American Forces Smash Forward Toward Cassino

Victorious Americans Storming At Outer Defenses Of City Following Capture Of San Vittore After Bitter Fighting

By WES GALLAGHER

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Victorious American troops massed around captured San Vittore today forming a spearhead which stormed at the outer defenses of Cassino, 70 straight-line miles from Rome.

The fall of the fiercely-defended little mountain village of San Vittore along the Via Cassina was disclosed yesterday by Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead.

His dispatch from the front said that San Vittore had been seized Thursday after a violent 40-hour battle from house to house. The village is six miles from Cassino.

The capture was confirmed today in the headquarters communiqué, which said that the Fifth army had advanced all along a ten-mile front in the jagged hills on both sides of the road.

Even before this official announcement of the taking of San Vittore, the Americans had smashed on in the direction of Cassino and were fighting in the streets of Giustolito, a tiny village more than half a mile to the north.

Allied units in the Fifth army south of the Rome road matched this advance by driving through minefields and past pillboxes to reach Mt. Porchia, a 900-foot high peak two miles southwest of San Vittore.

This peak controls the road all the way to Cassino, which itself now is within easy range of Allied big guns. Reports from the front said that the Germans had built a gigantic defense ring around the important junction, fortifying every house in every village and farm community along the way.

On the northern end of the Fifth army's ten-mile offensive front, Allied forces pushed on from captured Giustolito, a 900-foot high peak, and captured a nearby 4,000-foot peak south of Vittore. This drive formed the northern arm of a pincers aimed at Cassino.

North of Vittore, however, the Germans recaptured Mt. Raimo, but this bitter see-saw mountain warfare in central Italy had no immediate relation to the Fifth army's offensive in the Cassino area, now in its fourth day.

Deep snow on the Eighth army front blocked all large scale movements, the communiqué said, although there were several sharp patrol clashes. In one such clash on the Adriatic coast 22 Germans were killed.

The Cairo radio said Canadian troops in this area had thrust forward to occupy several high features overlooking Torre Mucchio and now look down on the main road to Pescara. The broadcast said Indian troops advanced four miles.

British Navy Sinks Two Nazi U-Boats

London, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Destruction of two German U-boats within the space of eight hours by Royal Navy craft while on patrol northwest of the Azores some weeks ago was announced today by the Admiralty.

Both the undersea craft, the announcement said, fell victim to depth charge attack, their final minutes being marked by "breaking up noises" and deep underwater explosions audible to those aboard the British ships.

The WAR TODAY

AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Associated Press War Analyst
Quite a flurry was caused yesterday by Stockholm's report that Allied troops had invaded Yugoslavia—a sensation which still retains elements of great interest despite the quick denial at Allied headquarters in Algiers.

America and Britain have been sending missions of officers and technical experts into Yugoslavia to assist Marshal Tito in his handling of Hitler's troops. Presumably a contingent of such specialists was mistaken for part of an ambitious fighting force.

Yugoslavia and the rest of the Balkans are an increasingly hot spot because of the Russian offensive toward Rumania. The Balkans have been the bulwark protecting the right flank of Hitler's Russian foe. If he can be deprived of this shield, his right wing to the north will be in a bad way.

Marshal Tito's guerrilla army has been out-smarting a numerically superior force. The Allies have been giving him assistance, including an effort, both by bombing and by psychological pressure, to compel neighboring Bulgaria to forsake the Germans.

Bulgaria is the lever with which the Allies could turn the Balkan peninsula bottom side up—if they could get hold of the lever. The situation is complicated, but Bulgaria's attitude will depend heavily on what Turkey does. Should the Turks enter the war on the Allied side, the presumption is that Bulgaria would desert Hitler.

At the time of the Moscow conference of the big three—America, Russia and Britain—there was a lot of talk that the Turks were about to join the Allies.

New German "Siegfried Line"

German prisoners report that Reich engineers completed an Italian "Siegfried Line" a few miles behind the present battle front (heavy line). It is supposed to be strongest in the Cassino area and inland from Pescara. Arrows indicate where the Allies have scored gains in their drive up the Italian mainland. Americans captured San Vittore Thursday and are driving toward Cassino. (AP Wirephoto).

SPECULATION ON INVASION

Uncertainty of Allied Moves Keeps Nazis Guessing

By JAMES F. LONG

London, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The Russian new year offensive, considered in the light of the Teheran unification of strategy among the Allies, is keeping the Germans off-balance in their guessing as to when the western invasion will begin.

Obviously the opening of the second front will be keyed closely with the tie-up of the maximum number of German forces.

Late April or early May is the period generally speculated upon as the invasion time, but by then the Red army may be at low ebb if the present exhausting offensive—already unbroken for six months—continues. Besides April and May are the mud months on the continent.

Nazi guessing has been about evenly divided. The Nazi-controlled Paris radio and some Berlin commentators have

Noted Aero Engineer Describes 'Rocket-Plane' As Important Tactical Weapon

By STEVEN WILLIAMS

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Jet-propelled aircraft, with terrific speed and proven efficiency at great altitudes, will be "a highly important tactical weapon" against the Axis, and may even be used in the expected invasion of Europe from the west, Major Alexander P. De Seversky predicted today.

The noted aeronautical engineer, designer and air warfare strategist in an interview explained the principle which sends craft streaking through space without propellers above the atmosphere.

De Seversky discussed jet propulsion when asked to comment on the announcement Thursday by the U. S. army air forces and the RAF that British-American engineering laboratories had turned out a new plane capable of enormous speeds at high altitudes without standard propellers.

De Seversky, who said that in 1934 he urged the United States to adopt jet propelled torpedoes which the

Rotation Plan For Furloughs

Washington, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The War Department has adopted a troop rotation policy "which should assure" that by mid-1944 all soldiers in Alaska and the Caribbean areas with two years of overseas service will be returned to the United States, Senator Reynolds (D-NC) said today.

Reynolds, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, reported the rotation outlook in other areas as follows:

North Africa: Plans have been instituted to return monthly a limited number of men with more than 18 months' overseas service.

South and Southwest Pacific: "It is anticipated that the present difficulties in returning men from these theaters of operation will be overcome in the spring of 1944, and that a system will be put into effect to return a certain number of men to the United States."

European: "Up to the present time men in this theater, other than those in the air crews, have not been subject to combat fatigue and stress, and the climatic conditions do not necessitate a change, and therefore no system has been established for this theater for the rotation of troops to the homeland. As the situation changes in the European theater a system will be put into effect."

Air Crew Personnel: "The rotation of air crew personnel serving overseas in all theaters has been established and is functioning satisfactorily."

U. S. Airmen Deal "Death Blow" To Industrial City of Ludwigshafen

By W. W. HERCHER

London, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Britain's wooden Mosquito bombers, raiding Germany for the seventh consecutive night, hit targets in the western Reich last night without loss in the wake of a strong American daylight attack which Swedish reports said gave the chemical city of Ludwigshafen a "death blow."

Stockholm's Morgon Tidningen declared the force of hundreds of Flying Fortresses and Liberators which drove deep into southwest Germany yesterday bombed the I. G. Farben poison gas works at Ludwigshafen and that the city "now looks completely flattened out."

Quoting private reports, the paper said block-busters and incendiaries were dropped, setting giant fires which turned the town into "a sea of fire."

Stockholm reports also said the twin city of Mannheim was struck. A joint British-American communiqué released today failed to identify the targets. Neither did the British designate where their Mosquitos hit last night.

One U. S. pilot described the daylight formations as "the largest number of American planes I have ever seen on one mission."

The German high command, confirming Swedish reports that Ludwigshafen and Mannheim were the targets for the American heavy bomber smash, acknowledged that heavy damage had been done to the twin industrial cities. It claimed that 27 American and British four-engine bombers were shot down over Reich territory during the first week of the new year.

Meanwhile, indications that the Allies were attacking northern France for the 17th time in 19 days came in a Vichy broadcast report of morning raids in that area.

Will Seek Recess In Meat Rationing

Washington, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Senator Thomas (R-Idaho) plans to introduce a resolution directing the OPA to suspend all meat rationing until present supplies available to the public can be consumed.

He said he will take the step because of what he termed the "studied refusal" of government officials to take any steps to avert further wholesale waste of meat, and a prospective future shortage.

He added that he believes thousands of tons of surplus pork, lamb and beef now are destined to spoil or be destroyed.

Car Dealers Must Register All Cars

Raleigh, Jan. 8.—All dealers must register all new and used cars in their possession with their local war price and rationing board on or before January 11.

The Raleigh OPA district office today stressed the need for prompt filing of these figures and urged dealers to report their cars at once on OPA form No. 578.

Official Describes Tax Bill As Tragic Failure

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

Washington, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The new tax bill is (take your choice): "A tragic failure," (Randolph Paul, treasury general counsel speaking.)

Or—"Just about all the American people can stand." (The estimate of Chairman George (D-Ga) of the Senate Finance Committee.)

Their appraisals of the pending measure, due to be called up in the senate next week, were made independently by the two officials last night in speeches delivered 500 miles apart geographically and considerably farther removed ideologically.

George, broadcasting from the capital, said congress generally agreed it would be impossible to raise much more than one-fifth of the $20,000,000,000 the treasury demanded, without disrupting the national economy.

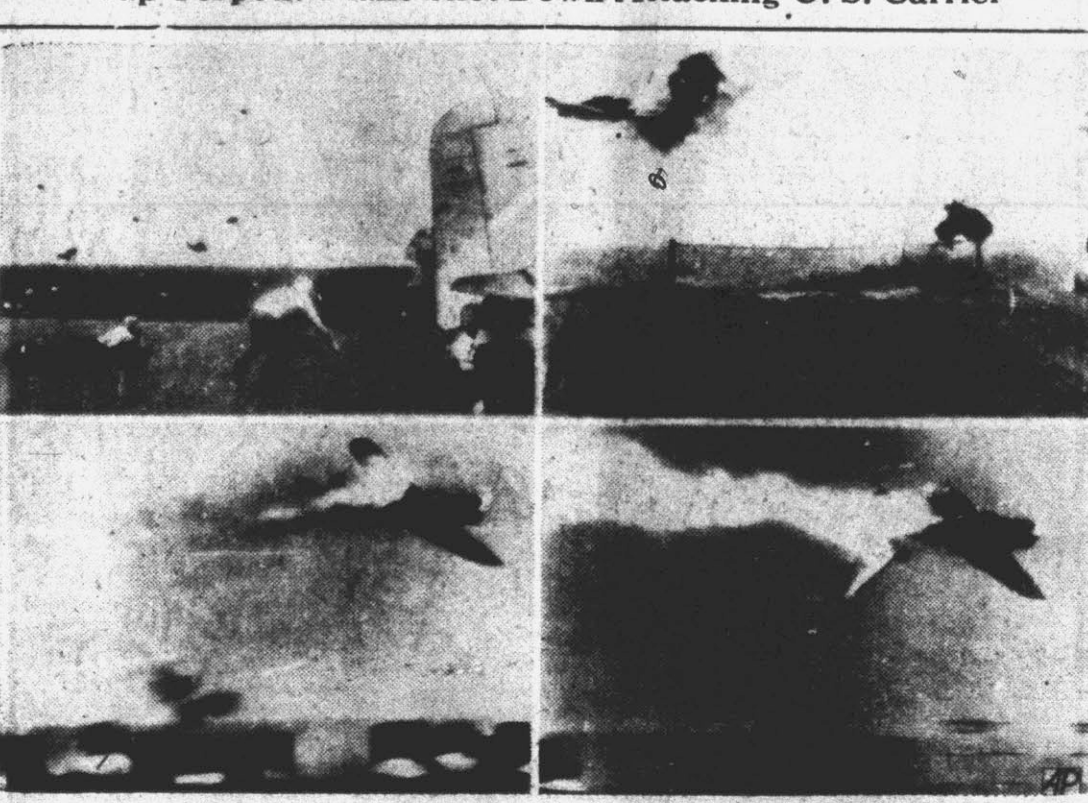

Paul, addressing the Indiana state Bar Association at Indianapolis, said the bill wouldn't raise enough money, failed to reduce inflationary pressure and "denies the simplification of tax law to which they are entitled."

In addition, he contended, it contains amendments which would make the war contracts renegotiation law "unworkable."

The two couldn't even get together on the probable annual yield. George said it should bring in $2,375,000,000 over a full year's operation. Paul held it would collect a net of only $676,000,000, taking into account the senate committee's action in freezing the social security

Rumania Is Dismantling Factories Along Border

Jungle Fighting Subsides Around Cape Gloucester

Advanced Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 8.—(AP)—At Rapa's Blanche Bay, so huge it could accommodate battleships and ocean liners, two barges loaded with Japanese troops have been sunk by Allied fighter planes from the Solomons.

This humiliating blow, announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, is in sharp contrast with reports of last October when the enemy's New Britain stronghold had been bombed by B-29 Superfortresses.

The evacuation measures extended throughout Bessarabia and Bucovina with peasant carts loaded high with goods, blocking the roads in flight into the interior. The peasants were said to be driving long columns of cattle before them.

Civilians have been forbidden the use of the railways apparently to facilitate the use of transport for withdrawal of troops and the carrying out of defense measures in the east.

Wealthy Rumanians abroad were said to be convinced that the Russian advance means the end of their fortunes. In Rumania, there was panic selling of real estate.

Approach of Russians Causing Alarm in Balkans; Bulgaria Hopes For Mercy From Stalin

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

Bern, Switzerland, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Rumania has begun a hasty dismantling of factories in frontier towns of the northern province of Bessarabia, a Budapest dispatch to the Basler Nachrichten said today.

Threatened by Soviet advances which are within about 50 miles of the old Rumanian frontier, the Rumanian government has ordered the machinery of as many factories as possible to be moved to the interior behind mountains, the dispatch said.

Wife Of Former President Dies

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, America's "first lady" from 1929 to 1933, is dead.

With former President Hoover at her side, she died unexpectedly at their Waldorf Towers apartment last night shortly after she was stricken with an acute heart attack at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Hoover, who was 68, had just returned from a concert and appeared in good health. Then the stroke came, just as her husband was telling her goodbye preparatory to leaving for a dinner.

Her personal physician, Dr. Ralph H. Boots, was summoned immediately, but Mrs. Hoover was dead in a few minutes.

Notification of her death was sent immediately to her two sons, Allen Hoover, a California rancher, and Herbert Hoover, Jr., a radio engineer.

Since leaving the White House the Hoovers had lived at their home in Palo Alto, Cal., and for the past several years also had maintained the apartment here.

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, chancellor emeritus of Stanford University and one of the Hoover family's closest friends, paid tribute to Mrs. Hoover as "a typical American woman."

"She was a great success as a mother, a wife, a friend, as the president's wife, and as a woman of the White House and as an executive of the Girl Scouts," said Dr. Wilbur.

Message To Soldiers' Wives

Babson Discusses Postwar Jobs

Babson Park Mass., Jan. 8.—I want to start 1944 by writing to the millions of service men's wives. So many of you are wondering what your husbands are to do after their return. Certainly you should not wait until your man gets back before you and he discuss the future. Why not devote to this subject your very next letter to him? Perhaps you will send him this message from me.

Former Employer Will Be Helpful
If your husband had a job when he was drafted, the chances are nine out of ten that his former employer will be proud to take him back. Not only does the Draft Act require this of employers who are able to do so, but employers will find it good business. This will mean that many women and girls will be obliged to quit industry; but this will be only fair and just.

I wonder, however, if your husband will be content to again be a mere cog in a big wheel after he returns? Men differ. Some are born to work for others and will be happier doing so; while some men will do better in a little business by themselves. Some prefer large cities; others like small cities and towns. Don't try to make your soldier over into someone else. Try to find out what he likes best; for what he is best fitted and then help him make good. But begin your planning now; don't wait until he gets home.

Opportunities Everywhere
Opportunities exist today which will not exist after the War is over. I see them everywhere I go—vacant stores, closed real estate offices, run-down garages and auto sales rooms, etc., etc. As an illustration, consider the closed and boarded-up filling stations which can be bought today for a third of their cost. To buy now one of these, properly located where a family can live on the property, is like finding money. After the war, they will again be worth their weight in gold.

Small stores and lunch rooms where the owner can live upstairs or adjoining, are now for sale cheap. They will be in big demand after the war. No one will get rich in such a place; but it gives independence and assures work to all the family. The same applies to scores of little (Continued on Page Two)

New Offensive Move Encircles Kirovograd, Nazi Stronghold In Dnieper Bend; Other Soviet Forces Driving Deeper Into Old Poland

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

Moscow, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Troops of the first and second Ukrainian armies poured through great gaps in the German lines in swift advances today and units which had surrounded Kirovograd smashed to within three miles of the city in one place in the Dnieper bend country, as the Red army's winter offensive continued on the up surge.

Advance units of the force which captured Klesow, at the northern tip of the great drive, were plunging deeper into Rovno province (eastern part of old Poland) and reached a point within 12 miles of Sarny.

Further south from encircled Kirovograd, a stronghold for the German forces in the Dnieper bend, some Soviet forces lunged forward to within 18 miles of Dolinova, western railway junction which feeds Kirovograd.

Troops of Generals Nikolai F. Vatutin and Ivan S. Konev, which have joined south of Kiev, meanwhile were within striking distance of Kanev, 64 miles southeast of the Ukrainian capital.

"The German high command said in its Saturday communiqué that 'fierce fighting' is raging in Kirovograd."

The British Broadcasting Company, in an announcement recorded by CBS, said Kirovograd's outer defenses already were under shell fire with "substantial" Nazi forces cut off there.

Front line dispatches said that the fate of the German garrison cut off at Kirovograd was already decided.

They said the Germans were battling desperately to halt the westward drive toward Notoukraiina, junction on the next to last escape railway left open to large German forces in the Smels area between the Kirovograd and the Kiev offensives.

In the Kiev offensive, the Soviet southwestward drive in which successes were reported west and south of Berdichev and along the Shepetovka railway was lightening a noose about Vinnitsa from three sides.

Vinnitsa, Bug river garrison point for the Odessa-Warsaw railway junction of Zhmerinka, lies 20 miles northeast of Zhmerinka and less than 50 miles from the Dniester river. (The Dniester forms the pre-war Rumanian border.)

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—William Kissam Vanderbilt, 65, former president of the New York Central railroad and one of the nation's foremost yachtsmen, died at 12:32 a. m. today of a heart ailment which had forced him to return to his home here from Florida before Christmas.

He was one of the wealthiest men in the United States and a great grandson of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, founder of both the railroad and the Vanderbilt family fortune. At death he was a director of the railroad and a member of its executive committee.

With his brother Harold he was a residuary legatee in the $56,000,000 estate left by his father, also named William Kissam Vanderbilt.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

DEFENSE OF THE MORAL LAW

Wars are not won on the field of battle, but in men's hearts. France was defeated on the battle field because she was first defeated in the hearts of her people and England was able to put up the vigorous defense she did because the morale of the English people was stronger when the war broke out than was the morale of any other people. Military contests are always decided not by the arms men carry in their hands, but by the spirits they carry in their hearts.

Military leaders are well aware of the necessity of firm resolve on the part of the civilian population. Unless the people at home are steadfast, the men on the battlefield have no support. Strange as it may seem, the thing which supports men most in the waging of war is the thing which most severely criticizes and condemns the whole war project, namely, Christian faith. The most noble defense of hopeless causes have generally been made by people of firm religious conviction. Armies which went into battle singing hymns have usually been invincible.

Now the reason for this is not at all because Christianity approves of war. The reason is that when godless men rise up and challenge the moral law, everything in the heart of every religious man is suddenly reinforced with sentiments of unyielding opposition. This explains why many great soldiers have also been great saints.

WASHINGTON IN WARTIME

By HOWARD FLIEGER

Washington—The little man had forgotten his badge.
There he was, in a building housing several war agencies, well past the deadline for leaving, and he didn't have his badge so he could check out. The building guards are ready for such people. They must write their name on a large signature sheet, explain where they've been and record the hour of their departure.

The little man uncapped his fountain pen, methodically filled in the designated line and went quietly on his way, out the door and into the crisp night air. The guard looked down at the signature sheet. There, in a firm round hand, the little man who forgot his badge had written a single neat and expressive word: "Phooey!"

Getting the news out of war production these days is a soft touch compared with a few months ago. And therein lies the best story of all—the positive tipoff that the tough first lap of the production battle is won and the United States heralded "arsenal of democracy" is turning out the tools.

In two years reporters of the war production assignment have seen the situation change completely from the hush-hush days when they couldn't even find out for sure that a training plane was being built. Now they can pry loose complete stories, with dates and figures, on armament programs long before they are completed—sometimes before they are begun.

The story behind it is the fact that in the beginning war production figures had to be kept secret so the enemy wouldn't know what kind of military weapons the United States was storing up for a crack at him.

Now he's been cracked several times the hard way. He knows what we are producing and officials are reasonably sure he's lost the power to do much about it. So, although still cautious, they're a little more willing to talk about what's going on in America's machine shops.

But they just talk about the things the enemy already knows. You can't read the stories about war production, for example, and get any hint of what or how many, secret and unused weapons are coming out of the war plants.

When you pick up a Washington telephone these days you may be talking for posterity.

In one of the big government buildings vital to the war, incoming telephone conversations are recorded and filed away. Recordings are made of the phone calls of at least some of the cabinet officers. Secretaries, listening on extensions, take a shorthand record of telephone talks with other officials. It's all part of the war-time precautions against information leaks to the wrong people.

businesses from barber shops to repair shops of all kinds. There will always be good opportunities for anyone who knows more about anything than anyone else in his neighborhood. Yes, it is very easy today, through trade papers and technical journals, for anyone, willing to study evenings, to become a real expert.

I think that a good deal of land will appeal to many returning soldiers. They have seen that it is for land that this war is being fought. If they are wise, they will want a little themselves. Now, don't buy your husband any isolated land in the woods. Buy within easy walking distance of schools, stores and a church; also reasonably near his job or a bus line to his job; don't make him dependent on an auto. Incidentally, the easiest property to sell in every community is that adjoining a good, live church. Sensible parents like to bring up children near a church.

If you and your husband came from a farm and want to go back to it, this is wonderful. However, unless you know farming, you had better be content with an acre or two of good land located as above suggested. Don't buy too much land. Better pay $500 for an acre of rich land nearby than $50 per acre for poor land further out. The number of acres is of little importance. The value of land lies in its richness and location. The latest scientific agricultural experiments indicate that you can feed your family on a very small plot provided your husband has some "job on the side" to get spending money. I cannot take more space here to explain this. Those interested should send one dollar to Fleming H. Revell Company, 158 Fifth Avenue, New York City for a little book entitled, "Better Living For Less Money."

Buy Merchandise and Bank Stocks
In almost every community there are one or more stores belonging to some national chain. They may be grocery chains or variety chains such as the "5 cents to 50 cents" kind. Ask your local banker to tell you which of those in your town has its stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Buy a few shares. They should be a good hedge against inflation and might also help your husband get a job at merchandizing with a growing concern.

Perhaps before buying a chain store stock, it would be well to buy a few shares of stock in your local bank. Now, banks are making very little money; but banking is fundamental. Bank stocks will some day look good again. Besides, it may help your husband get started right to have a few shares of local bank stock and to know the men who run the bank.

Parents Should Help More
Soldiers who go overseas are coming home with better ideas than when they left. They are learning that much upon which they had heretofore spent time and money was sheer waste. Many will realize that the only things worth while for a family or a nation are: (1) good land; (2) good babies; (3) good education and (4) good character. All else, however much advertised, is only baloney.

I trust that fathers and mothers, as well as wives and sweethearts, will encourage these sensible ideas. Only by so doing can America hope to get something back for the lives and billions spent on the war. Parents, especially, should loosen up and help their young people get started right when they return. Remember to plan for them now; remember,

"shrouds do not have pockets."

A Final Thought
Has it ever occurred to you to get a job with the understanding that your husband can have it upon his return? This is a practical idea. It should appeal to every sensible employed and housewife. Your first choice should be where he was employed when leaving for the service; your next choice should be where you would like to have him employed. But the important thing is to forget your wishes and present pay—think only of him!

One formation of Flying Fortress bombers hammered a German aircraft factory at Maribor, a few miles south of the Austrian border in Yugoslavia, and another group attacked Fiume, on Italy's Istrian peninsula.

Returning crews said they heavily blasted the factory, which makes airplane engines. American Mitchells attacked parked planes on the airfield at Perugia, in central Italy, and RAF Kittyhawks swept over the Yugoslav coast, attacking four vessels in the harbor at Makarska south of Split. The port of Split was bombed by a lone Fortress which had become separated from the Fiume attackers.

Four enemy aircraft were destroyed for a loss of four Allied planes. In a dispatch from San Vittore, Whitehead said that only a few Germans slipped through the ring of steel which closed around the shell-smashed town, one of the toughest defensive points in the German winter line.

He said the Germans had forced civilians from their homes to convert each house into a small fortress. "Terrified, miserable and hungry," he wrote, the civilians lived in dark cellars for days while the battle raged around the town.

Since the Fifth army's offensive was launched Wednesday morning, the British and American troops gained from one to four miles, with no indication of a substantial breakthrough, but bad weather has hampered aerial support.

(A German broadcast said that Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the Fifth army, was bringing up heavy reserves in preparation for a "large-scale offensive." The broadcast said that Clark had moved his headquarters, the implication being it was closer to the front lines.)

southwest of Rabaul, the jungle fighting which rose to such a high pitch earlier in the week has subsided, with the Marine front line at Borgen Bay virtually unchanged.

On New Guinea, Australians moving up Huon peninsula to join forces with American invaders of Saldor occupied Kelanua village. The Saldor forces moved south to Sel, that left a gap of 65 miles, in which some Japanese troops are pocketed.

College Vesper Service.

At the regular Friday evening vesper service last night, Pearl Arnold of Dover, Violet Sparks of Reidsville, Eleanor Booth of Pollockville, and Clifton Crandell of Stokes, gave a report on the conference they attended recently on the campuses of Livingston and Catawba Colleges at Salisbury.

The topic of the conference was "Building Tomorrow's World Today." Questions such as "What kind of world do we want?" and "How can it be achieved?" were discussed. No distinction between races was made since the conference was inter-racial and white, Negro, Japanese and other students were present.

Clifton Crandell reported on a talk made by Mr. E. Raymond Wilson entitled "What Does Christianity Demand of Us?" He said the peace-making is continually going on—that every military and political decision made now vitally concerns the peace. "Racial discriminations," said the speaker, "must be forgotten. We will need a world organization and the only way to eliminate the enemy is to make friends with him."

"How to Strengthen Our Good Neighbor Policy" as discussed by Dr. Raymond Logan was reported by Pearl Arnold. She said we must state clearly barriers and difficulties and intelligently try to remove them. She stressed the fact that our main problem is our foreign policy. Religious differences are very important, too, since most of the people of Latin America are Catholics. South America is much poorer than we are and it is up to us to raise their standards by paying more for their commodities.

Eleanor Booth told of the discussion groups they attended. They agreed that no other technique other than the Christian should be used in making the peace. She said that we must have more inter-racial conferences and to get rid of our prejudices. We must not let boundaries count too much in the peace terms. We must not forget that Jesus said all men are equal.

Rosa Lancaster of New Bern, presided and Estelle Valentine of Winston-Salem, was pianist.

Bradshaw and Bundy Entertain Kiwanis

By CHESTER WALSH

After a prosperous and progressive old year in 1943, with a fine record for community service, the Greenville Kiwanis Club at Proctor Hotel last night "breezed" into the new year under the pilotage of the club's new skipper, W. J. Bundy, philosophic attorney who was installed as president a week ago.

Bundy, a classmate of Rev. Robert W. Bradshaw, new pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, guest speaker, and the minister exchanged some "philharmonic repartee" about the old days at Trinity College. Both men are better known as a result of the resilient thrusts over the supper table.

Bradshaw, in a brief talk, discussed three unnecessary things in life, analyzed them and made a fine impression on the Kiwanians.

"Tige" Gardner led the singing of Kiwanis songs, with Mrs. Ray Tyson as accompanist. Miss Elizabeth Bridges sang two songs with Miss Elenora Etheridge as accompanist. Bill Taft had charge of the program.

4-H CLUB PROJECT CHAMPIONS SELECTED

Kenneth Randolph, member of the Belvoir 4-H Club and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert B. Randolph, R-4, Greenville, has been declared the champion pig grower among 4-H Club boys.

Kenneth started his project by purchasing two cross bred pigs valued at $12. Corn and supplement amounted to $13 making a total cost of $25. He marketed the pigs in March of 1943 when the two pigs weighed 180 pounds each for $14.90 per hundred and received $53.64. Deducting the cost of $25 from this he had $28.64 profit.

Kenneth has purchased a Hereford feeder weighing approximately 350 pounds to fatten in the 4-H Club. 4-H Club boys are helping out in the war effort by producing food and fiber to help defeat our enemies. In addition to Kenneth's meat projects he has collected and delivered 300 pounds of scrap iron and 26 pounds of rubber. He has helped on his farm in keeping buildings and farm implements in repair, was a member of the 4-H fire patrol and has purchased one War Bond.

Sale Of Christmas Seals Big Success

The Pitt county chairman of the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal sale, Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, reports that the response from the various chairmen in the county indicated that the Seal Sale has been a decided success. As an example, he calls attention to the fact that while the goal for Falkland township under the chairmanship of Mrs. G. H. Pittman, was set at $40, that Mrs. Pittman has already turned in $74.05.

Dr. Ennett requests that those who received seals by mail and have not replied, please do so as promptly as convenient in order that he may make the proper report to the State Seal Sale office.

Mrs. D. M. Clark is chairman of the seal sale for the city of Greenville.

to 1,000 Ustachis (Groat puppet troops) and about 100 German militarized elite guards fleeing from Yugoslav partisans.

The Bulgarians presumably count on their old friend Russia to be kind and forgiving in post-war deals, but on the basis of information available here today Rumanians are frankly worried as the Red army speeds toward the frontier.

The Rumanians particularly fear the approaching Soviets because of likely retribution for Rumania's annexation of Moldavia and other territories on the heels of the Nazi thrust into Russia.

They apparently do not know what course to adopt now, with the Germans at hand and the Russians approaching and with little prospect of any Anglo-American sympathy. They are confining official actions to a withdrawal as far as possible from the easternmost territories.

The Bulgarians although collaborating with the Germans, obviously count heavily on the indulgence of Marshal Stalin since their country and Russia are not actually at war. They hope, judging from recent propaganda, to play Russia against Britain and emerge from the war retaining Thrace and Macedonia which they got when the Nazis carved up the Balkan peninsula.

Although there are many indications both Rumania and Bulgaria would like to withdraw from the war, the German control of the Black Sea constitutes an important factor in whatever either country might decide to try. This control was emphasized pointedly within the past two weeks by new photographs of German fortifications in Nazi journals.

been deducing that the steadily mounting American and British invasion force actually will delay the blow until late spring at the earliest to permit coordination with a new Russian attack.

Gen. Kurt Dittmar and Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Nazi military commentators, although noting this possibility, have been inclined to warn that an onslaught anywhere from Norway to southern France may come while the present Russian drive is rising in force.

They pegged that conclusion to the currently popular Nazi propaganda that Premier Stalin is hurrying his allies to action before they are fully prepared.

The best Allied views available here is that neither mud nor the state of the Red army offensive necessarily is an accurate invasion barometer.

As even some German spokesmen have pointed out a western front does not require coordination to an active Russian offensive since even the threat of a possible general attack serves to prevent the Germans from weakening their eastern force to reinforce the west.

That already has proved true in reverse, with Russian attacks taking advantage of the fact the Germans are afraid to weaken their western defenses against a potential invasion to meet acute needs on the Russian front.

were shot down. United States fighters, making a round trip flight of some 800 miles, accompanied the Flying Fortress and Liberators to yesterday's targets in southwest Germany. American, RAF, Canadian and Allied fighters hovered along the return route to give additional protection.

The communiqué said the bombers pressed home their attack through heavy clouds. Twelve bombers and seven fighters were lost.

Enemy opposition encountered in the operation generally was weak, although some bombs and fighter groups were intercepted by numerous Nazi fighters.

Of the 42 enemy planes down, the bombers accounted for 33 and the fighters nine.

The day's bag raised the total German fighters destroyed in three major American raids this month to 149.

While the big American formation was penetrating into Germany, more than 750 other Allied war planes were delivering day-long attacks on the French invasion coast.

It was the 16th day of heavy attacks on this sector in the last 18

Sees Big ...

Nazis are now using, declared, however, that for the present the jet propulsion principle, which he estimated might double the speed of ordinary planes, would not be employed to any great extent for long sustained flying.

He said he believed it would be used in the near future principally for home defense aircraft and as interceptors for short range flying, because of its high fuel consumption.

"But," he added, "we may be able to install the rocket engines in existing heavy bombers to obtain 'flash performance.' This would help big planes take off more swiftly with heavier loads or give them added speed in getting away from attackers."

In addition, he said, this type of engine might be put into the new giant B-29 bomber for long-range attacks on Japan itself. It also might be used on aircraft carriers for faster take-offs of more heavily-laden planes which could "catapult themselves into the air."

De Seversky, who led Russia's Baltic sea fighter command in the last war and had a leg blown off when he was shot down, said the jet engine works in reverse—it can bring the craft to a quick stop or slowdown as well as give it more speed.

He said that eventually, the jet plane, propelled by gases, would call for wings which could alter their shape mechanically according to momentum, or even eliminate the need for wings.

Eventually, he said, there will be "no limit" to the jet propelled plane's speed.

The engine, he said, may be so designed that it will not require natural air, enabling the craft to fly at extraordinary altitudes.

De Seversky said the new aircraft would require no extensive training program for fliers.

have said that the railroad and steel strike threats were a great tragedy and the domestic crime ever committed against America.

Marshall, the Journal said, had received "comprehensive reports of our intelligence officers and those of our allies" that the Axis was using the rail and steel strike threat in propaganda directed to the peoples of Germany and the satellite countries.

"Thus by strikes and threats of strikes in December," the Journal said, "the labor organizations involved merited the slashing rebuke the chief of staff administered. The kindest thing one may say of their conduct is that they failed to realize that what they were doing was imperiling the lives of sons and brothers and the lives of sons and brothers and the support our Allies must have."

Police Arrest Man Larceny Automobile

Greenville police last night arrested Salvatore J. La Scala of Brooklyn, N. Y., Marine from Cherry Point, on complaint of Leyl W. Bryan of Vanceboro that he had stolen an automobile from his brother, Wayne Bryan of Vanceboro. Patrolmen Rogerson and Crawford were waiting for La Scala and locked him up and recovered the car. La Scala told police here that he paid Bryan $10 to use the car to go to Rocky Mount.

Police notified Marine authorities at Cherry Point of the arrest and officers were expected to come here today.
