Gigantic Air Assault Again Deal Devastating Blows On Pantelleria

Allied Airmen Pour Deluge Of Bombs And Fire On Italian 'Gibraltar'; Rome And Berlin Say British Commando Raid On Island Of Lampedusa Repulsed

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Allied Headquarters in North Africa, June 8.—(AP) The concentrated strength of the Allied Northwest African Air Forces poured a deluge of bombs and fire onto Italy's sentinel island of Pantelleria yesterday.

Formations of every type of plane, from Flying Fortresses to small Warhawks, flew to the attack. Allied headquarters said, giving rise to smoke clouds which soared 4,000 feet above the battered island and drifted wide over the sea.

Mrs. Keel Hostess.
Mrs. R. V. Keel was hostess at bridge on Monday afternoon honoring her niece, Miss Frances Roebuck, bride-elect of Washington, N. C.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Keel, Mrs. E. L. Roebuck, mother of the bride-elect, and Miss Frances Roebuck, who was wearing a corsage of pink roses presented by the hostess.

The guests were seated and served Coca-Colas. At the end of the play, high score prize, a linen luncheon set, was awarded to Miss Jane Smith, and low score prize, a double deck of cards, to Miss Emily Squires of Washington. The floating prize was won by Mrs. Ernest Winslow.

The following recent brides and brides-elect, Mrs. Ernest Winslow, Mrs. Doughty, Miss Geneva Moore and Miss Jane Smith, were remembered with crystal. Miss Roebuck was presented crystal in her selected pattern.

A color scheme of pink and white was carried out. The home was decorated with lovely pink and white roses and a profusion of summer flowers in pastel colors.

Following the game, refreshments were served. The molded ice cream consisting of wedding bells, slippers and lilies was served with salted nuts and individual rosebud garnished cakes.

The hostess was assisted by Miss June Johnston, Miss Mary Ann, Miss Jean, Miss Carrie, Mrs. B. B. Gibbs and Miss Gertrude Hardison. Mrs. Lizzie Crandall, Miss Roebuck's grandmother, joined the group for refreshments.

Mrs. Charles S. Forbes, Jr.

On Saturday afternoon, at 5 o'clock, Miss Emily Allene Farrior became the bride of Mr. Charles S. Forbes, Jr., U. S. Naval Reserve, length veil. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of pink roses and snapdragons, tied with matching ribbons.

The bride was given in marriage by her sister, Mrs. Herbert D. Temple, who was gowned in aqua lace. The bride wore a white Chantilly lace and net wedding gown, designed with sweetheart neckline and long fitted sleeves with deep cuffs of lace. She carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses gartered with a white orchid.

The groom was attended by his father, Mr. Charles S. Forbes, of Greenville, as best man and ushers were Messrs. Lester Grady and W. L. Fay, of Kinston, and Fred Forbes, Jr. and Jacob Hadley of Greenville, cousins of the groom.

Mrs. Forbes, mother of the groom, wore a white silk model with matching accessories and an orchid at her shoulder.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. Hugh Farrior, and the late Mrs. Farrior, of Rose Hill.

Mr. Forbes attended the University of North Carolina and N. C. State College.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes will be at home in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Forbes chose for traveling, a silk redingote, with a dress of black and yellow print and a black coat, black accessories and the original from her bridal bouquet.

Following the ceremony, Mrs. Herbert Temple and Mr. Farrior, entertained the wedding party, out-of-town guests and close friends at a reception at the home of Mrs. S.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Fay upon arrival and presented to Mrs. Burwell Temple, who made introductions to the receiving line. Receiving with the bride and groom were: Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Temple, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Forbes, parents of the groom, and members of the bridal party.

Assisting in the house were Mrs. Al Jerkin, of Wilson; Mrs. T. H. Covington, of Kinston; Mrs. Ray Jackson, of Washington, D. C.; and Mrs. Thomas Harvey, Jr., of Kinston; Mrs. Eugene Ballenger, of Wilson; and Miss Nancy Sutton, of Kinston, invited guests into the dining room where Mrs. Alton B. Vick, of Rose Hill, and Miss Mary Forbes, of Greenville, presided at opposite ends of the beautifully appointed table. Others assisting in serving food punch, bride's cakes, salted nuts and mints were: Mrs. Henry Temple, Miss Tick Jeffress, Mrs. Riddick Lamm and Mrs. Leon Tracy, all of Kinston.

More than 100 guests were received.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS SPIRITUAL UNITY A GREAT The Archbishop of Canterbury has declared that God has been building up a Christian fellowship which now extends into almost every nation and binds the citizens thereof together in unity and mutual love.

Do we stop often enough to ponder the fact that the days through which we are passing are among the most important that humanity has ever witnessed? Thousands of years from now the years 1939 through 1943, and perhaps beyond, will be discussed by historians, and every circumstance now being related to us through the press and over the air will be subjected to the most careful scrutiny by learned scholars.

And in the midst of it all there will probably stand out this great fact—the misery of this present age stems from the widespread violation of certain moral principles which constitute the foundation of all sound religion.

Nothing would stabilize the world and give us hope for the future so much as a general spiritual awakening. And if we have this awakening, it must be accomplished by an eager sense of unity on the part of all those who put their trust in God and His moral order.

WHY ARGUE THE OBVIOUS?

It would sound strange to hear Mr. Henry Kaiser stand up and argue that ships were essential to the war effort. Fortunately, he doesn't have to. Everyone knows it. But there are industries just as essential as shipbuilding, whose wartime operating difficulties are immensely appreciated because their essentiality has never been adequately recognized.

Such an industry is retail distribution. The clothes on our backs, the shoes we wear, the food we eat, must be put within our reach by the distribution industry. No service is more essential. Speaking for the industry, David R. Craig, president of the American Retail Federation, has this to say of merchandising: "We are essential because we are the industry . . . upon which the public must rely in order to obtain the goods which it must have. We do not know of any other way by which the civilian public can get its goods. The retailer is the quartermaster to the civilian population. . . The real question is whether the civilian population is essential.

If the civilian population is essential, then the industry which supplies it with necessities must also be essential. Since no reasonable person questions the need for a hard-working, highly productive civilian population in wartime, why should the job which the merchant must carry on be minimized? Why should the merchants, in addition to feeding and clothing us, be forced to argue the obvious—that efficient distribution of necessities is as vital as an adequate supply of necessities?

WASHINGTON IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—There's so much talk of post-war planning these days, it's hard to see the war through the clouds over the future.

But don't get me wrong. The lack of post-war planning has been the prelude to more wars and more economic disasters than all other factors combined. The trouble is that most outlines for peace are nebulous ideologies which are not backed up by hard-headed, two-fisted, practical blueprints.

Wilson's 14 Points, President Roosevelt's Four Freedoms, the Atlantic Charter—with its Pacific extensions and the Good Neighbor Policy—are wonderful dreams to shoot at, if somebody back home is building the rocket ships that will get us there. That's why I want to tell you about a little movement starting here in Washington today. At the moment, it doesn't amount to much. In the scheme of things to come, it amounts to a whole lot.

The movement is simply one to think that of all the post-war planing and clothing us, be forced to argue the obvious—that efficient distribution of necessities is as vital as an adequate supply of necessities?

Just getting established in Washington now is the Automobile Safety Foundation, headed by Pyke Johnson. Surrounding it are the federal road agencies, certain sympathetic highway leaders in Congress, the American Association of State Highway Officials, the American Automobile Association and several other road groups. On Johnson's staff is S. Donald Kennedy, former Michigan highway commissioner, who will devote his full time to the future modernization of the nation's highways and the elimination of traffic snarls.

Their immediate objective is passage of legislation now pending to provide that federal funds already authorized, but which the states have been unable to absorb because of material and manpower shortages, shall remain available to the states when peace comes. By June 30, that will amount to something like $475,000,000—which will build a heap of highway, especially when augmented by state funds. By the time this war is over, it probably would amount to the greatest road-building project ever.

These fellows snort at the idea of transcontinental super-highways with six or eight lanes and a toll gate at every turn-off or cut-in. They knock you down with such statistics as this: there are no more than 300 cars a day crossing the continent; and 85 per cent of all traffic is confined to the so-called "metropolitan" centers. Congressional highway experts think that of all the post-war planing and clothing us, be forced to argue the obvious—that efficient distribution of necessities is as vital as an adequate supply of necessities?

IN THE LOBBY

To The Editor:

It was an interesting night, last night, in the lobby of the Harrington Hotel in our nation's capital. WAVES WAACS, army nurses and heroes, back home from the various fronts of the world, on leave before returning to their outfits or foreign soil. Men and women who have had one taste of hell and are now ready to return and face it again. Boys and girls of yesterday who will never be the same when they return home after the war, and whose mothers and dads will always wonder—why? War is funny that way. Even though you may be lucky enough to receive a scratch outwardly—inwardly you are scarred eternally. That's war.

Got to a government hospital and take one look at those heroes of yesterday with half their faces shot off, or their arms or legs missing, or their eyes shot out. Heroes of yesterday who will be the forgotten men and women of tomorrow, when peace comes, unless America is careful—unless America places the worship of God above the worship of greed and wealth—and power. I had the pleasure of having a young chap from Houston, Texas, as my dinner guest last night. He was released from the hospital Friday and was spending a three-day leave here prior to returning to the Solomon. You should have heard him tell about war. You should have seen the tears trickle down his cheeks into his plate of chicken when a radio program sounded taps in the dining room. A man that will never return home the boy his mother and dad knew. He was telling me of one of his narrow escapes from death in New Guinea and ended by saying, "Believe me, the Lord sure was with me that night. The Lord is with us every minute but it often takes sorrow and grief to make us realize it."

Yes. So our sins will be pardoned our enemy upon our shore. This war has not devastated our churches, our schools, or our homes. This war has not maimed our children, nor executed our innocent citizens. We have not had this happen, but we are getting the results of it back now. Yes, war is hell, but to us at home who shrink our shoulders and say, "Isn't it awful, dearie, I want to buy four stores today and couldn't get a Coca-Cola." I'll tell you, war is hell. We don't seem to give a damn about the boys and girls who are coming back from foreign shores minus eyes or limbs, or who are not coming back at all, but it "burns us up" because we can't get enough extra sugar to make a pound of fudge. Sherman was right. When victory comes, what a celebration. Hall the country will yell "we've won" come on let's celebrate—let's go out and get drunk. We've won—now we can have all the gas we want and go anywhere we please—we've won. That's what a lot of over-blessed Americans will do instead of getting down on their knees and thanking God for saving mankind and asking Him to comfort the mothers and dads and sisters and brothers of the boys and girls

LOSER TAKE ALL

By Adelaide Hazeltine

YESTERDAY: Ann decides to see the battle through when a lawyer named Baxton tells her he is representing Jerry Lane, who, he claims, is the real owner of Terrence House. Baxton also informs Ann that legally she was not Augusta Terrence's niece.

Chapter 3

Stunned, Ann left Mr. Baxton's office, returned to her room. There she found the maid, Flora, packing her bag.

"I was told to help you, miss," the girl said apologetically. She had been a long time with Grand Gussie and looked genuinely sorry at Ann's distress. "The new guest is coming at 10."

Ann glanced at her wrist watch. It was 9:45 right now.

Her first impulse was to throw her belongings into her case, call a cab and leave Terrence House forever. But that would be doing just what Jerry Lane and his gloating lawyer wanted. Her lips tightened. "All right, Flora. You may come back in 15 minutes. I'll be ready then."

She took the remaining dresses from their hangers, pushed them angrily into the case. Luckily her trunk hadn't come from the station. She could have it sent directly to the back wing.

Not that she would need it. From where she stood it looked as if the limited wardrobe in her traveling bag would suffice for her stay at Terrence House.

She was gathering up the last of her toilet articles when she heard footsteps in the hall and Flora's voice saying, "This is your suite, sir."

Then a tall figure in a blue uniform filled the doorway.

His eyes were blue, too. In startling contrast to the tumble of short black hair on his head and the service tan on his face and they crinkled at the corners as if wanting to smile before his mouth got around to it.

"Am I intruding?" His voice was the way it should have been to match the rest of him.

"Oh, no," said Ann quickly. "I'm leaving."

He looked at her and her heart did a silly double roll before she collected her senses enough to say conversationally, "I didn't know servicemen patronized health resorts."

He smiled at that. "They don't. I'm here for business, not pleasure." Then he added, smiling more broadly, "Or at least I thought I was until now."

The compliment was obvious and Ann wanted to accept it but the mention of business turned on a red light in her brain. She steeled herself against a chair. The blue uniform, his coming to Terrence House neither for health nor pleasure. The pieces fitted together like the remnants of a bad dream.

"You've come to take over the hotel," she began in a whisper that rose to a gasp.

"Why yes. As a matter of fact I have. I understand it belongs to me. How did you know?"

Her eyes flashed a warning. "Mr. Baxton was kind enough to tell me." Thank heaven her voice was cool. "He told me you were the only heir."

"That's what he wrote me I didn't know of Mrs. Terrence's death until he got in touch with me and offered to handle the whole affair. It seems he has some people interested in buying the property and all I have to do is sign the papers. I got a sudden furlough and came on myself."

"I see," but the lie in her voice didn't fool her. Then Sarah Townsley was at the door saying in a too sweet tone, "Mr. Baxton is waiting for you in the office, Mr. Lane," and her eyes sweeping over Ann were those of an executioner giving the order to fire.

Jerry Lane turned briefly back to Ann and said something about hoping he'd see her again.

mother had left a will and Mr. Baxton had simply failed to find it. Ann's heart lifted. Now that she knew it existed she wouldn't stop until it was found. Then, of course, she would inherit the house.

"If you witnessed it, Gibbs, it's bound to turn up."

"Maybe so, maybe not." His voice was dismal.

"What do you mean?" He didn't look at her. He shook his head and contemplated the floor.

"They're things you can't hold with forks, aren't they, No ma'am!"

pressing the view also of Charles O'Neill, representing the northern Appalachian operators. O'Neill himself did not comment.

"There is not any basis for reaching a settlement unless the miners recede from their present demand and Lewis (John L. Lewis, U. M. W. president) has given no indication that he will do that," said Birk, former U. S. Senator from Nebraska.

Lewis demanded $2 a day pay increase for more than 500,000 miners, representing compensation for 90 minutes time spent in travel underground. The operators said 48 minutes at straight time, short of $1, was enough. Lewis then came down to $1.50 on a 30-day trial basis, and that was rejected. Meantime, there were two walkouts and Interior Secretary Ickes, as government operator of the mines since May 1, said the nation lost 11,000,000 tons of production as a result.

The $1.50 figure cropped up as a compromise in Illinois yesterday. Operators there agreed to such an increase for the state's 23,000 U. M. W. coal diggers.

Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois said separate negotiations there meant that coal production would continue in the state beyond Lewis' June 20 strike deadline. The miner chief called off the strike in obedience to President Roosevelt's commands, but qualified it by fixing that date for operators to agree to his contract demands.

The underground travel pay issue is the lone stumbling block. The WLB granted the miners some concessions in an order issued May 25 and at that time gave the entire party 15 days to settle the so-called portal-to-portal question. Chairman William H. Davis then said the board "will try to help them" work out a settlement.

The membership of the new cabinet—eight military men to only one civilian—made immediate predictions of its political leanings impossible since the military members had limited their previous activities to the armed services.

Gen. Rawson, in a statement delivered to the Associated Press at Montevideo by courier last night, indicated that unfavorable reaction among liberal partisans of the revolution toward some of his proposed cabinet members known for right-est sympathies might have been a factor in his sudden resignation. In response to questions submitted to him by the Associated Press, Rawson declared that the international situation was the "fundamental cause" of the military uprising which he led against Castillo, and said that the revolution was "indispensable to save the situation and rectify the isolationist situation in which we now so unjustly find ourselves."

SUPPOSE IT HAD TO LAST A LIFETIME

HOW CAN you take steps to make sure your car will last through the duration? The simple way is to treat your car as if it would have to last a lifetime! As if you never would be able to get another!

Keep your engine properly tuned! Change oil promptly—and no fooling! Watch plugs—brakes—batteries—carburetors! Really DO the things you know SHOULD be done, but have found you can "let slide" under peacetime practices of trading in every two or three years.

It isn't as much bother as you think. Because we'll take over the job of making your car last if you'll give us the chance and work with us.

We've got the men, got the equipment, got the know-how to do it. How about coming in to talk it over?

DODGERS WIN OVER PIRATES

Now In Virtual Tie With St. Louis For First Place

By JUDSON BAILEY (Associated Press Sports Writer)

The major leagues drew up what they called a "tight" schedule this year to curtail all possible travel, but their program has run into a "loose" spot this week even though it doesn't call for added mileage.

From last Sunday until next Saturday the total activity in baseball's big leagues amounts to only 15 games. One of these was played last night as the Brooklyn Dodgers stopped off at Pittsburgh on their way home from the west and pummeled the Pirates 4 to 1.

Fred Fitzsimmons, whose lone loss to Pittsburgh in three years came earlier this spring, was in good form as he scattered seven hits and smothered all the Buccaners batters except Frankie Gustine. Gustine collected four hits, one of which was a triple that led to a run in the first inning.

But the Dodgers solved southpaw Wally Hebert in the eighth for four runs on a walk and four hits, the last of which was a double by Bob Bragan.

The victory returned the Dodgers to a virtual tie with the St. Louis Cardinals for the National League lead although the Redbirds continued to lead in the percentage column, .650 to .630. The Dodgers have won three or more games than St. Louis, but also have lost three more.

Today all clubs in both leagues are idle and some of those which also had yesterday will play only one game before Saturday, when the full forces will be resumed.

There will be three games in each league tomorrow, the National will bring together Boston at Brooklyn in a twilight affair, Pittsburgh at St. Louis and Philadelphia at New York while the American League bill of fare calls for Chicago at Detroit in a twilight tussle, St. Louis at Cleveland and Washington at Boston.

Thursday there will be four games in the American and two in the National and Friday there will be one in each league.

Most of the clubs need the rest after four weeks of inter-sectional competition and a heavy dose of doubleheaders over the last two week-ends.

Dried egg production in 1942 was 139 million pounds.

The concertina was invented by an Englishman in 1829.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 8 (AP)—The old guy who didn't look it leaped across the table to capture the listener's undivided attention. "Interested in racing?" he demanded. "I can tell you a lot about it. First skating race I ever won was at Latonia." The question was a surprising one to hear at an ice rink on a hot spring afternoon but after a few minutes with Earle (Skater) Reynolds you come to expect almost anything. Besides, the idea of skating at a horse track seemed intriguing and you suggested that he tell you about it.

Introducing The Skater
By that time Reynolds was watching the ice skaters practicing their steps on the smooth ice rink. "There's Evelyn Chandler," he explained. "Nice kid. I'll have to go down and speak to her." In his absence you learned a little about Reynolds' history. Skater is 75 years old, with bushy gray hair, but he's still young enough to skate and to tutor a couple of troupes of roller skaters he has touring with the big circus. He has been a jockey, speed-skating champion, hockey player, for ten years he was personal betting commissioner for John W. (Bet-a-Million) Gates and as a theatrical man he taught Anna Held to perform on roller skates and staged what he says was the first ice-skating act on a theater stage, back in 1905. And if you didn't trust his amazingly accurate memory, he has some of the gosh-darnedest scrap books you ever saw to confirm his recollections.

Strapping Lad
"About that racing," Reynolds resumed. "Three were three of us pockers at Latonia and we got up a race. We all wore riding boots, of course, and my father—he was the first man for whom Tod Sloan ever rode a race—was smart enough to stap my skates on tight. The others couldn't keep their skates on those light boots, so I won easily."

Not Quite A Million
The fabulous John W. Gates' nickname may have been an exaggeration, but Reynolds gives him credit for making the largest wager ever made at a race track. "It was on Syonby at Brighton Beach on July 29, 1905," Skater said positively. "Mr. Gates bet $420,000. Skater by opened at 3 to 10 and Mr. Gates backed him off the bonds at 1 to 5. He won $2,000 on that race and was $12,000 loser on the day. He bet $50,000 on a horse named Ambrose Clark in the jockey race and the horse fell at the first jump."

Skimming The Ice
Lester Patrick, boss of the Rangers' hockey team, remembers Reynolds as the man who introduced goal nets to hockey in the United States. "I think that's probably true," says the Spalding's roller ball team veteran. "Canada in 1894 they took along some new-fangled goals designed by Reynolds and Gates with fish-net attached to the uprights. Canadian teams in those days used a frame of pipes but with nothing to stop the puck. I believe they were used as the early model for hockey nets of today. Reynolds added, 'I also helped build the second indoor ice rink in the United States.' Skater continued. "The first one was the Fenwick street rink in Baltimore. Mr. Gates and I got Tattersall's old horse both in Chicago and turned it into a rink. We bought cold beer in Philadelphia for 50 cents at a parking lot a block away and laid pipes to bring it to the rink."

Unfinished Business
The drawback about Reynolds' reminiscences is that he has too many and one is bound to get other. He started with the Sox and Giants' race that night in the world baseball game, 1918, and how Johnny McGraw and he tried to explain the game to a non-general, but he soon turned to Skater managed some time in Palestine. And you suggested that he around to asking about the national figure skating champion, Eddie Lemare, who he met before he joined the navy and to suggest. Well, maybe you'll hear some day and on the way, maybe listening session.

Must Whip Japan In Tokyo Streets

Houston, Tex., June 8 (AP)—Judging from the time it took U. S. forces to wrest Guadalcanal from the Japs, "it would take 500 years to regain every Pacific island"—so that is not a part of the American military picture, Gen. Clement Asst. in an interview.

"There will be fighting in the streets of Tokyo before the Japanese will give up," he added, predicting the struggle in the Pacific will continue long after the European continent has been subdued.

Here to visit his son, Charles Ross, Gen. Clement, said he expects to return to the Pacific war zone.

American Pilots . . .

The Japanese aerial thrust into the vicinity of the Russell Islands, which lie northwest of the main American base on Guadalcanal, had the appearance of a counterblow prompted by a heavy American raid over enemy-held Bougainville Island in the northwestern end of the island last Saturday. The American planes then sank a destroyer and set ablaze a corvette and a cargo ship. Japanese fighter planes attempted to intercept and 12 were shot down and three were damaged. Four American planes were missing in that action.

Rountree farm, from thence along Lon H. Rountree's westerly line in a northerly direction to the south side of the Tar River, thence across Tar River in a northerly direction to the mouth of Johnson's Mill Run on the north side of Tar River, thence up Johnson's Mill Run in a northerly direction to the bridge over Eason's Mill Run, thence down Eason's Mill Run in a southeasterly direction to the mouth of the Tar River, thence down Tar River in a southeasterly direction to the beginning.

(2) That at said election those in favor of the levy and collection of an annual tax not to exceed ten cents (10c) on the one hundred dollars ($100.00) valuation of taxable real and personal property, shall vote a ticket on which shall be written or printed "For Local Tax," and those opposed to the same shall vote a ticket on which shall be written or printed the words "Against Local Tax," and the proposition to be voted upon shall be stated upon said ballot as follows:

"The question submitted is whether or not there shall be levied an annual tax of not exceeding ten cents (10c) in order to operate schools of a higher standard than that provided by State support, and in lieu of the fifteen cents (15c) voted in the election of May, 1935."

(3) That said election shall be held under the laws governing general elections, as near as may be.

(4) That for said election there shall be a new registration of the qualified voters of said territory and the registration books for such new registration shall remain open from 9 o'clock A. M. on each day until sunset, except Sundays, for twenty days, beginning on the 27 day of May, 1943, and ending on the 19 day of June, 1943, the second Saturday before the said election Saturday, the 26 day of June, 1943, shall be challenge day. On each Saturday standard attend with the registrar during the registration, the registrar shall attend with the registration books at the polling place for the registration of voters. The place for registration and for keeping open the books, and the polling place, shall be at the City Hall, in the city of Greenville. Mrs. W. W. Phelps is hereby appointed as registrar and Mr. Jack Foley and Mrs. S. B. Carrico as poll holders and said registrar and judges of election shall canvass and judicially determine the results of said election and shall record such determination on their records and certify the same to this Board and to the Board of Trustees of the Greenville City School Administrative Unit.

(5) That the registrar is hereby authorized and directed to provide and furnish registration books, ballots and ballot boxes for said election and said registration. Notice of the said election shall be given in such newspaper published or circulating in the territory. It shall set forth the boundary lines of the district, the maximum rate of tax to be levied, and the purpose of the tax. The first publication shall be at least thirty days before the election. Notice of a new registration shall be deemed to be sufficiently given by publication in some newspaper published or circulating in the said district at least twenty days before the close of the registration books. This notice of registration shall be considered one of the three notices required of the election. Such published notice of registration shall state the days on which the books will be open for the registration of voters, and the place at which they will be open on Saturdays.

The Board of Commissioners of Pitt County. D. T. HOUSE, JR., Chairman. ROY T. COX, Clerk.

Remember when we told you in one of our ads recently that there was plenty cookin' in Akron? Well, sir, that wasn't the half of it. Because today, right in our store, we have on display General Tires manufactured from American-Made rubber! They're something General's research chemists, engineers and production specialists are mighty proud of. They represent months of untiring effort on their part to conquer America's rubber problem, to say nothing of a quarter of a century of learning how to put more quality into a tire. You'll find General's famous Silent-Grip tread design. Their bodies have General's same extra strong cord construction, as always. And, of course, these General Tires are built by General's same craftsmen who have never known anything but the highest quality.

We cordially invite you to come in today and see these American-Made rubber Generals . . . the tires that someday, when the rubber crisis is over, will be available to everybody without restriction.
