day to attend the annual convention of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation Convention. He couldn't get a room at a hotel Rufus Keel, Greenville alderman and head of Keel's tobacco warehouse, who had a good room, met the mayor "wandering around in the rain" and invited him to share his room.

They went to bed after the night session, tired out from a hard day on the convention floor. Neither Keel nor Sugg slept an hour that night. Sugg is head of Smith and Sugg's warehouse. "Each Greenville tobacco warehouse man was afraid the other would get some of his selling time," W. H. Woodard, president of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, said today.

It was Mayor Sugg who told the story yesterday about Woodard, the banker, sleeping in the same bed with Haywood Dail, a mule dealer, while attending the farmers' convention. They are even now, Dail said.

Legislators To Speak At Kiwanis Meeting

Mayor Bruce Sugg will have charge of a special program at the weekly supper meeting of the Kiwanis club this evening at 6:30. Local members of the State Legislature, Senator J. Members of the Junior Woman's Club are getting interested in knitting. Wool for three sweaters has been taken out. One of their own members, Mrs. R. H. Evans will assist the knitters in their work.

The production and knitting committees are very grateful to the women of Pitt County who are doing such splendid work in knitting.

Mrs. R. J. Slay has recently influenced eight of her friends to knit turtle neck sweaters and has recruited the wool to them.

Lt. Bedell Says—

Lieutenant Bedell, of the women's army auxiliary corps who will be in Greenville all week, securing recruits for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps.

"Lieutenant Rita Bedell of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps says: After basic training, a member of our corps becomes part of a company of about 125 women and three officers. When this company moves into one of our army camps for duty, it automatically relieves for active combat duty a like number of men. Don't forget folks—that is our reason for being in existence. We relieve the men behind the desks. So, women, you see we need you."

"The military training we women receive mixed with the good food we eat, the attractive uniform we are privileged to wear, the good friends we meet, and the hope and faith in our hearts—all go to make us better women. I just wish you could all visit one of our training camps, talk with these girls, see how wide awake and healthy and happy they are. They bubble over with animation. Just ask one of them how they like it. I know what they will say. They will say with a grin, 'I'm crazy about it.'"

"When we think of our boys who served on Bataan and Corregidor. When we think of those who serve on submarines and convoys and in the air, are we of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps sacrificing much to leave our homes for warm comfortable barracks, three good meals a day, a fine uniform and a salary which we may put in our bank account?"

"This recruiter now says 'Good-bye' to the good friends she has made in Greenville. It has been a pleasure to have worked here. And to the women who have applied for membership with us let me say 'Good luck girls and God be with you, till we meet again.' 'Keep 'em flying.'"

Lieutenant Bedell Club Guest Speaker

The Business and Professional Women's Club held its January meeting Thursday night at 6 o'clock at the recreation room on West Fourth Street.

Two guest speakers for the evening were Lt. Bedell, who is in the city recruiting for the WAAC, and Miss Ruth Pritchard, librarian at Sheppard Memorial Library. Lt. Bedell reported that 12 white and colored women had already enlisted and a hope that others would join, as the army is asking for 150,000 WAACs immediately. She told of the activities of the women in service and of her own experiences. She was accompanied by Sgt. Nash, U. S. Army.

Miss Ruth Pritchard told of the Victory Book Drive for servicemen and stated that February 20 had been set as the day for the local drive. The club offered the services of the rest rooms as a deposit station for books for the convenience of persons in the downtown area. "Any book you would like to keep is the way to choose a book for a soldier," stated Miss Pritchard.

Other guests were Mrs. Artis Hardee and Miss Annie Turner.

A picnic supper was served during the social hour following the meeting.

TESTIMONY IS ENDED IN CASE

State Presenting Rebuttal Witnesses Today

Los Angeles, Jan. 29 (AP)—An astronomer, bearing a celestial globe, mounted the witness stand today and testified there was a moon the night pretty Peggy La Rue Satterlee says Actor Errol Flynn invited her below decks to have a look at through the porthole of his yacht.

The servant Prof. C. H. Clemmishaw, acting director of Griffith Observatory, was called by the prosecution as its first rebuttal witness at the film star's trial on charges of seducing Miss Satterlee and another teen-age girl, Betty Hansen.

There was not only a moon shining that night on romantic Santa Catalina Island but it was quite a moon, the astronomer's testimony indicated. He described it as being within three days of full.

The state did not indicate the purpose of the testimony.

Attorney Jerry Giesler, in a surprise move, reopened his defense, calling Mrs. Elizabeth Gathcart-Jones, of New York City, who described herself as the wife of Capt. Owen Gathcart-Jones, the former RCAF officer, friend of Miss Satterlee, who testified earlier in the trial.

Mrs. Gathcart-Jones said she and the captain had been married May 23, 1926, and had never been divorced, nor had there been an annulment.

Gathcart-Jones, who testified earlier that he had bought clothing for Peggy, and that she and her sister had occupied his apartment while he was away, had said he was divorced. Peggy testified last week that she "wasn't exactly engaged" to him.

Defense attorney Giesler ended his interrogation of the tall, handsome Flynn yesterday by asking:

"At any time or place did you have an act of sexual intercourse with Betty Hansen?"

"Never—at any time," the actor declared firmly.

"Did you at any time or place have such an act with Peggy Satterlee?"

"I never did."

Flynn further denied that he went into an upstairs bedroom with Miss Hansen at the Bel-Air home of Fred McElroy, oil man and part-time actor. He said he was never introduced to her. His first recollection of her, he said, was "when she came over and sat on the arm of my chair" on a sun porch before dinner.

Vocational Class Valuable Project

By CHESTER WALSH

THE vocational education class at the Greenville High School, under the direction of Wallace A. Bourne is accomplishing good work and doing much for participating students. Nearly a dozen boys are taking course in mechanics. Their classroom shop is over the Service Store opposite the school. Jeff Moore, a veteran mechanic instructor from the NYA Center, is temporarily directing the students in automobile work. The youngsters have an old car in the shop. They are given intensive training in theory and practice. As they progress they take apart generators, differentials, starters, etc., and put them back together again under skilled direction. The boys are interested in the work. They know that when they are called to the armed service a knowledge of mechanics will enable them to advance and win promotion in air force ground crew or in other departments of the service.

Members of the class are Jack Teel, Harold Smith, Lee Saeled, Bob Smith, Jasper Pollard, Johnny Buxton, Billy Deaton, J. B. Smith, Buster Elliott, and John Wilcox Earl Deron. A former member of the class, recently posed an examination to enter State College to study engineering.

The vocational class is producing good results in this work and other work. A number of students, boys and girls, have been placed in stores and shops for part-time training and are being well remunerated for their time. Two of the boys are working part time at the Flanagan Buggy Company. They are doing electrical assembly work.

Business men and bankers consider the vocational class at the high school to be exceptionally valuable and expressed a willingness to cooperate.

A tour of the class room and shop with Mr. Bourne the other day was a revelation to a Reflector reporter. A number of the vocational students have gone out to work and are making good in Washington D. C., and elsewhere.

Doughton said no effort was made in the morning session to attach an amendment repealing an executive order by President Roosevelt limiting wartime salaries to $25,000 (after taxes). Such a proposal was expected before the body votes on the bill. If passed by the Senate and House the President would be put in the position of withdrawing the salary limitation or vetoing the debt limit increase. draft troops anywhere south of the equator in the zone between the 110th and 150th meridians east longitude, but only in such particular areas of this zone as may be specified by proclamation. Under the law as it stands, the service of enlisted men in these branches of the armed forces is restricted to the domain itself, its possessions and mandates. Curtin's suggested liberalization would allow their use as well as certain of the Netherlands East Indies, Dutch New Guinea, Timor and a portion of the Solomon Islands. But this territory was not enough to satisfy Menages and others of the government opposition.

The proposed amendment Menages said "makes sorry reading in the light of constant public appeals for help from other countries." The former prime minister in particular criticized expansion from the area of Singapore, Malaya, Sumatra, Burma, the Southern Solomons including Guadalcanal, New Zealand and New Caledonia, all of which he said were "highly relevant to Australia's defense and the defeat of the Japanese."

Condensed Milk to Be Distributed In State

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 29 (AP)—C. Hilan Moody, State Supervisor of Food Distribution for the Department of Agriculture, said today that 40,000 cases of condensed milk would be moved into six North Carolina areas where critical shortages exist. Moody said 14 carloads would go to Charlotte, five to Wilmington, five to Kinston, three to New Bern, three to Elizabeth City and two to Fayetteville. He said that shortages had developed in these areas because of rapid population increases resulting from either military or industrial concentrations.

Forces Will Draw From Draftee Pool

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—The army, navy, marine corps and coast guard will draw on a draftee "pool" hereafter to fill their requirements. The system, announced by selective service headquarters yesterday, is effective Monday. While the drafted men can not be certain which branch of the service will claim them, selective service officials said, individual preference will be given "the fullest consideration practicable."

A single set of physical standards for inductees, somewhat higher than at present, has been adopted and each service will notify national selective service headquarters how many men will be needed during a certain month, for example. Each state and local draft board will be given a quota and draftees will report to an induction station and an assignment board for designation to one of the services.

Says Seamen Were Very Cooperative

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Merchant seamen had the assurance today of the commander of the United States forces in the South Pacific that they have displayed "cooperation, efficiency and courage" in unloading cargo.

From the South Pacific, Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., reported that never had the merchant seamen refused to unload ships at Guadalcanal island as charged in a report now under investigation by a House committee.

Under the supervision of naval officers, Halsey said, the crews of more than a dozen vessels that have reached Guadalcanal since the Marines landed on the island, have participated in unloading all of them.

The report followed publication in the Akron, Ohio, Beacon Journal of a story quoting Marines, returned from Guadalcanal, as saying that union seamen refused to unload a ship on Sunday because it was against union rules.

Accused Negro To Be Returned To Oregon

Los Angeles, Jan. 29 (AP)— Sheriff's deputy Clay Kirk starts back to Oregon today with a 20-year-old railroad diner chef accused of slaying Mrs. Martha James, wife of a naval officer in her sleeping car berth a week ago as the train was speeding toward California.

Detective Captain Verne Rasmussen said the chef, Robert Folkes, a Negro, made an oral confession in the presence of several police officers, but that he had not been asked to sign a stenographic transcript. "Whether he signs it or not, makes no difference to us," Rasmussen reported, folks admitted he stabbed Mrs. James in the throat with a boning knife.

Van Nuys Calls On Flynn to Withdraw

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Senator Van Nuys (D-Ind.) proposed today that Edward J. Flynn end a bitter Senate controversy over his appointment as minister to Australia by requesting President Roosevelt to withdraw his name from consideration.

Van Nuys, who voted against Flynn in the Senate Foreign Relations committee in what he said was a protest against the submission of controversial nominations in wartime, told reporters he believed withdrawal of Flynn's name would be a "very wholesome solution" to a situation which had found the Senate almost equally divided on the question of confirmation.

"The people believe that Mr. Flynn is a Bronx, Tammany politician who is not qualified for the important post as minister to Australia," Van Nuys declared. "Whether that is true or not, this is no time to plunge the Senate into controversy, when any of a dozen well-qualified men could be confirmed without a dissenting vote."

THE MONUMENT STILL STANDS

We should never allow ourselves to be discouraged by derogatory remarks aimed in our direction, provided of course we know ourselves to be in the right. If we happen to hold any position of leadership whatsoever, we are certain sooner or later to encounter hostility. Washington was denounced as a murderer, "treacherous in private friendships, a hypocrite in public life, an impostor who has abandoned all good principles of education."

Washington, Jackson, and Lincoln have suffered little from remarks such as these. President Coolidge, after reading a debunking biography of Washington, is said to have remarked dryly, "Well, the Washington monument is still standing."

DO YOUR PART

The individual citizen can help relieve the wartime medical problem. Here are suggestions: Choose your physician carefully and stick to him. Make appointments for visits as early as possible. Whenever advisable visit the physician's office instead of expecting him to call at your home. Write down all important facts you want to tell him. Tell him all symptoms which have any bearing on your physical welfare. Have confidence in him. Write down his orders and make sure you understand them. Public cooperation can go far toward eliminating the "doctor shortage."

IT'S TIME.

News from Washington indicates that, at long last, Congress is giving serious thought to taking some action that would break up racketeering on the part of labor leaders. Whether the matter will get beyond the talk stage is yet to be seen, but while it is about it Congress should take some definite action toward prohibiting further strikes in any vital industries for the duration of the war. Regardless of its grievances no labor union nor any other group has any right at this time to do anything that would hinder our war effort and lessen or delay our chances for victory. We repeat, it's time Congress was giving the matter some attention and we hope that the present start will result in action instead of talk.

He Put His Foot In It

LET'S PUT IT OVER BIG.

President Roosevelt's Birthday tomorrow will be celebrated here with a March of Dimes solicitation, a square dance at the armory tomorrow night and the birthday ball at the college. All the proceeds from the celebration will be used to aid infantile paralysis sufferers in this community and it is to be hoped that our people will support the campaign in a liberal way.

The committee in charge has invited several hundred service men from nearby camps to be honor guests at the birthday ball and citizens are asked to contribute dance tickets for these visitors. Already more than a hundred tickets have been contributed but the committee is urging that orders for additional tickets be placed at once. By purchasing these tickets for the service men, our citizens will be accomplishing the double purpose of giving an evening of entertainment to the service men and at the same time helping the infantile paralysis fund. Let's make tomorrow's celebration a huge success by buying the dance tickets and contributing to the March of Dimes. Orders for tickets should be placed with W. W. Lee or John G. Clark immediately.

WASHINGTON IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—Before the 78th Congress was much over a week old, more than 1,000 bills and resolutions had been introduced.

To a lot of the old-timers on the Hill, that's not even worth mentioning. Practically all Congresses are like that. A great chunk of these bills will never reach the House or Senate floors. They will die in committees. Some will expire because their authors are unable to make their pleas heard above the tumult and shouting of more important legislation; some because their authors don't explain, in Tuskegee, Ala., why they introduced them only because of pressure from important constituents.

Another sizable percentage are so-called "private bills"—principally measures to settle individual claims against the government for damages to property or persons.

Still that leaves more bills than any newspaper could itemize and explain. In Tuskegee, Ala., they probably know there are three bills pending to establish memorials to the late Negro scientist and educator, Dr. George Washington Carver, but I doubt if much of the rest of the United States ever heard about them.

Probably no one has taken the trouble to report the Sen. Pat McCarran has revived that ancient battle between the Commonwealth of Virginia and the national capital by introducing a bill to establish (once and for all) the boundaries between Virginia and the District of Columbia. The same Senator has another measure that might stir up a storm—a bill to establish a federal Department of Aviation.

Sen. Lister Hill has a "universal service and total mobilization" bill and Sen. Hattie Caraway has one to establish preparatory schools for West Point and Annapolis. There already are at least two to provide for rehabilitation of wounded veterans of this war (one also includes rehabilitation of injured war workers) and another would pay a $60 "bonus" to men honorably discharged from military service.

In both chambers, bills have dropped into the hopper which would "authorize" the President to make the late Col. William (Billy) Mitchell a posthumous major general. Both House and Senate have a resolution pending which would extend the right to vote to all persons 18 years of age or older.

There are bills to establish training schools for civilian glider pilots; to call an international convention for drawing up "an international constitution"; to count out all aliens in enumerating congressional districts; to grant free postage to WAACS, Waves and Spars. Skip all the controversial measures, and the 78th Congress could still have a merry time and leave its footprints on the legislative record.

The WAR TODAY

(Continued From Page One) come, therefore, when the armistice will demand a reversion to its generation-old schemes for seizure of eastern Siberia. But the current trend of the war does not encourage the belief such a change is imminent.

This has its obverse side for the United Nations. As long as Japan honors her Moscow pact the chances of Russia's plunging into the Pacific war remain remote. The cagey admirals and generals in Tokyo seem equally inclined to let well enough alone. For the United Nations this means that any plans for the destruction of Japan based on the easy assumption that eventually we shall have Siberian bases for bombing of Tokyo and Osaka rest on an unsubstantial foundation.

Problem of the WIRE CAGE

BY JOHN DICKSON CARR

Chapter Seven

At a quarter past six o'clock—just before the thunderstorm began—the mixed doubles composed of Brenda White and Frank Dorrance vs. Kitty Bancroft and Hugh Rowland were finding it almost impossible to continue.

In the first place, it had grown too dark to see the ball. Hugh found it suddenly appearing under his nose from nowhere, a startling shape; it was never quite there when you swiped at it. But he had given up any idea of playing good tennis. All he wanted to do was slam it hard, whenever it came within reach.

With the score at five-two in favor of Brenda and Frank, Frank was nagging for match-point. They had changed sides of the net after the fourth game; Hugh and Kitty were now on the south side, with their backs to the gate-opening in the wall of poplars. A convulsion of wind shook the poplars; it swept the court, loosening Kitty's eyeshade and stinging their faces with dust. The next flash of lightning followed by a shock of thunder striking close, showed even the net tugging at its moorings. Brenda, a ghost on the other side of that net cried out.

"Frank, let's give it up! Come on please!"

"Nonsense, old girl."

"Frank, please! I don't care—I'm afraid of thunder. Let's run for the house; or the shed, anyway. Won't you?"

"Nonsense, old girl. The thunder can't hurt you. It's the lightning that does the damage. But we're all right. Come on! We only want one game to win, and we've got 15 of that. It's your service to Kitty. Come on!"

As lightning winked again over the tops of poplars, Hugh saw Kitty set herself, and Frank dancing close to the net. Her service was sharp; Kitty's backhand; Kitty returned a cross-court drive which Brenda dropped at Hugh's feet; and Hugh, who only wished the whole thing were over, stepped back and smashed blindly. Darkness drowned sight and thunder blotted out sound, so that he could not tell what happened; but Frank's triumphant voice rose up.

"Got you that time! Thirty-love!" Then the voice went higher. "But I wouldn't try that sort of thing too often if I were you, Rowland."

"Try what?"

"Driving straight at my face from ten feet away."

"I can't see your face. Sorry."

"You didn't do it on purpose, of course. No, of course not. Go on Brenda; pick up the ball and stop jitters. I rather thought Rowland would lose his temper. Two more points and we've got 'em."

As a matter of fact, Hugh had lost his temper completely. He knew this himself, but he still tried to be casual as he left his position and walked up to the net.

"Like every other time today," he said, "you're right. For the past half-hour I have been considering the advisability of plugging you in the eye. Now I think I'll do it. Frankly, I would like to kill you."

"The other was not impressed."

"No, you don't, old boy. You're three inches taller and nearly three stone heavier than I am. I don't funk it at anything like my own weight, and you know it perfectly well. Furthermore, I'm not at all afraid of you. But mixing it with you would be plain foolish; and I don't do foolish things."

Studying that indomitable figure across the net, the high-colored face looking waxy and the eyes glistening under the lightning, Hugh had a change of feeling. He could not help it. In the midst of everything he detected, there was something he could not help admiring. Some of the anger washed out of him; to be replaced by a bitter honesty. He realized that the main reason why he found Frank insufferable was merely because Frank was eight or nine years younger than himself, and sure of himself in a way that few people beyond the twenties can be. Yet inside all that, inside Frank, there was a hard core, a kind of viciousness, which might in time put Frank in a class by himself.

Yes, he thought, it might really be a good thing if Frank were to die.

"I should simply, and rightly, refuse," Frank was explaining, "and you can't hit a man who won't hit back, can you? You'd look an awful cad if you did."

From the background Brenda spoke. Her tone was curious.

"He can't," she said. "But suppose you met somebody who could?"

"Then I'd take care of him in another way," Frank told her coolly. In the windy darkness he turned to Hugh, and spoke in a friendly kindly way. "Look here, old chap. Twice today you've made an awful ass of yourself, which is remarkable for a fellow who's supposed to be so hot at his job as Brenda says you are. However, let's have no more of this, shall we? Get back to your place and let's finish this set before the rain comes."

There are limits to human patience. What might have happened just then—instead of happening a little later—it would be impossible to decide, for at that moment the storm broke.

"Pick up the balls, somebody!" yelled Frank, taking Brenda's arm and hurrying with her. "Get 'em Rowland, will you? They're mostly on your side of the net."

The first drops hissed in the dust of the court. Then they thickened and swept it black. Round the edge of the court, inside the wire netting, ran a foot-wide strip of humped grass; most of the balls had rolled up on it and nestled away under corners of the wire, where they were difficult to find. Hugh was half soaked by the time he raced after the others to the miniature pavilion.

They were gathered together under the overhang of the miniature porch, which gave no protection at all. Brenda was trying to open the door, but the door appeared to be stuck.

"Give me a hand with this, won't you?" she urged, raising her voice above the uproar. "I don't think it's locked, but it won't open."

"You certainly don't like thunderstorms, do you, old girl?" said Frank, who was leisurely putting on his coat and scarf.

"I don't, and I may as well admit it."

With difficulty Frank continued to fold the scarf. It was of thick voluminous silk, dark blue and white in color, and it flapped like a flag in the wind. He folded it over twice longways, slipped it round his neck, and knotted it over the door. "The door's only warped," said Kitty. "Frank and I looked in here on our way to the house. Here, let me try." She put a sinewy bare shoulder to the door, and it screeched under the pressure. "There; that's got it. Phew! It's stuffy enough in here!"

It was, the hammering of rain on the roof was like a physical pressure against the brain, for the pavilion was little more than an oversized children's playhouse. An oil lantern hung from a nail in the roof. There were wooden lockers along one wall, and two short benches cramped into the middle.

"Come in and shut the door," said Brenda. "That's better, but it's not over yet by a long chalk. Ugh!"

Kitty's voice spoke on a note of faint surprise. "I say, Frank! That's odd. Somebody's been in here since we were here last."

"In here? Nonsense. Who'd be in here?"

"I don't know, but somebody has. Look there: on the bench where Brenda's sitting. Somebody's been here and left a newspaper. Strike a match."

Congress Begins . . .

(Continued From Page One) presidential salary limitation sought to attach a repealer to a bill lifting the nation's debt limit from $125,000,000,000 to 210,000,000,000. If successful, the maneuver would compel the president to veto the new debt authorization or accept revocation of the salary ceiling.

As the House Ways and Means Committee opened hearings on the bill to raise the debt limitation, expectation was that it would be reported without difficulty barring controversy over unrelated amendments.

Extension of lend-lease until July, 1944, appeared thus far to have little opposition but demands for an explanation of the where and why the money was spent appeared certain to bring a Congressional examination.

A possibility also developed that Headed for the Top?

London newspapers have published speculation that Gen. George C. Marshall (top), chief of staff of the U. S. Army, might be named commander-in-chief of Allied forces in the European theater. Vice Admiral Sir Percy Noble (bottom), head of the British Admiralty delegation in Washington, was mentioned as a prospect for supreme commander of an anti-U-boat campaign.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee's public hearings on the program might open up an examination of a variety of associated issues such as the size of the armed forces and the effects on domestic relations of sending supplies abroad.

Russia's . . .

as reported in London by the Soviet Radio Monitor, bold smashing new blows on the Voronezh front which brought the capture of 33 more planes and resulted in the killing of 3,000 Axis troops and capture of 6,400 men including three generals.

"Troops on the Voronezh front continued to develop their successful offensive," the recorded communique said. "Breaking stiff German resistance, one formation forged ahead and liberated 33 populated places. More than 400 German officers and men were taken prisoner as well as a large quantity of war materiel."

Kastornoye sits at the intersection of the Voronezh-Kursk railroads with the Valuiki-Yelists rail line. The city is 75 miles east of Kursk and about 170 miles northeast of Kharkov.

Its importance in relation to Kharkov is that the Russians previously had announced capture of Valuiki, which is 120 miles south of Kastornoye and about 75 miles east of Kharkov.

If Kursk can be taken, the north-south rail line between Smolensk, Kharkov, Melitopol and Crimea would be cut; Kharkov would be flanked, and the fluidity of German supply lines would be hampered.

In the Caucasus, the troops which had advanced along the Baku-Batumi railway were said to be at Gekvichi, only 120 miles south of Kropotkin.

PEP-STOLZ TO SLUG TONIGHT

Estimate 17,000 Fans Will See Tilt At Garden

New York, Jan. 29—(AP)—Willie Pep goes after his 59th straight ring victory at Madison Square Garden tonight, and a goodly number of the 17,000 fans who are expected to witness the tilt think there won't be quite enough pep for the job.

The Hartford youngster, holder of the New York version of the world featherweight title, will be spotting Alvie Stolz up to six pounds, and among the little fellows that's quite a bit, particularly if the bigger of the little fellows has something called class. Which Stolz, on occasion has in large quantity.

The drawing force of the 10-round brawl has the Jacobs' beachcombers scratching their noggin in puzzlement. Pep, although winning handily in taking the title from the venerable Chalky Wright in Pep's last appearance in the Garden, was no ball of fire from an entertainment standpoint, and Stolz also was no bargain in his last Garden appearance.

The explanation seems to be that it looks like anybody's fight, and that the expected capacity crowd sensing an end to the Hartford lad's phenomenal winning streak, wants to be in on the kill.

So even does the fight look on paper, in fact, that the bookies have made it 5 to 6 and take your choice.

MATHEN MEET STATE FOR TITLE: BOXERS TO CITADEL

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 29—The Carolina wrestlers will meet N. C. State in Raleigh at 7 o'clock tonight for the Big Five championship, while the Tar Heel boxers will go to Charleston Saturday for a shot at the strong Citadel club.

The Tar Heel matmen beat Duke matches to 1, but lost to V.M.I. 5 decisions to 3. The Cadets won last year's dual meet, 16 to 14, but Carolina came back and nosed them out for first place in the Conference tournament, 30 to 28.

Huge Indoor Pool To Train Sailors

Great Lakes, Ill., Jan. 29—(AP)—It will take 650,000 gallons of water to fill the huge indoor swimming pool nearing completion at Great Lakes—and at least a couple thousand gallons will splash over the sides when Marvin Nelson, a whale of a man, spans the surface in the inaugural dive.

Nelson, a marathon swimmer who has won five 15-mile titles and many less-strenuous races, is so big they were thinking of strapping a cannon to his back and turning him loose to chase down submarines.

He's 6 feet, 1 inch tall, weighs 240 pounds, and has a chest big enough to detour a tidal wave. They finally decided to use this Port Dodge, Ia., sailor on an eight-man staff of instructors, headed by Lt. Wally Colbath, former Olympic diving champion, in the swimming phase of the navy's physical hardening program.

Every sailor must be able to swim 50 yards. The new tank, 165 feet long and 75 feet wide, can accommodate 700 swimmers. They will learn the routine of "abandon ship" by diving off a cat-walk 22 feet above the water in full whites and then churning the length of the pool.

The association broke from its custom of honoring individual athletes for courage and instead presented a single trophy to "all service men." Lieut. Slade Cutter, former navy football star, was named to accept it on their behalf.

ard work week should be changed. Closely watching reaction to the new bill to subject labor unions to the anti-racketeering laws, were both supporters and opponents of legislation introduced by Reps. Colmer (D-Miss.) and Smith (D-Va.).

Smith would revise and modify the National Labor Relations Act to give employers the right to appeal board bargaining decisions to the courts, among other things.

The Colmer measure would subject those participating in strikes or slowdowns in war industries to immediate induction; make those responsible for such delays liable to criminal penalties; increase the standard work week to 46 hours, and limit profits on war contracts in excess of $10,000 to a maximum of 10,000.

The measure that received committee approval yesterday was introduced by Rep. Hobbs (D-Ala.). It defines extortion as "the obtaining of property from another, with his consent, induced by wrongful use of actual or threatened force, violence, or fear, or under color of official right."

It describes robbery as the unlawful acquisition of property "by means of actual or threatened force or violence, or fear of injury, immediate or future."

Americans Account For 584 Jap Planes

Guadalcanal, Jan. 16.—(Delayed) —(AP)—American planes operating from Henderson Field, aided by anti-aircraft defenses, shot down Japanese planes at a ratio of more than three to one between August 20 and January 15, it was disclosed today.

In the period of just under five months 584 Japanese planes were destroyed against a loss of 180 American craft, and the score continues to mount despite the fact that most of the air fighting has shifted from over Henderson field itself to the vicinity of the enemy's bases.

The highest single day's bag of Jap planes was on January 15 when 30 were shot down. Enemy craft destroyed were 156 bombers, 290 Zero fighters, 50 float biplanes, 45 float Zeros and 34 miscellaneous types.

American personnel losses for the period were 90 pilots and crew members. Japanese losses were not estimated, but were known to have been much higher.

Among the Japanese victims was "Washing Machine Willy" who gained notoriety for a time by the regularity of his nightly bombing trips over the American lines. An anti-aircraft shell got him January 14, but he since has been replaced

The conference ended Sunday and the chief executive and prime minister drove southward 150 miles to Marrakech, an ancient Berber and Arab town at the foot of the Atlas mountains of French Morocco. There they spent the night and there they said their farewells the following day.

Axis broadcasts suggested that the Allied plan was to sandwich Rommel between the Americans and the British Eighth Army if he attempted to hold the Mareth line or the narrow passage between the Chott-djerid salt marsh and the sea. One broadcast declared that Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, had already sent the British into an attack in the region of Bou Arada and Medjez-El-Bab.

The German news agency DNB however, was quoted as saying that Axis successes against the French in the central sector were "greater than at first thought" and that the necessary shifting of British and American reinforcements had left Allied forces "no longer in position to carry out their tasks."

The full significance of the American push, which the Algiers radio said had reached Maknassy only 33 miles from the eastern Tunisian coast, was obscured by lack of news concerning the development from Allied headquarters in North Africa.
