Reds Smashing Forward To New Objectives Along Entire 550 Mile Flaming Front

London, July 19.—(AP)—Russian troops have opened a new offensive on their third Baltic front south of Ostrov, Premier Marshal Stalin announced tonight.

By EDDY GILMORE
Moscow, July 19.—(AP)—Six Russian armies poured through huge holes today in Hitler's eastern front from Marshal Ivan S. Konev's new 125-mile-wide breakthrough on the south to Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko's drive into the Soviet Latvian republic on the north, now 20 miles inside the border.

Significant objectives were just ahead from one end to the other of the battlefield, which was extended to 550 miles in length by the new offensive set off by Konev's first Ukrainian army Sunday between Lwow and Kowel.

Konev's tanks and infantry, which made three-day gains of 31 miles, already were less than 10 miles from the Polish border (as delineated by the Germans and Russians in 1939) at two places north of Lwow and were across the Bug river at Belet Belski, south of Sokal.

(London noted that the Russians had actually reached the 1939 German-Soviet border with capture of Skomorokh, five miles above Sokal and on the east bank of the Bug river which forms the boundary. Skomorokh is 45 miles north of Lwow.)

Konev's forces were closing in on Lwow itself, on a column from only 20 miles away, and captured the city, on the eastern bank of the Bug, on the morning of July 18. The city was captured and the city was captured.

Market Holiday Possible If Ceilings Not Satisfactory

Raleigh, July 19.—(AP)—North Carolina tobaccoists, including growers and warehousemen, voted unanimously today to join in a southern movement for increased ceilings, and amended a resolution adopted last week in Columbia, S. C., by asking that selling hours and sets of buyers not be reduced.

The tobaccoists petitioned the OPA to announce its ceilings well in advance of opening dates and if satisfactory ceilings were not issued in time, for the governors to call a holiday for at least five days to allow producers time to protect their own interests.

At the insistence of the Border Belt, the delegation of about 35 agreed to petition the Tobacco Association of the United States to rescind its action in paring selling hours and buyers and if such a course were not followed, for the governors of the five free-cured states to use their discretion in calling a holiday. The five states are Florida, Georgia, the Carolinas and Virginia.

A note of urgency was voiced by Flake Shaw of Greensboro, secretary of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, who reminded that although ceilings had not been announced for 1944 by the OPA, the Georgia-Flores belt would open Monday and the border belt on August 1.

The Georgia-Florida growers of untied, ungraded tobacco are asking that a ceiling of at least 41 cents a pound and those from other belts, where the weed is tied and graded, are asking and the ceiling for them be at least 45 cents.

Tomorrow Deadline
For Filing Forms

A deadline has been set on employers in the area filing Forms WMC-NC-106, "Application for Establishment of Employment Ceiling," W. B. Pollock, WMC area director, said today. The director emphasized the fact that these forms must be received or postmarked not later than July 20 to be considered for priority ratings and employment ceilings. After this date a more complicated form will be required of employers who have not complied with the instructions of the War Manpower Commission and who failed to meet the deadline.

A number of employers have already been advised of the priority ratings assigned to them and the employment ceilings established, and notices will go forward to others in the next few days, stated the area director.

Huge Munitions Blast Wrecks Theater

This theater was wrecked by the terrific explosions when two ammunition-loaded ships blew up in Sausal Bay at Port Chicago, Calif., July 17. Coast guardsmen view the interior of the theater in which 115 patrons escaped with only minor injuries. The death toll from the blast—one of the most disastrous in American history—has been placed at 353.

MOLTEN LAVA COVERS TOWN

Mexicans Flee From Vicinity Of Paricutin Volcano

By ALBERT NOEL
Mexico City, July 19.—(AP)—Millions of tons of molten lava pouring along a 25-mile front from Paricutin, Mexico's new volcano, have engulfed two towns and are threatening to wipe out three others.

Paricutin, the town from which the volcano takes its name, and Parangaricutiro, already are buried. The lava is moving 200 yards a day toward Zacan, San Francisco Pariban and Zirosto, which have been partly evacuated. Residents also are leaving other towns farther ahead.

Highways leading from the doomed region, 200 miles west of here, are crisscrossed with lava flows. The lava is moving 200 yards a day toward Zacan, San Francisco Pariban and Zirosto, which have been partly evacuated. Residents also are leaving other towns farther ahead.

Earthshaking explosions are heard at more or less regular intervals from the elevated center of the sea of lava. At each explosion a higher wave of molten stone pushes out from the volcano, born in February, 1943.

Nothing is now visible of the town of Paricutin-Tarascan name for San Juan—except the towers and roof of the church, which are expected to fall at any time.

Dwellers of the region painted a gruesome picture of the lava pouring by night into the famous Church of Our Lord of Miracles. The towns on the inside were shattered, they (Continued on page six)

More Beef Will Be Ration Free

Washington, July 19.—(AP)—More beef is to be freed soon from rationing restrictions, but speculation continued today as to whether the effective date will be August 1, the date set in a directive sent to OPA by War Food Administrator Marvin Jones.

Jones' order directed OPA to eliminate points on all beef roasts and steaks except top quality (A, A and A) which, in effect, will free a majority of steaks and roasts available at butcher shops as most of these are due to go off the ration list.

Jones' directive also advised OPA to ration hams and pork loins on Aug. 1. All pork is now point free.

Pitt People Miss
Chance Make Money

Pitt county people have $367,000 worth of E war bonds to buy during the next 10 days if the county maintains its reputation for meeting the government's wartime requirements. Pitt counties fell down on the E bonds in the Fifth War Loan drive and have only bought $300,000 worth of them in the quota of $667,000.

"From now until the end of July it looks like hand-to-hand combat—person-to-person and house-to-house and farm-to-farm—personal visitation to sell the county's E quota," County War Finance Committee Chairman J. Herbert Waldrop stated today.

"We must put as much effort into providing the finances to keep 'them' going on the battlefronts as 'they' are putting forth to win the victory and peace. Nothing less than this will do," the banker said.

The WAR TODAY
AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

By DEWITT TUCKER (Associated Press War Analyst)
The Allied two-front rise is tightening its death grip on Hitler in a big way. The new and devastating offensives launched simultaneously in the eastern theater and in Normandy.

Berlin itself admits that this is the show-down. A government-controlled Nazi commentator, viewing this fresh onslaught, declared that the war would be decided in less than three months.

The powerful Allied offensive in Normandy may be the beginning of our major effort to break out of the peninsula onto the open road to Paris. The British and Canadians have achieved a notable gain by smashing the Nazi defenses in the strategic Caen sector—gateway to the hinterland. And the Americans have added another fine contribution by the capture of St. Lo at the other end of the flaming battlefield.

Again air power has blazed the way. The Normandy offensive was preceded by a terrific aerial bombardment by more than 2,000 warplanes. Significant indeed is the fact that there was no opposition from German planes.

Over on the Russian front the Red armies have swelled their already furious offensive to a scale which is likely to precipitate the grand crisis of the Russo-German war.

A new drive launched by the Russians in southeastern Poland, in the Lwow sector, has set the entire long front to rocking clear up to the Baltic states. If you will get out your maps for a moment you will take a quick glance at the main points involved in the upheaval.

Key Port Of Leghorn Falls To Americans While Polish Forces Occupy Ancona On Opposite Side Of Italian Peninsula

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Rome, July 19.—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army captured Leghorn today, executing a side pincer movement which forced the Germans from this third largest seaport in Italy a few hours after Polish troops had seized Ancona, important port on the Adriatic.

Leghorn (Livorno) lies only a few miles from Pisa, western anchor of the next German defense line. No effort to defend the city street by street was made by the German troops, who previously had resorted to every military device in their efforts to delay and delay the American advance.

The capture came after the infantrymen seized the hills overlooking the great port late yesterday. Sporadic but nonetheless vicious artillery, mortar and small arms resistance was put up by the Germans before the city.

The harbor of Livorno, the busiest between Rome and Genoa, is the grave of many sunken ships, mostly victims of the Allied air forces. To the north, astride the Arno river, Pisa is clearly visible.

The Allies scored another stinging victory on the east coast in the capture of Ancona by Eighth army. The city occupies an amphitheater between limestone promontories bordering the bay of Ancona and has one of Italy's best harbors. It is the nearest port to the Yugoslav coast across the Adriatic.

More than 2,000 prisoners and large quantities of war material were taken by the Polish troops, who today were pursuing the retreating enemy relentlessly northward.

The fall of Ancona came after a 78-mile advance against stubborn resistance offered by two German divisions which finally were forced to retire when the Poles smashed through their lines west of the city.

Further inland, as the result of a swift advance, American troops drove a wedge between German forces south of the Arno by capturing the town of Pontedera and cutting the direct east-west road between Pisa and Florence.

In the central sector of the front, British troops of the Fifth army made new gains west of Arezzo, sweeping across the Arno river on a front of six miles. An Allied communiqué said the British seized the town of Montecatini, 15 miles west of Arezzo.

The capture of Ancona, a city with a normal population of almost 100,000, was the greatest success recorded by Polish troops, since they stormed almost impregnable German positions at Monte Cassino abbey at the start of the home offensive. (Continued on page six)

Chinese Break
Out Of Hengyang

Chungking, July 19.—(AP)—A strong force of Chinese which broke out of encircled Hengyang in Hunan province is advancing on Hengshang. Important Japanese base about 25 miles to the northeast, the Chinese high command said tonight.

The Hengshang base includes the headquarters of the attacking Japanese, transferred there from the provincial capital of Changsha, the high command said.

Behind this force, other Chinese were frustrating numerous Japanese attacks in the city, and counterattacks in the suburbs have cracked the ring of encirclement established since the beginning of the month, the high command said.

At Leiyang on the railway, 34 miles to the south of the besieged junction, Japanese troops were said to be retreating northward.

Jap Ships Sunk

Washington, July 19.—(AP)—Destruction of 14 more Japanese vessels, including two combatant ships, by American submarines, was announced by the navy today.

The sinkings bring to 866 the number of Japanese vessels sunk, probably sunk or damaged, by the submarines which Navy Secretary Forrestal has said are striking the "vital veins of Japan"—its shipping.

Of the total, 654 ships definitely have been sunk, 37 probably sunk and at least 115 damaged. The navy, for several months, has not announced the sinking of enemy ships by submarines and that figure undoubtedly now totals many hundreds.

One destroyer and an escort vessel—possibly a ship—were reported to the American destroyer escorts on convoy duty—were included in the bag of American subs. Others were 10 cargo vessels, a small cargo transport and a medium sized naval auxiliary.

Escaped

Sgt. Harvill W. Lazenby (above), 28-year-old paratrooper from Nashville, Tenn., rejoined U. S. troops at St. Patrice de Claudi in France July 14 after more than a month of hiding behind German lines in Normandy. Lazenby parachuted into France June 6, D-day, and was captured. With Sgt. Robert Henderson, Seattle, Wash., he escaped after five days. French patriots helped the two avoid recapture.

BLAST TOLL IS PLACED AT 350

Reconstruction of California Port Begun Today

(By The Associated Press)
Port Chicago, Calif., July 19.—Reconstruction of the navy's Port Chicago ammunition depot began today as the death toll in the nation's worst wartime explosion approached 350.

All available construction workers were urged to report immediately to the devastated area where the explosions of two ammunition ships Monday night shattered the munitions base and the town of 1,500 as well.

The blasts, two seconds apart, shook 14 counties and their earthquake-like effects felt 80 miles away. The cause remained undetermined. Navy and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents were on hand for an investigation, but the devastation left little to investigate.

"There are no close survivors to give evidence of what happened," said Capt. N. H. Goss, who had jurisdiction over the depot.

Official sources gave this approximation of the known death toll: 200 to 250 naval enlisted men, 9 naval (Continued on page two)

Brynes Withdraws From
Vice Presidential Race

By JACK BELL
Chicago Stadium, July 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was reported authoritatively to have listed Senator Harry Truman of Missouri and Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas as his second and third choices for the vice presidential nomination at the Democratic convention opening today.

Word of the president's choices—previously had endorsed Vice President Henry A. Wallace as his No. 1 selection—spread rapidly among delegates as they filtered in to Chicago's huge stadium for the convention's first session.

Those in a position to know said that a communication from the President to National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan led to the action of War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes in directing earlier in the day that his name not be placed in nomination for second place.

Byrnes wrote Senator Burnet R. Maybank of South Carolina that "in deference to the wishes of the President," he was not a candidate. Previously he had been one of the leading contenders for a nomination which Wallace is campaigning for personally.

The President's reported listing of Truman, who has the support of the 32-vote Missouri delegation, gave swift impetus to a drive to make him the leading contender against Wallace. Byrnes was said to have promised Truman his support.

There has been little open activity for Douglas and friends have said he probably would be reluctant to

Montgomery's Tank
Forces Smash Into
Open Country Beyond Caen; Americans Continue Advance Below St. Lo; 156,000 Nazis "Written Off"

By WES GALLAGHER
Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, July 19.—(AP)—British forces bursting into the battle-charged open plain below Caen have smashed the German counterattack momentum picked Nazi divisions, it was closed tonight, and have five miles southeast of the town on the road to Paris.

Field Marshal Rommel was throwing in his reserve of his best forces, and a battle of rising fury for high stakes raged over flat terrain.

Supreme Headquarters gave no details on this mammoth engagement, but other British forces struck forward along the center, extending the blazing front 40 miles.

Americans wiped out pocketed Germans north of fallen St. Lo. The doughboys made a 21-2 mile advance, wrecked 16 Nazi tanks staging a futile counterattack, and reached the east bank of the Vire river all along this sector. The towns of La Capelle and Grand Hamel were captured.

The British advance toward the center captured Hotot-les-Bagues, long a thorn in the Allied line, 21-2 miles southwest of Tilly-sur-Seuilles. They widened a wedge around Normans on the Caen-Villers Bocage road, and beat back enemy counterblows at Malot, between the Orne and Odon rivers.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery who estimated 156,000 Germans have been "written off" since June 6 sent his high-powered offensive through shattered German defenses into plain country excellent for tank maneuvers, penetrating at least five miles to carry on the road to Vimont.

From nine to 13 German divisions were being hammered by the British second army.

Supreme headquarters disclosed Montgomery's push early yesterday had sprung from a bridgehead established across the Orne in the first days of the invasion by the British sixth airborne division.

In twin thrusts from this area, one prong of attack pushed southward along the east bank of the Orne into Caen's southern suburb of Vaucelles, and another hit south of Demouville—between Caen and Troarn to the east—to protect the flank. Both made excellent progress, and with its flank secure, the armored column advancing along the Orne turned south and hammered straight into the great plain beyond.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery told a press conference that the Allies had captured 60,000 Germans and buried 8,000 in Normandy and (Continued on Page Six) accept a second place nomination. Truman, who conferred during the morning with Byrnes, told a reporter he had not changed his stand that he was not a candidate and did not want the nomination.

Another rival for Wallace's job, Senate Majority Leader Charles McNary of Kentucky, said he was not a candidate, but was big city organizer and New England spokesman.

The designation of Truman and Douglas as the President's second and third choices was regarded by most delegates as putting Wallace under a disadvantage, since it likely would concentrate the opposition to him.

There were indications, however, that the vice president would remain in the race to the end. With strong lobby backing, he was reported to have picked up some delegate strength overnight. His friends said he would have a minimum of 250 of 1,176 votes. A total of 589 is needed to nominate.

Originally, Mr. Roosevelt declared for a free and open convention insofar as the vice presidential nomination is concerned—although of course, his own nomination has been foregone since he announced his availability.

NEW STATE BULLETIN ON CANNING NOW AVAILABLE

Announcement of new bulletins on canning is made by the Home Demonstration office.

"Canning Fruits and Vegetables" by Mrs. Mary L. McAllister, state extension economist in Food Conservation and Marketing, gives new and revised instructions for successful canning based on scientific research.

This bulletin, written in simple language, is easily understood, interesting to read, and attractively illustrated with pictures. It gives the meaning of terms used in canning, directions for canning, both acid and non-acid foods, causes of spoilage and methods of prevention, selection of canning equipment, directions for using both the pressure cooker and boiling water canner, and time tables for canning fruits and vegetables, directions for canning in tin cans, and a table for figuring yield of canned food from fresh products.

The pictures of a homemaker with her canner, the pictures of the different type jars, of both pressure canner and the boiling water canner, and the pictures showing steps in the canning process add much to the value of the bulletin. This publication is free and should be in the hands of every homemaker.

The distribution of such bulletins is made by Mrs. Ethel R. Waters, telephone 2881, whose service is made possible through a cooperative arrangement between the City Board of Aldermen and North Carolina Extension Service. A demonstration showing bulletins will be given by Mrs. Waters upon request. Pressure canners are also loaned for use in canning.

A Cool Affair in July.

Some of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Starling enjoyed a "cool" bridge party Friday night, July 14, at Twin Elms.

A snowman promised they would have a cool affair, with one exception, they would not get a cool reception.

When the guests arrived a cool breeze met them at the door (thanks to an electric fan). Apparently the furniture had changed into snowbanks, mountains, parks, etc., and a lifelike snowman seemed right at home in the "frozen" hall. Just inside the living room door a thermometer on the "snow" assured the visitors the temperature was almost down to freezing. A lady discovered the tip end of the thermometer was in a tray of crushed ice. No wonder it registered 36 degrees!

Four tables for bridge were in place. Each corner of the room represented a cool spot. Near the low table a sheet, ship model, shells, and other souvenirs changed the piano into a beach scene. The next table and its surroundings were a park. Green mountain corner consisted of a mountain with real shrubs, flowers, rocks, and a winding road. The picture of a green mountain was on this table, and green chairs were around it. The high table was the north pole. The pole, and the top of the earth was covered in "snow" and "icicles." Reindeer wandered about. Realistic snowflakes were very tempting. The breeze was not as cool as the one coming from the north pole. A fan blowing over ice made the difference.

Each person drew a snowflake tally and began looking for a partner exactly as cold as he was. The back of the tally showed they were as cold as:

A white rose at daybreak.

A mountain stream.

The cooling water snake.

A mountain top.

A frog.

A dog's nose.

Unsung snow—or

An egg in a deserted bird's nest.

Those who waited to progress were invited to eat salt water taffy.

Life-savers, green chocolates, or popcorn snowflakes. Suggested topics of conversation were: Tell a beach, park, or mountain experience; or tell about the time you had the coldest feet.

snowball filled with Kool cigarettes.

The high score prize for ladies was won by Mrs. Fred Worthington.

It was two packs of cards covered with a miniature snowman. The floating prize was a box of candy made into a green and white tier U. S. This was won by Miss Estelle Greene.

Refreshments consisted of ice cube cake, ice cream, snowball candy, home made mints, and green lemonade.

Everyone seemed to have a cool good time.—Reported.

John Christenbury Victim Navy Blast

Lieut. (jg) John Boyd Christenbury, former coach and physical education instructor at East Carolina Teachers College, was killed in the explosion of two navy ammunition ships at Port Chicago, Calif., yesterday, a telegram to Mrs. Agnes Barrett at the college stated.

Christenbury went to ECTC in 1940. He was commissioned a lieutenant (jg) in the navy in March, 1943 and given leave of absence from the college for the duration. He received his training at Dartmouth College. He was assigned to duty as physical instructor at Port Chicago in June, 1943. His wife and daughter, Marianna, live at 840 Berrelesea street, in Matine, Calif., near Port Chicago.

Christenbury was from Statesville. He graduated at Davidson College in 1930, and received his M. A. at Columbia University in 1934. He taught mathematics at Crossnore and was coach. He taught at Bolles Preparatory School in Jacksonville, Fla.; at Lee Edwards High School in Asheville, and at Brevard College before coming to ECTC. His work in Greenville was outstanding. He was popular with college officials, the students and the public.

Wave Recruiters Here This Week

Recruiter Jeanne d'Agay, special representative of the Navy WAVES and Navy Recruiter H. S. Lee will be in the Greenville post office building on Thursday and Friday,

July 20 and 21, in an effort to make WAVE information available to every woman in Pitt county and surrounding area.

Miss d'Agay, a native of California and recent graduate of WAVE

training schools, will be in this area for one month to discuss every detail of service for women in the WAVES.

Principal requirements for enlistment in the WAVES include age, with enlisted personnel accepted between 20 and 36, and officer candidates between 20 and 50. At least two years' high school or satisfac-

Beautiful Women On Recruiting Duty

A mobile recruiting station for the Army WACS was in Greenville today in charge of Lieut. Margaret A. Nichley to give full information to women interested in joining the Air WACS for service at Army Air Force Redistribution Station No. 2 at Miami Beach, Fla.

"Women are urgently needed in the Air WACS there for service in reclassifying and reassigning returning air heroes from overseas who have been in combat. The Air WACS work side by side with the men who wear wings and have been valiantly waging the air war on the enemy," Lieut. Nichley stated.

Pitt county women interested in enlisting may contact the local WAC recruiting station, third floor at the City Hall, or write direct to the Army Air Force Redistribution Station No. 2 at Miami Beach.

Cpl. Robert Blazsak and Privates Jean Fuchs and Vera Matthews accompanied Lieut. Nichley to Greenville. They are beautiful women.

Marine Veterans To Get Furloughs

Atlanta, July 19.—(AP)—The U. S. Marine Corps headquarters, southern recruiting division in Atlanta, announces that 500 Marines from the south and southwest Pacific are among the 2,744 members of the famed First Marine Division who have returned to San Diego, Calif., for their first furlough after 26 months in the Pacific.

The Marines left the United States early in 1942, landed on Guadalcanal in August, 1942, and on New Britain in December, 1943, to complete two of the hardest of the jungle campaigns.

All have been given 30-day furloughs, and will be home within 10 days. The North Carolina Marines include:

Staff Sgt. Wyatt C. Tucker, 23,

son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Tucker of Route 2, Farmville.

Sgt. John T. Burns, 25, son of

Thomas H. Burns of Greenville;

Chapter 8

Martha hurried through the turnstile, up the steps, and into the street. It was five blocks from the subway to the Rand Manufacturing Plant where she and Louise worked—and they were long blocks, too. She glanced at the clock in the drugstore on the corner, and was relieved to see that it was only 7:30. There was still half an hour before she could go on duty.

She had a feeling that all was not well with her job. Whether it was due to guilt on her part or should be dismissed as a vague premonition, she did not know. But she could not deny that she was frightened.

"I've been absent four days," she said, appalled at the thought. "And how could I have done otherwise? Poor Angel—what would she have done without me? I had to stay home!"

Miss Larkin had left in a huff, as naturally she would, but not before she had spoken her piece.

"She's your worry from now on, Mrs. Larkin! This fortune teller, the small outcast. You'll have to work them out for yourself. You needn't count on getting any help from that glamor-girl daughter of yours. She don't know beans about cables. She's too busy being beautiful." She threw a scornful glance at Angel, adding, "I could tell you a few things that would make your hair curl, if I was a mind to."

How could she say such dreadful things about Angel? Poor Angel who was so crushed—and so wonderfully brave. It gave Martha a sense of satisfaction to remember that she'd said:

"Stop it, Miss Larkin! I won't have you talking like that about my daughter. Have you no pity—no decency?"

Angel had burst into tears and sunk down into the nearest chair, but the infuriated Miss Larkin had had no pity on her. "That's right—cry," she had snapped. "I'll do you good, maybe. You ought to be thankful I don't sue you for bringing me here under false pretenses. You tell me it's a house in the suburbs we're coming to, with a room to myself and a day off a week. I believed you, because we're coming by plane. And what do I find? A dump in Brooklyn! She snorted, then raised her voice and added by way of a final touch:

"A fine place to bring a baby, I must say. No sunlight, no air, no nothing. If she don't get sick and die on your hands—well, you can't say I didn't warn you. At least I'm not responsible."

Martha had opened her mouth to speak, but the reference to Baby Jeanne had frightened her into silence. She did not need Miss Larkin's grim warning to convince her that it was no place for a baby.

The next three days had been more than hectic. As Miss Larkin had predicted, Martha had assumed full charge of Baby Jeanne. Too, there were formulae to prepare, clothes to wash, meals to cook—not to mention the thousand and one tasks that are necessary when an adult household must be reorganized to meet the needs of a young baby. Martha had gone about it cheerfully. Even to herself she would not acknowledge that she was tired, desperately tired.

"You don't get tired when you're doing things for people you love," she kept reminding herself over and over again. "At least, you aren't supposed to."

But it didn't keep her back from hurting, or her tired muscles from protesting with pain. And it didn't order that gnawing fear that was always in the back of her mind: the fear that she wasn't being any too efficient.

Try as hard as she might, Martha seemed aware to be doing the wrong thing. Angel, who was frank to confess her ignorance regarding the right way to care for a baby, had set up many instincts for detecting the wrong way.

Coupled with Martha's fear of doing the wrong thing was the memory of Miss Larkin's warning, and the terrifying awareness that the dark, poorly ventilated railroad flat was bad for the baby. She would wake up in the night, go over and see Baby Jeanne's pulse, smooth the soft, downy curls back from the tiny forehead, listen to the quick, regular breathing. Then she would go back to bed, not to sleep, but to breathe a silent prayer of thanksgiving, say over and over again:

"What if she should get sick? What if she should die? Angel couldn't bear it. She's all Angel's got—now that Jimmie is gone."

Angel had been practically no help at all, but this was understandable. As yet she had never been around babies before. Could not be expected to carry through with a routine that had Martha, the mother of three, bewildered almost to the point of panic. It was natural, too, that Angel should be uneasy and hesitating. Undoubtedly, Jeanne's loss had been a terrible blow to her. But Martha did wish that Angel wouldn't get so excited when Baby Jeanne cried. All babies cried—mothers had to get used to it. Besides, Baby Jeanne wasn't sick, in spite of Mrs. Crogan's ominous prophecies.

Chapter 9

There had been one heartrending incident in the hectic three days. That was the day following Angel's arrival, when Baby Jeanne came to take pictures. For a brief space Angel had put aside her moodiness and become the gay, carefree girl of old. She had put on her prettiest dress, arranged her hair in a most becoming manner, and made a valiant effort to be charming and friendly to the cameramen.

Dick had taken pictures that told a story of a woman's courage in the face of heartbreak and despair. There were poses of Angel standing alone at a window, a letter in her hand. Of Angel holding a telegram; of Angel reading a newspaper, presumably the casualty list. There was a close-up of Baby Jeanne—and one of Angel seated on the divan with Baby Jeanne in her arms, holding Jimmie's picture. They had appeared in this morning's newspaper, accompanied by a portrait of Jimmie in uniform.

Now, hurrying to her humble job, after a three-day absence, Martha thought with pride of Angel's photos.

Martha, after entering the plant, had taken her uniform out of the locker and was putting it on before she realized that she was not alone. She paused, a little startled, and listened. The sound of harsh dry sobs came to her over the hum of machinery that drifted in through the open windows. She turned quickly and saw that a girl, dressed in blue denim slacks and jumper, was regulation assembly-line uniform—was lying on the couch at the far end of the room. Her hair, which had fallen loose from her cap, was a bright splash of gold on the pillow. Her face was turned toward the wall and her slim young figure was shaking with sobs.

Martha ran over, buttoning her uniform as she did so, and put a hand on the girl's shoulder. The girl turned, and Martha recognized her at once as Elsa Rand, daughter of Elias Rand, the plant's owner. Martha had never seen her at close range before, but the girl had been pointed out to her a number of times.

"So she can't take it. Then Louise was right," thought Martha, recalling Louise's remark when a few weeks before, the wealthy Elsa Rand and several of her friends had come to work at the plant. Louise had said in her usual matter-of-fact way, "Just watch them fold up and quit—when they find out it's real work, not polite flag-waving."

Elsa stopped crying and turned to look at Martha. "I didn't know anyone was here," she said, wiping her eyes and obviously trying to pull herself together. "I just came in," answered Mar-

Martha stepped back, as though she had been slapped in the face. What had Louise done to Elsa Rand that she should behave like this? Why, they didn't even know each other, didn't even work on the same shift. Perhaps Louise had said something that had gotten back to Elsa. Something about society girls who went into defense work just for a lark. Louise was like that—a little too frank and outspoken. She, Martha, would have to warn her to be more discreet.

She started to go back to her locker to put her street clothes away, then noticed the pile of papers on the floor by the couch where Elsa had been lying. She stooped over to pick up the litter, and saw that it was a page clipped from this morning's newspaper. The page containing Angel's pictures, and it had been torn into shreds. Martha gathered up the bits of paper and stuffed them into her uniform pocket.

"What does it mean?" she whispered. "Angel's beautiful pictures torn to shreds!" It was not until she rose to her feet that she saw the picture of Jimmie. It had been carefully clipped out of the page and was lying half under the couch pillow where Elsa, in her haste to get away from Martha, had left it. Martha reached over and picked up the picture. It was sodden and damp.

"What does it mean?" Martha repeated. "Jimmie's picture carefully clipped out—and wet with another girl's tears?"

She stood motionless for a moment trying to find the answer. Then the door opened and the girls from the graveyard shift began to file in. Hastily, she stuffed Jimmie's picture into her pocket, along with the mutilated pictures of Angel. There was no time to think now. It was eight o'clock and her working day had begun.

To Be Continued.

The proudest title in the Army

It consists of two simple words.

Yet every soldier who's worth his salt covets it.

This title is simply:

"Good Soldier."

It isn't just happenstance that so many women in the WAC have earned this title—the proudest in the Army.

For wherever Wacs are working, both here and overseas, there you find a job well done. And done with a spirit so gallant and fine that high Army officers everywhere say of the WAC...

"They're soldiers. Good soldiers!"

A Switch in Time saved Mine...

Now I'm over 33,000 mi.

I used to trade cars around 25,000. But if you'd offer me a new one today—unless it was free—I'd think twice. This '39 model gives me quite some pride, still running as sweet as it does. I know of people trying a dozen different oils and nearly everything else, to make their cars last. Some things worked; plenty didn't. In my case I played the hunch of OIL-PLATING my engine by switching to Conoco Nth motor oil, so as not to let engine acids get an upper hand. That worked! And why not? I knew that deadly corrosive acids are a regular part of every engine explosion. I had my faith in Conoco Nth oil's modern synthetic that attaches OIL-PLATING to working parts—like a close-fitting shield. There's the stuff that puts up a real battle against corrosive acids. You're giving your car its chance to live, as soon as you change to an OIL-PLATED engine. Get Conoco Nth oil, that's all.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

FOR ABOVE OUR POWERS
These articles, entitled "Strength for the Day," have been written to help Christians derive strength from their religion to meet the daily problems of life.

Probably many people who read these articles do not believe that religion is a useful implement with which to attack any kind of problem. They think that all problems can be met and mastered by logic applied to the specific incident—business judgment, character analysis, or headstrong living. They can point to a great many "successful" men who have apparently solved all their problems by this means.

But they don't, really. Most of their real problems were solved for them by forces outside their control. We have less to do with our destiny than we usually presume. We may appear to work out our problems, but if we look closely we shall see that many forces far beyond our ability to handle or change keep ship on an even keel and bring it at last into harbor.

Most people will meet failure of some kind at some period during their lives. Despite their logical approach, their business may collapse, their friends desert them, their health fail, then, disillusioned by the failure of logic, they become bitter and feel all chance to rehabilitate themselves is gone.

But the sincere Christian who derives strength from his religion cannot be defeated by the strongest forces the world can muster. He has laid hold on celestial sources of power. He has gained eternal life.

AMERICA IN WARTIME

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—Some of the saddest of men must be those who years ago in some youthful folly caused themselves to be discharged under a shadow from their nation's armed forces.

Every time some of the most poignant letters ever written find their way to the writers be allowed somehow to clear their names, and perhaps once again serve their country. Here are some extracts from letters sent to the Marine Corps.

"The first is from a man who drew a bad conduct discharge in 1929 after being convicted of theft."

"Since that day I have felt like a convict," he wrote, "and when I see the Marines on parade it makes me feel there is something gone, especially when a man was proud to wear the uniform of the Marines as I once was and am still proud that I wore it."

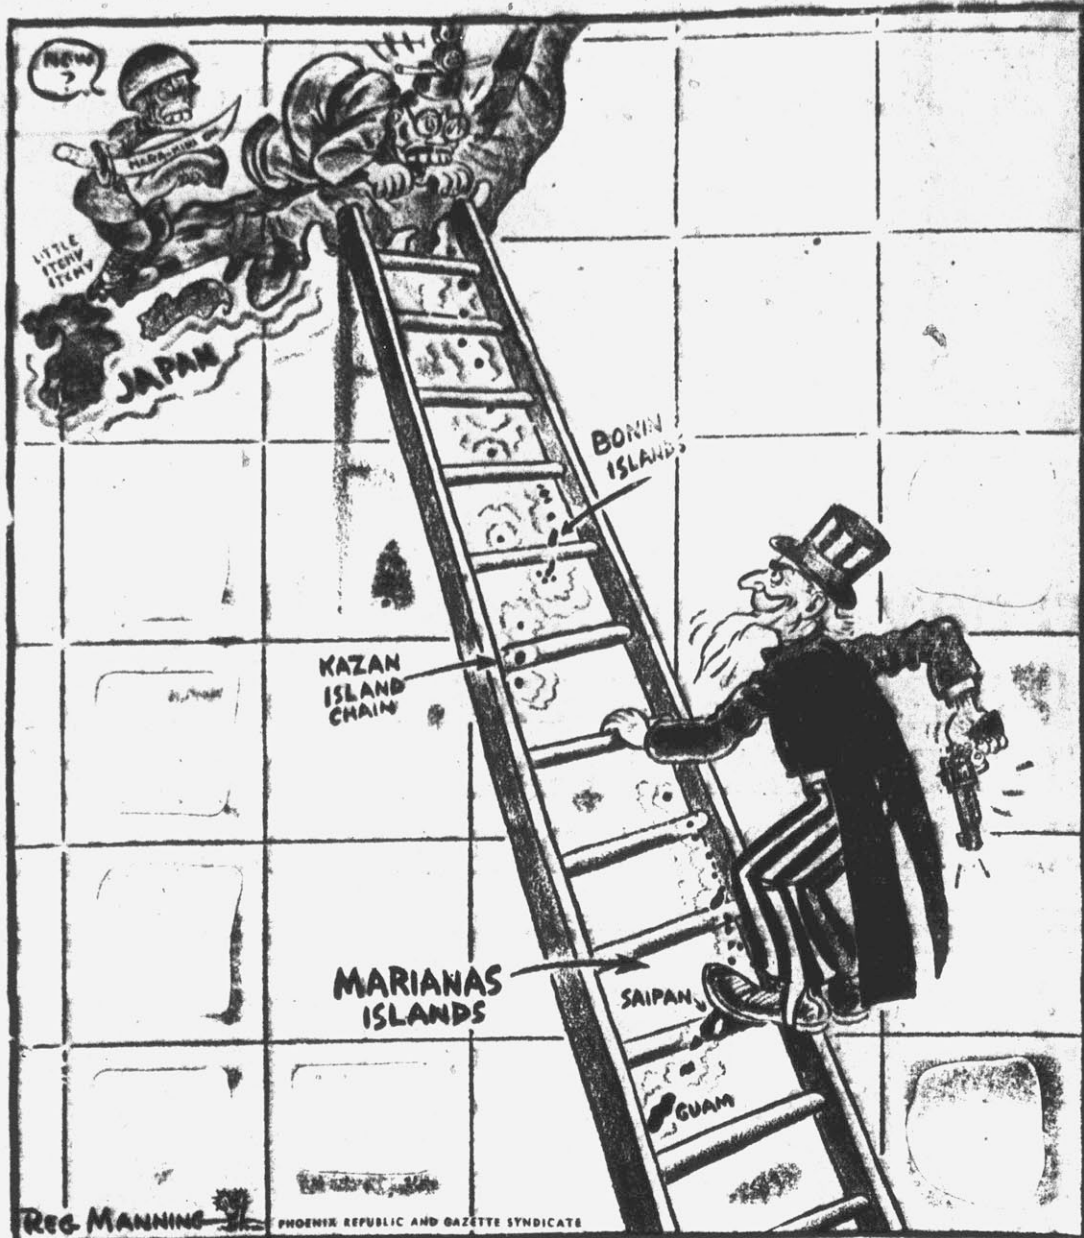

"Sir, isn't there some way I can show you that I am worthy of an honorable discharge? Don't you think that I have paid enough for something that I swear I did not know I was doing wrong? Can't you see how I feel? Won't you consider my case and see if you can help me?"

This is from a man who walked out the gate of the Washington Marine barracks in 1924 in civilian clothes, leaving his uniform behind. "I want to clear my conscience, as that 'discharge' is the only foolish mistake I ever made. I have been a law-abiding citizen, have married and am the father of three children, a boy 11 years and two girls, one nine and the baby two years. Every place I go people ask me was I ever in the service, and I say 'No,' as I have no proof, but if and when the United States does go to war (the letter was written in 1939), I will be willing to die for my country."

A man given a bad conduct discharge in 1908 wrote to ask whether he could "obtain a discharge with go to bad conduct part removed."

"I am now of an age where employers do not care to employ me, and about my only salvation is civil service. It is doubtful if I could claim veteran's preference with a bad conduct discharge, notwithstanding the fact that I paid my fare to Canada in 1915 and enlisted in the Canadian infantry and served three years and seven months. I am married and have a daughter."

On The Ladder--

Can furnish proof of exemplary conduct from last employers.

The really sad part is that nothing can be done about any of these cases. If a dishonorable discharge, or a bad conduct or "undesirable" discharge once gets on a man's record there is no possible way under the law that it can be stricken out.

cing force of planes were destroyed yesterday on the basis of official Aileen accounts—at the cost of around 100,000. The Russians said 120 planes were destroyed in battles above the eastern front, Mediterranean air forces claimed 60 and those based in Britain and France added 70 on the basis of incomplete reports. Actions over Normandy yesterday were the most extensive since D-day—7,356 flights. Another 2,100 sorties were flown from Italy.

Byrnes Withdraws...

The reference of Byrnes to having bowed out "in deference" to the President put an entirely different complexion on the possible convention outcome as early arrivals began trickling into huge Chicago Stadium for the opening session.

Jake More, Iowa state Democratic chairman, said the Byrnes announcement and other developments coming through the day "will clinch renomination for Wallace."

"It's going to help Wallace," he commented on the Byrnes letter. "They're going to try to throw those votes to Truman, however."

"That wouldn't be popular in the Midwest. Not that they don't like Truman, but they can't see where it would strengthen the ticket. It might weaken it."

No indication was given as to how the President might have communicated his wishes to Byrnes.

Mr. Roosevelt is known to be away from Washington. Under voluntary wartime censorship, his movements are not reported in such cases unless he or an authorized representative directs.

Meeting for the 29th time since they acclaimed Andrew Jackson as their presidential nominee in 1832, the Democrats convened in garish Chicago Stadium to ratify formally an unprecedented fourth term nomination for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

There were some dissenting or numerically weak voices raised from the south in favor of Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia for top place on the ticket. They apparently represented about 100 of the 1,176 votes from Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and possibly Virginia. No one else was really in the presidential picture.

There also was an aura of controversy hanging over the platform, particularly with reference to CIO demands and southern-opposed planks dealing with racial, religious and minority questions.

But some of the more excitable Democrats, whose idea of fun is a fight, had little thought for anything except a ding-dong battle for a vice presidential nomination to which most politicians attach more importance, in the matter of possible White House succession, than in ordinary times.

delegation today to go along with his growers' association of the United States to rescind its action in ordering 30 per cent cut in daily sales time. He said that the other belts, used to cold weather during their selling seasons, had adequate provisions for caring for their tobacco, whereas the border belt did not.

He said the growers would be penalized under the shorter hours and he asked that a resolution asking the TADS to change its action be embodied with one asking that ceilings be raised.

That met with immediate protest from J. C. Eagles and W. A. Lucas, both of Wilson, and others.

Lucas said one resolution would be presented to the OPA and the other to the TADS and they should be kept separately. Eagles said that if selling hours were increased on the border belt, then the other belts would ask to be treated likewise, and confusion would follow.

C. T. Hall of Hillsboro, representing the Old Belt, countered in the border belt's behalf with an assertion that this was a time for all tobaccoists to stick together, that the day might come when the Old Belt, for instance, would need help.

Governors of the free-cured states will be asked to declare marketing holidays if the ceilings are not considered satisfactory.

Among others present today were F. Winslow of Greenville, president of the State Farm Bureau; G. v. Smith of Greenville, W. E. Lucas of Wilson, W. E. Turner of Henderson, W. J. Eason of Tarboro, and J. H. Harpe of Snow Hill.

At the edge of one small village they came upon a group of sleepless Indians making coffee by the heat of a lava spot. A burro packed with household effects was standing near ready to trek with his owners at dawn. Suddenly, they said, a great wave from the sea of lava broke over him. The burro gave a cry that was almost human and disappeared in flames.

CHANGES IN STATE GUARD

Organization Divided Into Three Regiments

Raleigh, July 19—(AP)—The State Guard has been reorganized from two infantry regiments of 10,000 battalions and five companies each to three regiments of three battalions and four companies each. The reorganization was announced here by Adj. Gen. J. Van B. Metts.

The three regiments will continue as the first brigade infantry and under the command of Brig. Gen. James W. Jenkins of Henderson, but the reorganization involves many conversions and transfers of companies.

Regimental headquarters will be situated at Greensboro, Waynesville and Goldsboro. The regiment with headquarters at Goldsboro will be commanded by Col. Zeno G. Hollowell, promoted from major.

The first regiment, with headquarters at Greensboro, will be commanded by Col. William W. Sharp, Jr. It will consist of companies at Oxford, Raleigh, Greensboro and Burlington, in the first battalion; Albemarle, Lexington, Salisbury and Concord, in the second battalion; and Reidsville, Lenoirville, Winston-Salem and High Point in the third. The second battalion will be commanded by Maj. Deaderick C. Duncan of Salisbury, and Maj. William A. Byrd of Winston-Salem will command the third. A commander for the first battalion has not been named.

The Durham infantry company will be converted to a machine gun company, and a headquarters and service company and a medical detachment will also be situated at Greensboro.

The second regiment will be under command of Col. James H. Howell of Waynesville. Maj. Clyde T. Wright of Shelby will command the first battalion, made up of Charlotte, Gastonia, Lincolnton and Siler City companies.

The second battalion will be under command of Maj. Aldis C. Henderson of Hickory, and will be made up of companies at Statesville, North Wilkesboro, Newton and Hickory. The third battalion will be under the command of Maj. Madison H. Bowles of Waynesville. It will consist of companies at Lenoir, Rutherfordton, Morganton and Asheville.

The third regiment will consist of companies at Washington, Greenville, Edenton and Elizabeth City, in the first battalion; Wilmington, New Bern, Kinston and Lumberton, in the second; and Lenoir, Henderson, Roanoke Rapids and Dunn, in the third.

Maj. James R. Young of Dunn will command the third battalion; and Maj. Frederick Willette of Wilmington, the second, a commander for the first has yet to be selected.

SOUTHERNERS BACK BYRD

Several States Voice Protest Against Administration

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

Chicago, July 19—(AP)—Embattled southern states counted more than 100 "protest" votes today for Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia for the presidential nomination, their wedge for inclusion of a "white supremacy" plank in the Democratic national platform.

Though President Roosevelt is assured a fourth term nomination, delegates from the south lined up the Byrd support in open revolt. They expect the convention resolutions committee to reject their racial proposals and they foresee a cold shoulder from the rules committee on their demand for restoration of the two-thirds nominating rule. The Byrd drive is their way of showing resentment.

More votes for the anti-New Deal Virginian are expected from state caucuses today following his unanimous endorsement by several score delegates from eight southern states at a rally last night. Four southern states backing President Roosevelt did not participate in the rally.

Several hundred men and women, many of them delegates, packed themselves into the Texas-sponsored meeting that enthusiastically adopted a resolution opposing interference with state handling of race questions, advocating restoration of the two-thirds rule, and favoring a national party ticket supporting these demands.

Scattered through the hall were men and women wearing delegate badges from Arkansas, Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas, Virginia and South Carolina, states having a total of 194 convention votes. They shouted approval of a resolution backing Byrd.

The southern rally followed a caucus of the "regular" Texas delegation at which a minimum of 43 of the Lone Star state's 48 votes swung into the Byrd column, boosting to 89 the senator's known delegate strength exclusive of his own state's 25 votes, which are his for the asking. Byrd has emphasized he is not a candidate.

Earlier, Louisiana plumped 22 votes for Byrd and Mississippi 20. In addition, four Florida votes are pledged to him, and his friends are claiming some from Arkansas.

The action of the mass meeting was not binding on delegates from the states represented.

Unrepresented were Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky and North Carolina, solidly backing Roosevelt with their 106 delegate votes.

Believe Polio Peak Is Near

Raleigh, July 19—(AP)—The belief that the current outbreak of infantile paralysis would reach its peak this month and show a marked decline in August was expressed today by Dr. C. P. Stevick, epidemiologist with the State Health Department.

The number of cases since June 1 totals 236. The outbreak is centered largely in the Piedmont and upper Piedmont areas.

Dr. Stevick recalled that in the 1935 epidemic 675 cases were reported, most of them during the months of June, July and August. The peak month was July, and the outbreak was well on the way to complete control in mid-August.

McLawhorn dated February 7, 1934, and recorded in Book C-15, page 446; deed from Standard Oil Company of New Jersey dated December 1, 1937, and recorded in Book D-22, page 520; and deed from W. I. Bisette and C. R. Cobb, Administrators, dated March 2, 1938, and recorded in Book R-22, page 43, and reference is here made to all of said records for a more specific description of the aforesaid lot in metes and bounds.

The said sale is being made for the purpose of partition of said premises among the tenants in common, and the Commissioner will require the high bidder to deposit said sale at least ten per cent (10%) of the amount bid to show good faith, pending confirmation by the Court.

This the 6th day of July, 1944.
R. A. WHITAKER,
Commissioner.

You're on the WAR path today...

... So is Carolina Trailways

Every road over which Carolina Trailways buses roll is a "war-path" today. For thousands of America's fighting men, and workers turning out the tools of war, travel over these roads constantly. We must serve them first, with safe, dependable transportation... to pave the path for Victory.

Have a "Coke" = You're home again

...or getting back among the folks

The biggest moment on earth to a fighting man is when he returns home. And one of the things that makes him feel at home is the old familiar phrase... Have a "Coke". With Coca-Cola, ice-cold, in your refrigerator, you can make any fighting man, including your own, feel he's back with his friends. From the border to the Gulf, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes,—has become a symbol of friendly living.

"Coke" = Coca-Cola
It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".

Grain Market

Chicago, July 19—(AP)—Grain futures eased back to near yesterday's close in late trading today after having held firm to strong through most of the session.

Rye, after advancing more than a cent, dropped when local traders offered early bought futures and found the demand limited. Hedging pressure in the wheat pit reflected heavy receipts of grain at southern markets and lower prices at Kansas City.

July wheat closed 1.57½; oats 78; rye 1.10; barley 1.26½.

New York Cotton

New York, July 19—(AP)—Cotton futures opened 15 to 25 cents a bale lower.

Noon values were 60 to 75 cents a bale lower. October 21.45, December 21.26 and March 21.13.

Futures closed 45 to 90 cents a bale lower.
