RAF Continues Nightly Raids On Nazi Cities

Cologne And Hamburg Industries Hit Hard; Enemy Shipping In Channel And Railways In France Also Attacked; 25 Bombers Listed As Missing

By RICE YARNER London, June 29.—(AP) The RAF returned in great strength last night to Cologne where 1,000 bombers had blasted 600 acres of destruction in May, 1942, and laid the pattern for the city-by-city razing of German war industry.

In a double-bladed attack, British heavy bombers also struck overnight at Hamburg, submarine building center, and continued the mauling that official sources yesterday has caused the sinking of at least 400 Axis vessels since the war started.

Twenty-five bombers were listed as missing.

With this new crusher blow, the RAF was estimated to have set a new monthly record in June for the total bomb load dropped on Germany, surpassing the May top of 12,000 tons. Each heavy assault is estimated to deliver 1,500 tons, and so far this month there have been five such raids upon the Ruhr alone, or a total of 13,500 tons of bombs.

Thundering over the scene of the world's first 1,000 bomber raid for the 117th time, the RAF left fires leaping up towards the overhanging clouds.

The German high command called the Cologne attack "another serious terror raid against residential quarters."

The German high command, in its regular communique broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, asserted that "the Cologne cathedral suffered heavy damage from explosive and incendiary bombs" and that Cologne's population "suffered losses."

Transoceanic German propaganda agency, subsequently said in a Berlin report broadcast by the Berlin radio that "the cathedral at Cologne was destroyed by a bomb hit in the central nave which wrecked the whole building, according to an announcement just made by military quarters."

This claim did not appear in the German communique.

It was the second raid of the month against the great Rhineland industrial center which the Nazis have been reported working actively to restore. The 1,000-bomber raid (Continued on Page Six)

ReBarker Succeeds Garris Draft Board

By CHESTER WALSH L. B. Garris, prominent Greenville businessman, who has been a member of Pitt County Selective Draft Board No. 2 since it was established, has resigned, effective July 1. He has rendered outstanding service to the community and to the nation during the war. He is retiring from the draft board to lighten his duties for the benefit of his health, he stated.

Dr. Herbert ReBarker, member of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers' College, was recommended as Mr. Garris' successor. He has agreed to accept the responsible position. Official notice of his appointment is expected to come from Governor Broughton within the next few days. The college professor takes an active part in community affairs. Announcement of his appointment will meet with public approval, Mayor Bruce Sugg stated today.

John R. Carroll of Winterville is chairman of Draft Board No. 2, the other members are O. C. Stroud of Ayden and Dr. ReBarker of Greenville.

James S. Ficklen is chairman of Draft Board No. 1; W. J. Smith of Bethel and Leroy Rollins of Farmville are the other members.

Jones Takes Over As Third War Food Boss

By OVID A. MARTIN Washington, June 29.—(AP)—Judge Marvin Jones took over today as the third war-time food administrator in less than seven months as the Roosevelt administration let Chester C. Davis go and thus evidenced new determination to put stabilization of prices over all other considerations in the nation's food program.

Jones, a Texan with an agricultural background including legislative leadership in putting AAA crop control on the statute books, moved into the job with a record as a staunch supporter of President Roosevelt's policies. His appointment to replace Davis, who himself was drafted in March to settle differences which had de-

ANOTHER FIELD FOR ESPIONAGE

New York Engineer Pleads Guilty Of Aiding Nazis

New York, June 29.—(AP)—Erwin Harry De Spretter, the second prisoner arrested by the FBI on charges of collaborating in espionage work for the German high command, pleaded guilty yesterday before a federal grand jury and fixed bail at $50,000.

Ernest Frederick Lehmitz, with who De Spretter was charged with working in sending vital information to the Nazis, entered a similar plea of guilty yesterday when arraigned before Epstein.

De Spretter, a consulting engineer for national defense plants who was educated at the University of Heidelberg, furnished Lehmitz with technical information and other data concerning national defense with the intention of having Lehmitz forward it to Germany.

De Spretter met with Lehmitz on a number of occasions and gave to him his observations of shipping in the New York harbor. Lehmitz was charged under the wartime espionage act with sending such information written in invisible ink between the lines of innocuous letters to persons in neutral countries, for Axis consumption.

De Spretter admitted he had obtained most of his information in a manner similar to that used by Lehmitz—watching the New York harbor and activities on the Staten Island waterfront. Both men lived on the island.

DeSpretter furnished Lehmitz on one occasion with a copy of a convi-

Says Allies Defeating Submarine; Preparations For Invasion Progressing

Ottawa, June 29.—(AP)—Malcolm MacDonald, British high commissioner to Canada, said today at least 14 enemy submarines had been sunk in the last two weeks and predicted that the Allied assault on Europe would start very soon.

"We have had a dead submarine served up for breakfast every day for the past fortnight," MacDonald said.

This statement was added evidence of Allied ascendancy in the critical battle of the Atlantic, which Prime Minister Churchill said recently the Allies were winning. Recent reports from London have said submarines have been sunk at a rate of better than one a day for the past two months, a rate faster than the German ability to replace them.

MacDonald told a press conference that the Allies "obviously are approaching another great crisis of the war."

He said there might be "comparatively small" assaults on Germany and German occupied territory, which should not be regarded immediately as the opening of a second front.

The commissioner said the Allied anti-submarine efforts had been so successful in recent months that the tables had been turned completely on Axis U-boats in the North Atlantic. He said this condition was a necessary prelude to Allied assault on Europe. Another was the complete conquest of North Africa with its corollary shortening of the sea route to the Middle East, he said.

MacDonald said plans for a second front were natural and expectable but the decision was made not to act prematurely or until all reasonable efforts had been completed to make the assault succeed.

"Now preparations are well along and it is unlikely that we will have to wait very long," the commissioner said.

The whole world is keyed up to a state of expectancy, he added, warning that it would be unwise but

Canners Enter Potato Market

Norfolk, Va., June 29.—(AP)—Canners appeared on the potato market today and boosted sales on Carolina potatoes nearly to the ceiling. Ralph M. Woodside, War Food Administration director, reported Virginia potatoes were already at the top.

Government purchases totaled less than 60 cars in the Carolinas and in Virginia yesterday, Woodside said. Thirty cars were bought here by army purchasing agents, who paid ceiling prices for them. On the top grade, $2.70 is ceiling, while $2.25 is the price paid by government purchasers.

Meanwhile, rapid maturing of the crops in this section is hastening the season's peak, which is expected in about a week, farm agents predicted.

FLIERS STAGE MORE RAIDS ON KISKA ISLAND

Six More Attacks Bring Total Raids On Jap Base This Month To 41

Washington, June 29.—(AP)—Six more smashing aerial attacks were made against Japanese installations on Kiska Island in the Aleutians Sunday, the navy reported today, and yesterday army planes followed up with a raid against that island and nearby little Kiska.

In the South Pacific, meanwhile, a navy communique reported, American planes bombed "a small Japanese naval disposition" in the central Solomons but did not observe results. The action appeared to be of little consequence on the basis of a naval spokesman's interpretation. He said that while he did not know the make-up of the enemy force it might have been only a small group such as a destroyer and cargo ship or a squadron of torpedo boats.

Sunday's raids on Kiska raised to 22 the number of separate air actions carried out over that enemy North Pacific outpost in a four-day period.

While there was no explanation for the decline in activity on Monday, it was assumed here that the weather had closed in again. The attacks against Kiska are regarded as pre-invasion, softening-up raids, preparing the way for the amphibious expedition that some day is expected to smash the last Japanese hold on the American island chain.

"North Pacific: Little Kiska, a rocky outjutting about a half mile off the east coast of Kiska, is considered by navy officers to be for all tactical purposes a part of the larger island. The raid on it, therefore, was carried out as part of the Kiska raid. So far this month bombers and fighters of the Aleutians command have raided Kiska 41 times.

Headquarters, Alaska Defense Command, June 29.—(AP)—Japanese anti-aircraft positions on Kiska island are hard hit by a new type of attack, designed to counteract difficulties of bombing through the Aleutian overcast.

The plan, described by officers of the air forces as not entirely new except as a mass proposition, makes use of the high speed and maneuverability of the B-24 Superfortress.

To Set Dates Of Market Openings

Richmond, Va., June 29.—(AP)—The opening of sales of auction tobacco markets will be decided tomorrow by the Tobacco Association of the United States in meeting here.

A. B. Carrington, Jr., president of the association, said the group would be in session at 2 p. m. and 5 p. m. today and at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Governor Colgate W. Darden, Jr. of Virginia, will be the main speaker at the meeting tomorrow.

A committee representing growers and dealers met yesterday at Raleigh, N. C. and agreed on tentative opening dates for the flue-cured tobacco season.

The dates agreed upon were: Georgia-Florida belt, July 27; South Carolina-belt, August 3; Eastern Carolina belt, August 19; Middle belt, August 31; Old belt, September 7.

The committee agreed that the eastern belt should open earlier than August if conditions permit.

Governor J. M. Broughton, of North Carolina, asked Carrington to aid in getting the dates officially adopted.

Meeting today also are members of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters' Association, of which Herbert W. Jackson, Jr. of Richmond, is president.

JAPS ATTEMPT RAID DARWIN

Allied Airmen Attack Japs Bases Above Australia

By The Associated Press Allied fighters were officially credited today with breaking up an 18-plane Japanese raid on Darwin, Australia, while Gen Douglas MacArthur's long-range bombers fought their way through heavy weather to attack four enemy bases in the arc of islands to the north.

Washington, observers said the rising tempo of the allied offensive, ranging from Kiska in the Aleutians to the South Seas, might well mark the opening phases of a new campaign to smash the Japanese farther back in the Pacific.

By contrast, a Tokyo broadcast quoting Japanese military observers asserted that Japan had completed her establishment of strategic bases from which an all-out offensive could be launched "at any moment" against Australia.

A communique from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said nine twin-engine Japanese bombers, escorted by nine Zeros, met a stinging reception when they attempted to raid the Darwin area yesterday noon.

British and Australian pilots, flying Spitfires, shot down two Zeros and probably destroyed two other enemy fighters and two bombers against a loss of one Spitfire. Slight damage and no casualties were reported at Darwin.

Wallace Charges Jones Obstructed War Effort

Declares RFC Fell Down On Job And Then Attempted To Hinder BEW

Washington, June 29.—(AP)—A bitter dispute between two of the highest officials in the administration broke into the open today, Vice-President Wallace accusing Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones of "obstructionist tactics" and Jones accusing Wallace of "malice and mistatement."

Wallace, as chairman of the Board of Economic Warfare, declared in a long and sharply-worded statement for the Senate Appropriations Committee that Jones, as chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had obstructed the BEW in its "single-minded effort to help shorten this war by securing adequate stocks of strategic materials."

The Vice-president said in Jones' attitude "a timid, business-as-usual procedure." The BEW supplies the funds for BEW buying of strategic materials.

Jones replied in this statement to the press:

"The release given out by Mr. Wallace today is filled with malice and misstatements. He makes two serious charges:

"1. That RFC had failed in the purchase and stockpiling of strategic and critical materials. The facts are that no more than 10 per cent of our purchases and commitments for foreign purchases have been initiated by BEW. RFC commitments for foreign purchases have been approximately $3,500,000,000 of which not more than 10 per cent was originated by BEW. We have actually received and paid for materials to the value of $1,600,000,000 of which less than five per cent can be credited to BEW initiative.

"2. That RFC and I have obstructed and delayed programs of development and procurement initiated by BEW. There has been no serious delay by us of any vital program.

"I will answer the statement in detail and be glad to have a committee of Congress fully investigate the facts."

Wallace said Jones had created a "false impression" in testimony before the congressional economy (Continued on Page Three)

Over 149,000 Still Reported Idle Today, However

Pittsburgh, June 29.—(AP)—All of Kentucky's miners were back at their jobs today and more straggled back in western Pennsylvania, but there were a few sporadic walkouts in other sections and thousands were still holding out for increased wages in some Pennsylvania regions and in Alabama.

Around 51,000 had worked in Kentucky yesterday, but all 60,000 there were back today except for usual absences.

The number of idle in Pennsylvania dropped from about 110,000 (Continued on Page Four)

Reverse Decision In Treason Case

Chicago, June 29.—(AP)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals reversed today the conviction of six Chicagoans on charges of treason and remanded their cases to the District Court for a second trial.

Defendants were Hans Maupf, Otto Wergin and Walter Froehling, who had been sentenced to death in the electric chair, and their wives, Mrs. Erna Haupt, Mrs. Kate Wergin and Mrs. Lucille Froehling, who had each been sentenced to 25 years imprisonment.

They were convicted last Nov. 14, accused of harboring and aiding Herbert Haupt, son of the Haupt family, and one of the eight Nazi saboteurs brought to the United States in German submarines last spring.

The opinions reversing their convictions was unanimous.

Government Spending Sets New High Record

Washington, June 29.—(AP)—The federal government broke all record for spending money in the fiscal year which ends tomorrow, yet failed to spend it as fast as the budget provided for.

In these historic 12 months, the Treasury laid out more than $90,000,000,000. Tanks, planes, ships, and all other war costs accounted for $71,500,000,000. The budget had set aside $74,000,000,000 for war purposes.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Commodity Credit Corporation and other governmental corporations operated at a loss (difference between expenses and revenues) of about $2,100,000,000 according to the Treasury books, compared with an expected loss provided for in the budget of $5,041,000,000.

Other U. S. Planes Blast Airbases In Sardinia; RAF Wellingtons Attack San Giovanni, Italy; Planes From Malta Bomb Points In Sicily

By NOLAND NORGAARD Allied Headquarters in North Africa, June 29.—

(AP)—One hundred Flying Fortresses flying round-trip more than 1,100 miles, smashed the northern Italian port of Leghorn with several hundred tons of bombs yesterday, damaging a light cruiser and four supply ships and creating havoc in oil tanks, railway yards and industrial plants.

The four-engine bombers hammered at the city for nine concentrated minutes and returned home without loss. Allied headquarters announced.

They created such ruin that an official report said, "five hours after the raid the entire port was still so heavily covered by smoke that accurate inspection of the damage was then impossible."

"Later, however," the report stated, "it was learned that the storage tanks and an oil refinery were ablaze and that an inner 'inactive' light cruiser and four supply ships in the harbor were damaged. Little opposition was encountered and all the fortresses returned safely."

(The Italians admitted "very great" damage at Leghorn and said 175 persons were killed and 300 injured.)

Meanwhile American medium bombers and fighters concentrated on airfields in Sardinia, setting buildings ablaze and pounding dispersal areas, and RAF Wellingtons raided San Giovanni, Sicily.

Fighter-bombers flying out of Malta scored hits on two factories and a railway at Licata, Sicily, a British communique said, and other planes started a fire at Comiso airfield.

Photographs of the Leghorn raid showed "one hit and two damaging misses on the cruiser, and pictures interpreters also reported many hits on the oil tanks," the official report said. "Also hit by numerous bombs were the railroad lines leading to the Marshall yard and sheds east of the city, a bridge, tracks, a storage depot or two." Hits were also scored near an iron foundry and torpedo factory.

Nearly 100 fortresses rained Leghorn, 160 miles north of Rome, on May 28 in their heaviest combat flight from North African bases up to that time.

Aldermen To Hold Important Meeting

By CHESTER WALSH The Board of Aldermen will meet at the City Hall Thursday at noon for one of the most important meetings of the year. The municipal legislative body will take action on the budget for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1. This document will then remain open for 20 days before final approval and adoption.

In the meantime the budget document is open to public inspection.

Another important matter to be disposed of is the election of appointive officers, including the city clerk, police and fire chiefs and others. The Aldermen will take their time, it is understood, in selecting a man to succeed the late Police Chief George Clark. Assistant Chief Herbert Wooten is automatically serving as acting chief.

Using the law he may continue as acting chief until the board decides whom it will appoint. A number of applications for the place have been filed.

Invasion?

Bern, Switzerland, June 29.—(AP)—The Gazette de Lausanne said today that intense preparations are under way in Italy for a battle which may start at any hour, and that the Italians believe an Allied fleet will follow remains to be seen but both are among the possibilities.

What Stalin is gunning for, of course is an invasion of France across the English channel, so as to place the Fuehrer squarely between two great armies, and he is very insistent. There are no indications thus far that this isn't in the cards. The Anglo-American air fleets are doing a magnificent job of spade work over western Europe, and another few weeks of this might open the road for a landing.

Latin, the speaker observed. Politically they have a strong monarchic bias, in spite of their frequent sporadic attempts to form democracies, he said. "Every one of the twenty," he noted, "has changed its President by violence at least once within the last 25 years." In matters of art and culture it was pointed out that these peoples have much to be proud of. They have great universities and linguistically are our superiors. Their greatest weakness, as Prof. Hollar humorously remarked, is laziness. "Classes are either up or down," he added, "with no great middle class such as forms the backbone of our democracy, and their religion is uniformly Catholic."

In tracing the history of our relations with these countries, Prof. Hollar lamented our dollar diplomacy and the fact that much of our territorial growth has been at their expense, but, thanks to the influence of such ambassadors as Josephus Daniels, he predicted an era of better feeling. "We have made them independent," concluded the speaker, "but they don't appreciate the fact because of the way (the big brother way, if you please) that we have administered our gratuity. We need to understand their attitude by our own with regard to hyphenated Americans during World War I. Then our relationship will be less one-sided."

Engagement Announced.

This is a move along the right line. There are certainly too many school houses in Chocod township and by consolidating them we can have seven or eight months' terms, instead of four months' terms, as we now have.

A LETTER FROM MR. ALLEN
C. D. Tunstall, General Agt. National Casualty Co.

Dear Claude:—
I wish to acknowledge the receipt of check and thank you and your Company for prompt and satisfactory payment of my claim due to illness from influenza.

I especially like your INCOME PROTECTION as it pays for loss of time from either sickness or accident.

Yours truly,
HOWARD ALLEN, Prop.

Will Name Opening Dates Leaf Markets

The Executive Committee of the United States Tobacco Association will meet at the John Marshall Hotel in Richmond, Va., tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to decide on opening dates for the tobacco markets. Responding to suggestions from the federal and state governments, the association will extend the tobacco buying season over a longer period than in recent past years. A longer season will permit farmers to give more attention to cotton, peanut and other field crops.

Charles W. Howard, E. B. Ficklen and other Greenville tobaccoists will attend the meeting in Richmond.

State Guard Unit Ready For Service

The Greenville company of the N. C. State Guard will hold its weekly drill at the armory tonight at 8 o'clock. Numerous businessmen and others have suggested that the war time military company drill on the streets more frequently and give the public opportunity to "look 'em over." The company is well drilled, amply equipped and prepared to handle any emergency and take charge until the regular army arrives on the scene of trouble. The Greenville company could be called out for duty over a large area of Eastern Carolina or locally. The company is equipped with army rifles, shotguns, riot guns and an abundance of ammunition and an ample supply of tear gas bombs. Capt. Jasper L. Jones is commanding officer. Lieuts. Howard Sumrell and W. H. Woolard, Jr., are lieutenants. Burt Green is top sergeant.

"We Are Prepared to Lose 10,000,000 Men!"

Chapter 26

THE American officers in Brisbane wanted to know something about the Japs, and I tried to tell them what I had learned. A few days before we sailed from Bataan, MacArthur talked to Jacoby and myself about the Japanese soldier.

"The Jap," he said, "is a first-class fighting man. These troops facing me on Bataan may not be as good as the best troops in the World War, but it would take the best troops to beat them.

Their officers spend lives heedlessly, even for unimportant objectives. The individual Jap is a fanatic. He will throw himself on a land mine to explode it and clear the way for others. Or he will fling himself on my barbed wire and let those following him climb over his body."

I recalled to the general an interview which I had two years before Pearl Harbor with Lieutenant General Masaharu Homma, then commander of Japanese forces at Tientsin, whose troops had blockaded the British Concession in the North China port and stripped British men and women and slapped their faces. I told Homma that the blockade appeared to me part of a deliberate plan to drive the white man out of the Orient; but he disclaimed such purpose on the part of Japan and denied responsibility for the inexcusable assaults on Britons—blaming them on "gendarmes whom I am unable to control."

Our talk touched Japanese American problems and drifted to the Philippines where two years later Homma was to turn up as commander of the invasion forces opposing MacArthur. Homma said he hoped the United States would recognize Japan's "mission" in the Orient and would not cut off Japan's sources of needed materials. If the United States tried to oppose Japan, then war was inevitable. Many Japanese, he said had considered it inevitable for years.

"I think I understand your American psychology very well," he said. "I think that every American believes he can handle any two Japanese soldiers. Is that not true?"

He replied, "Well we have our own ideas."

HOMMA went on, "I think I am right in my analysis. At any rate we are proceeding with this in mind and are prepared to lose 10,000,000 men in our war with America. How many are you prepared to lose?"

MacArthur, at the time, and later Admiral William Halsey as commander of our southwest Pacific war forces, both gave the only possible answer to Japan's willingness to fight to the death for victory. They said, "There is only one way for America to win the war, and that is to kill Japs, kill more Japs, and kill still more Japs."

to govern it. Then our war will be won."

THE Japanese won the first part of their war in exactly five months from the attack on Pearl Harbor to the surrender of Corregidor. At a cost of certainly not more than 100,000 men, a score of ships, and a few hundred airplanes, they smashed three of the world's great fortresses, drove the United States, Great Britain and the Netherlands out of the Far East, and conquered a vast and rich empire containing all the natural resources needed to make Japan the world's most powerful nation.

The Japanese won partly because they planned well and struck boldly and fearlessly. Mostly they won because of the indecision and slowness of the United States and our failure to send more than token forces to the Far East. While they were fighting on many fronts in the first months of 1942, and moving troops and supplies over lengthy and unconsolidated lines, the Japanese were wide open to attack at a score of points. But we reacted too slowly after Pearl Harbor. Planes alone could have held the Philippines, Singapore, Hong Kong, Wake Island, and the Aleutians, just as later they were to drive back the Japs at Midway and to hold Guadalcanal and Port Moresby.

Without planes the Japanese drives could not be stopped. The Japanese Air Force was the decisive factor everywhere. It turned the tide in the Philippines on the first day of war.

With air control established, the Japanese Air Force operated like a smooth, first-class machine. Aerial co-ordination with ground troops, the result of long practice in China, was extremely effective. Their Zero fighters flew circles around our P-40-B's our old Brewsters, and even British Hurricanes at Singapore.

Their Army and Navy worked perfectly together. From the technical point of view the really amazing feature of Japan's campaigns was the thoroughness and perfection of their preparations. They worked out their logistics problem, the problem of supply, perfectly.

THE entire Japanese plan was a desperate gamble but everything, everywhere, broke right for them. Their audaciousness paid great dividends. They were gambling that their attack on Pearl Harbor would paralyze the U.S. Navy long enough to give them time to conquer Southeastern Asia, and their calculations proved correct. They gambled that they could knock out our Air Force in the Philippines, and in Malaya, and they won. They believed that we would be too slow in sending planes to reinforce the Netherlands Indies and Singapore, and they were right. They caught our planes on the ground again and again, in the Philippines and Malaya and even in the Indies. They used the element of surprise to the utmost.

In addition they knew every foot of ground they were to fight over. For years they had gathered all the information they needed. They knew what type of clothes and what arms and equipment to use in the jungles of Malaya and the mountains of southeastern Luzon. They knew what tactics to use to confuse our troops and terrorize the civilian population.

Soldier for soldier, our troops proved themselves better than the Japanese. In Bataan our Filipino and American troops killed an average of five Japs for every fatality in our forces, and sometimes as many as seventeen or twenty to one. These figures were later equaled by our Marines on Guadalcanal. What made the Japanese tough foes was their refusal to surrender.

Twenty-five hundred Japanese died in January and February in the unsuccessful effort to crack our Bataan flank. We took some ninety prisoners out of the whole twenty-five hundred, and most of those were too seriously wounded to go on fighting. Perhaps that number is too small to permit any conclusions regarding the health of the whole regiment. But in any case four out of five of the prisoners were suffering from some chronic disease, usually venereal. When captured their physical condition was poor, due to lack of food and water, but most of them were husky and well built, approximately 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighing around 115 pounds.

Ruhr Almost Neutralized

As Britain's heavy bombers continued their assaults on the German Ruhr (shaded rectangle), one military observer in London said that the neutralizing of the great industrial valley by heavy bombing was nearly complete. The RAF struck at the coal mining and steel district of Bochum and Gelsenkirchen last week-end.

SEEK REVIVAL SUBSIDY PLAN

May Ask Congress to Erase Recent Defeat of Measure

Washington, June 29.—(AP)—Indications that Congress might be asked to erase recently voted prohibitions against spending government funds to roll back retail food prices came today from lawmakers charged with ironing out differences in Senate and House bills halting the administration's subsidy program.

Completing their first conference on the anti-subsidy provisions in bills adding two more years of life to the Commodity Credit Corporation, Senate conferees said efforts to weld the two measures together appeared hopeless.

As a result, they added, the conference likely will consider salvaging enough of the legislation to permit passage of the CCC extension provisions before the agency's legal life expires tomorrow midnight.

Of the five Senate conferees, two, who refused to be quoted by name, said they expected the conference on the subsidy prohibitions to end in a disagreement. In that event, they declared, legislation will be introduced to authorize payment of sufficient funds to continue the roll-back of meats, butter and coffee.

Both senators expressed belief that sentiment of the Senate, at least, had changed since the restrictions were voted Saturday, and that a bill could be passed placing a ceiling on the amount of subsidies paid.

Meantime Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) withdrew as a conferee and Senator Radcliffe (D-Md.) replaced him. Wagner explained that he was opposed to the anti-subsidy provisions and could not conscientiously support either the Senate or House measures.

OPA REDUCES TIRE RATIONS

Jeffers Says Strict Tire Conservation Necessary

Washington, June 29.—(AP)—Rubber Director William M. Jeffers today called for "strict adherence" during the next few months to tire conservation regulations and the Office of Price Administration (OPA) put force to his words by sharply reducing the number of low-mileage passenger car owners eligible for used and recapped tires.

Jeffers advised OPA only 500,000 used and recapped tires will be available for rationing in July, a reduction of 300,000 from June. Beginning July 1, and probably for a period of 90 days while supplies of used tires are being put into serviceable condition, the eligibility of drivers with mileage ratios of 240 miles or less a month will be determined by these standards:

1—In the eastern gasoline shortage area, where an "A" book is good for 90 miles, drivers who hold only an "A" book cannot get replacements. They can still have their present tires recapped without getting rationing certificates.

2—Outside the shortage area, where the "A" book provides 240 miles a month, the applicant must show he used his car for essential purposes.

Present regulations make all low-mileage drivers eligible for used or recapped tires. Regulations for drivers with monthly mileage ratios exceeding 240 miles were not changed.

Jeffers said that while synthetic rubber now is being produced, there will be some delay in fabricating it into passenger car tires because of shortage of facilities, equipment and manpower. He said he hoped in time to have such a supply that "most if not all existing regulations" could be removed sometime next year.

Traitor Slated To Die On Friday

Detroit, June 29.—(AP)—Sometime before dawn next Friday, barring a presidential reprieve, German-born Max Stephan, convicted traitor, will be hanged in the courtyard of the federal correctional in-situation at Milan, Mich.

Stephan, who aided the flight of a Nazi flier who escaped from a Canadian prison camp in April, 1942, has exhausted his avenues of appeal in the courts. Three times the United States Supreme Court has refused to review his case.

His hopes for a presidential reprieve were dimmed today, as a Department of Justice representative arrived to complete the final arrangements for the hanging. Were the President to commute Stephan's death sentence he would act on a recommendation from Attorney General Francis Biddle, who is head of the Department of Justice.

Workers already are constructing the gallows which will be set up at Milan. Tentative plans today called for the execution to be early enough so all evidences of the hanging can be removed before the start of the regular prison day at 6 a. m. It will be the second execution at the Milan institution. Five years ago Tony Chebatovis, convicted murderer and bank robber, was hanged there.

Another Held ...

Lehmitz, De Spretter was not a citizen of the United States, the FBI chief said. He was born in Montevideo, Uruguay, of a German father and Spanish mother. After a German education he was drafted in the German army during the first world war. He came to the United States in 1923, but never took out more than his first papers.

The prisoner was president of the Aetna Heat Treating and Brazing Corporation, and his specialty was the examination of specifications and furnishing technical advice on heat radiation and allied technical matters.

He was consulted by numerous companies which held national defense contracts. De Spretter, combined with his specialized knowledge put him in the position to furnish Lehmitz with a volume of information of great value to the enemy.

The FBI has charged that Lehmitz, an inconspicuous man who was a zealous air raid warden and whose neighbors considered him a model citizen, supplied the Nazi war machine with information on troop movements, shipments of men and war material, convoy sailings and shipbuilding, all collected near his home, strategically located near a waterfront teeming with battle preparations.

Wallace Charges ...

"It is time to prevent further harmful misrepresentations of this nature," Wallace said, adding: "Although the President on April 13, 1942, transferred full control over the programming of imported strategic materials from the RFC to the Board of Economic Warfare, which operates under board directives received from the War Production Board, Mr. Jones has never fully accepted that authority.

"He and his personnel down the line have thrown a great many obstacles in the way of our exercise of the powers given us to carry out wartime assignments. Some of these obstructive tactics have been minor and annoying and some have been of major consequence in this job of waging total war."

In his statement, Wallace discussed the stockpiling of various strategic materials, including rubber and quinine. He said Congress had made funds available for such a purpose as far back as 1939 and that in the summer of 1940 the RFC was given funds for stockpiling.

"From the summer of 1940 until well past Dec. 7, 1941," Wallace said, "the RFC failed miserably, so far as the import field was concerned, to build the stockpiles authorized and directed by Congress.

During this period, of course, private purchasing of imports continued on a somewhat increased scale due to better business, and the RFC entered into various underwriting agreements with some countries under which we agreed to take surplus if they were not bought privately.

"This seems to us to have been a timid, business-as-usual procedure; at least it was a 'far cry' from the aggressive government stockpiling which Congress directed and authorized so that this nation might have a margin of security in its imported raw materials and inventories."

It is entirely possible, MacDonald explained, that a number of attacks might occur before the moment of the real assault upon the enemy or enemy-occupied territory would come.

Saying he would not attach too much importance to reports of rebellion among German submarine crews, MacDonald declared it was known that officers and crews recently had not been showing the courage and skill that once was noticeable.

Miners waiting to work the second shift at Russellton Mine No. 2, Russellton, Pa., read their slogan posted on the wall before descending to work in the mine.

The taste tells you IT'S A DIFFERENT WHITE BREAD.

Its creamy whiteness tempts you to taste—and the first taste tells you it's different! Here's why. More than three-quarters of the flavor and vitamin value that white bread should have is in the tiny life germ of the wheat-loaf in the milling of ordinary flour.

Special milling processes save all of that flavor for you in this fine white bread—and bring you nature's valuable vitamins B₁, E, and G, plus irradiated "Sunshine" Vitamin "D."

There's a world of tasty, healthful goodness in this creamy-white loaf. Ask for it by name.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

GOD'S USE OF WEAKNESS AND FRAILTY

There is a famous picture entitled "Flight into Egypt." It shows Joseph leading a little donkey upon which is seated the Virgin and the Babe. The scene is laid in the desert, with the sphinx and the pyramids constituting the background. Below the title of the picture are the two significant Latin words, "Anno Domini." — "In the Year of Our Lord."

These two Latin words signify that one sees depicted on this canvas the beginning of a new era in human history. In the year that the flight into Egypt occurred, the world's attention was centered on the grandeur of imperial Rome, and people were eagerly discussing the world policies of the Roman Empire. But in Gods sight, these things were as dead leaves falling from the trees in autumn. The significant thing was that a Babe had been born into the world, of a humble virgin, and from his birth human history was to re-date its events.

In 1809 the whole world was talking about Napoleon and his policies, but the birth of three babies in that year — Abraham Lincoln, Charles Darwin, and Felix Mendelssohn — was to mean more to the nineteenth century than anything Napoleon thought or did.

THE BRITISH CALL THEM "SQUANDER BUGS"

(Scottish Rite News)

The British have brought out a term to characterize those who carelessly toss away their money, just as though the Biblical "fat years" were not going to be followed by "lean years." The term the British have invented is "squander bug." It is particularly active around pay day.

In our own country it has recently been conspicuous at the race tracks. Belmont Park on Long Island boasted a crowd of 47,083 on Memorial Day, and a wagering mark of $2,699,153 was reached. Bing Crosby's Don Bingo won the Suburban Handicap, worth $27,600, for the owner, while individual bettors realized $26,400. The daily double was $122,736, the steeplechase totaled $206,992 and the Suburban drew wagers that came to $472,261. Charity benefited to the extent of $115,000, the beneficiaries being the American Theatre Wing War Services, the National War Fund, Boy Scouts, the Red Cross and two hospitals.

Almost two-thirds of the crowd, nearly 30,000, came by Long Island Railroad trains and the buses were jammed, but getting home imposed still greater hardships. It was into nightfall that the crowds had to wait for accommodations to take them home.

The money being squandered at the race tracks shows that this group has money over and beyond what taxes and bond-buying are siphoning off. How to draw up legislation that will tap this money without working hardships on groups that do not have this surplus money is a difficult problem and calls for careful study.

WASHINGTON IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

Washington — The war is writing the passing of the old dinner pail — full or otherwise. Never again will any politician be able to revive that old campaign war cry, "the full dinner pail." And since you can hardly make political capital out of such slogans as "bigger and better cafeterias" or "a thickened box lunch for every working man," it probably marks the beginning of a new era.

Over in the War Foods Administration is the Nutrition in Industry Division. Headed by Dr. Robert S. Goodhart, its main objective is to see that the war worker is as well fed as the soldiers in the field.

This is done by "in-plant" feeding, although that name is a little confusing because the system also permits feeding workers at nearby government-supervised restaurants, cafeterias, lunch counters and box-lunch distribution centers. Actually, within the plants, there are now three forms of getting food to employees: cafeterias, portable or stationary lunch counters, and the box lunch system.

In spite of the spiraling growth of war plants in this country, more than 40 per cent of those employing more than 250 persons (and probably thousands of lesser ones) now have in-plant, government supervised feeding.

WFA and OPA profess to be disappointed that there aren't more. They would like to see this country match England where 96 per cent of the "more-than-250" plants have done away with the dinner pail, not to mention 7,500 smaller factories.

If you wonder why all this tude about "in-plant" feeding, you can get ready answers from Doctor Goodhart and OPA.

Many months ago, the powers that be became aware that industrial employees, working long hours and hard, couldn't maintain any higher efficiency on short rations than fighting soldiers.

Almost hand in hand with expanded food production, rationing and price controls, WFA and OPA started their campaign to see that war workers get more than the ordinary civilian share of food. "In-plant" feeding was the answer. Cheap, nutritious lunches and breakfasts, with, in some instances, mid-shift snacks of fruit or vegetable juices, milk and sandwiches — and not a crumb or drop of it required extra ration points and all of it at prices glued to the floor.

In some cases, the results have been phenomenal. In one big Evansville, Ind., plant, 85 per cent of the Employees now use the "Victory lunch" exclusively — and absenteeism, from this stimulus alone, is estimated to have dropped 19 per cent.

Some industrialists are so delighted with the results that they testify that come peace they'll never let the dinner pail come back, even if they have to set up free-lunch counters and take it out of the stockholders' pockets.

yesterday to slightly less than 100,000 but walkouts at three Alabama captive mines increased the strikers there from an estimated 18,000 to 20,000. Half of Pennsylvania's 200,000 miners were working, and about 4,000 were in the pits in Alabama.

About 3,500 more men left their jobs in the anthracite fields of eastern Pennsylvania but this was largely offset by a back-to-work move which appeared to be gaining momentum in other sections of the same area.

The return of miners in western Pennsylvania's soft coal fields reduced the number of idle there to around 45,000 out of 117,000 employed.

Miners in the last two idle pits in Ohio voted to return to work today, ending all stoppages in the state. About 2,400 were idle there yesterday and six mines were closed.

UMW spokesmen expressed confidence that the back to work movement would continue and hoped for a speedup.

The number still idle in the nation, based on estimates from the field, amounted to 149,000. More than 400,000 were working. Carnegie-Illinois Steel ordered operations of its Clairton, Pa., by-products coke plant boosted from 60 to 70 per cent of capacity.

Chapter 21

Ann found Bert smiling at her from behind the wheel of his car. Though she and the young doctor would never agree on many major issues of life she was glad to see him. At least she could talk aloud and by talking she might help herself to think this thing through.

She did talk loud. She told Bert about the man in the hall and of her visit to Johnson and Johnson. "Imagine Mr. Johnson saying he expected a woman, Bert? Who could she be?"

Bert kept his eyes on the street. He made no comment and she began to wonder if he had listened. Then, under his breath, he said, "Damn fool," and his lips drew to a thin line.

Ann thought she misunderstood. "What did you say, Bert?"

"Oh," His mouth slid into a smile and he looked over at her. He shrugged elaborately. "Must have been thinking of that last patient," he explained. "He was a funny guy." But there was no laughter in his eyes.

"Have a good time at the dedication?" he asked presently. "Good enough. I didn't see you." "I was with the common herd. Of course you wouldn't notice. You were occupied."

It was the insinuation in his voice more than the actual words which made her cheeks color.

"Mrs. Morgan arranged that," she defended.

"You didn't seem to mind."

"Oh, Bert! Will you stop thinking that Jerry and I—why, I—I can't abide him. A man who would find the will and deny it."

She clasped her hands together to keep him from seeing that they trembled.

"When a doctor notices symptoms he can always diagnose a case!"

So she wasn't fooling Bert any more than she was fooling herself.

"That reminds me of the Masons," she tried to say easily. "Do me a favor and drive across the bridge. I'd like to see how Mrs. Mason is feeling today."

"All right, but changing the subject from Lane doesn't settle anything," he said and was silent the remainder of the trip to the trailer camp.

She found Mrs. Mason sitting up in bed with a neighbor woman to keep her company.

"You're sure you don't need me any more?" Ann asked anxiously.

The woman assured her that she didn't, saying the neighbor would stay with her and do what was necessary now.

Back at Terrence House Bert left Ann at the door but he made no attempt to conceal his growing annoyance with the turn of affairs.

As Ann approached Mr. Baxton's door on her way to her own room she heard the lawyer's voice raised in urgency. She couldn't help overhearing the words he spoke or knowing that they concerned her.

"No use fooling around any longer, Lane. The girl's got no claim and my clients are ready to close the deal."

"I can't give them a deed to the property I don't own. I'll have to go through probate no matter who gets it."

"I've discussed that with them. They're willing to take a contract of sale. Here! I've drawn up one. Why don't you just sign it now?"

Ann heard a rustle as the paper changed hands. She looked behind her. She didn't want to be surprised while eavesdropping but she was determined to hear what Jerry would say.

He didn't speak for several minutes then he said sharply, "This is not right. The price is down to $20,000. You said twenty-five the other day."

"I said I thought they'd pay twenty-five," Mr. Baxton evaded. "But they won't do it. With this rationing business cutting into everything a resort's not much of a buy at any price. You're lucky to get twenty for it. It may fold up in a year."

Fold up? But he was having Johnson and Johnson draw plans for expansion with a mysterious woman to approve them. That meant Mr. Baxton was playing it two ways and if he could make an extra $5,000 for Mr. Baxton so much the better.

While if Jerry knew of the plans for enlargement he could hold out for $25,000 or more.

"I'll think it over, Mr. Baxton," Jerry said without enthusiasm. She heard his chair move.

She slipped past the door, hurried on to her room.

She still had time to tell Jerry of the expansion plans if she chose. Yet why should she help him?

He was an enemy, wasn't he? Let them get Terrance House from him as cheaply as they could. He had gotten it for nothing from her.

But love is a peculiar malady. Often as not it hates the object of its affection and yet in a crisis it protects its own to the final degree of illogic.

It will suffer all kinds of abuse, make resolves high sounding enough to start a century of New Years and in the end it will revert to character.

So within two hours Ann's heart had dictated its own terms and she was on her way to find Jerry to tell him that he might like to see the plans at Johnson and Johnson before giving Mr. Baxton an answer.

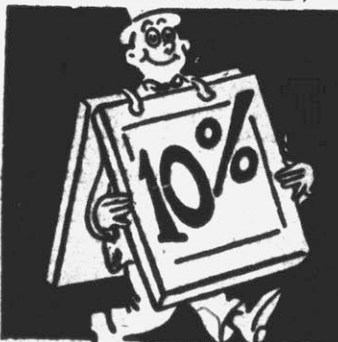

Sarah was not behind the desk and the lobby was deserted. Ann walked toward the front door thinking Jerry might be on the porch.

Afterwards she supposed she must have stepped very quietly for she was in full view of the library before she saw them and they didn't see her at all. They were standing by the sofa, oblivious of everything. Sarah and Jerry in each other's arms.

He was holding her close, almost clutching her to him and she had her seductive face turned up to his. In the moment before Ann could put motion into her legs she saw Sarah lift her lips to meet his.

A little cry, like that of a wounded bird, fluttered to Ann's dround and was still.

Major Leagues To Play Benefit Games Tomorrow

Entire Receipts Of Tomorrow's Tilts Will Go To National War Fund

Associated Press Sports Writer
It's going to be a great relief for the Major League clubs to start another round of inter-sectional play tomorrow.

This is because tomorrow is the first of two "war relief" days designated by commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis with all clubs turning over their entire receipts to the National War Fund.

Last year each club played a pair of games for the army and navy relief societies and some of them were given haphazard promotion by the clubs concerned. Nevertheless, the 16 games, played on various dates and under various conditions, netted $506,830.30.

This year baseball has profited from its experience in 1942 and has mobilized for two big relief days, June 30 and July 28, instead of scattering their dates, and the whole show is being glided with gaudy side-features. All the shows will be either doubleheaders or twilight or night games.

The program tomorrow: National league - St. Louis at New York (doubleheader), Cincinnati at Brooklyn (doubleheader), Chicago at Boston (doubleheader), Pittsburgh at Philadelphia (night), American league - New York at Cleveland (night), Philadelphia at St. Louis (night), Boston at Detroit (twilight), Washington at Chicago (doubleheader), combined Washington-Chicago squad plays Great Lakes Naval Training station in first game.

These games will set off a busy two-week program for both leagues with a heavy holiday schedule awaiting all clubs this week-end and the annual all-star game coming up at Philadelphia two weeks from tonight. As is customary this year, most clubs had a two-day intermission before embarking on the east-west series. The only activity in the Majors yesterday was a night game at Pittsburgh with the Pirates pummeling the Cincinnati Reds 7-1. All clubs are idle today.

Third Street Wins By Narrow Margin

Third Street came back this morning to win over Training School by a one run margin after losing yesterday to W. Greenville by the same margin.

Training School after trailing for five innings, put on a big rally in the sixth when they scored six runs to fall just one short of tying the score. Stump Garrett with three triples and Pease with four hits in four tries led the winners at bat. Batchelor and Conway got two hits each for the losers.

Training School plays W. Greenville at the stadium tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Training School 003 006 0-9 8 4 Third Street .023 410 x-10-14 3 Futrell and Move. S. White and Garrett.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, June 29.—(AP)—John (Red) Barkley, the new Dodger shortstop who has been getting rave notices (maybe because he can finish a game all in one piece) wasn't a "regular" on his club during the national semi-pro tournament last summer. He played only four of the Cessna team's seven games.

Sergt. Young Kid McCoy figures he ought to know how to whip Jake Lamotta in their clash at Detroit tomorrow because he has been training with Ray Robinson, who did it twice. Ken Shell, Utah's new amateur golf champion, crushed his left hand in a steel roller seven years ago. He still can't close it entirely and has to have the grips of all his clubs enlarged before he can use them. He also doesn't recommend the stunt to golfers who want to become champs.

Napoleonic Strategy
Nap Reyes, the Cuban first baseman who finally has made his way into the Giants' lineup, claims that his biggest moment in baseball didn't come from a little thing like hitting a homer with the bases full but from winning an argument with an umpire. Nap, just up from Cuba, got into a dispute with an umpire last summer. After listening to a few choice Spanish adjectives, the umpire remarked, "You're fined fifty dollars." "No savvy," replied Nap, who knew the value of a buck as well as the next guy. Reyes says the umpire fell for the gag and Nap still has the $50.

Leading Hitters

New York, June 29.—(AP)—If Vernon (Junior) Stephens of the St. Louis Browns wants to be inducted into the army still wearing the mantle of leadership among American League hitters he will have to ward off Oris Hockett of the Cleveland Indians. After holding first place undisputed for many weeks, Stephens finally has had to share it with a .342 batting average. In the National League Ellsworth (Babe) Dahlgren, who like Stephens expects to be called for induction soon, continued serenely at the front of the senior circuit's hitters with a .351 average. The ten leaders in each league were:

little solace to the other side of the Treasury, the revenue collections. They took in less than $2,000,000,000, and were nearly a billion dollars short of their goal. But they set a record, too, and topped handsomely the $12,800,000,000 figure of the previous year. The gap between revenues and expenses left plenty of room for the sale of War Bonds to finance the deficit. The Treasury borrowed enough during the year to run the public debt from about $76,000,000,000 to more than $140,000,000,000.

Jones Takes ...

He declined to comment on Mr. Roosevelt's letter in which the President, after defending the subsidy program, said "it would be unfair to you to insist that you remain in your position when you feel that, all things considered, you cannot whole-heartedly support a program to hold down the cost of living." Davis, who indicated a readiness to resume his duties as president of the Federal Reserve Bank at St. Louis, said: "I had hoped to have an opportunity to discuss the whole problem with the President. But that opportunity did not develop. It probably is just as well."

It was a reluctance on the part of Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard to operate under the setup against which Davis objected that led to Wickard being replaced as the first food administrator. When Davis took over the food administration, there were reports that he would have the final say on price policies, but it soon developed that he did not have that power. The Office of Economic Stabilization, and agency which often sided against the secretary and in favor of the OPA, continued to act as final arbiter after Davis came in. Friends of Davis had emphasized from the outset that he would not continue in the job unless he received the authority which he regarded as necessary to carry it out properly. Last week, after he had written the President under date of June 16 that he intended to resign, it was reported that efforts were being made to work out an arrangement under which he could remain.

Perhaps the development that influenced Davis most strongly to step aside was the inauguration, without his knowledge or approval, of the price roll back and subsidy program on meats, butter and coffee—a program which has encountered determined opposition by farm state members in congress.

Madame Chiang Receives Degree

Madame Chiang Kai-shek (right), wife of China's Generalissimo, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws June 26 from Wesleyan College at Macon, Ga., where she studied as a young girl. Here Mrs. W. N. Ainsworth, widow of the late Bishop Ainsworth and an old friend of Madame Chiang, places the degree hood on Madame Chiang's head. Wesleyan's President N. C. McPherson, Jr., presented the degree.

SOLDIERS MAY VOTE BY MAIL

Would Use V-Mail Ballot For Men On Foreign Duty

Washington, June 28—(AP)—V-mail voting for members of the armed forces on foreign duty was proposed in Legislation ready for introduction today by Senators Lucas (D-Ill.) and Green (R-R.I.). To facilitate voting on state and federal officials by soldiers, sailors and marines, the two senators would have Congress direct the Secretaries of War and Navy to provide the fighting forces overseas with absentee ballots that could be sent back as V-mail.

The proposed ballots would be in the "write in" form, with the voter being instructed to write in the number of his choice for president, vice president, senator and representatives. If he wished to vote a "straight ticket" he could write in his choice of party. The War and Navy Departments would be required under the measure to submit complete lists of candidates to commanding officers, who would be charged with the responsibility of seeing that every man in their units had an opportunity to vote.

Officers frequently eat only the heads of captured fishes. A fur seal accumulates as many as 150 wives.

OPA Specialists Confer At College

By CHESTER WALSH Dr. Roy W. Morrison, senior educational specialist, Office of Price Administration, Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Ruth Vick Everett, district OPA information officer, Raleigh, were in Greenville today to explain to summer school students at East Carolina Teachers' College the proposed State Department of Public Instruction manual for teachers on the national economy. Ways to Victory on the Home Front.

Dr. Beecher Flanagan, professor of economics at the college, sponsored the visit of the OPA specialists to intimately inform the public through the teachers the importance of the plan to help win the war through the "American way" of sharing the essentials of life.

Conferees with college students over the state and with teachers, outlining the purpose of the manual are to impress the point that the manual will serve as a guide for teachers and pupils in schools who are eager to share the responsibility of winning the war. Incidentally, the bulletin on the subject now in circulation, after suggestions and criticisms from teachers and college students, will be made into book form and may become a text book on living to be used in the schools, adding a decidedly practical feature after the war is over.

Seek Condemnation Of Oil Properties

Washington, June 28—(AP)—A resolution authorizing the Navy to condemn privately owned properties in the Elk Hills (Calif.) petroleum reserve was submitted today to the House Public Lands Committee by Rep. O'Connor (D-Mont.). Requesting early consideration of the resolution, O'Connor said the committee while it was investigating the abrogated contract between the Navy and the Standard Oil Company of California for joint development of the reserve that Standard is continuing to withdraw government oil.

AIR BATTLES OVER RUSSIA

Moscow, June 28—(AP)—Violent aerial battles are swirling over the approaches to Leningrad with the Germans losing "a big number of planes" in the last 25 days, battlefront dispatches reported today. German losses were so heavy the Nazis have changed their tactics, increasing fighter escort for bombers, and varying the times of raids, it was said.

From the front farther north on the Rybachi (Fisher) Peninsula other dispatches pictured fighting complicated by weather and the fact that darkness never occurs. People live in huts and caves and come out to watch aerial battles or listen to artillery duels or peer with field glasses at Allied ships battling their way into Murmansk. There the weather changes as many as 10 times a day, with frequent heavy downpours. The short northern summer is about ended. Then comes worse weather.

Small units of Russian infantry, engaged in reconnaissance on the central front last night, killed 200 German troops and captured 250. The German communication reported property damage in both Cologne and Hamburg and said 26 of the attacking bombers were shot down. Thickly populated parts of Cologne were said to have been destroyed as a result of a great number of explosive and incendiary bombs.

The great air offensives launched from England have cost 1,337 Allied bombers in the last six months, a compilation showed of these 239 American and 1,098 British.

The official bulletin gave no results of the attack on Hamburg, last hit March 3 and an air target nearly 10 times since the war began. In secondary night sweeps, fighter command aircraft attacked enemy shipping in the channel, damaged one small supply vessel and two escort craft, the communique said.

At the same time intruder patrols attacked railway targets in France. Last night's raid was the eighth British assault on German targets in 10 days.

Cologne was the target of the first 1,000-bomber raid on May 30, 1942, when more than 600 acres were devastated in the center of the city straddling the Rhine. Last night's attack, it was believed, may have delivered almost as great a bomb load because the RAF's latest planes carry a greater weight. Also many of the squadrons in last year's attack were medium bombers. The twin foray by the British bombers followed up a two-way attack yesterday by strong formations of American Flying Fortresses on two enemy targets in occupied France—the submarine yards at St. Nazaire and an enemy fighter air-drome at Beaumont-Le-Roger, 30 miles southwest of Rouen.

Such Allied air blows on the French homeland, the Nazi-controlled Vichy radio declared today in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, have made more than 16,000 persons homeless. The report also said that fatal casualties averaged 15 daily from June 25, 1940 to June 21, 1943.

Berlin asserted that 11 of the American four-engined planes were shot down during yesterday's attack. The U. S. Eighth Air Force reported six missing.

Fortresses Smash

(Continued From Page One) Sardinia encountered heavy enemy opposition both from the ground and in the air. (New attacks upon Reggio Calabria and Messina also were reported by the Italian high command.)

Airfields in the Obis-Venafiora district in northeast Sardinia were attacked by medium bombers, B-25 Mitchells, escorted by P-38 Lightnings, dropped explosives on the barracks, administrative buildings, hangars and dispersal areas in the Alghero-Fertilia district on the northwest coast.

In other forays, B-26 Marauders with an escort of Lightnings and P-40 warhawks, attacked airfields at Milis and Decimomannu to the south. The Wellington night raiders dumped their load on the San Giovanni Marshalling yards.

A dozen enemy aircraft were destroyed in the day's operations, the war bulletin said, and two Allied planes were listed as missing. The Italian communique reported that casualties at Leghorn included 75 killed and 300 injured, while 40 were killed and 52 injured at Reggio Calabria and four killed a four injured at Milis. Damage at Leghorn was said to be "very great." Rome asserted that 19 Allied planes were shot down yesterday, seven of them at Leghorn.

German bombers were said to have attacked Pantelleria harbor with "good success" but there was no Allied confirmation of an attack there.)
