PARIS LIBERATED BY FRENCH FORCES

Allied Columns Hammering German Armies To Pieces

Upward Of 50,000 Nazis Captured In Falaise Pocket With Dead Still Uncounted; Patton's Forces Fighting On World War I Battlefield Near Chateau Thierry

By WES GALLAGHER Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 23—(AP)—Allied columns hammered in a tightening trap today on Germans falling back in a "rout" on the shell-swept lower Seine, and speared deep below Paris in menacing new drives only 160 miles from the German border.

On U. S. armored column plunged beyond the Seine, 58 miles southeast of Paris. It stood but 160 miles from the Reich's frontier.

Between Sens and Paris, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army was operating in woods near Fontainebleau. In this sector the Americans had thrown a bridgehead over the upper Seine.

Canadian and British troops scored advances of 10 to 15 miles in the chase of the battered German Seventh army toward the lower Seine from the disastrous Falaise trap. On the coast Canadians battled some seven miles across the Seine estuary from Le Havre. Germans in that port lobbed shells across the water.

U. S. units hit down the river toward the sea, bringing in the eastern jaw of the pincers. They menaced Evreux and Vernon, about 50 miles from the Seine's mouth.

Allied airmen declared the German retreat had appearances of a rout. By ferry and rubber boats, the enemy attempted to escape across the Seine at about 30 points under a hail of bullets and cannon shells from low-sweeping Allied planes.

Supreme headquarters declared 40,000 to 50,000 Germans had been captured in the Falaise pocket, with the Nazi dead still uncounted.

(One Berlin broadcast said the U. S. bridgehead across the lower Seine—presumably referring to the Mantles area 25 miles northwest of Paris—had been liquidated in a German counter-attack.)

The Germans reported fighting south of Paris and said the "20th American army corps" was striking toward Nemours and Montereau, both about 40 miles southeast of the capital.

Supreme headquarters this evening had no confirmation of Gen. Charles De Gaulle's announcement that Paris had been liberated, with its own citizens rising to expel the enemy.

Paris had been outflanked by American bridgeheads across the Seine to the northwest and southeast and some radio reports, which were not confirmed at supreme headquarters, already placed American tanks at Meaux, less than 25 miles from Chateau-Thierry. If true, this report meant the Americans already were fighting on battlefields where they won undying fame in the first

PLANE CRASH KILLS FIFTY

Children's Hospital Wrecked By Falling Plane

London, Aug. 23—(AP)—An American bomber crashed flaming into the Lancashire village of Freckleton today, killing at least 50 persons. 34 of them small children at a church school. The toll may be much higher.

Nazi Ships Sunk

London, Aug. 23—(AP)—Royal Navy ships in two running battles destroyed eight enemy ships in the Audierne bay between Brest and Lorient before daybreak today, the Admiralty announced tonight.

Two minesweepers, three supply ships, and three escort vessels were knocked out of action. Two of the escorts were heavily armed.

The British cruiser Mauritius and destroyer Ursa and the Canadian destroyer Iroquois took part in the action and came through without casualty or damage, although German shore batteries joined the battle.

Junction Of Allied Troops Effected At Outskirts Of Bay Of Biscay Port

London, Aug. 23—(AP)—A third French invasion landing, striking into south-western France near Bordeaux, was reported today from the Spanish frontier. French military authorities at Hendaye, France, said the landing was begun last night under cover of a naval and aerial bombardment.

This report was cabled from the Spanish border by Charles S. Foltz, chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Madrid, who crossed the border into southern France after the Germans had evacuated frontier posts.

Twelve hours after Foltz' report was received, Berlin radio said a "small force" was put ashore near St. Jean De Luz, which is six miles from the Spanish frontier, lying between Hendaye and Biarritz.

(A Stockholm dispatch said the Berlin correspondent of Aftonbladet had cabled that reports of a new Allied landing in the Bordeaux area were described in Berlin as "probably correct.")

The Hendaye officials said the operation was coordinated with a ground attack by American and French forces, which effected a junction at noon yesterday at the outskirts of Bordeaux, casing in on that harbor city by inland routes.

There was no confirmation of any of the reports from supreme Allied headquarters.

The German account claimed that attempts to reinforce the landing party under the protection of naval guns were driven back by Nazi coastal batteries. St. Jean De Luz is 110 miles south of Bordeaux. It is 350 miles west of Marseille, the Mediterranean port besieged in the rapidly-developing invasion of southern France.

Spanish advices said American motorized columns had driven down from a crossing of the Loire river at Nantes in a 170-mile advance to Bordeaux, with French resistance forces striking up to the great port from the border of Spain, forming a junction on Bordeaux's outskirts.

A new landing could put a squeeze upon all of southwestern France reportedly lightly garrisoned by the Germans, with French partisans already seizing town after town. Inland drives could link up with the western invasion forces of General Dwight D. Eisenhower, and the southern army of Gen. Sir Henry

Grenoble Is Captured By U. S. Forces

Allied Invasion Of Southern France Progressing More Rapidly Than Had Previously Been Anticipated

By NOLAN NORGAARD Rome, Aug. 23—(AP)—Allied troops entered Marseille today. Most of the great port—second city of France—has fallen without much resistance. Allied headquarters said tonight. Small pockets of resistance remain to be cleaned out.

The Germans are continuing to hold out in Toulon.

Rome, Aug. 23—(AP)—American troops of the Seventh army, in a spectacular surprise thrust deep into southern France through German defenses, have entered the large industrial city of Grenoble, 140 airline miles north of the Mediterranean coast. It was announced today.

A swift American armored and motorized infantry column plunged into the city, long a hotbed of the French patriot movement, with "French forces of the interior playing an effective support role." Allied headquarters said.

This quick advance put Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's spearhead within less than 240 miles airline from the most southerly points of officially announced as reached by American troops below Paris, and it appeared that the two Allied French fronts would be joined much sooner than originally thought possible.

Grenoble, 58 miles southeast of Lyon and situated on a river leading directly to the Rhone valley 30 miles to the west, is 60 miles or more beyond the last reported Allied positions in southern France.

Living in the French Alps, the city has a population of approximately 100,000 and is a rail center on the Paris-Lyon-Marseille route. It also commands access to important towns taken by the Americans (route to Grenoble included Digne, Sisteron, Aspres, Gap, St. Bonnet and L'Argentiere, the latter 35 miles from the Italian border.)

(A broadcast by radio France at Algiers said Allied forces were less than 11 miles from the Italian frontier but there was no confirmation.)

At Grenoble the Americans were roughly only 70 airline miles from the Swiss frontier and for all practical purposes already had sealed off the Nazi forces in southern France from communication with

Train Plunges From Drawbridge

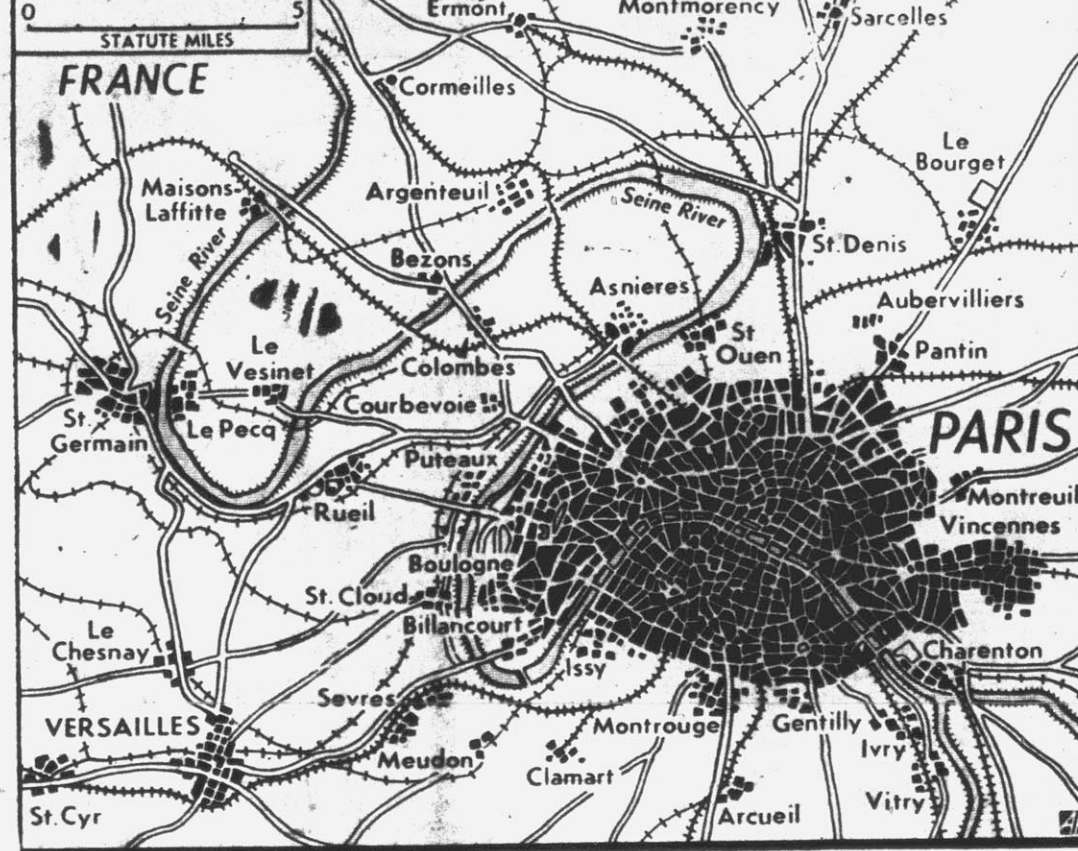

Norfolk, Aug. 23—(AP)—A Norfolk-Portsmouth Belt Line locomotive and four cars plunged from a drawbridge into the southern branch of the Elizabeth river early today, leaving three trainmen missing.

Divers descended later this morning to search for the men, listed by the Belt Line as E. J. Hatchell, conductor, old Suffolk road; R. A. Chapman, engineer, Portsmouth, and T. E. Sawyer, fireman, also of Portsmouth.

Two brakemen of the crew of five escaped after the train struck the water. They were K. M. Blake, who received minor injuries, and T. J. Morris, who was unhurt.

Scenes Of Bastille Day Reenacted By Patriots

Frenchmen Hold Paris Again

Frenchmen were in possession of their beloved capital of Paris again today following four days of fighting to rid the city of the hated Nazis. Meanwhile American, British and Canadian forces closed the trap tighter on Hitler's shattered armies pinned against the Seine river. Other Allied units were driving forward in western, central and southern France.

RAILROADS UNDER FIRE

Government Files Suit Under Anti-Trust Laws

Washington, Aug. 23—(AP)—The Justice Department announced today it has filed an anti-trust suit in Lincoln, Neb., against the Association of American Railroads, the Western Association of Railway Executives, J. P. Morgan and Company, Kuhn, Loeb and Company, and 47 individual railroads.

Also named as defendants are the officers and directors of the Association of American Railroads, top executives of the 47 railroads named and 31 other individuals.

Attorney General Francis Biddle announced through his Washington office that the complaint "charges that a combination of private, financial, industrial and railroad interests have acted collusively to maintain non-competitive rates for transportation and to prevent and retard improvements in the service and facilities of railroads for the western part of the United States." Ukraine Army Smash-Toward Bucharest; Other Forces Reach Beaches Of Riga

By DANIEL DE LUCE Moscow, Aug. 23—(AP)—A new Red army offensive, probably designed to knock Rumania out of the war and break Hitler's grip on the Balkans, smashed forward today on a 150-mile front beyond Iasi to within 180 miles of jittery Bucharest and 155 of the great Ploesti oil center.

(An official German broadcast said the Russians had reached the beaches at Riga, Latvian capital and largest Baltic states city, indicating a new trap for the German 18th and 19th armies.)

Advancing over the bodies of 25,000 Germans slain in three violent days while 12,665 others trudged wearily back to prison camps, Red army groups under Generals Rodion Y. Malinovsky and Fedor I. Tolbukhin drove within 51 miles of the

Charge Three Men With Death Woman

Tarboro, Aug. 23—Robert Lee Ellis, Rufus Whitley and Melvin Whitley, all from the Macclesfield-Crisp section of Edgecombe county, were bound over to next month's term of Superior Court to stand trial for the alleged murder of Bernice Hinson on August 6. Judge Cameron found probable cause yesterday after the witnesses for the state were heard, and bound the trio over with bond for each set at $1,000.

The body of Miss Hinson, who was around 36 years old, was found beside the highway between Tarboro and Farmville, about 8 o'clock Sunday morning, August 6. She had been cut on the arms, back and side, with the wounds having probably been made by a knife or some other sharp instrument, according to witnesses who viewed the body.

Coroner J. G. Raby testified that wounds could easily have been the cause of death, but was unable to say what caused the wounds.

William Duke, undertaker from Farmville, who embalmed the body, stated that the cuts were deep ones, and presumably were from a knife. The evidence presented by the state was of a circumstantial nature, but the three men admitted when placed in custody that they had picked up Miss Hinson at Craig's dance hall, near the place where the body was found, and were taking her home. They stated that she had been drinking, and when they had a flat tire, she walked on ahead and left them. Her body was found several hours later, and the trio disclaimed any knowledge of how death occurred.

NO POLITICS IN SECURITY PLAN

Says Republicans Will Back League Of Nations

Washington, Aug. 23—A prediction that there will be "no party cleavage" over issues of peace and postwar security was made today by Senator Austin (R-Vt.) after a conference with John Foster Dulles, foreign policy adviser to Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

Austin, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who has supported peace organization efforts leading to the current Soviet-British-American peace talks and Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, another Republican committee member, said today.

Today On The Home Front

By KARL R. BAUMAN Washington, Aug. 23—(AP)—When Anglo-American forces sweep across Germany's frontiers, it's a pretty safe bet they will bring their "invasion money" with them. Maybe it's already been printed. If so, it's still a military secret, but "invasion money" has become a part of the march of the armies of liberation. "Invasion money" now is being used in France and Italy, will be used elsewhere.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, who recently visited France to see how it was working out said he found the French accepting "invasion money" with confidence. "Invasion money" has succeeded "spearhead currency" in connection with military operations. "Spearhead currency" was used in North Africa, and in the early days of operations in Italy. "Spearhead currency" is regular United States currency, with a yellow seal to distinguish it from other money. "Invasion money" looks somewhat like a high-quality cigar store coupon. "Invasion money" is printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, turned over to military author-

Everything In Readiness For Market Opening Here

In the language of the sailor, Greenville's warehousemen are clearing their decks, getting ready for action, anticipating one of the best seasons in the history of their market. With an acreage increase over last year and possibly a better yield per acre the Greenville warehousemen realize they will have more tobacco to handle than they have sold for several years and consequently they are making every preparation to handle this additional tobacco. Before the last pound of the 1944 crop is sold they will have enriched the tobacco growers of Eastern Carolina by a sum that will exceed $20,000,000, the greatest amount of money they have ever paid out during a single marketing year.

Tobacco growers coming to Greenville this year will find little, or practically no change in the personnel of the warehouses. Harvey Ward, with M. D. Lassiter, will be back at the Center Brick Warehouse; B. T. Cannon and his sons will operate the Dixie; R. E. Rogers, H. R. Rogers and R. E. Rogers will be at the Harris, and Rogers Warehouse; R. V. Keel and James T. Keel will operate Keels Warehouse; C. H. McGowan, the Mc-

The WAR TODAY AN ANALYSIS OF THE NEWS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Associated Press War Analyst) Liberation of Paris—most glorious moment in the rebirth of a great nation—gives us striking confirmation of a momentous fact which has been emerging gradually from the haze of battle—that Hitler has lost control of the great Nazi machine, both civil and military, through which he has ruled France since her tragic collapse. It isn't merely that his organization has gone to pieces in Normandy or in Brittany, or in southern France, but that his entire regime of occupation is in a state of dissolution. He no longer can call on the north to help the south, or the east to aid the west. The vast civilian population which he enslaved is out of hand. His reign in France is, in his own language, kaput—smashed. France during all these tragic years has been the main German shield against attack by the western Allies. We always knew that the only way Hitler could be defeated was by invasion of France. When the Allies finally drove ashore in Normandy, in the greatest and most dangerous adventure of its kind in history, there was no anticipation that Hitler's machine would go to pieces as it has done. Its collapse means a speedy end to his power throughout all western Europe. This breaking up of Hitler's organization in France has been brought about by many factors. Among these has been the cutting of vital communications over a long period by the dominating Allied air forces. Western Europe has been slashed to ribbons. Finally came the invasions, and the flanking of Paris which is the nerve center of the entire country. And then there have been the French forces of the interior—the vast underground army of patriots who are called "Maquis." The measure of their contribution to the reclamation of their country is vast. Throughout the years of enslavement and terrible privation they

American troops joined in rescue work in the flaming wreckage of one of England's worst sky-ground tragedies.

One of the dead children were evacuees from London, tiny refugees from Hitler's robot bombs.

Fire brigades from surrounding districts were called in to deal with flames in the wrecked buildings.

An eyewitness said the whole center of the tiny village of 1,438 inhabitants became a "sea of flames" and added:

"I looked out from a shop window. There was a flash in the air and the plane, which was flying low, caught fire. It turned over on its back and struck the top of the school and then flashed across the road onto the snack bar."

There were 43 children at the school and few were reported taken alive from the wreckage.

A heavy toll was taken of the partisans in the long years of the stubborn resistance. London French estimated 12,000 Parisians were killed by the Germans before D-day another 6,000 since. Between the armistice and D-day they believed on the basis of underground reports that 30,000 Parisians were arrested for political reasons, and that 349,000 were deported for forced labor.

Strength FOR THE DAY

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

WE MAKE LUCK GOOD OR BAD
A few years ago an artist in this country read in a paper that a large sum of money was being offered for any letter or manuscript which might bear the signature of Hutten Gwinnett, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. For days the artist hunted for the man who he knew he had seen it somewhere. Then, in a leisure hour when he happened to be going through some old music folios, he discovered a letter signed not only by Gwinnett but by Franklin and other members of the Continental Congress. He took the letter to a dealer in antiques, and it was auctioned off for more than fifty thousand dollars.

Many would call this pure luck. Although it would be stretching probability a bit to say that similar opportunities lie near at hand for everyone, certainly it can be said that there is a lot of good fortune in the vicinity of every one of us which we never appropriate as our own. Most of our so-called "big luck" is of our own making. Our environment is filled with mysterious factors of good fortune which keep beckoning to us as we hurry along life's pathway, our faces set in the direction of petty aims and aspirations.

Everybody, of course, can not find $50,000 tucked away in an old book, or lying about somewhere waiting to be picked up. But it certainly is true that God has placed at the side of life's pathways thousands of presidential medals and circumstances which might be ours if we would make them so.

THE WAR TODAY

have kept the flame of independence burning.

So justice has made a happy gesture in decreasing that the Maguis should be the ones to take over their capital from the Boche. Pistol totin' Patton with his armored columns which have flanked Paris, and all the other Allied fighting men, can grin with satisfaction as the Maguis run up the flag.

Having to all intents lost the battle of France, where does the fiercer turn next?
Since his fight in France is hopeless, one would expect him to pull back his defenses to the Rhine in the west and make a final mighty effort to stand off the Red armies in the east.

He is fighting fiercely to hold the line of the Vistula and East Prussia, and perhaps will continue to devote his main effort to the eastern front while carrying out a holding operation along the Rhine against the western Allies.

Allied Columns . . .

World War.

The new Allied trap around Field Marshal Gen. Gueuther von Gluge's riddled forces along the left bank of the Seine appeared to be closing on all sides as the Germans gave up all attempt at an organized rearguard action.

Six hundred German tanks, vehicles and locomotives fell before the guns and bombs of Allied planes, supreme headquarters said, while a belated German air force attempt to give fleeing Nazi ground troops cover resulted in the destruction of 37 enemy aircraft.

Driving up the coast toward the mouth of the Seine and the great port of Le Havre, Dutch and Belgian units took the famous resort cities of Trouville, Villers-sur-Mer and Deauville. Le Havre is seven miles across the Seine estuary from Trouville.

Seven miles southeast of Deauville the Allies took Pont-L'Evêque. The British and Canadian army lines squeezed forward from 10 to 15 miles engulfing the important road hub of Lisieux, 16 miles southeast of Deauville. Laigle 15 miles east of recently-fallen Gace, also was taken.

The whole German area south of the river was contracting rapidly. There were indications that all German resistance there would be wiped out within the next 48 to 60 hours.

Another German corps commander, Maj. Gen. Eifel, was taken by Allied troops. In general the number of enemy officers captured in relation to the total bag of prisoners has been small, indicating that the officers were using the best means to flee the trap and were abandoning their troops.

Soviet Drive . . .

mouth of the Danube.
German shock troops tried to stiffen war-weary Romanian divisions as Russian tanks rolled at least ten miles south of Iasi, Tolbukin's drive through Bessarabia headed cross-country for a junction with Malinovsky in the Galati gap, the capture of which would make much of the Balkan area untenable for the enemy. Advances ranged to 44 miles. The Bessarabian capital of Chisinau was left trapped in a deep pocket on the Dniestr.

In northern Poland, the Russians gradually were outflanking Warsaw and splitting German forces between that besieged Polish capital and East Prussia. The Russians moved 14 miles southeast of Lomza, communications hub.

Desperate German attempts to salvage her Baltic positions brought new tank attacks in the direction of Jekava, which controls road and rail routes in Latvia.

As the Red army drive into Romania went through its fourth day, Bucharest was reported in panic with many of Premier Antonescu's formerly fanatical supporters openly discussing the chances of suing for peace. Each mile the Red army advanced strengthened peace tremors in Bucharest, and gave new hope to Yugoslav and Greek leaders to resist the German advance.

Red Star said Iasi's many blocks of trim stone buildings on a hillside above the Prut generally were intact and the "Soviet blow was so swift the Germans and Romanians could not evacuate their wounded and left 147 cars of munitions and food in the rail yards."

Premier Stalin announced the fall of Iasi in an order of the day. Russian forces first drew up before the city last April. A communique said the "large garrison was wiped out to the last man" in 24 hours of "street fighting."

In conjunction with the new offensive Red army planes raided Constanta, Black sea port 135 miles down the coast. A communique said two transports, five auxiliary craft and four barges were sunk. Other vessels were damaged and an oil refinery set afire.

The daily Russian communique announced steady gains elsewhere along the battlefronts on the north, including new westward penetrations northeast of Warsaw and extension of a wedge into the center of Estonia.

Enemy efforts to widen the newly established escape corridor west of Riga for two German armies in Latvia and Estonia were frustrated, the communique said.

Zambrow, between Warsaw and Bialystok, was captured in a 15 mile advance from previously reported Russian positions, and near Warsaw the Germans were cleared from a 40-mile section of the south bank of the Bug river.

Railroads . . .

States.
The complaint asks the court to dissolve the Association of American Railroads—representing 85 per cent of the nation's principal steam rail lines—and of the Western Association of Railway Executives— an organization of western systems.

It also asks an injunction against the defendants to prevent a revival or continuance of any of the offenses charged and to prevent a revival of the western agreement, the western commissioner or the committee of directors from setting up a plan which would restrain trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

Assistant Attorney General Wendell L. Berge in charge of the anti-trust division, said the War and Navy departments did not object to the filing of the suit, but he added he did not know what action might be taken by them later.

The service departments have requested postponement of approximately 30 similar suits until after the war.

Berge said that under any circumstances from 9 to 12 months would be required to prepare the case.

He told newsmen that the Justice Department is conducting an investigation of southern railroads to determine whether there has been collusive action in that region in the fixing of freight rates. He said the inquiry has developed no evidence of a commission plan similar to that mentioned in the Lincoln suit.

Among the other defendants listed by the Justice Department were: Champion McDowell Davis, Wilmington, N. C., member board of directors, Association of American Railroads; Ernest E. Norris, Washington, D. C., president of Southern Railway Co.; Howard S. Palmer, New Haven, Conn.; and Leigh R. Powell, Jr., Norfolk, Va., member board of directors, Association of American Railroads.

Report New . . .

M. Wilson.
Morocco radio said partisans had liberated Blois on the Loire river 103 miles south of Paris, an action which would give the Allies a firm hold on virtually all the big Loire cities from the sea to the capital.

It also said Carcassonne, 40 miles in from the Mediterranean and 150 miles west of Marseille, had been set free.

Hendaye officials said Allied planes had paved the way for the landing with a low level attack and that Allied warships had poured shells into Bordeaux for more than an hour.

The American troops participating in the assault from the landward side of the city were said to have driven southward from the Loire river, 170 miles to the north, while the French were described as a well armed division of volunteers which left Hendaye yesterday.

Poltz, who filed his dispatch through Spain after returning to the border, said explosions which sounded like an intense aerial and naval bombardment in the Bordeaux area were clearly audible in the Irun-Hendaye frontier region.

In response to queries concerning the reported landing a spokesman at Allied supreme headquarters said the French announcement was "outside our province" and declined further comment. The War Department public relations office in Washington said it had no information on a new landing.

Bordeaux, a city of 60,000 situated at the mouth of the Gironde river 110 miles north of the Spanish frontier, apparently is the pocket of organized German resistance in southwestern France. One of France's most important Atlantic ports, it had been employed by the Nazis as a submarine base during the battle of the Atlantic and in Allied hands could serve as a major embarkation point for supplies.

Grenoble Is . . .

the enemy in northwestern Italy. The Americans also were in position by striking westward to cut off German units reported fleeing from the Mediterranean beachhead along the Rhone valley.

An Associated Press dispatch from Geneva said French forces of the interior were reported attacking Lyon.

Grenoble, the old capital of the province of Dauphine and the chief city of the department of Isere, has always been an active center of French patriotic resistance. Nearly a century and a quarter ago it was the first large city to open its gates to Napoleon Bonaparte on his return from Elba. It subsequently incurred the wrath of the Bourbons by celebrating the anniversary of that event.

The American column followed much the same route as Napoleon in spreading to Grenoble through the French Alps.

An Allied headquarters statement on the northward drive said "enemy resistance was spotty during the advance." Thirteen hours of house to house fighting occurred at Digne. It was there that the Allies captured Maj. Gen. Hans Schubert, a German corps commander. On the Mediterranean coast, a bitter battle still raged in encircled Toulon. French armor and infantry pushed virtually into the outskirts of Marseille, and the French occupied Hyeres east of Toulon.

The Allied command announced that the total number of prisoners taken since the landings had risen to more than 17,000.

Inside Toulon French troops yesterday blazed their way to points half way between the railway tracks which dissect the city. The naval arsenal was half a mile away and the docks only a few hundred yards.

The desperate defenders, trying to emulate the Nazi last ditch fights in Cherbourg and St. Malo, fought from well prepared positions with support of heavy coastal guns and depressed anti-aircraft guns. French forces battling their way from the east reached Le Fradet, four miles from Toulon harbor.

Encirclement of Marseille continued on a broad front, with American forces sweeping around to the west and last reported only a dozen miles short of closing the gap on the west. French forces attacking from the north fought forward to three miles from the city's outskirts. American columns were fighting three miles from the Plage de Berre, a virtually landlocked body of water northwest of the city.

In the course of the Marseille encircling movement, French forces pushed on to high ground northeast of the city.

A dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent Edward Kennedy said the main German force in the area was on a high ridge dominating approach roads from the east. Kennedy said haze and smoke rising from the harbor indicated the Germans were demolishing installations there.

American troops rolling westward from Aix-en-Provence, 15 miles north of Marseille, passed through Velaux in a nine-mile gain. Another column was beyond Mollès, north west of Aix.

In a march down the Duran valley on both sides of the river the same name, American spearheads were several miles beyond Cadenet and only 28 miles from Avignon, on the Rhone river.

member, discussed international questions with Dulles before he went to the State Department to confer with Secretary Hull.

Dulles came here as Dewey's representative after the Republican presidential nominee had commented publicly upon the Dumbarton Oaks conference.

Leaving the private residence where Dulles is a guest, Austin said: "I'm strengthened in my opinion that the campaign for president and vice-president will not cast into the field of discussion any element of discord based on partisan, selfish interests."

Austin said that Republicans in the Senate, where opposition to the League of Nations after the last war blocked American participation, this time were in harmony.

"It is not today as it was before," Austin said. "It is my firm belief that today a very large majority of my colleagues hold these views which I have held for a long time."

"This encourages me to hold the view I express that it is possible to conduct a campaign without ripping open this matter on which practically all Americans are agreed."

While the peace-talk delegations were received at the White House by President Roosevelt, news from the conference was limited to an announcement of the formation of four subcommittees to deal with drafting of documents, legal questions, "general questions of international organization" and security.

The conference spokesman, Michael J. McDermott, asked whether he could comment on a published report that the British, American and Russian plans were discussed at great length after they had been submitted secretly at yesterday's session at Dumbarton Oaks, McDermott said: "I am not authorized to make any comment on it."

The press officer also said that he could make no predictions about future changes in the policy of secrecy under which the conference is operating.

The session today moved toward detailed analysis of Russian, American and British plans for organizing the world for peace. All these proposals were presented to yesterday's meetings and officials familiar with them said they showed broad areas of agreement.

The main problems developed for future discussion apparently were the extent of authority to be proposed for small nations and the kind of commitments for the use of force if and when it is necessary to suppress aggression.

Dulles arrived late yesterday and at a press conference gave some broad indications of possible developments in his talks with Hull. He brought along, he said, his own ideas and those of Governor Dewey.

Goofy, am I?

Go ahead—that's your privilege—thinking I'm just plain hipped on everlastingly keeping this engine's insides OIL-PLATED with Conoco Nth oil. Maybe there is and maybe there isn't sixty other ways that would have kept engine acids from raising Ned with this pre-Pearl Harbor limousine. But one thing I know is this: it's still running swell on nothing but Conoco Nth motor oil. You needn't be a scientist to know that acids from every explosion are forever trying to spoil an engine. Looks like the proper idea is to try blockading those acids by getting your engine OIL-PLATED. I learned there's a modern synthetic in Conoco Nth oil that reminds you of magnetism, because it makes inside surfaces attract a shield of OIL-PLATING. Acids can't so easily tear right into this. Then your OIL-PLATED engine has an extra chance to last you. When new cars arrive, hurrah! But a real advanced improvement right now is to switch to Conoco Nth motor oil, see.

Calendar For Criminal Court Here Is Revised

Cases Involving Farmers Postponed Because Of Acute Labor Shortage

As the result of an interview with Solicitor D. M. Clark concerning the term of criminal court next week, which convenes on August 28, he gave out the following statement:

That on account of the acute labor shortage and the lateness of the tobacco crop, he and Judge Parker conferred on the advisability of holding a full week of court, or just trying the jail cases and such other cases as would not require the attendance of farmers as parties and witnesses, and that following this conference they conferred with the attorneys appearing in the cases, and it was decided that the Grand Jury would proceed as usual and pass upon such matters as are necessary, but many of the cases in which farmers are involved would not be tried out before the petty jury.

Solicitor Clark further stated that he hates to see cases carried over the docket congested, but that the cases could be tried at a later date, even if a special term were to become necessary; whereas, if the tobacco in the fields is to be saved at all, it will have to be saved now. The following is a list of the cases that definitely will not be tried before the petty jury at this term of the court, but some of which may go before the Grand Jury:

Grand Jury — Bruce Newton, breaking and entering; Alex Lloyd, larceny, hit-and-run, and reckless driving; John David Wooten, breaking, entering and larceny; Clarence Dill (in army), larceny; James Mills, assault with deadly weapon and larceny; Evelyn Andrews, assault with deadly weapon and intent to kill.

Other cases—William Jones (in hospital, driving drunk and reckless driving; Lewis Sutton (continued), driving drunk and speeding; Emmett Shirley (continued), driving drunk; William Calvin McLawhorn (continued), reckless driving; Frank Wilson (continued) breaking, entering and larceny; Walter Lee Dall (in army) (continued), larceny and receiving; W. Gus Little (continued) violating fishing law; Lowell Amos Byrd (continued) reckless driving; Chas. O.H. Horne (continued) reckless driving; Charles Raymond Arnold (continued) reckless driving; Lyman Earle Harper (continued) non-support, illegitimate child; Althea Mae Evans (continued) assault with deadly weapon and disorderly conduct; Paul Langley (continued) assault; Clifton Evans (continued) driving drunk; Jasper Lee (Jack) Davenport (continued) larceny and receiving; Dewey Stokes (continued) driving drunk; Jesse R. Hardee (in army) (continued) driving drunk; Leroy Ellis, Ernest Knight, W. H. Jefferson, Roy D. Evans, Thomas F. Ellis, Albert J. Ellis, R. L. Jefferson, Bill Langley, Edgar Baker, W. S. Smith and Rufus Moore (continued) assault with deadly weapon and disorderly conduct.

Following is the revised calendar and contains the cases that will be tried during the week:

For Grand Jury Monday—J. F. Abernethy, larceny; Walter Sessions, larceny; Sammie Lee Grimes, attempted rape; Guion Smith and James McLamb, larceny, breaking and entering; Elbie Williams, bigamy; George Alton James, et al, breaking, entering and larceny; Raymond Bynum, assault with deadly weapon; Willie Evans, assault with deadly weapon with attempt to kill; Robert Evans, assault with deadly weapon with attempt to kill; Robert McKinney, forgery and embezzlement; Jessie Duncan, rape; David Moore, murder.

The following cases are set for trial before the petty jury on Monday, August 28:

The following cases are set for trial before the jury on Tuesday, August 29:

Mrs. A. G. Walters, stock at large; Sam Henry Taylor, liquor for sale; Luther Capper, drunk and resisting arrest; T. Savage, reckless driving; Ida May Brown, liquor; Dave Creech, public drunkenness; V. A. Jackson, worthless check; J. D. Carr, worthless check; Jack Carr, worthless check.

of five million pounds. That much tobacco can be spread for sale at one time. The Greenville warehousemen have also built up experienced staffs of floor men, book men, and office forces composed of men who are capable and courteous thus assuring the best of service to the grower from the time he drives through the door of a Greenville warehouse until he receives his check. The Greenville warehousemen, with the help of their sales forces, will make selling tobacco in Greenville a pleasure this year and before the market closes late in November or during the days of December they will have added many more new patrons to the long list the market already boasts; new patrons brought to Greenville by reports of superior service and higher prices that will come daily from men already selling in Greenville.

Mysterious Lights Over Winterville

By CHESTER WALSH

Mysterious streaks of brilliant light in the sky attracted considerable attention in Winterville last night when two long scintillating rays pointing from the northwest and southeast converged overhead to form a perfect "V" which was visible for 30 or 40 minutes, said George Cox of Winterville, manager of Mrs. Mary Cox's farms.

The two trails of light in the sky were longer than the trail of fire that followed Halley's comet which raced across the heavens for some time during the early summer of 1910. Some who witnessed last night's astronomical phenomenon said the "V" was a sign or portent of early victory over the Germans. It is singularly interesting to recall that when Halley's comet appeared in 1910 older people said its appearance always foretold some momentous world event and repeated the legend that the "shooting stars" of 1848 forewarned of the political dissension which led to the War Between the States in 1861. There are many older people now who insist that Halley's comet foretold the approach of the first World War and claim that with the comet appearing every 60 years one may count back and find out that it was Halley's comet that led the Wise Men of the East to Bethlehem where the Saviour was born nearly 2,000 years ago.

Germany is reported to be producing over five billion gallons of gasoline and light oils per year from coal.
