U.S. Bombers Hit Invasion Coast

American Airmen Blast Targets in Northern France Following RAF Night Attack On Cologne; Germans Claim "Fierce Attack" On British Port

By W. W. HEISCHER London, May 15.—(AP)—American Flying Fortresses and Liberators attacked German invasion defenses in the Pas De Calais area nearest Britain today in the 31st consecutive day of the great aerial offensive, after a night in which German bombers sharply attacked the British coast.

No American bomber was lost today but one of the accompanying Mustangs was missing. It fell to anti-aircraft fire since the U. S. communiqué said no German plane was sighted.

A maximum of 250 Fortresses and Liberators under protection of Eighth air force Mustangs pounded military installations in France, following up a night attack on Cologne by British Mosquito bombers, and a week-end of activity which saw the historic Brenner Pass, main supply line for the Nazis in Italy, virtually sealed up.

The Berlin radio asserted German raiders had made "fierce attacks" on the port of Bristol last night and declared that "large quantities of high explosives and incendiaries" were dropped. A British announcement that at least 15 of the raiders were shot down indicated that the Nazis may have struck with as many as 300 planes.

The British said the raids had caused some damage and a small number of casualties "over wide areas of south and southwest England," but noted that the weight of bombs dropped did not seem proportionate to the number of planes employed, suggesting that the main objective of the attack was to gain information about possible concentrations of invasion equipment along the coast.

Allies Score New Gains In Burma

Southeast Asia Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, May 15.—(AP)—Chinese troops have captured Tarongyang, 11 miles north of Kambang and Burmese fighting for the Allies have raided Tangpu, only 28 miles north of Myitkva, in the closest strike to that main Japanese base in northern Burma. Allied headquarters announced today that the immediate objective of Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's pre-Monsoon offensive. The Chinese troops, driving down the Mogaung valley, joined forces with Allied units at Manpin, a mile south of Tarongyang, the communiqué disclosed.

It gave no details of the Tangpu raid. The communiqué announcing this success also declared that mopping up operations are proceeding southwest of Kohima in the frontier region of northeast India, where the Japanese invaders have been reported re-organizing in strength.

Sixty-five miles below Kohima, the bulletines said, the British are pushing on steadily against the enemy southwest of Imphal, where a communiqué yesterday reported that Allied troops had driven into Potsangbam. Heavy enemy artillery fire was reported in the Palei region but an expected enemy attack in that area failed to develop.

The WAR TODAY

AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Associated Press War Analyst) As we await the break of D-Day it's natural that one of the burning questions should be how long it will take the Allied war machine, which it has top speed, to grind out this final phase of the European war and administer the coup de grace to Hitler.

The first point we must look down in examining this undoubtedly is that we are facing a terrific struggle. We should be foolish not to recognize that. Having acknowledged this, it's legitimate to note that many observers incline to the theory that once the invading forces have overcome the terrible initial hazards and have established themselves, the Hitlerites will be about ready to accept the inevitable and surrender. This idea is based on the belief that the Nazis will quit short of allowing the fight to be carried onto German territory.

Along this line, Dr. Norman R. F. Maier, University of Michigan psychologist, who forecast the Munich failure, now predicts that the German people will liquidate Hitler as soon as it's demonstrated that

ANTI-POLL TAX EFFORTS FAIL

Senate Rejects Petition To Limit Debate On Measure

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—The Senate rejected today a debate-limiting closure petition which would have halted a southern Democratic filibuster against the anti-poll tax bill. The action indicated the measure will be shelved.

The vote to invoke cloture, which would have shut off all debate in 96 hours, was 44 ayes to 36 nays, far short of the necessary two-thirds of those voting.

Proponents of the House-approved bill outlawing collection of the poll tax in eight southern states as a prerequisite to voting for federal officers planned to meet immediately to decide whether to abandon present efforts to pass it.

The Senate rejected a closure petition by a tally of 37 yeas, 41 nays in 1942 when the southern group conducted a filibuster on a similar bill.

Without debate limitation, leaders said there was no possibility of bringing the bill to a vote over the determination of the bill's opponents to "talk it to death." Senate procedure, unlike that in the House, where the bill passed overwhelmingly, permits unlimited debate.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) likened Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's statement advocating abolition of poll taxes to his advocacy of "international collaboration," and asserted both declarations were "too little, and too late."

Fresh from renomination in the Florida Democratic primary where his support of President Roosevelt was a prime campaign issue, Pepper announced that he would vote to repeal the poll tax.

Asserting that he favored cloture and passage of the anti-poll tax bill because the issue "goes to the integrity of the institution of democracy," Pepper said he disclaimed "those who make political capital" of the drive for its abolition.

Recalling Dewey's statement in which he said he always had opposed the poll tax, Pepper had declared "it is too little and too late for the governor of New York to throw his weight behind this issue."

Indicted For Threat Against President

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted Harold R. Mason, 37, on a charge of making threats against President Roosevelt.

The fourth Ukrainian army and Gen. Yevremenko's maritime army, fresh from conquest of the Crimea, are among the forces for which new sectors presumably are being assigned.

A closer concentration of troops appeared possible for the launching of the new thrust at whatever point the Soviet command chooses.

It is assumed in Moscow that the offensive will be opened in unison with the Allied invasion of Europe in accordance with decision taken at Tehran by Marshal Stalin, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Canadian Ship Reported Sunk

Ottawa, May 15.—(AP)—The Canadian frigate Valleyfield has been torpedoed and sunk while on escort duty in the north Atlantic with five dead, 121 missing and 38 survivors, it was announced today.

Listed among the missing was the captain, Lt. Comdr. D. T. English of Halifax, whose wife lives at 216 Hawthorn St., New Bedford, Mass. No Americans were listed in the casualty list.

Built at Quebec, the Valleyfield was commissioned last December and was the first Canadian frigate to be sunk.

Going to Russia. Washington, May 15.—(AP)—Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, plans to leave within a few days for Russia to inspect Soviet industrial plants.

Johnston, who is making the trip at the invitation of Premier Stalin, has said that he wants to determine how Russian postwar trade will affect American business.

Lift Rice Restrictions. Washington, May 15.—(AP)—All restrictions on rice shipments to the various states and all set-aside requirements on rice for the armed services and lend-lease were lifted today to be effective through July 31.

A War Food Administration announcement said that during this period the entire production would be available to civilians and for completion of shipments by the United States to Cuba.

REDS MASSING FOR NEW BLOW

Giant Offensive To Coincide With Allied Invasion

By HENRY C. CASSIDY Moscow, May 15.—(AP)—Russian armies are believed massing for a summer offensive surpassing any blow yet struck on the eastern front.

The spring lull which started in mid-April continued today and no fresh military dispatches were published from the front.

But there were multiplying signs of the coming push. Russian bombers, for instance, struck at the rail center of Breslavia (in old Poland) starting 30 fires, and also attacked Nazi bases at Polotsk in White Russia and Narva in the Estonian republic.

Pravda reported that a new Yak fighter plane was going into mass production. This is a modified version of the craft designed by Gen. Alexander Yakovlev, which proved the fastest on the Russian front.

The newspaper said Chkalov air-craft factory workers had pledged an over-fulfillment of their quota. Other plane and arms plants are working at top speed, building up supplies for the offensive.

Recent visitors to several sections of the front said they saw intense activity, indicating the drive was fairly imminent. Details could not be published, but preparations were described as immense.

The fourth Ukrainian army and Gen. Yevremenko's maritime army, fresh from conquest of the Crimea, are among the forces for which new sectors presumably are being assigned.

Chinese Open Offensive Toward Northern Burma

Drive Across Salween River On 100-Mile Front Seeking To Link Up With Stilwell's Forces

By SPENCER MOORE Chungking, May 15.—(AP)—The Chinese high command announced today that large Chinese forces had launched an offensive in western Yunnan province on the night of May 10, crossing the Salween river at many points on a front of over 100 miles in an effort to link up with Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's troops in northern Burma.

Casualties on both sides were heavy, it was announced. There the Japanese had broken into Luyang at three points, but the Chinese were striking back to the southeast and had broken the Japanese hold on a section of the Peiping-Hankow railway by retaking Suiping, 100 miles south of Chenghsien.

Field dispatches said Japanese troops, who broke into Luyang from the east, west and northwest, had been annihilated. The Chinese evidently were fighting hard to save the town from capture.

More Pressure Put On Sweden Washington, May 15.—(AP)—Russia is cooperating with the United States and Britain in diplomatic efforts, reinforced by the possibility of strong economic measures, to have Sweden cut off ball bearing shipments to Germany, it was learned today.

The Russian participation is considered of great significance, both because of the influential position which geography gives Russia in respect to Sweden and because it indicates the extent to which United States, British and Russian diplomacy have been correlated in at least one particular instance in preparation for the military strokes into Nazi-dominated Europe.

Blood Plasma Important At Battleship Hospital

By GEORGE TUCKER At the Eighth Evacuation Hospital, Fifth Army Front, Italy, May 15.—(AP)—This is the shock ward of an emergency hospital where blood plasma is stacked like cord wood.

All through the day and night, litter bearers have come in from the environs around Santa Maria In yesterday after the Germans had kicked us out.

The litter bearers place the wounded on saw horses, like carpenter's use, and when every inch of space is crowded they spill over into adjoining wards.

When a man is hit he goes "in shock." His blood pressure falls and his pulsebeat increases. Unless he can be brought out of the shock he can't survive an operation, and that is where plasma comes in.

You walk down the lengthening rows of white faces and wonder how they can pull through. Plasma does it. I saw a man from Ohio take 10 units of plasma and come back from the fluttering edges of death. Color flooded back into his face and his pulse fell almost to normal. Recovery now is almost certain.

It is startling the way infantrymen can bear in silence almost anything the battle field can throw at them. It humbles you to stand amid 100 men whose bodies have been shattered and not hear one single word of complaint. They just lie there, waiting their turn to be taken into the operating rooms.

You walk down long rows of litters and look at the doctors, which give blood types and tell where they are from—Buffalo, Detroit, Decatur, Ala., Jersey City, Omaha, Lowell, Mass.

Allied Forces Continue To Drive Ahead In Italy

Airmen Give Strong Support To Ground Action By Blasting Chief Communication Centers And Airfields In Northern Italy

By KENNETH DIXON Allied Headquarters, Naples, May 15.—(AP)—Striking both long and short range blows against slowly strengthening enemy air resistance, Allied warplanes flew more than 2,500 sorties yesterday supporting the Fifth and Eighth armies by an intense campaign to isolate the Gustav line defenders.

More than 30 enemy aircraft were sighted during the day, of which 10 were shot down, the Mediterranean army air-force reported. Six Allied planes were reported missing, and one additional enemy plane was downed Saturday night, the report added.

Heavy bombers unleashed a barrage of blows at railroad yards in the Po valley, seeking to force the enemy to get all of his reinforcements from central Italy. Medium bombers, plus fighter bombers, simultaneously slashed rail communications between Rome and Florence in an effort to render drawing of supplies from even that sector temporarily impossible.

Fighters roared down enemy airfields throughout Italy, destroying parked planes and harassing all highway transport activity sighted along the roads leading to the Gustav and Hitler lines.

The heavy bombers hammered rail junctions at Padua, Ferrara, Vicenza, Treviso, Mestre, Mantua and Pavia Di Saoca, and in addition plastered airfields at Piacenza and Reggio Emilia.

Trucks and bridges south of Florence add beyond Rome were targets of medium, light and fighter bombers. Several tracks were cut and spans destroyed.

Airfields at Aviano, Villa Orba and Rivolta were strafed by fighters, who destroyed an unreported number of enemy aircraft. The RAF took over the night tasks with both medium and heavy bombers blasting railroad bridges at Latisana, Caserta and an oil refinery at Porto Magara.

The appearance of more than 30 enemy planes over the battle area indicated the Italian arm of the Luftwaffe, which has been mostly dormant during this offensive, was being unleashed, although sparingly. On the opening day not a single Allied sortie was challenged. Additional enemy aircraft were sighted on long range missions into northern Italy.

Little August Johnson, (above), an Australian youth, had a big smile and shoes many times too large when he was rescued from the Japanese who had held him captive in the Hollandia area. The Americans have smashed the enemy out of Santa Maria Infante and San Pietro on the lower Garigliano river and taken vital mountain positions on both sides of the Ausente river.

The French have reached the hills dominating San Giorgio, equally as important as Ausente.

The Americans are pressing an attack on Spigno, showing they have driven at least four miles north and west of Minturno.

Ausonia is six and a half miles north of Minturno and San Giorgio seven miles southwest of Cassino and one mile south of the Liri river.

Further to the north, the big Allied offensive also gained, with the British and Indians deepening their Rapido river bridgehead to at least 2,000 yards—more than a mile—and sending over great numbers of tanks to exploit this attack into the Liri valley—a direct road to Rome.

More than 2,000 prisoners already have streamed back into Allied camps and others were coming in constantly as the attacks progressed.

Very heavy casualties have been inflicted along the whole front and hard fighting continues everywhere up and down the line of attack, an Allied communiqué said.

The German 14th division, which was their primary objective after the capture of the Rapido river bridgehead, bore the brunt of the Fifth army attack and lost over 1,300 men in prisoners alone, including six battalion commanders.

The whole front line defenses of this division have been overturned. French troops, who were the first to launch their attack Thursday night and who have been slugging through extremely difficult terrain, quickly exploited their initial success.

Charging yesterday with infantry and tanks, they overran the villages of San Ambrosio, Villa, Mabo and Ausonia, by passing strong points which now are being mopped up.

Simultaneously the Americans on the extreme left of the attack line cut the Ausonia-Promia road.

After a bitter and bloody fight the Americans drove the Nazis out of the town of Santa Maria Infante at noon yesterday, pushed on to a road junction near the town of Spigno and planned out to capture the village of San Pietro and the nearby hills, Monte Cerri and Monte Brachi on either side of the Ausente river. Then they continued the attack on Spigno.

The French in the upper Garigliano area approached the Rappallo river in the vicinity of San Giorgio after capturing a number of dominating heights, Ausonia, in the valley connecting the Liri valley with the sea fell yesterday afternoon.

In quick succession the embattled French won 2,500-foot Monte Ruffino and 1,900-foot Colle Agrigino and occupied the towns of San Ambrosio and San Appollinare.

Subsequently the troops of Gen. Alphonse Juin routed the Germans from the 1,400-foot Colle Castellano.

Report Significant Breach In Nazi Gustav Line As American, French, British And Polish Forces Advance; Over 2,000 Prisoners Taken

By NOLAND NORGAARD Allied Headquarters, Naples, May 15.—(AP)—French troops have advanced as much as seven miles from the take-off point on the Fifth army right wing in the all-out Allied offensive and captured the important town of Ausonia, creating a "significant breach" in the Germans' Gustav line in southern Italy, Allied headquarters announced today.

Last Jap Holds In New Guinea Bombed Heavily

By ASAHIEL BUSH Advanced Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, May 15.—(AP)—The heaviest bombing since the pre-invasion softening of Hollandia was reported today as one of six separate assaults designed to immobilize the last remnants of Japanese air power in New Guinea.

Big Liberators and tree-skimming Mitchells dumped 334 tons Saturday on Wakde island and the Maludin bay coastline to Sarmi, 20 miles southwest on the Dutch New Guinea mainland.

The airforce runway at Wakde, 120 miles toward the Philippines from captured Hollandia, took 200 tons.

The boss is talking on the phone. There's another call waiting for him on another line.

The big boss wants him. His wife is angry and he'd better send her some flowers.

The top officials take great delight in these contraptions. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, for example, has a special loud-speaker on his desk. When he's out of town, he calls in and has his whole staff gather round. Then his voice comes over the loudspeaker so all can hear, and be summons underlings to the phone in relays.

Today On The Home Front

JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

Washington, May 15.—(AP)—When Washington does something, it's on the grand scale.

For instance: You never can be sure just how many people are listening in when you telephone a government official.

It's standard practice for the stenographer to listen in on all calls if the boss is at all important in his own little balliwick.

If he's a big shot, there may be a recording machine to take down the whole conversation.

The photos are provided with cut-out buttons so the steno can shut off the mouthpiece. Then she listens and takes notes without the person on the other end hearing suspicious noises.

Some stenos get so proficient they can listen in, carry on a side conversation with somebody else in the office or read a magazine.

After a while the girls get used to the language some folks use in talking to government officials, and the language some officials use in talking back.

But that's only a starter. There's no end to the fancy connections and talkie-talkie hookups around these places.

Dr. Frank Speaks At Vespers.

Dr. A. D. Frank of the history department of the college was the speaker for the regular Sunday night vesper service at the college last night.

In speaking on the topic "Practical Religion," Dr. Frank emphasized everyday life. Teachers, housewives, preachers, sailors, soldiers, matrons—all people who work, if they do well that particular task which they have chosen to do, are serving God, declared Dr. Frank.

He pointed out the fact that the major task of students is to do their school work so well that they may be well prepared for their jobs ahead.

In addition to real study, there are other things which students can do, he said, such as war work. "This doesn't mean just entertaining service men and being hostesses at the USO Red Cross work, collecting clothes for Russia, saving waste fats and many other things must be done."

Dr. Frank closed his talk by saying that honest, sincere, truthful living day by day is practical religion.

He was introduced by Mildred Wellons of Micro, new Religious Education chairman of the YWCA. Pearl Arnold of Dover was pianist for the program.

Joint Hostesses. Grifton, May 15.—Mrs. Elmo Smith and Mrs. Josh Worthington entertained on Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Worthington, at one of the prettiest parties of the season.

Do not be surprised to hear soon that the Russians have destroyed the forts at Port Arthur and retreated to Mukden, tearing up the railway behind them. They need in the field the large body of troops that is necessary to garrison the forts of that port. Japanese rifles and disease are depleting the Russian army as fast or faster than it can be recruited by daily arrivals over the 5,000 miles of railroad.

Pitt Soldier Aids On Italian Front

With the Fifth Army, Italy, May 15.—Pvt. Claude Ganis of Greenville, N. C., and other Fifth Army infantrymen on a recent daylight reconnaissance used information they gained on patrol to bring about the destruction of a German machinegun emplacement in Italy.

The 12-man patrol moved up a valley, searching houses as they went. Nothing was found in the first two houses, but in the third two dead Nazis lay. It was evident the position had been abandoned several days ago.

Another house revealed the body of an Italian woman, killed by artillery fire as she slept. At the last house they found German rifles, machinegun ammunition and grenades. This apparently was a German machinegun position temporarily vacated by the crew, who must have taken the gun with them.

Returning to headquarters, the patrol reported what had been found. Subsequent mortar fire neutralized the enemy position.

Private Ganis is the son of Mrs. Julie Ganis, Route 4, Greenville.

...but ask a TURK to read it!

Your Doctor's prescription isn't written in Turkish—but a Turk can read it, if he's a pharmacist. So can a Frenchman or a Hindu or any other pharmacist anywhere.

Prescriptions—the Doctor's recipes for healing—are written in Latin so that they can be filled anywhere in the civilized world. You see, Latin is not only universally understood by scholars, but it is a "dead" language, not subject to change. The symbol for a prescription—"Rx"—is derived from the Latin word meaning "take". All prescriptions start with this symbol, wherever they're written.

Your Doctor spends long years of study to learn how to write the prescription he gives you. Naturally, its effectiveness rests on the skill with which it is filled. This is so vitally important that the law requires registered pharmacists to spend years mastering the art. They—and they alone—may legally fill a prescription.

The Registered Pharmacist is your Doctor's good right hand. He deserves—and should enjoy—your complete confidence.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

HE REMEMBERED THE STARS A young officer in the armed forces recently wrote a letter to a middle-aged woman whose mother had passed away. It is so fine that I feel I want to pass it on to my readers.

He writes: "I have been watching the close of a perfect day. The sun has just slipped from behind a cloud, once more covering the earth with its brilliance, before dipping behind the horizon. It has come forth as a reminder of the full, glorious day that has passed; to assure the world that though we may no longer see or feel its warming rays, it like the lives of our loved ones, has not dissolved into nothing, but is now a new dawn beyond our perception."

"All is quiet, darkness is rapidly enveloping the sky's last reflections, and we are afraid. The day is gone. It is night and at first there is great loneliness, everything is dimmed out. But, as our eyes become accustomed to the darkness, new wonders unfold. A star creeps forth and we have a companion. Gradually the sky is filled with hundreds of twinkling lights. The interval of darkness is forgotten now, for each star is a living part of yesterday. Before us is the full span of the day that quietly slipped from our earthly grasp to eternity."

"All sadness is gone. For us there will be new dawns, and we will go on. The stars, however, never change. We have them always. No longer must we fear the day's closing, for now we know the contentment and beauty of the night."

WASHINGTON IN WARTIME

By JACK STANNETT

Washington—The battle to knock the daylight out of Daylight Saving Time (or "War Time," as the President prefers to call it) is on.

Washington—The anti-war battle is on. The House Appropriations Committee, Mr. Cannon carries considerable weight, but the lost hour between daylight and standard time has nothing to do with appropriations. It's simply that he has made it his baby and is doing all he can to bring it to a just conclusion.

Another woman in Salt Lake City said: "It just gives the reckless adolescent age an earlier start by one hour on the never-ending quest for thrills and excitement. I have five sons out fighting for right and freedom—one made the supreme sacrifice last November. No sacrifice is too great for our country—but it certainly is unnecessary to keep the clocks ahead an hour."

In Cannon's mail, it's strange how frequently parents and others blame war time for a share in juvenile delinquency. Generally the idea seems to be that youngsters wander out in the daylight, get into a dinner and get into trouble before they realize it's bedtime. With us coming down an hour earlier, these writers feel, the children would stay close to home and hit the hay before they ran afoul of temptation.

Others declare that the claim that war time saves electric power is ridiculous. An Olean, N. Y., correspondent writes: "I can't see where electricity or anything else is saved. A lot of people have to arise before day-burn lights. A Leesburg, Va., woman argues that the lawmakers should see children going to school along the country roads, "some with flashlights, some with candles, and some just lighting matches."

From Sacramento, Calif., Cannon has a telegram stating briefly that California, on three occasions, has voted against daylight saving time, "or in other words burning the candle on the wrong end."

An increase in crime, health, the death rate, traffic accidents, nervous breakdowns, ruined crops, and agricultural shortages are just a few of the things Rep. Cannon's correspondents claim as a result of having moved the clock an hour ahead.

It seems a cabinet member had a few people in and it was getting late, so he picked up one of his telephones and told the person who answered to send up some sandwiches and coffee.

The person who answered seemed a little surprised, but finally said, "O. K., but it'll take a little while." The delay was considerable. At long last, some White House emissaries showed up with the food trotted over from the President's kitchen.

Incidentally, some of the super-duper inner sanctums are kept locked, and the big shot opens the door with a buzzer at his desk. We were in one the other day when a secretary brought a key to the filing case, opened the file, took out some papers, locked the file and had to return the key to the boss before she could get out.

The defended town of Cassino, southeast of Anzio, was by-passed and surrounded and other heights behind were seized.

Southwest of Cassino the enemy put in strong counter-attacks throughout yesterday with infantry supported by Nebelwerfers, artillery and a few tanks. From the Nazi first parachute division elements in this sector the Allies captured four officers and many men prior to yesterday.

The only sector of the offensive front where the fighting died down was northwest of Cassino where the poles had attacked heavily on the two preceding days.

It was reported officially that the enemy was hastily reinforcing his defenses against the Poles and moving up other reinforcements, also for a prolonged battle along the entire front with an evident determination to prevent any breakthrough on the Gustav line which would permit the Allies to begin an early assault on the Hitler line beyond.

Knife-swinging Gurkhas cleaned out the last enemy resistance in the Labrynthine cellars and fortified buildings of San Angelo in the Rapido bridgehead and tanks and infantry advanced slowly south of that town. Enemy pockets were mopped up also in the area of the Rapido and Liri rivers.

The enemy resisted a tank advance from the bridgehead with tanks and artillery but the Allies announced that more tanks were bogged down than knocked out.

Additional bridges have been thrown across the Rapido river. At least 30 Nazi guns shelled one bridge. U. S. Army engineers building new bridges on the lower Garigliano river despite the shelling of the enemy's long-range guns used diving suits to descend 25 feet under water to check foundations of old bridges wrecked by the Germans.

Hitler's army is generally figured to total about 3,000,000, which is a formidable force. However, the fact remains that the German Reichswehr, big as it is, just isn't strong enough to cope with the Allied armies. The Russians alone may have at least twice as many men under arms, apart from the vast forces of the western allies.

Thus, despite Hitler's great strength, he no longer is able to defend adequately the entire perimeter of his European fortress. It should be remembered that he not only is encircled by superior land forces, but that he also is ringed by air and by sea. Once the American-British-French armies of invasion are smashing at Hitler's lines in France in cooperation with the Russians on the east and the Allies in Italy and the Balkans, he will be unable to protect all points at once. Veritas, the British military commentator, concludes that the manpower situation "clearly indicates the inevitability of Germany's eventual collapse in the field." However, he believes the Nazis will make a supreme effort to throw back the invading Allies, or at least to effect a stalemate in the west before the Russians get at their vitals on the other side.

The Schoutens islands in the mouth of Geelvink bay were hammered for the 10th straight day and nearby Noemfoor island was hit. It was the second day in a row the Schoutens had been under double-barreled attack—day and night.

Allied bombers apparently were having telling effect. No communiqué has mentioned any interception when nine of 12 Japanese fighters were shot down.

Chapter I

"You look," Zaida told Cora, "as though you might go off with a loud bang."

Cora was sitting bolt upright on the edge of her chair, with a book close to her thick-lensed spectacles. She was a plump little woman, with round, shining face, surmounted by a firm coil of iron grey hair, knickered into place with old-fashioned, heavy wire hairpins.

"Boy, oh boy," she said "they've got her bound, and gagged. How she's ever going to get out of this fix, I can't imagine!"

"And I can't imagine how you can read those silly murder mysteries," Zaida said scornfully.

Cora came up to the bait. "Why come of the greatest men in the world read them," she flashed indignantly. "They're relaxing."

"Really! Well, they don't seem to relax you. You look like a kernel of corn about ready to pop."

"Huh," said Cora absentmindedly, and rubbed her upturned nose. Zaida had a book in her hand, too, but she was not reading, she was waiting—as Cora would have surmised instantly if she had not been wrapped up in her story—for a telephone call. It was just after dinner on an early summer evening, and Zaida had pushed back from the table with a book in front of an open window, and draped her legs over the arm of her chair.

A maid appeared in the doorway. "The telephone, Miss Germaine."

"I'll take it out there," Zaida told her. She jumped up and hurried from the room.

Cora watched the girl's eager exit over her glasses.

"I'll bet," she said aloud, "it's that grease ball!"

She had a prim mouth that made the slang she was so fond of using startling. Now she scowled, and added: "The slurp!"

Too disturbed to read, Cora rose and wandered to the window.

The "slurp" was Count Aristide Varanis. He had appeared early that spring from nobody knew where and immediately became a heart-throb for Zaida. Cora had taken an instant and unreasonable dislike to him which had increased as the weeks went by, until now he had assumed the proportions of a major menace.

What had gotten into Zaida was more than Cora could figure out. She had always seemed to have good sense. After all, she was 24, charming beautiful and extremely wealthy. A great many men had pursued her. Nice men. Substantial men. She had looked them all over with a canny eye. "I want," she always said, "to be sure it's me they love—not my oil wells." Well, as far as Cora was concerned, any one of them would have been better than this fly-by-night count.

Zaida returned, paused in the doorway. "That was Teddy," she said. "We're going out."

"Oh, I knew who it was."

Cora followed Zaida to her room and lingered a minute, watching the girl with troubled eyes. Zaida and Zaida's welfare were the only important things in the world to Cora.

She had entered the Germaine household 20 years before when she was a young woman of 25, and Zaida a baby of four. She had been a cross between governess and nursemaid then, but as the years passed she had become almost like one of the family, and when Zaida's parents were both drowned she had taken their place as much as possible with the lonely girl. She was companion, personal maid, and self-appointed adviser in all Zaida's love affairs. But for her frequently expressed disapproval Zaida probably would have married Count Varanis weeks ago.

Reluctantly Cora went into the bathroom to make things ready for Zaida.

"Say," she called, "where are you going with that—Where are you going, anyway?"

"To a new night club. The Beanstalk. Teddy says it's very amusing."

She came into the bathroom. "I think I'll have a tub, Cora. I feel like luxuriating in some nice warm water."

"The Beanstalk?" Cora started the water and threw in a handful of bath salts. "The Beanstalk?"

For a minute the name only roused a vaguely unpleasant feeling in Cora. Then suddenly it clicked.

"Well, of all things! Say, I know all about that Beanstalk. I read about it in the papers. I don't think you ought to go there. It's only been open a few weeks and it's been raided already. It's a gambling joint, that's what it is—and the man who runs it is an ex-murderer or something."

"An ex-murderer. Who ever heard of such a thing?"

"Well, he's an ex-something. An ex-convict. That's what he is. I remember now. It seems to me there are enough respectable night clubs in the city you might go to. And with that phony count, too!"

"Oh, go away!" laughed Zaida.

Cora stalked from the bathroom with all the dignity her five feet three could command. In a second or two she was back.

"Very well," she announced with determination, "if you insist upon going there then I'm going with you."

"You weren't invited," Zaida pointed out.

"It makes no difference."

"Cora! You make me tired!" Zaida exclaimed. "Even if it is raided, what of it? Teddy'll be there. Nothing could possibly happen to me."

Cora snorted. "Teddy!" she said, the scorn in her voice so thick you could have scooped it up with a steam shovel. "Teddy, indeed!" She flounced from the room.

"Now it'll certainly be raided—or something!" Zaida moaned as she slid into the tub. Then, thinking of the count, she began to hum.

Finals At Bethel School Under Way

Rev. Maynard O. Fletcher of Washington, delivered the baccalaureate sermon at Bethel High School last night to a large audience. Rev. L. D. Hold said the invocation. Rev. M. W. Howard pronounced the benediction.

The graduation exercises will be held at the school next Friday night. Rev. Robert W. Bradshaw of Greenville will deliver the commencement address. Betty Smith will extend the welcome for the seniors. Edward Hemingway will recite "Be the Best of Whatever You Are." Betty Smith will sing "Bird of Love Divine." The public is invited.

In a friendly but firm tone, a BBC

speaker said "our pilots realize that the homes and homes of our friends are at stake. They therefore exercise the greatest possible care, but the scale of these attacks inevitably will add to the sufferings which you—our staunch friends—have so courageously endured in this war."

"We know the extreme difficulty of evacuation at the present moment. Nevertheless, we ask you most urgently to take every step possible to move away from the vicinity of all important railway and industrial installations."

Tojo, who knows that if the western invasion succeeds his country stands alone against the Allied might, delivered a radio pep talk picturing Germany as "fully prepared to meet any situation she may find herself confronted with" and added that "Germany has perfected a position enabling her to carry through with counter-offensive operations."

The British people were warned again that these "counter-offensive" moves might include an attempt by the Nazis to land on the British Isles in the hope of disrupting plans of the Allied invasion chiefs.

There was reason to believe, on the basis of reports from Sweden that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, the German anti-invasion chief, was being proclaimed the potential savior of the Reich, rather than Hitler.

Nazi propaganda, by turns defeatist and propagandist, favors the defeated but still popular Rommel in the role of leading a spectacular counter-invasion move.

Talk of vast combat preparations along the Atlantic wall came from Propaganda Minister Goebbels as he attempted to bolster the home front and impress outsiders. He cited the assembly of elite parachute troops to grapple with the invaders.

Negro Singers Give Excellent Concert

Impressive exercises were held at the Cotanche Street playground Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the American Legion Woman's Auxiliary. Don H. Conley, superintendent of county schools, presided.

He introduced Rev. J. G. Scivey, Holiness minister, who conducted a brief devotional period of scripture reading and prayer, especially for the men and women in the armed forces. "Armaments cease unless we return to God and the Christian way of living," the minister said.

Prof. W. H. Davenport, principal of C. M. Eppe Negro school, presented the Negro High School Glee Club, expressed his appreciation of the good work being done in music at his school and was glad of the opportunity for the Glee Club to participate in community recreation activities.

Mrs. W. H. Davenport is director of the Glee Club. Miss E. S. Abritton is accompanist. They gave the following program before an appreciative audience: "Deep River" and "Steel Away" (spirituals), by mixed chorus; "There's a Meeting Here Tonight" (Evelyn Waters, soloist), by girls' octette; "Now Thank We All Our God" and "Father to Thee We Pray" (Ave Maria), by mixed chorus; "Wake Awake for Night Is Flying" by girls' Glee Club, and "America, the Beautiful," by mixed chorus, with obbligatos by Evelyn Wooten and Opheba Jones. Mill Workers Hold Up War Time Work By CHESTER WALSH Complying with an order of the War Manpower Commission in Washington, D. C., the cotton textile industry is now on a 48-hour work week. This order affects only one mill in the Greenville area - Greenville Spinners, Inc. It was issued to increase the productivity of individual workers by extending the number of hours of work per week, thereby stepping up mill production. Textiles are increasingly important in the war effort and it is necessary that employees cooperate fully with their employers. The government is watchful of absenteeism from work in textile mills and it is understood a checkup on habitual absentees will be made all over the country. P. B. Pollock, local area director of the War Manpower Commission, stated. The greatest handicap in textile mill production on wartime and other contracts is due to the habits of many employees - men and women - staying away from work from time to time several days a week without excuse of illness or reasonable cause. Observation of the local cotton mill reveals that an unusual number of the employees are absent from work, especially the first few days of the week. The government's steady demand on the mills for textile products is not being met according to order principally because of the tendency of the workers to take unnecessary holidays. Business men and others here have observed this practice. It now appears that the War Manpower Commission's checkup on idling workers will have a good effect.
