American Troops Press Forward Four Miles In Fighting In Normandy

Mammoth Artillery Duel Rages Around Important Road Hub Of St. Lo; Other Units Push To Within Mile Of Lessay And Periers; Caen Sector Quiet

By WES GALLAGHER
Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, July 15.—(AP)—American troops reached the outskirts of Lessay shortly after noon today and are fighting in the suburbs. Supreme Headquarters announced that British troops have recaptured Hill 112 between the Odon and the Orne, a height that has changed hands repeatedly in bloody fighting, and were in Malot southwest of Caen. No attacks or counterattacks of any large scale were reported in the British sector.

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, July 15.—(AP)—U. S. troops edged to within 2,000 yards—little more than a mile—of the outskirts of the pivot road hub of St. Lo today amid the crashing of a mammoth artillery duel, and closed within a mile of two of the other German road-line bastions of Lessay and Periers.

A front dispatch said the Germans fought stubbornly against the doughboys hammering toward St. Lo, with that battle raging toward a climax under the heaviest shelling from both sides in the five-day-old push.

To the northwest, other American infantrymen battled a mile from Lessay, and were two miles from Periers in the center after striking forward four miles to straighten a loop in their lines.

Three towns fell in the four-mile southward drive from the marshes of Fleury toward Periers, closing in the American line menacing that middle stronghold, in the largest single day advance since Cherbourg's capture. Sixteen towns and villages on the American front have been seized in the last 24 hours.

The Germans fought desperately to hold their line on the lateral road running from Lessay 21 miles south-eastward through Periers to St. Lo. A front dispatch said the enemy poured the toughest artillery fire yet encountered against one U. S. column nearing the Pont-Hébert road north of St. Lo after a 600-yard advance. Infantrymen fought yard by yard for the big road hub of St. Lo, and were closing in from positions at La Barre de Semilly, two miles to the east.

British troops have captured more than 7,000 Germans and killed or wounded four times as many—28,000—30,000—since D-Day. A British staff officer at the front declared, as a full persisted on the British-Canadian sector to the east.

The whole Allied bag of prisoners was above 54,000, for an American announcement June 11 said 46,818 enemy troops had been taken by (Continued on page four)

URGE SAVING WASTE PAPER

Regular Collections to be Made Throughout Summer

The need for waste paper is so critical that every man, woman, and child in Pitt county is urged to reduce his or her effort in saving waste paper and turning it in to the paper salvage campaign, states Miss Louise Swann of the Pitt County Salvage committee.

Plans are being made for regular collection throughout the summer. Collection of paper in the business district of Greenville will be made on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday of next week. Mr. Alton Barrett, chairman of salvage committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce announces a collection in residential sections Sunday afternoon, July 23, from 2 until 6.

In a bulletin issued by Mrs. Cora Powell, secretary of Greenville Merchants Association, merchants are urged to cooperate in the saving of waste paper, cartons, and boxes so that it may be salvaged for the war effort. Merchants are urged to collect this paper and keep it in their establishments until collection is made. By this frequent collection we hope to get waste paper that has been going into the city dump and burned, states Supt. J. H. Rose, who has arranged for school trucks to pick up the paper from the business section during next week.

Mr. Barrett states that over a period of three weeks 4,000 pounds of paper have been collected recently from Penney's, Rose's and Blount Harveys and sent immediately to Plymouth Mills. All merchants are urged to renew efforts to get the waste paper from their stores into the salvage program. Every home is encouraged to participate in the salvaging of waste paper during this week and throughout the summer as collections are made regularly. (Continued on page two)

Veterans' Office Is Opened Here

The Veterans' Division of the N. C. Department of Labor, with William A. (Doc) Dunn of Wilson in charge, will have headquarters at the City Hall for a large number of counties. Mayor Bruce Sugg stated, "They will use the offices on the third floor, formerly occupied by the Service League, which patriotically moved its offices to provide quarters for the veterans' work. The league will move to the State Bank building."

The Veterans' Division of the Labor Department contacts discharge, war veterans and provides facilities for procuring for them all benefits to which they are entitled under congressional acts, some of which are complicated and require skilled interpretation. The division hopes to be permitted to go into the various camps and forts in this area to contact veterans before they are officially discharged. In addition the Veterans' Division will aid servicemen's dependents in filing claims with the federal government. The Chamber of Commerce, American Legion and various other agencies are expected to bring the Veterans' Division to Greenville and find suitable quarters.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Associated Press War Analyst
If further proof were needed of the desperate straits of Hitlerdom it would be found in Nazi Minister Joseph Goebbels' latest publication which the United States Office of War Information describes as "an implicit appeal to the United States and Britain to soften their demands for unconditional surrender."

Goebbels' plea is contained in an article distributed by the official German DNB agency and recorded in this country by the Federal Communications Commission. It is not by any means the first effort of its kind made recently by the Hitlerites, since there have been at least half a dozen feelers put out by Berlin. However, it represents a monumental display of brass, coming as it does on top of the Nazi threat to "turn Europe into a maelstrom of destruction" in an attempt to make the Allies come to terms.

This is the same demagogic Goebbels whom I heard whipping a crowd of fifty thousand in Berlin up to war fever back at the time of Munich. To give the devil his due, he is a past master at tub-thumping and is clever in much of his propaganda. He has the knack of giving the tinge of truth to his lies.

However, he's one of the most unscrupulous of Hitler's murderous gang and has been one of the Fuehrer's mainstays in making war against the Allies whom he now begs to be lenient. He's a dangerous man.

Those of us who were at Versailles to see the last peace made with Germany, and who watched the subsequent manipulations of Prussian militarism and Hitlerism close range, have no slightest doubt that the Germans will make war on us again if we don't smash them now. Indeed, Allied intelligence agents have found ample proof that the Prussian high command, which long has recognized that the Reich couldn't win the war, has been planning for a comeback 25 years hence.

The Allied problem of how to deal with Prussian aggression isn't new to this war or to the last. This militarism has been the plague of Europe for many decades. There can be no peace until Prussianism and its running mate, Nazism, are literally wiped out.

The argument made by many of those who advocate lenience towards the Nazis is that the demand of unconditional surrender will only make Germany fight harder and (Continued on page two)

ALLIED TROOPS NEAR LEGHORN

Americans Push To Within Three And Half Miles of Port

By NOLAN NORGAARD
Rome, July 15.—(AP)—American troops have driven to within three and a half miles of the seaport of Livorno (Leghorn), in the wake of suddenly melting German resistance, and have captured the town of Chianini, 13 miles inland, from the west coast, it was announced today.

The most significant gains in the past two weeks of heavy fighting putting the Fifth army within artillery range of Livorno and nine miles south of the Arno river, were made yesterday, with the battered Germans falling back at most points.

The French, who celebrated Bastille day by seizing Poagibonsi in a combined flanking move and direct assault, pursued the enemy northward.

An Allied spokesman said the leading elements of the American forces on the west coast were within six miles of the edge of Livorno late yesterday. Frontline reports declared by last night, however, that the doughboys had punched to (Continued on Page Four)

Missing Professor Now Truck Driver

Hartford, Conn., July 15.—(AP)—The Hartford Courant says today that John A. Commons, 53, former professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin and reportedly missing since 1930, has been found driving a laundry truck in Hartford.

According to the newspaper Commons was declared legally dead in 1938, a year after his wife had divorced him. Inquiries from Detroit and Milwaukee newspapers recently prompted a search for Commons, according to the Courant and investigators located him at 63 Tremont street.

The story quotes Commons as having told investigators that "I have merely gone out of my wife's life."

According to the newspaper, Commons declared that many persons knew of his whereabouts at all times and that his draft board had been kept informed of his movements.

Commons, the newspaper reported, registered for the draft at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He was quoted as declaring he had always used his own name and had never remarried.

Fliers Executed

New York, July 5.—(AP)—A Japanese broadcast directed to American forces in the southwest Pacific and recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, announced that several American airmen captured in the first superfortress raid on northern Kyushu last month had been executed.

The broadcast warned that "any Allied airman who falls or bails out over Japan will be executed."

"This is the order of the day," it added.

The American airmen met with "the same fate which was meted out to raiders of Tokyo some two years ago," continued the broadcast.

FCC monitors said the announcement was contained in a "special talk" from the Singapore transmitter. Exception was poor and only a few excerpts in English were intelligible, the monitors said.

Air And Sea Blows On Guam Continue; Japs Anticipate New Landings; Other Bases Bombed

By VERN HAUGLAND
(Associated Press War Editor)
Radio Tokyo, anticipating a possible second U. S. landing operation in the Marianas, reported today an eleventh-day raid upon Guam by 85 American planes and an attack by two Liberators upon two Jima islands in the Marsh group.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced yesterday that a fast American carrier task force raided Guam, 125 miles south of American-occupied Saipan, and nearby Rota island with bombs and rockets Thursday. It was the tenth straight day of such attacks.

Thursday's attacks, covered in the press release, destroyed ammunition dumps, storage facilities, gun positions and buildings both on Guam and nearby Rota. All planes returned safely.

So completely are Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's forces masters of the sea and air that the press release said a destroyer moved close to Guam and sank an enemy coastal transport July 10.

The Tokyo broadcast added that a "powerful American unit, with carriers, battleships, cruisers and destroyers, is continuing activities near Guam. The war situation does not allow a moment of optimism."

The Kazan or Volcano islands, 750 miles northwest of Saipan, hitherto have been out of reach of the American land-based planes. A strike by Liberators would indicate (Continued on page two)

HALF-REVIEW AND FORECAST

Babson Says War Boom Is Over

Babson Park, Mass., July 15.—Business volume has been maintained at such a high level since Pearl Harbor that it is hard for some to realize that there can be any slowing up. However, the past six months witnessed the beginning of the end of our current war boom. As we enter the third quarter the trend will continue downward. From this point on business will have to adjust itself to quite different conditions: with a gradual resumption of more normal activities.

During the past six months stock market averages of 30 industrials and 20 rails have risen from 86.04 in January to 92.69 in June. This is a rise of 7.7 per cent. All things considered, the market has acted well during the first half of the year. Our taxes on capital gains and the double taxation on corporate dividends continue to be distinct drawbacks. London investors have no capital gains tax to contend with. Hence, the prices of English stocks are outpacing U. S. securities.

I have been bullish on stocks during the past six months and I now continue so. The coming third quarter is especially apt to show a rise in view of the presidential campaign. It may seem odd for me to forecast a decline in the volume of business and at the same time to expect a rise in security prices; but the relief which investors are experiencing over the war's progress together with the constructive oratory of Dewey, Bricker and other Republicans is being reflected in the stock market.

Eisenhower Calls For French Action

Supreme Commander Declares Patriots Are Now A Regular Part Of Allied Combatant Forces

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, July 15.—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared today that French forces of the interior "constitute a combatant force" and that any Germans treating them otherwise would be brought to speedy justice.

These forces, he said in an announcement, form an "integral part of the Allied expeditionary force."

"The supreme Allied commander now has conclusive evidence, that the German forces in France have acted upon the announcement of June 7, 1944, made by the commander in chief of the German armed forces in the west labeling as 'Franc-Tireurs' (irregulars not subject to international law protecting regular combatants) the members of French resistance groups," said an official statement. Eisenhower's announcement added:

"The supreme commander therefore makes the following statement: '1. French forces of the interior constitute a combatant force commanded and directed by Gen. Joseph Koenig and forming an integral part of the Allied expeditionary force.'

"2. French forces of the interior in the Maquis bear arms openly against the enemy and are instructed to conduct their operations against him in accordance with the rules of war. They are provided with a distinctive emblem and are regarded by General Eisenhower as an army under his command."

"3. In these circumstances, reprisals against resistance groups violate rules of war by which Germany is bound. Such crimes only strengthen the determination of the United Nations in bringing the war to a speedy and victorious conclusion to see that justice is carried out."

"4. The supreme commander is determined that every effort shall be made to trace the authors of any atrocities committed against members of forces under his command. Steps to this end are already being taken. The guilty will be brought to swift justice."

Cow Has Triplets At Greenville Farm

There was a "blessed event" at John B. Webb's Green Hill Farms on the Falkland highway near Greenville yesterday afternoon and it was triplets—all girls, and the mother, Ellis Blanche Ballack Homestead, registered Holstein cow, and the three calves are "doing well," Webb told a reporter today while bragging about his cow's contribution to the war effort.

The mother is registered in the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. She has an unusual record. When she was two years old she was giving up to six gallons of milk daily. At three years she became the mother of triplets. Two of the calves weighed 67 pounds, the other 57 pounds—total 191 pounds.

Oil Fields Hit

Rome, July 15.—(AP)—Great clouds of smoke swirled up to 20,000 feet today after nearly 750 American heavy bombers blasted five oil refineries and a pumping station at Ploesti, Romania.

The columns of smoke were visible for more than 100 miles. Escorted Mustangs encountered a number of enemy fighters.

In the battles Capt. Robert R. Curtis of New York City, shot down a Messerschmitt, running his victory string to 14 and taking third place among American pilots in the Mediterranean area. He passed Maj. Gen. Samuel J. Brown of Tulsa, Okla., whose total is 131-2.

EXPECT BREAK WITH HITLER

Rumors That Turkey May End Relations With Germany Soon

Ankara, Turkey, July 15.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Rumors circulated in Ankara today that diplomatic and economic relations may be broken shortly between Turkey and Germany.

The Allies were said to have demanded such a break.

There was no confirmation of the reports, but no denial either from Turkish or Allied quarters.

The Istanbul newspaper Tan quoted the Transkontinent German news agency as saying the German embassy in Ankara was "closely watching German European developments, especially a 'country which is considering going to war.'"

Tan said it was obvious that the country referred to was Turkey and that the threat probably would draw a reply by the Turkish press.

Washington, July 15.—(AP)—The army has put in such a terrific demand for tents that WPB officials are in knots.

They say that as of now the textile mills can meet only 50 per cent of the requirements.

They say this, too: They may not even be able to fill the full order for tents by cutting into other lines.

So far they have ordered 100 per cent of the yarn, intended for tire cords, to be diverted to manufacturing the duck material which goes into tents.

Very shortly they will cut into upholstery and corduroy manufacturing so the duck can be turned out.

They may decide to cut the manufacture of denim which goes, just as corduroy does, into making work clothes. Most of those work clothes, however, happen to be for military purposes.

And they may even decide to dip further into the cord tire field for more yarn. This would mean fewer new tires.

This is the story the officials tell: In August, 1943, the military began cancelling its orders for tent material.

But at the start of this year the army began to see fresh need for

Latest Activity Located In Southern Poland Extending Along 500 Mile Front; Reds Approach East Prussia In Steady Advance; Grodno Under Gunfire

By LEWIS HAWKINS
London, July 15.—(AP)—The Germans announced today that the Russians have launched a long-awaited offensive in southern Poland—extending to 500 miles—a front which in the north challenges the last-ditch straits of forts guarding the Junker homeland in East Prussia, now less than 20 miles ahead of the Red army.

The German high command said the Russians struck from northwest of Tarnopol, where they last were reported within 30 miles of strategic Lwow, and west of Luck, 120 miles southeast of Lublin, which guards the southeast approaches to Warsaw.

A drive from Luck also would pose a southern flanking threat to Brest-Litovsk, fortress town starred by two wars, which stands on the main line west to Warsaw and anchors the enemy's Bug river defenses.

"Some Russian penetrations were eliminated in counter-thrusts," the Berlin radio said of the new offensive.

Moscow, habitually silent on new operations until they are well developed, had not mentioned any new drive south of the Pripyat marshes. The Russians kept up their breakneck pace through wavering defenses as they struck on in the Baltic states toward the fortified line guarding East Prussia. The Berlin radio said in a broadcast beamed to Europe that the Germans had begun to dismount installations in the East Prussian fortress part of Königsberg.

(CBS recorded a broadcast by London saying the Russians had begun shelling Grodno, old Polish town guarding the approaches to southern East Prussia.)

Moscow dispatches said the Russians were within seven miles of Grodno.

Street barricades were being thrown up in Grodno, Bialystok and Brest-Litovsk, keystones of the defense line, and the Germans were reported bent on a fight to the death in these cities.

The Berlin radio said counterattacks had been launched by the Germans to the north of Grodno. It was on this sector that the Russians were closest to the East Prussian frontier.

The Berlin radio admitted the Germans had pulled out of Wloclawek, on the railroad 55 miles east of Bialystok, and reported fresh blows by the Russians south, south.

Tropical Storm Is Moving North

Miami, Fla., July 15.—(AP)—The weather bureau today reported a tropical storm 450 miles in the Atlantic, due east of Melbourne, Fla., and advised naval forces to take precautions in the path of the low.

The storm warning service said the disturbance, hot of hurricane intensity, was moving northward parallel to the U. S. coastline, at 12 to 14 miles an hour, attended by 40 to 45 mile winds.

"Its movement will continue to the northward with further increase in intensity indicated during this afternoon and tonight," the bureau said. "It will probably curve slowly to the north-northeast later."

more duck. By March the army requested 300 million yards of duck by the end of 1944.

Since then the demands have increased. The Navy and Maritime Commission also need duck.

Here are some of the reasons: In the South Pacific midwest is destructive of testing. In the island campaign of the Pacific, tents are left behind on seized islands as bases of further operations.

In Italy, because of wide destruction of towns and civilian dwellings, army commanders turned over large supplies of tents to homeless people.

The same will be true in the wake of the invasion of western Europe. WPB officials are working on the problem, but haven't reached a full solution.

Besides all this: The capacity of the mills to produce has been reduced by manpower shortages and the replacement of drafted, experienced men by inexperienced workers.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

ADVANCE SLOW BUT SURE

There are many people who pretend to believe that the human race has not only failed to make any improvement through the ages but that it has definitely deteriorated in recent centuries. They point to the present war with its destruction and insist that a generation which conceives such evil and participates in it has come back to the jungle and beyond.

Most of us would deny this. We believe that with all its stumbling and backsliding, the human race nevertheless manages to edge forward a little each century. But it cannot be denied that many things happen in modern life which seem to put us in the jungle brackets.

It is disconcerting, for instance, to confront the fact that the day man cut wings he had to go living in caves. He had not lived in caves for thousands of years, but when bombing started in war-torn areas everybody, from kings and princes to commoners, gladly sought shelter in underground air-raid shelters.

It has been the privilege of this generation to make stupendous scientific discoveries, but one of the first uses it has made of these discoveries is to destroy human life.

But we have faith that the experience will teach man sound lessons, and that the restraining hand of common sense and Christian righteousness will prevent him in future years from turning the blessings of life into agencies of destruction.

AMERICA IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—Least understood of the veterans' legislation passed last year are those laws involving loans.

I have checked, and double-checked on these and it seems certain that some veterans will have to be satisfied with court rulings, understanding that the Supreme Court is the final authority.

However, some things are pretty clear. For example, a qualified veteran (that is, one honorably discharged) will be able to get a government-guaranteed loan up to $2-600 for either buying or building a home, providing that is 50 per cent of the total loan, and that the lending agency (bank, mortgage company, or even personal lender) is satisfied with the 50 per cent collateral.

This means that a veteran can borrow up to $4,000 with a government guarantee for $2,000 of it, and no interest for the first year, provided he can convince any lending agency that his security, credit or general experience is good for at least half that amount.

This assures a lot of building and repairing, and has given the building industry and trades reason for much of their optimism about postwar prospects.

Virtually the same limits apply to veterans who will want to start their own businesses. The key will be whether they can convince lending agencies or personal creditors and the government that they have a fair chance of succeeding.

What few polls have been taken of men in the service about their post-war plans indicate that private enterprise and small businesses are in for a big upswing. The boys have had enough of being bossed and want to go on their own as soon as they get back into civil life.

Second, most important to the youngsters back from the wars is the assurance that they will be given every opportunity and financial aid to equip themselves for the battle of economic survival.

The provisions for education and vocational training should make it possible for any earnest young man either to pick up where he left off or launch into new fields. In many instances these fields will be those to which his military training has introduced him.

For those qualified the government will pay up to $500 a year tuition, fees and books; $50 a month additional for living expenses and $25 more if he has a wife or dependents.

Veterans under 25 when they entered the service may return to school even though their education was not interrupted. Those over 25 must show their education was interrupted by entering the service.

However, refresher courses for a year may be had by veterans of any age.

THE WAR TODAY

longer. I don't believe that represents the consensus of professional observers. The general view is that annihilation or no annihilation, the Hit-lers will quit when they have their cellies full and not before.

Anyway, the Allied peoples as a whole seem firmly determined to see the thing through to a finish. The British House of Lords reflected the general attitude very well a couple of days ago when Lord Vansitart, exponent of using the mailed fist in Germany, denounced the Nazi regime. He secured a government pledge that "the whole devil-ish (Gestapo) organization will be rooted out," and that the German people and army will have to share the onus of the Nazi crimes.

While Goebbels' appeal for peace will be wasted on the desert air so far as the Allies are concerned, its worth noting that it does serve to prepare the German public for the surrender which must come sooner or later. Probably the propaganda minister had this in mind.

merchandizing stocks. I particularly like the chain stores which can easily adapt themselves to almost all changes.

Commodity Prices
During the first six months of the year commodity prices held up.
I expect them to hold at around current levels for the time being.
Buyers should continue to keep moderately protected. Price controls have helped all. Food requirements will continue heavy, but we shall have the largest crops in our history. Hence, food supplies will remain ample; but will not be excessive.

Both hard and soft goods will continue scarce until we can revert to production for civilian requirements. Retail prices after the war may average 15 per cent or more above prewar prices. Certainly when new automobiles are available, they will be priced higher than pre-war levels. Building costs will also be up sharply.

Conclusion
We are now definitely in the transition period from war to peace.
Hitler will probably collapse sometime between November 7, 1944, and March 7, 1945. The coming six months will bring more adjustments in business and in living than we have witnessed for some time. Yet these headaches are the necessary prelude to peacetime activities. Despite them, I am sure we shall all breathe more easily in the near-term future than we have in the recent past.

really desperately tired. I'm afraid I couldn't possibly pose—today." She closed her eyes and leaned back against the cushion, as if to put an end to the interview.

Angel opened her eyes and managed a faint smile. "Yes," she said, "that would be better." She turned to Martha. "Would you give Mr.
Stanley our phone number, Mother-er?"

"We—we haven't a phone, dear," stammered Martha, after a moment's hesitation. "We—er—we've just moved, we—"

"And it's practically impossible to get a phone now," announced Louise, stepping into the breach with what she hoped might be considered a logical explanation. "You know—priorities."

She could feel her face burn as she said it. She had been annoyed at Martha's pathetic attempts to keep up a front—and here she was doing precisely the same thing.
"And we're not fooling anybody either," she reflected angrily. "Dick Stanley knows why we haven't got a phone. He knows we can't afford one. I can tell by the look in his eye."

"It's all right," said Stanley hastily—and with such fervor that he seemed to be in on the conspiracy.
"Phones are nuisances anyhow.
Maybe you won't mind if I take a chance and drop in—say, around 3 o'clock in the afternoon?" He addressed the question to Angel, but his eyes were on Louise now. It had been ages since he'd seen a girl blush over a little white lie.

Martha beamed and said she thought 3 o'clock would be fine, and Angel found no fault with the arrangement. Then Stanley lowered his voice and said to Louise:

"I didn't hear you say anything beautiful. Am I to assume that your silence means consent?"

"You're to assume nothing, as far as I'm concerned," snapped Louise.
"As a matter of fact, I won't even be there."

"Oh—so little funny-face has got a date, eh? That would be my luck," he groaned.

"Funny-face indeed!" thought Louise. She turned away from him, but not until after she'd said in a voice calculated to reach his ears only:

"Certainly I've got a date. On the swing shift, if you must know—with a riveting machine."

"Then I'll be there at two o'- clock," he said, undaunted and turned to inform Angel that he was setting the appointment forward an hour.

Louise was grateful when they reached the bridge and Dick Stanley got out.

Relieved of his disturbing presence, she could not concentrate on the real worry that had been in the back of her mind all the time: How were they going to pay for the cab? What happened to decent, law-abiding people who allowed themselves to be hauled into taxicabs they couldn't pay for?

Seeing her worry, the driver unexpectedly spoke up: "You don't have to worry about the fare, Miss."
He flashed Louise a knowing grin.
"Your boy-friend, the newspaper guy, settled up."

Louise gasped. So that was what Dick Stanley had been doing when he had got out of the cab and spoke to the driver—settling up.

"But I—I—" she stammered.
The driver snickered and turned his attention to the wheel, saying as he did so: "It's okay, Miss. He don't it when you wasn't lookin'."

Said I should take good care of his girl-friend on the jump-seat. Swell guy—newspaperman."

Louise sat back, not knowing whether to laugh or to cry. It was a relief to know that they wouldn't have to get out of the cab; that she wouldn't have to ask the sour-faced Miss Larkin for a loan, or juggle pennies out of a pig-bank. But the thought of that presumptuous Dick Stanley paying the cab fare infuriated her.

"He didn't do it just for politeness—or because he rode to the bridge," she raged inwardly. "He did it because he knew we were broke.
And he was laughing at us all the time. Boy-friend, indeed!"

Chapter 6

Even if she lived to a ripe old age, Louise knew she would never forget their inglorious homecoming.
Never before had she seen so keenly aware that they were living at the "wrong end" of Washington Avenue. Never before had she cared.
She had taken their financial reverse in her stride, had accepted the situation with good grace and a firm resolve to make the best of things.

"I don't care now, either," she told herself defiantly, as the cab turned a corner into Washington Avenue. "It's the best we can do—and if there's anything I hate it's a snob. Mother's not a snob, either.
It's just that she's proud. Poor Mother."

Louise tried to tell herself that she was different. But she had to confess that she was beginning to share her mother's misgivings. She had begun to worry about what Angel would think. Certainly it was a terrible let-down from Forest Hills with its swank apartment houses, charming cottages, well-kept lawns and gay landscaped courts, to a coldwater railroad flat in Brooklyn. Angel, who loved attractive surroundings, and who should have had them as a background for her beauty and charm, would have good reason to be shocked.

As they drew near the block where they lived, Louise could see the old brownstone house with its tiers of baby windows, its ornate mid-Victorian cornices, and the cut-rate stores beneath it. It was one of a row of eight-family houses, all precisely alike. In the early afternoon sunlight the crowded street looked even more commonplace than usual.

"If only they wouldn't sit on the sidewalks, and allow their children to play in the streets," thought Louise—and was instantly ashamed of herself. Where else could these people sit? Where else could their children play? In dark, smelly apartments—like the Malones? No, they couldn't, she decided. "And they're the lucky ones. They can sit on the sidewalks in the sunshine and let themselves go. We can't, because we've got pride—false pride."

Louise, her face crimson, turned to look at the others in the cab.
But the three women on the back seat were watching Baby, Jeanne who had, deawakened and was beginning to whimper.

A crowd had gathered in front of the fish store, which was directly under the Malones' apartment.
Pennants in myriad colors had been strung across the sidewalk in a festoon effect. The usual display of live fish in the window had been augmented by a giant horseshoe of artificial roses. Across it was a red satin banner on which the word
"Success" was printed in flamboyant gilt letters. A man with a megaphone stood in the doorway inviting people to come in, and announcing that prizes would be given to all who bought fish.

"Strictly fresh fish," he intoned in a sing-song voice. "We catch 'em.
You eat 'em. You take your pick—and we'll kill 'em right in front of your eyes."

Louise closed her eyes to shut out the spectacle. "The We-catch-'em Fish Store is having another one of its grand openings," she groaned.
"They would pick today!"

The driver brought the cab to a sudden stop. "What address did you say, Miss?" he queried. Louise didn't answer, and he repeated the question before Martha stammered:
"Just pull up in front of the—er—fish store, driver. We'll—"

She stopped, unable to go on.
"Oh, Mother," cried Angel, "must we have fish today? If there's anything I hate, it's fish."

"The very smell of fish makes me sick," announced Miss Larkin, making a wry face.

"You'll probably be smelling it a lot from now on, my pet," thought Louise, opening her eyes and waiting for Martha to answer. But Martha didn't say anything. She was Barrett presented "The Anatomy and Physiology of the Gastro-enteric System." Dr. K. B. Pace presented the subject of "The Pathology of the Gastro-enteric System." He deplored the apparent neglect of attention to the sanitary privy program and emphasized the need of a state law requiring the maintenance of sanitary privies at all residences.

A general discussion followed on the matter of the poliomyelitis with attention focused upon the questions of immunity, infectiousness, difficulty of and errors in diagnosis and the relative insignificance of this disease when compared with diphtheria for which we have adequate preventive means.

Eighth St. Christian Church. The churches of the United States have a most timely and appropriate lesson in the adult department of the Sunday school for tomorrow when they shall be considering the successes and failures of Israel after they had gone in and possessed the land of Canaan. Courage and heroism were necessary in order to possess and inhabit the land but after they had entered and taken possession they succumbed to the inevitable temptation of ease and plenty. No more subtle temptation faces the life of our America just now than that. We have occupied the land and it is rich and plentiful. We now face the same temptations that were before ancient Israel. Adult citizens of the United States would do well to attend Sunday school tomorrow and study this timely lesson.

At Eighth St. Church this lesson will be presented in the men's, women's and older young people's classes, taught by Paul T. Rickis, Mrs. Agnes Settle and Miss Nannie Rowlett, respectively.

At the morning service Mrs. Harper Holiday of Richmond, will sing "The Good Shepherd" by Van de Water, and Dr. Hanev will preach on the theme "A Christianity Without Christ."

Henderson of Sparrowburg, S. C. At 8:30 Sunday night Mr. Henderson will preach again closing the special series of meetings. This work is sponsored by the Hollywood Presbyterian church whose plan it is to continue Sunday school and church services at Chiod each Sunday.

Forty Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
July 15, 1904

Those who attended the entertainment to the Pitwick Club Friday evening will ever cherish a happy memory of those pleasant hours spent in the home of Miss Bessie Haskett. The charming manner in which Miss Haskett entertained added much to the pleasure of all present.

Mrs. W. B. James had handsomely decorated the reception hall with ferns, potted plants and ivy, and as the soft green foliage caught up the enchanting strains of music and wafted them gently over the perfumed air all felt truly that it was "good to be there."

Then nearing the close of the happy evening the guests partook of delicious refreshments served in the most graceful manner by Misses Mamie and Bessie Haskett.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO OUR CUSTOMERS

In order that our employees might have their earned vacation this year, and due to the overlapping importance of one mechanic to the other in our wartime shop operation; it is necessary for us to curtail our service for the week of July 17th to emergency service only. This will be our vacation week. Our service station will be open as usual for the sale of all things normally handled through a service station. Our shop will have one man for the purpose of emergency work only. In this manner we will only be on a curtailed basis for one week. Whereas if we spread vacations over a period of six to eight weeks, with one man out each week, we would be handicapped for a period of six to eight weeks. Most of our work now depends not on one man to a job but the knowledge and experience of all of our men working in an organized system together.

Your patience and cooperation will be appreciated.

U. S. forces.

This was the position of the American front this morning: Lessay—one mile north of the town after the capture of the hamlet of Beauvais, converging on the town from the east where they were two miles away at Pissot, while on the west they were about a mile and a half away after advancing from St. Germain-sur-ay.

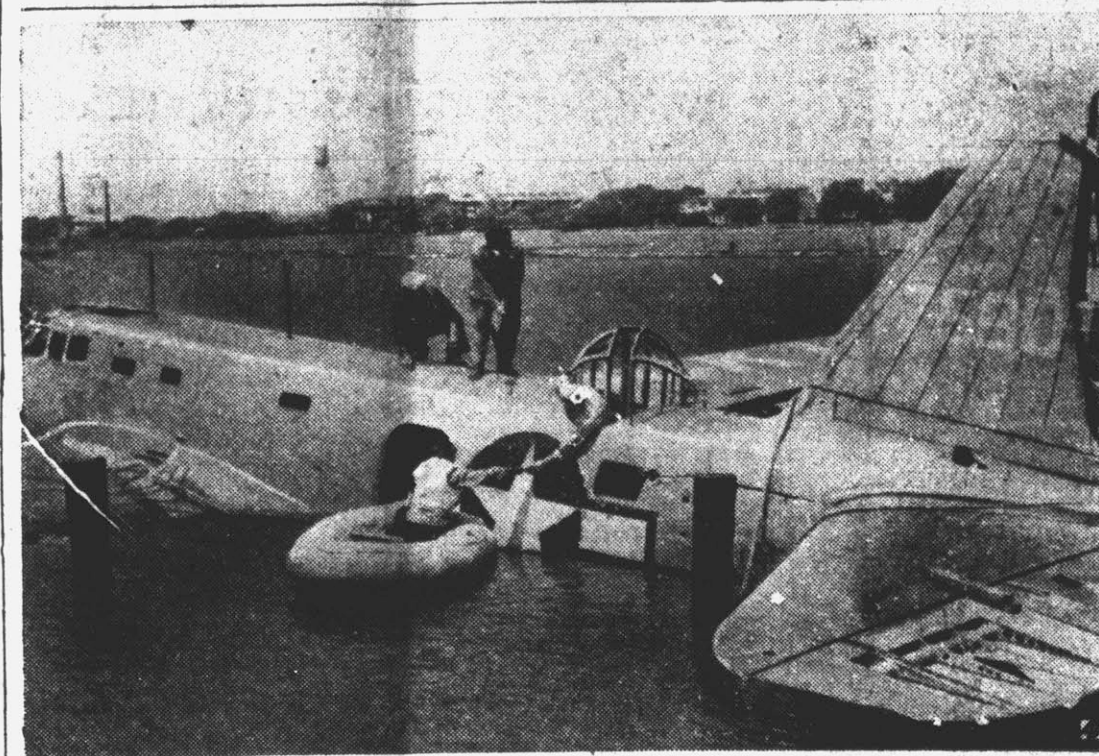

Periers—a late telephone call from the 21st army group this morning said the Americans had driven to within two miles of the town from the north. The exact position was not given. Previous information a few hours before, however, recorded the capture of Les Granges and Gonville, four miles north of the town.

St. Lo—late information this morning said the Americans had pushed west from La Barre de Senilly, breaking the deadlock there, but did not give the exact distance of the advance. This one pincer was closing on the town while a half-mile advance northwest of St. Lo, down the Vire river through Creterville, placed another American column less than three miles from St. Lo in this direction.

Another enemy report said the Red army was pounding at the German lines below captured Opockka, northeast of Daugavpils and 24 miles from the Latvian border.

Gaping breaches on many parts of the German lines as the Red forces pushed forward as fast as 23 miles a day.

A dispatch from Moscow said the flying artillery of the Stormoviks shot up enemy crossings on the Velikaya river, near Opockka, struck at enemy reserves, destroyed 700 trucks and 300 other vehicles.

Driving to within 16 miles of the Latvian border, the Red army was said to have cut the highway leading southwest of Opockka to Sebezh and approached the railway and highway linking the northern German anchor of Pskov with Daugavpils.

Another force was moving toward Pskov, northwest of Opockka where a branch railway runs to Riga.

Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian army kept up the pressure on Kaunas with a push that had carried it to within 12 miles of the main railway that connects East Prussia with the Baltic States.

At the southern end of the front, the Russians were approaching Brest-Litovsk from captured Pinsk, 100 miles to the east, and from the northeast, where a column last was reported 30 miles away.

In the seizure of Pinsk, hardy Red army infantrymen crossed remote marshes, swamps and lakes which seldom have been seen by man.

Star, July 15.—(AP)—A train-automobile collision near here yesterday killed three members of the Dossie Dunn family, of near Robins, and injured three others.

Mr. and Mrs. Dossie Dunn and a daughter, Eileen, 12, were fatally injured and three other children, Mrs. Francis Dunn, 21; Ada, Myrtle Dunn, 16; and Grady Dunn, 7, were carried to an Asheboro hospital.

In a broad forward sweep, one American column passed Ghizano, 23 miles due east of Livorno, and occupied all the important heights covering the approach to the Arno river, 10 miles away.

Another American force captured Villamagna, 15 miles west of Poggibonsi, while still other U. S. units swept through Chianini and Belvedere, enemy strongholds guarding the Arno valley avenue toward the Arno valley. Belvedere is five and a half miles northeast of Chianini.
