British and American Ground Forces Make New Gains In Sicily; Half of 1,000 Recent Captives Germans; Three Small Italian Islands Surrender

By BELMAN MORIN
Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 31.—(AP)—A powerhouse drive of Allied armies crushed more Axis defense salients, Allied headquarters announced today, as American and British naval forces drew a tight noose about the northeastern tip of Sicily and warplanes laid down a heavy offensive against mainland airdromes.

With the British Eighth Army, which long had been held at a standstill before Catania on the east coast, and the American Seventh Army driving in from the west scored substantial gains. General Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced.

Gallant American torpedo patrol boats, announced in action in Sicilian waters for the first time, swarmed like angry wasps off the north coast and evaded the Italian mainline, striking repeatedly at enemy supply vessels, sinking at least three, while British naval detachments shelled the Italian mainland and the Sicilian coast and cruised into the narrowest part of Messina strait hunting enemy ferries.

Allied warplanes again swept to the vicinity of Rome to plaster an airfield.

The Americans and British in their ground advances exacted heavy casualties among Axis troops, and the Canadians at the central hinge also stormed forward, capturing a large area after an artillery and air barrage which German veterans said was worse than anything they had experienced in Russia or North Africa. (The capture of Agira was first announced in Washington by Acting Secretary of War Patterson.)

The Americans captured more than 500 Germans among nearly 1,000 new prisoners in the northern sector.

The unconditional surrender of the islands of Favignana, Levanzo and Marettimo was reported.

The three little islands form a triangle off the west coast of Sicily, the most westerly being Marettimo, which is 25 miles from Allied-occupied Trapani.

American bombers returned to the suburbs of Rome to pulverize the Pratica di Mare airport 11 miles south of the capital and flying fortresses, returning to the mainland for another of their sledgehammer blows, attacking Grottaglie airport near Taranto on the Italian heel, Allied headquarters announced.

Warhawks in a savage fight over Sardinia shot to pieces a formation of German and Italian fighters, destroying 21 out of about 35. The Axis air force reeled under the lopsided score of 26 Axis planes lost. (Continued on Page Six)

Ciano Resigns Post At Vatican

London, July 31.—(AP)—The Rome radio today said Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, had resigned as Italian ambassador to the Vatican.

Ciano was accredited to the Holy See last February 7 after six years as Italy's foreign minister, a post which he had lost a few days earlier when Mussolini made a series of cabinet shifts.

Handsome in a swarthy way and 39 years old, Ciano is the husband of Mussolini's blonde daughter, Edda.

Opening of an avenue for a possible peace bid was among the ideas advanced at the time as a possible explanation for his ambassadorial appointment. Another was German antipathy for him.

The WAR TODAY

AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

In the temporary absence of Dewitt MacKenzie, this column is written today by J. M. Roberts, Jr.

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
Allied planes are over the Italian fleet almost every day. This is no revelation of a military secret, it's just something that is bound to be true. But no bombs are dropped.

Why?
Outside of a flurry at La Spezia, Italy's important naval base have gone remarkably quiet recently. Crotone was bombed and bombed but not nearby Taranto. Bomb-

Great Aerial Offensive Rolls Into Second Week

Nazi Targets On French Invasion Coast Blasted Today

London, July 31.—(AP)—The Allies rolling air offensive shifted to a new target last night when RAF bombers blasted at Remscheid, German steel center on the edge of the Ruhr.

It was the first raid of the war on Remscheid, which was singled out for last night's heavy assault after Hamburg had been subjected to its seventh attack in a week on Thursday night.

The massive offensive rolled on throughout daylight today with tight-flying formations of Allied bombers being shepherded over the channel by droves of fighters.

An almost unbroken rumble of explosions and heavy gunfire reverberated throughout the morning in the Folkestone area. The whole northern French coast appeared to be in a state of eruption and at one time the Boulogne area was particularly noisy.

At the same time Mosquitoes and Beaufighters attacked enemy airfields and railway targets in sweeps over France and Holland; the Air Ministry communique disclosed.

Fifteen bombers and two fighters are missing from the night's attacks.

Smashing Hits On Japs At Hongkong

Chungking, July 31.—(AP)—The Taikoo wharf area at Japanese-occupied Hongkong was smashed with many direct hits Wednesday and this was followed up the next day with a heavy bombing of docks, ship drydocks and other shipping facilities on the Kowloon side of the harbor a U. S. communique announced today.

Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters told of these aerial blows at the invaders as the Chinese high command announced further developments around.

About 200 Japanese were killed in one of a series of clashes near Hachow, the capital of Chekiang province, the Chinese announced.

PREPARE FOR STAB AT JAPAN

Knox Says Stage Set For Major Assault On Japs

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Washington, July 31.—(AP)—The growing might of Allied arms in the Pacific is being readied for a series of great offensive thrusts against Japan as soon as the present preparatory strategy has set the stage.

This was the understanding here today following an indication by Navy Secretary Knox that the present "island-to-base" strategy probably will be scrapped in the not-too-distant future.

In response to questions at a press conference the navy chief declared that Allied strategy soon might call for major stabs at vital strong points in Japan's island empire system. Such points could include the naval base of Truk in the South Pacific, enemy air and naval bases in the Philippines and various defense outposts in the islands north of Japan, with the fall of which the very heart of the enemy would be exposed to assault and destruction.

Knox made it clear, even though he specifically declined to go into details of strategy, that the purpose of the current island-hopping campaigns are to furnish jumping-off places from which crippling attacks can be made.

These future assaults undoubtedly will be correlated with operations in China against Japan's western flank. President Roosevelt said in his radio speech earlier this week that the enemy would be attacked from all corners of the compass. How fully the campaign in China is developed will depend on the success of Allied plans for reopening the Burma road to permit movement of supplies to the land armies and air forces in China in (Continued on Page Two)

U. S. Bombers Raid Andaman Islands

New Delhi, India, July 31.—(AP)—United States four-engined bombers raided the Andaman Islands, 300 miles southwest of Rangoon, on Thursday bombing a 300-foot steamer at Chatham island and setting off a tremendous explosion which destroyed many buildings, a communique announced today.

A 150-foot ship near Ross island also was strafed and a naval vessel of the same size was damaged by gunfire south of Port Blair.

Other American and British aircraft ranged far and wide over northern and central Burma, blasting storage facilities, railway roll-lifts, bridges, motor vehicles, and troop bases. All the American planes returned safely.

RED ADVANCE CONTINUES ON BASE AT OREL

Reinforced German Forces Hurdled Back Yesterday With 4,000 Killed

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN
Moscow, July 31.—(AP)—German reinforcements flown to Russia from Germany less than a day before they were thrown into battle broke before the furious onslaught that brought Red army forces closer to Orel yesterday, the front line dispatches said today.

At least 4,000 German troops fell before the Russian advance which battered its way for gains up to six miles and possession of 20 more villages in the path of the three-pronged drive slowly strangling the key German base, a Soviet communique said.

The Russian reports said that German prisoners taken in the drive declared they had been flown to the front from Stettin day before yesterday.

The Russians said their advance continued in the face of stubborn German resistance which in some cases entailed hand to hand fighting.

North of Orel the Russians continued to use cavalry units which succeeded in driving German troops out of several villages, the communique reported. In another sector north of Orel it said 700 Germans were killed, nine tanks were disabled and four destroyed.

South of Orel Russian troops were reported to have killed 2,000 Germans, destroyed 16 tanks and captured six others in addition to disabling or capturing a large number of artillery pieces.

The German communique declared that heavy Soviet assaults near Orel "were frustrated in fluctuating fighting with heavy losses inflicted on the enemy."

(Russian attacks west of Krymskaya in the Kuban bridgehead also were halted, and strong assaults south of Lake Ladoga were thrown back, the war bulletin added. It said 148 Russian tanks had been destroyed in the last two days.)

Recommence activity continued in the Belorussian area where the Russians said Nazi troops launched an attack supported by mechanized units and planes in one sector but were repulsed. Eight Soviet fighter planes engaged 23 of the enemy bringing down four without loss to themselves, the communique added.

In the Donets basin area southwest of Voroshilovgrad the Red army hurled back a German assault with heavy losses in Nazi manpower and tanks, the bulletin said.

Soviet artillery was said to have (Continued on Page Six)

Four Injured When Car-Truck Collide

Three men and a boy were injured last night about 9 o'clock when a car driven by Jasper Braxton, 30, of Route 1, Vanceboro, and a truck driven by Leon May of Sheldahlville collided on the New Bern highway several miles from Greenville. Highway patrolmen arrested Jasper Braxton and charged him with driving drunk and leaving the scene of the accident.

The injured are: Leon May, fractured wrists and cuts; Quincy Corbette, colored, shoulder and leg injuries; Tom Williams, colored, broken collar bone and bruises, and Roosevelt Langley, 12-year-old colored boy, arm and leg injuries.

Why The Discrimination?

(An Editorial)

When it comes to the point that the City Recorder's court can try a case and then order the clerk of the court to withhold the record from publication and the clerk, acting under such orders, refuses to let the press see the record, it is, in our opinion, high time for somebody to expose what is going on. The courts are to try violators of the law and mete out justice, and the case then becomes a matter of public record and no one has authority to remove it from the record or conceal the record from the public.

The Reflector has always tried to be impartial in its publication of the court records, because we have felt that to publish a portion of the cases and conceal others was a discrimination that should not be tolerated.

The case in question is that of Graham Flanagan, who plead guilty to a charge of speeding in yesterday's session of court and paid $10.50. The case in itself is inconsequential but the fact the case was not revealed to us yesterday when a reporter asked H. H. Duncan, court clerk, for a list of the cases tried, has caused us to be charged with willfully withholding the case from publication.

In order to clear ourselves, we today inquired of Mr. Duncan whether such a case was tried, and then withheld from us. His reply was that he was acting under the directions of Judge J. W. H. Roberts, and that if we wanted any information we could ask the Judge. When asked if we could see his record of cases tried in the court, he replied that we could get no further information except from Judge Roberts. Chief of Police H. E. Wooten, at our request, furnished us with the information regarding the disposition of (Continued on Editorial Page)

Flamethrowers And Tanks Used In Drive On Jap Airfield

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, July 31.—(AP)—Tanks and flamethrowers were hurled into the battle for Munda yesterday to burn the Japanese out of their rock caves and foxholes and batter down their pillboxes.

Behind these dread weapons, American troops crushed forward a few yards more. The extent of their gains was not announced.

It was the first reported use of flamethrowers in the month-old fight for the enemy's important central Solomons airbase. Use of tanks had been attempted before but the rugged terrain deepened in sunken ditches.

While armored units were blazing ahead southeast of Munda, American forces north of the airdrome battered back a Japanese counter-attack. U. S. navy torpedo and dive bombers, covered by Wildcat fighters, struck heavily at coastal positions west of the airdrome where the Japanese still cling to beachheads.

Strong formations of the navy's Dauntless and Avenger bombers pounded enemy gun positions around Bairoko harbor 10 miles north of Munda. Americans hold the coast north of Bairoko and the road leading south to Munda.

New evidence of the growing Japanese aerial might was contained in today's communique from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters. Liberators, escorted by a powerful force of fighters, attacked Ballaer airdrome in the northern Solomons, causing huge fires. Twenty-five Japanese Zeros were in the air over the enemy stronghold but they "avoided combat," the communique said.

The crippling attack against Japanese shipping continued. At least 11 barges were destroyed and many others were damaged or destroyed. Seven heavily loaded barges, containing 100 tons of troops and supplies from New Britain to New Guinea across Vitiaz strait were intercepted and sunk by motor torpedo boats. Four others were destroyed by Martin Raiders in low-level sweeps along the western coast of New Britain.

FRENCH HEADS IN AGREEMENT

Armed Forces United Under Command Of Giraud

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Algiers, July 31.—(AP)—Unification of the French armed forces under Gen. Henri Giraud as commander in chief was announced officially today, together with the appointment of Gen. Charles De Gaulle as permanent president of the newly formed committee of national defense.

The committee appointed Gen. Paul Le Gentilhomme, veteran of Gallipoli, military leader, assisting commissioner of national defense, leaving the commissioner himself unnamed for the present.

General Leyer was made chief of the army general staff and Brig. Gen. Pierre Koenig of Bir Hacheim fame became assistant chief.

Rear Admiral Le Monnier was appointed chief of the navy staff with Rear Admiral Philippe Marie Auboyneau assistant chief, and General Rene Bouscat remained as chief of staff of the air force.

General Paul Le Gentilhomme, veteran Degaulist military leader, will be appointed to the new office of War Minister.

By solving the eight-month-old dispute between Giraud and De Gaulle over the command of French military strength and harmonizing all elements of the empire, the French committee presented a united front to the United States and Britain in seeking recognition among the United Nations.

It was announced Giraud will (Continued on Page Two)

Japs Claim Damage U. S. Bases In China

By The Associated Press
The Tokyo radio broadcast a headquarters announcement today that Japanese air forces, raiding advanced bases near American fields in China from July 26 to July 30, had inflicted heavy damage on military installations and railroads in the vicinity of Hengyang and Kiang in Hunan province.

The broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press, added that the Japanese raiders shot down 16 planes and lost four "which deliberately crashed into enemy objectives."

The Japanese report was without Allied confirmation.

Mortgages As Investments Babson Stresses Inflation's Effect Thereon

Gloucester, Mass., July 31.—I am spending a few days here in this tourist and summer business. Today, however, the fish business is operating at an all-time high with great profits to all engaged therein; while many of the summer hotels are closed and cottages can be rented for a song. Yet, the breezes are as cool, the bathing is as fine, and the sunsets are as beautiful as ever. Certainly, this is the ideal summer to visit Gloucester and similar resorts to get both rest and attention.

Germans Threaten Reprisals If Italy Accepts Eisenhower Terms; United Nations Await Expected Week-End Developments; More Trouble In Udine Province

By FRANK BRUITTO
Bern, Switzerland, July 31.—(AP)—German civilians living in Italy were advised by their consuls today to return home immediately and diplomatic negotiations at the Vatican suddenly were intensified, advices from Italy said today.

A dispatch to La Suisse de Geneva reported that the Italian police chief, Renzo Chiericchi, and his assistant had been assassinated.

From the border at Chiasso came word that the military commander at Trieste had ordered all Croats to turn in their guns, ammunition and explosives within 48 hours.

There was no immediate amplification of the frontier reports of German civilians being urged to quit Italy, but the German travel bureau at Milan, was closed. Rioting and many demonstrations for peace have occurred in that northern Italian city.

The sudden surge in diplomatic conversations with the Vatican indicated the government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio was trying to bring Italian foreign relations into order to pave the way for peace, and the Rome correspondent of the Basler Nachrichten declared that "Italy today is in a transition period."

"This writer, explaining that censorship prevented full discussion, said that 'one day the present war emergency status will be lifted. The question of peace is not a matter of only how to accomplish (peace) in a manner as little painful and with as little loss as possible for the Italian people.'"

The British and Americans had "indeed the same goal of peace," he added.

Luigi Cardinal Maglione, Papal Secretary of State, received Portuguese diplomatic representatives yesterday. They were summoned again this morning. Most other diplomats gathered in the cardinal's reception hall to await an audience.

By WILLIAM B. KING
Ankara, Turkey, July 30.—(Delayed)—(AP)—A neutral source in contact with both the Axis and the Allies today said that the Germans had not accepted Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's surrender terms because Germany had threatened revenge. This source, who can not further be identified, said the threat was delivered in talks between the Italian ambassador, Raffaele Guariglia, and the German ambassador, Fritz von Papen, just before the Italian left by plane to become foreign minister in the Badoglio government.

Von Papen, tempered the threat with the promise that if the Italian cabinet resisted public pressure for capitulation and continued to fight, Germany would take Italy's badly battered position into consideration in the disposition of troops, even to the point of revising the whole defense plan for Europe, it was reported.

By JAMES F. KING
London, July 31.—(AP)—The United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia are acting in close harmony in dealing with the Italian situation, it was learned today, and it can be presumed that any armistice terms laid down for Italy would carry the approval of all three powers.

This manifestation of Allied unity became known as Prime Minister Winston Churchill ordered all British cabinet members and heads of the fighting services to stand by over the week-end for any possible developments in connection with the Italian crisis.

Other Allied governments were also being kept informed of developments. Foreign Minister Anthony Eden summoned their representatives (Continued on Page Two)

Pitt County Chapter News

The American Red Cross, at the request of the army and navy, is providing recreation and welfare facilities for our armed forces at many places overseas, and it might be said that they form a chain of comfort which extends nearly all the way around the world. For instance Red Cross workers are now bringing some measure of American atmosphere and comfort to boys in the armed forces in Iceland, Great Britain, North Africa, Middle East, India, China, Australia, and in certain islands of the South Pacific.

At the end of April, 1943, the total number of American Red Cross workers who had been sent overseas for service to the armed forces stood at 2,071. Of this number, 42 were classified as general administrative workers and others were classified as camp, hospital or club workers.

Engaged in camp service overseas were a total of 800 workers. This service is similar to that rendered by the American forces by the American Red Cross on reservations in the United States. It consists largely of field directors and assistant field directors who are stationed with the troops wherever they may be. It is their job to serve as a link between the soldier and his family at home, to advise the soldiers on their personal problems and otherwise to do whatever is possible for their comfort and welfare. In certain locations overseas the Red Cross has been called upon by the military authorities to provide recreational facilities for soldiers and sailors on military reservations. For instance, in some places company day rooms have been comfortably furnished by the Red Cross. This is an activity which is carried on only when the army or navy has been unable to procure the necessary furnishings.

In the hospital service overseas there were at the end of April, 1943 Red Cross personnel working as medical social workers, recreation workers and secretaries, as well as medical field directors and assistant field directors. The Red Cross makes every effort to send these workers wherever there are American hospitals overseas. In certain locations it has been found expedient to place Red Cross workers in convalescent homes. A recent development in North Africa is the installation of hospital visitors, who are in many respects similar to "Gray Ladies" in the United States. Their job is to call on American soldiers who are temporarily in British or French hospitals awaiting removal to American hospitals, and this has been found to be a much appreciated service.

Club President Visits Members

The Home Demonstration women of Ballards are planning and canning for defense on the home front. Mrs. Josie McArthur has canned 57 quarts of snap, 52 quarts of cucumbers, and 8 quarts of beets. Mrs. McArthur, one of our oldest citizens, said there was more food being canned this year than ever before. Mrs. G. T. Tyson has 277 quarts of fruits and vegetables and also has a year round garden and a potato house for sweet and Irish potatoes. Mrs. J. R. Gowan has canned 200 quarts of various vegetables, fruits, pickles, and preserves. Mrs. Joe Moore has canned 60 quarts of vegetables. Mrs. C. L. Jones has 100 quarts of vegetables. Mrs. L. E. Jones has 75 quarts of vegetables. Since each home has not been visited all of the foods canned can not be listed, however, I feel sure that over 2,000 quarts have been canned by the Ballards Home Demonstration club members.

Serves Supper to Service Men

On Sunday night, July 11, the Pictolus Home Demonstration club served supper to the service men at the Woman's club. About 84 plates were served. The supper consisted of fried chicken, potato salad, tomatoes and lettuce, sliced cucumbers, rolls, tea, and cake. The supper was enjoyed so much that the club women were more than glad that they had undertaken to serve a good meal to the men in service even though some foods are rationed and hard to get. While the men get good food and plenty of it at their bases, it is the home cooking that they enjoy.

Following the supper the club women stayed for the radio program which was broadcast from the Woman's club and was put on by the service men. It was a most enjoyable program.

The Pictolus Home Demonstration club members wish it to be known that other people in the Pictolus community besides the club members very kindly aided with the furnishing and serving of this supper.

If any club or other group of people hesitate in their decision as to whether to help the churches in Greenville and the Woman's club serve supper for the men in service let some of their number attend one of these suppers and see what a good thing is being done. They will want to help carry it on. Reported by Mrs. W. F. Little, President.

Home Front Service

For many months now at the Woman's club building in Greenville, the different organizations of the county and town have been serving supper on Sunday nights to all the visiting service men. This is a fine opportunity for the women on the home front to make a real contribution toward keeping up the morale of these boys, many of them far from home, family and friends.

On a recent Sunday night the Farmville Home Demonstration club for the second time donated, prepared and served a real home cooked meal to about 100 guests at the Greenville center. It was a real undertaking but the results more than justified the effort.

The happy look on the face of the comical Connecticut Yankee boy, when he exclaimed, "Boy that fried chicken looks like home to me," made one glad. Then there was the Texas boy who said that we tried to get "stylish" when we served hot rolls instead of cornbread with string beans. There was also the very young and very happy little sailor boy, and his mother and sister who had come all the way from Akron, Ohio, to visit him.

Meeting and talking with these boys and receiving their thanks and real gratitude made what appeared to be a big job seem a very small thing to have done.

Here, indeed is an opportunity for the women of Pitt county, through their various organizations, to do their bit for the boys who are doing so much. Reported by Mrs. Bennett Fields.

Kiwanis Clubs In Sectional Meeting

The Greenville Kiwanis club was host last night to representatives of a number of Eastern Carolina clubs at the weekly meeting at the Woman's club. Charlie Erwin of Forest City, governor of the Carolinas Kiwanis district, reviewed the work done by Kiwanis, complimented the clubs for increasing their membership, and pointed out that the old way of life must change and said we must exchange the old theories for the new and practical. Former Lt.-Gov. Dick Bundy presented the speaker, Dave Moore was master of ceremonies. Mayor Bruce Sugg and President Joe Taft welcomed the visitors.

The Kiwanis quartet, Aubrey Tyley, James Ray Pittman, "Fats" Gardner, and Bill Lee, and Miss Jean Aveyon, entertained with songs. Mrs. Ray Tyson was accompanist for the singing of Kiwanis songs. Miss Marybelle Robertson was accompanist for Miss Aveyon.

quantities unprecedented. Knox said that it is "our estimate" that the enemy has already suffered such shipping losses that he faces extreme difficulty keeping his ocean supply lines functioning. The difficulty becomes greatest at the ends of the supply lines in the southwest Pacific, where the Japanese have bases stretching from up the Malay peninsula to New Guinea.

Thus, the conquest of the Philippines, which many authorities think is the ultimate objective of General Douglas MacArthur's vast drive in the southwest Pacific, would isolate all the rich conquered territory lying south of those American islands by placing powerful American sea and air forces astride the enemy's lines of communications through the China sea.

FALL IDEA—This two-piece green wool dress has tuck in top, pleated ruffle, trim neck and sleeves. It was shown in a New York among other fall fashions.

to neutral nations not to give refuge to Benito Mussolini or any other war criminal. From the Russian capital, too, came the disclosure that Great Britain had sent a similar warning to neutral countries, even before it was officially announced in London.

It was pointed out that the three powers—the United States, Great Britain and Russia—are pledged to achieve unconditional surrender and the specific terms of any capitulation would be laid down with full regard for the military requirements of the Allies. These, presumably, would include a joint agreement as to the best methods of using Italy's surrender to strike at the major Axis power—Germany.

The early cabinet meeting created a wave of excitement in London and there was a feeling that big news was about to break—either a sudden capitulation by Italy or a possible new invasion blow. This feeling was bolstered by a Vatican City report broadcast by radio Algiers that Luigi Cardinal Maglioni, papal secretary of state, had spent yesterday in almost continuous consultation with diplomats of countries accredited to the Holy See.

The General view in London was that Italy is as good as knocked out of the war already and one London newspaper, the Daily Mirror, carried a banner headline saying "Italy May Be Out of the War Tomorrow."

As British public anger mounted over Premier Badoglio's delay in replying to the Allied peace demands, the possibility was raised that he might be induced to step down in favor of someone willing to sue for peace on the basis of terms outlined by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in his message to the Italian people Wednesday. This, it was said, would provide an out for Italy in the event Badoglio had made any pledges—as radio Rome has hinted—to Germany since the downfall of Mussolini last Sunday.

From neutral listening posts and Axis radio came news and propaganda describing grave developments in Italy. A dispatch from Madrid reported clashes between Italian troops and reinforced German divisions in northern Italy.

The Swiss frontier town of Chiasso heard reports that Italian troops in Milan had been placed under a new commander, Gen. Vittorio Rugeger, after they had refused to fire on comparable demonstrations for peace. Earlier, DNE, German news agency, had reported Milan rioters firing on uniformed troops, Italian and German alike.

What effect reported German troop movements in north Italy would have on Allied strategy was not disclosed. The Nazis already have taken over the Istrian peninsula, parts of Fiume, Trieste and Pola, further complicating Italy's internal crisis, advisers from the continent said.

Food For Victory Crusade Meeting

Lyle Leichter, representative of Ralston Purina Company, presented The Food For Victory Crusade to a group of Pitt county farm leaders at the local county office building last night. The group was made up of bankers, feed merchants, Chamber of Commerce, Production Loan Association, AAA, FA, Soil Conservation, county extension agents, and others, from Greenville and surrounding towns in this county.

The Food For Victory Crusade is a national movement, sponsored by Purina Mills, and its purpose is to help the American farmer meet his production goals of meat, milk and eggs, with the livestock and poultry and feedstuffs which are now available. There is a definite shortage of livestock and poultry feeds, including all grains, and unless something is done to conserve same there will be a very critical shortage of all kinds of meats, milk, cheese, butter, and eggs. Mr. Leichter gave the figures on the shortages of all grains and feedstuffs, and also the results of nation wide survey conducted by his company, which showed that if the Food For Victory Crusade is successfully conducted it will save at least one third of all the feed now being manufactured, and that amount will be enough to produce the extra meat, milk, and eggs that are going to be needed to feed our fighting forces and our civilian population. Mr. Leichter stressed the fact that it would take the support and full cooperation of every group represented to get this important job done, and every person present pledged their support and efforts to this Crusade. This Food For Victory Crusade will be presented to similar groups in every county in the United States and if all of them do the same kind of job that we feel sure Pitt county is going to do, it will certainly accomplish the purpose for which it is intended.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

NAVIGATING BY THE STARS

When navigation began many centuries ago, sailors crept only from one point of land to another. Scarcely ever did they venture out of sight of land. It was only when men began to sail by the stars that navigation, as we know it today, became possible.

People without religious faith have to creep through life, darting from one circumstance to the next. Such people are guided almost wholly by expediency. Life for them is not a voyage, their sails taut with the breeze, the prow of their ship fearlessly plowing the waves. Neither do they have some distant port in mind. Their lives consist of a series of petty little objectives to be attained by stealthily darting from one point of safety to what appears to be another.

Christ came into the world to give people life and to give it more abundantly. For a person genuinely religious, life is a voyage to a distant port. There will be storms. There will be nights when the heavens are black and fearful. But about the Christian's whole life there is a rollicking sense of adventure and trust which arises from the fact that he steers his ship by the stars and knows for a certainty that because these stars are eternal, his voyage will not fail.

Look up for guidance—not out upon the turmoil and chaos of the world. Happiness is sure only for those who make life a voyage and life eternal the distant harbor toward which the prow is set.

the Flanagan case, but was without authority to tender us the court record because that is within the keeping of the clerk. He did state, however, that he was aware that Judge Roberts had instructed Clerk Duncan not to let the case get into the newspapers.

We have been unable to contact Judge Roberts since the matter came to our attention this morning, but the point we want to know is: What right had Judge Roberts to order the clerk not to reveal the record, and what right had the clerk to conceal a public record even though he has been illegally ordered to do so by the Judge?

The fact that this matter has come to our attention leads us to wonder just how long this practice has been going on by the Roberts-Duncan combination, and how many court cases we have missed by taking the clerk's word for it when we requested him to give us a record of the cases tried from time to time.

No person should be permitted to sit in judgment on his fellowmen who at times will call the newspaper's attention to certain cases tried and urge that they not be missed, and then on the other hand, order the clerk to conceal other cases from the public, nor should a man be permitted to serve as clerk of a court who will violate a law by concealing a public record. Certainly the City of Greenville should not permit persons of this caliber to hold public office.

LET'S WATCH OUR STEP

No doubt every American is in favor of doing all possible for the men in the armed forces when the war is over and they return home, but let's not let our zeal to help the service men sweep this country into complete socialism. Indications are that plans under which the returning soldiers would be helped also include an enlarged social security plan for everybody as well as extended unemployment benefits, socialized medicine and other socialistic schemes. War, like charity, covers a multitude of sins. Let's do everything we can for the returning servicemen but in so doing let's not permit our Democracy to be turned into a paternalistic government under which our people would lose the freedoms for which our men on the battlefields are now fighting.

IT'S OUR INNING NOW

With setbacks on the Russian front, with Italy out of the war for all practical purposes, so far as the Axis is concerned, and with growing unrest among the underground of the conquered nations, Hitler today is truly sitting on a powder keg that may explode at any minute. Since the announcement last Sunday of Mussolini's fall from power, this has been a tense week indeed, with all eyes upon Italy and Premier Badoglio. Just how quickly Italy's surrender might come is still an uncertainty, but developments that might speed the end to Hitler's Europe are expected momentarily. Meanwhile, the Allies are pounding away on all fronts. With events breaking in our favor, it behooves all of us on the home front to put every ounce of energy possible into the war effort in the interests of a complete Allied victory. The harder we work on the home front the quicker the victory will be won and the fewer American lives will be lost.

WASHINGTON IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

During Jack Stinnett's vacation, his column is being conducted by various members of the Washington staff of The Associated Press. This is the second of two columns on the White House by Harold Oliver.

By HAROLD OLIVER

Washington—President Roosevelt's wartime working schedule has not altered much since the war began. He gets up around 8:30, takes his time dressing, reads four or five metropolitan dailies while breakfasting in bed, then receives his three secretaries to go over the day's engagements.

Mr. Roosevelt's daily schedule has not altered much since the war began. He gets up around 8:30, takes his time dressing, reads four or five metropolitan dailies while breakfasting in bed, then receives his three secretaries to go over the day's engagements. Sometimes, he calls in Byrnes or Admiral William D. Leahy, his chief of staff, before going to his oval office. His calendar is never these days, as Byrnes sees many army, departmental and congressional delegations for him. His mornings are given over to callers. Many of his afternoons now are devoted mostly to reading reports, including military messages, and dictating mail to Miss Grace Tully, his personal secretary. Only on two afternoons a week are there fixed engagements. Tuesday's press conference and Friday's cabinet meeting.

The President loses little time getting comfortable once he reaches his desk. He doesn't care for the air-cooling system in his office and the windows are opened. He usually in light summer trousers and monogrammed shirt, no coat and often without tie, with hat opened at the neck. Callers never see him without a tie though.

So busy is he that he frequently calls in the veteran code clerk at the White House, John Mack, for a hand while he catches on some of the less weighty work of his office.

The President's day is long, for he frequently takes work with him to his living quarters after quitting his office between 6 and 7 p. m. Several times a week he stops at the enclosed swimming pool and soaks up his muscles in the high-temperature water. At the same time working up an appetite for his dinner, usually light.

The White House uses others used to be a regular band of them until they too began to get attention, particularly from the President and little Irene Hopkins, who lives at the President's home with her father, Harry Hopkins, and her step-mother.

Byrnes doesn't bring his dog, "Whiskers," downtown, but correspondents attending the President's press conferences sometimes get a glimpse of him. Mr. Roosevelt's well-travelled Scottie and Susan, the Hopkins' Scotch poodle, scampering over the lawn in the rear of the executive offices.

A typical summer day, as far as the President's visiting calendar is concerned, was the one recently when the Chief Executive received two home-coming Senators and the Pacific War Council in the forenoon, lunched with Attorney General Biddle, then saw three officers in the afternoon, including Secretary of State Hull.

"Bear a hand" is a term used in the U. S. Navy meaning "hurry up."

MURDER IN TIN

By CARL A. PETERSON

Chapter 21
Johnson was telling the truth. It was my life I was playing for. My life and the tin. I remembered a few facts. I said slowly, "I didn't report the killing of Lathrop."
"That's right, you didn't. Maybe."
"No, I didn't."
"Try again."
"I didn't."
"Why didn't you?"
"Do I have to write it out for you?"

"It's written out already, pal. It spells P-a-k-e. Fake. That's what it spells. No investigation, huh. Nothing. Now don't butt in until I tell you to. I'm calling all the shots from now on. Listen, all you G. I's, same slow in the years, but you get there after a while. And that's now. But you're not getting headlines out of me. Or him." He flicked a thumb at Chevale.

"All right," I said. "I'm still listening."
"Goiky, huh, because the place's plastered with G. I's?"
I watched him and his control began to worry me. His control held a reserve with which he intended to neutralize all our precautions.

"Lady," Johnson said to Lila Taggard. "Where's that tin?"
"I don't know what you're talking about."
"Chart, the map, the code or whatever the hell you, old man used to write it down."
"I don't know."
"You don't, huh. Let me tell you something, sister. Your old man's in this town. His tin's with him, too. If you get what I mean, And he's got a pretty fair idea of what's going on. Now, listen, both of you, you better listen."

My head jerked up as if he had slapped me. I thought that some of the dust-throwing had gotten into Johnson's eyes after all. "This is what we do," he was saying. "Calder walks out of here free as air. But you come with me."
"What?"

"You heard me. I'll treat you okay. Don't worry about that. You don't interest me even if you're a good looking. Your worries shouldn't be about me, but about your boy friend. Hold on. Let me finish or I'll gag the pair of you."

He stood up, the two guns, his and mine, in his fists. "This is the deal. You come with me. He goes free. He goes back to the boss copper and breaks the news you're snatched. Get it. I want all the papers in town running a snatch story. I want your old man, sister, to read you're snatched. He knows by now that Lathrop'll never show. If he's human he'll come across. I want you to tell the papers with that guy Lathrop. I want it that way. But you run around faking."

I understood now that I had been let free so that there would be an investigation, so that there would be newspaper publicity. The newspapers were the only communication between the Gestapo and Sam Taggard. The newspapers were telegraph, letter and messenger all in one. The Gestapo had wanted Sam Taggard to read of his own murder, that is if mistakenly I had reported that the corpse was Sam Taggard, but more fundamentally, such a story would have reported the murder of the man he had trusted.

And now Johnson was proposing a variant of this original scheme. To use the press to reach Sam Taggard. To report to Taggard that his daughter was kidnapped, a hostage. "How do you expect to walk out of here with her?" I asked.

"We're practically out now. But that's up to you. Yell for help and I'll kill you and her. Kill myself, too!"
It wasn't all clear to me, but I realized that his scheme to hold the daughter as a hostage for her father also included some device to not only grab the discovery, but the discoverer. Like a carsharp showing his skill, he had demonstrated his next trick in advance. What frightened me was his expectation of success.

"How about it, Calley?" he asked and grinned as if knowing my answer.
"You won't pull it off!" I cried.
"Yes I will. Are you on? What the hell! I'm not asking you to sell out your side."
"Where do you think you are?" I shouted. "You're not in Germany! Where do you think you are?"
"Cool off," he said. "Cool off, sucker! Don't give me that big democracy lip. I ain't interested. I got a proposition for you."

"I hope. But you never can tell. If Sam Taggard don't kick through, she follows the shyster. See. I'm not kidding a soul. Not me. No more kidding. But I don't think she'll follow the shyster. Sam Taggard will come across." He aimed his own gun at my heart. "Don't holler, pal. Change your mind about hollering! What's the sense of it. I'll shoot you dead—"

"And our men will get you."
"Not before I shoot it!" sister, too. His eyes almost tore at me. Bright and small, they were burning in his head. "It's no more kidding, pal. It's shaped up that way. Holler if you want. Get you and her killed, and me killed. What does that get you? Nothing. Only me. That's nothing."

Speedily, I watched him. I tried not to think of her. I thought of her. And I was sure of it. "What about it?" Johnson cried at me in a voice that was like a gasp.

Put the effect, not the action, would be the main thing, and times now stand something would be won if the were to prove anything but a liability.

But ships that have been maintained that will run and shoot— they never are a liability to the side which has them. Mussolini preserved a "fleet in being" for just the kind of rainy day that now has set in down over Italy. He wanted it to bargain with.

One expert with whom I discussed the subject says the Italian fleet too dispersed, making bombing not worthwhile during the other more recent Mediterranean campaigns. But several others think the Italian fleet is a Spezia, Bari and Taranto are black with ships with additional combat units at Genoa, Venice and even at heavily-bombed Naples. They say the ships are not coming out, cannot come out in the face of aerial reconnaissance and superiority, and that they are not holding any more Allied naval strength in the Mediterranean than would be necessary anyway.

Reports that the Germans are pressing for movement of the Italian ship to Toulon and Marseille may be true. The Germans can pick up a trader. Dealt and dealt will see to it they don't lose. In the meantime, why do anything that isn't bathetic and may come in handy later?

nation here reminds me of one of the many wise things which my father used to say: "The wheels of business and investments are continually turning. A few persons have the courage to get on the wheel when prices are at the bottom and to get off when at the top. Most people follow the crowds and get on the wheel when prices are at the top and get off when they are estate can be purchased at 30 per cent to 40 per cent of the assessed values, and, of course, at less than the mortgage. I am inclined to now wonder if these bank directors may not be as wrong in their judge of mortgages as they were in their judge of railroad bonds when they sold them at all-time low prices.

There is no reason why both the real estate market and the mortgage market should not have stock prices, commodity prices and even employment. In fact, when employment and wages are at an all-time high—as at present—it is a sure bet that the tide will turn and run out sometime after World War II. Hence, those who now quit peacetime jobs, just to get more money at war jobs, are making a big mistake. Those who are now taking losses on mortgages may be making similar mistakes!

What About Inflation

Recently the U. S. Treasury stated it spent $78,000,000,000 during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943. This is ten times what it spends in peacetime. Two-thirds of this ($56,000,000,000) has been paid for by printing government bonds. This is little different from printing "green backs." This great inflation of the currency should surely make it easier for people to pay off mortgages during the few good years following the war if they will have sense enough to do so. In the meantime, new houses and new office buildings are not being built, except for war needs.

This coming inflation is, however, not a reason for investors to take on more mortgages. I had much rather now invest in good stocks or in producing, well-maintained real estate. Banks, however, cannot now buy stocks or real estate as an investment. They are confined to mortgages, bonds and commercial paper. Under these conditions I feel that—as a rule—it is a mistake for banks to take losses on mortgages at this time. But, banks should remember that currency inflation usually makes it easier for borrowers to pay the interest and principal mortgages now outstanding.

The temptation to speculate I never borrowed a dollar in life and usually confine my investments to good bonds and blue-chip stocks. I, however, was sorely tempted to take a little "fly" last week. I was offered part of equity of $3,500,000 in one of the best office buildings in Boston. The land and building cost over $4,000,000. It has a first mortgage on it for less than $2,000,000. The property was being offered, subject to this mortgage, on the basis of only $50,000, a shrinkage of 90 per cent of what the original stockholders paid. It is true a person might lose all he puts into such purchase even on this much-deflated basis. I recognized it as a speculation. But I cannot forget father used to preach to me, "Gloucester used to be the business wheels continually revolving."

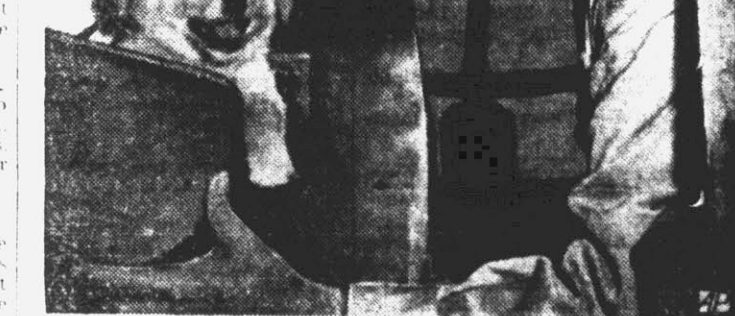

In most of the large cities of the country similar opportunities profit, or loss, exist. It is impossible for me to give any advice applicable to any individual properties, but this much I will say. Many mortgages which are now looked upon as of little value will be paid in full when inflation is going at high speed. Foolish as those who needlessly sacrifice mortgages of real estate at this time, less the money is immediately invested in properly selected stocks which are reasonably sure to double or triple in value.

The Axis stops at nothing—Don't stop at 10%.

Cubs Have Good Chance To Gain Second Place

Win 21 Out Of Last 30 Games To Push Contenders In First Division

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Virtually unnoticed, the Chicago Cubs have moved into the thick of contention for first division honors in the National League and today have an excellent chance of beating out Pittsburgh, Brooklyn and Cincinnati for second place.

The Bruins who couldn't seem to do anything right for the first couple of months of the season, have won 21 of their last 30 games and jumped from last to fifth place, only 2 1-2 games out of the first division and 1-2 behind the second place Pirates.

This is speeding along at 700 pace and recalls the late season surge of the Cubs in 1935 and 1938 when they beat out the Cardinals and Pirates, respectively, for the pennant in the closing Bruins have been overlooked in the upheaval over the dismissal of Bucky Harris as manager of the Phillies and the ousting of Brooklyn from second place for the first time since 1939.

The Cubs have been getting good pitching and hitting at the same time. They beat Brooklyn for the third straight time yesterday, 12 to 3, as Hi Bithorn chalked up his 12th victory of the season and outfielder Bill Nicholson took over the Major League leadership in runs batted in and homers. Nicholson swatted his 15th round-tripper in the third for what proved to be the winning run. Altogether he drove in five runs with his circuit clout, a double and single to boost his RBI to 71.

The first place Cardinals, who open a three-game series with the slipping Dodgers today, dropped an 11-inning game to the Phillies, 3 to 2, when pinchhitter Jimmy Waddell singled home Buster Adams. Big Mort Cooper tried for his 15th triumph of the season, but instead suffered his sixth defeat.

In the American league the New York Yankees make it three out of four and 20 victories in their last 31 games by again beating Cleveland, 5-4. Although belted for two homers by Jeff Heath, Ernie Bonham singled only six hits in winning his 10th of the campaign, first baseman Nick Etten drove in three runs to spark the Yanks' attack.

Early Wynn stopped a three-game Washington losing streak by hurling a five-hitter against the Chicago White Sox to win, 4 to 1, while Dick Siebert singled home Johnny Welay in the 11th inning to give the Philadelphia Athletics a 3 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns. Bobo Newson started for the Browns, but was lifted for a pinchhitter in the eighth. Elmer Riddle hung up his 14th win in pitching Cincinnati to a three-hit 2 to 0 shutout over the Boston Braves in the first game of a twin bill, but Red Barrett duplicated his performance in the night cap for a 3-0 Boston triumph and a split.

The New York Giants blasted over seven runs in the second inning against the Pirates and added five more in the third, but still had to call on relief pitcher Art Adams in beating Pittsburgh, 17 to 7. Adams came in in the sixth after Bill Baker hit a homer with the bases full of Pirates.

Detroit lost the first game of a doubleheader to the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 2, and was on the verge of losing the second when, with

Just before Luke Appling of the White Sox hit his first homer of the season against the Yanks the other day, he belted three of Jake Wade's batting practice tosses into the stands. "But I've made up my mind that if you can hit the ball out of the park I'll throwing left handed. I'll just change over and throw right hand from now on."

Underground Ready To Rise Against The Axis

Madrid, July 31—(AP)—Underground forces of occupied Europe and opponents of pro-German Balkan governments, stirred by Benito Mussolini's ouster and the Italian crisis, have grown increasingly restless and some are awaiting orders to erupt against Axis powers, dispatches and reports from widely-separated points indicated today.

Grain Market

Chicago, July 31—(AP)—Buying by milling interests gave a firm undertone to the wheat market today after prices had slumped at the opening on further weakness in securities and indications the Italian situation was heading for a week-end climax.

September wheat closed 1.44 1/4-5/8, oats 69 1/2, rye 1.01 1/4-5/8.

New York Cotton

New York, July 31—(AP)—Cotton futures opened 5-15 cents, but lower. Futures closed 30-35 cents a bale lower.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, July 31—(AP)—The stock market suffered another wide decline today on selling attributed by brokers to tension over the Italian situation.

Many rail and industrial leaders dropped $1 to $2 a share and in some instances the losses ranged from $3 to $5.

The downward swing today left market averages well under the four-year peaks recorded early this month. Prices established lower marks in every session but one during the week and declines for the period were the sharpest recorded in any week since the market started its long upward climb.

Bonds were depressed and some commodities lost ground.

Stock Exchange dealings totaled 823,450 shares, largest Saturday turnover since May 8.

SOLDIER FINDS WORLD SMALL

American Doughboy Finds Granddad In Palermo

By REILMAN MORIN
Allied Headquarters in North Africa, July 30—(Delayed)—(AP)—The old man's eyes were dark and pleading.

He had taken off his straw hat and was standing on the white-hot street in Palermo in front of a building guarded by a tall American soldier. He spoke rapidly in Italian. Then he stopped, and his eyes anxiously searched the soldier's face. The soldier shook his head.

"No compree, pop," he said.

From the inside of the building a voice bellowed: "What's going on out there?"

"There's an old guy trying to tell me something but I can't savvy what he wants," the guard said. "He's a nice old guy, too."

Other voices heavy with sleep murmured "can the bag." The soldier, who looked tired, turned back to the old man.

"The old man's eyes were hopeful. The soldier whispered: 'You wait a second, pop—stay right here—I got an idea.'

He slipped inside the doorway and stood for a moment until his eyes were accustomed to the cool darkness of the room. Then picking his way carefully between the rows of men stretched on the stone floor he tiptoed over to the extreme corner. There he bent down and shook one of the sleeping men. "Hey, Tony," he whispered.

The soldier's eyes opened. "What's up? What's happening?"

"Can you come outside a second, Tony?" the guard asked. "There's an old guy out there that wants something and I thought maybe you could talk to him on account you can speak this lingo."

A few minutes later Private Tony Calato of San Francisco was in the old man's arms and the old man was crying and laughing and kissing the soldier on both cheeks while the bewildered guard and other soldiers watched with amazement.

"He's my granddad," said Private Calato. "My dad was born over here and so when grandpa saw the American army in Palermo he figured I'd surely be along and he's been hunting for me."

onslaught was laid at the door of the Radio Regio, the government for terrorizing and giving the Germans time to strengthen their positions in Italy.

The first broadcast from the powerful United Nations radio station here was scheduled to be followed by others from London and Washington.

The message warned the Italians to remain clear of railways, factories, depots, German military barracks and all other military objectives.

"The blood of every Italian struck will be on the head of the men in Rome who, in Italy's hour of decision, temporized instead of acting for honor, peace and freedom," it was said.

to one Allied plane missing for the day.

American and British warships sweeping the Italian coastal waters in defiance of enemy shore guns sank one merchant motor torpedo boat and three heavily armed fighters, it was officially announced.

Allied cruisers and destroyers on Wednesday night bombarded important railway bridges near Locri, 20 miles from Cape Spartivento on the under side of the Italian toe.

The official announcements disclosed great activity by Allied light coastal forces off the north coast of Sicily as the Allied blockade closed in on the Germans and Italians still fighting at the eastern Sicilian tip.

ly for the first time, sank a large merchantman last Sunday night in the Gulf of Patni on the northern sea flank of this hemmed-in enemy force. The ship was being towed by a tug and the tug also was machine-gunned.

The same night other American motor torpedo boats attacked heavily armed enemy lighters near the island of Stromboli, about half way between Sicily and Italy, sinking two of the enemy craft and damaging others.

Two days ago the American motor torpedo boats engaged three heavily armed enemy lighters off Cape Orlando on Sicily's north coast and were credited with probably sinking one.

smashed 52 blockhouses and dugouts and an ammunition dump on the Leningrad front and Red army armor, wrecked three German trains and brought down four enemy planes.

The bulletin said a reconnaissance group captured a village in a surprise attack on the Kalinin front and in the Barents sea two German patrol boats were sunk by Red army aircraft. A German transport was sunk by plane attack in the Gulf of Finland, the communiqué said.

The same night a detachment of British light coastal craft drove right into Messina Strait off Reggio Calabria on the Italian mainland, defeating numerous enemy searchlights and undergoing fire of shore batteries without sustaining damage.

Fires were seen rising high following an American Mitchell assault on Practica Di Mare outside Rome and the 1,300-mile roundtrip Portress attack on Gruttaglio. Hits were made on dispersal areas and administration buildings. Axis planes made no attempt to turn aside the blows.
